Ward, Nathaniel. Born at Haverhill, England, in 1578: died in England about 1652. An English preacher and author. He emigrated to Massachusetts in 1634; lived in Ipswich (Agawam); and returned to England in 1646. He was the author of the satirical work "The Simple Cobbler of Agawam" (1647).

Ward, William Hayes. Born at Abington, Mass., June 25, 1835. An American Orientalist, archæologist, and journalist. He graduated at Amherst in 1856, and at Andover Theological Seminary in 1859; and has been editor of the New York "Independent" since 1870. He was director of the Wolfe archæological expedition to Babylonia 1884–85.

Warden (wâr'dėn), Florence. The pseudonym of Mrs. Florence Alice Price James, an English novelist.

Wardle (wâr'dl), Mr. A hospitable kindly bustling old gentleman, the owner of Manor Farm, Dingley Dell, and the host and friend of the Pickwick Club: a character in Charles Dickens's "Pickwick Papers." Miss Rachel Wardle, his old but girlish sister, who elopes with Alfred Jingle; his very deaf old mother; and his daughters Isabella and Emily, form the Wardle family.

Wardö. See Vardö.

Ward's Island. An island in the East River, New York, the seat of several municipal institutions of New York city.

Ware (wär). A town in Hertfordshire, England, situated on the Lea 21 miles north of London. Population, 5,373.

Ware. A town in Hampshire County, Massachusetts, situated on Ware River 21 miles east-northeast of Springfield. Pop., 8,774, (1910).

Ware, William. Born at Hingham, Mass., Aug. 3, 1797: died at Cambridge, Mass., Feb. 19, 1852. An American novelist and miscellaneous writer, and Unitarian clergyman. He wrote the novels "Letters from Palmyra" (1837: afterward published as "Zenobia"), "Probus" (1838: afterward published as "Aurelian"), and "Julian" (1841); "Sketches of European Capitals" (1851), "Works and Genius of Washington Allston" (1852), and life of Nathaniel Bacon (in Sparks's "American Biography"). He edited "American Unitarian Biography."

Wareham (wär'am). A town in Dorset, England, situated between the Frome and Trent, 15 miles east of Dorchester. Population, 2,003.

Warfield (wâr'fēld), Mrs. (Catharine Ann Ware). Born at Natchez, Miss., June 6, 1816: died in Kentucky, May 21, 1877. An American novelist and poet. She wrote "The Household of Bouverie," and other novels, and, with her sister (Mrs. Lee), published several volumes of poems.

Wargla (wär'glä). See Kabail.

Warham (wâr'am), William. Born in Hampshire about 1450: died Aug. 22, 1532. An English prelate. He became archbishop of Canterbury in 1504, and was keeper of the great seal 1502–15.

Waridah (wär'i-dä). [Ar. al-wâridah, the returning (camels), in antithesis to al-sâdirah: see Sadira.] The third-magnitude star γ Sagittarii.

Warminster (wâr'min-stèr). A town in Wiltshire, England, 15 miles southeast of Bath, on the Wily. Population, 5,547.

Warner, Anna Bartlett. See Warner, Susan.

Warner (wâr'nèr), Charles Dudley. Born at Plainfield, Mass., Sept. 12, 1829: died at Hartford, Conn., Oct. 20, 1900. An American author. He graduated at Hamilton College in 1851; practised law in Chicago 1856–60; and became managing editor of the Hartford "Press" in 1861, and on its consolidation with the Hartford "Courant," in 1867, co-editor. He became associate editor of "Harper's Magazine" in 1884. His works include "My Summer in a Garden" (1870), "Saunterings" (1872), "Back-Log Studies" (1872), "Baddeck and That Sort of Thing" (1874), "My Winter on the Nile, etc." (1876: first issued as "Mummies and Moslems"), "Being a Boy" (1877), "In the Levant" (1877), "In the Wilderness" (1878), "Captain John Smith" (1880), "Washington Irving" (1881), "A Roundabout Journey" (1883), "Their Pilgrimage" (1886), "On Horseback, etc." (a book of travels, 1888), "The Golden House" (1894), etc. He also wrote papers, including "Studies in the South" and "Studies in the Great West" (in "Harper's Magazine"). He wrote, with Mark Twain, "The Gilded Age" (1873).

Warner, Olin Levi. Born at Suffield, Conn., April 9, 1844: died at New York, Aug. 14, 1896. An American sculptor. He was in turn an artisan, a telegraph operator, and a designer of silverwork, and at the age of twenty-five went to Paris, where he studied sculpture for three years and a half at the École des Beaux Arts with Jouffroy. He then returned to New York. Among his works are a bust of Daniel Cottier (in the Metropolitan Museum); statuettes of "Twilight" and "May"; statues of a "Dancing Nymph" and "Diana"; a fountain for Portland, Oregon; statues of Governor Buckingham, William Lloyd Garrison, and several portrait-busts.

Warner, Seth. Born at Roxbury, Conn., 1743: died 1784. An American Revolutionary officer, one of the leaders of the "Green Mountain Boys," outlawed by New York authorities. He was second in command under Allen at the taking of Ticonderoga in 1775; captured Crown Point in 1775; was made colonel; and served in the expedition to Canada, and in the siege of St. John's. He commanded at the battle of Hubbardton in 1777, and was distinguished at the battle of Bennington and in the Saratoga campaign.

Warner, Susan: pseudonym Elizabeth Wetherell. Born at New York, July 11, 1819: died at Highland Falls, N. Y., March 17, 1885. An American novelist and religious writer. Among her novels are "The Wide, Wide World" (1850; next to "Uncle Tom's Cabin" the most popular American novel), "Queechy" (1852), "The Hills of the Shatemuc" (1856), "The Old Helmet" (1863), "Melbourne House" (1864), "Daisy" (1868), "What She Could" (1870), "The House in Town" (1871), "The Little Camp" (1873), "Willow Brook" (1874), "Wych Hazel" (1876), "My Desire" (1879), "Nobody" (1883), "Daisy Plains" (1885), etc. With her sister, Anna Bartlett Warner (born at New York, 1820), she wrote "Say and Seal" (1860), "Ellen Montgomery's Book-shelf" (1863–69), "Sybil and Chryssa, etc." (1869), etc. Anna B. Warner, who wrote under the pseudonym of Amy Lothrop, is the author of "Dollars and Cents" (1852), "My Brother's Keeper" (1855), and other stories. Among Susan Warner's other works are "The Law and the Testimony" (1853), "The Golden Ladder" (1862), "Lessons on Standard-Bearers of the Old Testament" (1872).

Warner, William. Born in Oxfordshire, England, about 1558: died March, 1609. An English poet. He wrote a rimed history of England, "Albion's England" (1586), and "Menæchmi" (a comedy from Plautus, 1595): Shakspere's "Comedy of Errors" was derived from this.

Warnsdorf (värns'dorf). A manufacturing town in northern Bohemia, 59 miles north of Prague. Population, commune, 23,220 (1910).

War of 1812. The war between Great Britain and the United States 1812–15. War was declared by the United States, June 18. Chief events — 1812: embargo for 90 days declared (April 4); unsuccessful invasion of Canada and surrender of Detroit (Aug. 16); British ship Alert captured by the Essex (Aug. 13); the Guerrière (British) by the Constitution (Aug. 19); the Frolic (British) by the Wasp (Oct. 18); and the Macedonian (British) by the United States (Oct. 25). 1813: American defeat at Frenchtown (Jan. 22), and victories of Perry on Lake Erie (Sept. 10), and of Harrison at the Thames (Oct. 5); the Chesapeake (American) captured by the Shannon (June 1); the Hornet (American) captured the Resolution (Feb. 14) and Peacock (Feb. 24); and the Enterprise (American) captured the Boxer (Sept. 5). 1814: the Americans won the battles of Chippewa (July 5), Lundy's Lane (July 25), and Lake Champlain (Sept. 11); the British defeated the Americans at Bladensburg (Aug. 24), entered Washington and burned the public buildings, and were defeated at Baltimore (Sept. 12–13); the Essex (American) was captured by the Cherub and the Phœbe (March 28); and the Wasp (American) took the Reindeer (June 28) and sank the Avon (Sept. 1); the Hartford Convention assembled Dec. 15, and adjourned in about three weeks without result. Peace was signed at Ghent Dec. 24, 1814, and ratified at Washington Feb. 18, 1815, but the news did not reach the ocean cruisers till later. 1815: the British were defeated by Jackson at New Orleans (Jan. 8); the President (American) surrendered to a British squadron (Jan. 15); the Constitution (American) captured the Levant and the Cyane (Feb. 20); and the Hornet (American) captured the Penguin (March 23).

War of Liberation. The war undertaken by Germany in 1813, with the aid of Russia, Great Britain, and other allies, to free Germany and other parts of Europe from the rule or influence of Napoleon and the French.

War of Secession. See Civil War.

War of the American Revolution. See Revolutionary War.

War of the Rebellion. See Civil War.

War of the Spanish Succession, etc. See Spanish Succession, War of the, etc.

Warren, Gouverneur Kemble. Born at Cold Spring, N. Y., Jan. 8, 1830: died at Newport, R. I., Aug. 8, 1882. A noted American general and military engineer. He graduated at West Point in 1850; served in surveys in the West; and was assistant professor of mathematics at West Point 1850–61. In Sept., 1861, he became captain of engineers, and served at Big Bethel, through the Peninsular and Manassas campaigns, and at Antietam, Fredericksburg, and Chancellorsville. He was promoted brigadier-general of volunteers in Sept., 1862, and major-general of volunteers in May, 1863. In June of the latter year he was appointed chief engineer of the Army of the Potomac. He held Little Round Top at the battle of Gettysburg; as commander of the 2d army corps defended Bristow Station Oct., 1863; and as commander of the 5th corps served through the Richmond campaign of 1864–65. He was removed from his command by General Sheridan after the battle of Five Forks, April 1, 1865. Later he commanded the Department of the Mississippi. He was brevetted major-general in the regular army in 1865.

Warren, Joseph. Born at Roxbury, Mass., June 11, 1741: killed at the battle of Bunker Hill, June 17, 1775. An American physician and soldier. He graduated at Harvard in 1759; practised medicine in Boston; became one of the patriot leaders in Massachusetts previous to the Revolution; delivered orations on the anniversary of the Boston massacre in 1772 and 1775; was chairman of the committee of public safety in 1774, and president of the Provincial Congress of Massachusetts; served at the battle of Lexington; was made major-general of the Massachusetts forces in June, 1775; and served as a volunteer aide at Bunker Hill.

Warren, Samuel. Born in Denbighshire, Wales, May 23, 1807: died at London, July 29, 1877. A British novelist and legal and general writer. His chief work is the novel "Ten Thousand a Year" (published in "Blackwood's Magazine" 1839–41). Among his other works are "Passages from the Diary of a Late Physician" ("Blackwood's Magazine," 1830–31), "Popular and Practical Introduction to Law Studies" (1835), "Extracts from Blackstone's Commentaries" (1837), etc.

Warren, William. Born at Philadelphia, Nov. 17, 1812: died at Boston, Sept. 21, 1888. A popular American comedian, the son of William Warren, an actor (1767–1832). He made his first appearance in 1832 at Philadelphia. In 1845 he played in London, and 1846–82 was connected with the Howard Athenæum and Boston Museum in Boston. He was successful as Sir Peter Teazle, Dr. Pangloss, Touchstone, etc.

Warrensburg (wor'enz-bèrg). The capital of Johnson County, Missouri, 52 miles east-southeast of Kansas City. Pop., 4,689, (1910).

Warrington (wor'ing-ton). A town in Lancashire and Cheshire, England, situated on the Mersey 16 miles east of Liverpool. It has extensive trade, and manufactures of cotton, iron, etc. It was, perhaps, an ancient Roman station. Several contests occurred near it in the period of the civil war. Population, 72,178, (1911).

Warrington, George. The friend of Pendennis in Thackeray's novel of that name. He is a rough melancholy man with a gentle heart. His family appears in "The Virginians."

Warrior (wor'i-or). The first English iron-clad ship constructed entirely of iron, launched in 1860. The dimensions are: length, 380 feet; breadth, 58.4; draught, 26.9; displacement, 9,210 tons. The central part was protected for 218 feet by 4½-inch armor on 18-inch wooden backing. Her sides could not be penetrated by any guns then afloat.

Warsaw (wâr'sâ). [Pol. Warszawa, G. Warschau, F. Varsovie.] The capital of Russian Poland and of the government of Warsaw, situated on the left bank of the Vistula, in lat. 52° 14′ N., long. 21° 4′ E. It is connected by two bridges over the Vistula with its suburb Praga. It is the third city of the Russian empire; has a very extensive commerce through its situation on the Vistula and as a railway center; and has varied and important manufactures. Warsaw is first mentioned in 1224; was the residence of the dukes of Mazovia until 1526; was made a royal residence about 1550; and became formally the capital of Poland in 1609. It was captured by the Swedes in 1655 and 1656; was taken and retaken in the Northern War; was occupied by the Russians in 1764 and 1793; resisted a Prussian siege in 1794, but surrendered to Suvaroff; was ceded to Prussia in 1795; was occupied by the French in 1806; and was made the capital of the grand duchy of Warsaw in 1807. It was finally occupied by the Russians in 1813. An insurrection was commenced there Nov. 29, 1830, and the town capitulated to Paskevitch, Sept. 8, 1831. It was the center of the insurrection of 1863. Population, 756,426.

Warsaw. A government of Russian Poland, surrounded by Plock, Lomza, Siedlce, Radom, Piotrkow, Kalisz, and Prussia. Area, 6,749 square miles. Population, 2,361,400.

Warsaw. A duchy created by Napoleon at the treaty of Tilsit in 1807, and given to the king of Saxony. It was formed from the Polish possessions acquired by Prussia in 1793 and 1795, and was dissolved in 1813.

Warsaw, Battle of. A victory gained by the Swedes and the Great Elector of Brandenburg over the Poles, July 28–30, 1656.

Warschau (vär'shou). The German name of Warsaw.

Wars of the Roses. In English history, the prolonged armed struggle between the rival houses of Lancaster and York (see York, House of); so called from the red rose and white rose, badges respectively of the adherents of the two families. The wars began in the reign of Henry VI. (third of the Lancaster line). The following are the leading events and incidents: Yorkist victory at St. Albans under Richard, duke of York, May 22, 1455; renewal of the war in 1459, and Yorkist victory at Blore Heath, Sept. 23; Yorkist victory at Northampton, July 10, 1460; Lancastrian victory at Wakefield, and death of the Duke of York, Dec. 31, 1460; Yorkist victory at Mortimer's Cross, Feb. 2, 1461; Lancastrian victory at St. Albans, Feb. 17, 1461; accession of the Earl of March (son of the Duke of York) as Edward IV., March, 1461; Yorkist victory at Towton, March 29, 1461; Yorkist victories at Hedgeley Moor, April 25, and Hexham, May 8, 1464; revolt of the Earl of Warwick (the "King-Maker"), 1469; restoration of Henry VI., 1470; landing of Edward IV., March 14, 1471, and his victory over Warwick at Barnet, April 14, 1471, and over Margaret of Anjou at Tewkesbury, May 4, 1471; accession of Edward V., 1483; accession of Richard III., 1483. The contest was ended with the defeat and death of Richard III. at Bosworth, Aug. 22, 1485, and the succession of Henry VII., representative of a Lancastrian offshoot, who, by his marriage with a Yorkist princess, united the conflicting interests.

Warta (vär'tä). The Polish name of the Warthe.

Wartburg (värt'börg). An ancient princely residence at Eisenach, Germany, still occasionally occupied by the Grand Duke of Weimar. It is one of the finest existing Romanesque secular monuments, and has been well restored and adorned with historical frescos. It includes the Vorburg, or outer ward, and the Hofburg, in which are the finest buildings. Especially interesting are the Minstrels' Hall in the Landgrafenhaus, the chapel, and the armory. In the Ritterhaus of the Vorburg Luther had asylum given him by the elector Frederick the Wise in 1521–22: his room and its furniture are preserved.

Wartburg, Contest of. A historico-legendary contest of minnesingers at the Wartburg, about 1206. It gave rise to an epic poem composed about 1300 ("Krieg von Wartburg").

Wartburg, Festival of. A commemoration festival, under the auspices of the German students, held at the Wartburg, Oct. 18, 1817, the fourth anniversary of the battle of Leipsic, to celebrate the tercentenary of the Reformation. Its main practical object was the foundation of the union of German students in the interest of political liberty and national unity. The event caused reactionary measures to be taken in Germany.

Warthe, or Warte (vär'te), Pol. Warta (vär'tä). The largest tributary of the Oder. It rises in the southwestern part of Russian Poland, traverses Poland and the province of Posen in Prussia, and joins the Oder at Küstrin in Brandenburg. Length, over 400 miles; navigable from Konin in Poland.

Warton (wâr'ton), Thomas. Born at Basingstoke, England, 1728: died May 21, 1790. An English critic and poet, professor of poetry at Oxford. He became poet laureate in 1785. His chief works are a "History of English Poetry" (3 vols. 1774–81), "Pleasures of Melancholy" (1747), "Observations on the Poetry of Spenser" (1754), and editions of Theocritus, the Greek Anthology, and the minor poems of Milton.

Warville, de. See Brissot, Jean Pierre.

Warwick (wor'ik), or Warwickshire (wor'ik-shir). A county of England, bounded by Stafford, Leicester, Northampton, Oxford, Gloucester, and Worcester. It contains the forest of Arden and the towns of Birmingham, Stratford-on-Avon, and Coventry. It formed a part of the ancient Mercia. Area, (ad. co.), 880 square miles. Population (parl. co.), 897,835.

Warwick. The capital of Warwickshire, situated on the Avon in lat. 52° 16′ N., long. 1° 35′ W. It contains a famous castle, with machicolated towers and battlemented walls, the effect of which is much enhanced by their framing of splendid trees. The great Cæsar's Tower dates back almost to the Conquest. The spacious residential buildings are of the 15th century and later, extensively restored: they contain many historical relics, paintings, and other works of art, among them the large sculptured Warwick vase, found in Hadrian's villa at Tivoli. St. Mary's is a large Perpendicular church, in great part rebuilt in 1694. The interior is impressive, and contains interesting brasses and other medieval monuments. The church is chiefly notable for the superb Beauchamp Chapel, dating from 1464. The architecture of the chapel is florid Perpendicular, and it contains the beautifully sculptured tombs of the earls of Warwick and of Robert Dudley, earl of Leicester. Warwick was a British settlement, and became a Roman fortress about 50 A. D. It was rebuilt by Ethelfleda about 915. Population, about 11,900.

Warwick, Earl of (Richard Nevil or Neville). Born in 1428: killed at the battle of Barnet, April 14, 1471. An English politician and commander: called "the King-Maker." He was related to both the Yorkist and the Lancastrian families. He inherited the title of earl of Salisbury, and became earl of Warwick through his marriage with the daughter of Richard Beauchamp (earl of Warwick). At first he sided with the Yorkists, and served at the first battle of St. Albans in 1455; was made governor of Calais; again joined the Yorkists in 1459; defeated the Lancastrians at Northampton in July, 1460, and took Henry VI. prisoner; was defeated at St. Albans in 1461 by Margaret; joined with Edward IV. and reëntered London in 1461; won with Edward the victory of Towton in 1461; was made warden of the Scottish marches, constable of Dover, lord high chamberlain, etc.; and repressed the Lancastrian rising in 1463–64. He opposed the marriage of Edward IV. with Elizabeth Woodville, and the alliance with Burgundy; and was driven into revolt by the king, whom he took prisoner in 1469, but soon released. He conspired with his son-in-law Clarence against Edward IV. in 1470; fled to France; adopted the cause of the Lancastrians; landed in England, drove Edward IV. to Flanders, and restored Henry VI. in 1470; but was overthrown by Edward IV. at Barnet in 1471.

Warwick, Earls of. See Beauchamp, Richard, and Dudley, John.

Warwick, Guy of. See Guy of Warwick.

Wasa. See Vasa.

Wasania (wä-sä'nyä). See Pygmies.

Wasat (wā'sat). [Ar. al-wasal, the middle: though the appropriateness of the name is not clear.] The third-magnitude double star δ Geminorum.

Wasatch Mountains. See Wahsatch.

Wasco (wäs'kō). [Pl., also Wascos, Wascoes.] A tribe of the Chinook division of North American Indians, formerly living on the south side of the Columbia River, near the Dalles, Oregon. They joined in the treaty of 1855 and removed to the Warm Spring reservation, Oregon. They now number about 200. See Chinookan.

Wash (wosh), The. An arm of the North Sea, on the coast of England between Norfolk and Lincolnshire. Length, 22 miles. Width, about 15 miles. It receives the Witham, Welland, Nen, and Ouse.

Washa (wosh'ä), Lake. A lake in Louisiana, southwest of New Orleans. Length, about 14 miles.

Washaki (wäsh'ä-kē). [From the name of a former chief.] The easternmost of the Shoshoni tribes of North American Indians, formerly in the Wind River country, western Wyoming, and in eastern Idaho: now on the Shoshoni reservation in western Wyoming. They numbered 870 in 1885. Also Washano, Washikeek, Pohah, Pokah. See Shoshoni.

Washburn (wosh'bèrn), Cadwallader Colden. Born at Livermore, Maine, April 22, 1818: died at Eureka Springs, Ark., May 14, 1882. An American politician and general, brother of E. B. Washburne. He was admitted to the bar in 1842; was Republican member of Congress from Wisconsin 1855–1861; was delegate to the peace convention in 1861; entered the Union army as colonel in 1861; became major-general of volunteers in 1862; took part in the siege of Vicksburg in 1863; captured Fort Esperanza in Texas in 1863; commanded the district of West Tennessee 1864–65; was Republican member of Congress from Wisconsin 1867–1871; and was governor of Wisconsin 1872–74. He afterward engaged in the flour business at Minneapolis, and founded the Washburn Observatory in connection with the Wisconsin State University.

Washburne (wosh'bèrn), Elihu Benjamin. Born at Livermore, Maine, Sept. 23, 1816: died at Chicago, Oct. 22, 1887. An American statesman and diplomatist. He studied law at Harvard; was admitted to the bar in 1840; was a Whig and later a Republican member of Congress from Illinois 1853–69; and was chairman of the committee on commerce. He was secretary of state March 5–17, 1869, and United States minister to France 1869–77. He was the only foreign representative who remained in Paris through both the siege and the Commune period. He wrote "Recollections of a Minister to France" (1887).

Washburne Mountains. A group of mountains in the Yellowstone National Park. Highest point, 10,345 feet.

Washington (wosh'ing-ton). One of the Pacific States of the United States of America, extending from lat. 45° 40′ to 49° N., and from long. 117° to 124° 44′ W. Capital, Olympia; chief cities, Seattle and Tacoma. It is bounded by the Strait of Juan de Fuca and British Columbia on the north, Idaho on the east, Oregon (partly separated by the Columbia River) on the south, and the Pacific on the west. The Cascade Mountains traverse the State from south to north. It has rich forests, particularly in the west, and extensive deposits of coal; and gold, silver, and copper are found. There is an extensive wheat region in the east. The salmon-fisheries are important, and ship-building is a flourishing industry. Washington has 37 counties, sends 2 senators and 3 representatives to Congress, and has 5 electoral votes. The Strait of Juan de Fuca was discovered in 1592, and explored in 1789; the mouth of the Columbia was explored by the American captain Gray in 1792; and further explorations were conducted by Lewis and Clark in 1805. A settlement at the mouth of the Columbia was founded by John Jacob Astor in 1811. The boundary was settled with Great Britain in 1846. Washington formed part of the Territory of Oregon; was organized as a Territory in 1853; and was admitted to the Union in 1889. Area, 69,180 square miles. Population, 1,141,990, (1910).

Washington. The capital of the United States, forming part of the District of Columbia, situated on the Potomac, at the head of navigation, in lat. 38° 53′ N., long. 77° 1′ W. It has become a favorite city of residence in late years, and is noted for its public buildings, the most important being the Capitol (which see). The White House, the official residence of the President, is a handsome mansion in the English Renaissance style. Its classical details are sober and well designed, both outside and inside. It became too small for the official and social needs of the chief of the government and was remodeled in 1902, the offices being removed to a new executive building. The corner-stone of the White House was laid by General Washington, and it was first occupied in 1800 by John Adams. Besides the buildings for the various government departments, the National Museum, Smithsonian Institution, etc., are notable. The Washington monument is an obelisk-shaped tower of white marble, erected in honor of George Washington. It is 555 feet high to its acutely pointed apex, and 55 feet square at the base. The corner-stone was laid on July 4, 1848, but after a short time the work languished and then stopped entirely, until in 1876 Congress voted the completion of the monument, which was accomplished in 1884. The site for the capital was chosen in 1790, and the government removed from Philadelphia in 1800. The public buildings were burned by the British in 1814. The city was the Federal military headquarters in the Civil War, and was threatened by the Confederates under Early in 1864. Its municipal government was abolished in 1871, and a territorial government established in that year. This was abolished in 1874, and the present form instituted (see District of Columbia). Population, 331,069, (1910).

Washington. The capital of Daviess County, Indiana, 92 miles southwest of Indianapolis. Population, 7,854, (1910).

Washington. A seaport, capital of Beaufort County, North Carolina, situated on Pamlico River 100 miles east by south of Raleigh. Population, 6,211, (1910).

Washington. The capital of Fayette County, Ohio, 35 miles southwest of Columbus. Population, 7,277, (1910).

Washington. The capital of Washington County, Pennsylvania, situated on Chartiers Creek 24 miles southwest of Pittsburg. Population, 18,778, (1910).

Washington, Bushrod. Born in Westmoreland County, Va., 1762: died at Philadelphia, 1829. An American jurist, nephew of George Washington. He was a member of the Virginia House of Delegates, and of the Virginia ratifying convention of 1788; and was associate justice of the United States Supreme Court 1798–1829.

Washington, George. Born in Westmoreland County, Va., Feb. 22 (O. S. Feb. 11), 1732: died at Mount Vernon, Dec. 14, 1799. A famous American soldier and statesman, the first President of the United States. He was the son of Augustine Washington, a Virginia planter. He was at school until he was about 16 years of age; was engaged in surveying 1748–51; was appointed adjutant of Virginia troops in 1751; inherited Mount Vernon on the death of his brother in 1752; was made by Dinwiddie commander of a military district of Virginia in 1753; was sent on a mission to the French authorities beyond the Allegheny River 1753–54; was appointed lieutenant-colonel in 1754; had a successful skirmish with the French, and defended Fort Necessity, but was obliged to surrender on July 3; was a volunteer aide-de-camp to Braddock in the battle of the Monongahela in 1755, and brought off the Virginians; commanded on the frontier 1755–57; and led the advance-guard in Forbes's expedition for the reduction of Fort Duquesne in 1758. On Jan. 6, 1759, he married Martha Custis (widow of Daniel Parke Custis), and settled as a planter at Mount Vernon. He was a delegate to the Virginia House of Burgesses, and to the Continental Congresses of 1774 and 1775; was appointed commander-in-chief of the Continental forces June 15, 1775; arrived at Cambridge July 2, and took command; and compelled the evacuation of Boston on March 17, 1776. His army was defeated at the battle of Long Island Aug. 27, 1776, and at White Plains Oct. 28, 1776; he retreated through New Jersey; surprised the Hessians at Trenton Dec. 26; won the victory of Princeton Jan., 1777; was defeated at Brandywine and Germantown in 1777; was at Valley Forge during the winter of 1777–78; fought the drawn battle of Monmouth in 1778; compelled the surrender of Cornwallis at Yorktown in 1781; resigned his commission as commander-in-chief at Annapolis in 1783; and retired to Mount Vernon. In 1787 he was president of the Constitutional Convention; was unanimously elected President of the United States in Feb., 1789, and inaugurated at New York April 30, 1789; and was unanimously reëlected in 1793, serving until 1797. Among the chief events in his administrations were the establishment of the machinery of government, the crystallization of parties, the regulation of commerce and finance, the admission of Vermont, Kentucky, and Tennessee, the Indian wars, the "whisky insurrection," and the Jay treaty. He issued his farewell address to the people in Sept., 1796. He was appointed lieutenant-general and commander-in-chief of the army in anticipation of a war with France in 1798.

In civil as in military life, he [Washington] was preeminent among his contemporaries for the clearness and soundness of his judgment, for his perfect moderation and self-control, for the quiet dignity and the indomitable firmness with which he pursued every path which he had deliberately chosen. Of all the great men in history he was the most invariably judicious, and there is scarcely a rash word or action or judgment recorded of him. Those who knew him well, noticed that he had keen sensibilities and strong passions; but his power of self-command never failed him, and no act of his public life can be traced to personal caprice, ambition, or resentment. In the despondency of long-continued failure, in the elation of sudden success, at times when his soldiers were deserting by hundreds, and when malignant plots were formed against his reputation, amid the constant quarrels, rivalries, and jealousies of his subordinates, in the dark hour of national ingratitude, and in the midst of the most universal and intoxicating flattery, he was always the same calm, wise, just, and single-minded man, pursuing the course which he believed to be right, without fear or favour or fanaticism, equally free from the passions that spring from interest, and from the passions that spring from imagination. He never acted on the impulse of an absorbing or uncalculating enthusiasm, and he valued very highly fortune, position, and reputation; but at the command of duty he was ready to risk and sacrifice them all. He was in the highest sense of the words a gentleman and a man of honour, and he carried into public life the severest standard of private morals. It was at first the constant dread of large sections of the American people that if the old Government were overthrown, they would fall into the hands of military adventurers, and undergo the yoke of military despotism. It was mainly the transparent integrity of the character of Washington that dispelled the fear. Lecky, England in the XVIIIth Century, III. 470–471.

Washington, Martha. Born in New Kent County, Va., May, 1732: died at Mount Vernon, Va., May 22, 1802. The wife of George Washington. She was the daughter of Colonel John Dandridge, a planter, and in June, 1749, married Daniel Parke Custis, a planter, who died in 1757, leaving his widow one of the wealthiest women in Virginia. She married Washington in Jan., 1759. She had by her first husband four children, two of whom died in infancy; the third, Martha Parke Custis, died at the age of sixteen; the fourth, John Parke Custis, died in 1781, leaving four children, the two younger of whom, Eleanor Parke Custis and George Washington Parke Custis, were adopted by Washington. She had no children by the latter.

Washington, Mount. The highest summit of the White Mountains, New Hampshire, and the highest mountain in New England, situated in lat. 44° 16′ N. It is ascended by railroad and by a carriage-road from the Glen House. On the summit is a United States signal-station. Height, 6,279 feet.

Washington, Treaty of. A treaty between Great Britain and the United States, signed May 8, 1871, which provided for the settlement of the Alabama claims by the Genèva tribunal, and for the settlement of the San Juan boundary and fisheries disputes.

Washington and Jefferson College. An institution of learning at Washington, Pennsylvania. It was formed in 1865 through the consolidation of Washington College at Washington, Pennsylvania, and Jefferson College at Canonsburg, Pennsylvania. It is non-sectarian, and is attended by about 400 students.

Washington and Lee University. An institution of learning at Lexington, Virginia. Its foundation was a school near Greenville, Va., called the Augusta Academy. In 1776 its name was changed to Liberty Hall; in 1782 it was chartered; in 1785 it was moved to the neighborhood of Lexington; and in 1796 it received a gift from George Washington and its name was changed to Washington College. In 1803 it was placed on its present site. It received its present name in 1870. Robert E. Lee was its president 1865–70. It is non-sectarian, and has about 400 students.

Washington Centennial Arch. An arch founded in 1890 at the Fifth Avenue entrance of Washington Square, New York. It has a single archway with coffered vault, 30 feet in span and 47 high, surmounted by an entablature with a rich frieze carved with foliage. Above the somewhat heavy cornice is a low attic, which bears the inscription of dedication.

Washington Elm. An elm in Cambridge, Massachusetts, under which Washington took command of the American army in 1775.

Washington Group. A cluster of islands in the Marquesas group, Pacific Ocean.

Washington Land. A region in the northwestern part of Greenland, about lat. 80° N.

Washington Monument. See Washington (city).

Wasp (wosp). 1. An American ship of war, 18 guns, built at Washington in 1806. Oct. 13, 1812, she sailed from the Delaware, under command of Captain Jacob Jones, with 137 men. On Oct. 18, in lat. 37° N., long. 65° W., she fell in with 6 merchantmen under convoy of the British brig Frolic, 18 guns and 110 men. The action began at 11:32 A. M., and the Frolic struck at 12:15 P. M. It was fought in a very heavy sea. Both ships were captured the same day by the Poictiers (British, 74).

2. An American ship-rigged sloop of war, 22 guns and 160 men, built at Newburyport in 1814. She left Portsmouth, May 1, 1814, under Captain Johnston Blakeley, and ran into the English Channel. On June 28 she fell in with the British sloop Reindeer, 18 guns and 118 men. The battle began at 3:17 P. M., and the Reindeer struck at 3:44. On Sept. 1, in lat. 47° 30′ N., she met the British brig Avon, 18 guns. The battle began at 8:38 P. M., and the Avon struck at 10:12. On Oct. 9, in lat. 18° 35′ N., long. 30° 10′ W., she spoke and boarded the Swedish brig Adams, and took out of her Lieutenant McKnight and a master's mate, late of the United States ship Essex, on their way from Brazil to England. The Wasp was never heard from again.

Wasps (wosps), The. A comedy by Aristophanes, exhibited in 422 B. C.

Wast Water (wast wâ'tėr). A lake in Cumberland, England, 13 miles west of Ambleside. Length, 3 miles.

Wasulu (wä-sö'lö). An African kingdom in the upper Niger basin, since 1887 under French protection. It is in the western part of the Upper Senegal and Niger. The population (about 1,500,000) is composed of Mandingos, with a sprinkling of mixed Fulahs and Soninkes. Bissandugu, the capital, has about 3,000 population. Wasulu was only a federation of petty tribes until 1840, when Mahmadu founded the kingdom. This was greatly enlarged by Samory, who, though of humble origin, succeeded in dispossessing Mahmadu's son and conquering his neighbors, until a conflict with the French compelled him to accept their protection.

Watch Hill Point (woch hil point). A headland near the southwestern extremity of Rhode Island. Near it, also on the Atlantic Ocean, is the summer resort of Watch Hill.

Wateh (wä'te). An Arab chieftain whose territory bordered on Edom, Moab, and Ammon. He took part in a rebellion against Asurbanipal, king of Assyria (668–626 B. C.), and was captured by him and yoked to his triumphal chariot.

Water-bearer. See Aquarius.

Waterbury (wâ'tėr-ber-i). A city in New Haven County, Connecticut, situated on Naugatuck River 19 miles north-northwest of New Haven. It has important manufactures of brass, and produces watches, pins, lamps, wire, clocks, etc. It was incorporated in 1853. Population, 73,141, (1910).

Wateree (wâ-tę-rē'). A river in South Carolina which unites with the Congaree to form the Santee: called Catawba in its upper course. See Catawba.

Waterford (wâ'tėr-fȯrd). 1. A maritime county of Munster, Ireland. It is bounded by Tipperary and Kilkenny on the north, Waterford Harbor (separating it from Wexford) on the east, St. George's Channel on the south, and Cork on the west. The surface is largely mountainous. The county contains many antiquities. Area, 716 square miles. Pop. (including co. borough), 87,187.

2. A county of a city, capital of Waterford, situated on the Suir, at the head of Waterford Harbor, in lat. 52° 16′ N., long. 7° 6′ W. It has a considerable export trade; was an ancient Danish stronghold; was taken by Strongbow in 1171; received a charter from King John; was unsuccessfully attacked by Cromwell in 1649; and was taken by Ireton in 1650. Population, 26,769.

Waterloo (wâ-tėr-lö'; D. pron. vä-ter-lō'). A village in the province of Brabant, Belgium, 9½ miles south of Brussels: the headquarters of the Duke of Wellington in the battle of Waterloo.

Waterloo, Battle of. A decisive victory gained near Waterloo (a village south of Brussels), June 18, 1815, by the Allies over Napoleon. The Prussians often call the battle Belle Alliance, and the French Mont St.-Jean, after localities near Waterloo. The French numbered about 72,000; the allied British, Dutch, and Germans, under the Duke of Wellington, numbered about 67,000: the Prussians (about 50,000 additional), under Blücher, marched to the battle-field and took part in the close and in the pursuit. The battle commenced about 11:30 A. M. The features were the unavailing charges of the French and the stubborn resistance of the British contingent, and the last charge of the French Old Guard in the evening, which failed and was followed by an advance of the combined armies. The Allies lost about 22,000; the French about 35,000, besides many prisoners. (See Grouchy.) The rout was so complete and the disaster to Napoleon so decisive that "Waterloo" is proverbial for a final and deciding blow. The preliminary battles were at Ligny and Quatre-Bras (which see).

Waterloo Bridge. A bridge over the Thames at London, called by Canova the finest bridge in Europe: designed and built by John Rennie. The first stone was laid Oct. 11, 1811, and the bridge was opened June 18, 1817, the second anniversary of the battle of Waterloo. It is 1,326 feet long, 42 feet wide, 35 feet high, and the central span is 120 feet wide.

Waterloo Place. An open square in London, between Carlton House Terrace and Regent street. Pall Mall crosses it, and in its center is the Crimean monument. It also contains statues of Lord Napier, Colin Campbell (Lord Clyde), Lord Lawrence, and others.

Waterloo-with-Seaforth (-sē'fȯrth). A watering-place in Lancashire, England, situated at the mouth of the Mersey, 5 miles north-northwest of Liverpool. Population, 23,102.

Water Music, The. A series of 21 movements by Handel, which he had played by an orchestra on a boat in which he followed the barge of the king (George I.) as he proceeded to Whitehall in 1715. They have been arranged for the piano.

Water-Poet, The. A name given to the poet John Taylor (1580–1654).

Watertown (wâ'tėr-toun). A town in Middlesex County, Massachusetts, situated on the Charles River 7 miles north of Boston. It contains a United States arsenal. Population, 12,875, (1910).

Watertown. A city, capital of Jefferson County, New York. Population, 26,730, (1910).

Watertown. A city in Jefferson and Dodge counties, Wisconsin, situated on Rock River 44 miles west by north of Milwaukee. It is a railroad and manufacturing center, and the seat of Northwestern University (Lutheran). Population, 8,829, (1910).

Waterville (wâ'tėr-vil). A city in Kennebec County, Maine, situated on the Kennebec River 18 miles north-northeast of Augusta: the seat of Colby College. Pop., 11,458, (1910).

Watervliet (wâ'tėr-vlēt). A city in Albany County, New York. It is situated on the Hudson north of Albany. Pop., 15,074, (1910).

Watkins Glen (wot'kinz glen). A deep ravine near Watkins, Schuyler County, New York, celebrated for its picturesque scenery.

Watling (wot'ling) Island. A small island of the Bahama group, West Indies, in lat. 24° 6′ N., long. 74° 6′ W.: generally supposed to be the San Salvador of Columbus. See Guanahani.

Watling (wot'ling) Street. [ME. Watling strete, AS. Wætlinga strǽt.] One of the principal Roman roads in Britain. It commenced at Dover, passed through Canterbury to London, and thence went by St. Albans, Dunstable, Stony Stratford, etc., passing along the boundary line of the present counties of Leicester and Warwick to Wroxeter on the Severn, and then north to Chester. It had a number of branch roads diverging from it.

Watson (wot'sǫn), James Craig. Born in Ontario, Canada, Jan. 28, 1838: died at Madison, Wis., Nov. 23, 1880. An American astronomer, professor of astronomy and director of the observatory at the University of Michigan, and after 1879 at the University of Wisconsin. He discovered 23 asteroids and several comets; conducted several United States astronomical expeditions, including that to China in 1874 for the transit of Venus; and wrote "Popular Treatise on Comets" (1860), "Theoretical Astronomy" (1869), "Tables for the Calculation of Simple and ★Compound Interest," etc.

Watson, John: pseudonym Ian Maclaren. Born at Manningtree, Essex, Nov. 3, 1850: died at Mount Pleasant, Iowa, May 6, 1907. A Scottish clergyman and author. He was assistant at churches in Edinburgh and Glasgow; pastor of the Free Church, Logiealmond, Perthshire; and 1880–1905 pastor of the English Presbyterian Church, Sefton Park, Liverpool. He wrote "Beside the Bonnie Brier Bush" (1894), "The Days of Auld Lang Syne" (1895), "The Upper Room" (1896), "The Mind of the Master" (1896), "Kate Carnegie" (1896), etc.

Watson, Richard. Born at Heversham, Westmoreland, 1737: died 1816. An English prelate, theological writer, and chemist: bishop of Llandaff (1782). He wrote an "Apology for Christianity" (1776: in answer to Gibbon), etc.

Watson, William. Born at Wharfedale, Yorkshire. A contemporary English poet. His poem "Wordsworth's Grave" drew attention to him in 1892, and in that year he received a civil pension of £200 rendered vacant by the death of Tennyson. His "Lachrymæ Musarum" was the finest ode written on the death of the latter. He had previously published "Love Lyrics," "The Prince's Quest," "Epigrams of Art, Life, and Nature"; and he has also published "The Eloping Angels" (1893), "Excursions in Criticism," "Odes and Other Poems" (1894), "The Purple East" (1896), "The Hope of the World" (1897), "For England" (1903), "Sable and Purple" (1910), etc.

Watt (wot), James. Born at Greenock, Scotland, Jan. 19, 1736: died at Heathfield, near Birmingham, Aug. 25, 1819. A famous British mechanician, inventor, and civil engineer. He was apprenticed to an instrument-maker in London in 1755; became mathematical-instrument maker to the University of Glasgow in 1757; began experiments in improving the steam-engine about 1760; and invented the condensing steam-engine in 1765 and obtained a patent in 1769. Many other improvements were devised later and patented. He formed a partnership with Boulton in Birmingham and began the manufacture of steam-engines in 1775.

Watt, Robert. Born at Stewarton, Ayrshire, May, 1774: died March 12, 1819. A Scottish physician and bibliographer. His "Bibliotheca Britannica" (4 volumes, published posthumously in 1824) is a compilation showing great industry and wide research, and is of great value as an index to literature.

Watteau (vä-tō'), Jean Antoine. Born at Valenciennes, France, Oct. 10, 1684: died at Nogent-sur-Marne, France, July 18, 1721. A French genre-painter. He studied with Gillot in Paris in 1702, and later with Audran. He was unusually successful with subjects representing conventional shepherds and shepherdesses, fêtes champêtres, rustic dances, etc. The style of female dress represented in many of them, consisting of what was known as a "sacque" with loose plaits hanging from the shoulders, is still known as the Watteau. Ten of his pictures are in the Louvre, and specimens are in all the principal galleries of Europe.

Watterson (wot'ėr-sǫn), Henry. Born at Washington, D. C., 1840. An American journalist, Democratic politician, and orator. He served on the Confederate side in the Civil War, and became noted as the editor of the Louisville "Courier-Journal," and as a prominent advocate of free trade. He was member of Congress from Kentucky 1876–77.

Wattignies (vä-tēn-yē'). A village in the department of Nord, France, near Lille. Here, Oct. 15–16, 1793, the French under Jourdan defeated the Austrians under Clairfayt.

Wattrelos (vätr-lō'). A town in the department of Nord, France, 9 miles northeast of Lille. Population, commune, 27,503.

Watts (wots), Alaric Alexander. Born at London, March 16, 1797: died there, April 5, 1864. An English poet and journalist. He was editor of the Leeds "Intelligencer" 1822-25, and of the Manchester "Courier" 1825–26; and was an assistant on the London "Standard" in 1827 and 1841–47. He founded the "United Service Gazette" in 1833, and edited it until 1847. He established more than twenty journals between 1842 and 1847, when he severed his connection with the press. His works include "Poetical Sketches" (1822), "Lyrics of the Heart" (1850), etc. He edited "The Literary Souvenir" (1824–38), "Poetical Album" (1828–29), "Cabinet of British Art, etc." (1835–38), and other similar works. These were illustrated by line-engravings after Etty, Stothard, Westall, and others, and were very popular.

Watts, George Frederick. Born at London, Feb. 23, 1817: died there, July 1, 1904. An English historical, subject, and portrait painter, and sculptor. He was a pupil of the Royal Academy, and was elected royal academician in 1868. His works include: cartoon, "Caractacus" (1843); colossal oil-paintings, "Echo" and "Alfred the Great" (1847); frescos, "St. George and the Dragon" (Parliament House), "The School of Legislation" (dining-hall of Lincoln's Inn). Besides his portraits of Tennyson, Browning, William Morris, Stuart Mill, Dean Stanley, Swinburne, Matthew Arnold, Holman Hunt, Lord Lytton, Gladstone, and others, he painted "Paolo and Francesca" (1848), "Fata Morgana" (1848), "Life's Illusions" (1849), "Sir Galahad" (1862), "Love and Death" (1877), "Orpheus and Eurydice" (1879), "Love and Life" (1884), "Hope" (1886), "She Shall be Called Woman" (1892), "Sic Transit" (1893), etc.

Watts, Isaac. Born at Southampton, July 17, 1674: died at Theobalds, Herts, Nov. 25, 1748. An English nonconformist theologian, hymn-writer, and author: pastor of an Independent church in London. He is best known from his sacred poems, "Horæ Lyricæ" (1706), "Hymns" (1707), "Psalms of David" (1719), "Psalms, Hymns, and Spiritual Songs" (in many editions), and "Divine and Moral Songs for Children" (1720). He also wrote "Logic" (1725), "Improvement of the Mind" (1741), catechisms, and philosophical and theological works.

Watts, Thomas. Born at London, 1811: died there, Sept. 9, 1869. An English author, assistant librarian of the British Museum from 1838. He published a "Sketch of the History of the Welsh Language and Literature" (1861).

Watt's Dyke. See Offa's Dyke.

Wat Tyler's (wot tī'lėrz) Rebellion. See Tyler, Wat.

Waukegan (wâ-kē'gan). The capital of Lake County, Illinois, situated on Lake Michigan 35 miles north by west of Chicago. Population, 16,069, (1910).

Waukesha (wâ'ke-shâ). The capital of Waukesha County, Wisconsin, 18 miles west of Milwaukee. It is a watering-place. Population, 8,740, (1910).

Wausau (wâ'sâ). The capital of Marathon County, Wisconsin, situated on the Wisconsin River 130 miles north of Madison. Population, 16,560, (1910).

Waveney (wā've-ni). A river on the boundary between Norfolk and Suffolk, England, which joins the Yare near Yarmouth.

Waverley (wā'vėr-li), or 'Tis Sixty Years Since. A novel by Sir Walter Scott, the first of the "Waverley Novels," published in 1814. The scene is laid principally in Scotland during the Jacobite rebellion of 1745.

Waverley Dramas. A series of eight dramas founded on the "Waverley Novels." They were produced at Edinburgh 1818-24: seven of them were published there in 1823.

Waverley Novels. The novels written by Sir Walter Scott: so named from "Waverley," the first of the series. They were published anonymously "by the author of Waverley" till 1827, when the author disclosed the identity of the "Great Unknown" at a dinner for the benefit of the Edinburgh theatrical fund. See Scott.

Wavertree (wā'vėr-trē). A township in Lancashire, England, 3 miles east of Liverpool. Population, 25,303.

Wavre (vävr). A town in the province of Brabant, Belgium, situated on the Dyle 15 miles southeast of Brussels. It was the scene of a battle, June 18, 1815, between the French under Grouchy and the Prussians under Thielmann. Grouchy was checked and prevented from hindering Blücher's march to Waterloo, and from reaching the battle-field in time with his own force.

Wawre (vä'vre). A village north of Warsaw, situated on the Vistula: the scene of Polish successes over the Russians Feb. 19 and March 31, 1831.

Wayland (wā'land), Francis. Born at New York city, March 11, 1796: died at Providence, R. I., Sept. 30, 1865. An American Baptist clergyman, educator, and author. He graduated at Union College in 1813, and was president of Brown University 1827–55. His works include "Elements of Moral Science" (1835), "Elements of Political Economy" (1837), "Limitations of Human Responsibility" (1838), "Thoughts on the Present Collegiate System in the United States" (1842), "Domestic Slavery Considered as a Scriptural Institution" (1845), "Memoir of Adoniram Judson" (1853), "Elements of Intellectual Philosophy" (1854), "Notes on the Principles and Practices of Baptist Churches" (1857), etc.

Wayland Smith. [AS. Wēland, ON. Völundr, G. Wieland.] In English folk-lore, an invisible smith who once dwelt at an old stone monument near Ashdown in Berkshire. If a horse had cast a shoe, it was only necessary to lead him thither, place a piece of money on the stone, and retire for a while. Upon returning, the money was gone and the horse shod. The legend of Wayland, the most skilful of smiths, is common Germanic property. In the Anglo-Saxon poem "Beowulf," a precious piece of armor is called "Wēlandes geweorc" ('Weland's work'). His deeds are the subject of the "Völundar Kvidha" ('Lay of Völund') in the Elder Edda. According to the Old Norse "Vilkina Saga," he was taught first by the smith Mime, and then by two dwarfs. Swedish legend locates his grave near Siseback in Scania. Scott introduces him as a character in "Kenilworth." In recent German literature he is the subject of the poem "Wieland der Schmied," by Karl Simrock.

Wayland Wood. A wood near Watton, England, the legendary scene of the murder of the "Children in the Wood."

Wayne (wān), Anthony. Born in Chester County, Pa., Jan. 1, 1745: died at Presque Isle (Erie), Pa., Dec. 15, 1796. An American general: called "Mad Anthony Wayne." In early life he was a surveyor; was a member of the Pennsylvania legislature in 1774, and of the committee of safety in 1775; was colonel of Pennsylvania troops in Canada, and served at Three Rivers in 1776; commanded at Ticonderoga in 1776; became brigadier-general in Feb., 1777, and joined Washington's army; served at Brandywine, where he commanded a division; was surprised by the British at Paoli Sept. 20, 1777; commanded the right wing at Germantown in Oct., 1777; conducted a successful raid within the British lines in 1778; served at Monmouth in 1778; stormed Stony Point July 15, 1779; suppressed a mutiny in Jan., 1781; commanded at Green Spring in 1781; and served at the siege of Yorktown. He defeated the British and Indians in the south in 1782. In 1783 he was brevetted major-general; became a member of the Pennsylvania ratifying convention; and was member of Congress from Georgia 1791–92. In 1792 he was appointed major-general and commander-in-chief of the army. He took command of the army in the West; defeated the Indians at Fallen Timbers, Maumee Rapids, in 1794; built Fort Wayne; and negotiated a peace with the Indians in 1795.

Waynesboro (wānz'bu-rō). A small place in the Shenandoah valley, in Augusta County, Virginia. There, March 2, 1865, the Federals under Sheridan defeated the Confederates under Early.

Waynflete (wān'flēt), William. Died 1486. An English prelate, bishop of Winchester: founder of Magdalen College, Oxford. He was lord high chancellor under Henry VI.

Way of the World, The. A comedy by Congreve, produced in 1700.

Ways of the Hour, The. A novel by Cooper, published in 1850.

Wazan (wä-zän'). A sacred city of Morocco, southeast of Tangiers.

Weakest Goeth to the Wall, The. A play attributed to Webster and Dekker (1600). It was probably by Munday.

Weald (wēld). The name given in England to an oval-shaped area, bounded by a line topographically well marked by an escarpment of the Chalk, which begins at Folkestone Hill, near the Strait of Dover, and passes through the counties of Kent, Surrey, Hants, and Sussex, meeting the sea again at Beachy Head. It embraces the southwestern part of Kent, the southern part of Surrey, the north and northeastern half of Sussex, and a small part of the eastern side of Hampshire.

Wealth of Nations, The. The chief work of Adam Smith, published in 1776: the foundation of the science of political economy.

Wear (wēr). A river in Durham, England, which flows into the North Sea at Sunderland. Length, about 60 miles.

Weathercock (weTH'ér-kok), The. A name given to Charles Townshend, on account of the instability of his political opinions.

Weaver (wē'vèr). A small river in Cheshire, England, which joins the estuary of the Mersey 12 miles southeast of Liverpool.

Weaver, James B. Born at Dayton, Ohio, June 12, 1833. An American politician. He served in the Union army in the Civil War, attaining the rank of brigadier-general; was member of Congress from Iowa 1879–81; was the candidate of the Greenback-Labor party for President in 1880, and of the People's party in 1892; and was Greenback-Labor and Democratic member of Congress from Iowa 1885–89.

Webb (web), Alexander Stewart. Born at New York, Feb. 15, 1835: died Feb. 12, 1911. An American general. He graduated at West Point in 1855; served at Gettysburg, (awarded Congressional medal of honor for personal gallantry), Bristow Station, Spotsylvania, and elsewhere; was professor at West Point 1866–68; and president of the College of the City of New York 1869–1903. He wrote "The Peninsula: McClellan's Campaign of 1862" (1882), etc.

Weber (vā'ber), Albrecht Friedrich. Born at Breslau, Prussia, Feb. 17, 1825: died at Berlin, Nov. 30, 1901. A noted German Orientalist, professor at Berlin 1856–1901. His chief works are "Indische Studien" (17 vols. 1849–85), and an edition of the "White Yajurveda" (1849–59).

Weber, Ernst Heinrich. Born at Wittenberg, Prussia, June 24, 1795: died at Leipsic, Jan. 26, 1878. A noted German physiologist and anatomist, professor at Leipsic from 1818. His works include "Anatomia comparata nervi sympathici" (1817), "De aure et auditu hominis et animalium" (1820), "Annotationes anatomicæ et physiologicæ" (1851), etc.

Weber, Georg. Born Feb. 10, 1808: died Aug. 10, 1888. A German historian. His chief work is "Allgemeine Weltgeschichte" ("Universal History," 15 vols. 1857–80). He also wrote "Geschichte der deutschen Litteratur" (many editions), etc.

Weber, Baron Karl Maria Friedrich Ernst von. Born at Eutin, Germany, Dec. 18, 1786: died at London, June 5, 1826. A celebrated German composer: famous as the creator of romantic opera. He received his musical education from Heuschkel, Michael Haydn, Kalcher, and Vogler; was appointed kapellmeister at Breslau 1804–06; was private secretary to the Duke of Würtemberg at Stuttgart 1807–10; lived in Mannheim, Darmstadt, and elsewhere; was appointed kapellmeister in Prague in 1813, and in Dresden in 1816; and visited London in 1826, where he died. He had a lively interest in mechanical processes, especially wood-engraving and lithography. His works include the operas "Der Freischütz" (1820), "Euryanthe" (1823), "Oberon" (1826), "Silvana" (1810), "Abu Hassan" (1811), fragments of "Das Waldmädchen" (1800), "Rübezahl," etc.; music to "Preciosa," etc.

Weber, Wilhelm Eduard. Born at Wittenberg, Prussia, Oct. 24, 1804: died at Göttingen, June 23, 1891. A distinguished German physicist, brother of Ernst Heinrich Weber: professor at Göttingen from 1831 (with the exception of the years 1837–49): especially noted for his researches in magnetism and electricity. He was one of the seven liberal professors excluded from Göttingen in 1837. He was associated with his brother in his work on wave-theory, "Wellenlehre" (1825), with Gauss in "Resultate aus den Beobachtungen des magnetischen Vereins 1836–41" and "Atlas des Erdmagnetismus" (1840).

Weber (wē'bèr) Cañon. A deep cañon of the Weber River, noted for its scenery. It is traversed by the Union Pacific Railroad.

Weber River. A small river in northern Utah, a tributary to Great Salt Lake.

Webster (web'stèr), Daniel. Born at Salisbury (Franklin), N. H., Jan. 18, 1782: died at Marshfield, Mass., Oct. 24, 1852. A famous American statesman, orator, and lawyer. He studied at Exeter Academy and Boscawen, New Hampshire; graduated at Dartmouth College in 1801; was admitted to the bar at Boston in 1805; practised law at Boscawen and Portsmouth; was Federalist member of Congress from New Hampshire 1813–17; and removed to Boston in 1816. He acquired a national reputation as a lawyer in the Dartmouth College case in 1818; was member of Congress from Massachusetts 1823–27; was Whig United States senator from Massachusetts 1827–41; became famous for his constitutional speeches in reply to Hayne in 1830, and in opposition to Calhoun in 1833; opposed Jackson on the United States Bank question; received several electoral votes for President in 1836; and was an unsuccessful candidate for the Whig nomination in later years. In 1839 he visited Europe. He was secretary of state 1841–43; negotiated the Ashburton treaty with Great Britain 1842; was United States senator from Massachusetts 1845–50; opposed the Mexican war and the annexation of Texas; supported Clay's compromise measures in his "7th of March speech" in 1850; was secretary of state 1850–52; and was again candidate for the Whig nomination for President in 1852. His chief public speeches (aside from those made in Congress and at the bar) are addresses delivered on the anniversary at Plymouth in 1820, on the laying of the corner-stone of Bunker Hill monument in 1825, on the deaths of Jefferson and Adams in 1826, on the dedication of Bunker Hill monument in 1843, and on the laying of the corner-stone of the addition to the Capitol in 1851.

Webster, Fletcher. Born 1813: killed at the second battle of Bull Run, Aug. 30, 1862. The son of Daniel Webster. He was a colonel in the Civil War.

Webster, John. Flourished in the first part of the 17th century (1602–24). An English dramatist, noted for his tragedies. Little is known of his biography. He assisted Dekker, Drayton, Middleton, and others in "Lady Jane" (1602) and "The Two Harpies" (1602). He published, with Dekker, "Northward Ho!" (1607), "Westward Ho!" (1607), and "The History of Sir Thomas Wyat" (played in 1607). "The Weakest Goeth to the Wall" (1600) is attributed, without authority, to him. His finest plays are "The White Devil" (printed 1612) and "The Duchess of Malfi" (printed 1623). He also wrote "The Devil's Law Case" (1623), a city pageant (1624), and "Appius and Virginia" (not printed till 1654). Two other plays are attributed to Webster and Rowley: "A Cure for a Cuckold" and "A Thracian Wonder" (both printed in 1661).

Webster, Noah. Born at Hartford, Conn., Oct. 16, 1758: died at New Haven, Conn., May 28, 1843. An American lexicographer and author. He entered Yale in 1774; served in the Revolutionary War in 1777; graduated at Yale in 1778; and was admitted to the bar in 1781. He taught in various places, and in 1788 settled in New York as a journalist. In 1798 he removed to New Haven, and in 1812 to Amherst, Massachusetts, where he took part in the founding of the college and was the first president of its board of trustees. He returned to New Haven in 1822. He published "A Grammatical Institute of the English Language" (1783–85: comprising spelling-book, grammar, and reader), "Dissertations on the English Language" (1789), "A Compendious Dictionary of the English Language" (1806), and "A Grammar of the English Language" (1807). He is best known from his large "American Dictionary of the English Language" (1828: 2d ed. 1841). Among his other works are "Rights of Neutrals" (1802), "Collection of Papers on Political, Literary, and Moral Subjects" (1843), and a brief history of the United States (1823).

Weckherlin (vek'er-lēn), Georg Rudolf. Born at Stuttgart, 1584: died about 1653. A German poet. He introduced the ode, sonnet, and other forms of verse into German literature.

Weddahs. See Veddahs.

Wedderburn (wed'ér-bèrn), Alexander, first Earl of Rosslyn. Born in East Lothian, Feb. 13, 1733: died near Windsor, England, Jan. 2, 1805. A British politician and jurist. He became solicitor-general in 1771, and attorney-general in 1778; and was chief justice of the Court of Common Pleas 1780–93, and lord chancellor 1793–1801. He was created Baron Loughborough in 1780, and earl of Rosslyn in 1801.

Wedgwood (wej'wůd), Josiah. Born at Burslem, England, July 12, 1730: died at Etruria, near Newcastle-under-Lyme, Jan. 3, 1795. A celebrated English potter, noted especially for his copies of classical vases and other antiquities.

Wedmore (wed'mōr). A place in Somerset, England, 8 miles west of Wells. Here, in 878, a peace was concluded between Guthrum, king of the Danes, and Alfred the Great. The latter secured Wessex and the southern part of Mercia; the region lying in general north of Watling Street and the Thames valley fell to the Danes.

Wednesbury (wenz'bu-ri). A town in Staffordshire, England, 7 miles northwest of Birmingham. It is an iron- and coal-mining center, and has manufactures of iron and steel. Population, 26,554.

Wednesday (wenz'dā). [Lit. 'Woden's day.'] The fourth day of the week.

Weed (wēd), Thurlow. Born at Cairo, Greene County, N. Y., Nov. 15, 1797: died at New York city, Nov. 22, 1882. A noted American journalist and politician. He was educated as a printer; served in the War of 1812; was editor of various papers in New York, including the "Agriculturist" (Norwich, N. Y.), "Onondaga County Republican," "Rochester Telegraph," and "Anti-Mason Enquirer"; became famous as editor of the Albany "Evening Journal" 1830–62, and as one of the leaders of the Whig and Republican parties; and was very influential in State and national politics 1824–76. He was instrumental in nominating Harrison in 1836 and 1840, Clay in 1844, Taylor in 1848, and Scott in 1852; formed with Seward and Greeley a triumvirate in New York; supported Lincoln and the war; and was sent by Lincoln on a mission to Europe 1861–62. After the war he was for a short time editor of the New York "Commercial Advertiser." He published "Letters from Europe and the West Indies" (1866), "Reminiscences" ("Atlantic Monthly," 1870), and an "Autobiography," completed by T. W. Barnes (1884).

Weehawken (wē-hä'ken). A township in Hudson County, New Jersey, north of Hoboken, opposite New York city. It was the scene of the duel between Burr and Hamilton in 1804. Population, township, 11,228, (1910).

Weeping Philosopher, The. A name given to Heraclitus.

Wega. See Vega.

Wegg (weg), Silas. A wooden-legged seller of fruit and printed ballads in Dickens's "Our Mutual Friend," employed by Mr. Boffin, whose education had been neglected, to read to him out of "old familiar Decline-and-Fall-off-the-Rooshan-Empire," with an occasional drop into poetry. Wegg turns out to be a rascal.

Weggis, or Wäggis (veg'gis). A village in the canton of Lucerne, Switzerland, situated on the Lake of Lucerne 7 miles east by south of Lucerne: a health and tourist resort.

Wehlau (vā'lou). A town in the province of East Prussia, Prussia, situated at the junction of the Alle with the Pregel, 29 miles east of Königsberg. Here a peace was concluded between Poland and Brandenburg Sept. 19, 1657, by which Poland renounced her suzerainty over the duchy of Prussia, and Brandenburg restored its recent conquests to Poland. Population, commune, 5,322.

Wehrathal (vā'rä-täl). One of the most picturesque valleys in the southern part of the Black Forest, Germany, near the Swiss frontier.

Weichsel (vīk'sel). The German name of the Vistula.

Weigl (vīgl), Joseph. Born at Eisenstadt, March 28, 1766: died at Vienna, Feb. 3, 1846.

An Austrian composer of opera. He was made second court kapellmeister in 1827. He composed about 50 operas, both German and Italian. Among them are the "Schweizer Familie" (1809), "Das Waisenhaus," "L'Uniforme," "Cleopatra" (1807), "Il rivale di sè stesso" (1807), "L'Imboscata" (1815), etc. He also composed a number of cantatas, two oratorios, etc.

Wei-hai-wei (wā'i-hī-wā'i). A seaport on the north shore of the Shan-tung peninsula, China, leased to Great Britain in 1898.

Wei-ho (wā'hō'). A river in northwestern China which joins the Yellow River at the junction of the provinces of Shensi, Shansi, and Honan. Length, about 500 miles.

Weil (vīl), Gustav. Born April 24, 1808: died Aug. 30, 1889. A German historian and Orientalist, professor at Heidelberg. He wrote "Mohammed" (1843), "Geschichte der Kalifen" ("History of the Califs," 1846–62), a translation of the "Arabian Nights," works on the Koran and Arabian literature, "Geschichte der islamitischen Völker" (1866), etc.

Weilburg (vīl'bŏrg). A town in the province of Hesse-Nassau, Prussia, situated on the Lahn 33 miles northwest of Frankfort. It has a castle, the ancient residence of the dukes of Nassau-Weilburg. Population, 3,828.

Weilen (vī'len), or Weil (vīl), Joseph von. Born at Tetin, Bohemia, Dec. 18, 1830. An Austrian dramatist and poet. He wrote the poems "Phantasien und Lieder" (1853), "Männer vom Schwerte," etc.; the dramas "Tristan" (1860), "Edda" (1865), etc.

Weimar (vī'mär). The capital of the grand duchy of Saxe-Weimar-Eisenach, Germany, situated on the Ilm in lat. 50° 58′ N., long. 11° 19′ E. It became famous as the "German Athens," the center of German literature, in the last quarter of the 18th and the first quarter of the 19th century, from the residence there of Goethe, Schiller, Herder, and Wieland under the patronage of the grand duke Charles Augustus. It was also the place of residence of Cranach, Liszt, etc. Goethe's house, given to the poet by the grand duke, and occupied by him for 40 years, is now arranged as a Goethe Museum, and restored to its condition at the time of Goethe's occupancy. It contains gifts and other personal souvenirs of the poet, portraits in painting and sculpture, and much else of artistic and historical interest. Other objects of interest are the palace (built under Goethe's superintendence), museum, library, theater, Schiller's house, group of statuary (Schiller and Goethe), statues of Wieland, Herder, and Charles Augustus, tombs, etc., and the neighboring châteaus of Belvedere, Tiefurt, and Ettersburg. Weimar became the capital in the middle of the 16th century. Population, commune, 31,117.

Weimar, Duke of (Bernhard). See Bernhard.

Weinsberg (vīns'bergh). A town in the Neckar circle, Würtemberg, 27 miles north by east of Stuttgart: formerly a free imperial city. A victory was gained there by the emperor Conrad over Count Welf in 1140. In this battle, according to tradition, were for the first time used the war-cries "Hie Waiblingen!" "Hie Welf!" See Guelfs and Ghibellines. Population, 3,097.

Weir (wēr), Harrison William. Born May 5, 1824: died Jan. 3, 1906. An English engraver, illustrator, and sketcher of animals.

Weir, John Ferguson. Born at West Point, N. Y., Aug. 28, 1841. An American subject- and portrait-painter, son and pupil of R. W. Weir. He was made a national academician in 1866, and became director of the Yale School of Fine Arts in 1869. Among his works are "Christmas Bells," "Gun Foundry" (1867), "Forging the Shaft" (1868).

Weir, Julian Alden. Born at West Point, Aug. 30, 1852. An American genre- and portrait-painter, son and pupil of R. W. Weir. He studied with Gérôme in Paris 1872–76, and was elected national academician in 1886. He was one of the founders of the Society of American Artists. Among his works are "Idle Hours," "Green Bodice," "Breton Interior," "The Mother," a number of flower-pieces, and water-color paintings.

Weir, Robert Walter. Born at New Rochelle, N. Y., June 18, 1803: died at New York, May 1, 1889. An American historical and landscape painter. He studied at Florence and Rome; was elected national academician in 1829; and was professor of drawing at West Point 1837–79. Among his paintings are "Embarkation of the Pilgrims" (Capitol, Washington), "Landing of Hendrik Hudson," "Columbus before the Council of Salamanca."

Weird Sisters, The. The three witches in Shakspere's "Macbeth."

Weishaupt (vīs'houpt), Adam. Born at Ingolstadt, Bavaria, Feb. 6, 1748: died at Gotha, Nov. 18, 1830. A German author, founder of the Illuminati. He wrote "Apologie der Illuminaten" (1786), "Das verbesserte System der Illuminaten" (1787), "Pythagoras" (1790), etc.

Weismann (vīs'män), August. Born at Frankfort-on-the-Main, Jan. 17, 1834. A noted German zoölogist. He studied medicine at Göttingen, Vienna, and Paris, and also paid special attention to the natural sciences. He began to devote himself to zoölogy with Leuckart at Giessen in 1863. He has been specially interested in biology. In 1873 he became professor at Freiburg. Among his principal works are "Die Entwickelung der Dipteren" (1864), "Studien zur Descendenz Theorie" (1875–76), "Naturgeschichte der Daphniden" (1876–79), "Die Entstehung der Sexualzellen bei den Hydromedusen" (1883), and a number of philosophical treatises.

Weisse (vīs'se), Christian Hermann. Born at Leipsic, Aug. 10, 1801: died at Leipsic, Sept. 19, 1866. A German philosopher, professor at Leipsic. He wrote "System der Ästhetik" (1830), and many other philosophical works.

Weissenburg (vīs'sen-börg), or Kronweissenburg (krōn-vīs'sen-börg). [F. Wissembourg.] A town in Lower Alsace, Alsace-Lorraine, situated on the Lauter, near the frontier of the Palatinate, 32 miles north by east of Strasburg. It was a free imperial city, and was formerly fortified. It passed to France in 1697, and to Germany in 1871. A victory was gained there, Aug. 4, 1870, by the Germans under the Crown Prince of Prussia over the French under Douay (who fell in the battle). This was the first important engagement in the Franco-German war. Population, commune, 6,788.

Weissenburg, or Lauterburg (lou'ter-börg), Lines. Fortifications formerly extending from Weissenburg in Alsace to Lauterburg. They were taken by the Austrians under Wurmser in 1793; were retaken by the French under Pichegru in 1793; and were destroyed in 1873.

Weissenfels (vīs'sen-fels). A town in the province of Saxony, Prussia, situated on the Saale 20 miles southwest of Leipsic. It has manufactures and trade. From 1657 to 1746 it was a residence of the dukes of Saxe-Weissenfels. Pop., commune, 30,894.

Weissenstein (vīs'sen-stīn). A mountain of the Jura, in the canton of Solothurn, Switzerland, near Solothurn: noted for its prospect. Height, 4,220 feet.

Weisshorn (vīs'horn). [G., 'white town.'] 1. A mountain in the Bernese Alps, on the borders of the cantons of Bern and Valais, Switzerland, north of Sierre. Height, 9,882 feet.—2. A peak of the Pennine Alps, in the canton of Valais, Switzerland, north of the Matterhorn. Height, 14,803 feet.

Weissnichtwo (vīs'nicht-vō). [G., '(I) know not where.'] An imaginary city in Carlyle's "Sartor Resartus."

Weitspekan (wīt'spek-an). A linguistic stock of North American Indians: also often called Yurok, from its leading division. Its territory was chiefly within the limits of Humboldt County, California; and it was in two divisions—the Yurok, inhabiting the Klamath River and the coast from near its mouth southward to Gold Bluff; and the Chilula, extending from the latter point southward. The principal tribes or villages are Mita, Pekwan, Rikwa, Sugon, and Weitspek.

Weitzel (vīt'sel), Godfrey. Born at Cincinnati, Nov. 1, 1835: died at Philadelphia, March 19, 1884. An American general and military engineer. He graduated at West Point in 1855; was chief engineer in Butler's expedition to New Orleans in 1862, and assistant military commander and acting mayor there; gained the victory of Labadieville, Louisiana, Oct. 27, 1862; served before Port Hudson and in the Sabine Pass expedition; was chief engineer of the Army of the James in 1864, and corps commander; took part in the capture of Fort Harrison and in the first expedition against Fort Fisher; and was in command of the troops which occupied Richmond April 3, 1865. He became major-general of volunteers in Nov., 1864, and brevet major-general in the regular army in March, 1865.

Welcker (vel'ker), Friedrich Gottlieb. Born at Grünberg, Hesse, Nov. 4, 1784: died at Bonn, Dec. 17, 1868. A German classical archæologist and philologist, professor at Bonn from 1819. Among his works are "Die äschylische Trilogie" (1824), "Die griechischen Tragödien mit Rücksicht auf den epischen Cyclus geordnet" (1839–41), "Der epische Cyclus" (1835–49), "Alte Denkmäler" (1849–64).

Welde (weld), Thomas. Born in England about 1590: died 1662. An English clergyman. He emigrated to New England and became minister in Roxbury. He wrote against the Antinomians, Familists, etc., and was one of the authors of the "Bay Psalm-Book" (1640). He returned to England.

Welf (velf). See Guelfs.

Welfesholze (vel'fes-hōlt-se). A place near Eisleben, Germany, where in 1115 a battle occurred between the Saxons and the Imperialists.

Welfs. A famous German princely house. From it are descended the Brunswick and Hanover lines. See Guelfs.

Welhaven (vel'hä-ven), Johan Sebastian Cammermeyer. Born at Bergen, Dec. 20, 1807: died at Christiania, Oct. 21, 1873. A Norwegian lyric poet. He was the son of a clergyman. In 1825 he went to Christiania to study theology at the university; but on the death of his father, in 1828, he gave this up for a literary career. His first important work was a long polemical poem, really a series of sonnets, entitled "Norges Domring" ("Norway's Twilight"), published in 1834. In 1840 he was made professor of philosophy at the Christiania University, a position which he held until 1867, when he was compelled to relinquish it on account of ill health. Between 1839 and 1859 appeared numerous lyrical poems. His pamphlet "Om Henrik Wergelands Digtekunst og Poesie" ("On Henrik Wergeland's Poetic Art and Poetry"), published in 1832, was a merciless attack upon the poet Wergeland. His collected writings were published at Copenhagen 1867–68.

Welland (wel'and). 1. A river in England which separates in part Northampton from Leicester, Rutland, and Lincoln, and flows into the Wash. Length, about 70 miles.—2. A small river in Ontario which joins the Niagara above the falls.

Welland Canal. A ship-canal in Ontario, extending from Port Colborne on Lake Erie to Port Dalhousie on Lake Ontario. Length, 27 miles. It was opened in 1833.

Well-Beloved, The. [F. Bien-Aimé.] A name given to Charles VI. of France, and also to Louis XV.

Welle (wel'le), or Welle-Makua (-mä-kō'ä). A large river in equatorial Africa which flows westward from the vicinity of Wadelai. It is the upper course of the Mobangi or Ubangi, and was discovered by Schweinfurth in 1870. Its connection with the Ubangi was shown by Van Gèle.

Weller (wel'èr), Sam. The servant of Mr. Pickwick in Dickens's "Pickwick Papers," an impudent witty fellow with an immense fund of humor, a merry heart, and an inexhaustible devotion to his master. His father, Tony Weller, is an apoplectic pimple-nosed coachman, full of good nature and kindliness, with a dread of "widders" and a great admiration for his son Sam and Mr. Pickwick. His "second wentur'" is a scolding slovenly woman, devoted to religious matters.

> Sam Weller, one of those people that take their place among the supreme successes of fiction, as one that nobody ever saw but everybody recognizes, at once perfectly natural and intensely original. . . . Who is so amazed by his inexhaustible resources, or so amused by his inextinguishable laughter, as to doubt of his being as ordinary and perfect a reality, nevertheless, as anything in the London streets? Forster, Life of Dickens, ii. 1.

Welles (welz), Gideon. Born at Glastonbury, Conn., July 1, 1802: died at Hartford, Conn., Feb. 11, 1878. An American politician. He was editor of the "Hartford Times" 1826–36, and a Democratic leader. From 1846 to 1849 he was chief of the bureau of provisions and clothing in the navy department. He joined the Republican party in 1855, and became one of its leaders. From 1861 to 1869 he was secretary of the navy.

Wellesley (welz'li), or Wesley (wez'li), Arthur, Viscount Wellington, Earl and later Marquis and Duke of Wellington. Born at Dublin (or in Meath?), Ireland, April 29 (May 1?), 1769: died at Walmer Castle, England, Sept. 14, 1852. A famous British general and statesman, son of the first Earl of Mornington, and younger brother of the Marquis of Wellesley. He was educated at Eton and at the military college of Angers; entered the army as ensign in 1787; was elected to the Irish Parliament in 1790; served in the Netherlands 1794–95; was made a colonel in 1796 and sent to India; took part in the victory of Malaveli and the attack on Seringapatam in 1799; was appointed governor of Mysore; defeated the chieftain Doondiah in 1800; became major-general in 1802; was commander of the expedition to restore the Peshwa in 1803; defeated the Mahrattas at Assaye (Sept. 23) and Argaum (Nov.) in 1803; negotiated peace in 1803; and was knighted, and returned from India in 1805. He took part in the expedition to Hanover in 1805; entered the British House of Commons in 1806; was secretary for Ireland in 1807; served in the expedition against Copenhagen in 1807; was made lieutenant-general and commander of the forces in the Peninsula in 1808; gained the victory of Vimiero Aug. 21, 1808; returned to England after the Convention of Cintra; and was again Irish secretary in 1809, and again commander-in-chief in the Peninsula April, 1809. He gained the victory of Talavera in 1809, and was made Viscount Wellington in the same year; fortified the lines of Torres Vedras; repulsed the French at Busaco in 1810; gained the victory of Fuentes d'Onoro in 1811; stormed Ciudad Rodrigo and Badajoz in 1812; gained the victory of Salamanca in 1812, and was made earl and marquis of Wellington in that year; occupied Madrid; besieged Burgos unsuccessfully in 1812; gained the victory of Vitoria in 1813; won various battles in the Pyrenees; captured San Sebastian and Pamplona in 1813; and invaded France and won the victories of Orthez and Toulouse in 1814. In 1814 he was made duke of Wellington. He was ambassador at Paris 1814–15, and plenipotentiary at the Congress of Vienna 1815; gained the victory of Quatre-Bras June 16, 1815; commanded with Blücher at Waterloo June 18, 1815; negotiated in the restoration of the Bourbons and in the peace of Paris in 1815; was commander-in-chief of the army of occupation in France 1815–18; attended the congresses of Aix-la-Chapelle in 1818 and Verona in 1822; became master-general of the ordnance in 1818, and member of the cabinet; was made ambassador to Russia in 1826; became commander-in-chief of the army in 1827; and was prime minister 1828–30. Catholic emancipation was carried in his administration, but he opposed parliamentary reform. He was foreign secretary 1834–35, and a member of the cabinet 1841–46.

Wellesley, Marquis of (Richard Cowley or Wesley or Wellesley, second Earl of Mornington). Born at Dublin, June 20, 1760: died at London, Sept. 26, 1842. A British statesman, elder brother of the Duke of Wellington. He succeeded to the earldom in 1781, and became a member of the Irish House of Peers; entered the English House of Commons in 1784; became a lord of the treasury, member of the privy council, and member of the board of control on Indian affairs; and was appointed governor-general of India in 1797. He arrived in India in 1798; overthrew the power of Mysore in 1799; defeated the Mahratta confederacy 1803–05; extinguished French influence in the Deccan; greatly developed British power in India; and returned in 1805. In 1797 he was made Baron Wellesley, and in 1799 marquis. He was ambassador to Spain 1808–1809; foreign secretary 1809–12; lord lieutenant of Ireland 1821–28 and 1833–34; and lord chamberlain in 1835.

Wellesley College. An institution for the higher education of women, situated at Wellesley, Massachusetts, 15 miles west by south of Boston. It was founded by H. F. Durant, and opened in 1875; is non-sectarian; has a library of about 70,000 volumes; and has about 125 instructors and 1,400 students.

Wellesley Islands. A group of islands in the Gulf of Carpentaria, Australia, belonging to Queensland. The largest is Mornington Island.

Wellesley Province. An administrative division of the British colony of Straits Settlements, situated on the western side of the Malay Peninsula, about lat. 5° 20′ N.

Well-Founded Doctor, The. [L. Doctor Fundatissimus.] A name given to Ægidius Romanus of Colonna.

Wellhausen (vel'hou-zen), Julius. Born at Hameln, May 17, 1844. A distinguished German theologian and biblical critic, professor successively at Greifswald (1872), Halle (1882), Marburg (1885), and Göttingen (1892). His works include "Text der Bücher Samuelis" (1871), "Die Pharisäer und Sadducäer" (1874), "Prolegomena zur Geschichte Israels" (1878–86), etc.

Welling (wel'ing), James Clarke. Born at Trenton, N. J., July 14, 1825: died Sept. 5, 1894. An American editor and educator. He was editor of the Washington "National Intelligencer" in the Civil War period, and president of St. John's College, Annapolis, 1867–70. From 1871 he was president of Columbian University, Washington.

Wellingborough (wel'ing-bur-ō). A town in the county of Northampton, England, situated near the union of the Ise and Nen, 10 miles east-northeast of Northampton. Population, 18,412.

Wellington (wel'ing-tọn). An island near the western coast of Patagonia, about lat. 48°–50° S., belonging to Chile. Length, about 100 miles.

Wellington. The capital of New Zealand and of Hutt County in the North Island, situated on Port Nicholson in lat. 41° 17′ S., long. 174° 47′ E. It has one of the finest harbors in the colony, and important trade. It is the seat of Victoria University College and the Wellington branch of the New Zealand Institute. Population, with suburbs, 49,314.

Wellington. A town in the county of Somerset, England, 23 miles northeast of Exeter. From it the Duke of Wellington took his title. Population, 7,283.

Wellington, Duke of. See Wellesley, Arthur.

Wellington, Mount. A mountain in Tasmania, near Hobart Town. Height, 4,170 feet.

Wells (welz). A city in the county of Somerset, England, situated at the foot of the Mendip Hills, 17 miles southwest of Bath. It is the seat of a bishopric, now conjoined with that of Bath. The cathedral is in the main of the first half of the 13th century, with square central tower and Lady chapel of the 14th. The plan shows square chevet and single transepts. The wide west front, flanked by two towers, is somewhat of the character of that of Salisbury in its superposed and monotonous tiers of arcading: it is more like cabinet-work than architecture, but the details are beautiful. The interior is impressive in general effect, but is architecturally inorganic, having no vaulting-shafts in the nave. The western transept-piers, showing weakness, were buttressed in 1338 by the insertion between them of a pair of massive arches, apex to apex—a curious device. The beautiful choir is separated from the nave by a Perpendicular screen, and its wall-spaces are arcaded. The Lady chapel is famous for lightness and beauty. The dimensions of the cathedral are 383 by 82 feet; the height of the vaulting, from 67 to 73. There is a beautiful octagonal chapter-house with central pillar, Perpendicular cloisters, and a picturesque 13th-century bishop's palace. Population, 4,849.

Wells, David Ames. Born at Springfield, Mass., June 17, 1828: died at Norwich, Conn., Nov. 5, 1898. A noted American economist. He graduated at Williams College in 1847, and at the Lawrence Scientific School, Harvard, in 1851. In 1865–66 he was United States commissioner of revenue; served on other important commissions; and took a leading part in financial and economic discussions. He was an able advocate of freedom of trade. He wrote "Science of Common Things" (1856), text-books on natural philosophy, geology, and chemistry, government reports, "Our Merchant Marine" (1882), "Primer of Tariff Reform" (1884), "Practical Economics" (1885), "Study of Mexico" (1886), "Relation of the Tariff to Wages" (1888), and various other economic works.

Wels (vels). A town in Upper Austria, situated on the Traun 15 miles southwest of Linz. Population, commune, 15,479, (1910).

Welsch Tyrol. See Tyrol, Welsch.

Welser (vel'ser), Bartholomeus. Died at Augsburg, 1559. A German banker. He was the head of one of the richest banking and commercial firms of his time; lent large sums to Charles V.; was created a prince of the Empire; and in 1527 was granted the right to conquer and colonize Venezuela. Dalfinger, Speier, and others were engaged by the Welsers in this enterprise, which was carried on simply as a commercial venture. Great numbers of the Indians were enslaved, and far more were killed. The charter was revoked in 1546, after the Welsers had lost, it is said, 3,000,000 florins.

Welsh (welsh). The people of Wales, or the members of the Cymric race indigenous to Wales. They were ruled by petty princes and maintained their independence of the English till 1282–83.

Welshpool (welsh'pōl). A town in the county of Montgomery, Wales, situated on the Severn 17 miles west of Shrewsbury. Near it is Powys Castle. Population, 6,121.

Welsh Shakspere, The. See Williams, Edward.

Welwitsch (wel'wich), Friedrich. Born at Mariasaal, Austria, 1807: died at London, Oct. 20, 1872. An African botanist and explorer. He spent seven years in Angola, West Africa (1853–61); collected above 40,000 botanic specimens; and discovered, in 1863, near Mossamedes, the singular plant named, after him, Welwitschia mirabilis.

Wemmick (wem'ik), John. A kind-hearted but apparently flinty little clerk in Dickens's "Great Expectations." He has a little home at Walworth, which looks like a battery with mounted guns, where he devotes himself to his deaf old father, whom he calls "Aged P."

Wenceslaus (wen'ses-lâs), or Wenceslas (wen'ses-las), G. Wenzel (vent'sel), Saint. Duke of Bohemia about 928–936, a patron saint of Bohemia.

Wenceslaus I. King of Bohemia 1230–53, son of Ottokar I. He was a patron of the poetic art, and himself a minnesinger.

Wenceslaus II. King of Bohemia 1278–1305, son of Ottokar II. He extended the Bohemian power, and was crowned king of Poland in 1300.

Wenceslaus. Born 1361: died Aug. 16, 1419. German king, son of the emperor Charles IV. He was elected king of the Romans in 1376, and succeeded to the German and Bohemian thrones in 1378. He put to death John of Nepomuk. He was imprisoned by Bohemian nobles 1393–94; was deposed from the German throne in 1400; and renounced his right to that crown in 1410, but continued to reign as king of Bohemia.

Wendland (vent'länt). The northeastern part of the former principality of Lüneburg in Prussia.

Wends (wendz). 1. A name given in early times by the Germans to their Slavic neighbors. —2. The members of a branch of the Slavic race living in Lusatia. Also called Sorbs.

Wenern (vā'nern), or Venern (vā'nern), Lake. The largest lake of Sweden, and after Lakes Ladoga and Onega the largest lake in Europe, situated in the southern part of Sweden, west-northwest of Lake Wettern, with which it is connected by a canal (and thence with the Baltic). It receives the Klar Elf, and its outlet is by the Göta Elf into the Cattegat. Length, 100 miles. Width, 50 miles. Height above sea-level, 140 feet. Area, about 2,300 square miles.

Wengern Alp (ven'gern älp). A height in the pass of the Little Scheideck, Bernese Oberland, Switzerland: famous for its magnificent view.

Wenlock (wen'lok), or Much Wenlock (much wen'lok). A town in Shropshire, England, 30 miles west-northwest of Birmingham. Population, 15,866.

Wenrorono (wen-rō-rō'nō). A tribe of North American Indians which, when first known, lived in association with the Neuters, and, upon the attacks of the Iroquois in 1638, fled to the Hurons with whom they became mixed. See Iroquoian.

Wentworth (went'wėrth), Benning. Born at Portsmouth, N. H., 1696: died 1770. A royal governor of New Hampshire 1741–67. He made grants of land (the New Hampshire grants) in southern Vermont.

Wentworth, Charles Watson, second Marquis of Rockingham. Born 1730: died July 1, 1782. An English statesman, prime minister 1765–66 and March–July, 1782.

Wentworth, Sir John. Born at Portsmouth, N. H., Aug. 9, 1737: died at Halifax, N. S., April 8, 1820. Royal governor of New Hampshire 1766–76. He was a loyalist in the Revolution, and was lieutenant-governor of Nova Scotia 1792–1808.

Wentworth, Thomas, Earl of Strafford. Born at London, April 13, 1593: executed at London, May 12, 1641. A famous English statesman. He entered Parliament in 1614; and was an opponent of the policy of James I., and until 1628–29 of that of Charles I. In 1628 he was raised to the peerage; became president of the Council of the North in 1628; was made a privy councilor in 1629; was appointed lord deputy of Ireland 1632, and arrived there 1633; and became the chief adviser of Charles I. In 1640 he was made earl of Strafford and lord lieutenant of Ireland; commanded the army against the Scots in that year; was impeached by the Long Parliament; and was condemned by a bill of attainder.

He was accused on twenty-eight counts which concerned his conduct towards England, Ireland, and Scotland. The chief was that he had incensed his majesty against the members of the late Parliament telling him "they had denied to supply him, and that his majesty having tried the affections of his people, and been refused, he was absolved from all rules of government, and that he had an army in Ireland which he might employ to reduce this kingdom" (State Trials). The Lords refused to admit as evidence a paper found by Sir Harry Vane which supported his father's evidence on this charge. For which cause the Commons brought in a bill of attainder.

Acland and Ransome.

Wenzel. See Wenceslaus.

Wept of Wish-ton-wish, The. A novel by Cooper, published in 1829.

Werbach (ver'bäch). A village in Baden, near the Tauber 16 miles southwest of Würzburg. It was the scene of a contest between the troops of Baden and those of North Germany, July 24, 1866.

Werden (ver'den). A town in the Rhine Province, Prussia, situated on the Ruhr 30 miles north of Cologne. It contains an ancient church of a Benedictine abbey (founded 799). Pop., commune, 11,029.

Werder (ver'dėr), Count August Karl Friedrich Wilhelm Leopold von. Born at Schlossberg, near Norkitten, East Prussia, Sept. 12, 1808: died at Grüssow, Pomerania, Sept. 12, 1887. A Prussian general. He entered the army in 1825; served with the Russians in the Caucasus; distinguished himself in the war of 1866 at Gitschin and Königgrätz; commanded an army corps at the battle of Wörth in 1870; was commander of the army which besieged and took Strasburg in 1870, and was made general of infantry; commanded in the autumn of 1870 in the Vosges, at Dijon, etc., and at Villersexel Jan. 9, 1871; and gained the victory of Héricourt over Bourbaki Jan. 15–17, 1871.

Werelä, Peace of. A treaty concluded in 1790, between Sweden and Russia, at Werelä, a village in the government of Nyland, Finland.

Wergeland (ver'ge-länd), Henrik Arnold Thaulow. Born at Christiansand, June 17, 1808: died at Christiania, July 12, 1845. A Norwegian poet. His father was a clergyman, and one of the members of the Constitutional Convention at Eidsvold, and pastor there after 1817. He studied at the Christiania University after 1825, and began to write in 1827. His first productions were a series of satirical farces (among them "Ah!; Om Smag og Behag kan man ikke disputere" ("There is no disputing about taste") and "Papegöjen" ("The Parrot")), all published under the pseudonym Sifui Sifadda. In 1828 appeared the tragedy "Sinclairs Död" ("Sinclair's Death"). In 1829 was published a volume of lyrics, many of them enthusiastically patriotic in character, which were taken up as songs by the people; and at this time his fame as a poet really begins. In 1830 appeared the long dramatic poem "Skabelsen, Mennesket og Messias" ("The Creation, Man and Messiah"). Subsequent works were the drama "Opium" (1831) and the poem "Spaniolen" (1833). In the meantime the poet Welhaven had made in a pamphlet, in 1832, a personal attack upon him for his sins of poetical commission; and in 1834, in the poem "Norway's Twilight," had censured the misplaced zeal of the ultra-national faction which Wergeland represented. At the production of his drama "Campbellerne" ("The Campbells") the feud came to an open outbreak in the theater. Subsequently his fortunes steadily declined. He was deprived by the king of an official position, and then became involved in a lawsuit which took the greater part of his property. Some of his best work, however, was done after this time. Particularly to be mentioned are "Jan van Huysums Blomsterstykke" ("Jan van Huysum's Flower-piece"), a series of lyrics; the poem "Svalen" ("The Swallow"); the idyls "Jöden" ("The Jew") and "Jödinden" ("The Jewess"); and, finally, his last and greatest poem, "Den engelske Lods" ("The English Pilot"). His collected works were published at Christiania, 1852–1859, in 9 vols.

Werner (ver'ner). A tragedy by Lord Byron: so called from the name of its hero, a mysterious and morbid character. Macready produced this play in 1830, and Werner was considered one of his most powerful parts.

Of the "German's Tale" (by Harriet Lee) he [Byron] confessed: "It made a deep impression on me, and may be said to contain the germ of much that I have since written." It not only contained the germ of "Werner," but supplied the whole material for that tragedy. All the characters of the novel are reproduced by Byron except "Ida," whom he added. The plan of Miss Lee's work is exactly followed, as the poet admitted, and even the language is frequently adopted without essential change.

Tuckerman, Hist. of English Prose Fiction, p. 256.

Werner (ver'ner), Abraham Gottlob. Born at Wehrau, Upper Lusatia, Sept. 25, 1750: died at Dresden, June 30, 1817. A celebrated German mineralogist and geologist, the founder of scientific geology: instructor in the Mining Academy in Freiberg from 1775. He was the propounder of the "Neptunian theory," which regarded as of aqueous origin various formations now considered to be volcanic, and which aroused much discussion. His works include "Über die äussern Kennzeichen der Fossilien" (1774), "Kurze Klassifikation und Beschreibung der Gebirgsarten" (1787), "Neue Theorie über die Entstehung der Gänge" (1791), etc.

Werner, Franz von: pseudonym Murad Effendi. Born at Vienna, May 30, 1836: died at The Hague, Sept. 12, 1881. A German poet. He was in the Turkish military and diplomatic service.

Werner, Friedrich Ludwig Zacharias. Born at Königsberg, Prussia, Nov. 18, 1768: died at Vienna, Jan. 17, 1823. A German dramatist and poet, founder of the "fate-tragedies." He was a Roman Catholic preacher in later life. Among his dramas are "Die Söhne des Thals" ("The Sons of the Valley," 1803), "Der Vierundzwanzigste Februar" (1815: "The 24th of February"), "Das Kreuz an der Ostsee" ("The Cross on the Baltic," 1806), "Martin Luther," or "Die Weihe der Kraft" (1807), etc.

Wernigerode (ver'nē-ge-rō-de). A town in the province of Saxony, Prussia, situated at the foot of the Harz, on the Holzemme, 40 miles southwest of Magdeburg. It is the capital of the county of Stolberg-Wernigerode (formerly an imperial fief). It contains a noted Rathaus and castle with a large library. Population, commune, 13,137.

Werra (ver'rä). One of the two head streams of the Weser. It rises in Saxe-Meiningen, flows through Thuringia, separating the Thüringerwald from the Rhöngebirge, and unites with the Fulda at Münden to form the Weser. Length, about 170 miles.

Werth, or Werdt (värt), Johann von (Jean de Weert). Born at the end of the 16th century: died 1652. A general in the Imperialist and Bavarian service in the Thirty Years' War. He was distinguished at Nördlingen in 1634; captured Ehrenbreitstein in 1637; was defeated and taken prisoner at Rheinfelden March 3, 1638; commanded at Tuttlingen Nov. 24, 1643; and was distinguished at Mergentheim and Allersheim in 1645.

Werther (vār'ter). An opera by Massenet, words by E. Blau, Paul Milliet, and Georges Hartmann, from Goethe's novel: produced at London June, 1894. See Sorrows of Werther.

Wertingen (ver'ting-en). A small town in Swabia, Bavaria, situated on the Zusam 16 miles northwest of Augsburg. Here, Oct. 8, 1805, the French under Lannes and Murat defeated the Austrians.

Wesel (vā'zel). A city in the Rhine Province, Prussia, situated at the junction of the Lippe and Rhine, in lat. 51° 40′ N., long. 6° 37′ E. It is strongly fortified. In the middle ages it was a Hanseatic town and a free imperial city. Population, commune, 23,237.

Weser (vā'zer). [L. Visurgis, OG. Visuracha.] One of the principal rivers of Germany. It is formed, at Münden, by the union of the rivers Werra and Fulda; flows generally north and north-northwest, and principally through Prussia; and empties into the North Sea near Bremerhaven. Its chief tributaries are the Aller, Wümme, and Geeste (on the right), Diemel, Werre, Aue, and Hunte. On it are situated Bremen and Minden. Length, about 270 miles, or, including the head stream Werra, about 435 miles; navigable for sea vessels to Elsfleth, and for large boats to Münden.

Weser Mountains, or Weser Terrace. A mountainous and plateau region, extending on both sides of the Weser from Münden to Minden. Among the groups of mountains or hills are the Bramwald, Solling, Osterwald, Süntel, Deister, Bückeberg, the Weser proper, and the Teutoburgerwald. Highest point, about 1,650 feet.

Wesley (wes'li or wez'li), Charles. Born at Epworth, Lincolnshire, England, Dec. 28, 1708: died at London, March 29, 1788. An English Methodist clergyman and hymn-writer, brother of John Wesley: famous as a hymn-writer. He was educated at Westminster School and at Christ Church, Oxford. He accompanied his brother John to Georgia 1735–36.

Wesley, John. Born at Epworth, England, June 28 (N. S.), 1703: died at London, March 2, 1791. An English clergyman, son of Samuel Wesley: famous as the founder of Methodism. He was educated at Charterhouse School and at Christ Church, Oxford; became a fellow of Lincoln College in 1726; and was curate to his father 1727–29. In the latter year he settled at Oxford, where he became the leader of a band of young men conspicuous for their religious earnestness: they were somewhat derisively called "methodists" from the regularity and strict method of their lives and studies. He went to Georgia as a missionary in 1735, returning to England in 1738. At first he was allied with the Moravians, but soon abandoned all ecclesiastical traditions and established the Methodist Church. In 1739 he began open-air preaching. The first Methodist conference was held in 1744. His literary work, also, was extensive.

Wesleyan (wes'li-an or wez'li-an) University. An institution of learning at Middletown, Connecticut, chartered in 1831. It is non-sectarian (orig. under Methodist-Episcopal influence). It has about 40 instructors and 400 students.

Wessel (ves'sel), Johan Herman. Born in the parish of Vestby, Norway, 1742: died at Copenhagen, 1785. A Danish dramatist and poet. His father was a clergyman. After elementary instruction in Christiania, he went in 1761 to the Copenhagen University, where he studied the succeeding year. Subsequently he supported himself by teaching modern languages. In 1778 he was made translator to the Royal Theater. His one important literary work, written when he was 30 years old, is the tragedy "Kjælighed uden Strömper" ("Love without Stockings"), a parody on the French tragedies then in vogue on the Danish stage, from which it effectually banished them. Two other dramas are of but little value. He wrote, besides, a few lyrics and humorous narratives in verse. His poems were published in a second edition at Copenhagen in 1878.

Wessex (wes'eks). [ME. Wessex, Wessexe, AS. Westseaxe, West Saxons. Cf. Essex, Sussex.] One of the Saxon kingdoms in England, which became the nucleus of the kingdom of England. The settlement of the West Saxons under Cerdic and Cynric on the coast of Hampshire took place in 495, and the kingdom spread north and west to Berkshire, Wiltshire, Dorset, etc. Wessex obtained the overlordship in Britain under Egbert in the first part of the 9th century; was reduced in power by the Danes; and under Alfred's successors developed into the kingdom of England. It was an earldom in the 10th and 11th centuries, comprising the territory south of the Thames.

Wessobrunner Gebet. ['Wessobrunn Prayer.'] An important relic of Old High German literature, dating from the end of the 8th century. It was preserved in the Benedictine monastery of Wessobrunn, in Bavaria near the Lech.

West (west), Benjamin. Born at Springfield, Chester County, Pa., Oct. 10, 1738: died at London, March 11, 1820. An American-English historical and portrait painter. He worked as a portrait-painter in Philadelphia and New York, and studied in Italy 1760–63. He settled in London in 1763; became court historical painter in 1772; was one of the early members of the Royal Academy; and was the successor of Reynolds as president of the Royal Academy. Among his noted paintings are "The Death of Wolfe" (at Grosvenor House), "Battle of La Hogue," "Christ Healing the Sick" (National Gallery, London), "Death on the Pale Horse" (Pennsylvania Academy), "Alexander the Great and his Physicians," and "Penn's Treaty with the Indians." Many of his pictures are at Hampton Court.

West, Empire of the. See Western Empire.

West, Lionel Sackville. See Sackville-West.

West, Rebecca. An adventuress, in Ibsen's play "Rosmersholm," who induces the wife of Rosmer to commit suicide, leaving him with the conviction that she (the wife) was insane.

West, The. 1. The western part of the world, or Occident. This, as distinguished from the East, or Orient, is sometimes restricted to the greater part of Europe, and sometimes indicates, or at least includes, the western hemisphere.

2. In the United States, the western part of that country. Formerly this was the region lying west of the thirteen original States along the Atlantic seaboard, and particularly the northern part of that region; now it is, indefinitely, the region beyond the older seaboard and central States, or more specifically that included mainly between the Mississippi River and the Pacific Ocean, and especially the northern part of that region.

West, Thomas, Baron Delawarr or Delaware. Died 1618. Governor and captain-general of Virginia. He was appointed in 1609, arrived at Jamestown in 1610, and returned in 1611.

West African Colonies. A collective name for the British colonies in western Africa. They comprise the Northern Nigeria Protectorate, Southern Nigeria, the Gold Coast Colony with Ashanti and Northern Territories, Sierra Leone Colony and Protectorate, and the Gambia Colony and Protectorate.

West Bay City. A city in Bay County, Michigan, situated near the mouth of Saginaw River, opposite Bay City. It has an extensive trade in lumber. Annexed to Bay City in 1905.

West Bromwich (brum'ich). A town in Staffordshire, England, situated near the Tame 6 miles northwest of Birmingham. It has manufactures of hardware, etc. Population, 68,345, (1911).

Westbury, Baron. See Bethell, Richard.

West Chester (ches'tèr). A borough, capital of Chester County, Pennsylvania, 25 miles west of Philadelphia. Population, 11,767, (1910).

Westcott (west'kot), Brooke Foss. Born near Birmingham, Jan., 1825: died July 27, 1901. An English prelate and biblical scholar. He was regius professor of divinity at Cambridge 1870–90; became canon of Westminster in 1883; and was bishop of Durham 1890–1901. He was one of the New Testament revisers. His works include a "History of the Canon of the New Testament" (1855), "Introduction to the Study of the Gospels" (1860), "The Bible in the Church" (1864), "The Gospel of the Resurrection" (1866), "History of the English Bible" (1868), etc.

West Cowes (kouz). A town on the northern shore of the Isle of Wight, Hampshire, England, on the Medina 11 miles south-southeast of Southampton. It is a summer resort and the headquarters of the Royal Yacht Squadron. Population, 8,256.

West Derby (dèr'bi or där'bi). A town in Lancashire, England, 4 miles northeast of Liverpool. Population, 130,550.

West End. The aristocratic western part of London.

Westeraalen (ves'ter-â-len) Islands. A group of islands on the northwestern coast of Norway, east and north of the Lofoten Islands, from which they are separated by the Raftsund.

Westerås (ves'ter-ås). The capital of the laen of Westmanland, Sweden, situated at the entrance of the Svartå into Lake Mälar, 57 miles west-northwest of Stockholm. There, April 29, 1521, Gustavus Vasa defeated the Danes; and at the Diet held there in 1527 he secured the success of the Reformation. Population, 8,122.

Westergötland (ves'ter-yėt-länd). A former province of Sweden, now divided into the laens of Göteborg, Elfsborg, and Skaraborg.

Westerly (wes'tèr-li). A town in Washington County, Rhode Island, 37 miles southwest of Providence. Population, 8,696, (1910).

Westermann (ves-ter-män'), François Joseph. Guillotined 1794. A French Revolutionist and general, distinguished in the Vendean war.

Western (wes'tèrn), Sophia. The heroine of Fielding's novel "Tom Jones," a very bright and attractive character. After various adventures caused by her father's brutal temper, she is reconciled to him and marries Jones.

Western, Squire. In Fielding's novel "Tom Jones," a hunting squire of gross speech and ungoverned and brutal temper, the father of the fair Sophia. His redeeming trait is his affection for his daughter, whom, however, he treats in a most tyrannical fashion.

> But, above all, what shall we say of Squire Western, next to Falstaff the most universally popular of comic creations? . . . His shrewdness, his avarice, his coarse kindness, his sense-defying Jacobitism, his irresistible unreasonableness; his brutal anger, making the page which chronicles it shake with oaths, interjections, and screaming interrogations;—loving his daughter as he loves his dogs and horses, and willing to use the whip and the spur the moment she does not obey him with due alacrity, as in the case of his other brutes; and loving himself with a depth of affection, with a disregard of everything else on and over the earth, which touches the pathetic in selfishness. Whipple, Essays and Reviews.

Western Australia (wes'tèrn âs-trā'liạ). A state of Australia, bounded by the ocean on the north, west, and south, and by South Australia (with the Northern Territory and Alexander Land) on the east. Capital, Perth. The interior is largely a desert, and is to a great extent unexplored. The largest export is wool. The government is vested in a governor, legislative council (elected since 1893), and legislative assembly. The coasts were visited in the 16th century; a convict settlement was established at King George's Sound in 1825; and free settlements were founded on Swan River about 1829. Area, 975,920 square miles. Population, 278,027.

Western Empire, The. The distinctive designation of the western portion of the Roman world after its division into two independent empires in A. D. 395. See Eastern Empire. Its power very rapidly declined under the inroads of barbarians and other adverse influences, and it was finally extinguished in 476. See Holy Roman Empire.

Western Ghats. See Ghats.

Western Islands. See Azores, Hebrides.

Westernorrland (ves'ter-nor-länd), or Hernösand (her'nė-sänd). A laen in northern Sweden. Area, 9,837 square miles. Population, 246,893.

Western Reserve. The popular name for that part of Ohio, on Lake Erie, reserved by Connecticut. (See Ohio.) It contains Cleveland.

Western States. Formerly, the States of the American Union lying west of the Alleghanies. As the country developed, the phrase came to include all the States westward to the Pacific and north of the slave States, although certain States have been classed both as Southern and as Western States. The name is very indefinite: sometimes it is restricted to the States west of the Mississippi (excluding the so-called Southwest); sometimes it includes the northern part of the entire region from Ohio to California.

Westerwald (ves'ter-vält). A region of plateaus and low mountains in Prussia, between the Rhine, the Sieg, and the Lahn. At the northwest end is the Siebengebirge. Highest point, about 2,200 feet.

Westfield (west'fēld). A town in Hampden County, Massachusetts, 10 miles west of Springfield. It has manufactures of whips, cigars, etc. Population, 16,044, (1910).

West Flanders. See Flanders, West.

West Francia. See Francia.

West Friesland (frēz'land). A name sometimes given to the province of Friesland, Netherlands.

West Gothland. See Westergötland.

West Goths. See Visigoths.

West Ham (ham). A suburb of London, in Essex, 5 miles east-northeast of St. Paul's. Population, 289,102, (1911). It returns 2 members to Parliament.

West Hartlepool (härt'l-pōl). A seaport in Durham, England, opposite East Hartlepool. Population, 63,932, (1911).

Westhoughton (west-hō'tọn). A township in Lancashire, England, 14 miles west-northwest of Manchester. Population, 14,377.

West India Company, Dutch. See Dutch West India Company.

West Indian, The. A comedy by Richard Cumberland (1770). It is considered his best play. Garrick brought it out in 1771.

West Indies (in'diz). [Formerly West Indias; G. West Indien, F. Antilles, Sp. Antillas or Indias Occidentales.] An archipelago between North and South America, extending in a curve from Florida to the peninsula of Paria, and separating the Caribbean Sea from the Atlantic Ocean and the Gulf of Mexico. The principal groups distinguished are the Greater Antilles (Cuba, Haiti, Porto Rico, and Jamaica); the Bahamas, north of Cuba; and the Lesser Antilles, or Caribbee Islands, forming a line at the southeastern extremity of the group. Most of the Bahamas are low. Nearly all the other islands are mountainous, and in the Lesser Antilles there are many active and extinct volcanoes. With the exception of some of the Bahamas, the entire group lies within the tropics, and the climate and productions of all are essentially tropical. The principal products are sugar, tobacco, and coffee. Nearly all the islands are occasionally visited by hurricanes, which are sometimes very destructive: the hurricane months are from June to October inclusive. Columbus discovered the Bahamas, Cuba, and Haiti in 1492, and nearly all the islands were known before the continent of America was discovered. They were supposed to be outlying islands of India or Asia, and, as they had been found by sailing westward, they were called the West Indies. Later the name included for a time the known portions of the continent. The Greater Antilles were colonized by the Spanish, who claimed the whole group; but later many of the smaller islands were seized by French, English, and Dutch adventurers, and their wars with one another and with the Spaniards were continued intermittently until 1815, the smaller colonies frequently changing masters. Many African slaves were brought in, and their descendants form a large proportion of the population. In 1898 Cuba was freed from the domination of Spain, and Porto Rico passed to the United States; Haiti is divided between two independent states; Jamaica, the Bahamas, and some of the Lesser Antilles belong to England; and the rest are divided between France, Denmark, and the Netherlands.

Westmacott (west'ma-kot), Sir Richard. Born at London, 1775: died Sept. 1, 1856. An English sculptor. In 1793 he was a pupil of Canova at Rome. In 1827 he succeeded Flaxman as professor of sculpture at the Royal Academy. He executed monuments in St. Paul's and Westminster Abbey. His statues include those of Fox, the dukes of York and Bedford, George III., Achilles, etc.

Westmacott, Richard. Born at London, 1799: died April 19, 1872. An English sculptor, son of Sir Richard Westmacott.

Westmeath (west'mēth). A county in Leinster, Ireland, bounded by Cavan, Meath, King's County, Roscommon, and Longford. Area, 708 square miles. Population, 61,629.

Westminster (west'min-stėr). A former city, now a borough (metropolitan) of London. It is bounded by Marylebone on the north, Temple Bar on the east, the Thames on the east and south, and Kensington and Chelsea on the west. It is noted for the abbey, around which it grew up, and for the houses of Parliament and government buildings.

Westminster, Provisions of. Ordinances passed through the influence of the barons in Parliament at Westminster, 1259. "They embodied the grievances of the barons stated at Oxford, and mainly concerned the administration of justice and local government by the sheriffs."

Westminster Abbey. A famous church in Westminster, London, founded on the site of an earlier church by Edward the Confessor, and rebuilt in the 13th century by Henry III. and Edward I. The highly ornate chapel of Henry VII., at the east end, was added by that king in the early 16th century. The dimensions, including the chapel, are 513 by 75 feet; length of transepts, 200; height of vaulting, 102. The incongruous square west towers were designed by Sir Christopher Wren. The north transept façade is very fine: it has 3 handsome portals, a graceful arcade, and a large wheel. The interior is extremely impressive, the proportions and the details being good: the triforium is of especial beauty. The handsome reredos, of red and white alabaster, is modern, as are the choir-stalls. Henry VII.'s chapel has nave and aisles, and 5 radiating chapels in the chevet: it is a notable example of florid Perpendicular, especially remarkable for the fan-tracery and pendants of its ceiling. Its rich stalls are appropriated to the knights and squires of the Bath: over each are suspended a sword and a banner. The abbey is world-famous as the chief burial-place of Great Britain's distinguished men: comparatively few of the monuments are artistically interesting. The south transept constitutes the famous Poets' Corner: it contains memorials to a large number of the names honored in English literature. The choir-chapels contain medieval and Renaissance monuments of higher intrinsic interest, especially Henry VII.'s chapel: the superb monument of that king, in metal, by Torregiano, is inclosed in a rich Perpendicular chantry of brass. Several other kings and princes are buried in this chapel, and in that of Edward the Confessor, which occupies the extremity of the choir. The Early English chapter-house is octagonal, with central column. The fine cloisters also contain tombs.

Westminster Assembly, or Assembly of Divines at Westminster. A convocation summoned by the Long Parliament to advise "for the settling of the liturgy and the government of the Church of England." Most of its members were Presbyterians, and nearly all were Calvinists. It met July 1, 1643, and continued its sessions until Feb. 22, 1649. The chief fruits of its labors were the Directory of Public Worship, the Confession of Faith, and the Larger and Shorter Catechisms, which were rejected in England but established in Scotland.

Westminster Bridge. The oldest bridge but one over the Thames at London. The first bridge was designed by Labelye, a Swiss architect. The original plan contemplated a wooden structure, but it was changed to stone after the "great frost" of 1739. The piers were built of solid blocks of Portland stone, on caissons which were the largest that had been constructed up to that time. It was begun in 1739 and completed in 1750. It was 1,220 feet long, 40 feet wide, 58 feet high, and the central span was 76 feet wide: there were 15 arches. In 1856–1862 it was replaced by the present stone and iron structure, consisting of 7 iron arches on granite piers, built by Page: it is 1,160 feet long and 85 feet wide.

Westminster Hall. A structure adjoining the houses of Parliament on the west, forming part of the ancient palace of Westminster. It was begun by William Rufus, burned at the end of the 13th century, and restored by Edward II. and Richard II. It has a magnificent framed hammer-beam roof, in a single span 68 feet wide: the length is 290 and the height 92. Here sat some of the first English Parliaments; here, until George IV., the coronation festivities were held; and here Charles I. was condemned, and Cromwell saluted as Lord Protector. The hall now serves as a vestibule to the houses of Parliament. Below it on the east is the crypt of St. Stephen, or Church of St. Mary Undercroft, a vaulted Pointed chapel, in architecture and decoration somewhat resembling the lower chapel of Sainte Chapelle, Paris: the rich cloisters were built by Henry VIII.

Westminster Palace. 1. The houses of Parliament.—2. A former royal residence in Westminster. A palace is supposed to have existed at Westminster in the reign of Canute (1017–35). Its importance, however, begins with Edward the Confessor (1042–66). Various additions were made by his successors until Henry III. (1216–72), in whose reign work was constantly in progress. His palace was richly decorated with pictures in oil-color—according to Horace Walpole the first recorded use of that medium. It was repeatedly visited by fire, and in 1512 (reign of Henry VIII.) all the living-apartments were destroyed. It was then abandoned by royalty, and not used again until July 18, 1821, when George IV. spent the night before his coronation there. The entire palace, except Westminster Hall, was burned in 1834.

Westminster School. A noted preparatory school at Westminster. It was established in the abbey by Henry VIII., and was reëstablished by Elizabeth.

Westmoreland (west'mōr-land), or Westmorland (west'mōr-land). [ME. Westmorelond, AS. Westmōringa land, land of the men of the western moors.] A county of northwestern England. It is bounded by Cumberland on the west and north, Durham on the northeast, Yorkshire on the east and south, and Lancashire on the south and west, and touches Morecambe Bay on the southwest. The surface is largely mountainous in the northwest and northeast. The county includes part of the Lake District, with Windermere, Ullswater, Grasmere, and Hawes Water in it or on its borders. The principal town is Kendal. Area (ad. co.), 789.6 square miles. Population (parl. co.), 64,303.

Weston (wes'tọn), Thomas. Born about 1575: died after 1624. An English adventurer, one of the merchants who supported the colonists at Plymouth. He also sent an unsuccessful colony to Wessagussett (Weymouth, Massachusetts).

Weston-super-Mare (wes'tọn-sū'pėr-mā'rē). A watering-place in Somerset, England, situated on Bristol Channel 18 miles southwest of Bristol. Population, 19,048.

West-östlicher Divan. A collection of poems on Oriental subjects, by Goethe.

Westphalia (west-fā'li-ạ). Duchy of. [F. Westphalie, ML. Westphalia, G. Westfalen, prop. dat. pl. of Westfale, MHG. Westvāle, OHG. Westfalo, an inhabitant of this region.] A duchy which had its origin in the western part of the great duchy of Saxony in the Carolingian times. On the deposition of Henry the Lion in 1180 and the breaking up of the Saxon duchy, the Elector of Cologne assumed the title of Duke of Engern and Westphalia. The capital of the duchy of Westphalia was Arnsberg. In 1803 it was ceded to Hesse-Darmstadt. It was granted in 1815 to Prussia.

Westphalia, Kingdom of. A kingdom formed by Napoleon in 1807, and given to Jerome Bonaparte, under French supervision. It comprised nearly all Hesse-Cassel, all Brunswick, large parts of Prussia and Hannover, parts of Saxony, etc. The capital was Cassel. It was overthrown in 1813, after the battle of Leipsic, and the old governments were restored.

Westphalia, Peace of. The treaties signed at Münster and Osnabrück in 1648 (general peace signed at Münster, Oct. 24, 1648), which ended the Thirty Years' War. Chief provisions: Switzerland and Holland were declared independent of the German Empire; Sweden received Hither Pomerania, Wismar, the bishoprics of Bremen, Verden, etc., with three votes in the Diet, and an indemnification in money; France received most of Alsace, and was confirmed in the possession of Metz, Toul, and Verdun; Brandenburg received Further Pomerania, the bishoprics of Halberstadt and Minden, and prospectively that of Magdeburg; Lusatia was confirmed to Saxony, and the Upper Palatinate to Bavaria; the electoral house of the Palatinate recovered the Rhine Palatinate, and a new electorate was created for it; the peace of Augsburg was confirmed, and its provisions extended to Calvinists; possession of ecclesiastical property was to revert to the condition of affairs in 1624; and autonomy was secured to the states of the German Empire.

Westphalia, Province of. A province of Prussia, surrounded by the Prussian provinces of Hannover, Hesse-Nassau, and the Rhine Province, and by Brunswick, Schaumburg-Lippe, Lippe, Waldeck, and the Netherlands. Capital, Münster. It is level in the northwest, elsewhere hilly or mountainous (Weser Mountains, Sauerland, Haar-Strang, Roth-Haar Mountains, Westerwald), and is one of the chief mining and manufacturing provinces of Prussia. It has three governmental districts—Münster, Arnsberg, and Minden. Its present form was given to it in 1815. Area, 7,804 square miles. Population, 3,618,090.

Westphalian (west-fā'li-an) Circle. [G. Westfälischer Kreis.] One of the former ten circles of the German Empire. It comprised the bishoprics Münster, Paderborn, and Osnabrück; the duchies of Cleves, Gelderland, Jülich, Berg, and Oldenburg; the free cities Cologne, Aix-la-Chapelle, and Dortmund; and many principalities, countships, etc.

Westphalian Gate. [L. Porta Westphalica.] The gap, near Minden in Westphalia, by which the Weser breaks through the Weser Mountains to the lowlands.

West Point (west point). The capital of Clay County, Mississippi. Population, 4,864, (1910).

West Point. A village in Orange County, New York, situated in the Highlands, on the western bank of the Hudson: the seat of the United States Military Academy.

West Point Military Academy. A national institution, situated at West Point, New York, for the training of young men for commissions in the United States army. Since 1779 a military school has existed at West Point. In 1794 the grade of cadet was created and a few cadets were trained here in the years 1794–96, and again in 1801. The founders of the school were Washington, Hamilton, and Knox. In 1802 an act of Congress organized the United States Military Academy as a part of the Corps of Engineers, with ten cadets. In 1812 the academy was reorganized and 250 cadets authorized. In 1817, under Major Sylvanus Thayer as superintendent, the present era of the academy began. Acts of Congress of 1900, 1902, and 1903 authorized the appointment of 523 cadets. These are all appointed by the President: forty from the United States at large; one from each congressional district; one from each territory; one from the District of Columbia; one from Porto Rico; two from each State at large. The academic instruction is given by permanent professors assisted by officers detailed for the purpose. The four years' course of study is that of a scientific school with especial reference to war. Practical military training is given throughout the course. Graduates receive commissions as lieutenants in the army.

West Prussia. See Prussia.

West Riding. See Yorkshire.

West Russia (rush'ị̈). A collective name for several governments in Russia, comprising Kovno, Minsk, Vitebsk, Mohileff, Vilna, and Grodno. The name sometimes also includes Kieff and Smolensk, or Volhynia and Podolia.

West Sea. A name given by the Danes to the North Sea.

West Superior (sū-pē'ri-ọr). A former town in Wisconsin, on Lake Superior near Duluth, now a part of the city of Superior.

West Troy (troi). A former village in Albany County, New York, now Watervliet city.

West Turkestan. See Turkestan.

West Virginia (vėr-jin'i-ạ). One of the South Atlantic States of the United States of America, extending from lat. 37° 12′ to 40° 38′ N., and from long. 77° 40′ to 82° 35′ W. Capital, Charleston. It is bounded by Ohio (separated by the Ohio River) on the northwest, Pennsylvania and Maryland (separated from Maryland in great part by the Potomac) on the north, Virginia on the east and south, and Kentucky (separated by the Big Sandy River) on the west. It has an irregular outline: the "Panhandle" stretches along the Ohio between Ohio and Pennsylvania in the north. Its surface is mountainous or hilly. It has great abundance of timber and very important deposits of coal, being one of the chief coal-producing States in the country, and has iron, salt, petroleum, and mineral springs. It has 55 counties, sends 2 senators and 5 representatives to Congress, and has 7 electoral votes. It was formerly a part of Virginia. A convention adopted an ordinance providing for a new State of "Kanawha" in 1861. The constitution was adopted in 1862, and the State was admitted to the Union as West Virginia in 1863. Area, 24,780 square miles. Population, 1,221,119, (1910).

Westward for Smelts. A collection of stories on the plan of Boccaccio's "Decamerone," except that the story-tellers are fish wives going up the Thames in a boat. It was written by "Kinde Kit of Kingstone" about 1603, and reprinted by the Percy Society.

Westward Ho! A comedy by Webster and Dekker conjointly, printed in 1607.

Westward Ho! or the Voyages and Adventures of Sir Amyas Leigh. A novel by Charles Kingsley, published in 1855.

Westwood (west'wụd), John Obadiah. Born at Sheffield, England, 1805: died at Oxford, Jan. 2, 1893. An English entomologist, professor of zoölogy at Oxford. He published "An Introduction to the Modern Classification of Insects" (2 vols. 1839–40), numerous entomological papers, etc.

Wetherell (weтн'ėr-el), Elizabeth. The pseudonym of Susan Warner.

Wette, De. See De Wette.

Wetterau (vet'ter-ou). A fertile district in Upper Hesse and the province of Hesse-Nassau in Prussia, extending from the neighborhood of Hanau northward to near Giessen.

Wetterhorn (vet'ter-horn). A mountain of the Bernese Alps, canton of Bern, Switzerland, situated near Grindelwald 14 miles east-southeast of Interlaken. Highest point, 12,150 feet.

Wettern (vet'tern), or Vettern (vet'tern), Lake. Next to Lake Wenern the largest lake in Sweden, situated east-southeast of Lake Wenern. Its outlet is by the Motala Elf to the Baltic. It communicates with Lake Wenern by the Göta Canal. Elevation above sea-level, 290 feet. Length, 80 miles. Area, 733 square miles.

Wettersteingebirge (vet'ter-stīn-ge-bēr'ge). A group of the Bavarian Alps, situated on the border of Bavaria and Tyrol, about 55 miles southwest of Munich. It contains the Zugspitze, the highest mountain in the German Empire.

Wettin (vet-tēn'). A town in the province of Saxony, Prussia, situated on the Saale 32 miles northwest of Leipsic. It contains the ancestral castle of the Saxon house of Wettin. Population, about 3,000.

Wetzlar (vets'lär). A town in the Rhine Province, Prussia, situated on the Lahn 33 miles north-northwest of Frankfort-on-the-Main. It was a free imperial city, and was the seat of the Imperial Chamber in the later history of the Empire. The archduke Charles here defeated the French under Jourdan June 15, 1796. The cathedral is a lofty and very picturesque structure founded in the 11th century, and variously modified from then until the 16th. There is a massive western tower in which opens a fine sculptured doorway, and several other portals exhibit excellent details. There is no clearstory, and the traceried windows of the aisles are covered each with a separate gable. Pop., commune, 12,276.

Wevelinghofen (vā've-ling-hō-fen). A manufacturing town in the Rhine Province, Prussia, situated on the Erft 18 miles northwest of Cologne. Near it, June 14, 1648, the Imperialists under Lamboy were defeated by the troops of Hesse and Weimar under Geisa.

Wexford (weks'fōrd). 1. A county in Leinster, Ireland, bounded by Wicklow, St. George's Channel, Waterford, Kilkenny, and Carlow. Area, 901 square miles. Population, 104,104. —2. A seaport, capital of County Wexford, situated at the mouth of the Slaney, in lat. 52° 20′ N., long. 6° 28′ W. It was the landing-place of the English invaders in 1169; was taken by the rebels in 1641; and was stormed by Cromwell in 1649. Pop., 11,168.

Wexford Haven. An inlet of St. George's Channel, situated on the coast of Wexford.

Wexiö (vek'shē-ē). 1. A laen in Sweden: same as Kronoberg.—2. The capital of the laen of Kronoberg, Sweden, 58 miles west of Kalmar. It has a cathedral. Population, 8,039.

Weyer's Cave (wī'ėrz kāv). A large stalactite cave in Augusta County, Virginia, northeast of Staunton, in a spur of the Blue Ridge.

Weyland Smith. See Wayland.

Weyler (wī'lėr) y Nicolau, Valeriano, Marquis of Teneriffe. Born at Palma, Balearic Isles, Sept. 17, 1838. A Spanish general. He served in the Carlist war and the war against the Moors, and for two years fought for Spain in the Cuban insurrection of 1868–78. He was recalled from Cuba on account of the charges of extreme cruelty made against him, but was sent there again to succeed Campos as captain-general of the Spanish forces in Jan., 1896. He was succeeded by Blanco in Oct., 1897.

Weyman (wī'man), Stanley J. Born at Ludlow, Salop, 1855. An English novelist. He was educated at Shrewsbury and at Christ Church, Oxford. He was classical instructor in the King's School, Chester, 1878; read for the bar, and was called in 1881; and practised until 1890. He first began to write for "The Cornhill" in 1883. Among his novels are "The House of the Wolf" (published serially in 1887, and in book form in 1890), "Francis Cludde" (1891), "The New Rector" (1891), "A Gentleman of France" (1893), "Under the Red Robe" (1894), and "My Lady Rotha" (1894).

Weymouth (wā'muth). A town in Norfolk County, Massachusetts, 12 miles south-southeast of Boston. It has manufactures of boots and shoes, etc. Population, 12,895, (1910).

Weymouth and Melcombe Regis (wā'muth and mel'kum rē'jis). A seaport and watering-place in Dorset, England, situated on the English Channel, 7 miles south of Dorchester, at the mouth of the Wey. It was the scene of several engagements in the civil war. Population, 19,843.

Weyprecht (vī'preċht), Karl. Born near Michelstadt (Hesse), Sept. 8, 1838: died there, March 29, 1881. A German Arctic explorer. In 1871 he went with Payer to Spitzbergen and Nova Zembla, and also 1872–74 with the expedition which discovered Franz Josef Land. He was the originator of the system of international polar stations.

Whale, The. See Cetus.

Whalley (hwol'i), Edward. Died at Hadley, Mass., about 1678. An English commander in the civil war, and regicide: one of Cromwell's major-generals. He fled to America at the Restoration.

Whanghai (hwäng-hī'). The Chinese name of the Yellow Sea.

Wharfe (hwârf). A river in Yorkshire, England, which joins the Ouse 8 miles south of York. Length, about 65 miles.

Wharton (hwâr'ton), Francis. Born at Philadelphia, 1820: died 1889. An American lawyer and legal writer. He practised law; became professor in Kenyon College; was ordained in the Protestant Episcopal Church; became professor in Cambridge Divinity School; and was solicitor for the state department, Washington, 1885–89. He wrote "Treatise on the Criminal Law of the United States" (1846), "State Trials of the United States during the Administrations of Washington and Adams" (1849), "Treatise on the Law of Homicide in the United States" (1855), "Treatise on Theism and Modern Skeptical Theories" (1859), "The Silence of Scripture" (1867), "Treatise on the Conflict of Laws" (1872), "Law of Agency and Agents" (1876), and "Digest of International Law." He was joint author with Stillé of a "Treatise on Medical Jurisprudence."

Wharton, Thomas. Born about 1614: died 1673. An English physician, discoverer of "Wharton's duct."

Wharton, Thomas, Marquis of Wharton. Born about 1648: died 1715. An English Whig politician. He was a prominent member of Parliament and member of the Junto; comptroller of the household; lord lieutenant of Ireland 1708–10; and lord privy seal 1714. He was the reputed author of "Lillibullero."

Whately (hwāt'li), Richard. Born at London, Feb. 1, 1787: died at Dublin, Oct. 1, 1863. An English prelate and theologian. In 1805 he entered Oxford (Oriel College), graduating in 1808. In 1819 he published the famous "Historic Doubts relative to Napoleon Bonaparte." He became Bampton lecturer in 1822; principal of St. Albans Hall in 1825; professor of political economy at Oxford in 1829; and archbishop of Dublin in 1831. About 1815 his treatise on "Logic" and that on "Rhetoric" were contributed to the "Encyclopædia Metropolitana." In 1837 he wrote "Christian Evidences," and edited Bacon's "Essays" in 1856 and Paley in 1859. He advocated Catholic emancipation and unsectarian education, and helped to relieve the Irish famine. Among his numerous other works are "The Use and Abuse of Party Feeling in Matters of Religion" (1822), "Essays on Some of the Peculiarities of the Christian Religion" (1825), "Elements of Logic" (1826), "Elements of Rhetoric" (1828), "Essays on Some of the Difficulties in the Writings of the Apostle Paul, etc." (1828), etc.

What Will He Do With It? A novel by Bulwer Lytton, published in 1858.

What You Will. A comedy by Marston, written about 1601, published in 1607. Shakspere's "Twelfth Night, or What You Will" is thought to be a rejoinder to this play and "The Malcontent."

Wheaton (hwē'ton), Henry. Born at Providence, R. I., Nov. 27, 1785: died at Dorchester, Mass., March 11, 1848. A noted American diplomatist, lawyer, and publicist. He graduated at Brown University in 1802; practised law at Providence, and later (1812) at New York; and edited the "National Advocate" 1812–15. He was justice of the Marine Court, New York city, 1815–19; reporter of the United States Supreme Court 1816–27; chargé d'affaires to Denmark 1827–1835; and minister to Prussia 1835–46. He negotiated a treaty (not ratified) with Prussia in 1844. His chief work is "Elements of International Law" (1836: later edited by W. B. Lawrence and R. H. Dana, Jr.). He also wrote reports and digests of United States Supreme Court decisions, "Life of William Pinckney" (1826), "History of the Northmen" (1831), "Histoire du progrès du droit des gens en Europe" ("History of the Law of Nations," 1841), "Validity of the British Claim to a Right of Visitation and Search of American Vessels Suspected to be Engaged in the Slave-Trade" (1842).

Wheatstone (hwēt'ston), Sir Charles. Born at Gloucester, England, Feb., 1802: died at Paris, Oct. 19, 1875. An English physicist and inventor, one of the inventors of the electric telegraph: professor in King's College, London. He patented, with Cooke, his telegraph in 1837; made many researches in electricity, sound, and light; and invented the stereoscope, concertina, etc.

Wheeler (hwē'lėr), Joseph. Born Sept. 10, 1836: died Jan. 25, 1906. An American soldier and politician. He was graduated at the United States Military Academy in 1859, and entered the Confederate army in 1861, rising to the rank of lieutenant-general in Feb., 1865. From 1881 to 1900 he was a member of Congress from Alabama. He was appointed major-general of volunteers in May, 1898, and commanded the dismounted cavalry in the Santiago campaign. Appointed brigadier-general U. S. A. in 1900. Retired in 1900.

Wheeler, William Almon. Born at Malone, Franklin County, N. Y., June 30, 1819: died there, June 4, 1887. An American statesman. He was educated at the University of Vermont, but did not graduate; was admitted to the bar in 1845; was United States district attorney of Franklin County, New York, 1846–49; was a Whig member of the New York Assembly 1849–58, and State senator 1858–59; and was Republican member of Congress from New York 1861–63 and 1869–77. He adjusted Louisiana difficulties by the "Wheeler Compromise" in 1874. He was nominated as Republican candidate for Vice-President of the United States in 1876; was declared elected in 1877; and served 1877–81.

Wheeling (hwē'ling). A city, capital of Ohio County, West Virginia, situated in the "Panhandle," on the Ohio River, in lat. 40° 6′ N. It is called "the Nail City," from its nail-factories: it has also other manufactures, and an important trade by railroad and by the Ohio. It was the capital of the State 1863–70 and 1875–85. Population, 41,641, (1910).

Wheelock (hwē'lok), Eleazar. Born at Windham, Conn., 1711: died at Hanover, N. H., 1779. An American clergyman and educator, first president of Dartmouth College (1770–79).

Wheelock, John. Born at Lebanon, Conn., 1754: died at Hanover, N. H., 1817. An American educator, son of Eleazar Wheelock. He served in the Revolutionary War, and succeeded his father as president of Dartmouth College in 1779. He was removed by the trustees in 1815, and restored in 1817.

Whewell (hū'el), William. Born at Lancaster, England, May 24, 1794: died at Cambridge, England, March 6, 1866. A celebrated English scientist and philosopher. He entered Cambridge (Trinity College) in 1812. In 1817 he was elected fellow, and in 1818 mathematical lecturer. From 1828–32 he was professor of mineralogy, and from 1838–55 Knightbridge professor of moral philosophy. In 1841 he became master of Trinity College. His works include "Astronomy and General Physics Considered with Reference to Natural Theology" (1833), "History of the Inductive Sciences" (1837), "Philosophy of the Inductive Sciences" (1840), "Elements of Morality" (1845), "On the History of Moral Philosophy in England" (1852), "Plurality of Worlds," "Platonic Dialogues for English Readers" (1859–61), "Lectures on Political Economy" (1862).

Whidby (hwid'bi). A large island in Puget Sound, belonging to the State of Washington.

Whigs (hwigz), The. [Originally a contemptuous epithet in Scotland, the primary application of which is not now known.] 1. In English history, one of the two great political parties which arose at the end of the 17th century. It may be regarded as succeeding the Roundheads, Country party, and Exclusionists (Petitioners). It professed more liberal principles than the Tory party, and favored and defended the revolution of 1688, Parliamentary control, and the Hanoverian succession. The great Whig families controlled the government for many years from the beginning of the reign of George I. Among the later leaders were Fox and Burke. About the time of the Reform Bill of 1832 (which the Whigs favored) the name began to be replaced by Liberal. (See Liberal.) Sometimes the more conservative members of the Liberal party are still called Whigs. 2. The patriotic or American party during the Revolutionary period.—3. An American political party formed under the leadership of Henry Clay, and known until about 1834 as the National Republican. It favored a loose construction of the Constitution, and supported a high protective tariff and internal improvements. Its presidents were Harrison and Tyler (1841–45) and Taylor and Fillmore (1849–53). It became divided on the slavery question, lost the election of 1852, and soon after disappeared.

Whipple (hwip'l), Edwin Percy. Born at Gloucester, Mass., March 8, 1819: died at Boston, June 16, 1886. An American critic and essayist. He was employed in a bank and in a broker's office at Boston; and 1837–60 was superintendent of the reading-room of the Merchants' Exchange. He became noted as a lecturer. His works include "Essays and Reviews" (2 vols. 1848–49), "Literature and Life" (1849), "Character and Characteristic Men" (1866), "Literature of the Age of Elizabeth" (1869), etc.

Whiskerandos (hwis-kėr-an'dōz), Don Ferolo. A character in the tragedy rehearsed in Sheridan's "Critic": a burlesque tragedy type.

Whisky Insurrection or Rebellion. An outbreak in the four western counties of Pennsylvania, in 1794, against the enforcement of an act of Congress of 1791 imposing an excise duty on all spirits distilled within the United States, and on stills. A large body of militia, under Governor Lee of Virginia, was sent by Washington to the disturbed district, but the insurrection was suppressed without bloodshed.

Whisky Ring. A conspiracy of distillers and United States government officials, formed to defraud the government of the excise taxes. It existed about 1872–75.

Whistlecraft (hwis'l-kraft), William and Robert. A pseudonym of John Hookham Frere. He wrote a "Prospectus and Specimen of an intended National Work, by William and Robert Whistlecraft, of Stowmarket, in Suffolk, Harness and Collar Makers, intended to comprise the most interesting Particulars relating to King Arthur and his Round Table." In this work he introduced the burlesque style into the English language. Byron, when sending "Beppo" to his publisher, writes: "I have written a poem humorous, in or after the excellent manner of Mr. Whistlecraft, and founded on a Venetian anecdote which amused me. . . . Whistlecraft is my immediate model, but Berni is the father of that kind of writing; which, I think, suits our language, too, very well."

Whistler (hwis'lėr), James Abbott McNeill. Born at Lowell, Mass., 1834: died at London, July 17, 1903. A distinguished American painter and etcher. He attended the West Point Academy 1851–54, and later studied art in Paris under Gleyre. He removed to London in 1863, and in 1886 was elected president of the Society of British Artists. He is especially noted for his etchings. His paintings include various portraits, and "The White Girl" (1862), "Portrait of my Mother" (1872), "Nocturne in Blue and Gold" and "Nocturne in Blue and Green" (1878), "Harmony in Gray and Green" (1881), etc. He wrote "The Gentle Art of Making Enemies" (1890), etc.

Whiston (hwis'ton), William. Born at Norton, Leicestershire, England, Dec. 9, 1667: died at London, Aug. 22, 1752. An English theologian and mathematician, successor of Newton as professor of mathematics at Cambridge, but expelled for Arianism. He wrote "New Theory of the Earth" (1696), "Primitive Christianity Revived" (1711), "St. Clement's and St. Irenæus's Vindication of the Apostolical Constitutions" (1715), "Sir Isaac Newton's Mathematical Philosophy Demonstrated" (1716), works on mathematics, Arianism, prophecy, the Scriptures, a life of Samuel Clarke, autobiography (1749–50), and a translation of Josephus (1737).

Whitby (hwit'bi). A seaport and watering-place in Yorkshire, England, situated at the mouth of the Esk in the North Sea, in lat. 54° 29′ N., long. 0° 37′ W.: the Saxon Streonshalh. It has manufactures of jet ornaments and important fisheries and trade; and was formerly noted for ship-building. It is a fashionable seaside resort. The famous abbey was founded in the 7th century, though the existing remains date from between the 12th and the 14th. The ruins of the church are picturesque and architecturally interesting. The clearstory windows are small, but the other openings are of good size. The old town grew up around the monastery. Population, 11,755.

Whitby. The capital of Ontario County, Ontario, Canada, situated on Lake Ontario 30 miles east-northeast of Toronto. Population, 2,110.

Whitby, Daniel. Born at Rushden, Northamptonshire, 1638: died at Salisbury, March 24, 1726. An English theologian. He graduated at Trinity College, Oxford, in 1657. In 1669 he was rector at St. Edmunds, Salisbury. His attempt to reconcile the Anglican Church and the Dissenters excited the wrath of the clergy: his book "The Protestant Reconciler" (1682) was burned at Oxford, and he was forced to recant. He wrote controversial works against Roman Catholicism, and others relating to Arianism, Arminianism, etc.

Whitby, Synod or Council of. An ecclesiastical council held at Whitby in 664, under the leadership of Oswy, king of Northumbria, to decide the Easter and tonsure questions. It resulted in the triumph of the Roman party as against the Celtic.

White (hwit), Andrew Dickson. Born at Homer, N. Y., Nov. 7, 1832. An American educator, historian, and politician. He graduated at Yale in 1853; studied in Europe, and was attaché of legation in Russia; was professor of history and English literature in the University of Michigan 1857–62; was State senator in New York 1863–66; and was one of the organizers of Cornell University and its first president (1867–85). From 1879 to 1881 he was United States minister, and 1897–1902 ambassador, to Germany. In 1871 he was commissioner to Santo Domingo, and minister to Russia 1892–94. Among his works are "Lectures on Medieval and Modern History" (1861), "Warfare of Science" (1876), "The New Germany" (1882), "Studies in General History" (1885).

White, Babington. A pseudonym of Miss Braddon (Mrs. Maxwell).

White, Gilbert. Born at Selborne, Hampshire, England, July 18, 1720: died there, June 26, 1793. An English naturalist. He was educated at Oriel College, Oxford, and became a fellow there; and was curate at Selborne and elsewhere. He is famous for his "Natural History and Antiquities of Selborne" (1789). His "Naturalists' Calendar" was edited by Aikin in 1795.

White, Henry Kirke. Born at Nottingham, England, March 21, 1785: died at Cambridge, England, Oct. 19, 1806. An English poet. He was the son of a butcher, and was apprenticed to an attorney at the age of 15. He published a volume of poems in 1803, and in 1804 secured a sizarship at St. John's College, Cambridge, where he died from overstudy. His "Remains" and biography were published by Southey in 1807.

White, Hugh Lawson. Born in Iredell County, N. C., 1773: died at Knoxville, Tenn., April 10, 1840. An American statesman. He was State senator in Tennessee; judge of the Tennessee Supreme Court; and United States senator from Tennessee 1825–40. He received 26 electoral votes as Whig candidate for President in 1836.

White, John. Born 1590: died 1645. An English lawyer and doctor of medicine: called "Century White" from his "First Century of Scandalous, Malignant Priests" (1643). He drew up the first charter of the Massachusetts colony.

White, Joseph Blanco. Born at Seville, July 11, 1775: died at Liverpool, May 20, 1841. An English author and clergyman. In 1800 he was ordained a Roman Catholic priest. In 1810 he went to England and took orders in the English Church, but afterward became a Unitarian. He edited "El Español" in London (1810–14), and wrote "Letters from Spain" (1822), "Evidence against Catholicism" (1825), "Poor Man's Preservative against Popery" (1825), "Second Travels of an Irish Gentleman in Search of a Religion" (1833), and the famous sonnet "Night." His autobiography was edited by J. H. Thom (1845).

White, Peregrine. Born on the Mayflower, in Cape Cod Harbor, Mass., Nov. 20, 1620: died 1704. The first white child born in New England.

White, Richard Grant. Born at New York, May 22, 1822: died there, April 8, 1885. An American essayist, critic, and Shaksperian scholar. He was educated at the University of the City of New York; studied law; became noted as a musical and art critic; was editor of the New York "Courier and Enquirer"; and later was connected with the United States revenue bureau in New York. He wrote "Appeal from the Sentence of the Bishop [Onderdonk] of New York" (1845), "Handbook of Christian Art" (1853), "Shakspere's Scholar" (1854), "Authorship of the 3 Parts of Henry VI." (1859), "National Hymns" (1861), a satire "The New Gospel of Peace" (1863), "Memoirs of the Life of William Shakspere" (1865), "Poetry of the Civil War" (1866), "Words and Their Uses" (1870), "Every-day English" (1880), "England Without and Within" (1881), a novel "The Fate of Mansfield Humphreys" (1884), "Studies in Shakspere" (1885). He edited Shakspere's plays 1857–65, and in 1883.

White, Stanford. Born at New York, Nov. 9, 1853: died there, June 25, 1906. An American architect and decorator, son of R. G. White. He designed the Washington Arch (New York city), the Madison Square Garden, the base of St. Gaudens's statue of Farragut in Madison Square, and many buildings.

White, William. Born at Philadelphia, April 4, 1748: died there, July 17, 1836. A bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church. He was one of the organizers of the Episcopal Church in the United States, and was elected first bishop of Pennsylvania in 1786, and consecrated in London in 1787. He wrote "The Case of the Episcopal Churches Considered" (1782), "Lectures on the Catechism" (1813), "Comparative View of the Controversy between the Calvinists and the Arminians" (1817), "Memoirs of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States" (1820), etc.

Whiteboys (hwit'boiz). The members of an illegal agrarian association, formed in Ireland about the year 1761, whose object was "to do justice to the poor by restoring the ancient commons and redressing other grievances" (Lecky). The members of the association assembled at night with white frocks over their other clothes (whence the name), threw down fences and leveled inclosures (being hence also called Levelers), and destroyed the property of harsh landlords or their agents, the Protestant clergy, the tithe-collectors, and any others who had made themselves obnoxious to the association.

Whitecaps (hwit'kaps). In the United States, a self-constituted body or committee of persons who, in Indiana and other States, generally under the guise of rendering service or protection to the community in which they dwell, commit various outrages and lawless acts.

Whitechapel (hwit'chap'el). A quarter in the eastern part of London, inhabited by the poorer classes and by criminals: so called from Whitechapel Road.

Whitechapel Murders. A series of extraordinary and atrocious murders, committed in London, especially in Whitechapel, by an unknown person, popularly called "Jack the Ripper," about 1889. The victims were in all cases fallen women.

White Company, The. [F. La Compagnie Blanche.] A band of assassins organized in Toulouse in the 13th century by "the ferocious Folquet," bishop of Toulouse. He marched at their head, massacring all who were suspected of favoring heretical opinions. This company joined the army of Simon de Montfort when he besieged Toulouse. The name was also assumed by a band of freebooters (the "Grand Companies") led by Bertrand du Guesclin in 1366, from the white cross which each wore on his shoulder. He was ransomed from English captivity for the purpose of ridding France of these adventurers. He placed himself at their head and led them out of the country into Spain. The name was also given, probably on account of their equipment, to another band of adventurers led by Sir John Hawkwood, who ravaged the northern part of Italy with them in the 14th century.

White Czar, or White King, The. An epithet of the Czar of Russia.

White Devil, The, or Vittoria Corombona. A tragedy by Webster, first acted in 1607 or 1608. It was printed in 1612. See Corombona.

But when these criticisms and others are made, "The White Devil" remains one of the most glorious works of the period. Vittoria is perfect throughout; and in the justly lauded trial scene she has no superior on any stage. Bracchiano is a thoroughly lifelike portrait of the man who is completely besotted with an evil woman. Flamineo I have spoken of, and not favourably: yet in literature, if not in life, he is a triumph; and, above all, the absorbing tragic interest of the play, which it is impossible to take up without finishing, has to be counted in. But the real charm of "The White Devil" is the wholly miraculous poetry in phrases and short passages which it contains.
Saintsbury, Hist. of Elizabethan Lit., p. 275.

White Devil of Wallachia, The. A Turkish nickname of Scanderbeg.

White Elephant, Land of the. Siam.

Whiteface (hwit'fās) Mountain. A peak of the Adirondacks, in Essex County, New York, near Lake Placid. Height, about 4,870 feet.

Whitefield (hwit'fēld), George. Born at Gloucester, England, Dec. 27, 1714: died at Newburyport, Mass., Sept. 30, 1770. An English clergyman, one of the founders of Methodism: celebrated as a pulpit orator. He was educated at Gloucester and Oxford; became associated at Oxford with the Methodists; was ordained deacon in 1736; visited Georgia in 1738, returning to England in the same year to be ordained a priest; began open-air preaching at Bristol with great effect; again visited America 1739–41, preaching in New England, New York, Georgia, and elsewhere; separated from Wesley on doctrinal points in 1741 (Whitefield retaining his rigid Calvinism and Wesley leaning toward Arminianism); preached throughout Great Britain; was in America for the third time 1744–48 (and several times later); and became chaplain to the Countess of Huntingdon. He returned to America for the last time in 1769, and died there.

Whitefriars (hwit'frī'ärz). A district in London, named from an order of Carmelites established there in 1241. The first monastery of the order in England was founded by Ralph Freshburne near Aterwich, Northumberland, in 1224. (See Alsatia.) In 1580 the Whitefriars' Monastery was given up to a company of players, and known as Whitefriars' Theatre. It was not used after 1616.

Whitehall (hwit'hâl). In modern London, the main thoroughfare between Trafalgar Square and the houses of Parliament. It is 150 feet wide, and passes through the great courtyard of the old Whitehall Palace. It contains on either side the administrative offices of the imperial government.

Whitehall (hwit'hâl). A village in Washington County, New York, situated at the southern end of Lake Champlain, 65 miles north by east of Albany, at the terminus of the Champlain Canal. It has an important trade in lumber. Population, 4,917, (1910).

Whitehall Palace. A palace in London, England, originally built by Hubert de Burgh in the reign of Henry III. It became the residence of the archbishops of York in 1248, and was called York Place for three centuries. It should not be confounded with York House. It escheated to the crown under Henry VIII. In 1615 it was nearly destroyed by fire, and James I. undertook to rebuild the palace, but only the existing banqueting-hall, designed by Inigo Jones, was finished at the opening of the civil war. The remainder of the old palace has since disappeared. The banqueting-hall is one of the best examples of the Palladian style, 111 by 55½ feet, and 55½ high. The ceiling is covered with paintings by Rubens representing the Apotheosis of James I., incidents in the life of Charles I., and allegories of Peace, Plenty, and similar subjects. Through an opening broken in the wall between the upper and the lower central windows Charles I. walked to the scaffold. The banqueting-hall was turned into a chapel by George I., but has never been consecrated. It is called "the Chapel Royal of Whitehall," and was dismantled in 1890.

White Hart, The. A noted tavern in Southwark, London.

Whitehaven (hwīt'hā'vn). A seaport in Cumberland, England, situated near the entrance to Solway Firth, in lat. 54° 33′ N., long. 3° 35′ W. It has coal-mines and varied manufactures, and exports coal, iron, etc. Population, 19,324.

Whitehead (hwit'hed), Charles. Born at London, 1804: died at Melbourne, 1862. An English poet and writer. He published "The Solitary" (1831), and "Autobiography of Jack Ketch" (1834). The "Pickwick Papers" were written by Dickens at his suggestion. In 1857 he went to Melbourne.

Whitehead, William. Born at Cambridge, 1715: died April 14, 1785. An English poet, the successor of Colley Cibber as poet laureate. He was educated at Winchester and Cambridge (Clare Hall). In 1742 he became a fellow of Clare, and in 1757 poet laureate. He wrote the tragedies "A Roman Father" and "Creusa," and the comedy "A School for Lovers," etc.

White Horse, Vale of the. A valley in Berkshire, England, west of Abingdon. See White Horse of Berkshire.

White Horse of Berkshire, The. A rude figure of a horse made by cutting away the turf on an escarpment of the Chalk Downs near Wantage, Berkshire, England: traditionally ascribed to Alfred the Great. There are others.

The White Horse of Uffington, in Berkshire, occupies about an acre of ground, and may be seen from some points of view at a distance of twelve miles.
Woodward, Geology of England and Wales, 2d ed., p. 421.

White House (hwit hous). A locality on the Pamunkey River, Virginia, east of Richmond: a prominent point in the movements against Richmond in the Civil War.

White House, The. See Washington (city).

White Huns (hunz). An ancient people, probably of the Turkish race, who lived in central Asia. They were probably ancestors of the Turkomans.

White Lady. In German folk-lore, the ancient Teutonic goddess Holda or Berchta, who was the receiver of the souls of maidens and children, and who still exists as the White Lady, not unfrequently, in German legends, transforming herself, or those whom she decoys into her home, into a white mouse. Baring-Gould, Curious Myths of the Middle Ages, p. 463.

White League, The. 1. A military organization in Louisiana, in the period succeeding the Civil War, formed for the purpose of securing white supremacy.—2. The Ku-Klux Klan.

Whitelocke (hwit'lok), Bulstrode. Born at London, Aug. 6, 1605: died at Clifton, Wiltshire, 1675. An English statesman, son of Sir James Whitelocke (justice of the King's Bench). In 1620 he entered St. John's College, Oxford; in 1626 was member of Parliament for Stafford; and sat in the Long Parliament for Great Marlow. He succeeded in maintaining a moderate or neutral position through the civil war, Commonwealth, and Restoration. In 1645 he was appointed a commissioner to treat with the king at Uxbridge. He committed himself neither to the Independents nor to the Presbyterians, and had nothing to do with the king's trial and execution. In 1653 he was ambassador to Sweden, and in 1659 was commissioner of the great seal. He was pardoned at the Restoration. He wrote "Memorials of English Affairs" (1682).

White Mountain. [G. Weisser Berg.] A hill near Prague, about 1,200 feet in height. Here, Nov. 8, 1620, the Imperialists under Tilly and Maximilian of Bavaria defeated the elector Frederick V. of the Palatinate.

White Mountain Apache. See Coyotero.

White Mountains. A group of mountains in New Hampshire, belonging to the Appalachian system. It comprises the Presidential range, or White Mountains proper (Mounts Washington, Adams, Jefferson, Madison, Monroe, Clay, and others), the Franconia range (Mount Lafayette and others), and other lesser heights. Highest point, Mount Washington (6,279 feet). They are a popular summer resort.

White Mountains. A name sometimes given to the Little Carpathians between Moravia and Hungary.

White Oak Swamp. A locality east of Richmond, the scene of part of the battle of June 30, 1862, and of the Seven Days' Battles.

White Plains. A village in Westchester County, New York, 22 miles north-northeast of New York. A victory was gained there by the British under Howe over the Americans under Washington, Oct. 28, 1776. Population, village, 15,949, (1910).

White River. 1. A river in Arkansas and the southern part of Missouri, which joins the Arkansas and Mississippi near the junction of those rivers. Length, about 800 miles; navigable to Batesville or Jacksonport.—2. A river in Indiana, formed by the East and West Forks. It joins the Wabash 25 miles southwest of Vincennes. Indianapolis is on the West Fork. Length, about 350 miles, including the West Fork.

White River Junction. A railroad junction in Vermont, at the entrance of the White River into the Connecticut, 32 miles east of Rutland.

White Rose of Raby. An epithet of the mother of Edward IV. of England. In 1794 a novel with this title was published.

White Russia (rush'ä). A popular but not official name for a part of western Russia largely inhabited by White Russians. It includes, in whole or in great part, the governments of Vilna, Grodno, Mohileff, Minsk, Smolensk, and Vitebsk. Formerly it belonged to Poland.

White's (hwits). A noted club in St. James's street, London, established in 1698 as a chocolate-house, and called after the name of its keeper. It was from the beginning principally a gambling club.

Whites, The. See Bianchi.

White Sea. An arm of the Arctic Ocean which penetrates about 400 miles into northern Russia. Its chief branches are the Gulfs of Mezen, Archangel (or Dwina), Onega, and Kandalak, and it receives the Mezen, Dwina, Onega, and Wyg. It is frozen more than half the year.

White Sheep, The. The Turkoman conquerors of Persia about 1468.

White Sulphur Springs. A village and watering-place in Greenbrier County, West Virginia, 60 miles northwest of Lynchburg: one of the most noted summer resorts in the South.

White Surrey. The favorite horse of Richard III.

White Tower. The oldest portion of the Tower of London (which see).

Whitfield, George. See Whitefield.

Whitfield (hwit'fēld), or Whitefield, John Clarke. Born at Gloucester, Dec. 13, 1770: died near Hereford, Feb. 22, 1836. An English musician. In 1798 he became choirmaster of St. Patrick's Cathedral in Dublin; soon after organist of Trinity and St. John's colleges, Cambridge; and from 1820–33 organist of Hereford cathedral. From 1821 he was professor of music to the University of Cambridge. He edited Handel's oratorios.

Whitgift (hwit'gift), John. Born at Great Grimsby, Lincolnshire, England, 1530 (1533?): died at London, Feb. 29, 1604. An English prelate. In 1563 he became Lady Margaret professor of divinity at Cambridge; in 1567 regius professor and master of Trinity; and in 1570 vice-chancellor of the university. He was appointed bishop of Worcester in 1577, and archbishop of Canterbury in 1583. He was a persecutor of the Puritans; was one of the authors of the "Lambeth Articles"; and took part in the Hampton Court Conference in 1604. His works were edited for the Parker Society 1851–53.

Whitlock (hwit'lok), Mrs. (Eliza Kemble). Born 1761: died 1836. An English actress, sister of Mrs. Siddons.

Whitman (hwit'man), Marcus. Born at Rushville, N. Y., Sept. 4, 1802: died near Walla Walla, Oregon, Nov. 29, 1847. An American pioneer. In 1836 he went to Oregon for the American Board as missionary physician. Convinced of the value of the country, he returned (1842–43) to Washington, and by his representations practically succeeded in securing Oregon for the United States. To prove its accessibility to settlers, he led back in the same year a large train of wagons to the valley of the Columbia. He was murdered by Indians.

Whitman (hwit'man), Mrs. (Sarah Helen Power). Born at Providence, R. I., 1803: died there, June 27, 1878. An American poet and critic. About 1848 she became engaged to Edgar Allan Poe, and, though the engagement was broken off, defended him in her "Edgar A. Poe and his Critics" (1860). She also wrote "Hours of Life, and other Poems" (1853), and various poems with her sister Anna M. Power.

Whitman, Walt or Walter. Born at West Hills, Long Island, N. Y., May 31, 1819: died at Camden, N. J., March 26, 1892. An American poet. In early life he was engaged as a printer, carpenter, and journalist. During the Civil War he volunteered as army nurse, and in 1864 was seized with hospital malaria, from which he never fully recovered. After the war he was a government clerk in Washington; and was dismissed in 1865, on account of the character of his volume of poems "Leaves of Grass," which had been published in 1855. The volume has many times been revised, a final edition appearing in 1892. Shortly after his dismissal he received another appointment which he held until disabled by paralysis in 1873, when he removed to Camden. William Douglas O'Connor published a pamphlet in his defense in 1866, entitled "The Good Gray Poet: A Vindication," and W. M. Rossetti published an edition of his poems in England in 1868. His other works include "Drum-Taps" (1865), "Memoranda During the War" (1875), "Democratic Vistas" (1871), "Two Rivulets" (1876), "Specimen Days and Collect" (1883), "November Boughs" (1888), "Goodbye, my Fancy" (1891), and "Selected Poems." A complete collection of his prose works and "Autobiographia" was published in 1892.

Whitney (hwit'ni), Mrs. (Adeline Dutton Train). Born at Boston, Sept. 15, 1824: died March 21, 1906. An American novelist, poet, and writer of juveniles. Her novels include "Boys at Chequasset" (1862), "Faith Gartney's Girlhood" (1863), "The Gayworthys" (1865), "A Summer in Leslie Goldthwaite's Life" (1866), "Patience Strong's Outings" (1868), "Hitherto" (1869), "Real Folks" (1871), "Sights and Insights" (1876), "Odd or Even" (1880), "Bonnyborough" (1885), "Ascutney Street" (1891), "A Golden Gossip" (1892). She has published also several volumes of poems.

Whitney (hwit'ni), Eli. Born at Westborough, Mass., Dec. 8, 1765: died at New Haven, Conn., Jan. 8, 1825. An American inventor and manufacturer. He graduated at Yale in 1792, and in the same year went to Georgia as a teacher, and there invented the cotton-gin. His workshop was broken into and his machine stolen and others made before he could secure a patent. He subsequently made a fortune in the manufacture of firearms at Whitneyville, near New Haven.

Whitney, Josiah Dwight. Born at Northampton, Mass., Nov. 23, 1819: died Aug. 19, 1896. A distinguished American geologist. He graduated at Yale in 1839; was connected as geologist with the New Hampshire survey 1840–42; studied and traveled in Europe 1842–47; was assistant geologist of the United States survey of the Lake Superior region 1847–49; became State chemist of Iowa and professor in Iowa State University in 1855; was connected with the State surveys of Wisconsin and Illinois 1858–60; was State geologist of California 1860–74; and became professor of geology at Harvard in 1865. With J. W. Foster he published reports on the Lake Superior survey (1849 and 1850–51); with James Hall reports on the Geological Survey of Iowa (1858–59) and on that of Wisconsin (1862). He also wrote "The Metallic Wealth of the United States, etc." (1854), "Geological Survey of California" (1864–70), "The Yosemite Guide-Book" (1869), "Barometric Hypsometry" (1874), a volume on the botany of California (1877), "Names and Places" (1888), etc.

Whitney, Mount. [Named from Prof. J. D. Whitney.] A peak of the Sierra Nevada Mountains, on the border of Inyo and Tulare counties, California, about lat. 36° 35′ N.: at one time thought to be the highest mountain in the United States. Height, 14,502 feet.

Whitney, William Collins. Born July 15, 1841: died Feb. 2, 1904. An American lawyer and politician. He graduated at Yale in 1863, and at the Harvard Law School in 1865, and was several times corporation counsel of New York city. He was secretary of the navy 1885–89.

Whitney, William Dwight. Born at Northampton, Mass., Feb. 9, 1827: died at New Haven, Conn., June 7, 1894. A distinguished American philologist, brother of J. D. Whitney. He graduated at Williams College in 1845; was employed in a bank at Northampton for several years; studied Sanskrit at New Haven 1849–50, and at Berlin 1850–53; and became professor of Sanskrit at Yale in 1853, and also of comparative philology in 1870. He was secretary of the American Oriental Society 1857–84, and its president from 1884; and was the first president of the American Philological Association. He was also member of many learned societies, and was a foreign knight of the Prussian order Pour le Mérite, filling the vacancy caused by the death of Thomas Carlyle. His works include numerous contributions to the "Journal of the American Oriental Society" and other papers, a translation of the "Sûrya Siddhânta" (1860), an edition of the "Prâtiçâkhya" of the "Atharva Veda" (1862), "Language and the Study of Language" (1867), "German Grammar" (1869), "German Reader," an edition of the "Taittiriya Prâtiçâkhya" (1871), "Oriental and Linguistic Studies" (1872–74), "Life and Growth of Language" (1875), "Essentials of English Grammar" (1877), "Sanskrit Grammar" (1879), "French Grammar" (1886), etc. He also was editor-in-chief of "The Century Dictionary" (1889–91), and aided in the revision of Webster's Dictionary (1864).

Whittier (hwit'i-ėr), John Greenleaf. Born at Haverhill, Mass., Dec. 17, 1807: died at Hampton Falls, N. H., Sept. 7, 1892. A distinguished American poet, reformer, and author: a member of the Society of Friends. He attended the Haverhill Academy; worked on a farm; taught school in order to afford further education; and at the age of twenty-two edited the "American Manufacturer" at Boston. In 1830 he edited the "Haverhill Gazette," and a few months later the "New England Weekly Review" (Hartford). He was a leading opponent of slavery; became secretary of the American Anti-Slavery Society in 1836; and went to Philadelphia, where he edited the "Pennsylvania Freeman." He was several times attacked by mobs on account of his opinions. He was sent to the Massachusetts legislature in 1835–36, and settled at Amesbury, Massachusetts, in 1840. He was leading writer for the Washington "National Era" 1847–59. Among his works are "Legends of New England" (1831), "Moll Pitcher" (1832), "Mogg Megone" (1836), "Ballads" (1838), "Lays of My Home, and other Poems" (1843), "The Stranger in Lowell" (1845), "Supernaturalism in New England" (1847), "Leaves from Margaret Smith's Journal" (1849), "The Voices of Freedom" (1849), "Old Portraits and Modern Sketches" (1850), "Songs of Labor" (1850), "The Chapel of the Hermits" (1853), "Literary Recreations and Miscellanies" (1854), "The Panorama" (1856), "Home Ballads and Poems" (1860), "In War Time" (1863), "National Lyrics" (1865), "Snow-Bound" (1866), "Maud Muller" (1866), "The Tent on the Beach" (1867), "Among the Hills" (1868), "Ballads of New England" (1869), "Miriam" (1871), "The Pennsylvania Pilgrim" (1872), "Hazel Blossoms" (1874), "Mabel Martin" (1875), "The Vision of Echard" (1878), "The King's Missive" (1881), "The Bay of the Seven Islands" (1883), "Poems of Nature" (1886), "St. Gregory's Guest" (1886). Complete works, prose and verse, in 7 vols. (1888–1889), revised by the author.

Whittington (hwit'ing-ton). A town in Derbyshire, England, 9 miles south by east of Sheffield. Population, 9,416.

Whittington, Sir Richard. Born about 1358: died March, 1423. Lord Mayor of London. He was a son of Sir Richard Whittington of Pauntley, Gloucestershire, who died an outlaw in 1360. In 1393 he was an alderman and sheriff of London, and was chosen mayor in 1397, 1406, and 1419. In 1416 he was elected member of Parliament for London. The old legend which depicts him as going up to London to seek his fortune, which he finally achieves by means of his cat, has no foundation in fact; but the phrase "Whittington and his cat" is supposed to be a corruption of the word acat or achat, used in the 14th century, meaning 'trading' or 'barter,' round which the nursery tale grew. There is an Eastern legend of the same nature, which probably affected the form of the story.

Whittredge (hwit'rej), Worthington. Born May 22, 1820: died Feb. 25, 1910. An American landscape-painter, a pupil of Andreas Achenbach in Düsseldorf. He was elected national academician in 1861, and president in 1874.

Whitworth (hwit'wėrth). A village in Lancashire, England, situated on the Spodden 12 miles north of Manchester. Pop., 9,578.

Whitworth, Sir Joseph. Born at Stockport, England, 1803: died 1887. An English inventor and manufacturer, noted especially for his breech-loading cannon and rifles.

Whydah (hwid'ä), or Widah (wid'ä). The chief seaport of Dahomey, Africa, situated on a lagoon near the coast, about long. 2° 5′ E. Population, estimated, 12,000–25,000.

Whymper (hwim'pėr), Edward. Born at London, April 27, 1840: died at Chamonix, Sept. 16, 1911. An English traveler and author, noted as a mountain-climber. He ascended Mont Pelvoux in 1861, and Pointe des Écrins in 1864; made the first ascent of the Matterhorn in 1865 (see Matterhorn); traveled extensively in Greenland in 1867 and 1872; and ascended Chimborazo, Cotopaxi, Antisana, Pichincha, and other mountains in the Ecuadorian Andes in 1880. He wrote "Scrambles among the Alps" (1871), "Travels amongst the Great Andes of the Equator" (1892).

Whyte-Melville (hwīt'mel'vil), George John. Born near St. Andrews, Scotland, 1821: died Dec., 1878. An English soldier and novelist. He was educated at Eton; entered the army in 1839; retired from the army with the rank of captain in 1849; and served in the Turkish cavalry in the Crimean war. Among his novels are "Digby Grand" (1853), "Kate Coventry" (1856), "The Interpreter" (1858), "Holmby House" (1860), "Good for Nothing" (1861), "The Queen's Marys" (1862), "The Gladiators" (1863), "The White Rose" (1868), "Sarchedon" (1871), "Satanella" (1873), "Uncle John" (1874), "Katerfelto" (1875), "Roy's Wife" (1878), "Black but Comely" (1879).

Wichert (vē'ċhert), Ernst Alexander August Georg. Born at Insterburg, East Prussia, March 11, 1831: died at Berlin, Jan. 21, 1902. A German dramatist and novelist. His works include the novels "Das grüne Thor," "Ein starkes Herz," "Heinrich von Planen," "Der grosse Kurfürst in Preussen," and the dramas "Der Narr des Glücks," "Ein Schritt vom Wege," "Die Realisten," etc.

Wichita (wē'chē-tä). A confederacy of the Caddoan family of North American Indians. They formerly lived on the middle Arkansas, in Kansas, and southward to Brazos River in Texas; their present habitat is on the former Wichita reservation, Oklahoma. The confederacy consists of several tribes, of which the principal are the Wichita, Towakarehu, and Weeko. See Caddoan.

Wichita (wich'i-tä). [From the Indian name.] The capital of Sedgwick County, Kansas, situated on the Arkansas River 130 miles southwest of Topeka. It is an important railway center. Population, 52,450, (1910).

Wick (wik). A seaport, capital of the county of Caithness, Scotland, situated on the North Sea in lat. 58° 27′ N. It is an important fishing port (especially for herrings). Population, royal and municipal borough, 2,773.

Wickfield (wik'fēld), Agnes. The daughter of Mr. Wickfield the solicitor, and second wife of David Copperfield, in Dickens's novel of that name.

Wickliffe, John. See Wyclif.

Wickliffites. See Wyclifites.

Wicklow (wik'lō). 1. A county in Leinster, Ireland, bounded by Dublin, St. George's Channel, Wexford, Carlow, and Kildare. It is traversed by a range of hills. Area, 781 square miles. Population, 60,824.—2. The capital of County Wicklow, situated on St. George's Channel 28 miles south-southeast of Dublin. Population, urban district, 3,288.

Wiclif. See Wyclif.

Widdin, or Widin (vid'in). A town in Bulgaria, situated on the Danube in lat. 43° 59′ N., long. 22° 52′ E., on the site of the Roman Bononia. It was formerly an important fortress, and has a flourishing river trade. The Turks were defeated there by the Imperialists in 1689. It was a strategic point in the Crimean war, the Servian rebellion (1876), and the Russo-Turkish war (1877–78); and was successfully attacked by the Servians in 1885. Population, 16,388.

Wide, Wide World, The. A novel by Susan Warner, published in 1850.

Widnes (wid'nes). A manufacturing town in Lancashire, England, situated on the Mersey 11 miles east-southeast of Liverpool. Population, 28,580.

Widow, The. A comedy by Middleton, composed about 1616, printed in 1652, and attributed to Jonson, Fletcher, and Middleton.

Widow Barnaby (bär'na-bi). A novel by Mrs. Trollope, published in 1839. The Widow Barnaby is a vulgar, unprincipled woman, frequently quoted.

Widow Bedott (be-dot') Papers. A series of humorous papers, published by Mrs. Frances M. Whitcher (under the name of Widow Bedott or Priscilla P. Bedott) about 1847.

Widow's Tears, The. A comedy by Chapman, published in 1612. It is vigorous but broad.

Widukind. See Wittekind.

Wied (vēd). A small river in Germany which joins the Rhine at Neuwied.

Wied. A former countship of the German Empire, in the ancient Westphalian circle, lying along the Lahn and in the neighborhood of Neuwied. It gave name to a German dynasty.

Wied, or Neuwied, Maximilian Alexander Philipp, Prince of. See Neuwied.

Wieland. See Wayland Smith.

Wieland (vē'länt), Christopher Martin. Born at Oberholzheim, near Biberach, Sept. 5, 1733: died at Weimar, Jan. 20, 1813. A German poet and author. His father was a clergyman in the Swabian village where the poet was born. In 1750 he went to Tübingen to study jurisprudence at the university. The following year (1751) appeared his first work, the philosophical-didactic poem "Die Natur der Dinge" ("The Nature of Things"). This was followed by other moral writings, among them an "Anti-Ovid." In 1752, at the invitation of the poet and historian Bodmer, he went to Zurich, where the next year he published the poem "Der geprüfte Abraham" ("The Trial of Abraham"). Other poems of this period are "Sympathien" ("Sympathies"), and the "Empfindungen des Christen" ("The Feelings of the Christian," 1755), directed against the Anacreontic poets. In 1759 he left Zurich to take the position of tutor at Bern. The succeeding year, however, he returned to Biberach, where he was given a minor legal position. His writings subsequently exhibit an entirely different tendency from the religious ones of the Zurich period. They are the prose romance "Araspes und Panthea" (1761); a translation in whole or in part of twenty-two of the plays of Shakspere, between 1762 and 1766; the romance (in the manner of "Don Quixote") "Don Sylvio von Rosalva" (1764); "Komische Erzählungen" ("Humorous Tales," 1766); the most celebrated of his novels, "Agathon" (1766–67), the narratives in verse "Musarion" and "Idris" (both 1768). In 1769 he was made professor of philosophy and literature at the University of Erfurt, where he remained until 1772, when he went to Weimar as tutor to the young prince Charles Augustus. He subsequently lived in or near Weimar until his death. After his removal to Erfurt had appeared, further, in the same vein as the works immediately preceding, "Die Grazien" ("The Graces"), prose and verse (1770), and the narrative poem "Der neue Amadis" ("The New Amadis," 1771). With his establishment at Erfurt begins a third and more serious period in his literary work. The first production in the new direction was the prose romance "Der goldene Spiegel" ("The Golden Mirror," 1772). The following year, in Weimar, he started a quarterly literary magazine, "Der teutsche Mercur" ("The German Mercury"), which was successfully continued until 1810. In it appeared the satirical romance "Die Abderiten" ("The Abderites," 1774), and the best-known of his poems, the epic "Oberon," which was published in 1780. Among his other works may particularly be mentioned the poems "Gandalin" (1776), "Geron der Adeliche" ("Geron the Noble," 1777), and "Clelia und Sinibald"; the operas "Alceste" and "Hercules"; and the sequel to "The Golden Mirror," the novel "Der Danischmend," published in 1775. His collected works were published under his own supervision, 1794–1802, in 39 vols. with 6 supplements. Subsequently his complete works were published at Leipsic, 1818–28, in 53 vols.

Wien (vēn). The German name of Vienna.

Wiener-Neustadt (vē'ner-noi'stät). A town in Lower Austria, situated on the Fischa 27 miles south by west of Vienna. It has manufactures of locomotives, etc. Formerly it was a favorite Austrian princely residence. It was conquered by Matthias Corvinus in 1486, and was unsuccessfully besieged by the Turks in 1529 and 1683. It was the birthplace of Maximilian I., and contains the ducal castle of the Babenbergs. Population, 32,869, (1910).

Wieniawski (vē-nē-of'skē), Henri. Born at Lublin, July 10, 1835: died at Moscow, April 2 (March 31), 1880. A Polish composer and noted violinist.

Wiertz (vērts), Antoine Joseph. Born at Dinant, Belgium, Feb. 22, 1806: died at Brussels, June 18, 1865. A Belgian historical painter. He studied at Antwerp, Paris, and Rome, and in 1848 settled at Brussels, where the government built for him a large studio, now the Musée Wiertz, containing his paintings which he would not sell. Among his works are "Contest for the Body of Patroclus," "Revolt of the Angels," "The Orphans," "Carnival at Rome," "Triumph of Christ," and "Napoleon in Hell." He wrote a "Eulogy on Rubens" (1840), and a "Memoir on Flemish Painting."

Wiesbaden (vēs'bä-den). The capital of the governmental district of Wiesbaden, in the province of Hesse-Nassau, Prussia, situated on the slope of the Taunus Wald, 3 miles from the Rhine and 6 miles north by west of Mainz. It is famous for its hot springs, and is frequented annually by about 150,000 visitors. It was known in Roman times, and was the capital of Nassau. It has been notorious as a gambling resort. Population, commune, 109,013, (1910).

Wife, The. A play by James Sheridan Knowles, brought out in 1833. Charles Lamb wrote the prologue and epilogue.

Wife for a Month, A. A play by Fletcher, acted some time before 1624, printed in 1647.

Wife of Bath's Tale, The. One of Chaucer's "Canterbury Tales." It is that of a hag who returns to her original form of a lovely lady when a knight is found courageous enough to marry her. The prologue owes numerous passages to Jerome's treatise against Jovinian who argued against celibacy, and was modernized by Pope. Dryden modernized the tale and changed it unwarrantably. Variants and analogues of this tale are known in Sanskrit, Turkish, Kaffir, Gaelic, and Icelandic, in the Gawaine division of the Arthurian cycle, and in Gower's "Florentius" ("Confessio Amantis," i.), which is no doubt from a French original.

Wigan (wig'an). A town in Lancashire, England, situated on the Douglas 18 miles northeast of Liverpool. It has coal-mines, cotton manufactures, foundries, furnaces, manufactures of nails, etc. It was the scene of Parliamentary victories in 1643 and 1651. Population, 89,171, (1911).

Wigglesworth (wig'lz-wėrth), Michael. Born in England, 1631: died at Malden, Mass., June 10, 1705. An American clergyman and poet, pastor at Malden from 1656: best known for his poem "The Day of Doom" (1662). He wrote also "God's Controversy with New England" (?), "Meat out of the Eater."

Wight (wit), Isle of. [L. Vectis.] An island in the English Channel, belonging to Hampshire, England, separated from the mainland by the channels of Solent and Spithead. It is traversed by a range of chalk downs, and is noted for picturesque scenery. The capital is Newport. The island contains Cowes, Ryde, Ventnor, Shanklin, and other watering-places, Carisbrooke Castle (place of confinement of Charles I.), Osborne (villa of Queen Victoria), and Farringford (residence of Tennyson). Length, 23 miles. Area, 145 square miles. Population, 82,418.

Wigton (wig'ton). A town in Cumberland, England, 11 miles west-southwest of Carlisle. Population, 3,692.

Wigtown (wig'ton), or Wigton. 1. A maritime county in Scotland, in the southwestern extremity, bounded by Ayr, Kirkcudbright, Wigtown Bay, the Irish Sea, and the North Channel. It is an important dairy county, part of the ancient Galloway. Area, 486 square miles. Population, (civil co.), 32,683.—2. A royal burgh, capital of the county of Wigtown, situated on Wigtown Bay in lat. 54° 52′ N. Population, 1,329.

Wigtown Bay. An arm of the Irish Sea, between the counties of Kirkcudbright and Wigtown.

Wilberforce (wil'bėr-fôrs), Robert Isaac. Born 1802: died 1857. An English clergyman and author, son of William Wilberforce. He wrote "The Five Empires" (1841), "History of Erastianism" (1851), and works on the incarnation, baptism, the eucharist, etc.

Wilberforce, Samuel. Born at Clapham, near London, Sept. 7, 1805: killed by a fall from his horse near Dorking, England, July 19, 1873. An English prelate, bishop of Winchester: third son of William Wilberforce. In 1826 he graduated at Oxford (Oriel College); in 1830 became rector of Brightstone, Isle of Wight; in 1841 was appointed chaplain to the Prince Consort; and in 1845 became bishop of Oxford. In 1869 he was appointed bishop of Winchester. Though a High-churchman, he did not join the Oxford movement; but several members of his family went over to the Church of Rome. His cleverness and persuasiveness of speech and manner gained him the nickname of "Soapy Sam," which he explained as due to the fact that he was "often in hot water, and always came out with clean hands." He published, with his brother, a life of his father (1838), and his correspondence (1840). He wrote "Note-Book of a Country Clergyman" (1835), "Agathos" (1840), "History of the Protestant Episcopal Church of America" (1844), etc.

Wilberforce, William. Born at Hull, England, Aug. 24, 1759: died at London, July 29, 1833. An English philanthropist, statesman, and orator: famous as an opponent of the slave-trade. His family held the manor of Wilberfoss in the East Riding, Yorkshire. He graduated at Cambridge (St. John's College), and in 1780 became member of Parliament for Hull. He was intimately associated with William Pitt. About 1787 he met Thomas Clarkson, and began to agitate the slavery question with the support of Pitt, who, in 1788, in the absence of Wilberforce, introduced the question in Parliament. In 1792 Wilberforce carried in the House of Commons a measure for gradual abolition, which was thrown out by the Lords. Immediate abolition was secured in 1807. The Emancipation Bill was passed in 1833, a month after the death of Wilberforce. He wrote "A Practical View of the Prevailing Religious System of Professed Christians" (1797), etc.

Wilbye (wil'bi), John. An English musical composer. In 1598 he was teacher of music in Austin Friars, London. He published "The First Set of English Madrigals, for three, four, five, and six voices," and in 1608 a second book of the same.

Wilcox (wil'koks), Cadmus Marcellus. Born in North Carolina, May 29, 1826: died at Washington, D. C., Dec. 2, 1890. A Confederate general. He graduated at West Point in 1846; served in the Mexican war; and entered the Confederate service and served in the Army of Northern Virginia throughout the Civil War. He wrote "Rifles and Rifle-Practice" (1859).

Wild (wīld), Jonathan. Born about 1682: hanged at Tyburn, May 24, 1725. An English robber, and receiver of stolen goods: the subject of Fielding's "History of the Life of the Late Mr. Jonathan Wild the Great" (1743) and of a novel by Defoe.

Wildair (wīld'ār), Sir Harry. A gay, spirited man of fashion in Farquhar's "Constant Couple" and in its sequel "Sir Harry Wildair." The part was created by Wilks and afterward played by Garrick, but Peg Woffington played it so brilliantly that the latter resigned it to her.

Wildbad (vilt'bäd). A small town and watering-place in the Black Forest circle, Würtemberg, situated in the valley of the Enz 29 miles west of Stuttgart: noted for its warm alkali springs.

Wild Boar of Ardennes. See Ardennes, Wild Boar of.

Wilde (wīld), James Plaisted, Baron Penzance. Born at London, July 12, 1816: died at Godalming, Dec. 9, 1899. An English lawyer. He was educated at Winchester and at Trinity College, Cambridge; was called to the bar in 1839; and was made a baron of the exchequer in 1860, and knighted. From 1863 to 1872 he was judge of the Court of Probate and judge ordinary of the Divorce Court. In 1864 he was made privy councilor, and in 1869 created a peer of the United Kingdom. He later held many public offices.

Wilde, Oscar O'Flahertie Wills. Born at Dublin, Ireland, 1856: died at Paris, Nov. 30, 1900. A British writer, a leader in the "esthetic" movement. He was a son of Sir William Wilde the oculist, and was educated at Oxford. He has been satirized in "Punch" and in Gilbert and Sullivan's opera "Patience." His poems were published in 1881, and "The Happy Prince, and other Tales" in 1888. He lectured in the United States in 1882. He also wrote "The Picture of Dorian Gray" (1891), and a number of plays, among which are "Vera" (1882), "The Duchess of Padua" (1891), "Lady Windermere's Fan" (1892), "Salome" (1893: in French, written for Sarah Bernhardt), and "A Woman of No Importance" (1893).

Wildenbruch (vil'den-brōĕh), Ernst von. Born at Beirut, Syria, Feb. 3, 1845: died at Berlin, Jan. 15, 1909. A German poet and dramatist of the school of Ibsen. Among his plays are "Christopher Marlow" (1884), "Der Mennonit" (1886), "Opfer um Opfer" (1883), "Die Haubenlerche" (1890), and "Das heilige Lachen" (1892).

Wildermuth (vil'der-möt), Mme. (Ottilie Ronschütz). Born at Rottenburg, Würtemberg,

Feb. 22, 1817: died at Tübingen, July 12, 1877. A German novelist. Among her works are "Bilder und Geschichten aus dem schwäbischen Leben" (1852), "Auguste" (1865), etc.

Wilderness (wil'dėr-nes), Battle of the. A battle between the Federals and Confederates, May 5–6, 1864, in the Wilderness region in Virginia, south of the Rapidan. The Federals (over 100,000) were commanded by Grant (immediately by Meade), and the Confederates (64,000–68,000) by Lee. The Confederate position was partly intrenched. The Federal loss was about 18,000; the Confederate, about 11,000. The battle was followed by that of Spotsylvania.

Wildfire (wild'fir), Madge. In Sir Walter Scott's novel "The Heart of Midlothian," a gipsy's daughter who becomes insane after having been seduced and deserted by George Robertson.

Wildgoose Chase, The. A comedy by Fletcher, produced first at court in 1621, printed in 1652. The play was very popular: part of Farquhar's "Inconstant" is taken from it.

Wildhorn (vilt'horn). A peak of the Bernese Alps, on the border between the cantons of Bern and Valais, Switzerland, 10 miles north of Sion. Height, 10,706 feet.

Wild Huntsman, The. [G. Der wilde Jäger.] A spectral hunter in folk-lore, especially in German folk-lore: the subject of a ballad by Bürger.

Wilding (wil'ding). 1. The principal character in Shirley's "Gamester," played by Garrick in his version "The Gamesters."—2. "The liar" in Foote's play of that name.

Wild Oats. A comedy or farce by O'Keefe, brought out in 1791.

Wildstrubel (vilt'strö-bel). A summit of the Bernese Alps, in Switzerland, north of Sierre and west of the Gemmi Pass. Height, 10,679 feet.

Wilfrid (wil'frid), Saint. Born about 634: died 709. An English prelate. He took a leading part on the Roman side at the Synod of Whitby in 664, and was made archbishop of York in 665. He was several times driven from his see and restored, and finally retained Ripon and Hexham.

Wilhelm (vil'helm). See William.

Wilhelmina (vil-hel-mē'nä) I. (Wilhelmina Helena Paulina Maria). Born Aug. 31, 1880. Queen of the Netherlands. She is the daughter of William III. and his second wife, Emma, daughter of Prince George Victor of Waldeck and Pyrmont. She succeeded to the throne upon the death of her father, Nov. 23, 1890, but her mother acted as queen regent until she became of age, Aug. 31, 1898. On Feb. 7, 1901, she married Duke Henry of Mecklenburg-Schwerin.

Wilhelmine (vil-hel-mē'ne), Friederike Sophie; Princess, Margravine of Bayreuth. Born 1709: died 1758. The favorite sister of Frederick the Great. She married the Margrave of Bayreuth in 1731, and wrote "Denkwürdigkeiten" (published in 1810).

Wilhelmj (vil-hel'mi), August. Born at Usingen, Nassau, Sept. 21, 1845: died at London, Jan. 22, 1908. A German composer and noted violinist.

Wilhelm Meister's Lehrjahre (vil'helm mis'-terz lār'yär-e). [G., 'William Meister's Apprenticeship' (lit. 'years of learning').] A novel by Goethe, published 1795–96. Its sequel, "Wilhelm Meister's Wanderjahre" (travels, literally 'years of wandering'), was not published till 1821–29. The "Lehrjahre" was begun in 1777.

Wilhelmshaven, or Wilhelmshafen (vil'-helms-hä-fen). A seaport in the province of Hannover, Prussia, situated on the Jade Bay of the North Sea, and surrounded on other sides by Oldenburg. It is the chief German naval station on the North Sea. It has a large dockyard, a harbor built 1855–69, and a new harbor for ships in commission. Population, commune, 26,012.

Wilhelmshöhe (vil'helms-hē-e). [G., 'William's height.'] A place three miles from Cassel, Germany. Its castle, the former residence of the landgraves, was the place of imprisonment of Napoleon III. after Sedan.

Wilhelm Tell (vil'helm tel). A drama by Schiller, first acted at Weimar in 1804.

Wilibald, Alexis. A pseudonym of Wilhelm Häring.

Wilken (vil'ken), Friedrich. Born 1777: died 1840. A German historian. His chief work is "Geschichte der Kreuzzüge" ("History of the Crusades," 1807–32).

Wilkes (wilks), Charles. Born in New York city, 1801: died at Washington, D. C., Feb. 8, 1877. An American admiral, explorer, and scientist. He entered the navy in 1818; became lieutenant in 1826; commanded an exploring expedition, 1838–42, which visited South America, the Samoan, Fiji, Hawaiian, and other islands in the Pacific, the antarctic regions, the western coast of North America, etc.; became commander in 1843, and captain in 1855; in command of the San Jacinto intercepted the British steamer Trent, Nov. 8, 1861, and took prisoner the Confederate commissioners Mason and Slidell (an act disavowed later by the United States government: see Trent Affair); and became commodore in 1862, and admiral in 1866. He wrote a "Narrative" of his expedition (6 vols. 1845), volumes on the meteorology and hydrography of the expedition, "Western America, etc." (1849). See Century Atlas, Map 33.

Wilkes, John. Born at London, Oct. 17, 1727: died there, March 2, 1797. An English politician, publicist, and political agitator. He was educated at the University of Leyden; entered Parliament in 1757; and established the "North Briton" in 1762, in which he attacked the Bute ministry. For his No. 45, criticizing George III. (1763), he was imprisoned, but was soon released, and became a popular hero. A scandalous "Essay on Woman," printed for private circulation, was seized, and Wilkes was expelled from Parliament (1764). He went to France; was tried in his absence; and was outlawed for non-appearance. In 1768 he returned, and was elected for Middlesex; was imprisoned; and was expelled from Parliament (1769). He was several times reelected, but each time declared ineligible. In 1770 he was released and elected alderman of London. In 1771 he became sheriff, and in 1774 lord mayor. In the same year he was again elected to Parliament and allowed to take his seat, remaining a member until 1790. The resolutions invalidating his former elections were expunged in 1782.

Wilkes-Barre (wilks'bar-e). The capital of Luzerne County, Pennsylvania, situated in the valley of Wyoming, on the North Branch of the Susquehanna, 97 miles north-northwest of Philadelphia. It is the center of a region of mines of anthracite coal, and has manufactures of machinery, etc. It was settled about 1770. Population, 67,105, (1910).

Wilkie (wil'ki), Sir David. Born at Cults, Fifeshire, Scotland, Nov. 18, 1785: died at sea off Gibraltar, June 1, 1841. A noted Scottish genre-painter. He studied painting at Edinburgh; settled in London in 1805; became a royal academician in 1811; traveled on the Continent, especially 1825–28; became royal painter in ordinary in 1830; was knighted in 1836.

Wilkinsaga. A collection of medieval Norwegian legends relating to Dietrich of Bern and others.

Wilkins (wil'kinz), John. Born in Northamptonshire, 1614: died Nov. 19, 1672. An English divine and scientist, bishop of Chester. He graduated at Oxford (Magdalen Hall) in 1631, and in 1659 became master of Trinity College, Cambridge. He assisted in founding the Royal Society. He published "Discovery of a World in the Moone" (1638), "Discourse Concerning a New Planet" (1640), "Mercury, or the Secret Messenger" (1641), "Mathematical Magic" (1648), "Essay toward a Real Character and a Philosophical Language" (1668), "Principles and Duties of Natural Religion" (1675).

Perhaps the works of the celebrated Bishop Wilkins tended more than any others to the diffusion of the Copernican system in England, since even their extravagancies drew a stronger attention to them. In 1638, when he was only twenty-four years old, he published a book entitled "The Discovery of a New World; or, a Discourse tending to prove that it is probable there may be another habitable World in the Moon; with a Discourse concerning the possibility of a passage thither." The latter part of his subject was, of course, an obvious mark for the sneers and witticisms of critics. Two years afterwards, in 1640, appeared his "Discourse concerning a new Planet; tending to prove it is probable our Earth is one of the Planets": in which he urged the reasons in favour of the heliocentric system, and explained away the opposite arguments.

★ Whewell, Ind. Sciences, I. 390.

Wilkins, Mary Eleanor (Mrs. Charles Manning Freeman). A contemporary American writer. She is principally noted as an exponent of New England life and character. Among her works are "A Humble Romance" (1887), "The Pot of Gold and Other Stories" (1892), "Young Lucretia and Other Stories" (1892), "Jane Field" (1892), "Giles Corey, Yeoman," a play (1893), "Pembroke" (1894), "The Portion of Labor" (1901), "The Givers" (1904), "The Debtor" (1905), etc.

Wilkins, William. Born Dec. 20, 1779: died June 23, 1865. An American politician. He was Democratic United States senator from Pennsylvania 1831–34; received the electoral votes of Pennsylvania for Vice-President in 1832; was United States minister to Russia 1834–35; was member of Congress from Pennsylvania 1843–44; and was secretary of war 1844–45.

Wilkinson (wil'kin-son), James. Born at Benedict, Maryland, 1757: died near the city of Mexico, Dec. 28, 1825. An American general and politician. He served in the Revolutionary War in Canada and at Saratoga, attaining the rank of brevet brigadier-general; became secretary of the board of war; was in the Conway Cabal; engaged in trade in the Mississippi valley; attempted treasonably to detach Kentucky from the Union and ally it with Spain; served in the Indian wars, and commanded the right wing in Wayne's victory of Maumee in 1794; became a brigadier-general in 1792; succeeded Wayne as commander-in-chief of the army; was appointed commissioner to receive Louisiana from the French; and was governor of Louisiana 1805–06. He was implicated in Burr's conspiracy, and was court-martialed in 1811, but acquitted. In 1813 he became major-general. He failed as commander in the operations against Canada; was acquitted by a court of inquiry in 1815; but was discharged from the service. He wrote "Memoirs" (1816).

Wilkinson, Jemima. Born in Rhode Island about 1753: died 1819. An American religious impostor. She asserted that she had been raised from the dead, and founded a short-lived sect.

Wilkinson, Sir John Gardner. Born at Hardendale, Westmoreland, Oct. 5, 1797: died Oct. 29, 1875. An English Egyptologist. He was educated at Oxford (Exeter College), and from 1821 spent many years in Egypt in archæological explorations. His works include "Manners and Customs of the Ancient Egyptians" (1837–41), "Materia Hieroglyphica" (1828), "Topography of Thebes and General View of Egypt" (1835), "Modern Egypt and Thebes" (1843: later reissued as "Hand-Book for Travellers in Modern Egypt"), "Dalmatia and Montenegro" (1848), "Architecture of Ancient Egypt" (1850), "Popular Account of the Ancient Egyptians" (1854), "The Egyptians in the Time of the Pharaohs" (1857), etc.

Wilkinson (wil'kin-son), Tate. Born in 1739: died in 1803. An English actor. He was a pupil and associate of Foote, and a noted mimic. He played with success in London and Dublin, but preferred the provinces. After a time he grew weary of his wandering life, and bought the leaseeship of the York circuit, which he conducted for more than thirty years. Many actors and actresses who were afterward successful on the London stage owed their first encouragement to him: among others Kemble, Fawcett, the elder Mathews, Mrs. Jordan, and Mrs. Siddons.

Willamette (wil-ä'met) River. A river in western Oregon, formed by the Middle Fork and McKenzie Fork. It joins the Columbia north of Portland. On it are Salem and Portland. Length, about 250 miles; navigable to the falls at Oregon City, and above them to Eugene City.

Willard, Edward S. Born in Wales, 1850. An English actor. He appeared in the United States in 1890 and later, and has been successful in "Judah," "The Middleman," "The Professor's Love-story," etc.

Willard, Frances Elizabeth. Born near Rochester, N. Y., Sept. 28, 1839: died at New York, Feb. 18, 1898. An American temperance reformer, editor, and author. She was secretary in 1874 and president in 1879 of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, and editor in 1879 of the Chicago "Evening Post." In 1883 she made a journey through the Southern States, founding branches of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union. In 1884 she was one of the organizers of the Prohibition Party. In 1887 she was president of the Women's Council of the United States. She wrote "Women and Temperance" (1883), "How to Win" (1886), "Glimpses of Fifty Years" (1889), etc.

Willcox (wil'koks), Orlando Bolivar. Born at Detroit, Mich., April 16, 1823: died at Coburg, Ontario, May 10, 1907. An American general. He graduated at West Point in 1847; became colonel in May, 1861; commanded a brigade at Bull Run, and was wounded and captured; was a division commander in the Army of the Potomac (9th corps); and received the surrender of Petersburg in 1865. In 1864 he was brevetted major-general of volunteers, and in 1866 was mustered out and was recommissioned in the same year in the regular army; was brevetted brigadier-general and major-general in 1867; was commander of various posts and departments; and became brigadier-general in 1880. He retired in 1887.

Willems (vil'lemz), Florent. Born Jan. 8, 1823: died Oct. 23, 1905. A Belgian genre-painter. He studied at the Mechlin Academy, and settled in Paris in 1844. Among his pictures are "Visit to a Young Mother," "Woman and Spinning-wheel" (Kunsthalle, Hamburg), "Adorning the Bride" (Brussels Museum).

Willenhall (wil'en-hâl). A town in Staffordshire, England, 12 miles northwest of Birmingham. Population, 18,515.

Willesden (wil'ez-den). A suburb of London, in Middlesex, 7 miles west-northwest of St. Paul's. Population, 114,815.

Willett (wil'et), Marinus. Born at Jamaica, L. I., July 31, 1740: died at New York, Aug. 22, 1830. An American Revolutionary officer. He served in Canada at Fort Stanwix, against the Indians, etc.; and later was mayor of New York. His "Narrative" was published in 1831.

Willey (wil'i), Mount. A mountain on one side of the Crawford Notch, White Mountains, New Hampshire, 4,261 feet high. A landslide in 1826 overwhelmed the inhabitants of the Willey House at its foot.

William (wil'yam). A country fellow in love with Audrey: a character in Shakspere's "As you Like it."

William (wil'yam) I., surnamed "The Conqueror," "The Norman," and "The Bastard." [ME. William, OF. Willalme, Villalme, Guillaume, F. Guillaume, Sp. Guillermo, Pg. Guilherme, It. Guglielmo, ML. Guilielmus, Guillelmus, Guillermus, Gulielmus, D. Willem, from OHG. Willahelm, Willihelm, MHG. Willehelm, Wilhelm, G. Wilhelm, helm of resolution, an epithet of a warrior.] Born at Falaise, Normandy, in 1027 or 1028: died at St.-Gervais, near Rouen, Sept. 9, 1087. King of England 1066–87. He was the natural son of Robert, duke of Normandy, and Herleva, daughter of Fulbert, a tanner of Falaise. He succeeded to the duchy on the death of his father without legitimate issue in 1035. With the assistance of his suzerain, Henry, king of France, he put down a formidable rising of his vassals in the battle of Val-es-Dunes, near Caen, in 1047. In a war which broke out between Henry and Geoffrey, count of Anjou, the next year, he sided with the former, and took possession of the important border fortresses of Alençon and Domfront. He visited, in 1051, his childless kinsman Edward the Confessor, from whom he afterward claimed to have received a promise of the succession to the English throne. In 1053 he married Matilda of Flanders, a descendant of Alfred. He repelled an invasion by the allied armies of Henry, Geoffrey of Anjou, and Theobald of Blois at Mortemer in 1054. Soon after he exacted the homage of Geoffrey of Anjou, and in 1058, by the victory of Varaville, repelled a second invasion headed by the French king. In 1063 he acquired Maine, which extended his southern frontier almost to the Loire. Probably in 1064, Harold, earl of Wessex, was shipwrecked on the coast of Normandy and fell into the hands of William, who compelled him to take an oath whereby he bound himself to assist the duke in obtaining the succession in England (see Harold II., king of the English). Edward died Jan. 5, 1066, and Harold, in defiance of the oath, procured his own election by the witan. William, on the other hand, obtained a bull from Pope Alexander II., which declared him to be the rightful heir to the throne; landed at Pevensey Sept. 28; overthrew Harold (who fell in the battle) at Senlac or Hastings, Oct. 14; and was crowned at Westminster Dec. 25, 1066. But the conquest of England was only partial: it was completed four years later (in 1070) by the suppression of the last of a succession of English risings in the north and southwest. William exacted the homage of Malcolm of Scotland in 1072. In 1075–76 he put down a rebellion of the Norman barons in England, which thenceforth remained quiet. The rest of his reign was occupied with almost continuous wars on the Continent against the King of France and rebellious vassals, and with quarrels with members of his own family, especially with his son Robert, who headed a revolt in Normandy 1077–80, and with his half-brother Odo, bishop of Bayeux, who was imprisoned on account of his intrigues. William died of internal injuries received from the plunging of his horse in the burning cinders in the town of Mantes, which he had captured while engaged with Philip of France in a war concerning Vexin. William made few changes in the English law: indeed, he renewed, with some additions, the "law of Edward the Confessor." However, his introduction of continental feudalism was destined to exercise an enduring social and political influence. He took care to prevent the Norman barons whom he planted on English soil from becoming formidable rivals of the crown, by scattering their estates, by maintaining popular courts by the side of the manorial courts, and by requiring an oath of fealty from all landowners, thereby eliminating an essential and dangerous feature of continental feudalism, the exclusive dependence of a vassal on his lord (Gemot of Salisbury, 1086). He abolished the four great earldoms, which had threatened the integrity of the kingdom in preceding reigns, and restricted the jurisdiction of the earl to a single shire, which became the largest political division, and the government of which was practically exercised by the sheriff, who was appointed by the king. In 1086 he completed the "Doomsday Book" (which see). He also reorganized the English Church with the assistance of Lanfranc whom he appointed archbishop of Canterbury. He separated the spiritual from the temporal courts, and secured the authority of the crown against papal encroachments.

Norman writers, Norman records, the general consent of the age, confirmed rather than confuted by the significant silence of the English writers, all lead us to believe that, at some time or other, some kind of promise of the succession was made by Eadward to William. The case of Eadward's promise is like the case of Harold's oath. No English writer mentions either; but the silence of the English writers confirms rather than disproves the fact of both. . . . The law of England gave the king no power to dispose of a crown which he held solely by the free choice of the Witan of the land. All that Eadward could constitutionally do was to pledge himself to make in William's favour that recommendation to the Witan which the Witan were bound to consider, though not necessarily to consent to. That, when the time came, Eadward did make such a recommendation, and did not make it in favour of William, we know for certain. The last will of Eadward, so far as such an expression can be allowed, was undoubtedly in favour of Harold.

Freeman, History of the Norman Conquest in England, [pp. 299–301.

William II., surnamed Rufus ('the Red'). Born 1056(?): died Aug. 2, 1100. King of England 1087–1100, third (second surviving) son of William I. and Matilda of Flanders. He was the favorite son of his father, to whom he remained loyal when his elder brother Robert raised the standard of rebellion in Normandy. In accordance with the dying request of his father, he was elected to the English throne by the witan, through the influence of Lanfranc, Sept. 26, 1087, while Robert succeeded in Normandy. A revolt of the Norman barons in England broke out in favor of Robert in 1088. William gained the support of the fyrd, or national militia, by promising the repeal of the forest laws, the reduction of taxes, and good government generally to his English subjects, and the rebellion was suppressed in 1090. He carried on a war in Normandy 1090–91 against his brother Robert, who was compelled to accept a disadvantageous peace. He invaded Scotland in 1091, when he exacted the homage of Malcolm III. In 1093 he appointed Anselm, abbot of Bec, archbishop of Canterbury; but presently became involved in a dispute concerning investitures with the new primate, who abandoned the kingdom in 1097. In 1094, during a second invasion of Normandy, he found his brother supported by Philip of France, and secured the safe retreat of his army only by a bribe to the latter. In 1096 he took possession of Normandy as a pledge for funds advanced to Robert, who in that year joined in the Crusade. The duchy remained in William's hands until his death. He conquered Maine 1098–99. He was killed, possibly accidentally, by an arrow shot by Walter Tyrrel, while hunting in the New Forest.

William III. Born at The Hague, Nov. 4, 1650: died at Kensington, March 8, 1702. King of England 1689–1702, and stadholder of the United Netherlands. He was the son of William II., stadholder of the United Netherlands, and Mary, daughter of Charles I. of England, and was styled Prince of Orange before his accession to the English throne. His father died before his birth. As the head of the house of Orange he became the leader of the democratic monarchical party in opposition to the aristocratic republican party headed by Jan de Witt. The invasion of Holland by the armies of Louis XIV. in 1672 caused the overthrow of the aristocratic republican party, and in the same year the office of stadholder, which had been abolished on the death of his father, was restored in his favor. He saved Amsterdam by opening the dikes, and succeeded in forming a coalition against Louis XIV. which compelled that monarch to conclude the peace of Nimwegen (1678). He married in 1677 Mary, elder daughter of the Duke of York who ascended the English throne as James II. in 1685. About 1686 he placed himself at the head of the constitutional opposition in England against the absolute and Romanizing policy of James; and, in answer to an invitation signed by the "seven patriots" (the Earl of Devonshire, the Earl of Shrewsbury, the Earl of Danby, the Bishop of London, Henry Sidney, Lord Lumley, and Admiral Russell), landed at Torbay, Nov. 5, 1688. James fled to France Dec. 22, and William summoned a convention which met Jan. 22, 1689, and settled the crown on William and Mary, who accepted the Declaration of Right, and were proclaimed Feb. 13, 1689. The revolution was effected in England without serious opposition, but James had many adherents in Scotland and Ireland. With the assistance of Louis XIV. he landed at Kinsale, Ireland, March 14, 1689. War was declared against France May 7, 1689; the Jacobite rising in Scotland ended with the battle of Killiecrankie July 27 (N. S.), 1689; and James was defeated in person by William at the battle of the Boyne in Ireland, July 1, 1690. In 1692 occurred the massacre of Glencoe (which see). On his accession to the English throne, William began the organization of the Grand Alliance of the United Netherlands, the emperor, England, Spain, Brandenburg, and Savoy, against France, which was completed in 1690. A victory of the allied English and Dutch fleets over the French at La Hogue May 19, 1692, frustrated a projected invasion of England. William, who commanded the Allies in Flanders, was defeated by Marshal Luxembourg at Steenkerke July 24 (N. S. Aug. 3), 1692. Queen Mary died Dec. 28, 1694: thenceforth William reigned alone. The peace of Ryswick put an end to the war with France in 1697. During the rest of his reign his foreign policy was chiefly directed to preserving the balance of power in Europe by preventing the Spanish monarchy from being united either to France or to Austria. With this end in view, he negotiated the Partition Treaties (which see). When Louis XIV., in violation of treaty obligations, recognized the bequest of Charles II. to Philip of Anjou, William formed the Grand Alliance of 1701, and took the initiative in the events leading to the War of the Spanish Succession (see this title). He died, in consequence of a fall from his horse, before the commencement of hostilities, leaving no heirs. His reign, although disturbed by Jacobite intrigues and the treachery of officials high in station (such as Marlborough), witnessed the rise of England to a position of prominence in European politics, and marks the beginning of government by party.

William IV. Born at Windsor, Aug. 21, 1765: died June 20, 1837. King of England 1830–37, third son of George III. He entered the navy as a midshipman about 1779; was created duke of Clarence in 1789; married Adelaide of Saxe-Meiningen in 1818; became heir presumptive to the throne on the death of the Duke of York in 1827; and in the same year was appointed lord high admiral, an office which he was shortly compelled to resign on account of his arbitrary conduct. He acceded to the throne on the death of his brother, George IV., June 26, 1830. The chief events of his reign were the passage of the Reform Bill and of the Emancipation Bill.

William I. (G. Wilhelm). Born at Berlin, March 22, 1797: died there, March 9, 1888. German emperor (1871–88) and king of Prussia (1861–88), second son of Frederick William III. of Prussia and Louisa, daughter of Duke Charles of Mecklenburg-Strelitz. He served with distinction in the campaigns of 1814 and 1815 against Napoleon; married Augusta of Saxe-Weimar in 1829; became heir presumptive and received the title of Prince of Prussia on the death of his father and the accession of his brother Frederick William IV. in 1840; made himself extremely unpopular on account of his conservative attitude during the revolutionary movement of 1848; took his seat in the Prussian National Assembly in the same year; commanded the Prussian army which suppressed the insurrections in Baden and the Palatinate in 1849; was appointed military governor of the Rhineland and Westphalia in the same year; was promoted to the rank of field-marshal and made governor of the federal fortress of Mainz in 1854; assumed the regency for his brother Frederick William in 1858; ascended the throne of Prussia on the death of the latter, Jan. 2, 1861; appointed Bismarck minister of foreign affairs in 1862; united with Austria in a war against Denmark in 1864 (see Schleswig-Holstein Wars, 2); commanded in person at Königgrätz in the Austro-Prussian war (see Seven Weeks' War) in 1866; and became president of the North German Confederation on the adoption of its constitution in 1867. He commanded the German armies in the Franco-German war 1870–71, being present at Gravelotte and Sedan, and maintaining his headquarters at Versailles Oct., 1870,–March, 1871, during and after the siege of Paris. He was proclaimed German emperor at Versailles Jan. 18, 1871, and returned to Berlin March 17, 1871. He displayed great sagacity in selecting his ministers and generals, as well as firmness in supporting them against opposition; and shares with Bismarck, Von Roon, and Von Moltke the honor of accomplishing the unification of Germany, under the hegemony of Prussia.

William II. (Friedrich Wilhelm Victor Albert). Born at Berlin, Jan. 27, 1859. Emperor of Germany and king of Prussia, son of Frederick III. and Princess Victoria of England, and grandson of William I. He was educated at the gymnasium of Cassel and the University of Bonn; married Augusta Victoria of Schleswig-Holstein in 1881; and succeeded his father as king and emperor June 15, 1888. He immediately displayed his intention to exercise personal control of the government, and in March, 1890, dismissed Bismarck who disapproved of his policy.

William, King of Germany. See William of Holland.

William I. Born at The Hague, Aug. 24, 1772: died at Berlin, Dec. 12, 1843. King of the Netherlands 1815–40, son of William V. the last stadholder. He commanded the Dutch troops against the French from 1793 to 1795, when the Netherlands were conquered by the latter and the house of Orange expelled. In 1806 he served as a general in the Prussian army, and was captured by the French at the battle of Jena. His hereditary territories in Germany (the Nassau lands) were in the same year confiscated by Napoleon. He served in the Austrian army at Wagram in 1809, and afterward lived in retirement at Berlin. He recovered his German territories in 1813. On the overthrow of Napoleon, the Netherlands and Belgium were erected into the Kingdom of the Netherlands by the Congress of Vienna; and, in accordance with its decision, William was proclaimed the first king of the new monarchy, March 16, 1815. At the same time he exchanged his German possessions for the grand duchy of Luxemburg. He was unable to prevent the secession of Belgium in 1830–32. He abdicated in favor of his son William II. Oct. 7, 1840.

William II. Born Dec. 6, 1792: died March 17, 1849. King of the Netherlands 1840–49, son of William I. He served with distinction under Wellington in Spain, and commanded the Dutch contingent in the campaign of 1815 against Napoleon. He married the Russian grand duchess Anne, sister of Alexander I., in 1816. He was sent to Belgium to effect a peaceful settlement on the outbreak of the revolution in that country in 1830; and on Oct. 16 recognized the independence of the Belgians, an act which was repudiated by his father. He subsequently commanded the Dutch army against the Belgians, but was forced to give way before the French in Aug., 1832. He ascended the throne on the abdication of his father Oct. 7, 1840. He granted extensive reforms during the revolutionary movement of 1848.

William III. Born Feb. 19, 1817: died Nov. 23, 1890. King of the Netherlands 1849–90, son of William II. He carried out the reforms begun by his father in 1848, and decreed the abolition of slavery in the West Indies in 1862. In 1866 the Dutch province of Limburg, which since 1815 had constituted part of the Germanic Confederation, was incorporated with the Netherlands, and in the following year Luxemburg was recognized as neutral territory under the sole sovereignty of his house.

William I., surnamed "The Lion." Died at Stirling, 1214. King of Scotland 1165–1214. He succeeded his brother Malcolm IV. In 1174 he invaded England, with the result that he was taken prisoner and compelled to do homage to Henry II.

William I., surnamed "The Bad." King of Sicily 1154–66.

William II., surnamed "The Good." King of Sicily 1166–89.

William I. Born at Lauban, Silesia, Sept. 27, 1781: died June 25, 1864. King of Würtemberg 1816–64, son of Frederick I. (the first king of Würtemberg). He commanded the Würtemberg contingent in Napoleon's Russian campaign, and commanded a corps of the Allies 1813–15.

William, Margrave of Baden (originally Count of Hochberg). Born at Karlsruhe, April 8, 1792: died Oct. 11, 1859. A German general. He commanded the Baden contingent in Napoleon's Russian campaign, and fought with the Allies 1814–15. He represented the house of Baden at the Congress of Vienna, and was commander of the Baden troops 1825–48.

William. Born April 25, 1806: died Oct. 18, 1884. Duke of Brunswick 1830–84, second son of Duke Frederick William. He succeeded his brother Charles, and was the last of the Brunswick-Wolfenbüttel line.

William, Prince, of England. Only son of Henry I. of England, drowned in the White Ship in the English Channel in 1120.

William IV. Born 1532: died Aug. 25, 1592. Landgrave of Hesse-Cassel 1567–92, son of Philip the Magnanimous. He administered the government during the imprisonment of his father by Charles V. 1547–52. He distinguished himself as an astronomer and as a patron of astronomy.

William I. Born at Cassel, June 3, 1743: died Feb. 27, 1821. Elector of Hesse (Landgrave William IX. of Hesse-Cassel), son of Landgrave Frederick II. He furnished Hessian troops to Great Britain in the American Revolution; succeeded as landgrave in 1785; joined the coalition against France in 1792; was made elector in 1803; and was expelled by the French in 1806, his lands becoming part of the kingdom of Westphalia in 1807. He reëntered Cassel in 1813, and was restored by the Congress of Vienna 1814–15.

William II. Born July 28, 1777: died Nov. 20, 1847. Elector of Hesse 1821–47, son of the elector William I. He served in the Prussian army against Napoleon. He was forced to grant a new constitution in 1831.

William I., surnamed "The Silent." Born at the castle of Dillenburg, in Nassau, April 16, 1533: died at Delft, Netherlands, July 10, 1584. Prince of Orange and Count of Nassau: the founder of the Republic of the United Provinces. He was the son of William, count of Nassau, and Juliana of Stolberg; was educated in the Roman Catholic faith as a page at the court of Charles V.; and inherited the principality of Orange, along with large estates in the Netherlands, from his cousin René or Renatus in 1544. He was appointed commander of the army in the Netherlands and governor of Holland, Zealand, and Utrecht by Charles V. in 1555. He served in the war of Philip II. against Henry II. of France, and negotiated the preliminaries of the peace of Cateau-Cambrésis (1559). He succeeded his father as count of Nassau in 1559. Together with the counts of Egmont and of Hoorn, he addressed a petition in 1563 to Philip II. for the recall of Granvella, the adviser of the regent Margaret of Parma, who was carrying on a bloody persecution of the Protestants. Granvella was recalled in 1564, but Philip II.'s determination to suppress Protestantism and destroy the political liberties of the Dutch remained unaltered, and provoked the organization of the League of the Gueux in 1566. In 1567 Margaret of Parma was succeeded by the Duke of Alva, who came with an army of 20,000 Spaniards and instituted a reign of terror (see Council of Blood, The). William, who had in the meantime resigned his offices and retired to Dillenburg, declined to appear before the Council of Blood and proclaimed his adhesion to the Protestant faith. In 1568 he collected two armies, one of which was destroyed by Alva in East Friesland; the other disbanded for want of funds. He began in 1570 to issue letters of marque to seamen who, under the nickname of "Sea Gueux," played a conspicuous part in the war for independence. He himself continued the war on land, and in 1576 brought about the pacification of Ghent, whereby Holland, Zealand, and the southern provinces of the Lowlands united for the purpose of expelling the Spanish soldiery. This was followed in 1579 by the Union of Utrecht between the seven northern provinces (Holland, Zealand, Utrecht, Gelderland, Groningen, Friesland, and Overyssel), which formally declared their independence of the King of Spain in 1581, and settled the hereditary stadholdership on William. He was assassinated at Delft by Balthazar Gerard.

William, Prince of Prussia. Born 1783: died 1851. Third son of Frederick William II., and brother of Frederick William III.: a commander in the wars against Napoleon.

William of Champeaux. Born about 1070: died 1121. A French scholastic philosopher and advocate of realism.

William of Cloudesley or Cloudeslie. An archer, the subject of an old English ballad.

William of Holland. Born about 1227: killed in battle, 1256. Titular King of Germany. He succeeded as count of Holland about 1234; was chosen king of Germany in opposition to Frederick II. 1247; was crowned 1248; and was acknowledged generally in Germany 1254–56.

William of Jumièges. Lived about the close of the 11th century. A Norman chronicler.

William of Lorris. See Lorris, Guillaume de.

William of Malmesbury. Born about 1095: died at Malmesbury about 1142. An English historian and monk, librarian of the monastery at Malmesbury, of which he refused to become abbot. His chief works are "De Gestis regum Anglorum" ("History of the English Kings") and "Historia novella" ("Modern History"), a continuation of "De Gestis," bringing the history down to 1142 (these books have been the foundation of all the more recent histories of England); "De Gestis pontificum Anglorum" ("History of the Prelates of England"); "De Antiquitate Glastoniensis Ecclesiæ" ("History of the Church at Glastonbury"); lives of St. Patrick, St. Dunstan, St. Wulfstan (from the Anglo-Saxon); several books of miracles; and the "Itinerary of John Abbot of Malmesbury to Rome" (Leland mentions this work, but it is lost).

William of Nassau. Same as William the Silent.

William of Occam. See Occam.

William of Orange. See William I., Prince of Orange, and William III. (of England).

William of Poitiers. Lived in the 2d half of the 11th century. Chaplain and chronicler of William the Conqueror, author of "Gesta Willelmi."

William of Shoreham. Born at Shoreham, Kent, in the last part of the 13th century. An English monk of Leeds priory, vicar of Charl-Sutton in 1320. He translated the Psalms of David into English prose about 1327, and wrote a number of poems.

William of Wykeham. Born at Wykeham in Hampshire, 1324: died 1404. An English statesman and prelate, bishop of Winchester from 1367. He was chancellor of England 1368–71 and 1389–1391; and founded Winchester School and New College in Oxford. In 1404 he finished rebuilding the nave of Winchester cathedral, died, and was buried in the chantry.

William and Mary, War of. In American history, that part of the war between England and France (1689–97) which took place in America, chiefly in the north. Among its events were the unsuccessful expedition against Canada in 1690, and the burning of Schenectady by the French and Indians in the same year. Also King William's War.

William and Mary College. The second oldest college in the United States, situated at Williamsburg, Virginia: chartered in 1693. It suffered in the Revolutionary and Civil wars. Among its graduates were Peyton Randolph, Edmund Randolph, John Marshall, Thomas Jefferson, James Monroe, John Randolph, John Tyler, and Winfield Scott. It has 20 instructors and about 250 students.

William Longsword (lông'sôrd). Duke of Normandy, son and successor of Rolf. He ruled about 927–943.

Williams (wil'yamz), Alpheus Starkey. Born at Saybrook, Conn., Sept. 10, 1810: died at Washington, D. C., Dec. 21, 1878. An American general and politician. He served in the Mexican war; was a division commander in the Shenandoah campaign in 1862; and commanded a corps at South Mountain, Antietam, Gettysburg, and Lookout Mountain, in the Atlanta campaign, and in the march to the sea. In 1865 he was brevetted major-general of volunteers. He was United States minister to Salvador 1866–69, and Democratic member of Congress from Michigan 1875–78.

Williams, Edward. Born at Llancarvan, Glamorganshire, 1746: died at Flemingstone, Dec. 18, 1826. A Welsh poet, known as "the Welsh Shakspere."

Williams, Eleazar. Born at Caughnawaga, N. Y., about 1787: died at Hoganstown, N. Y., Aug. 28, 1858. An American missionary among the Indians. He was the reputed son of Thomas Williams, a half-breed Indian. He believed himself, after an alleged interview in 1841 with the Prince de Joinville (who denied it), to be the dauphin (Louis XVII.), son of Louis XVI., but took no pains to make his claims known. He and his friends asserted that he had been secretly taken from prison and brought to this country when very young. He wrote several works on Indian subjects.

Williams, Elisha. Born 1694: died 1755. An American clergyman, president of Yale College 1726–39.

Williams, Ephraim. Born at Newton, Mass., Feb. 24, 1715: killed in battle near Lake George, Sept. 8, 1755. An American officer. He served in King George's war; built Fort Massachusetts (near Williamstown, Massachusetts); commanded a regiment of Massachusetts troops in the French and Indian war; and fell in an ambuscade. He founded a free school at Williamstown which afterward became Williams College.

Williams, George Henry. Born at New Lebanon, N. Y., March 26, 1823: died at Portland, Oregon, April 4, 1910. An American jurist and politician. He was chief justice of Oregon Territory 1853–57; Republican United States senator from Oregon 1865–71; a member of the joint high commission which negotiated the treaty of Washington in 1871; and attorney-general 1872–75.

Williams, John. Born at Aberconway, 1582: died March 25, 1650. An English prelate and politician. He was lord keeper of the great seal 1621, and bishop of Lincoln (deprived of the former in 1626); was imprisoned for several years in the Tower at the instigation of Laud; and was made archbishop of York in 1641. He supported Charles I. in the civil war.

Williams, John. Born near London, June 29, 1796: killed in the New Hebrides, Nov. 20, 1839. An English missionary in the Pacific islands. He worked in the Society Islands, Hervey Islands, and Raratonga. He wrote "A Narrative of Missionary Enterprises" (1837).

Williams, John. Born at Deerfield, Mass., Aug. 30, 1817: died at Middletown, Conn., Feb. 7, 1899. An American Protestant Episcopal bishop and theologian. He was president of Trinity College 1848–53; assistant bishop of Connecticut in 1851; and bishop in 1865. In 1854 he became dean and instructor of doctrinal theology and other studies at the Berkeley Divinity School, Middletown, Connecticut. He wrote "Ancient Hymns" (1845), "Thoughts on the Gospel Miracles" (1848), "Paddock Lectures on the English Reformation" (1881), etc.

Williams, Jonathan. Born at Boston, 1750: died at Philadelphia, 1815. An American military engineer, secretary to Franklin in Europe, and United States agent in Europe in the Revolutionary period. He became major in the artillery service in 1801, and commander of West Point in the same year; was superintendent of West Point 1802–03; and was chief engineer of the army 1805–12. He built fortifications around New York, including Castle William (Governor's Island), Fort Clinton (Castle Garden), etc.

Williams, Sir Monier Monier-. Born at Bombay, India, Nov. 12, 1819: died April 11, 1899. A noted British Orientalist, professor of Sanskrit in Oxford. His works include a Sanskrit grammar (1846), an English-Sanskrit dictionary (1851), a Sanskrit-English dictionary (1872), grammars of Hindustani, translations of the "Sakuntala" and other Sanskrit works, "Indian Epic Poetry" (1863), "Indian Wisdom" (1875), "Hinduism" (1877), "Modern India and the Indians" (1878), "Buddhism, etc." (1889), etc.

Williams, Roger. Born in Wales about 1604: died in Rhode Island, probably, in March or April, 1683. An English colonist in New England: the founder of Rhode Island. He was educated at Charterhouse School and at Cambridge; took orders in the Church of England, but became a Puritan; arrived in Massachusetts in 1631; became pastor in Salem in the same year, but was driven away for denying the right of the magistrates to punish Sabbath-breaking and for supposed heretical opinions; was assistant pastor at Plymouth 1631–33; and returned to Salem in 1633, and became pastor there in 1634. He again became objectionable to the authorities on account of his political and religious opinions; and was summoned before the General Court in 1635, and ordered to leave the colony. In Jan., 1636, he left Salem and went first to Seekonk, and about June, 1636, founded Providence. He had great influence with the Narraganset Indians, and used it to the advantage of the colonists in the Pequot war. In 1639 he founded the first Baptist church in America, but soon withdrew from all church connections. He went to England in 1643; obtained a charter for Rhode Island colony in 1644; was again in England 1651–54; and was afterward president of the colony. He was an apostle of religious toleration. His works include "Key into the Language of America" (1643), "Mr. Cotton's Letter Examined" (1644), "The Bloody Tenent of Persecution" (1644), "Bloody Tenent Made yet more Bloody" (1652), "The Hireling Ministry none of Christ's" (1652), "Experiments of Spiritual Life and Health" (1652), "George Fox Digged out of his Burrowes" (1676).

Williams, Samuel Wells. Born at Utica, N. Y., Sept. 22, 1812: died at New Haven, Conn., Feb. 17, 1884. A noted American Sinologist. He went to China in 1833 as a printer in the service of the American Board; was in the United States 1844–48 and 1860–61; was Japanese interpreter to the United States expedition to Japan 1853–54; became secretary and interpreter to the United States legation in China in 1855; and was employed in other diplomatic services. He resigned his commission and returned to the United States in 1876, and was later professor of Chinese at Yale. He wrote "Easy Lessons in Chinese" (1842), "English and Chinese Vocabulary" (1844), "Chinese Commercial Guide" (1844), "The Middle Kingdom" (2 vols. 1848; revised ed. 1883), "Syllabic Dictionary of the Chinese Language" (1874).

Williamsburg, or Williamsburgh (wil'yamz-bėrg). A former town on Long Island, now forming a part of the city of Brooklyn.

Williamsburg. An independent city, formerly of James City County, Virginia, situated between James and York rivers, 46 miles east-southeast of Richmond. It is the seat of William and Mary College; and succeeded Jamestown as the capital of Virginia, remaining such down to Revolutionary times. A battle was fought there, May 5, 1862, between a part of McClellan's army (Hooker, Kearny, Smith) and the Confederates under Johnston. Population, 2,714, (1910).

Williams College. An institution of learning situated at Williamstown, Massachusetts: founded by Colonel Ephraim Williams, and chartered in 1793. It is non-sectarian. It has about 60 instructors and about 600 students.

Williamsport (wil'yamz-pôrt). The capital of Lycoming County, Pennsylvania, situated on the west branch of the Susquehanna, 68 miles north by west of Harrisburg. Its most important industry is the manufacture of lumber. The Susquehanna boom is located there. Population, 31,860, (1910).

Williamstown (wil'yamz-toun). A town in Berkshire County, at the northwestern extremity of Massachusetts, 55 miles northwest of Springfield. It is a summer resort, and the seat of Williams College. Population, 3,708, (1910).

William's War, King. See King William's War.

William Tell. A drama by J. Sheridan Knowles. Macready produced it in 1825. Rossini composed an opera on the subject, produced as "Guillaume Tell," in 1829. Several other composers have used the same legend.

Willibald (wil'i-bâld). Born in England about 700: died probably about 786. A missionary in Germany, associate of Boniface: bishop of Eichstädt.

Willibrord, or Wilibrord (wil'i-brôrd), or Wilbrord (wil'brôrd), or Wilbrod (wil'brod), Saint. Born in Northumbria about 657: died about 738. An English missionary, called "the Apostle of the Friesians." He settled among the Friesians about 690, and was consecrated bishop about 696. He also visited Denmark.

Willimantic (wil-i-man'tik). A city in Windham County, Connecticut, situated on Willimantic River 25 miles east of Hartford. It is a railroad center, and has important manufactures of thread, cotton, silk, etc. Population, 11,230, (1910).

Willis (wil'is), Nathaniel Parker. Born at Portland, Maine, Jan. 20, 1806: died at Idlewild, near Newburg, N. Y., Jan. 20, 1867. An American poet and author. He graduated at Yale in 1827; conducted the "American Monthly Magazine" 1829–31; went to Europe as correspondent for the "New York Mirror" 1831; was associate editor, with Morris, of the "Mirror" and "Home Journal"; traveled in Europe and Asia Minor; returned 1837; settled at Glenmary, near the Susquehanna; was in Europe 1844–46; and settled at his country-seat, Idlewild on the Hudson. He wrote "Poetical Scripture Sketches" (1827), "Fugitive Poetry" (1829), "Pencillings by the Way" (1835), "Inklings of Adventure" (1836), "Loiterings of Travel" and "Letters from Under a Bridge" (1840), "Dashes at Life with a Free Pencil" (1845), "Rural Letters" (1849), "Life Here and There" and "People I Have Met" (1850), "Hurry-Graphs" (1851), "A Summer Cruise in the Mediterranean" and "A Health Trip to the Tropics" (1853), "Outdoors at Idlewild," "Famous Persons and Places" (1854), "Paul Fane" (1856), "The Convalescent" (1859), etc.

Willis's (wil'is-ez) Rooms. A later name of Almack's assembly-rooms in London.

Willoughby (wil'ō-bi), Sir Hugh. Born probably at Risley, Derbyshire: died in 1554. An English navigator. He commanded an expedition to the arctic regions 1553–54 (in the ships Bona Esperanza, Edward Bonaventure, and Bona Confidentia). Willoughby and sixty-two companions perished on the coast of Lapland, in winter quarters, probably of scurvy. Richard Chancellor, in the Bonaventure, had parted company with the others in a storm, and so escaped.

Wills (wilz), William Gorman. Born in Kilkenny, Ireland, 1828: died at London, Dec. 13, 1891. A British dramatist. His works include "The Man o' Airlie" (1867), "Hinko" (1871), "Charles I." (1872), "Eugene Aram" (1873), "Mary Queen of Scots" (1874), "Buckingham" (1875), "Jane Shore" (1876), "Ninon" (1880),

"Vanderdecken" (1878), "Olivia," "Nell Gwynn," "William and Susan" (1880), "Melchior," "Sedgemoor," "Faust" (1885), "Claudian" (1885), "A Royal Divorce." He also wrote several novels, among them "Notice to Quit" and "The Wife's Evidence."

Wills, William John. Born at Totnes, Devonshire, Jan. 5, 1834: died of starvation near Cooper's Creek, Australia, about July, 1861. An Australian explorer. He went to Australia in 1852, and in 1858 was made assistant in the magnetic observatory at Melbourne. On Aug. 20, 1860, he set out on the expedition led by R. O'Hara Burke to explore the interior. They crossed the continent, but on their return both Burke and Wills perished.

Will's (wilz) Coffee-House. A famous coffee-house in Russell street, London, named from its proprietor, whose first name was William. It was the resort of gamblers, and of poets and wits, in the time of Dryden, when it was also known as "The Wits' Coffee-House." It was on the corner of Bow street.

Willughby (wil'ŭ-bi), Francis. Born in 1635: died July 3, 1672. An English naturalist, pupil and co-worker of John Ray. He was educated at Cambridge. His "Ornithologia" (1676–78) was edited and translated by Ray, who also published his "Historia Piscium."

Wilmington (wil'ming-tŏn). The capital of New Castle County, Delaware, situated at the junction of Brandywine and Christiana creeks with the Delaware River, in lat. 39° 44′ N., long. 75° 33′ W. It is a railroad and manufacturing center (car-wheels, cars, iron ships, gunpowder, paper, leather and cotton goods, iron, wagons, machinery, etc.). It is the largest city in the State: incorporated 1832. Population, 87,411, (1910).

Wilmington. A seaport, capital of New Hanover County, North Carolina, situated on Cape Fear River in lat. 34° 15′ N.: the chief seaport and largest place in the State. It exports naval stores, lumber, and cotton. During the Civil War it was the chief port for blockade-runners. It was defended by Fort Fisher, which was captured in Jan., 1865. Wilmington was taken by the Federals in Feb. Pop., 25,748, (1910).

Wilmot (wil'mot), David. Born at Bethany, Pa., Jan. 20, 1814: died at Towanda, Pa., March 16, 1868. An American jurist and politician. He was Democratic member of Congress from Pennsylvania 1845–51; introduced the "Wilmot Proviso" (which see) in 1846; was the unsuccessful Republican candidate for governor of Pennsylvania in 1857; was Republican United States senator from Pennsylvania 1861–63; and was judge of the United States Court of Claims.

Wilmot, John, Earl of Rochester. Born at Ditchley, Oxfordshire, April 10, 1647: died July 26, 1680. An English poet and courtier in the reign of Charles II.

Wilmot Proviso. A proviso attached in 1846 to an appropriation bill in the United States Congress, and named from its promoter, David Wilmot, representative from Pennsylvania. The bill was for the purchase of Mexican territory, and the proviso was for the prohibition of slavery in this territory. The bill with the proviso passed the House of Representatives, but failed to reach a vote in the Senate.

Wilson (wil'sŏn), Alexander. Born at Paisley, Scotland, July 6, 1766: died at Philadelphia, Aug. 23, 1813. A Scotch-American ornithologist. In early life he was a weaver; was prosecuted and imprisoned for writing lampoons (in a dispute between the weavers and manufacturers at Paisley); emigrated to the United States in 1794; labored as a peddler, schoolmaster, and editor of an edition of "Rees's Cyclopædia"; and made many pedestrian and other expeditions through the country. He published "American Ornithology" (7 vols. 1808–1813; vols. 8 and 9 edited after his death; supplement by C. L. Bonaparte, 1825), poems (1791), "The Foresters" (1805), etc. His collected works were edited by Grosart (1876).

Wilson, Mrs. (Augusta J. Evans). Born at Columbus, Ga., 1838: died at Mobile, Ala., May 9, 1909. An American novelist. She wrote "Beulah" (1859), "Macaria" (1863), "St. Elmo" (1866), "Vashti" (1867), "Infelice" (1876), "At the Mercy of Tiberius" (1887).

Wilson, Sir Daniel. Born at Edinburgh, 1816: died at Toronto, Aug. 6, 1892. A Scottish-Canadian educator and archæologist, president of Toronto University from 1881. Among his works are "Memorials of Edinburgh in the Olden Time" (1847), "Oliver Cromwell and the Protectorate" (1848), "Archæology and Prehistoric Annals of Scotland" (1851: revised 1863), "Prehistoric Man" (1862), "Chatterton" (1869), "Caliban, the Missing Link" (1873), "Reminiscences of Old Edinburgh" (1878), "The Lost Atlantis" (1892), and poems. He was knighted in 1888.

Wilson, Erasmus. See Wilson, Sir William James Erasmus.

Wilson, Henry (original name Jeremiah Jones Colbaith). Born at Farmington, N. H., Feb. 16, 1812: died at Washington, D. C., Nov. 22, 1875. An American statesman. He was the son of a farm laborer; was apprenticed to a farmer and later worked as shoemaker in Natick, Massachusetts; became a prominent antislavery advocate; was several times representative and State senator; withdrew from the Whig National Convention of 1848, and became a leader of the Free-soil party; was an unsuccessful Free-soil candidate for Congress in 1852; was defeated as Free-soil candidate for governor of Massachusetts in 1853; became United States senator from Massachusetts in 1855, and was three times reëlected, serving 1855–73; and was one of the organizers of the Republican party. He was chairman of the committee on military affairs in the Civil War; and was elected as Republican candidate to the vice-presidency of the United States in 1872, serving 1873–75. His chief work is a "History of the Rise and Fall of the Slave Power in America" (3 vols. 1872–75). He also wrote a "History of the Anti-Slavery Measures of the 37th and 38th Congresses" (1864), a "History of the Reconstruction Measures of the 39th and 40th Congresses" (1868), etc.

Wilson, Horace Hayman. Born at London, Sept. 26, 1786: died there, May 8, 1860. An English Orientalist. He went to India in 1808 as assistant surgeon to the East India Company in Bengal; later held an office in the mint at Calcutta; was secretary to the Asiatic Society of Bengal; became professor of Sanskrit at Oxford in 1832; and was librarian to the East India House, and director of the Royal Asiatic Society. His works include a "Sanskrit-English Dictionary" (1819), "Select Specimens of the Theatre of the Hindus" (1827), "Religious Sects of the Hindus" (1828–32), descriptive catalogue of the "Mackenzie Collection" (1828), "History of British India" (1844–48), a Sanskrit grammar (1841), and essays on Sanskrit literature, the religion of the Hindus, etc. He translated the "Meghaduta" (1813), the "Vishnu Purana" (1840), a part of the "Rig-Veda" (1850), etc.

Wilson, James. Born near St. Andrews, Scotland, Sept. 14, 1742: died at Edenton, N. C., Aug. 28, 1798. An American patriot and jurist. He was a delegate to Congress from Pennsylvania, and a signer of the Declaration of Independence in 1776; a member of the Constitutional Convention in 1787; and an associate justice of the United States Supreme Court 1789–98.

Wilson, James Grant. Born at Edinburgh, 1832. An American historical writer, son of William Wilson (1801–60). He was major, colonel, and general in the Civil War; was one of the editors of "Appletons' Cyclopædia of American Biography"; and since 1885 has been president of the New York Genealogical and Biographical Society. His works include a life of General Grant (1868–85), "Life and Letters of Fitz-Greene Halleck" (1869), "Sketches of Illustrious Soldiers" (1870 and 1874), "Poets and Poetry of Scotland" (1876), "Bryant and his Friends" (1886), etc. He has edited "Memorial History of the City of New York" (1892).

Wilson, John: pseudonym Christopher North. Born at Paisley, Scotland, May 18, 1785: died at Edinburgh, April 3, 1854. A Scottish essayist, poet, and novelist: professor of moral philosophy in the University of Edinburgh from 1820. He was educated at Glasgow and at Oxford (Magdalen College) where he graduated in 1807. He settled at Elleray, on Lake Windermere, but removed to Edinburgh in 1815, and was called to the Scottish bar. From 1817 he was one of the principal contributors to "Blackwood's Magazine." He wrote the poems "Isle of Palms" (1812) and "City of the Plague" (1816), and the tales "Lights and Shadows of Scottish Life" (1822), "Trials of Margaret Lindsay" (1823), and "The Foresters" (1825). The "Noctes Ambrosianæ" (which see) appeared originally in "Blackwood," and the "Recreations of Christopher North" were reprints of magazine articles.

Wilson, Richard. Born at Penegoes, Montgomeryshire, Aug. 1, 1714: died at Llanferras, Denbighshire, May, 1782. A noted English landscape-painter, a pupil of Thomas Wright in London 1729–35. In 1749 he visited Italy and devoted himself to landscape-painting. He studied both Claude and Poussin. In 1756 he returned to England, and in 1768 was an original member of the Royal Academy. He became its librarian in 1776.

Wilson, Robert. Died in 1600. An English actor of Shakspere's time. He was one of the Earl of Leicester's players in 1574, and belonged to the Queen's Company in 1583. He wrote a play, "The Cobbler's Prophecy" (1594).

Wilson, Robert. Born in 1579: died in 1610. An English dramatic writer. He is frequently confounded with the actor.

Wilson, Sir Robert Thomas. Born at London, 1777: died there, May 9, 1849. An English general and author. He commanded the Lusitanian Legion and a Spanish brigade in the Peninsular war; was British military commissioner at the Russian and allied headquarters 1812–14; and was later member of Parliament and governor of Gibraltar (1842–49). He wrote a "History of the British Expedition to Egypt" (1802), an "Inquiry into the Present State of the Military Force of the British Empire" (1804), a "Sketch of the Campaigns in Poland" (1811), "Military and Political Power of Russia" (1817), "Narrative of Events during the Invasion of Russia, 1812" (1860), "Diary" (1861), etc.

Wilson, Sir Thomas. Died 1581. An English statesman and writer. He was educated at Eton and at King's College, Cambridge; was tutor to the sons of the Duke of Suffolk; lived on the Continent during the reign of Mary; and was imprisoned and tortured at Rome on account of alleged heresy in his works on "Logic" and "Rhetoric," but escaped. He was in favor during the reign of Elizabeth, and held various offices; was envoy to the Low Countries in 1576; and became secretary of state in 1577, and dean of Durham in 1579. Among his works are "The Rule of Reason, containing the Art of Logic" (1551), "The Art of Rhetoric" (1553), "A Discourse upon Usury" (1572), etc.

Wilson, Sir William James Erasmus. Born at Aberdeen, Scotland, Nov. 25, 1809: died at Westgate-on-the-Sea, Aug. 7, 1884. A British physician, a specialist in dermatology: first professor of that specialty in the College of Surgeons (the chair was founded by him). He transported at his own cost the Egyptian obelisk to London. His works include "Diseases of the Skin," etc.

Wilson, William Lyne. Born May 3, 1843: died Oct. 17, 1900. An American statesman. He was educated at Columbian College, District of Columbia, and at the University of Virginia; served in the Confederate army in the Civil War; taught for a time in Columbian College, and then practised law in Charlestown, West Virginia; was president of West Virginia University 1882–83; and was Democratic member of Congress from West Virginia 1883–95. As chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means he introduced in 1893 the tariff bill which bears his name. Postmaster-general 1895–97.

Wilson, Woodrow. Born at Staunton, Va., Dec. 28, 1856. An American historian and statesman. He graduated at Princeton in 1879; studied law and practised at Atlanta, Georgia; studied history and politics at Johns Hopkins University 1883–1885; was associate professor of history and political science at Bryn Mawr 1886–88; was elected professor of history and political economy at Wesleyan University in 1888; was professor of finance and political economy at Princeton University 1890–1902, and president 1902–10; and was governor of New Jersey 1911–. He has published "Congressional Government" (1885), "The State" (1889), "Division and Reunion, 1829–89" (one of the "Epochs of American History" series, 1893), "An Old Master, and other Political Essays" (1893), etc.

Wilson Promontory. The southernmost headland of Australia, in Victoria, projecting into Bass Strait.

Wilson's Creek (wil'sŏnz krēk). A small river near Springfield, Missouri. Here, Aug. 10, 1861, the Confederates under McCulloch and Price defeated the Federals under Lyon who was killed in the battle.

Wilton (wil'tŏn). A town in Wiltshire, England, 3 miles west-northwest of Salisbury: noted for the manufacture of carpets. Near it is Wilton House. Population, 2,203.

Wiltshire (wilt'shir), or Wilts (wilts). A county of England, bounded by Gloucestershire, Berkshire, Hampshire, Dorset, and Somerset. It is an agricultural county, and also has important manufactures. It is very rich in archæological material. The chief place is Salisbury. Wiltshire was part of the ancient kingdom of Wessex. Area (ad. co.), 1,350 square miles. Population (parl. co.), 273,869.

Wimble (wim'bl), Will. One of the characters drawn by Addison in the "Spectator": a country gentleman "extremely well versed in all the little handicrafts of an idle man."

Wimbledon (wim'bl-dŏn). A town in Surrey, England, 8 miles southwest of London. Its common was the meeting-place of the British Rifle Association (which now meets in Bisley Common). Wimbledon was probably the scene of a victory of Ceawlin of Wessex over Ethelbert of Kent in 568. Population, 41,662.

Wimborne Minster (wim'bèrn min'stèr). A town in Dorset, England, situated near the junction of the Allen and Stour, 28 miles west-southwest of Southampton: noted for its minster. It was probably the scene of a defeat of the Danes in 851. Population, 3,696.

Wimpfen (vimp'fen). A town situated on the Neckar, 25 miles southeast of Heidelberg, in an exclave belonging to Hesse, between Baden and Würtemberg. Here, May 6, 1622, Tilly defeated the Margrave of Baden.

Wimpffen (vaṅp-foṅ'; G. pron. vimp'fen), Emmanuel Félix de. Born at Laon, Sept. 13, 1811: died at Paris, Feb. 26, 1884. A French general. He was distinguished in the Crimean and Italian wars and in Algeria; suppressed an insurrection on the border of Morocco in 1870; was corps commander in the Franco-German war; succeeded MacMahon as commander at Sedan Sept. 1, 1870; and signed the capitulation of Sedan Sept. 2, 1870.

Winchell (win'chel), Alexander. Born at North East, Dutchess County, N. Y., Dec. 31, 1824: died at Ann Arbor, Mich., Feb. 19, 1891. An American geologist. He was a graduate of Wesleyan University in 1847; taught in various institutions till 1854, when he became professor of physics and civil engineering at the University of Michigan; and was professor there of geology, zoölogy, and botany 1855–73. He held the same position in the University of Kentucky and Syracuse University 1873–78, and a lectureship at Vanderbilt University 1875–78. In 1879 he was made professor of geology and paleontology at the University of Michigan. He was director of the geological surveys of Michigan and Minnesota in 1859. He wrote reports of geological surveys, "Sketches of Creation" (1870), "Doctrine of Evolution" (1874), "The Geology of the Stars" (1874), "Reconciliation of Science and Religion" (1877), "Preadamites, etc." (1880), "Sparks from a Geologist's Hammer" (1881), "World Life: a Comparative Geology" (1883), "Geological Excursions" (1884), "Geological Studies" (1886), etc.

Winchelsea (win'chel-sē). One of the Cinque Ports of England, situated in Sussex, on the English Channel, 7 miles east-northeast of Hastings. Formerly it was an important walled town.

Winchelsea, Countess of. See Finch, Anne.

Winchester (win'ches-tèr). [Welsh Caer Gwent, white castle; ML. Venta Belgarum, AS. Wintecaester.] A city in Hampshire, England, on the Itchen 11 miles north-northeast of Southampton. Its cathedral is a large church exemplifying much of the development of English architecture. The choir, with square chevet and projecting Lady chapel, shows some excellent 13th-century arcading and good Perpendicular work in the clearstory and chapel; but most of the exterior is uninteresting. The round-arched tower at the crossing is low and heavy. The Perpendicular west front, with three portals and a great window, resembles a mechanical copy in stone of a framing of upright beams. The interior presents much that is of interest. The long nave is light and well proportioned, with elaborate English groining. The aisled transepts are of the most impressive early-Norman work. The fine carved stalls are of the 13th century. Among the many interesting tombs is that of Izaak Walton (1683). Winchester was successively a British, a Roman, and a Saxon town. It was the capital of Wessex, and the place of residence and coronation of early English kings, and the seat of early English parliaments. In the middle ages it was noted for its commerce, and was especially famous for woolen manufactures. Winchester School is one of the leading public schools of England. Population, 20,929.

Winchester. Seat of justice of Frederick County, Virginia, in the Shenandoah Valley 66 miles west-northwest of Washington. It was a center of action in the Civil War. Pop., 5,864, (1910).

Winchester, Battle of. 1. A victory gained by the Federals under Shields over the Confederates under Jackson at Kernstown, near Winchester, Virginia, March 23, 1862. Also called battle of Kernstown.—2. A victory gained by the Confederates under Early over the Federals under Crook, July 24, 1864.—3. A victory gained by the Federals under Sheridan over the Confederates under Early, Sept. 19, 1864. The Federal loss was 4,990; the Confederate loss, 5,500. Also called battle of Opequan.

Winchester School, or St. Mary's College. A boys' school, founded in Winchester by William of Wykeham in 1393. It is one of the most important public schools in England.

Winckelmann (vink'el-män), Johann Joachim. Born at Stendal, Dec. 9, 1717: died at Triest, June 8, 1768. A German critic and author, the founder of scientific archæology and of the history of classic art. He was the son of a poor shoemaker. With the assistance of the rector of his school he was enabled to go to the gymnasium at Berlin; and subsequently (1738) studied theology at Halle, where he supported himself by giving private instruction. In 1743 he received a position in the school at Seehausen; in 1748 he was made librarian to the Count von Bünau in Dresden, where he had an opportunity to continue the study of art and archæology, begun at the University of Halle. In 1754 he became a convert to the Roman Catholic Church, and in 1755 was sent by the papal nuncio to Italy. He devoted himself thenceforth entirely to the study of art. In 1764 appeared his principal work, "Geschichte der Kunst des Altertums" ("History of the Art of Antiquity"). A previous work was "Gedanken über die Nachahmung der griechischen Werke in der Malerei und Bildhauerkunst" ("Thoughts on the Imitation of Greek Works in Painting and Sculpture," 1755). For a number of years he was papal antiquary in Rome. In 1768 he set out on a journey to Germany, but in Vienna again turned back for Italy. In Triest he was murdered by an Italian.

Windermere (win'dėr-mēr), or Winandermere, Lake. The largest lake in England, partly in Lancashire and partly on the boundary between Lancashire and Westmoreland: renowned for its beauty. Its outlet is into Morecambe Bay. Length, 10½ miles. Greatest width, 1 mile.

Windisch (vin'dish). [L. Vindonissa.] A village in the canton of Aargau, Switzerland, at the junction of the Reuss and Aare, 17 miles northwest of Zurich: an ancient Helvetic-Roman city.

Windischgrätz (vin'dish-grāts), Prince zu (Alfred Candidus Ferdinand), Born at Brussels, May 11, 1787: died at Vienna, March 21, 1862. An Austrian field-marshal. He was distinguished in the campaigns of 1813–14; quelled the insurrection in Prague, June, 1848; was appointed field-marshal in Oct.; defeated the Hungarians at Schwechat Oct. 30, and took Vienna Oct. 31; occupied Presburg and Raab in Dec., and Budapest in Jan., 1849; defeated the Hungarians at Kápolna Feb. 27; and was defeated at Gödöllö April 6, and removed from his command.

Windom (win'dom), William. Born in Belmont County, Ohio, May 10, 1827: died at New York city, Jan. 29, 1891. An American politician and financier. He was Republican member of Congress from Minnesota 1859–69; United States senator from Minnesota 1870–81; secretary of the treasury in 1881; United States senator 1881–83; and again secretary of the treasury 1889–91.

Wind River Mountains. A range of the Rocky Mountains in western Wyoming. Highest point, Gannett Peak, 13,775 feet.

Winds, Tower of the. See Tower of the Winds.

Windsor (win'zor). A town in Berkshire, England, situated on the Thames 23 miles west of London. It contains a famous royal residence, Windsor Castle, founded by William the Conqueror, extended by his successors, especially by Edward III., and recently restored by Queen Victoria. The castle consists of two inclosed courts separated by the huge round tower or keep. On the lower court or ward face the famous Chapel of St. George and the Albert Chapel (see below). The upper ward is entered by the so-called Norman gateway, which is a pointed arch flanked by cylindrical towers. The east side of the quadrangle is occupied by the king's private apartments, and the north side by the state apartments. The latter contain many fine works of art and historic relics. St. George's Hall, 200 by 34 feet, is adorned with portraits of British sovereigns by the best contemporary masters. The Waterloo chamber or grand dining-room, the council-chamber, and the state drawing-room contain paintings of equal interest. All the paintings in the old ball-room are portraits by Vandyke, among them Charles I. and his family and four portraits of Queen Henrietta Maria. The private apartments are of high interest, and contain one of the most splendid collections of porcelain existing, especially rich in old Sèvres secured during the French Revolution. The gardens and terraces are very beautiful, and the views of the exterior of the castle, embodying long stretches of battlemented walls broken by numerous towers and dominated by the enormous donjon, are unique. St. George's Chapel, founded by Edward IV. in 1474 and finished by Henry VIII., is in a rich Perpendicular style, with double transepts. The interior is very wide and has elaborate fan-vaulting. The choir is bordered by the ornate carved stalls of the Knights of the Garter, adorned with their arms. Over every stall hangs the banner of its holder. At the east end, over the fine reredos, is a great Perpendicular window filled with painted glass in memory of Prince Albert. The Albert Chapel, immediately to the east of St. George's Chapel, was built by Henry VII., and George III. formed the royal tomb-house under it. It was restored by Queen Victoria as a memorial of her husband, and the interior is decorated in so lavish a manner that it forms one of the most remarkable existing examples of such work: it is incrusted with colored marbles, and covered throughout with sculpture, mosaics, gilding, and precious stones. The windows are filled with glass painted with scriptural scenes and subjects from the family history of the Prince Consort, and the fan-vaulting of the ceiling is covered with Venetian mosaics. Toward the east end is a cenotaph of the prince in the form of an altar-tomb. The sculptured and inlaid reredos is by Sir G. G. Scott. The royal mausoleum at Frogmore, near the castle, built by Queen Victoria to receive the body of her husband, is in a modified Byzantine style of architecture, octagonal in plan, surmounted by a lantern, and ornamented with series of arcades. Windsor Forest is near the town. Population, 14,274.

Windsor. A seaport, capital of Hants County, Nova Scotia, situated on an arm of Minas Basin, 35 miles northwest of Halifax. Population, 3,398.

Windsor. A town in Hartford County, Connecticut, situated on the Connecticut 6 miles north of Hartford. Population, 4,178, (1910).

Windsor Beauties. A series of 11 portraits of the most noted beauties of the court of Charles II., by Sir Peter Lely. Ten of these paintings are now in Hampton Court Palace, England: the eleventh, the portrait of Madame d'Orléans, is lost. All are painted in the same style, in three-quarter length, with lightly draped busts, bare-headed with hair in ringlets, and with landscape backgrounds.

Windsor Forest. A poem by Alexander Pope.

Windsor Knights. A body of military pensioners having their residence within the precincts of Windsor Castle. They are now called the Military Knights of Windsor, and sometimes the Poor Knights of Windsor.

Windthorst (vint'horst), Ludwig. Born at Kaldenhof, Prussia, Jan. 17, 1812: died at Berlin, March 14, 1891. A German statesman and lawyer. He was president of the Hanoverian Second Chamber in 1851; member of the Hanoverian ministry 1851–53 and 1862–65; and a prominent member of the Reichstag and the Prussian Landtag from 1867. He was the head of the Catholic Center party and a leading opponent of Bismarck.

Windward (wind'wärd) Islands. 1. The chain of West India islands which extends from Porto Rico to Trinidad. Also called the Caribbee Islands or Lesser Antilles.—2. A colony of Great Britain, in the West Indies, including the islands of Grenada, St. Lucia, St. Vincent, and the Grenadines.

Windward Passage. A channel between Cuba on the west and Haiti on the east. Width, about 60 miles.

Winebrenner (wīn'bren-ėr), John. Born in Frederick County, Md., March, 1797: died at Harrisburg, Pa., Sept. 12, 1860. An American clergyman, pastor of a German Reformed church in Harrisburg. He separated from that church and organized, in 1830, the new denomination of the Church of God, or Winebrennerians.

Winfrid, or Winfrith. See Boniface.

Wing and Wing. A novel by Cooper, published in 1842.

Winged Lion, or Lion of St. Mark. A symbolical lion, represented as winged and holding an open book on which is written Pax tibi, Marce, Evangelista meus, or a part of this. It is the characteristic device of Venice. The full heraldic description requires a sword, with the point uppermost, above the book on the dexter side, and a glory surrounding the whole. The lion also is sejant; but in artistic representations this is continually departed from.

Wingfield (wing'fēld), Edward Maria. Born in England about 1560: died after 1613. An English merchant: one of the first colonists in Virginia (1607), and first president of the colony. He quarreled with his associates; was deposed; and returned to England.

Wingless Victory. See Nike Apteros, Temple of, and Victory.

Winkelried (vink'el-rēd), Arnold von. A Swiss patriot from Stans in Unterwalden, said to have decided the Swiss victory at Sempach in 1386 by grasping all the Austrian pikes he could reach and burying them in his own breast, thus making an opening in the ranks into which the Swiss rushed over his dead body. The truth of the tradition is disputed in modern times.

Winkin de Worde. See Worde.

Winkle (wing'kl), Nathaniel. A member of the famous Pickwick Club, afterward married to Miss Arabella Allen: a character in Charles Dickens's "Pickwick Papers."

Winkle, Rip Van. See Rip Van Winkle.

Winlock (win'lok), Joseph. Born in Shelby County, Ky., Feb. 6, 1826: died at Cambridge, Mass., June 11, 1875. An American astronomer. He was superintendent of the "Nautical Almanac," and was professor of astronomy at Harvard and director of the observatory there from 1866. He conducted a government expedition to Kentucky in Aug., 1869, to observe the solar eclipse, and one to Spain in Dec., 1870, for the same purpose.

Winmore. See Winwaed.

Winnebago (win-e-bā'gō). [Pl., also Winnebagos, Winnebagoes. Winnebago is a corruption of a nickname meaning 'dirty water.'] A tribe of North American Indians, closely related in language to the Teiwere tribes on the one hand and to the Mandan on the other. They are the Puans of the Jesuit "Relation" of 1636. Their name for themselves is Hotcangara, meaning 'first' or 'parent speech.' They reside in Nebraska and Wisconsin, and number over 2,000. See Siouan.

Winnebago Lake. The largest lake in Wisconsin, situated 60 miles north-northwest of Milwaukee. Its outlet is by Fox River into Green Bay. Length, 27 miles.

Winnepesaukee, Lake. See Winnipiseogee.

Winnipeg (win'i-peg). A river in Manitoba which is the outlet of the Lake of the Woods, and empties into Lake Winnipeg. Length, about 200 miles.

Winnipeg. The capital of Manitoba, Canada, situated at the junction of the Assiniboine and the Red River of the North, in lat. 49° 56′ N., long. 97° 7′ W.: the principal city of the Canadian Northwest, formerly called Fort Garry. It is situated on the Canadian Pacific and Grand Trunk Pacific railways. In 1873 it was made a city. Pop., 90,153.

Winnipeg, Lake. A lake in the Dominion of Canada, about lat. 51°–54° N. It receives the Saskatchewan, Red River of the North, and Winnipeg, and its outlet to Hudson Bay is the Nelson River. Length, about 250 miles.

Winnipegoos (win'i-pe-gōs), or Winnipegoosis (win'i-pe-gō'sis), or Winnepegoose (win'e-pegōs), or Winnipigoos (win'i-pi-gōs), Lake, or Little Winnipeg Lake. A lake in the Dominion of Canada, west of Lake Winnipeg, into which it empties. Length, 130–150 miles.

Winnipiseogee, or Winnepesaukee (win'e-pesâ'kē), Lake. A lake in New Hampshire, 25 miles north-northeast of Concord: noted for its beautiful scenery. Its outlet is the Winnipiseogee River, which empties into the Merrimac. Length, 24 miles.

Winona (wi-nō'nä). The capital of Winona County, Minnesota, situated on the Mississippi 97 miles southeast of St. Paul. Population, 18,583, (1910).

Winooski (wi-nös'ki), or Onion (un'yon), River. A river in Vermont which joins Lake Champlain 5 miles northwest of Burlington. Montpelier is situated on it. Length, about 90 miles.

Winslow (winz'lō), Edward. Born at Droitwich, Worcestershire, England, Oct. 18, 1595: died at sea, May 8, 1655. A colonial governor, one of the founders of Plymouth Colony in 1620. He negotiated a treaty with Massasoit in 1621; was governor of Plymouth Colony in 1633, 1636, and 1644; was a commercial agent of the colony, and went several times to England in its behalf; and was appointed by Cromwell commissioner on an expedition against the Spanish West Indies in 1655. He wrote "Winslow's Relation" or "Good News from New England" (1624), "Hypocrisy Unmasked" (1646), "New England's Salamander" (1647), "Glorious Progress of the Gospel amongst the Indians in New England" (1649), "Platform of Church Discipline" (1653), etc.

Winslow, James. Born at Albany, N. Y., 1814: died at New York, July 18, 1874. An American banker.

Winslow, John Ancrum. Born at Wilmington, N. C., Nov. 19, 1811: died at Boston, Mass., Sept. 29, 1873. An American admiral. He entered the navy in 1827, and served in the Mexican war. As commander of the Kearsarge, he defeated and sank the Confederate cruiser Alabama, under Semmes, off Cherbourg harbor, June 19, 1864. He was made commodore in 1864, and later rear-admiral.

Winslow (winz'lō), Josiah. Born at Plymouth, Mass., 1629: died at Marshfield, Mass., 1680. An American colonial governor, son of Edward Winslow. He was for many years assistant governor of Plymouth Colony, and a commissioner of the united colonies; was governor of Plymouth Colony 1673–80; and was general-in-chief of the united colonies in King Philip's war.

Winslow, William Copley. Born at Boston, Jan. 13, 1840. An American Episcopal clergyman and archæologist, founder of the American branch of the Egypt Exploration Fund.

Winsor (win'zor), Justin. Born at Boston, Jan. 2, 1831: died at Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 22, 1897. A distinguished American historian and librarian. He was superintendent of the Boston Public Library 1868–77, and subsequently librarian of Harvard. His works include "Bibliography of Original Quartos and Folios of Shakspere" (1875), "Reader's Hand-Book of the American Revolution" (1880), "Was Shakspere Shapleigh?" (1887), various pamphlets on American history, bibliographies, "Christopher Columbus, etc." (1891), "Cartier to Frontenac" (1894), etc. He edited the "Memorial History of Boston" (1880–82), "Harvard University Bulletin," and a "Narrative and Critical History of America" (8 vols. 1884–89).

Winter (win'tèr), John Strange. The pseudonym of Mrs. H. E. V. Stannard.

Winter (win'tèr), William. Born at Gloucester, Mass., July 15, 1836. An American journalist and poet. He was a graduate of the Harvard law school, and was dramatic critic of the New York "Tribune" 1865–1909. Among his works are poems, including "The Convent" (1854), "The Queen's Domain" (1858), "My Witness" (1871), "Thistledown" (1878), "The Wanderers" (1888), "Poems" (complete, 1880); prose, "Edwin Booth in Twelve Characters" (1871), "The Trip to England," with illustrations by Joseph Jefferson (1879), "The Jeffersons" (1881), "English Rambles" (1883), "Henry Irving" (1885), "Shakespeare's England" (1888), "The Press and the Stage" (1889), "Gray Days and Gold" (1891), "Old Shrines and Ivy" (1892), "Shadows of the Stage" (in three series, 1892, 1893, 1895), "The Life and Art of Edwin Booth" (1894). He has edited "Life, Stories, and Poems of John Brougham" (1881).

Winter, De. See De Winter.

Winter King, The. A name given to Frederick V., elector of the Palatinate, and king of Bohemia through the winter of 1619–20.

Winter Palace. An imperial palace at St. Petersburg, Russia. The exterior, in Renaissance style, has 3 stories and an attic above the basement, and measures 455 by 350 feet. The interior is remarkable for its series of Russian historical paintings and portraits, and for the splendid state apartments. The crown jewels are kept in this palace.

Winter Queen, The. A name given to Elizabeth, wife of the elector Frederick V. ("the Winter King").

Winter's Tale, The. A play by Shakspere, probably produced in 1611. It was founded on Greene's "Pandosto." This and "The Tempest" were probably his last finished plays.

Winterthur (vin'ter-tör). A town in the canton of Zurich, Switzerland, 13 miles northeast of Zurich: one of the chief commercial and manufacturing towns in Switzerland. Burkhardt, duke of Swabia, defeated Rudolf II. of High Burgundy there in 919. Winterthur passed to Hapsburg in 1264; was a free imperial city for a short time in the 15th century; and was acquired by Zurich in 1467. Population, over 22,300.

Winther (vin'ter), Rasmus Willads Christian Ferdinand. Born at Fensmark, Denmark, July 29, 1796: died at Paris, Dec. 30, 1876. A Danish lyric poet. His father was a clergyman. He studied theology at the Copenhagen University after 1815. In 1830–31 he traveled in Italy. After 1841 he lived in Neustrelitz, and subsequently in Copenhagen. The last years of his life were spent in Paris. His first collection of poems was published in 1828. It contains, among others, a number of poems descriptive of popular life in Denmark, afterward published apart in several editions as "Træsnitte" ("Woodcuts"). "Nogle Digte" ("Some Poems") followed in 1835; "Sang og Sagn" ("Song and Story") in 1840; "Digtninger" ("Poems," 1843); "Lyriske Digte" ("Lyric Poems," 1849); "Nye Digte" ("New Poems," 1851); "Nye Digtninger" ("New Poems," 1853). His greatest work is the epic cycle called "Hjortens Flugt" ("The Flight of the Stag"), which appeared in 1855. In prose he wrote "Haandtegninger" ("Sketches"), "Fir Novellew" ("Four Stories"), and "Tre Fortællinger" ("Three Tales"). His collected poetical writings ("Samlede Digtninger") were published at Copenhagen, 1860–1872, in 11 vols.

Winthrop (win'throp), Dolly. One of the principal female characters in George Eliot's novel "Silas Marner, the Weaver of Raveloe."

Winthrop, Fitz-John. Born at Ipswich, Mass., March 19, 1639: died at Boston, Nov. 27, 1707. An American colonial governor and officer, son of John Winthrop (1606–76). He served in King Philip's war; was major-general in the expedition to Canada in 1690; and was governor of Connecticut 1698–1707.

Winthrop, John. Born at Groton, England, Jan. 12, 1587: died at Boston, March 26, 1649. A colonial governor. He was educated at Trinity College, Cambridge, and was admitted to the Inner Temple in 1628. In 1629 he was chosen by the company in London governor of the Massachusetts Bay Colony; arrived in Salem June 12, 1630; and soon after settled in Boston. He was governor until 1634, and again 1637–40, 1642–44, and 1646–49, and was several times deputy governor. He opposed Vane, Anne Hutchinson, and the Antinomians. His journal was published by James Savage as "History of New England 1630–1649" (2 vols. 1825–26). He wrote also "Model of Christian Charity" and "Arbitrary Government Described." His "Life and Letters" were published by R. C. Winthrop (2 vols. 1864–67).

Winthrop, John. Born at Groton, England, Feb. 12, 1606: died at Boston, Mass., April 5, 1676. An American colonial governor, son of John Winthrop. He was educated at Dublin; served against France; traveled on the Continent; emigrated to Massachusetts in 1631 and became governor's assistant; was a leading settler of Ipswich, Massachusetts; founded Saybrook, Connecticut, in 1635, and was its first governor; founded New London, Connecticut; and was governor of Connecticut during nearly the whole period 1657–76. He obtained a charter uniting the colonies of Connecticut and New Haven. He was a fellow of the Royal Society.

Winthrop, Robert Charles. Born at Boston, May 12, 1809: died there, Nov. 16, 1894. An American statesman and orator. He graduated at Harvard in 1828; studied law with Daniel Webster; was a member of the Massachusetts House of Representatives, and its speaker 1838–40; was Whig member of Congress from Massachusetts 1841–42 and 1843–50; was speaker of the House 1847–49; and was United States senator (appointed by the governor as successor to Webster) 1850–51. In the latter year he was a candidate for senator, but was defeated, and was also unsuccessful as candidate for governor of Massachusetts. He was especially noted as an orator. He delivered addresses at the laying of the corner-stone of the Washington monument in 1848, and at the dedication of the monument in 1885.

Winthrop, Theodore. Born at New Haven, Conn., Sept. 22, 1828: killed at the battle of Big Bethel, June 10, 1861. An American author, and officer (of New York volunteers) in the Civil War. He was military secretary to General Butler, with the rank of major. He wrote "Cecil Dreeme" (1861), "John Brent" (1862), "Edwin Brothertoft" (1862), "The Canoe and the Saddle" (1862), "Life in the Open Air" (1863).

Winton, Andrew of. See Wyntoun.

Wintoon. See Wintu.

Wintu (win-tö'), or Wintoon, or Wintun (win-tön'). ['Man.'] The northern division of the Copehan stock of North American Indians, embracing a number of small tribes inhabiting mainly the valleys of the Sacramento and its eastern tributaries in northern California, from Mount Shasta to Stony Creek. Their number is small. See Copehan.

Wintun. See Wintu.

Winwaed. A river near Leeds, England: now Winmore. Here, in 655, Penda, king of Mercia, was defeated by Oswy of Northumbria, and slain.

Winyaw Bay (win'yâ bā). An arm of the Atlantic, on the coast of South Carolina, on which Georgetown is situated. It receives the Great Pedee and Black rivers. Length, about 17 miles.

Wipbach (vip'bäch). The modern name of the Frigidus (which see).

> This river, the Wipbach of our own day, the Frigidus Fluvius of the age of Theodosius, has not only historic fame, but is a phenomenon full of interest to the physical geographer. Close to the little town of Wipbach it bursts forth from the foot of the cliffs of the Birnbaumer Wald: no little rivulet such as one spring might nourish, but "a full-fed river," as deep and strong as the Aar at Thun or the Reuss at Lucerne, like also to both those streams in the colour of its pale-blue waters, and, even in the hottest days of summer, unconquerably cool.
>
> Hodgkin, Italy and her Invaders, I. 160.

Wipper (vip'per). 1. A river in Pomerania, Prussia, which flows into the Baltic 18 miles northeast of Köslin. Length, about 90 miles. —2. A small river in Thuringia, a tributary of the Unstrut.—3. A small river in northern Germany which comes from the Harz and joins the Saale near Bernburg.

Wirral (wèr'al). A district in the western part of Cheshire, England, between the estuaries of the Mersey and Dee.

Wirt (wèrt), William. Born at Bladensburg, Md., Nov. 8, 1772: died at Washington, D. C., Feb. 18, 1834. An American lawyer, orator, and author. He was admitted to the bar in 1792; became a prominent lawyer in Virginia, clerk of the House of Delegates, chancellor to the eastern shore of Virginia, and member of the House of Delegates; assisted in the prosecution of Aaron Burr in 1807; was appointed United States district attorney in 1816; and was United States attorney-general 1817–29. In 1832 he was Antimasonic candidate for President, and received the electoral vote of Vermont. He wrote "Letters of the British Spy" (1803), "The Rainbow" and other essays, "Sketches of the Life and Character of Patrick Henry" (1817), and various addresses.

Wirtemberg. An unusual spelling of Würtemberg.

Wisbeach, or Wisbech (wiz'bēch). A town in Cambridgeshire, England, situated in the Isle of Ely, on the Nen and the Wisbech Canal, 19 miles north of Ely. It has trade by the river Nen. Population, 9,831.

Wisby, or Visby (vis'bü). A town on the west coast of the island of Gotland, Sweden. It contains a cathedral and ruined churches, towers, and walls. It was an ancient Hanseatic port, and important commercially until its sack by Waldemar IV. of Denmark in 1361. Population, 9,465.

Wisby, Laws of. A code or compilation of maritime customs and adjudications adopted by the town of Wisby, in the island of Gotland, in the Baltic Sea. By the law-writers of the northern European nations it has been claimed that these laws are older than the Laws of Oleron; but the better opinion seems to be that they are later, and in some respects an improvement upon them. The code was not established by legislative authority, but its provisions have obtained the sanction of general use and observance from their intrinsic equity and convenience. Sometimes called the Gotland Sea Laws.

Wisconsin (wis-kon'sin). A Northwestern State of the United States. It is bounded by Lake Superior, Michigan (partly separated by the Menominee River), Lake Michigan, Illinois, Iowa (separated by the Mississippi), and Minnesota (nearly separated by the Mississippi and St. Croix rivers). Capital, Madison; chief city, Milwaukee. It is hilly in the north and southwest, and elsewhere generally level. It is an important agricultural and lumbering State; produces wheat, corn, oats, rye, barley, timber, etc.; manufactures lumber, flour, beer, etc.; and has important iron-mines and stone-quarries. Wisconsin has 71 counties, 11 representatives in Congress, 2 senators, and 13 electoral votes. It was early explored by French fur-traders and missionaries (Nicolet in 1634; Radisson, Allouez). In 1787 it was included in the Northwest Territory, and afterward in Indiana Territory; in 1809 in Illinois Territory; and in 1818 in Michigan Territory. Wisconsin Territory was organized in 1836, and was admitted to the Union in 1848. Area, 56,040 square miles. Population, 2,333,860, (1910).

Wisconsin, University of. An institution of learning at Madison, Wisconsin. It was incorporated in 1838 and opened in 1850, and comprises colleges of letters and arts, a law school, a graduate school, a college of engineering, a college of agriculture, and a school of music. Number of students, 4,500. It is coeducational.

Wisconsin River. A river in Wisconsin. It rises in Lake Vieux Desert on the border of Wisconsin and Michigan, flows south and west, and joins the Mississippi near Prairie du Chien. In its course are several cataracts, including the Dalles of the Wisconsin (which see). Length, about 600 miles; navigable from Portage City.

Wisdom of Solomon, Book of the. One of the deuterocanonical books of the Old Testament. Tradition ascribes its authorship to Solomon; but by most modern Protestant theologians it is attributed to an Alexandrian Jew of the 1st or 2d century B. C. The shorter title "Wisdom," or "Book of Wisdom," is commonly applied to this book, but not to Ecclesiasticus. See Apocrypha.

Wise (wīz), Henry Alexander. Born at Drummondtown, Va., Dec. 3, 1806: died at Richmond, Sept. 12, 1876. An American statesman and orator. He graduated at Washington College, Pennsylvania; practised law; was Democratic member of Congress from Virginia 1833–44; was United States minister to Brazil 1844–47; and was elected on the Anti-Know-Nothing platform as governor of Virginia, and served 1856–60. He opposed secession, but followed his State and became a Confederate brigadier-general. He was defeated in the Kanawha valley in 1861, and at Roanoke Island in 1862.

Wise, Henry Augustus. Born 1819: died 1869. An American naval officer and author, cousin of H. A. Wise. He wrote the books of travels "Los Gringos" (1849), "Scampavias" (1857), "Tales for the Marines" (1855), etc.

Wiseman (wīz'man), Nicholas Patrick Stephen. Born at Seville, Spain, Aug. 2, 1802: died at London, Feb. 15, 1865. An English cardinal and theologian. He was professor at Rome; was made bishop in partibus in 1840, and vicar apostolic in 1849; and became archbishop of Westminster and cardinal in 1850. Among his works are "Horæ Syriacæ" (1828), "The Connection between Science and Revealed Religion" (1836), "Lectures on the Catholic Church" (1836), "The Real Presence" (1836), etc.

Wise Men of Gotham, The Merry Tales of the. A book of jests, etc., said to have been collected by Andrew Borde in the reign of Henry VIII.

Wise Men of the East. See Three Kings of Cologne and Magi, 2.

Wishart (wish'ärt), George. Born early in the 16th century: burned at the stake at St. Andrews, March 1, 1546. A Scottish Reformer and martyr. He was schoolmaster at Montrose, and was charged with heresy there about 1538 for teaching the New Testament in Greek. In 1543 he was a tutor at Cambridge. In the same year he went to Scotland with the commission sent by Henry VIII. to arrange a treaty for the marriage of his son Edward (aged 6) and the infant queen Mary. He began and diligently continued to preach the doctrines of the Reformation, and at the instigation of Cardinal Beaton was burned at St. Andrews.

Wishart, or Wiseheart (wīz'härt), George. Born 1599: died 1671. A Scottish bishop. He was deprived of his living for refusal to subscribe the Covenant; was chaplain to the Marquis of Montrose; and was made bishop of Edinburgh in 1662. He wrote, in Latin, a history of the wars of Montrose.

Wishaw (wish'â). A burgh in Lanarkshire, Scotland, 13 miles east-southeast of Glasgow. It has important coal-mines and iron-works. Population, town, 20,869.

Wishfort (wish'fôrt), Lady. A character in Congreve's "The Way of the World": "a mixture of wit and ridiculous vanity" (Hallam).

Wishoskan (wēsh'os-kan). A linguistic stock of North American Indians which formerly occupied the shores of Humboldt Bay (where some still remain) and the lower Mad, Eel, and Elk rivers, California. They are one of the peoples called Diggers (so named from living largely upon roots and from their indolence). Their principal tribes are the Patawat, Wishosk, and Wiyot.

Wisingsö (vē'sing-sē). A small island in the southern part of Lake Wettern, Sweden: a medieval royal residence.

Wismar (vis'mär). A seaport of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, Germany, situated on the Bay of Wismar in lat. 53° 54′ N., long. 11° 28′ E. It has one of the best harbors on the Baltic; contains several Gothic churches and the Renaissance Fürstenhof; exports grain, butter, cattle, and oil-seeds; and has varied manufactures. Formerly it was an important Hanseatic city; passed with its territory to Sweden in 1648; and was pledged by Sweden to Mecklenburg-Schwerin in 1803, with possible reversion to Sweden in 1903. Population, commune, 21,902.

Wismar, Bay of. An arm of the Baltic, on the coast of Mecklenburg-Schwerin.

Wissman (vis'män), Herrmann von. Born at Frankfort-on-the-Oder, 1853: died at Weissenbach, in Steiermark, June 15, 1905. An African explorer and commander. In 1880, as lieutenant, he accompanied Dr. Pogge to Angola, to Lubuku, near the confluence of the Kassai and Lulúa rivers, and to Nyangwe, whence he completed alone the crossing of the continent to Zanzibar (Nov. 15, 1882). In 1884, as chief of a large expedition sent out by Leopold II., he revisited Lubuku, established the stations Luluaburg and Luebo, and descended the Kassai River by boat, thus establishing its navigability (1885). Starting again from Lubuku (1886), he failed in an attempt to discover the sources of the Tshuapa, Lulongo, and Lomami, but reached Nyangwe, followed the Lualaba up to the Lukuga, and made for the east coast by way of Tanganyika and Nyassa (1887). As imperial German commissioner he suppressed the Arab uprising under Bushiri. In 1892 he failed to carry out his plan of taking two steamers to Lake Victoria via Nyassa and Tanganyika. He was the author of "Im Innern Afrikas" (1888), etc. See Century Atlas, Map 109.

Wit at Several Weapons. A comedy produced about 1614, and published as by Beaumont and Fletcher in 1647.

Witch, The. A play by Middleton, produced probably about 1621. It was printed in 1778 from a MS. Shakspere's "Macbeth" was altered by Middleton not long after "The Witch" was acted. A fierce literary war has raged as to the question whether the machinery of the witches was borrowed by Middleton from Shakspere, or vice versa. A. W. Ward.

Witches' Sabbath. A midnight meeting supposed in the middle ages to be held annually by demons, sorcerers, and witches, under the leadership of Satan, for the purpose of celebrating their orgies.

Witchfinder (wich'fīn'dėr), The. A name given to the Englishman Matthew Hopkins, a pretended discoverer of witches about 1645.

Witch of Atlas, The. A poem by Shelley.

Witch of Edmonton, The. A tragicomedy by Rowley, Dekker, and Ford. It was probably written about 1621, produced in 1623, and was printed in 1658. It was founded on a true story, the execution of the reputed witch Mother Sawyer. "The Merry Devil of Edmonton," written about twenty years before and alluded to in the prologue, has no reference to this play.

Witenagemot (wit'e-nä-ge-mōt'). [AS. witena gemōt, counselors' moot.] In Anglo-Saxon history, the great Saxon council or parliament, consisting of the king with his dependents and friends and sometimes the members of his family, the ealdormen, and the bishops and other ecclesiastics. This council, which met frequently, constituted the highest court of judicature in the kingdom. It was summoned by the king in any political emergency, and its concurrence was necessary in many important measures, such as the deciding of war, the levying of extraordinary taxes, grants of land in certain cases, and the election (and in many instances the deposition) of kings.

Witham (with'am). A river in England, chiefly in Lincoln, which flows into the Wash 5 miles southeast of Boston. Length, about 80 miles; navigable to Lincoln.

Witham. A town in Essex, England, 35 miles northeast of London. Population, 3,454.

Wither, or Wyther (wiтн'ėr), or Withers (wiтн'ėrz), George. Born at Brentworth, Hampshire, June 11, 1588: died at London, May 2, 1667. A noted English poet. He was educated at Magdalen College, Oxford. In 1639 he was a Royalist captain of horse in an expedition against the Scotch Covenanters; in 1642 he had become a Puritan and a major in the Parliamentary army; and was afterward made by Cromwell master of the statute-office and "major-general of the horse and foot of the County of Surrey." After the Restoration he was obliged to give up the fortune accumulated in these offices, and was imprisoned by Parliament, but released in 1663. Among his poems are "The Shepherd's Hunting" (1614), "Fidelia" (1615), "The Motto" (1618), "Fair Virtue, or the Mistress of Philarete" (1622), "Hymns and Songs of the Church" (1623), "Emblems" (1634), "Hallelujah" (1641), a satire "Abuses Stript and Whipt" (1613: for which he was imprisoned), and a translation of the Psalms of David.

Witherspoon (wiтн'ėr-spön), John. Born in Haddingtonshire, Scotland, Feb. 5, 1722: died near Princeton, N. J., Sept. 15, 1794. A Scotch-American clergyman and educator. He graduated at the University of Edinburgh; was pastor at Beith and Paisley; became president of Princeton College in 1768; and gave instruction in divinity, philosophy, Hebrew, and rhetoric, etc.; was a member of the New Jersey constitutional convention and provincial congress in 1776; and was a delegate from New Jersey to the Continental Congress, and a signer of the Declaration of Independence. Among his works are "Ecclesiastical Characteristics" (1753), "Essay on Justification" (1756), "Serious Inquiry into the Nature and Effects of the Stage" (1757), "Essays on Important Subjects" (1764), "Considerations on the Nature and Extent of the Legislative Authority of the British Parliament" (1774), etc.

Wits, The. A comedy by Sir William Davenant, produced in 1633, printed in 1636. It was revived after the Restoration, and is frequently mentioned by Pepys.

Witt, De. See De Witt.

Wittekind (wit'e-kind), or Widukind (wid'ō-kind). The leader of the Saxons against Charles the Great. He made a raid into the Rhineland in 778; gained successes in 782; and conducted the war until 785, when he submitted and was baptized. He is said to have been appointed duke of the Saxons, and to have died in battle in 807.

Wittelsbach (vit'tels-bäch). The family name of the former electors of the Palatinate and Bavaria, and of the present royal house of Bavaria.

Witten (vit'ten). A town in the province of Westphalia, Prussia, situated on the Ruhr 37 miles north-northeast of Cologne. It has important manufactures of iron, steel, machinery, glass, etc. Population, commune, 35,841.

Wittenberg (wit'en-bėrg; G. pron. vit'ten-berG). A town in the province of Saxony, Prussia, situated on the Elbe 55 miles southwest of Berlin: famous for its connection with Luther and the early Reformation. See Luther. Among its noted objects are the Schlosskirche (with the graves of Luther, Melanchthon, Frederick the Wise, and John the Constant), the Stadtkirche (with Cranach's "Last Supper"), the Augustinian monastery, Luther's house, Melanchthon's house, statues of Luther and Melanchthon, and the Rathaus. It was the capital of Saxe-Wittenberg, and was long the chief town of Saxony. Its university was founded in 1502, and was united with that of Halle in 1815. Luther nailed his 95 theses to the door of the Schlosskirche in 1517, and burned the Pope's bull in 1520. The town was bombarded by the Imperialists in 1760; was fortified by Napoleon in 1813; and was besieged by the Prussians and stormed Jan. 12–13, 1814. Population, commune, 20,332.

Wittenberg, Concord of. An agreement between Saxon and Swiss Reformers in 1536.

Wittenberge (vit'ten-ber-ge). A town in the province of Brandenburg, Prussia, situated on the Elbe 75 miles west-northwest of Berlin. The Elbe is crossed here by a bridge. Population, commune, 18,501.

Wittenweier (vit'ten-vī-er). A village in Baden, situated on the Rhine near Strasburg. It was the scene of several contests between Bernhard of Saxe-Weimar and the Imperialists in 1637, and of a victory of the former over the latter Aug. 9, 1638.

Wittgenstein (vit'gen-stīn), Ludwig Adolf Peter, Prince of Sayn-Wittgenstein-Ludwigsburg. Born in the Russian government of Perm, Jan. 6, 1769: died at Lemberg, June 11, 1843. A Russian field-marshal. He served in the campaign of 1807; commanded against Oudinot, St. Cyr, and Victor in 1812; was an unsuccessful commander of the Allies in 1813, and was removed after the defeat of Bautzen; commanded a Russian contingent of the Allies 1813–14; commanded the army on the Pruth in 1828, and occupied the Danubian Principalities and Varna; and besieged Shumla unsuccessfully in the same year.

Wittstock (vit'stok). A town in the province of Brandenburg, Prussia, situated on the Dosse 60 miles northwest of Berlin. A victory was gained there (Sept. 24, 1636) by the Swedes under Banér over the Austrians under Hatzfeld and the Saxons under Elector Johann Georg I. Population, commune, 7,574.

Witu (vē'tö), or Wituland (vē'tö-länt). A former German protectorate (English since 1890) on the coast of eastern Africa, about lat. 3° S., near the mouth of the Tana. It was established in 1885.

Witwatersrand (vit-vät'ters-rānd). A hilly region of the Transvaal, west of Johannesburg, containing extensive gold-fields.

Wit Without Money. A play by Fletcher, played not earlier than 1614 and printed in 1639.

Witwou'd (wit'wûd). A character in Congreve's "The Way of the World." "Witwou'd is as diverting as he is original — a man afflicted by a perfect cacoëthes of feeble repartee." Ward.

Wixom (wik'sǫm), Emma: stage name Emma Nevada. Born at Austen, Nevada, 1862. An American operatic singer. Her voice is a soprano. She took her stage name, Emma Nevada, from her birthplace. She made her first appearance at London in 1880, and has sung in Italy, Paris, and in the United States (1884). In 1885 she married Dr. Raymond Palmer.

Wizard of the North. A name given to Sir Walter Scott.

Wladimir. See Vladimir.

Wladislaw (vlä'dis-läv) I., or Ladislaus, Lokjetek. Born 1260: died at Cracow, March 2, 1333. King of Poland 1319–33.

Wladislaw II. Jagello. King of Poland. See Jagello.

Wladislaw III. Born 1424: killed in the battle of Varna, Nov. 10, 1444. King of Poland 1434–44, son of Wladislaw II. He became king of Hungary in 1440.

Wladislaw IV. Born 1595: died May 20, 1648. King of Poland 1632–48, son of Sigismund III.

Woburn (wō'bėrn). A village in Bedfordshire, England, 42 miles northwest of London. Near it is Woburn Abbey, the seat of the Duke of Bedford.

Woburn. A city in Middlesex County, Massachusetts, 10 miles north-northwest of Boston. It has manufactures of leather and of boots and shoes. Population, 15,308, (1910).

Woccon (wok'ǫn). [Pl., also Woccons.] The chief of the North Carolina tribes of the Kataba division of North American Indians: now extinct. See Kataba.

Wodan. The Old High German form of the name of the deity called by the Norse Odin.

Wodehouse (wōd'hous), John, first Earl of Kimberley. Born at London, Jan. 7, 1826: died there, April 8, 1902. An English Liberal statesman. He was lord lieutenant of Ireland 1864–66; lord privy seal 1868–70; colonial secretary 1870–74 and 1880–82, and secretary for India 1882–85 and 1886; lord president of the council and secretary of state for India 1892–94; secretary of state for foreign affairs under Rosebery 1894–1895; and leader of the Liberal party in the House of Lords 1897–1902. He was created earl of Kimberley in 1866.

Woden (wō'den). [Lit. the 'furious,' the 'mighty warrior.'] The Anglo-Saxon name of the deity called by the Norse Odin.

Woerden (wör'den). A town in the Netherlands, on the Old Rhine 20 miles south of Amsterdam. It was formerly a fortress, and was sacked by the French in 1672 and 1813.

Woffington (wof'ing-ton), Margaret or Peg. Born at Dublin, Oct. 18, 1718(?): died at Teddington, March 28, 1760. A celebrated Irish actress, the daughter of a bricklayer. She appeared as Polly Peacham, with a company of children, in "The Beggar's Opera" when only ten years old, and made her first appearance as a mature actress at Dublin in 1737 as Ophelia. Until 1740 she played a wide range of parts there. In that year she made her first appearance at Covent Garden as Sylvia in "The Recruiting Officer." Her success was great, and her singing and the "finish" of the male characters she assumed made the fortunes of the theaters where she played. She lived for some time with Garrick and Macklin at No. 6 Bow street, London, and Garrick was reported to have married her, but without foundation. She attempted to atone for her lack of moral character by her charities, though the almshouses at Teddington said to have been founded by her are of much earlier date. She was seized with paralysis while playing Rosalind, May 3, 1757, and never appeared again. See Masks and Faces.

Mrs. Woffington was the only player who acted Sir Harry Wildair with the spirit and elegance of the original — Wilks — to whom Garrick and Woodward were, in this part, inferior. She was excellent in Lady Flyant, and admirable in the representation of females in high rank and of dignified elegance. Millamant, Lady Townley, Lady Betty Modish, and Maria in the "Nonjuror," were exhibited by her with that happy ease and gaiety, and with such powerful attraction, that the excesses of these characters appeared not only pardonable, but agreeable.

Doran, Eng. Stage, II. 9.

Wöhler (vē'ler), Friedrich. Born at Eschersheim, near Frankfort-on-the-Main, July 31, 1800: died at Göttingen, Sept. 23, 1882. A celebrated German chemist. He was educated at Marburg, Heidelberg, and under Berzelius at Stockholm; became professor at Göttingen in 1836, and pharmaceutical inspector; and was associated with Liebig in many researches. He discovered aluminium, beryllium, and yttrium, and made many other brilliant discoveries and investigations. Besides numerous special papers he wrote "Grundriss der Chemie" ("Outlines of Chemistry," 1831), etc.; adapted Berzelius's "Lehrbuch der Chemie"; and edited the "Annalen."

Wolcott, or Wolcot (wůl'kot), John: pseudonym Peter Pindar. Born near Kingsbridge, Devonshire, England, May, 1738: died at London, Jan. 14, 1819. An English satirist. In early life he was a physician, and was made physician-general of the island of Jamaica. He returned to England and was ordained in 1769, but resumed the practice of medicine in a few years at Truro and other places. He removed to London with John Opie in 1781, and became noted for his coarse but witty satires on George III., Boswell, the Royal Academy, etc. He was blind for some years before his death. Among his works are "Lyrical Odes to the Royal Academicians" (published first in 1782 and afterward every year till about 1814), "Bozzy and Piozzi" (1786), "The Lousiad" (1785–95), "The Apple Dumplings and a King," etc. He painted landscapes also, and a series of his pictures was engraved by Aiken in 1797.

Wolcott, Oliver. Born at Windsor, Conn., Nov. 26, 1726: died at Litchfield, Conn., Dec. 1, 1797. An American politician and general, son of Roger Wolcott. He held various judicial offices in Connecticut; was a delegate to the Continental Congress from Connecticut, and a signer of the Declaration of Independence; served on important commissions; commanded the Connecticut troops in 1776; served against Burgoyne in 1777; was lieutenant-governor of Connecticut 1786–96; and was governor of Connecticut 1796–97.

Wolcott, Oliver. Born at Litchfield, Conn., Jan. 11, 1760: died at New York, June 1, 1833. An American politician and financier, son of Oliver Wolcott (1726–97). He served in the Revolutionary War; was auditor of the treasury 1789–91; was comptroller of the treasury 1791–95; was secretary of the treasury 1795–1800; and was governor of Connecticut 1817–27.

Wolcott, Roger. Born at Windsor, Conn., Jan. 4, 1679: died at East Windsor, May 17, 1767. An American colonial magistrate. He commanded the Connecticut contingent at the siege of Louisburg in 1745; and was governor of Connecticut 1751–54. He wrote "Poetical Meditations" (1725), etc.

Wolf, or Wolff (vŏlf), Christian von. Born at Breslau, Jan. 24, 1679: died April 9, 1754. A celebrated German philosopher and mathematician. He was educated at Jena; lectured at Leipsic; became professor at Halle in 1707; was deposed from his office and exiled from Prussia in 1723 on the charge of heresy; was afterward at Marburg; was reinstated at Halle by Frederick the Great in 1740; and became vice-chancellor of the university. He developed the philosophy of Leibnitz, and exerted considerable influence upon subsequent metaphysical speculation in Germany. His numerous works, in German and Latin, include "Philosophia rationalis," "Psychologia empirica," "Psychologia rationalis," "Cosmologia," "Jus naturæ," etc.

Wolf (vŏlf), Friedrich August. Born at Haynrode, near Nordhausen, Germany, Feb. 15, 1759: died at Marseilles, Aug. 8, 1824. A German classical scholar, regarded as the founder of scientific classical philology. He studied at Göttingen; was professor at Halle 1783–1807; and later was in the government service in Berlin. His chief work is the "Prolegomena in Homerum" (1795), in which he propounded the famous theory that the Iliad and Odyssey are not the work of one author (Homer), but of various rhapsodists. See Homer.

Wolf (wŭlf), Henry. Born at Eckwersheim, Alsace, Aug. 3, 1852. An American wood-engraver. He came to New York in 1871, and at first made a specialty of drawings on the block for other engravers and artists. He has engraved numerous pictures for the American Artists Series in "The Century Magazine," and also for separate publication.

Wolfe (wŭlf), Charles. Born at Dublin, Dec. 14, 1791: died at Cork, Feb. 21, 1823. A British clergyman and poet. He wrote the "Burial of Sir John Moore." His "Poetical Remains," with a memoir by Russell, were published in 1825.

Wolfe, General, Death of. See Death of General Wolfe.

Wolfe, James. Born at Westerham, Kent, England, Jan. 2, 1727: killed at the battle of Quebec, Sept. 13, 1759. An English general. He served at Dettingen in 1743, against the Scottish insurgents 1745–46, and at Lawfeld in 1747; was made brigadier-general in 1758; commanded a division under Amherst at the siege and capture of Louisburg in 1758; and was made major-general and commander of the expedition against Quebec. After making unsuccessful attempts on Montcalm's works, he led his force up the Heights of Abraham on the night of Sept. 12, and died in the hour of victory there, Sept. 13, 1759.

Wolfenbüttel (vŏlf'en-büt-tel). A town in the duchy of Brunswick, situated on the Oker seven miles south of Brunswick. It has a noted library of 300,000 volumes and 8,000 MSS. and incunabula, and a ducal castle. Until 1754 it was the ducal residence. Near here, in 1641, the Swedes defeated the Imperialists. Lessing was librarian at Wolfenbüttel. Pop., commune, 19,083.

Wolfenbüttel Fragments. 1. Portions of a New Testament codex, supposed to be of the 5th or 6th century, recovered about 1750 at Wolfenbüttel in Germany from a palimpsest of Isidore of Seville.—2. A rationalistic work on the Bible, by Reimarus, a German critic of the 18th century. See Reimarus.

Wolfert's Roost, Chronicles of. A series of sketches by Washington Irving, published originally in the "Knickerbocker Magazine."

Wolff (vŏlf), Albert. Born at Neustrelitz, Germany, Nov. 14, 1814: died at Berlin, June 20, 1892. A famous German sculptor, an associate of Rauch: professor at the Academy of Arts in Berlin from 1858. He designed statues of the Great Elector, Frederick the Great, William I., and others, and colossal statues of Ernst August (Hannover), Frederick William III. (Berlin), Galileo (Pest), and Frederick William IV. (Königsberg).

Wolff, Emil. Born at Berlin, March 2, 1802: died at Rome, Sept. 29, 1879. A German sculptor, a pupil of Schadow. Among his statues are the "Fisher," "Thetis," an Amazon group, "Jephthah and his Daughter," etc.

Wolff (wŭlf; G. pron. vŏlf), Sir Henry Drummond. Born 1830: died at Brighton, Eng., Oct. 11, 1908. An English diplomatist. He was appointed commissioner for settling the affairs of Eastern Rumelia; member of Parliament, and a member of Lord Randolph Churchill's "Fourth Party"; special commissioner to Turkey and Egypt for arranging the affairs of Egypt 1885–87; and ambassador to Persia 1888.

Wolff (vŏlf), Kaspar Friedrich. Born at Berlin, 1733: died at St. Petersburg, 1794. A German anatomist and physiologist, founder of the science of embryology. He was professor at St. Petersburg from 1766.

Wolfram von Eschenbach (vŏlf'räm fon esh'en-bäch). Place and date of birth unknown: he died about 1220 (place unknown). A Middle High German poet of the latter part of the 12th and the beginning of the 13th century: the greatest epic poet of medieval Germany. He was of noble origin, and received his name from the little town of Eschenbach, near Ansbach, Bavaria, which was the ancestral seat of his family. His own home was at Wildenberg, near Ansbach, where he lived with his wife and child; but he was frequently at the court of that patron of poets, the landgrave Hermann of Thuringia, at Eisenach. He could not read or write, but knew French. He made frequent references to his poverty. He was buried in the Frauenkirche at Eschenbach. He composed lyrics, among them four "Tagelieder" ("Day Songs"); but his principal works are the three epic poems "Parzival," "Titurel" (left uncompleted), and "Willehalm" (also incomplete). "Parzival," the greatest court epic of Germany, was written between 1205 and 1215: it is based upon French sources of ultimate Celtic origin, particularly upon a poem by Chrestien de Troyes. "Titurel," written possibly about 1210, goes back to similar sources. The subject-matter of both poems is the legend of the Holy Grail: the former is named from its hero Parzival, the latter from Titurel, the first Knight of the Grail. "Willehalm" (Count William of Aquitaine), begun before 1216, is from French national poetry. "Titurel" was subsequently rewritten and completed by a certain Albrecht between 1260 and 1270. "Willehalm" was later on continued by Ulrich von Türkheim and Ulrich von dem Türlin. Wolfram's works were published by Karl Lachmann in 1833 (5th ed. in 1880).

Wolgast (vōl'gäst). A seaport in the province of Pomerania, Prussia, situated on the Peene, near its mouth in the Baltic, 53 miles northwest of Stettin. Gustavus Adolphus landed near there in 1630. The town was several times taken in the 17th and 18th centuries. Population, commune, 8,346.

Wollaston (wŭl'as-ton), William Hyde. Born at East Dereham, Norfolk, Aug. 6, 1766: died at London, Dec. 22, 1828. A noted English chemist and physicist. He discovered palladium and rhodium; made important investigations in optics and electricity; discovered the dark lines in the solar spectrum and the ultra-violet rays; and invented the camera lucida and goniometer.

Wollaston Lake. A lake in Saskatchewan, Canada, about lat. 58° N., long. 104° W. Its outlet is to the Mackenzie River. Length, about 50 miles.

Wollaston Land. A region in the arctic lands of North America, about lat. 69°–70° N., long. 110°–115° W.

Wollin (vōl-lēn'). 1. An island in the Baltic, belonging to the province of Pomerania, Prussia, 30 miles north of Stettin. With Usedom it separates the Stettiner Haff from the Baltic. It is separated from Usedom by the Swine, and from the mainland on the east by the Divenow. Length, 22 miles.

2. The chief place in the island of Wollin, situated on the Divenow near the site of the Wendish Vineta or Wolin. Population, about 4,500.

Wollstonecraft. See Godwin.

Wolof (wo-lof'). An important Nigritic nation of the French Sénégal, West Africa, between the Sénégal, Fulémé, and Gambia rivers. It is especially strong on the coast (St. Louis and Dakar), in Walo, Cayor, Baol, and Jolof. The men are tall, with fine busts, almost orthognathic heads, and jet-black skin. They wear wide trousers and long shirts. Most of them profess Islamism; a portion in the coast towns profess Catholicism; but heathen practices prevail everywhere. They have three hereditary castes: the nobility, the tradesmen and musicians (who are despised), and the slaves. Domestic slaves are well treated and cannot be sold. The Wolof language is regular and rich in grammatical forms, but occupies a rather isolated position.

Wolowski (vō-lov'skē), Louis François Michel Raymond. Born in Warsaw, Aug. 31, 1810: died at Gisors, Aug. 15, 1876. A French political economist, financier, and politician. He fled to France after the repression of the Polish uprising in 1831; was a member of the Constituent Assembly in 1848, and of the Legislative Assembly in 1849; and in the third republic was a member of the National Assembly and senator. He wrote "La question des banques" (1864), "L'Or et l'argent" (1872), etc.

Wolseley (wŭlz'li), Garnet Joseph, first Viscount Wolseley. Born at Golden Bridge House, County Dublin, Ireland, June 4, 1833. A distinguished British general. He entered the army as ensign in 1852; served in the second Burmese war in 1853 (when he was wounded), and in the Crimean war (when he was again wounded); became captain in 1855; served in India during the Indian mutiny (at the relief of Lucknow in 1857, and elsewhere); and fought in the war with China in 1860. In 1862 he visited the Confederate army in Virginia. In 1865 he was promoted colonel. He commanded the Red River expedition which suppressed Riel's insurrection in 1870, and was knighted; and commanded in the Ashanti war 1873–74, and was made major-general in 1875. He was administrator of Natal in 1875; a member of the Council of India in 1876; commissioner and commander in Cyprus in 1878; and governor of Natal and the Transvaal 1879–80. In 1880 he was made quartermaster-general, and adjutant-general in 1882. He defeated the Egyptian insurgents under Arabi and gained the victory of Tel-el-Kebir in 1882; was raised to the peerage and made general in 1882; and was commander-in-chief of the unsuccessful expedition for the relief of Gordon 1884–85. He was made viscount in 1885, commander-in-chief of the forces in Ireland in 1890, and was commander-in-chief of the British army 1895–1900. He has written "Narrative of the War with China in 1860," "System of Field Manœuvres" (1872), "Marley Castle" (1877), "Story of a Soldier's Life" (1903), etc.

Wolsey (wŭl'zi), Thomas. Born at Ipswich, England, probably in 1475: died at Leicester, Nov. 29, 1530. A celebrated English statesman and cardinal. He was educated at Magdalen College, Oxford; studied divinity; became rector of Lymington in 1500; was successively chaplain to the Archbishop of Canterbury, to Sir Richard Nanfan, and to Henry VII.; was sent by Henry VII. on a diplomatic mission to the emperor Maximilian; was made dean of Lincoln in 1509; became almoner in 1509, and privy councilor in 1511; served against France in 1513; was made bishop of Lincoln in 1514, and archbishop of York in 1514; and became lord chancellor and cardinal in 1515, and prime minister of Henry VIII. He was made legate in 1519. He gained the ill will of Henry VIII. by his conduct in the matter of the king's divorce; was deprived of his offices in 1529; was restored to the archbishopric of York in 1530; and was arrested for high treason in Nov., 1530. He founded Christ Church College, Oxford.

Wolverhampton (wŭl-vèr-hamp'ton). A borough in Staffordshire, England, 13 miles northwest of Birmingham. It is situated near a large coal- and iron-mining district, and is one of the principal centers for the manufacture of hardware in Great Britain. Population, 95,333, (1911).

Wolzogen (vōlt-sō'gen), Mme. von (Karoline von Lengefeld). Born at Rudolstadt, Germany, 1763: died at Jena, 1847. A German author, sister-in-law of Schiller. She wrote "Schillers Leben" ("Life of Schiller," 1830), the novels "Agnes von Lilien" (1798) and "Cordelia" (1840), etc.

Woman Hater, The. 1. A play by Beaumont and Fletcher, published anonymously in 1607.—2. A novel by Charles Reade, published in 1877.

Woman in White, The. A novel by Wilkie Collins, published in 1860.

Woman Killed with Kindness, A. A play by Thomas Heywood, acted in March, 1603, printed in 1607. It is considered Heywood's best play.

Wombwell (wŏm'wel). A town in the West Riding of Yorkshire, England, 10 miles north-northeast of Sheffield. Population, 13,252.

Wonder, The: A Woman Keeps a Secret. A comedy by Mrs. Centlivre, produced and printed in 1714. It still keeps the stage.

Wonder-Book, The. A collection of stories for boys and girls, from classical mythological sources, by Hawthorne, published in 1851.

Wonderful Parliament, or Wonder-making Parliament. Same as Merciless Parliament.

Wonder of the World. A name given to the emperors Otto III. and Frederick II. of Germany.

Wonders beyond Thule. See Dinias and Dercyllis.

Wondrous Tale of Alroy, The. A novel by Disraeli, published in 1833.

Wood (wŭd), Anthony, called Anthony à Wood. Born at Oxford, England, Dec. 17, 1632: died there, Nov. 29, 1695. An English antiquary. He was educated at Oxford. He wrote "Historia et Antiquitates Universitatis Oxoniensis" (written in English and translated into Latin for the University Press in 1674). He was dissatisfied with the translation, and afterward rewrote his English MS., and it was published after his death in two volumes—the first as "The History and Antiquities of the Colleges and Halls of the University of Oxford, with a Continuation to the Present Time by John Gutch," with "Fasti (Annals) Oxoniensis" (1786–90); the second as "The History and Antiquities of the University of Oxford" (1792–1796). He also wrote "Athenæ Oxonienses: an Exact History of all the Writers and Bishops who have had their Education in the University of Oxford from 1500 to 1690," with "Fasti." Two volumes of this were printed (1691–92) before his death; the third he prepared, and it appeared in the second edition 1721; third enlarged edition by Bliss 1813–20. He also wrote "Modus Salium: a Collection of Pieces of Humour" (1751), and "The Ancient and Present State of the City of Oxford" (1773).

Wood, Fernando. Born at Philadelphia, June 14, 1812: died at Washington, D. C., Feb. 14, 1881. An American politician. He was Democratic member of Congress from New York 1841–43; mayor of New York city 1854–61; and member of Congress from New York 1863–65 and 1867–81.

Wood, Mrs. Henry (Ellen Price). Born at Worcester, Jan. 17, 1814: died Feb. 10, 1887. An English novelist. Among her novels are "East Lynne" (1861; several times dramatized), "The Channings" (1862), "Mrs. Halliburton's Troubles" (1862), "The Shadow of Ashlydyat" (1863), etc. She also published anonymously "The Johnny Ludlow Tales" (1874–80). In 1867 she became editor of "The Argosy."

Wood, Sir Henry Evelyn. Born in Essex, Feb. 9, 1838. A British field-marshal. He served in the Crimean war, Indian mutiny, Ashanti war, and Zulu war; commanded against the Boers in 1881; served against the Egyptian rebels in 1882, and in the Sudan; and commanded the Egyptian army 1882–85. He was quartermaster-general 1893–97, and adjutant-general 1897–1901.

Wood, Thomas Waterman. Born at Montpelier, Vt., Nov. 12, 1823: died at New York, April 14, 1903. An American portrait- and genre-painter. He settled in New York in 1867. He was elected national academician in 1871, and became vice-president of the National Academy in 1879, and president in 1891. He was also for nine or ten years president of the American Water-Color Society.

Woodbury (wůd'bu-ri), Levi. Born at Francestown, N. H., Dec. 22, 1789: died at Portsmouth, N. H., Sept., 1851. An American jurist and statesman. He graduated at Dartmouth in 1809. He was governor of New Hampshire 1823–24; Democratic United States senator from New Hampshire 1825–31; secretary of the navy 1831–34; secretary of the treasury 1834–1841; United States senator 1841–45; and associate justice of the United States Supreme Court 1845–51.

Woodcourt (wůd'kŏrt), Allan. The lover of Esther Summerson in Dickens's "Bleak House."

Woodman, Spare that Tree. A lyric poem by George P. Morris.

Woods (wůdz), Leonard. Born at Princeton, Mass., June 19, 1774: died at Andover, Mass., Aug. 24, 1854. An American Congregational clergyman and theologian, professor of theology at Andover Theological Seminary. Among his works are "Letters to Unitarians" (1820), "Lectures on the Inspiration of the Scriptures" (1829), "Memoirs of American Missionaries" (1833), "Examination of the Doctrine of Perfection" (1841), "Lectures on Church Government" (1843), "Lectures on Swedenborgianism" (1846), etc.

Woods, Leonard. Born at Newbury, Mass., Nov. 24, 1807: died at Boston, Dec. 24, 1878. An American educator, son of Leonard Woods (1774–1854). He was professor in Bangor Theological Seminary, and was president of Bowdoin College 1839–66.

Woods, William Burnham. Born at Newark, Ohio, 1824: died at Washington, D. C., 1887. An American jurist and general. He was a member of the Ohio legislature; served in the West in the Civil War, at Shiloh, Arkansas Post, and Vicksburg, and in Georgia; and commanded a division in Sherman's march to the sea. He was appointed United States circuit judge in 1869; and was associate justice of the United States Supreme Court 1880–87.

Woodstock (wůd'stok). A town in Oxfordshire, England, situated on the Glyme 8 miles northwest of Oxford. It was formerly a royal residence, and is particularly associated with the history of Henry II. and "Fair Rosamond." Elizabeth was imprisoned here by Mary. Woodstock was besieged and taken in 1646. Near it is Blenheim Park. Population, 1,684.

Woodstock. The capital of Oxford County, Ontario, Canada, situated on the Thames 80 miles west-southwest of Toronto. Population, 8,833.

Woodstock. The capital of Windsor County, Vermont, situated on the Ottaqueechee 23 miles east of Rutland. Pop., town, 2,545, (1910).

Woodstock. A novel by Sir Walter Scott, published in 1826. The scene is laid at Woodstock, England, and the vicinity, about 1651.

Woodstock, Assize of. A code for the regulation of the forests, proclaimed by Henry II. in 1184.

Woodville (wůd'vil), Anthony, second Earl Rivers. Beheaded at Pontefract, England, 1483. An English politician, influential in the reign of his brother-in-law Edward IV. He was put to death by Richard III.

Woodville, Elizabeth. See Elizabeth Woodville.

Woodward (wůd'wärd). Henry. Born 1714: died 1777. A noted English comedian. He made his first appearance at Covent Garden in 1736, and his last in 1777. He was excellent as Petruchio, Mercutio, Bobadil, Touchstone, Captain Absolute, etc., and was noted for his power of mimicry.

Woodworth (wůd'wėrth), Samuel. Born at Scituate, Mass., Jan. 13, 1785: died at New York city, Dec. 9, 1842. An American poet. He is best known from his lyric "The Old Oaken Bucket." His poems were published in 1861.

Wool (wůl), John Ellis. Born at Newburg, N. Y., Feb. 20, 1784: died at Troy, N. Y., Nov. 10, 1869. An American general. He entered the army in 1812; served at Queenston Heights in 1812, and at Plattsburg in 1814; was appointed inspector-general of the army and colonel in 1816; became brigadier-general in 1841; organized volunteers for the Mexican war; was second in command at the battle of Buena Vista; and was afterward division and department commander. He saved Fortress Monroe in 1861. In 1862 he was made major-general, and retired in 1863.

Woolman (wůl'man), John. Born at Northampton, N. J., 1720: died at York, England, Oct. 7, 1772. An American preacher of the Society of Friends. Among his works are "Some Considerations on the Keeping of Negroes" (1754), "Considerations on Pure Wisdom and Human Policy," etc. (1768), "Considerations on the True Harmony of Mankind" (1770). He is, however, best known by his "Journal," first published in 1775, after his death. It has been many times reprinted, and was edited in 1872 by Whittier.

Woolner (wůl'nėr), Thomas. Born at Hadleigh, Suffolk, Dec. 17, 1825: died at London, Oct. 7, 1892. An English sculptor and poet. He was a member of the Preraphaelite Brotherhood, and many of his poems first appeared in "The Germ." He was professor of sculpture at the Royal Academy 1877–79. Among his statues are "Puck," "Titania," and "Eros" (1848), "Constance and Arthur," "Elaine," "Ophelia," "Achilles and Pallas"; statues of Macaulay, Lord Frederick Cavendish, Lord Palmerston, and others; and busts of Tennyson, Carlyle, Darwin, Gladstone, and others. His poems include "My Beautiful Lady" (1863), "Pygmalion" (1881), "Silenus" (1884), "Tiresias" (1886), etc.

Woolsey (wůl'si), Sarah Chauncey: pseudonym Susan Coolidge. Born at Cleveland, Ohio, about 1845: died at Newport, R. I., April 9, 1905. An American writer, niece of T. D. Woolsey. She wrote "What Katy did," "What Katy did at School," "What Katy did Next," "Cross Patch, etc., from Mother Goose," "A Round Dozen," "A Little Country Girl," etc. Also "A Short History of the City of Philadelphia" (1887), "Ballads of Romance and History," with others (1887); edited and abridged "The Autobiography and Correspondence of Mrs. Delany" (1879) and "The Diary and Letters of Frances Burney" (1880); and translated Gautier's "My Household of Pets" (1882) and Arnaud's "One Day in a Baby's Life" (1886).

Woolsey, Theodore Dwight. Born at New York city, Oct. 31, 1801: died at New Haven, Conn., July 1, 1889. An American educator and eminent political and legal writer. He graduated at Yale in 1820; studied law and, later, theology; was tutor in Yale 1823–25; was licensed to preach in 1825; studied in Europe 1827–30; was professor of Greek at Yale 1831–46; and was president of Yale 1846–71. He edited the "New Englander" for a few years after 1843; and was chairman of the American company of New Testament revisers 1871–81. His works include editions of the "Alcestis" (1834), "Antigone" (1835), "Electra" (1837), "Prometheus" (1837), and "Gorgias" (1843); an "Introduction to the Study of International Law" (1860: 5th ed. 1879); "Divorce and Divorce Legislation" (1869); "Religion of the Past and of the Future" (1871); "Political Science, etc." (2 vols. 1871); "Communism and Socialism" (1880). He also edited Lieber's "Civil Liberty and Self-Government" (1871), and a "Manual of Political Ethics" (1871).

Woolson (wůl'son), Mrs. (Abba Louisa Goold). Born at Windham, Maine, 1838. An American essayist. She has lectured on literary subjects; has published "Woman in American Society" (1873), "Browsing among Books, and other Essays" (1881), "George Eliot and her Heroines" (1886); and has edited "Dress Reform: a Series of Lectures" (1874).

Woolson, Constance Fenimore. Born at Claremont, N. H., 1848: died at Venice, Italy, Jan. 23, 1894. An American novelist, a grandniece of James Fenimore Cooper. Among her works are "The Old Stone House" (1873), "Castle Nowhere" (1875), "Two Women" (1877), "Rodman the Keeper" (1880), "Anne" (1882), "For the Major" (1883), "East Angels" (1886), "Jupiter Lights" (1889), etc.

Woolston (wůl'ston), Thomas. Born at Northampton, England, 1670: died Jan. 27, 1733. An English deist. He was a fellow of Sidney Sussex College, Cambridge; was deprived of his fellowship in 1721, and fined and imprisoned in 1729; and died within the rules of the King's Bench prison. He wrote "The Old Apology for the Truth of the Christian Religion . . . Revived" (1705), "The Moderator between an Infidel and an Apostate" (1725), "Discourses" (1727–29).

Woolwich (wůl'ich). A borough (metropolitan) of London, situated south of the Thames: noted for its arsenal. It contains factories of guns, gun-carriages, and ammunition, barracks, and a royal military academy for engineering and artillery. Woolwich became an important naval station and dockyard in the 16th century; the dockyard was closed in 1869. Population, metropolitan borough, 121,403, (1911).

Woonsocket (wön-sok'et). A city in Providence County, Rhode Island, situated on Blackstone River 13 miles north-northwest of Providence. It has extensive manufactures of cotton and woolen goods. Population, 38,125, (1910).

Wooster (wůs'tėr). David. Born at Stratford, Conn., March 2, 1710: died at Danbury, Conn., May 2, 1777. An American Revolutionary general. He served in the Louisburg expedition in 1745, and in the French and Indian war; was one of the planners of the Ticonderoga expedition of 1775; became brigadier-general in 1775; succeeded Montgomery as commander in Canada; and became major-general of Connecticut militia. He was mortally wounded in the defense of Danbury against Tryon.

Worcester (wůs'tėr), or Worcestershire (wůs'tėr-shir). [AS. Wigeraceasterscir.] A midland county of England, bounded by Shropshire, Stafford, Warwick, Gloucester, and Hereford. It contains several exclaves. The surface is hilly (the Malvern and the Bredon hills are on the borders), and it is traversed by the Severn. Worcester is an agricultural county, and is noted for its vegetables, fruit, and hops. It was a part of the ancient Mercia. Area (ad. co.), 740 square miles. Population (parl. co.), 488,338.

Worcester. [ME. Worcester, Worceter, Wirceter, Wycetir, etc., AS. Wigorceaster, Wigeraceaster, Wigracaster, Wihraceaster.] The capital of Worcestershire, England, situated on the Severn in lat. 52° 12′ N., long. 2° 14′ W. It has manufactures of gloves, porcelain, Worcestershire sauce, vinegar, etc., and a large trade in hops. The cathedral is in its present form chiefly of the 13th century. The west front has a large and handsome Decorated window, and the square central tower is effective. The exterior is in general plain, with rather small windows, many of which are grouped in threes. The interior, with its long ranges of pointed arcades, is simple and majestic. The rich sculptured pulpit and the decorations of the choir are modern, but the fine carved stalls are old. It has a beautiful crypt, handsome Perpendicular cloisters, and a decagonal chapter-house with central column. The cathedral measures 450 by 78 feet; length of west transepts, 78 each; height of vaulting, 67. Worcester was an ancient British settlement and a Roman military station. It suffered from Welsh invasions, and has often been besieged. The final victory of the civil war was gained here by Cromwell over the Scotch Royalists under Charles II., Sept. 3, 1651. The Royalist army dispersed. Population, 47,987, (1911).

Worcester. The capital of Worcester County, Massachusetts. It has extensive manufactures of iron and steel, machinery, cars, boots and shoes, woolen goods, etc.; and is the seat of the Roman Catholic College of the Holy Cross, of the State normal school, of Clark University, and of other institutions. It was permanently settled in 1713, and became a city in 1848. Pop., 145,986, (1910).

Worcester, Florence of. See Florence of Worcester.

Worcester, Joseph Emerson. Born at Bedford, N. H., Aug. 24, 1784: died at Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 27, 1865. An American lexicographer. He graduated at Yale in 1811, and settled at Cambridge in 1819. He published a "Geographical Dictionary, or Universal Gazetteer, Ancient and Modern" (1817; revised edition 1823), a "Gazetteer of the United States" (1818), "Elements of Geography" (1819), "Sketches of the Earth" (1823), "Elements of History, etc." (1826), an abridgment of Webster's dictionary (1829), "A Comprehensive Pronouncing and Explanatory Dictionary" (1830), and "A Universal and Critical Dictionary" (1846). The last, passing through several editions with little alteration, was at length revised and enlarged, and was published in quarto form as "A Dictionary of the English Language" (1st ed. 1860).

Worcester Beacon. The highest point of the Malvern Hills, England, southwest of Worcester. Height, 1,444 feet.

Worcester College. A college of Oxford University, incorporated (1714) on the foundation of the Benedictine Gloucester Hall (1283).

Worde (wôrd), Winkin or Wynkin de. Born in Alsace: died about 1535. An English printer. He went to England as an assistant of Caxton, and in 1491 became his successor. He lived in Fleet street, London, from about 1500.

Worden (wôr'dn), John Lorimer. Born at Mount Pleasant, Westchester County, N. Y., March 12, 1818: died at Washington, D. C., Oct. 18, 1897. An American admiral. He entered the navy in 1835; was appointed commander in 1862; and became famous as commander of the Monitor in her battle with the Merrimac in that year. In 1863 he became captain, and commanded the Montauk in the blockading squadron; was promoted commodore in 1868, and rear-admiral in 1872; and was superintendent of the Naval Academy at Annapolis 1870–74. He retired in 1886.

Wordsworth (wėrdz'wėrth), Charles. Born at London, Aug. 22, 1806: died at St. Andrews, Scotland, Dec. 5, 1892. A British prelate, theologian, and scholar, son of Christopher Wordsworth (1774–1846): bishop of St. Andrews, Dunkeld, and Dumblane. He was one of the New Testament revisers.

Wordsworth, Christopher. Born at Cockermouth, England, June 9, 1774: died at Buxted, England, Feb. 2, 1846. An English clergyman, brother of William Wordsworth: master of Trinity College, Cambridge. He wrote "Ecclesiastical Biography" (1810), etc., and advocated the claim of Charles I. to the authorship of "Eikon Basilike."

Wordsworth, Christopher. Born at Lambeth, Oct. 30, 1807: died at Lincoln, Mar. 21, 1885. An English prelate and author, son of Christopher Wordsworth (1774–1846). He was head-master of Harrow and canon of Westminster, and became bishop of Lincoln in 1868. He wrote "Athens and Attica" (1836), "Ancient Writings Copied from the Walls of Pompeii" (1837), "Greece, Pictorial, Descriptive, and Historical" (1839), "Theophilus Anglicanus" (1843), "On the Canon of the Scriptures" (1848), "Memoirs of William Wordsworth" (1851), notes on the New Testament and the Bible, controversial works, and various theological and other works.

Wordsworth, William. Born at Cockermouth, Cumberland, England, April 7, 1770: died at Rydal Mount, April 23, 1850. A celebrated English poet. He was educated at Hawkshead and at St. John's College, Cambridge, where he graduated in 1791; traveled on the Continent in 1790; and traveled and lived in France 1791–92, where he sympathized at first with the French republicans. He received a legacy in 1795, and settled with his sister Dorothy at Racedown, Dorset. A visit from Coleridge in 1797 determined his career, and in the next year he removed to Alfoxden in Somerset to be near him. He went to the Continent in 1798, and lived at Goslar; and returned to England in 1799, and settled at Grasmere, in the Lake District. In 1802 he married Mary Hutchinson; settled at Allan Bank in 1808; and removed to Grasmere in 1811. He was appointed distributer of stamps in 1813, and settled at Rydal Mount; and traveled in Scotland in 1814 and 1832, and on the Continent in 1820 and 1837. He became poet laureate in 1843. His works include "An Evening Walk" (1793), "Descriptive Sketches" (1793), "Lyrical Ballads" (this contains Coleridge's "Ancient Mariner") (1798), two volumes of poems (1807), "An Essay on the Relations of Great Britain, Spain, and Portugal to each other" (1809), "The Excursion" (1814), new edition of poems (1815), "The White Doe of Rylstone" (1815), "Thanksgiving Ode" (1816), "Peter Bell" and "The Waggoner" (1819), "The River Duddon: a Series of Sonnets, etc." (1820), "Memorials of a Tour on the Continent" (1822), "Ecclesiastical Sketches" (1822), "Yarrow Revisited, and other Poems" (1835), "Sonnets," collected (1838), "The Borderers: a Tragedy" (1842: written about 1796), "The Prelude" (1850: finished 1805), etc.

Work (wėrk), Henry Clay. Born at Middletown, Conn., Oct. 1, 1832: died at Hartford, Conn., June 8, 1884. An American song-writer. His songs include "Marching Through Georgia," "Nicodemus the Slave," "My Grandfather's Clock," "Lily Dale," etc.

Workington (wėr'king-tọn). A seaport in Cumberland, England, situated at the entrance of the Derwent into Solway Firth, 8 miles north of Whitehaven. It has iron and steel manufactures and considerable trade. Population, 26,143.

Works and Days. [Gr. Ἔργα καὶ Ἡμέραι.] The chief poem of Hesiod: so named because it treats of the labors of the farmer, and the lucky and unlucky days for doing them.

In the "Works and Days" there are really three parts, which may once have been distinct: an introductory poem addressed to his brother Perses — then the "Works" proper — and then the "Days," or Calendar. Hesiod and his younger brother Perses had divided the property left by their father, but Perses had got the larger share. Hesiod says by bribing certain judges. Perses now lived in luxurious idleness, and presently threatened Hesiod with another lawsuit. Hesiod reminds Perses and the corrupt judges that Justice, when wronged on earth, takes refuge with her father Zeus. Here we meet with the earliest fable in Greek literature, the "Hawk and the Nightingale." The hawk has the nightingale in his clutches, and in answer to the captive's complaint reminds her that "might is right." Here, too, the poet describes the "Five Ages" of the world — the age of gold, of silver, of bronze, of heroes or demigods (put in, apparently, to make a place for the Homeric heroes), and of iron, in which the poet himself has the misfortune to live. From justice the theme changes to work. "Work, foolish Perses; work the work that the gods have set for men." A man who means to work should provide himself with a house, an ox, and household stuff, and that speedily, for delay fills no granaries. The cry of the crane is the signal for ploughing: the master must guide the plough, with many a prayer to Zeus and Demeter, while a slave follows and covers up the seed, "to give trouble to the birds." Jebb, Greek Lit., p. 42.

Worksop (wėrk'sop). A town in Nottingham, England, 16 miles east by south of Sheffield. Population, 16,112.

Worldly Wiseman (wėrld'li wīz'man), Mr. A character in Bunyan's "Pilgrim's Progress."

World's Fairs. A series of international expositions, the most important of which were those held in London (1851 and 1862), Paris (1855, 1867, 1878, 1889, and 1900), Vienna (1873), Philadelphia (1876), and Chicago (1893). The first universal exhibition was held in the Crystal Palace, Hyde Park, London, at the instigation of the Prince Consort (May 1 to Oct. 11, 1851). The total number of visitors to it was 6,039,195. The total attendance at the World's Columbian Exposition at Chicago (May 1 to Oct. 30, 1893) was 27,539,041; at the Paris Exposition (April 15 to Nov. 12, 1900) it was about 50,000,000.

Wörlitz (vėr'lits). A small town in Anhalt, Germany, 37 miles southeast of Magdeburg: famous for its ducal gardens and park, palace, Gothic house (with works of art), etc.

Worms (vōrms). [G. Worms, MHG. Wormz, Wormeze, Wormize, etc., OHG. Wormasza, Wormiza, from L. Borbetomagus, Borbitomagus, Gr. Βορβητόμαγος, of Celtic origin.] A city in the province of Rhine-Hesse, grand duchy of Hesse, situated on the left bank of the Rhine, in lat. 49° 38′ N., long. 8° 22′ E. It is the center of a rich wine-producing region. Its cathedral was begun in the 11th and finished in the 12th century. It is a fine example of Rhenish Romanesque. The dimensions are 423 by 87 feet; length of transepts, 120; height of nave, 105. The baptistery, on the south side of the cathedral, is of the 14th century. Worms was originally the Celtic town Borbetomagus; was a Roman town until the 5th century; became the capital of the Burgundian kingdom, and famous from its connection with the German heroic cycle (Siegfried, Kriemhild, Brunhild, the Nibelungs); was one of the chief German cities in the middle ages; and from the time of Charles the Great was a frequent royal residence and the seat of diets. It was one of the chief places in the league of Rhenish cities; suffered severely in the Thirty Years' War; was burned by the French in 1689; remained a free imperial city until it was annexed by France in 1801 through the peace of Lunéville; and was ceded to Hesse-Darmstadt in 1815. (See Concordat of Worms.) Population, commune, 43,841.

Worms. The German name of Bormio, Italy.

Worms (vorms), Gustave. Born at Paris, March 21, 1837. A noted French actor. His first success was in Russia, where he played for ten years. He returned to Paris in 1875, and in 1877 appeared at the Comédie Française, and has since remained one of the chief exponents of the modern drama.

Worms, Diet of. A diet, famous in the history of the Reformation, opened by the emperor Charles V. at Worms, Jan. 28, 1521. On March 6 Luther was cited to appear before the diet, and he arrived in Worms on April 16. On April 17 and 18 he appeared before the diet, and on the latter day refused to recant and defended his position. His determination was expressed in the famous words: "Here I stand. I cannot do otherwise.[1] God help me. Amen."

Worringen (vor'ring-en). A town in the Rhine Province, Prussia, situated on the Rhine nine miles north-northwest of Cologne. A victory was gained here, June 12, 1288, by the Duke of Brabant and allies over the Count of Gelderland.

Worsaae (vor'sâ-e), Jens Jacob Asmussen. Born at Veile, Jutland, March 14, 1821: died near Holbäk, Aug. 15, 1885. A Danish historian and antiquary. He was director of the Museum of Northern Antiquities, etc., at Copenhagen, from 1866, and minister of public worship 1874–75. Among his works are "Denmarks Oldtid" (1843: trans. in English as "Primeval Antiquities of Denmark"), "Minder om de Danske og Nordmändene i England, Skotland, og Irland" ("Account of the Danes in England, Scotland, and Ireland," 1851), "De Danskes Erobering af England og Normandiet" ("The Danish Conquest of England and Normandy," 1863), etc.

Wörth (vėrt). A small town in Lower Alsace, situated on the Sauer 25 miles north of Strasburg.

Wörth, Battle of, or Battle of Fröschweiler or Reichshofen. A victory gained near Wörth, Alsace, Aug. 6, 1870, by the Germans under the Crown Prince of Prussia over the French under MacMahon. The German loss was about 10,000; the French loss, about 8,000, and 9,000 prisoners.

Worth (wėrth), William Jenkins. Born at Hudson, N. Y., March 1, 1794: died at San Antonio, Texas, May 17, 1849. An American general. He entered the army in 1813; fought at the battle of Niagara in 1814, and was promoted major; was superintendent at West Point after the war; became commander in the Seminole war in 1841, which he ended; and was second in command under Taylor at the opening of the Mexican war. He gained distinction by his storming of the bishop's palace at the battle of Monterey in 1846; was sent to join General Scott's army; was brevetted major-general; fought in the battles of Cerro Gordo, Perote, San Antonio, Churubusco, Molino del Rey, and Chapultepec, and took part in the occupation of the city of Mexico. Later he commanded in Texas.

Worthies of England, History of the. A biographical work by Thomas Fuller, published after his death, in 1662. It is his masterpiece.

Worthing (wėr'ᵀᴴing). A seaside resort in Sussex, England, situated on the English Channel 11 miles west of Brighton. Population, 20,015.

Wotton (wot'on), Sir Henry. Born at Boctон (Boughton) Malherbe, Kent, England, 1568: died at Eton, Dec., 1639. An English diplomatist and author. He was educated at Winchester and Oxford; and went on the Continent in 1588, where he remained until 1595. In 1595 he became secretary to the Earl of Essex; and was special envoy from Tuscany to James VI. of Scotland; English ambassador to Venice, Germany, etc.; and in 1624 provost of Eton College. He wrote poems, various Latin pamphlets, "The Elements of Architecture," and "State of Christendom." The "Reliquiæ Wottonianæ" (1651) contains most of his works.

Wotton, William. Born at Wrentham, Suffolk, England, Aug. 13, 1666: died at Buxted, Essex, Feb. 13, 1727. An English clergyman and scholar. He was educated at Cambridge, where he was admitted in his tenth year. He was a remarkable instance of precocity. When only twelve years old he was noted for his skill in Hebrew, Greek, Latin, three or four of the Eastern tongues, philosophy, mathematics, etc.; took his degree of B. A. in Jan., 1679, then knowing 12 languages; and became a fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge, in 1683. He became chaplain to the Earl of Nottingham and rector of Middleton Keynes, Buckinghamshire, in 1693, and prebendary of Salisbury in 1705. He is best known from his "Reflections upon Ancient and Modern Learning" (1694).

Would-be (wụd'bē), Sir Politick and Lady. An amusingly important politician and his pedantic wife, in Jonson's "Volpone."

Wouverman (wou'ver-män), or Wouvermans (-mänz), Philip. Born at Haarlem, Netherlands (baptized May 24, 1619): died there, May 19, 1668. A Dutch painter, famous for his battle-pieces, hunting-scenes, cavalry skirmishes, horses, etc. His works are in Dresden, Paris, The Hague, Munich, Vienna, etc. Among them are the "Coup de Pistolet" (Buckingham Palace) and "The Watering-Place" (Old Pinakothek, Munich). Some of his works have been confounded with those of his brothers Pieter (1623–82?) and Jan (1629–66).

Wrangel, or Wrangell (vräng'el), Baron Ferdinand von. Born at Pskoff, Russia, Dec. 29, 1796: died at Dorpat, June 6, 1870. A Russian vice-admiral and explorer. He accompanied an expedition round the world 1817–19; conducted an exploring expedition in the arctic regions 1820–24; and was chief of an expedition round the world 1825–27. Later he was governor of Russian America, and director of the Russian-American Trading Company. He wrote an account of his expedition in Russian (1841). Extracts from his journal were published in German in 1839.

[1] This sentence is, perhaps, not authentic.

Wrangel, Count Friedrich Heinrich Ernst. Born at Stettin, April 13, 1784: died at Berlin, Nov. 1, 1877. A Prussian field-marshal. He served in the Napoleonic wars; commanded in Schleswig-Holstein and in Berlin in 1848; and commanded the army against Denmark in 1864.

Wrangel, Count Karl Gustav. Born Dec. 13, 1613: died in Rügen, June 24, 1676. A Swedish field-marshal. He served in the army and navy in the Thirty Years' War; succeeded Torstenson as commander-in-chief; with Turenne defeated the Imperialists and Bavarians at Zusmarshausen May 17, 1648; commanded in the wars against Poland and Denmark; commanded against Brandenburg in 1674; and was defeated at Fehrbellin in 1675.

Wrangell (rang'gel), Mount. A mountain in Alaska, northwest of Mount St. Elias. Height, not more than 17,500 feet (United States Coast and Geodetic Survey).

Wrangel Land, or Wrangell Land, or New Columbia (kō-lum'bi-ạ). [Named for F. von Wrangel.] An island in the Arctic Ocean, north of Siberia, about lat. 71°–72° N., long. 179°–180° W.: discovered by Kellet in 1849.

Wrath (räth), Cape. The northwestern headland of Scotland, in lat. 58° 38′ N., long. 5° W.

Wraxall (rak'sạl), Sir Nathaniel William. Born at Bristol, April 8, 1751: died at Dover, Nov. 7, 1831. An English historical writer. He went to Bombay, in the service of the East India Company, in 1769; remained in India till 1772; spent a number of years in travel; and entered Parliament in 1780. He was the author of "Memoirs of the Kings of France of the Race of Valois, etc." (1777), "History of France" (1785), and several volumes of contemporary memoirs (among them "Historical Memoirs of My Own Time, 1772–1784," published in 1815). His own "Memoirs" were published in 1836.

Wray, John. See Ray.

Wrayburn (rā'bėrn), Eugene. A light-hearted, sarcastic, flippant, clever young attorney, the rival of Bradley Headstone, and nearly murdered by him: a character in Charles Dickens's "Our Mutual Friend." He is afterward married to Lizzie Hexam.

Wrede (vrā'de), Prince Karl Philipp. Born at Heidelberg, April 29, 1767: died at Ellingen, Dec. 12, 1838. A Bavarian field-marshal. He served as major-general with the Austrians at Hohenlinden in 1800; commanded the Bavarian forces in alliance with the French in the campaigns of 1805, 1807, and 1809; took part in the conquest of Tyrol in 1809; served with distinction at Wagram in 1809; commanded the Bavarian contingent in the invasion of Russia in 1812; went over to the Allies in 1813; was defeated by the French at Hanau in 1813; took part in the battle of La Rothière in 1814; was distinguished at Rosny, Bar-sur-Aube, and Arcis-sur-Aube in 1814; took part in the Congress of Vienna 1814–15; and was generalissimo of the Bavarian army in 1822.

Wren (ren), Sir Christopher. Born at East Knoyle, Wiltshire, England, Oct. 20, 1632: died at Hampton Court, Feb. 25, 1723. A celebrated English architect. He was educated at Westminster School and at Wadham College, Oxford; and was made professor of astronomy at Gresham College in 1657; Savilian professor of astronomy at Oxford in 1660; and deputy surveyor-general of public works in 1661. He designed the fortifications of Tangier in 1663; was created president of the Royal Society in 1680; and designed St. Paul's Cathedral (which see). Among his other designs were the cloister and chapel of Brasenose College, Oxford (1656), and the central spire of Lichfield Cathedral (1662–69). He was appointed on a committee for the survey of Old St. Paul's (1663); and designed Pembroke College Chapel, Cambridge (1663–65). He was surveyor at Greenwich (1663–67), and designed the Sheldonian Theatre, Oxford (1664–69). On Oct. 4, 1666, he was appointed on a committee with May, Pratt, and others, to survey the ruins of London after the fire, and to make plans for the reconstruction of the burned district; was appointed surveyor-general of all the royal works in 1669; and built Mary-le-Bow, Cheapside (1667–71), Temple Bar, Fleet street (which see), the "Monument," 202 feet high (1671–81), St. Bride, Fleet street (1671–80), St. Stephen's, Walbrook (1677–79), Drury Lane Theatre (which see), Royal Observatory, Greenwich (1675), and Hampton Court Palace for King William III. (1690). He built the Royal Naval Hospital (1692–1716), giving his services without compensation. In 1706 he remodeled St. Stephen's Chapel for the enlarged membership (Scottish) of Parliament (see Westminster Palace, St. Stephen's Chapel); in 1709–10 Marlborough House, Pall Mall; and in 1713 designed the towers of Westminster Abbey — largely, however, built under the supervision of his assistant.

Wren, Jenny. See Cleaver, Fanny.

Wrestlers (res'lėrz), The. A Greek original group, of marble, in the Tribuna of the Uffizi, Florence. It represents two youths struggling to the utmost stretch of every muscle, though one is already vanquished. The composition is skilful, and the technical knowledge and execution are remarkable.

Wrexham (reks'am). A town in Denbighshire, Wales, 25 miles south of Liverpool. It has a noted church. Population, 14,966.

Wright (rīt), Carroll Davidson. Born at Dunbarton, N. H., July 25, 1840: died at Worcester, Mass., Feb. 20, 1909. An American statistician. He served in the Union army in the Civil War; was chief of the Massachusetts bureau of labor statistics 1873–88; and was appointed first commissioner of labor in the Interior Department, Washington, in 1884. He has published various reports of Massachusetts censuses, statistics of labor, "The Factory System of the United States" (1882), "Convict Labor" (1886), "Strikes and Lockouts" (1887), etc.

Wright, George Frederick. Born at Whitehall, N. Y., Jan. 22, 1838. An American Congregational clergyman and geologist, professor of New Testament language and literature at Oberlin Theological Seminary 1881–92, professor of the Harmony of Science and Revelation 1892, and connected with the U. S. Survey 1884–92. He has written "Logic of Christian Evidences" (1880), "Studies in Science and Religion" (1882), "Glacial Boundary in Ohio, Indiana, and Kentucky" (1884), "Ice Age in North America" (1889), "Man and the Glacial Period" (1892), etc.

Wright, Horatio Governeur. Born at Clinton, Conn., March 6, 1820: died at Washington, D. C., July 2, 1899. An American general and engineer. He graduated at West Point in 1841; served as engineer at Bull Run and in the Port Royal expedition in 1861; served in Florida in 1862 as brigadier-general of volunteers; became major-general of volunteers in July, 1862; commanded the Department of the Ohio 1862–63; was division commander in the army of the Potomac 1863–64; and succeeded to the command of the 6th corps in May, 1864. He took part in the defense of Washington in 1864, and in the Shenandoah campaign (especially at Cedar Creek), and pierced the lines at Petersburg April 2, 1865. He was brevetted major-general in the United States army in 1865, and later was chief of engineers. He retired in 1884.

Wright, Joseph. Born at Derby, England, Sept. 3, 1734: died there, Aug. 29, 1797. An English portrait-, landscape-, and genre-painter: known as "Wright of Derby." He was a pupil of Hudson, Sir Joshua Reynolds's master, and originally painted portraits only, in which he was a rival of Gainsborough.

Wright, Joseph. Born at Bordentown, N. J., July 16, 1756: died at Philadelphia, 1793. An American portrait-painter. He studied in London and Paris; settled in New York in 1787; removed to Philadelphia in 1790; and became die-sinker to the mint in 1792. He painted General and Mrs. Washington, Madison, John Jay, and other distinguished persons.

Wright, Silas. Born at Amherst, Mass., May 24, 1795: died at Canton, N. Y., Aug. 27, 1847. An American statesman. He graduated at Middlebury College in 1815; studied law; settled at Canton, St. Lawrence County, New York, and became surrogate of St. Lawrence County and later State senator; was Democratic member of Congress from New York 1827–29; was comptroller of the State of New York 1829–33; was United States senator 1833–44; and was governor of New York 1845–47. He opposed the anti-rent rioters, and declined several cabinet offices and foreign missions.

Wright, Thomas. Born near Ludlow, England, April 23, 1810: died at London, Dec. 23, 1877. An English antiquary and historian. He was one of the founders of the Percy, Camden, and Shakspere societies, and the British Archæological Association. He directed the excavation of Uriconium. His numerous works include "Early English Poetry," in black letter (1836), an edition of Geoffrey of Monmouth's "Life of Merlin" (with Michel, 1838), "Queen Elizabeth and her Times," a series of original letters (1838). He edited "Political Songs of England" (1839), "Reliquiæ Antiquæ" (with Halliwell, 1839), "Political Ballads" (1841), Map's Latin poems (1841), "The Vision and Creed of Piers Plowman" (1842), "Biographia Literaria" (1842), "The Chester Plays" (1843–47), "Anecdota Literaria" (1844), "The Archæological Album" (1845). He also wrote "Essays on Subjects Connected with the Literature, Popular Superstitions, and History of England in the Middle Ages" (1846); edited "The Canterbury Tales" (1847–51), "Early Travels in Palestine" (1848), and various editions of Early English works; wrote "England under the House of Hanover, illustrated from the Caricatures and Satires of the Day" (1848: a new edition in 1868, entitled "Caricature History of the Georges, etc."), "History of Ireland" (1848–52), "Narratives of Sorcery and Magic" (1851), "The Celt, the Roman, and the Saxon" (1852), "Universal Pronouncing Dictionary and Expositor of the English Language" (1852–56), "History of Scotland" (1852–1857), "Wanderings of an Antiquary" (1854), "Dictionary of Obsolete and Provincial English" (1857), "A Volume of Vocabularies" (1857), "History of King Arthur and the Knights of the Round Table," compiled from Malory (1858), "History of France" (1858–62), "Les cent nouvelles nouvelles" (medieval tales, 1858), descriptions of Uriconium, "Political Poems and Songs relating to English History" (1859–61), "Essays on Archæological Subjects" (1861), "Domestic Manners and Sentiments in England during the Middle Ages" (1862); edited Giraldus Cambrensis (1863); wrote a "History of Caricature and Grotesque" (1865); translated, at the author's request, Napoleon's "Vie de Jules César" (1865–66); and wrote "Womankind in Western Europe" (1869), "Uriconium" (1872), and "Anglo-Latin Satirical Poets of the Twelfth Century" (1877).

Wright, William Aldis. Born about 1836. An English writer and editor. He was a graduate of Trinity College, Cambridge; and became its librarian, and in 1888 its vice-master. He edited "Bacon's Essays, etc." (1862), "The Cambridge Shakspere" (with William George Clark, 1863–66), the "Globe Edition" of Shakspere (with W. G. Clark, 1864), "The Bible Word-book" (with J. Eastwood, 1866), Bacon's "Advancement of Learning" (1869), and a number of Early English texts.

Wriothesley (rots'li or rot'es-li), Henry, third Earl of Southampton. Born Oct. 6, 1573: died in the Netherlands, Nov. 10, 1624. An English politician and soldier: a friend of Shakspere who dedicated to him "Venus and Adonis" and "The Rape of Lucrece." He was accused of taking part in the treason of Essex. He was a leading colonizer of North America, and governor of the Virginia Company.

Wroxeter (rok'se-tėr). A village in Shropshire, England, situated on the Severn 5 miles southeast of Shrewsbury. It is on the site of the Roman city of Uriconium.

Wulfila. See Ulfilas.

Wülker (vülk'er), Richard Paul. Born at Frankfort-on-the-Main, July 29, 1845: died Feb. 8, 1910. A German student of Old English philology, professor at Leipsic 1875–1910. In 1876 he became the editor of "Anglia."

Wun (wön). A former district in Berar, British India, intersected by lat. 20° N., long. 78° 30′ E. Area, 3,910 square miles. Incorporated since 1905 in the New Yeotmal District.

Wunderlich (vön'der-liċh), Karl August. Born at Sulz on the Neckar, Aug. 4, 1815: died at Leipsic, Sept. 25, 1877. A German physician and medical writer, professor at Leipsic from 1850. His chief work is "Handbuch der Pathologie und Therapie" (1846–54).

Wundt (vönt), Wilhelm Max. Born at Neckarau, Baden, Aug. 16, 1832. A distinguished German physiologist and psychologist, professor of philosophy at Leipsic from 1875. Among his works are "Die Lehre von der Muskelbewegung" (1858), "Vorlesungen über die Menschen- und Tierseele" (1863), "Lehrbuch der Physiologie des Menschen" (1865), "Grundzüge der physiologischen Psychologie" (1874: 2d ed. 1880), "Logik" (1880–83), "Ethik" (1886), etc.

Wupper (vöp'per), or Wipper (vip'per). A river in the Rhine Province, Prussia, which joins the Rhine 7 miles north of Cologne. Its valley contains the manufacturing towns Elberfeld, Barmen, Solingen, etc. Length, 65 miles.

Wurmser (vörm'zer), Count Dagobert Sigmund von. Born in Alsace, May 7, 1724: died at Vienna, Aug. 27, 1797. An Austrian field-marshal. He entered the French army in 1741; served in the Seven Years' War; entered the Austrian service as colonel in 1762; became a lieutenant field-marshal; and served in the War of the Bavarian Succession (capturing Habelschwerdt Jan. 18, 1779). On the outbreak of the war with France in 1793 he crossed the Rhine at the head of an army corps; conquered at Rohrbach June 20, at Germersheim July 5, and at Easlingen July 27, and aided in the capture of the Weissenburg lines; but was obliged to recross the Rhine in December. He defeated the French near Mannheim Oct. 23 and 29, 1795, and captured Mannheim. In 1796 he was appointed commander in Italy against Napoleon, but was defeated by him at Castiglione, Roveredo, and Bassano, and was besieged in Mantua and forced to surrender Feb. 2, 1797.

Wurschen (vörsh'en). A village near Bautzen, Saxony: the headquarters of the sovereigns of Russia and Prussia at the battle of Bautzen in May, 1813, whence the battle is sometimes called the battle of Wurschen.

Würtemberg, G. Württemberg (vürt'temberg), formerly Wirtemberg. A kingdom of southern Germany, and a state of the German Empire, the third in area and the fourth in population. Capital, Stuttgart. It is bounded by Bavaria on the northeast, east, and southeast, by Lake Constance on the south, and by Baden on the southwest, west, and northwest. It nearly incloses Hohenzollern, and has exclaves in Hohenzollern and Baden. The Black Forest is in the southwest, and the Swabian Jura traverses the country from southwest to northeast. The chief rivers are the Neckar and Danube. It is an agricultural country, producing wheat, oats, hemp, barley, potatoes, hops, wine, timber, etc.; it has also manufactures of cotton and woolen goods, paper, machinery, musical instruments, linen, clocks, beer, arms, powder, etc. Würtemberg is divided into four circles (Kreise): Neckar, Jagst, Black Forest, and Danube. The government is a hereditary constitutional monarchy. The estates of the realm consist of an upper chamber and a second chamber. It sends 4 representatives to the Bundesrat and 17 to the Reichstag. Over two thirds of the population are Protestant, and less than one third Roman Catholic. The early inhabitants of this region were the Suevi. It was partly under Roman rule from the 1st to the 3d century; was overrun by the Alamanni, who were conquered by Clovis; and formed part of the duchy of Swabia. The real history of Würtemberg begins in the 13th century with its counts. Count Eberhard im Bart was raised to the rank of duke in 1495. Würtemberg suffered in the Thirty Years' War; ceded Montbéliard to France (which had seized it in 1793) in 1796; received considerable territory in 1803, and the electorate; became a kingdom in 1806, and joined the Confederation of the Rhine; sided with the Allies in 1813; entered the Germanic Confederation; received a constitution in 1819; was the scene of liberal movements in 1848–50; and sided with Austria in 1866, and was forced to pay an indemnity. It entered the German Empire in 1871. Area, 7,534 square miles. Population, 2,337,087.

Wurtz (vürts), Charles Adolphe. Born at Strasburg, Nov. 26, 1817: died at Paris, May 12, 1884. A noted French chemist, successor of Dumas (1853) as professor of organic chemistry at the Sorbonne, and of Orfila as professor of toxicology at the École de Médecine, and dean of the medical faculty 1866–76.

Würzburg (vürts'börg). An ancient bishopric and principality of the German Empire, founded in 741 (?). The greater part of it was granted to Bavaria in 1803; it was given to the former Grand Duke of Tuscany in 1805, and made an electorate; entered the Confederation of the Rhine in 1806, and became a grand duchy; and was ceded to Bavaria in 1815.

Würzburg. The capital of Lower Franconia, Bavaria, situated on the Main in lat. 49° 47′ N., long. 9° 54′ E. It is a commercial center, and has manufactures of tobacco, beer, railway-carriages, etc. It contains the former episcopal (now royal) palace, begun in 1720 in the rococo style, and one of the most effective examples of its type. It measures 550 by 290 feet. The grand staircase is unusually fine, and like the chapel is frescoed by Tiepolo. The University of Würzburg was founded in 1403, but was soon discontinued, and was refounded in 1582. It became noted especially for its medical department. Würzburg was the capital of the old principality of Würzburg, and the capital of a grand duchy in Napoleonic times. Its citadel was bombarded by the Prussians July 27, 1866, and the town was entered by the Prussians Aug. 2. Population, commune, 80,327.

Wuthering Heights (wuтн'ėr-ing hitz). A novel by Emily Brontë, published under the nom de plume of Ellis Bell in 1846.

Wu Ting Fang (wö ting fang). Born in the province of Kwangtung, China. A contemporary Chinese scholar and diplomat. He was educated at Canton, Hong-Kong, and Lincoln's Inn, London, and was called to the English bar. He was appointed viceroy of Chi-li in 1882; was minister of China to the United States, Spain, and Peru, 1897–1902; and was minister to the United States 1907–09.

Wuttke (vöt'ke), Heinrich. Born at Brieg, Silesia, Feb. 12, 1818: died at Leipsic, June 14, 1876. A German historian and politician: one of the founders of the "Great German" party.

Wuttke, Karl Friedrich Adolf. Born at Breslau, Nov. 18, 1819: died at Halle, April 12, 1870. A German Protestant theologian and historian, professor at Halle from 1861.

Wyandot, or Wyandotte (wī'an-dot), or Wandot (won'dot). [The name probably means 'islanders,' or 'dwellers on a peninsula.' The French name was Huron, from the French huré, the arrangement of the hair by the tribe suggesting the bristles of a wild boar.] A tribe of North American Indians. When first known (about 1615) they occupied a narrow territory between Georgian Bay and Lake Simcoe in Ontario. They were then at war with the Iroquois, and the contest was continued until their defeat by the latter in 1648–49, when many fled to the Tionontati, and with them were driven from place to place. The present name came into use after the removal of part of the tribe together with the Tionontati, then incorporated in it, from Detroit to Sandusky in 1751. Subsequently they spread along the whole south and west shores of Lake Erie, and acquired a permanent influence among the tribes of the region. They sided with the French until the close of Pontiac's war, and afterward supported the British in the War of 1812. They now number about 400, chiefly in Oklahoma.

Wyandotte (wī'an-dot). A city in Wayne County, Michigan, situated on the Detroit River 10 miles south-southwest of Detroit. Population, 8,287, (1910).

Wyandotte. A novel by Cooper, published in 1843.

Wyandotte Cave. A cave in Crawford County, southern Indiana, situated near Leavenworth: noted for its extensive chambers and its stalactites and stalagmites. Length, 22 miles.

Wyandotte Constitution. The constitution under which Kansas was admitted to the Union, adopted at Wyandotte (now a part of Kansas City, Kan.) in 1859.

Wyant (wī'ant), Alexander H. Born at Port Washington, Ohio, Jan. 11, 1836: died at New York, Nov. 29, 1892. An American landscape-painter. He studied in Germany, and settled in New York in 1864. He suffered a stroke of paralysis about 1877, and afterward painted with his left hand.

Wyat, Sir Thomas. See Wyatt.

Wyatt (wī'at), or Wyat (wī'at), Sir Thomas. Born in Kent, 1503: died at Sherborne, Dorsetshire, Oct. 11, 1542. An English diplomatist and poet, sent by Henry VIII. on various diplomatic missions. He wrote the first English sonnets, and his poems were printed with Surrey's in 1557.

Wyatt, Sir Thomas, "The Younger." Born about 1520: executed at London, April 11, 1554. Son of Sir Thomas Wyatt. He commanded at Boulogne; joined with the Duke of Suffolk in favor of Lady Jane Grey and against Queen Mary 1553–54; and led the men of Kent against London in Feb., 1554, but was captured. Webster and Dekker wrote a play on the subject, called "The Famous History of Sir Thomas Wyatt." It was printed in 1607.

Wyatt's Rebellion. The unsuccessful insurrection against Queen Mary and in favor of Lady Jane Grey, led by the Duke of Suffolk and Sir Thomas Wyatt 1553–54.

Wyborg. See Viborg.

Wycherley (wich'ėr-li), William. Born at Clive, near Shrewsbury, England, about 1640: died at London, Jan. 1, 1716. An English dramatist. He went to France when quite young, and mingled in the society of the précieuses at the Hôtel de Rambouillet. On returning he went to Oxford, and later to the Middle Temple, and studied law; became a courtier at the court of Charles II.; and was imprisoned several years for debt after the death of his first wife, the Countess of Drogheda, whose fortune involved him in litigation. James II. set him free, gave him a pension, and paid his debts out of admiration for his play "The Plain Dealer." In 1715 he married again, but died shortly after. He wrote the plays "Love in a Wood" (1672), "The Gentleman Dancing Master" (1672), "The Country Wife" (1673), and "The Plain Dealer" (1677).

Wych (wich) street. A London street which opens behind Holywell street, close to the entrance of Clement's Inn. It contains some curious old houses, and is very narrow. This street is famous in the annals of London thieving for the exploits of Jack Sheppard, who gave rendezvous to his boon companions at the White Lion (now pulled down) in White Lion Passage. It was from the Angel Inn in Wych street that Bishop Hooper, in 1554, was taken to die for his faith at Gloucester. Hare, London, I. 45.

Wyclif, or Wycliffe, or Wiclif, or Wickliffe (wik'lif), John. Born at Spreswel (thought to be either Hipswell or Barford), near Richmond, Yorkshire, about 1324: died at Lutterworth, Leicestershire, Dec. 31, 1384. A celebrated English religious reformer, called "the Morning Star of the Reformation." He was a fellow, and later (1360) master, of Balliol College, Oxford; and became rector of Fillingham, Lincolnshire, in the same year, and in 1368 of Ludgershall, Buckinghamshire, and in 1374 of Lutterworth. (The warden of Canterbury Hall 1365–67 was probably another John Wyclif, of Merton, Oxford, vicar of Mayfield: there is much confusion between the early life of these two.) He went with John of Gaunt as royal ambassador to confer with papal nuncios at Bruges in 1374; was a popular preacher in London; and was summoned before Convocation in 1377 as an enemy to Rome on account of his attacks on the inordinate arrogance and wealth and power of the higher clergy (this blow was really aimed at John of Gaunt). The Pope signed five bulls against him, authorizing his imprisonment. The schism in the papacy, due to the election of Clement VII. in place of Urban VI., induced him to throw off his allegiance to the papacy. He opposed the doctrine of transubstantiation at Oxford in 1380; was condemned by the university; and his party was opposed and persecuted by Courtenay (archbishop of Canterbury) and others in 1382. He went back to Lutterworth, where he wrote ceaselessly and fearlessly against papal claims, and in opposition to mere formalism. On Dec. 28, 1384, he was seized with paralysis while hearing mass, and died in a few days. In 1428 his bones were exhumed, burned, and their ashes cast into the Swift, by order of the Synod of Constance. He made the first complete translation of the Bible into English (about 1382) from the Vulgate, assisted by Nicholas of Hereford. The latter translated the Old Testament and the apocryphal books to about the third chapter of the Book of Baruch. Wyclif certainly translated the Gospels (probably about 1360), and presumably all the rest. He wrote many tracts and sermons: "De Juramento Arnaldi," "Trialogus," "De officio pastorali," "De ecclesia," "De benedicta incarnatione," "De Dominio divino," etc. His works were edited by the Wyclif Society 1882–92.

Wyclifites, or Wycliffites (wik'lif-īts). The followers of Wyclif: commonly called Lollards. Wyclif's doctrines, propagated in his lifetime, and later by open-air preachers called "poor priests," largely coincided with the later teachings of Luther.

Wycombe (wī'kọm), or High Wycombe, or Chipping Wycombe (chip'ing wī'kọm). A town in Buckinghamshire, England, 31 miles west-northwest of London. It has manufactures of chairs and lace. Population, 15,542.

Wye (wī). A river in Wales and England. It forms in its lower course the boundary between Monmouthshire and Gloucestershire, and joins the estuary of the Severn near Chepstow, 11 miles north by west of Bristol. It is noted for its picturesque scenery. Length, about 130 miles; navigable for barges to Hereford.

Wygo, or Vigo (vē'gō), Lake. A lake in the government of Olonetz, Russia, 30 miles north of Lake Onega. Its outlet is by the Wyg to the Bay of Onega. Length, 45 miles.

Wykeham, William of. See William of Wykeham.

Wyman (wī'man), Jeffries. Born at Chelmsford, Mass., Aug. 11, 1814: died at Bethlehem, N. H., Sept. 4, 1874. An American comparative anatomist. He graduated at Harvard in 1833; was professor at Hampden-Sidney College, Virginia, 1843–1847; and became professor of anatomy at Harvard in 1847. He founded the Museum of Comparative Anatomy; was curator of the Peabody Museum; and was president of the Boston Society of Natural History. He lectured on comparative anatomy and physiology before the Lowell Institute in 1849. He published technical works.

Wyndham (win'dam), Sir Charles. Born in 1841. An English actor. He studied medicine, but preferred the stage. He went to the United States in 1862, and first appeared at Washington. He then served for some time as surgeon in the 19th army corps. He made his first appearance in London in 1868, returned to America the next year, and has since been successful on both sides of the Atlantic. Since 1876 he has managed the Criterion, London, and has opened Wyndham's Theatre and the New Theatre, London. He was knighted in 1902.

Wynkin de Worde. See Worde.

Wyntoun, or Winton (win'tọn), Andrew of. Lived in the beginning of the 15th century. A Scottish chronicler, canon of St. Andrews. He wrote a chronicle of Scotland (ed. by D. Laing 1872–79).

Wyoming (wī-ō'ming). A State of the United States, bounded by Montana, South Dakota, Nebraska, Colorado, Utah, and Idaho. Capital, Cheyenne. The surface is mountainous (the Rocky Mountains), the chief ranges being the Medicine Bow, Laramie, Sweet Water, Big Horn, Wind River, Absaroka, Teton, and Shoshone. The leading industry is stock-raising. There are also valuable coal-mines and copper-mines. It contains 13 counties, has 2 senators, and sends 1 representative to Congress. Wyoming was included in large part in the Louisiana Purchase; belonged formerly to Dakota Territory; was organized as a Territory in 1868; and was admitted to the Union in 1890. Area, 97,890 square miles. Population, 145,965, (1910).

Wyoming Valley. A valley in Luzerne County, Pennsylvania, traversed by the North Branch of the Susquehanna. It is very fertile, and contains beds of anthracite coal. It was settled in 1762 and later years by colonists from Connecticut and Pennsylvania; and was invaded by Tories and Indians under Butler. The defeat of the Americans, July 3, 1778, and the subsequent surrender of the fort, were attended by massacres on the part of the Indians (much exaggerated in Campbell's description in his "Gertrude of Wyoming"). The settlers were finally confirmed in the possession of the valley about 1787.

Wyre (wīr) Forest. A forest in Worcestershire, England.

Wyss (vis), Johann Rudolf. Born at Bern, March 13, 1781: died there, March 31, 1830. A Swiss author, professor of philosophy and chief librarian at Bern. His best-known work is "Der schweizerische Robinson" ("The Swiss Family Robinson," 1813).

Wythe (wiтн), George. Born in Virginia, 1726: died at Richmond, June 8, 1806. An American statesman and jurist. As a member of the Virginia House of Burgesses he drew up a remonstrance to the House of Commons against the Stamp Act; was delegate to the Continental Congress and a signer of the Declaration of Independence; was speaker of the Virginia House of Delegates; was chancellor of the Virginia court; and was professor of law at William and Mary College. He was poisoned in his eighty-first year.

X. Pseudonym of Eustace Budgell in the "Spectator."

Xalapa. See Jalapa.

Xalisco. See Jalisco.

Xanthippe (zan-thip′ē). [Gr. Ξανθίππη.] The wife of the Greek philosopher Socrates, proverbial for her bad temper.

Xanthippus (zan-thip′us). [Gr. Ξάνθιππος.] The father of Pericles. He commanded the Athenian fleet at the victory of Mycale 479 B. C.

Xanthippus. A Spartan commander. He organized the Carthaginian army in the first Punic war, and won a victory over Regulus in 255 B. C.

Xanthus (zan′thus). [Gr. Ξάνθος.] In ancient geography, a city of Lycia, Asia Minor, situated on the river Xanthus near its mouth. It was besieged and destroyed by the Persian general Harpagus about 545 B. C., and again by the Romans under Brutus 43 or 42 B. C. Important antiquities were discovered there by Fellows about 1838. Among them is the Nereid monument, so called, a cella with a beautiful Ionic peristyle, dating from the middle of the 4th century B. C. The chief frieze, on the basement, represents a battle of cavalry and foot-soldiers; the second frieze illustrates a siege; the third frieze, on the cella, is sculptured with sacrificial and feasting scenes; the fourth frieze, on the entablature, shows hunting episodes and homage to an official personage. The principal parts of the monument have been transported to the British Museum.

Xanthus. See Scamander.

Xaraes, or Xarayes. See Charaès.

Xaragua (hä-räg′wä). A region or "province" in the southwestern part of the island of Haiti at the time of the conquest. Its principal chief was Behechio, whose sister, Anacáona, is celebrated in the early history of the island. See these names.

Xauxa. See Jauja.

Xaver (ksä′ver), Prince (Franz August Xaver). Born Aug. 25, 1730: died at Dresden, June 20, 1806. Younger son of Augustus III. of Saxony and Poland. He served on the French side in the Seven Years' War, and was administrator of Saxony 1763–68.

Xavier (zav′i-ėr; Sp. pron. hä-vē-är′), Francisco (Francis), Saint. Born at the castle of Xaviero, Navarre, April 7, 1506: died on the island of Sancian, Dec. 2, 1552. A famous Spanish Jesuit missionary, called "the Apostle of the Indies." He was educated at the University of Paris, and was one of the founders of the Society of Jesus. He went to Italy in 1536, and labored there for several years; went to Lisbon in 1540, and sailed from there in 1541 on a Portuguese mission to the East Indies; arrived in Goa in 1542; labored in western and southern India, Malacca, the Moluccas, and Japan; and died on his way to undertake a mission to China. His letters were edited in 1795. He was canonized in 1622.

Xenia (zē′ni-ą). The capital of Greene County, Ohio, 53 miles northeast of Cincinnati: the seat of several educational institutions. Population, 8,706, (1910).

Xenien (ksä′ni-en). A series of epigrams by Goethe and Schiller. Most of them were directed against writers of the time.

Xenocrates (ze-nok′ra-tēz). [Gr. Ξενοκράτης.] A Platonic philosopher (396–314), the successor of Speusippus as head of the Academy, over which he presided for 25 years.

Xenophanes (ze-nof′a-nēz). [Gr. Ξενοφάνης.] Born at Colophon, Asia Minor, about 570 B. C.: died about 480 B. C. A Greek philosopher, the founder of the Eleatic school. He settled at Elea in Italy about 536 B. C. Fragments of his elegies and his didactic poem "On Nature" have been preserved.

Xenophon (zen′ō-fon). [Gr. Ξενοφῶν.] Born at Athens about 430 B. C.: died after 357 B. C. A celebrated Greek historian and essayist, a disciple of Socrates. He joined the expedition of Cyrus the Younger in 401, and after the battle of Cunaxa and the murder of the Greek generals became the chief leader of the 10,000 Greeks in their march to the Black Sea. (See Anabasis.) He later entered the Lacedæmonian service; fought on the Spartan side at the battle of Coronea in 394; was banished from Athens; settled at Scillus in Elcia; and spent his last years in Corinth (?). He wrote the "Anabasis," "Hellenica" (in 7 books), the romance "Cyropædia," "Memorabilia of Socrates" (a defense of his master's memory), "Œconomics," essays on hunting and horsemanship, "Symposium," "Revenues of Athens," "Hiero," "Agesilaus," etc.

Xeres. See Jerez de la Frontera.

Xeres, or Jeres (hā′rās), Francisco de. Born about 1504: died after 1547. A Spanish historian. From 1530 to 1534 he was secretary of Francisco Pizarro, taking part in the conquest of Peru and returning to Spain with the first instalment of gold obtained from Atahualpa. By order of Pizarro he wrote a history of the conquest down to Atahualpa's death: this was published at Seville 1534 and 1547. There are several translations and modern editions.

Xerxes (zėrk′sēz) I. [Gr. Ξέρξης, OPers. Khsayārshā.] Born about 519 B. C.: assassinated 465 or 464 B. C. King of Persia, son of Darius Hystaspes: identical with the biblical Ahasuerus. He succeeded to the throne in 486 or 485, assembled a large army for the conquest of Greece; bridged the Hellespont; traversed Thrace, Macedonia, and Thessaly; was resisted at Thermopylæ (which see) in 480; burned Athens; and was defeated at Salamis (which see) in 480, and returned to Asia Minor. His generals were defeated at Platæa and Mycale in 479, but continued the war with Greece.

> The site of this [Xerxes's] bridge is supposed to have been from Nagára Point to the low spot eastward of Sestos, where the level shore on either side is convenient for the march of troops. The channel is more than 7 stadia broad, being about 1¼ miles English.
>
> Rawlinson, Herod., IV. 33, note.

Xerxes II. King of Persia, son of Artaxerxes I. He reigned for a few weeks in 425 or 424 B. C.

Xerxes. A tragedy by Cibber, produced in 1699.

Xibalba. See Votan.

Xibitos. See Hibitos.

Ximanas. See Jumanas.

Ximena (hē-mā′nä). In Spanish history, the wife of the Cid.

Ximena, or the Heroic Daughter. An adaptation of Corneille's "Cid" by Colley Cibber, produced in 1712, printed in 1718.

Ximenes (zi-mē′nēz; Sp. pron. hē-mā′nās), or Jimenes (hē-mā′nās), Francisco. Born at Torrelaguna, Spain, 1436: died Nov. 8, 1517. A Spanish cardinal and statesman. He studied at Alcalá de Henares and Salamanca; went to Rome; took possession of a benefice in Spain by virtue of a papal letter; but was dispossessed by the Archbishop of Toledo and imprisoned. He was afterward restored and made vicar-general; became a Franciscan monk and confessor to Queen Isabella (1492), and later a Franciscan provincial; and was made archbishop of Toledo and primate of Spain in 1495. In 1506–07 he was provisional regent of Castile; became a cardinal in 1507, and inquisitor-general; led an expedition against Oran in 1509; and was regent of Spain 1516–17. He printed the Complutensian polyglot Bible and founded the University of Alcalá de Henares.

Ximenes de Quesada (hē-mā′nās dā kā-sä′thä), Gonsalo. Born in Granada, Spain, about 1498: died after 1576. Conqueror of New Granada. He was a lawyer; was lieutenant of Lugo at Santa Marta; left that place to explore the interior, with 800 men, April 5, 1536; and, after enduring great hardships, reached and conquered the rich plateau of Cundinamarca, and founded Bogotá, Aug. 6, 1538. Charles V. refused to make him governor of the country, and he was persecuted and imprisoned. Later he was given military commands, and in 1569 led an expedition into the Orinoco valley in search of El Dorado. Some accounts say that he died a centenarian in 1597.

Xincas (hēn′käs). An extinct tribe of Indians of southern Guatemala, near the Pacific coast, and close to the borders of Salvador. When found by Alvarado in 1524, they were savages of a low grade, living in villages built of wood and thatch. A small vocabulary of their language which has been preserved appears to indicate a distinct stock. It has been supposed that the Xincas occupied the highlands of Guatemala previous to the advent of the Quiches and Cakchiquels.

Xingú (shēn-gö′). A southern tributary of the Amazon, in the states of Matto Grosso and Pará, Brazil. It was explored by Von den Steinen in 1885. Length, about 1,100 miles; navigable for steamers 110 miles. Sometimes written Chingú.

Xiphias (zif′i-as). [L., 'the Sword-fish.'] 1. A constellation made by Petrus Theodori in the 15th century, in the south pole of the ecliptic, and now named Dorado.—2. In older authors, a sword-shaped comet.

Xiquitos. Same as Chiquitos.

Xisuthrus (zi-sö′thrus). According to Berosus the historiographer of Chaldea, the name of the last of the first decad of mythical kings of Babylonia, who was advised by the gods to save himself and his family from the deluge by building a ship. He corresponds to the Noah of Genesis and the Hasisatra of the cuneiform account of the deluge.

> With the Deluge the mythical history of Babylonia takes a new departure. From this event to the Persian conquest was a period of 36,000 years, or an astronomical cycle called saros. Xisuthros, with his family and friends, alone survived the waters which drowned the rest of mankind on account of their sins. He had been ordered by the gods to build a ship, to pitch it within and without, and to stock it with animals of every species. Xisuthros sent out first a dove, then a swallow, and lastly a raven, to discover whether the earth was dry. The dove and the swallow returned to the ship, and it was only when the raven flew away that the rescued hero ventured to leave his ark. He found that he had been stranded on the peak of the mountain of Nizir, "the mountain of the world," whereon the Accadians believed the heaven to rest,—where, too, they placed the habitation of their gods and the cradle of their own race. Since Nizir lay among the mountains of Pir Mam, a little south of Rowandiz, its mountain must be identified with Rowandiz itself. On its peak Xisuthros offered sacrifices, piling up cups of wine by sevens; and the rainbow, "the glory of Anu,' appeared in heaven, in covenant that the world should never again be destroyed by a flood.
>
> Sayce, Anc. Empires, p. 106.

Xivaros. See Jivaros.

Xochicalco (hō-chē-käl′kō). A locality in Mexico, 75 miles southwest of Mexico City, noted for its ruins. The principal structure is a truncated pyramid or mound with 5 terraces supported by mason-work, and a walled area on the summit. Originally there was a smaller stone pyramid on top, but most of this has been carried away for building-material.

Xochimilco (hō-chē-mēl′kō). [Nahuatl, 'field of flowers.'] One of the lakes of the Mexican valley, about 7 miles south-southeast of Mexico City. It is separated from Lake Chalco by only a narrow causeway. At the time of the conquest it was nearly or quite confluent with Lake Tezcuco, which surrounded Mexico.

Xosa (ksō′sä), or Amaxosa (ä-mä-ksō′sä). A Bantu tribe of British South Africa. Their land borders in the north on the Kei River, in the southeast on the ocean, and in the south on Cape Colony. They are closely related to the Zulus. Their language is one of the oldest forms of Bantu speech. Owing to the custom of "uku-hlonipa," which forbids a female to pronounce the name of any male relative, or even its emphatic syllable, the women use a different vocabulary from that of the men. The letter X in their name is the lateral click, similar to that used for urging forward a horse.

Xury (zū′ri). A servant of Robinson Crusoe: a character in Defoe's romance of that name.

X. Y. Z. Mission. An American embassy to France in 1797, consisting of C. C. Pinckney, Marshall, and Gerry. An attempt was made by three French agents (disguised as X., Y., and Z.) to bribe them. The correspondence was disclosed in 1798.

Y or Ij (ī). An arm of the Zuyder Zee, near Amsterdam, connected with the North Sea by the North Sea Canal.

Yablonoi (yä-blō-noi′) Mountains. The name of the Stanovoi mountain system in its southwestern part.

Yacundas. See Jacundas.

Yadkin (yad′kin). The name of the Great Pedee in North Carolina.

Yaguas (yä-gwäs′), or Yahuas (yä-wäs′). Indians of northern Peru, on the upper Amazon between Nauta and Pebas. They were gathered into mission villages 1683–1727, but now live nearly in a wild state. They go naked, or wear only a strip of bark cloth about the loins, with feather ornaments on the head and wrists. Their arms are lances, bows and arrows, and blow-guns. Physically they are described as a handsome race, and rather light-colored; they are docile and friendly to the whites. Two or three thousand remain. The Yagua language appears to be of mixed origin: it is related to that of the Pebas.

Yahgans. See Fuegians.

Yahoos (yä-höz′). [A made name, probably meant to suggest disgust; cf. yah, an interjection of disgust.] A name given by Swift, in "Gulliver's Travels," to a feigned race of brutes having the form of man and all his degrading passions. They are placed in contrast with the Houyhnhums, or horses endowed with reason, the whole being designed as a satire on the human race.

Yahuas. See Yaguas.

Yahveh (yä-vā′). [Heb. Yahveh or Yahweh.] The Hebrew name of God. See the extract.

> There are two opinions as to what was the actual pronunciation of the sacred name while Hebrew was still a spoken language. On the one hand, we may gather from the contemporary Assyrian monuments that it was pronounced Yahu. Wherever an Israelitish name is met with in the cuneiform inscriptions which, like Jehu or Hezekiah is compounded with the divine title, the latter appears as Yahu, Jehu being Yahua, and Hezekiah Khazaki-yahu. Even according to the Masoretes it must be read Yeho (that is, Yāhu) when it forms part of a proper name. The early Gnostics, moreover, when they transcribed it in Greek characters, wrote Iaô (that is, Yahō). On the other hand, the four consonants, Y H V H, can hardly have been pronounced otherwise than as Yahveh, and this pronunciation is supported by the two Greek writers Theodoret and Epiphanios, who say that the word was sounded Yavé. The form Yahveh, however, is incompatible with the form Yahu (Yeho), which appears in proper names; and it has been maintained that it is due to one of those plays on words of which there are so many examples in the Old Testament. The spelling with a final A was adopted, it has been supposed, in order to remind the reader of the Hebrew verb which signifies "to be," and to which there seems to be a distinct allusion in Exod. iii. 14. Sayce, Anc. Monuments, p. 75.

Yajurveda (ya-jör-vā′da). See Veda.

Yaka (yä′kä), or Bayaka (bä-yä′kä). A Bantu tribe of the French Kongo, back of the coast-station Mayumba. They are also called Banjaka.

Yakala (yä-kä′lä), or Mayakala (mä-yä-kä′-lä), also called Mayaka. A Bantu tribe of the lower Kuangu (Quango) valley, mostly in the Belgian Kongo (lat. 6°–7° S.), but partly in Angola. Their king is called Muene Putu Kassongo, or Muata Yamvo Kassongo, and was nominally a vassal of the Muata Yamvo of Lunda. The tribe forms, ethnically and linguistically, the southern wing of the great Teke nation. The Portuguese call them Maiaccas, and in history they appear as Jagas.

Yakima (yak′i-mä), or Yakama (yak′ą-mä). A tribe of North American Indians found in 1805 on the head waters of Cataract (or Klikitat) and Tapteal (or Yakima) rivers, Washington. Of late the name Yakima includes a considerable proportion of the tribes speaking the Shahaptian language and probably originally having little connection with the Yakima proper. There are now about 1,000 Yakima on the reservation bearing their name in the State of Washington. See Shahaptian.

Yakima Pass. A pass over the Cascade Mountains in the State of Washington, about lat. 47° 20′ N. Height, about 3,600 feet. It is crossed by the Northern Pacific Railroad.

Yakima River. A river in the State of Washington which joins the Columbia above the mouth of the Snake. Length, over 200 miles.

Yakonan (ya′kō-nan). A linguistic stock of North American Indians: named from a corruption of the name of the principal tribe, the Yaquina or Yakwina. It is composed of four tribes, the Yaquina, Alsea, Siuslaw, and Kuitic or Lower Umpqua. They formerly lived on the Yaquina, Alsea, Siuslaw, and Umpqua rivers, in western Oregon: the survivors are now on the Siletz reservation, Tillamook County, Oregon.

Yakone. See Yaquina.

Yakub Khan (yä-köb′ khän). Born 1849. Son of Shere Ali, and his successor as ameer of Afghanistan in 1879. He signed a treaty with the British in 1879. He was suspected of complicity in the murder of the British envoy and others at Kabul on Sept. 3 in that year; was sent as prisoner to India; and was deposed in 1880.

Yakuts (yä-köts′). A people of Turkish or mixed Turkish origin, dwelling in Siberia in the neighborhood of the Lena.

Yakutsk (yä-kötsk′). 1. A province of Siberia, bounded by the Arctic Ocean, the Maritime Province, Amur, Transbaikalia, Irkutsk, and Yeniseisk. The surface is largely table-land, crossed by many mountain-ranges, and with tundras in the north. It has important gold-mines. The inhabitants are principally Yakuts. Area, 1,530,253 square miles. Population, 308,300.

2. The capital of the province of Yakutsk, situated near the Lena about lat. 62° N., long. 130° E. Population, 6,535.

Yale (yāl), Elihu. Born at or near Boston, Mass., April 5, 1648: died in England, July 8, 1721 (buried at Wrexham, Wales). An English colonial official in India, governor of Fort St. George, Madras. He gave a donation of books and money (to the value of about £800) to the collegiate school in New Haven, which was named for him Yale College.

Yale University. A famous institution of learning at New Haven, Connecticut. It was chartered in 1701 as a collegiate school, and opened at Saybrook, Connecticut (though the classes were first held at Killingworth and Milford). A new building was erected at New Haven, and in 1718 the college was transferred there and called Yale College on account of gifts received from Elihu Yale. It received a new charter in 1745, and in 1887 took the name Yale University. Besides the academical department it includes schools of philosophy; of medicine, founded in 1812; of theology (Congregational), founded in 1822; of law, founded in 1824; the Peabody Museum of Natural History; the Sheffield Scientific School, begun in 1847; and the School of Fine Arts, founded in 1864. The library contains about 450,000 volumes. It has about 500 instructors and 3,500 students.

Yalu, Battle of the. A naval engagement between the Japanese under Vice-Admiral Ito and the Chinese under Admiral Ting Ju Chang, off the Yalu River, Korea, Sept. 17, 1894, in which the Japanese were victorious.

Yama (ya-mä′). [Skt., 'the Twin.'] In the Rigveda, the name of the god who rules in heaven over the blessed—the Manes, Fathers, or Pitris—and is therefore called king. He is a son of Vivasvant, the god of the dawning daylight or morning sun, who is also the father of the Ashvins. Post-Vedic times see in him the ruler of the dead in the under-world, and understand the name as meaning 'Restrainer': the real meaning is 'Twin.' Yama and his sister Yami are the first human pair, who have preceded all to the realm beyond.

Yamacraw (yä′mą-krâ). A tribe of North American Indians who lived on the lower Savannah River, Georgia. They are best known through their chief Tomochichi, who was so friendly to the English colony at Savannah that he was called their protector, and was presented at the British court in 1733 by Oglethorpe. See Muskhogean.

Yamasi (yäm′ä-sē), or Jamasee, or Eamuses. A tribe of North American Indians who lived, at the beginning of the 18th century, on the north side of the lower Savannah River in South Carolina. The name is from the Creek language, and means 'gentle' or 'peaceable.' In 1715 they entered into a conspiracy against the English colonists which included all the coast tribes as far north as Cape Fear: the outbreak began with a massacre. After defeat they fled to the Spanish territory of Florida, where they were attacked by the Creeks about 1733 and destroyed as a tribe, many being absorbed. See Creek and Muskhogean.

Yampah (yam′pä) River, or Bear (bâr) River. A river in northwestern Colorado which joins Green River near the Utah frontier.

Yana. A river in Siberia which flows into the Arctic Ocean east of the Lena. Length, about 1,000 miles.

Yanan (yä′nan), or Noje (nō′zhā), or Nozi (nō′zē). A linguistic stock of North American Indians. They formerly lived from Round Mountain near Pit River, Shasta County, to Deer Creek, Tehama County, California; and are now almost extinct (they numbered 35 in 1884). The stock consists of a single tribe, the Yana. This tribe, to the number of nearly 3,000, was massacred by miners in 1864.

Yancey (yan′si), William Lowndes. Born at Ogeechee Shoals, Ga., Aug. 10, 1814: died near Montgomery, Ala., July 28, 1863. An American politician and lawyer. He was Democratic member of Congress from Alabama 1844–46; became a leader of the Southern advocates of secession; was presidential elector in 1856; withdrew from the Democratic National Convention at Charleston in 1860; and reported the ordinance of secession in the Alabama convention in 1861. He was a Confederate agent in Europe and Confederate senator.

Yang-chau (yäng′chou′). A city in the province of Kiang-su, China, situated on the Grand Canal 35 miles northeast of Nanking. Population, estimated, about 360,000.

Yang-tse-Kiang (yäng′ts″kyäng′), or Yang-tse, or Yang-tze (yäng′ts). [Chin., 'son of the sea.'] The largest river of the Chinese empire, called in its upper course the Kin-sha-Kiang, and lower down the Ta-Kiang ('great river'). It rises in the mountains, northern Tibet, about lat. 36° N., long. 91° E.; flows through Tibet and China; and empties into the Yellow Sea about lat. 31° 30′ N. Its chief tributaries are the Ya-lung, Min, Kia-ling, Han, Wu, and Lake Toongting. It is connected by the Grand Canal with the Yellow River. On it are Siuchu, Kweichow, Ichang, Hankow, Kiu-kiang, Ganking, and Nanking. Length, about 3,200 miles; navigable to Ichang.

Yanina. See Janina.

Yankee Doodle (yang′kē dō′dl). An American national air, probably of English origin in the middle of the 18th century. Its traditional author is Dr. Schuckburgh, a surgeon in the French and Indian war, about 1755. The original name of the song, not the air, was "The Yankee's Return from Camp."

Yankees (yang′kēz). [Origin uncertain. According to a common statement, Yankees is a var. of Yenkees or Yengees or Yaunghees, a name said to have been given by the Massachuset Indians to the English colonists, being, it is supposed, an Indian corruption of the E. word English, or, as some think, of the F. Anglais.] 1. Citizens of New England.—2. By extension, natives of the United States: chiefly a European use.—3. Soldiers of the Federal armies: so called by the Confederates during the Civil War.

Yankton (yangk′ton). A city in Yankton County, South Dakota, situated at the junction of the Dakota and Missouri rivers, in lat. 42° 51′ N.: formerly a capital of the Territory of Dakota. Population, 3,787, (1910).

Yankton Indians. A tribe of the Sioux.

Yao (you), or Wayao (wä-you′). A numerous Bantu tribe of Portuguese East Africa, between the upper Rovuma River, the Lujende, and a mountain-range east of Lake Nyassa. They are well built and strong, and have round faces, only slightly prognathic, but with a flat nose. The women wear a small pelele in the pierced lip. Circumcision is practised at the age of puberty, when the boys take a new name. Four dialects of the language, called Kiyao, are distinguished, and a Christian literature is coming into existence.

Yap (yäp), or Guap (gwäp). An island in the Caroline group, North Pacific Ocean. Length, about 10 miles. The German flag was raised over Yap in 1885; and the resulting dispute between Germany and Spain was settled by Pope Leo XIII. in 1885 by the award of the Carolines to Spain. In 1899 the group was purchased by Germany.

Yapoos. See Fuegians.

Yapurá. See Japurá.

Yaqui (yä′kē). See Cahita.

Yaqui (yä′kē). A river in northwestern Mexico which flows into the Gulf of California about lat. 27° 30′ N. Length, 200–300 miles.

Yaquina (yą-kwin′ą), or Southern Killamuk. The leading tribe of the Yakonan stock of North American Indians. The name means 'tortuous' or 'winding,' which is the characteristic of the stream bearing this name. They formerly lived in 56 villages on both sides of Yaquina River, Oregon, and are now on Siletz reservation, Oregon. They are so mixed with other tribes that their number cannot be ascertained. Also Yakwina, Youickone, Youkone, Iakon, Yakone. See Yakonan.

Yare (yär). A river in Norfolk, England, which unites with the Waveney to form the Breydon near Yarmouth.

Yariba. See Yoruba.

Yarkand (yär-känd'). The name given in part of its course to the Tarin.

Yarkand, or Yarkend (yär-kend'). A city in Eastern Turkestan, Chinese empire, situated on the river Yarkand, about lat. 38° 25′ N., in the center of a rich oasis. It has important trade and manufactures of leather, etc. It has been visited in recent times by Shaw, Forsyth, and Carey. Population, estimated, 60,000.

Yarmouth (yär'muth), or Great Yarmouth. ['Mouth of the Yar or Yare.'] A seaport in England, situated on the North Sea, at the mouths of the Bure and Breydon, in lat. 52° 36′ N., long. 1° 43′ E. It has important herring, mackerel, cod, and other fisheries, and active trade, and is noted for its cured fish ("Yarmouth bloaters"). The Church of St. Nicholas is the largest parish church in England, measuring 230 by 112 feet. The oldest part of the existing building is the nave (dating from 1190), in a style intermediate between the Norman and the Early English. There is a lofty tower. It is a frequented watering-place. Pop., 55,808, (1911).

Yarmouth. A seaport, capital of Yarmouth County, at the western extremity of Nova Scotia. Population, 6,430.

Yaroslaff (yä-rō-släv'). Died in 1054. Grand prince of Kieff, son of Vladimir. He inherited Novgorod in 1015; soon after made himself master of Kieff; and later became ruler of the greater part of Russia.

Yaroslaff (yä-rō-släv'), or Yaroslavl (yä-rō-slävl'). 1. A government of European Russia, surrounded by the governments of Vologda, Kostroma, Vladimir, Tver, and Novgorod, and traversed by the Volga. It has important manufactures. Area, 13,723 square miles. Population, 1,198,100.—2. The capital of the government of Yaroslaff, situated on the Volga, at its junction with the Kotorost, 165 miles northeast of Moscow. It has considerable trade, and important manufactures of cotton, linen, etc. Population, 78,600.

Yarra-Yarra (yä'rä-yä'rä), or Yarra. A river in Victoria, Australia, which flows into Port Phillip Bay. On it Melbourne is situated.

Yarrell (yar'el), William. Born at London, June, 1784: died Sept. 1, 1856. An English naturalist and sportsman, author of a "History of British Fishes" (1835–36) and a "History of British Birds" (1839–43).

Yarriba. See Yoruba.

Yarrow (yär'ō). A river in Selkirkshire, Scotland, which traverses the Loch of the Lowes and St. Mary's Loch, and joins the Ettrick near Selkirk. Length, about 25 miles. Wordsworth has written three poems on the subject.

Yasna (yas'nạ). See Avesta.

Yassy. See Jassy.

Yates (yāts), Edmund Hodgson. Born July, 1831: died May 20, 1894. An English journalist and novelist. He retired from a position in the London general post-office in 1872; lectured in the United States 1872–73; and went as special correspondent of the "New York Herald" to Vienna, St. Petersburg, etc., 1873–1875. He was connected with various periodicals ("Our Miscellany," London "Daily News," etc.); was editor of "Temple Bar" till 1867, when he became editor of "Tinsley's Magazine"; founded and edited the London "World" with Grenville Murray in 1874; and was London correspondent of the New York "Tribune" for a number of years before his death. Among his novels are "For Better, for Worse" (1863), "Broken to Harness" (1864), "Running the Gauntlet" (1866), "Kissing the Rod" (1866), "The Black Sheep" (1867), "Wrecked in Port" (1869), "Castaway" (1872), "A Waiting Race" (1872), "The Yellow Flag" (1872), etc. In 1885 he published "Edmund Yates: his Recollections and his Experiences."

Yates (yāts), Richard. Born at Warsaw, Ky., Jan. 18, 1818: died at St. Louis, Nov. 27, 1873. An American politician. He was Whig member of Congress from Illinois 1851–55; Republican governor of Illinois 1861–65 (one of the "war governors"); and United States senator from Illinois 1865–71.

Yavary. See Javary.

Yazd (yäzd), or Yezd (yezd). A city in central Persia, capital of the district of Yazd, situated about lat. 32° N., at the intersection of several important routes. It is the center of the Persian trade with India, and has manufactures of silk, cotton, confectionery, etc. Population, estimated, 40,000–50,000.

Yazoo (yä'zö). A tribe of North American Indians who once lived on the river of the same name in Mississippi. D'Iberville met them in 1699. In 1730 they rose against the French, and were driven away, losing their tribal identity. See Muskhogean.

Yazoo River. A river in Mississippi which is formed by the Tallahatchie and Yalabusha rivers, and joins the Mississippi above Vicksburg. Length, about 280 miles.

Ybbs. See Ips.

Yberville. See Iberville.

Yeadon (yē'dọn). A manufacturing town in the West Riding of Yorkshire, England, 8 miles northwest of Leeds. Population, 7,059.

Yeamans (yē'mạnz), Sir John. Born at Bristol, England, in 1610(?): died in Barbados, W. I., Aug., 1674. An English colonial governor. He settled in Carolina in 1665, and attempted to found a colony from Barbados, but was removed from the office of governor in 1674.

Yeardley (yērd'li), Sir George. Born in England about 1580: died there, 1627. An English colonial governor, governor of Virginia 1616, 1619–21, and 1626–27. He introduced representative government.

Yeast: a Problem. A novel by Charles Kingsley, published in 1851: originally a serial in "Fraser's Magazine" in 1848.

Yed, or Jed (yed). [Ar. yed, the hand.] The two stars δ and ε in the right hand of Ophiuchus: δ is Yed prior, and ε Yed posterior.

Yedo, or Yeddo. See Tokio.

Yeisk, or Jeisk (yä'isk), or Eisk (ā'isk). A town in the province of Kuban, Russia, situated on an arm of the Sea of Azoff, 78 miles west-southwest of Rostoff. It exports grain, flax, and wool. Population, 35,414.

Yekaterinburg (ye-kä-te-rēn-börg'), or Ekaterinburg (e-kä-te-rēn-börg'), or Katharinenburg (kä-tä-rēn-en-börg'). ['Catharine's borough.'] A town in the government of Perm, Russia, situated on the Isset, at the eastern base of the Urals, 180 miles east-southeast of Perm. It is on the Great Siberian Road; is the headquarters of a large mining region; has extensive trade and large manufactures of metals, etc.; and contains a government factory for polishing ornamental stones. It was founded by Peter the Great in 1723. Population, 50,100.

Yekaterinodar (ye-kä-te-rē-nō-där'), or Ekaterinodar (e-kä-te-rē-nō-där'). The capital of the province of Kuban, Caucasia, Russia, situated on the Kuban, near the junction of the Karasuk, about lat. 45° N. It is the residence of the hetman of the Kuban Cossacks. Population, about 66,000.

Yekaterinograd (ye-kä-te-rē-nō-grăd'). A town and fortress of Russia, on the left bank of the Terek, 20 miles west of Mosdok.

Yekaterinoslaff (ye-kä-te-rē-nō-släv'), or Ekaterinoslaff (e-kä-te-rē-nō-släv'). 1. A government of southern Russia, surrounded by the governments of Taurida, Kherson, Pultowa, Kharkoff, the Province of the Don Cossacks, and the Sea of Azoff. Area, 24,477 square miles. Population, 2,866,800.—2. The capital of the government of Yekaterinoslaff, situated on the Dnieper, about lat. 48° 25′ N., above the rapids. It was founded by Potemkin in 1786. Population, 135,552.

Yelets, or Yeletz, or Jeletz (ye-lets'). A town in the government of Orel, Russia, situated on the Sosna 108 miles east of Orel. It has a large trade in grain, flour, and cattle. Population, 49,900.

Yelisavetgrad, or Yelizavetgrad (ye-lē-zä-vet-grăd'), or Elizabethgrad (e-lē-zä-bet-grăd'). A city in the government of Kherson, Russia, situated on the Ingul 120 miles north of Kherson. It has important markets. Population, 61,488.

Yelisavetpol, or Yelizavetpol (ye-lē-zä-vet-poly'), or Elizabethpol (e-lē-zä-bet-poly'). 1. A government in Transcaucasia, Russia. Area, 16,991 square miles. Population, 977,800.—2. The capital of the government of Yelisavetpol, situated on a tributary of the Kur, and on the railway, 110 miles southeast of Tiflis. It was formerly named Ganja, and was an important town. It was stormed by the Russians in 1804; and was the scene of a victory by Paskevitch over the Persians in 1826. Population, 33,625.

Yell (yel). The second largest island of the Shetland group, Scotland, situated north of Mainland. Length, 17 miles.

Yellala Falls (yel-lä'lä fâlz). A series of cascades in the lower Kongo.

Yellowplush Papers. A collection of sketches by Thackeray, published in 1841. They originally appeared in "Fraser's Magazine" as "The Yellowplush Memoirs" in 1837.

Yellow River. 1. An epithet of the Tiber.—2. The Hwangho or Hoangho.

Yellow Sea, or Hwang-hai (hwäng-hī'). An arm of the Pacific Ocean, lying between China and Corea. Its chief branches are Corea Bay and the Gulfs of Pechili and Liautung. Extreme width, over 400 miles.

Yellowstone Lake (yel'ō-stōn lāk). A lake in the southern half of the Yellowstone National Park, traversed by the Yellowstone River. Elevation above sea-level, 7,740 feet. Length, 20 miles. Greatest width, 15 miles.

Yellowstone National Park. A region set apart as a public pleasure-ground by act of Congress in 1872: famous for its scenery. It lies mainly in Wyoming and partly in Montana and Idaho, and contains now about 3,500 square miles. It is a plateau and mountain region, 7,000–11,000 feet above sea-level, and is noted for its extraordinary geysers, cañons, boiling springs, etc. It is also a game-preserve. It was explored by an expedition under Washburne in 1870, and more fully by one under Hayden in 1871.

Yellowstone River. A river which rises in the northwestern part of Wyoming, traverses Yellowstone Lake and the Yellowstone National Park, flows through Montana, and joins the Missouri in North Dakota near the frontier of Montana. Below Yellowstone Lake are the Upper Fall (112 feet) and Lower Fall (310 feet). Below the falls is the famous Grand Cañon of the Yellowstone, about 24–30 miles long and 600–1,200 feet deep. Its tributaries Tower Creek and Gardiner River also have noted falls. Length, 1,100 (1,300?) miles; navigable to the mouth of the Big Horn.

Yemassee (yem-a-sē'), The. A novel by W. G. Simms, published in 1835.

Yemen (yem'en). A region in southwestern Arabia, between Hedjaz, Hadramaut, and the Red Sea. In its most extended sense the name included nearly all of Arabia (all south of Syria). It was anciently the seat of the Sabæans and Himyarites. It is now a vilayet of Asiatic Turkey.

Yendys. The pseudonym of Sydney Dobell: an anagram of Sydney.

Yenikale (yen-ē-kä'lā), Strait of. A strait which separates the Crimea from Circassia, and connects the Sea of Azoff with the Black Sea: the ancient Bosporus Cimmerius.

Yenisei (yen-ē-sā'ē). A river which rises in the northwestern part of Mongolia, traverses Siberia from south to north, and flows by the Gulf of Yenisei into the Arctic Ocean east of the Gulf of Obi. Its chief tributaries are the Kan, Angara (from Lake Baikal), Podkamennaya Tunguska, and Lower Tunguska. Length, over 3,000 miles; navigable in its middle and lower course.

Yenisei, Bay or Gulf of. The estuary formed by the mouth of the Yenisei.

Yeniseisk (yen-ē-sā'isk). 1. A government of Siberia, bounded by the Arctic Ocean, Yakutsk, Irkutsk, the Chinese empire, Tomsk, and Tobolsk. The surface is mountainous in the south and level in the north. It is rich in mineral wealth. Capital, Krasnoyarsk. Area, 981,607 square miles. Population, 689,700.—2. A town in the government of Yeniseisk, situated on the Yenisei about lat. 58° N. Population, 11,506.

Yeo (yō), or Ivel (ī'vel). A small river in Somersetshire, England: a tributary of the Parret.

Yeoman's Tale. See Canon's Yeoman's Tale.

Yeomen of the Guard, The, or the Merryman and his Maid. An opera by Sir Arthur Sullivan, words by W. S. Gilbert, produced in 1888.

Yeovil (yō'vil). A town in Somersetshire, England, situated on the Yeo 33 miles southwest of Bath. It has manufactures of gloves. Population, 9,861.

Yesso. See Yezo.

Yeye (yā'ye), or Bayeye (bä-yā'ye). A Bantu tribe of British South Africa, dwelling north of Lake Ngami, and still untouched by civilizing influences. Their language, related to Herero, has adopted three clicks from the Khoikhoin. They are also called Bakhoba by their neighbors.

Yezd. See Yazd.

Yezdigerd, or Yesdigerd (yez'di-jėrd), or Yazdigerd (yaz'di-jėrd), or Isdigerd (iz'di-jėrd). The name of several kings of Persia. The first reigned about 399–420; the second about 438–457; and the third, 632–641: his armies were defeated at Kadisiya (about 636) and Nehavend (about 641) by the Saracens, and he was murdered about 651.

Yezidis, or Yezidees (ye-zē'dēz). [From Yezid, their reputed founder.] A sect or people dwelling in Mesopotamia, in Asiatic Turkey: allied to the Kurds. They hold beliefs derived from Mohammedan and various other sources, and are commonly called "devil-worshipers."

Yezo (yez'ō), or Yesso (yes'sō). The northernmost of the four principal islands of Japan, separated from the main island by the Strait of Tsugaru. It contains many mountains and volcanoes. Length, about 330 miles. Area, 36,299 square miles. Population, about 1,000,000.

Ygerne. In Arthurian romance, the mother of Arthur.

Yggdrasil (ig'dra-sil). [Also Ygdrasil, Igdrasil, Iggrdrasill; Icel. Yggdra Syll; cf. Yggr, Uggr, a name of Odin; syll, sill.] In Scandinavian mythology, the ash-tree which binds together heaven, earth, and hell. Its branches spread over the whole earth and reach above the heavens. Its roots run in three directions: one to the Asa gods in heaven, one to the Frost-giants, and the third to the under-world. Under each root is a fountain of wonderful virtues. In the tree, which drops honey, sit an eagle, a squirrel, and four stags. At the root lies the serpent Nithhöggr gnawing it, while the squirrel Ratatöskr runs up and down to sow strife between the eagle at the top and the serpent at the root. Also called Tree of the Universe.

Ymir (ē'mir). [ON.] In Old Norse mythology, a mighty sea-giant, the first created being, who arose through the interworking of heat and cold in Ginnungagap, the primeval abyss. He was slain by Odin and his brothers Vili and Vé, and hurled into the midst of Ginnungagap. His flesh became the land, his bones the mountains, his blood lakes and streams, his hair the forests, his skull the heavens, and his brains the clouds. Midgard was formed from his eyebrows. He was also called Aurgelmir.

Yncas. See Incas.

Yoga (yō'ga). [Skt. yōga, from √ yuj, join.] The fourth of the six systems of Hindu philosophy, or the second of the two divisions of the Sankhya system. Its alleged author is Patanjali, of whom nothing is known. It is set forth in the Yogasutra, a little work in four chapters, translated in part by Ballantyne and entire by Rajendra Lala Mitra. The Yoga is commonly regarded as a theistic development of the Sankhya, directly acknowledging Ishvara, or a supreme being. The aim of it is to teach the means by which the human soul may attain complete union with the Supreme Soul. This fusion may be effected even in the body. According to Patanjali the very word Yoga means 'fixing or concentrating the mind in abstract meditation.' This is secured by preventing the modifications of chitta, or the thinking principle, which arise through the three pramanas, perception, inference, and verbal testimony, as well as incorrect ascertainment, fancy, sleep, and recollection. These modifications of chitta are prevented by the constant habit of keeping the mind in an unmodified state, and by complete suppression of the passions. This last, vairagya, is obtained by contemplation of the Supreme Being, who is a spirit unaffected by works and affections, and is called Om, the repetition of which monosyllable has astonishing results, and the muttering of which, with reflection on its meaning, conduces to a knowledge of the Supreme, and tends to prevent all the obstacles to Yoga. The means of mental concentration are eight: (1) Forbearance or restraint; (2) religious observances; (3) postures; (4) suppression of the breath, or breathing in a peculiar way; (5) restraint of the senses; (6) steadying of the mind; (7) contemplation; (8) profound meditation or religious trance, this last being best attained, according to the Bhagavadgita (VI. 13), by fixing the eyes on the tip of the nose, and similar devices. The system, a contrivance for getting rid of all thought, is a compound of ascetic bodily and mental exercises.

Yogin (yō-gin' or yō'gin), or Yogi (yō-gē' or yō'gē). [Skt., from yoga (which see), yogin being the stem of the substantively used possessive adjective, and yogi its nominative singular masculine.] A follower of the Yoga system; a Hindu devotee or ascetic.

Yokohama (yō-kō-hä'mä). A seaport on the main island of Japan, situated on the Bay of Yedo, 16 miles southwest of Tokio, in lat. 35° 26′ N., long. 139° 36′ E. It is the most important of the Japanese treaty ports, and has a large foreign trade. It is connected by rail with Tokio, and is a port of call or terminus of the Pacific Mail, Canadian Pacific, and other lines of steamers. At the time of the opening of the neighboring Kanagawa as a treaty port (about 1859) it was a fishing village: the settlement was soon transferred from Kanagawa to it. Population, 394,303.

Yokut, or Yocut (yō'kut). [Pl., also Yokuts.] The southern division of the Mariposan stock of North American Indians, formerly embracing a number of tribes whose remnants are now under the Mission agency, California. See Mariposan.

Yonge (yung), Charles Duke. Born 1812: died Nov. 30, 1891. An English historical writer and classical scholar. He published an "English-Greek Lexicon" (1849), a new Latin "Gradus ad Parnassum" (1850), with an appendix of Latin epithets (1856), "A New Phraseological English-Latin and Latin-English Dictionary" (1855), histories of England (1856), the British navy (1863), France under the Bourbons (1866–67), and the English Revolution (1874), and lives of Liverpool (1868), Marie Antoinette (1876), "Life of Sir Walter Scott" (1888), etc.

Yonge, Charlotte Mary. Born at Otterbourne, England, 1823: died there, March 24, 1901. An English novelist and historical and miscellaneous writer. Her works include "Heir of Redclyffe" (1853), "Daisy Chain" (1856), "Kings of England" (1848), "Landmarks of History" (1852–57), "History of Christian Names" (1863), a number of volumes of stories from the histories of different countries, and numerous novels, etc.

Yonkers (yongk'ėrz or yungk'ėrz). A city in Westchester County, New York, situated on the Hudson about 15 miles by rail north of New York city. It has varied manufactures. Population, 79,803, (1910).

Yonne (yon). A river in France which rises near the eastern border of Nièvre, flows northwest, and joins the Seine at Montereau: the ancient Icauna. It is connected by canals with the Saône and Loire. Length, 171 miles; navigable to Auxerre.

Yonne. A department of France, bounded by Seine-et-Marne, Aube, Côte-d'Or, Nièvre, and Loiret. Capital, Auxerre. It has agricultural resources and mineral wealth, and produces Burgundy wines. It was formed from parts of the ancient Champagne, Burgundy, and Gâtinais. Area, 2,892 square miles. Population, 315,199.

Yorick (yor'ik). 1. The king's jester whose skull is apostrophized by Hamlet in Shakspere's "Hamlet," v. 1.—2. The pseudonym of Laurence Sterne in "A Sentimental Journey."—3. A humorous parson, in Sterne's "Tristram Shandy," who claims descent from Shakspere's Yorick.

Yorick's Love. A tragedy by W. D. Howells, on the basis of a Spanish original, produced by Lawrence Barrett in 1885.

York (yôrk). [L. Eboracum.] A city and county, capital of Yorkshire, situated at the junction of the Foss with the Ouse, in lat. 53° 57′ N., long. 1° 5′ W.: the seat of an archbishopric. The cathedral (York Minster) is one of the chief English cathedrals, of Norman foundation, but entirely rebuilt in subsequent medieval periods. The transepts are fine, particularly the south transept, built in the first half of the 13th century: it displays three tiers of arcades, increasing in size upward, and the rich gable is almost entirely occupied by a beautiful rose. The square towers of the much-paneled west front are of the 15th century, as is the massive central tower; the Perpendicular choir and Lady chapel are of the 14th. The interior is highly impressive from its size and height. The elaborate vaulting is of wood. A massive sculptured rood-screen separates the nave from the choir. The Perpendicular window which fills almost the whole east end measures 78 by 33 feet, being surpassed only by that at Gloucester. The north transept possesses the celebrated group of lancets known as the Five Sisters. The cathedral possesses more old glass (14th and 15th centuries) than any other in England. Among its tombs that of Archbishop Grey (1255) is the most remarkable. The dimensions are 525 by 110 feet; length of transepts, 222; height of vaulting, 100; of western towers, 201 feet. The octagonal Decorated chapter-house, without central pillar, is of exceptional beauty. Micklegate Bar is one of the six medieval city gates. It is a high square battlemented tower, with barbizans on the angles, whose arch spans the roadway. Besides the cathedral there are several interesting churches, St. Mary's Abbey, and a castle. York was the capital of Britain during the Roman occupation; was visited by Hadrian; and was the place of death of Severus and Constantius Chlorus. In York Constantine was proclaimed emperor. Later it was the capital of Northumbria and Deira, and an important Danish city. It was an early seat of learning. It was taken by William the Conqueror in 1068; revolted and was retaken by him in 1069; was the meeting-place of several parliaments; and was besieged and taken by the Parliamentarians in 1644. Population, 82,297, (1911).

York (County). See Yorkshire.

York. The former name of Toronto.

York. The capital of York County, Pennsylvania, situated on Codorus Creek 22 miles southeast of Harrisburg. It has manufactures of cars, agricultural implements, etc. In 1777–1778 it was the seat of the Continental Congress. Population, 44,750, (1910).

York, Cape. The northern point of York Peninsula, Australia, in lat. 10° 41′ S., long. 142° 33′ E.

York, Cape. A cape in Hayes Peninsula, Greenland, near the northern part of Baffin Bay.

York, Duke of. The title borne by Henry VIII. and Charles I. previous to the death of their elder brothers, and by James II. and George V. before accession to the throne.

York, Duke of. See Langley, Edmund de.

York, Duke of (Frederick Augustus). Born Aug. 16, 1763: died Jan. 5, 1827. Second son of George III. He commanded the unsuccessful British expedition to the Netherlands 1793–95; was made field-marshal in 1795 and commander of the forces in 1798; commanded the unsuccessful expedition to the Netherlands in 1799; capitulated at Alkmaar Oct. 17, 1799; and was obliged on account of scandal to resign in 1809, but was reinstated in 1811. He opposed Catholic emancipation. From 1764 to 1803 he was prince-bishop of Osnabrück.

York, Duke of (Richard). Killed at the battle of Wakefield, 1460. An English statesman, son of Richard (earl of Cambridge) and Anne Mortimer. He was constable of England and regent of France under Henry VI.; later was lieutenant of Ireland; was protector during the imbecility of Henry VI.; and was dismissed from office in 1455. He laid claim to the heirship to the throne, and precipitated the Wars of the Roses in that year. In 1460 he was again for a short time protector, and by a compromise was recognized as heir to the throne; but this compromise was rejected by Queen Margaret, and York was defeated and slain at Wakefield.

York, Duke of (Richard). Born 1472: murdered in the Tower, 1483. Second son of Edward IV.

York, House of. A branch of the English royal dynasty of Plantagenet, descended from Lionel, duke of Clarence, third son of Edward III., and Edmund, duke of York, fifth son of Edward III. The head of the house was Richard, duke of York (killed 1460). His sons Edward IV. and Richard III., and grandson Edward V., were kings of England 1461–85. The descendants of Edward IV.'s brother (Duke of Clarence) and sister (Elizabeth) became claimants after 1485. The last serious claimant was Richard de la Pole (died 1525). See Wars of the Roses.

York, Vale of. The central valley of Yorkshire, England, noted for its fertility.

York and Lancaster, Wars of. See Wars of the Roses.

Yorke (yôrk), Oliver. The pseudonym (originally that of Mahony) under which "Fraser's Magazine" is edited.

York House. A former palace in London, situated on the Strand west of Salisbury House and the Savoy: a town residence of the archbishops of York after Wolsey. It should not be confounded with York Place. The only archbishop who actually resided here was Heath, Queen Mary's chancellor. It became the official residence of chancellors and keepers of the great seal; hence Sir Nicholas Bacon went to reside there and Francis Bacon was born there. The first Duke of Buckingham obtained the property from James I., and proposed to build a palace from the designs of Inigo Jones: only the water-gate was built. See Whitehall Palace.

York Peninsula. A peninsula in South Australia, between Spencer Gulf and the Gulf of St. Vincent. Length, about 120 miles.

York Place. A name formerly given to Whitehall Palace, London.

York Plays or Mysteries. A cycle of 48 plays performed by the Crafts or Mysteries of York on Corpus Christi Day, in the 14th, 15th, and 16th centuries. The earliest mention of them is in 1376, when they had already been established some years. They were printed in 1885 by Lucy Toulmin Smith from the unique MSS. in the library of Lord Ashburnham.

York River. A river or estuary in Virginia, formed by the union of the Mattapony and Pamunkey rivers at West Point. Length, 35–40 miles.

Yorkshire (yôrk'shir). The largest county in England. It is bounded by Durham (from which it is separated by the Tees), the North Sea, Lincolnshire (separated by the Humber), Nottingham, Derby, Cheshire, Lancashire, and Westmoreland; and comprises the administrative divisions of North Riding, East Riding, West Riding, and the City of York. It is traversed in the west by the Pennine chain, and its surface is greatly diversified. It has important mines of coal, iron, and other minerals; flourishing agriculture, especially in the Vale of York, Cleveland, and Holderness; and manufactures of woolens, worsted, iron, steel, etc. It contains the large towns Leeds, Sheffield, Hull, Bradford, York, Huddersfield, and Halifax. It belonged to the Brigantes; after the Roman occupation formed the kingdom of Deira and part of Northumbria; and was the scene of numerous Scottish raids, of battles in the Wars of the Roses, of the "Pilgrimage of Grace" in 1536, of an insurrection in 1569, and of the battle of Marston Moor in 1644. Area (ad. co.), 5,909.6 square miles. Population (parl. co.), 3,584,762.

Yorkshire Tragedy, A. A play produced and printed in 1608, founded on an event which occurred in 1604. It has been attributed to Shakspere, as his name appeared in full on the title-page in the 1608 edition; but it is thought to have been added for the benefit of the bookseller.

Yorktown (yôrk'toun). The capital of York County, Virginia, situated on York River 51 miles east-southeast of Richmond. Here, in 1781, the British under Cornwallis were besieged by the allied Americans and French under Washington and Rochambeau, aided by the French fleet under De Grasse. Yorktown was invested by the end of Sept.; the first parallel was established Oct. 9; an unsuccessful sortie was made Oct. 16; and the British (about 8,000) surrendered Oct. 19. This event virtually closed the Revolutionary War. Here also occurred, during the Civil War, the siege of the Confederates under Magruder, and later under Johnston, by the Federals under McClellan. It was begun April 5, 1862, and Yorktown was evacuated by the Confederates on May 4. Population, 136, (1910).

York von Wartenburg (yôrk fon vär'ten-bôrg), Count Hans David Ludwig. Born at Potsdam, Prussia, Sept. 26, 1759: died at Klein-Öls, Silesia, Oct. 4, 1830. A Prussian field-marshal. He served in the Polish campaign of 1794; commanded the rear-guard after Jena in 1806; was imprisoned at Lübeck; commanded the Prussian contingent in the expedition to Russia in 1812; concluded the convention of Tauroggen with the Russians, Dec. 30, 1812; was distinguished as a corps commander 1813–14; served at Bautzen, and contributed to the victory of Katzbach; crossed the Elbe at Wartenburg, Oct. 3, 1813; was distinguished at Möckern in 1813, and at Montmirail, Laon, and Paris in 1814; and became a field-marshal in 1821.

Yoruba (yō'rō-bä), or Yariba (yä'rē-bä). A once powerful negro kingdom, now much reduced and included in the British sphere of influence. It occupies the eastern half of the Slave Coast, between Dahomey and Benin, and extends northeastward as far as the Niger. In the beginning of the 19th century the northern portion was annexed by the conquering Fulahs of Gando: several defections have followed. The Yoruba people call themselves Eyo; in Sierra Leone they go by the name of Akú. They are an intelligent and enterprising tribe, living in large and semi-civilized communities. The ancient capital, Oyo, is said to have 70,000 and Ibadan 50,000 inhabitants. There is a colony of Yoruba-men at Kano in Hausaland. A majority of the Sierra Leonians are of Yoruba descent, and a large proportion of the North American negroes are of Yoruba extraction, or at least come from the Slave Coast.

Yosemite (yō-sem'i-te) Falls. The three falls of Yosemite Creek. The first is 1,500 feet high; the second, 626, in a series of cascades; and the third, 400 feet.

Yosemite Valley. [Amer. Ind., 'valley of the grizzly bear.'] A valley in the west slope of the Sierra Nevada, about 150 miles east of San Francisco, in Mariposa County, California: famous for its sublime scenery. Its length is about 8 miles; width, ½ mile–2 miles. It is nearly inclosed by walls of rock 3,000 to 5,000 feet high, and is traversed by the Merced River. The chief heights are El Capitan, Cathedral Rock, the Spires, the Three Brothers, Sentinel Rock, the North Dome, the Half Dome, and the Cap of Liberty; the noted falls are Yosemite Falls, the Bridal Veil Fall, Vernal Fall, and Nevada Fall. The valley was discovered in 1851. In 1864 Congress granted it, with adjacent territory for two miles about it, to the State of California, on condition that it should be held as a State park, and in 1905 the State ceded it back to the United States Government, and it was accepted by Congress in 1906. Yosemite National Park includes the water-sheds and basins of the rivers of the Yosemite Valley.

Youghal (yâ'hal or yâl). A seaport in the county of Cork, Ireland, situated on the Blackwater 22 miles east of Cork. Population, urban district, 5,393.

Youmans (yō'manz), Edward Livingstone. Born at Coeymans, N. Y., June 3, 1821: died at New York city, Jan. 18, 1887. An American scientist. He founded the "Popular Science Monthly" in 1872; planned the "International Scientific Series"; and published a "Chemical Chart" (1851), "Class-book of Chemistry" (1852), "Atlas of Chemistry" (1854), and "Handbook of Household Science" (1857). In 1864 he published "The Correlation and Conservation of Forces," a series of articles by prominent scientists on the new theory of forces, with an introduction. He also edited "The Culture Demanded by Modern Life" in 1867, and was instrumental in the publication of Herbert Spencer's works in America, especially in popularizing his theory of evolution. His sister acted as his amanuensis from 1845 on account of the failure of his eyesight.

Youmans, Eliza A. Born at Saratoga, 1826. An American botanist, sister of E. L. Youmans.

Young (yung), Arthur. Born in Suffolk, England, Sept. 11, 1741: died at London, April 20, 1820. An English traveler and noted agricultural and economic writer. He was engaged (unsuccessfully) in farming, and was appointed secretary of the Board of Agriculture in 1793. He is best known from his accounts of travels in England, Wales, and Ireland, and especially in France (1787–89), during which he observed closely and scientifically the condition of agriculture. His works include "A Six Weeks' Tour through the Southern Counties of England and Wales" (1768), "A Six Months' Tour through the North of England" (1771), "A Farmer's Tour through the East of England" (1770–71), "A Course of Experimental Agriculture" (1770), "The Farmer's Calendar" (1771), "Political Arithmetic" (1774), "A Tour in Ireland" (1780), "Travels in France," his chief work (1792–94). He edited "Annals of Agriculture."

Young, Brigham. Born at Whitingham, Vt., June 1, 1801: died at Salt Lake City, Aug. 29, 1877. A Mormon leader, president of the Mormon Church. In early life he was by trade a carpenter, painter, and glazier in Mendon, New York. He was converted to Mormonism in 1831; began to preach in 1832, and in that year joined the Mormons at Kirtland, Ohio; was made an elder in 1832, and an apostle in 1835; and was chosen president of the church as successor to Smith in 1844. He conducted the emigration from Nauvoo to Utah 1846–48; was elected governor of "Deseret" in 1849; and was appointed governor of Utah Territory by President Fillmore. In 1852 he proclaimed the doctrine of polygamy. He defied the United States government, and was removed from the governorship by President Buchanan. In 1871 he was indicted for polygamy, but was not convicted. At his death he had 17 wives. He was head of the secret order of Danites (which see).

Young, Charles Augustus. Born at Hanover, N. H., Dec. 15, 1834: died there, Jan. 4, 1908. A noted American astronomer. He graduated at Dartmouth in 1853; and became professor at Western Reserve College in 1856, at Dartmouth in 1865, and (of astronomy) at Princeton in 1877. He was especially noted for his researches on the sun. He wrote "The Sun" (1882), "A Text-book of General Astronomy" (1888).

Young, Charles Mayne. Born at London, Jan. 10, 1777: died at Brighton, June 28, 1856. An English actor. He made his regular début at Liverpool in 1798. A year later he was leading man at Manchester. His repertoire was large, including Don Felix in "The Wonder," Rolla in "Pizarro," Penruddock in "The Wheel of Fortune," Petruchio, Sir Edward Mortimer in "The Iron Chest," etc. His greatest success was in Kemble's celebrated revival of "Julius Cæsar" in 1812. His farewell benefit occurred at Covent Garden, May 31, 1832, when he appeared as Hamlet and, in his honor, Mathews appeared as Polonius and Macready as the Ghost.

Young, Edward. Born at Upham, near Winchester, England, June, 1683: died April 5, 1765. An English poet. He was educated at Oxford, and in 1730 became rector of Welwyn in Hertfordshire. His chief poetical work is "Night Thoughts" (1742–45). He also wrote satires under the title "Love of Fame, the Universal Passion" (1725–28), the dramas "Busiris" (1719) and "The Revenge" (1721), etc.

Young, Edward Daniel. Born 1831: died 1896. An English traveler in Africa. In 1867 he commanded the Livingstone search expedition; he explored the Lake Nyassa region in 1875, and wrote "Nyassa" (1877).

Young, John, Baron Lisgar. Born in Bombay, Aug. 31, 1807: died in Ireland, Oct. 6, 1876. A British politician. He was secretary of the treasury 1844–46; chief secretary for Ireland 1852–55; later lord high commissioner of the Ionian Islands and governor of New South Wales; and governor-general of Canada 1868–72.

Young, John Russell. Born at Downingtown, Pa., Nov. 20, 1841: died at Washington, D. C., Jan. 17, 1899. An American journalist. He was connected successively with the Philadelphia "Press," New York "Tribune," and "New York Herald"; accompanied Grant in his tour around the world; was United States minister to China 1882–85; and librarian of Congress 1897–99. He published "Around the World with General Grant" (1879).

Young, Robert. Born at Edinburgh, Sept. 10, 1822: died there, Oct. 14, 1888. A Scottish biblical scholar, best known from his "Analytical Concordance to the Bible."

Young, Thomas. Born at Milverton, Somerset, England, June 13, 1773: died at London, May 10, 1829. A celebrated English physicist, mathematician, and general scholar. He studied medicine at London, Edinburgh, Göttingen, and Cambridge, but did not practise his profession. He became professor at the Royal Institution in 1801; was foreign secretary of the Royal Society for many years; and was secretary of the Board of Longitude (which conducted the "Nautical Almanac"). He discovered the law of the interference of light, which contributed largely to the establishment of the undulatory theory of light; suggested the theory of color-sensation afterward developed by Helmholtz; and made some progress in the deciphering of the Egyptian hieroglyphics. Among his works are "Syllabus of a Course of Lectures" (1802), "Course of Lectures on Natural Philosophy and the Mechanical Arts" (1807), articles on Egyptology, etc.

Young Adventurer, The. A title given to Prince Charles Edward Stuart on account of his leading the desperate insurrection of 1745.

Young Chevalier, The. Charles Edward Stuart, son of the Pretender.

Young England. A group of Tory politicians, chiefly recruited from the younger members of the aristocracy, who, about 1844, opposed free trade and radicalism, and advocated the restoration of the former order of things. Among their leaders were Disraeli and Lord John Manners.

Young Germany. A literary and political school in Germany, of innovating tendencies. Its chief representative was Heine.

Young Ireland. A group of Irish politicians and agitators, active about 1840–50, who were at first adherents of O'Connell, but were separated from him by their advocacy of physical force, and took part in the rising of 1848.

Young Italy. An association of Italian republican agitators, active about 1834 under the lead of Mazzini. Analogous republican groups in other countries were called Young Germany, Young Poland, Young France, etc., and these republican associations collectively were known as Young Europe.

Young Pretender, The. Charles Edward Stuart, son of the Pretender (or Old Pretender).

Youngstown (yungz'toun). A city in Mahoning County, Ohio, situated on Mahoning River 62 miles east-southeast of Cleveland. It has flourishing iron manufactures, and is the center of a coal-mining region. Population, 79,066, (1910).

Ypres (ē'pr). [Flem. Yperen or Ieperen, G. Ypern.] A town in the province of West Flanders, Belgium, on the Yperlée 29 miles southwest of Bruges. It has manufactures of linen, laces, etc. The cathedral of Ypres is of the first half of the 13th century. The south transept has a fine rose-window and a richly decorated gable: its doors are good examples of late medieval carving. The Cloth Hall, the chief edifice of its class in Belgium, was built in the course of the 13th century. The façade is 460 feet long, and has two ranges of pointed windows. At each end rises a turret, and in the middle stands the massive square turreted belfry. The façade is adorned with statues of the counts of Flanders and their wives. Ypres was once the capital of West Flanders. It was famous, especially about the 14th century, for its linens and woolens, and was one of the largest towns in the Low Countries. Population, commune, 17,287.

Ypsilanti (ip-si-lan'ti). A city in Washtenaw County, Michigan, situated on Huron River 29 miles west by south of Detroit. It is the seat of the State normal school. Population, 6,230, (1910).

Yriarte. See Iriarte.

Yrun. See Irun.

Ysaye (ē-sī'ye), Eugène. Born at Liège, 1858. A Belgian composer and noted violinist. He came to America in 1894.

Ysengrimus. See Reynard the Fox.

Ysolde, Ysonde. See Iseult.

Ysopet. See the extract.

> . . . The Ysopet of Marie de France . . . may be said to be a link of juncture between the Fabliau and the Roman du Renart. Ysopet (diminutive of Æsop) became a common term in the middle ages for a collection of fables. That of Marie is by far the most important. It consists of 103 pieces, written in octosyllabic couplets, with moralities, and a conclusion which informs us that the author wrote it "for the love of Count William" (supposed to be Long-Sword), translating it from an English version of a Latin translation of the Greek. Marie's graceful style and her easy versification are very noticeable here, while her morals are often well deduced and sharply put.
>
> Saintsbury, French Lit., p. 60.

Yssel (I'sel). The name of several streams in the Netherlands. Among them are: (a) The Nieuwe Yssel, an arm of the Rhine, from which it separates east of Arnhem. It joins the Oude Yssel at Doesburg, and flows as the Yssel into the Zuyder Zee 43 miles east by north of Amsterdam. It receives the Berkel and Schipbeek. Length, about 70 miles; navigable. (b) The Neder Yssel (Little or Dutch Yssel), an arm of the Leck, from which it separates at Vianen. It flows into the Meuse above Rotterdam.

Ystad (is'täd or ūs'täd). A seaport in the laen of Malmöhus, Sweden, situated on the Baltic 49 miles east-southeast of Copenhagen. Population, 10,860.

Yuba (yō'bä) River. A small river in California, tributary of Feather River and subtributary of Sacramento River.

Yucatan (yō-kä-tän'). A peninsula of Mexico, comprising the states of Yucatan and Campeche. It is bounded by the Gulf of Mexico, the Channel of Yucatan, the Caribbean Sea, British Honduras, Guatemala, and Tabasco. The surface is low. A large proportion of the inhabitants are Mayas, and the region is famous for its ruins, including Uxmal, Kabah, Chichen-Itza, and Aké (see these names and Mayas). The coast of Yucatan was discovered by Francisco Hernandez de Cordoba, May 4, 1517, in the course of a voyage of adventure from Cuba; it was conquered by Spaniards 1527–47; became independent in 1821; was annexed to Mexico in 1822; and was independent 1840–43. In 1847–53 there was a formidable Indian revolt.

Yucatan. A state in Mexico, forming the eastern and northern part of the peninsula of Yucatan. Capital, Merida. Area, 35,214 square miles. Population, 337,020 (1910).

Yucatan, Channel of. A channel between Yucatan and Cuba, which connects the Gulf of Mexico with the Caribbean Sea. Width, 125 miles.

Yucatecs (yō-kä-täks'), or Yucatecos (-tä'kōs). Natives of Yucatan: a name often given to the Mayas.

Yucay (yō-kī'). A fertile valley about 20 miles north of Cuzco, Peru. It was a favorite resort of the Incas, and was highly cultivated, the hillsides being utilized by artificial terraces (andenes), supported by masonwork and irrigated by an elaborate system of waterworks. These terraces still remain: they extend up the mountains to a height of 1,500 feet, and are the most striking example of the Inca system of agricultural improvement. The summer palace of the Incas is now indicated only by a few fragments. Ollantay-tambo (which see) is in this valley, and there are numerous other interesting antiquities.

Yuen (yō-en'). A river in China: outlet by Lake Tung-Ting into the Yangtse.

Yuki (ū'ki). A tribe of North American Indians which dwelt in Round Valley, Mendocino County, California. The name means 'stranger' or 'enemy,' secondarily 'bad' or 'thieving.' See Yukian.

Yukian (ū'ki-an). A linguistic stock of North American Indians who formerly lived in and near Round Valley, Mendocino County, California. Its principal tribes, remnants of which are mingled with others on the Round Valley reservation, are the Yuki, Chumaia, Tatu or Huchnom, Ashochimi or Wappo, and Napa.

Yukon. A territory of British North America, situated in the extreme northwest. It was organized in 1898. Population, 27,219.

Yukon (yō'kon), in its lower course Kwichpak (kwik-päk'). A river which rises in British America, flows northwest, west, and southwest, and empties into Bering Sea about lat. 62° 30' N. Length, about 2,000 miles; navigable about 1,200 miles.

Yule (yōl), Sir Henry. Born near Edinburgh, May, 1820: died at London, Dec. 30, 1889. A British military engineer in India, and Orientalist. He retired in 1862 with the rank of colonel. Among his works are "A Narrative of the Mission sent to the Court of Ava" (1858: he was secretary of this mission), "Cathay and the Way Thither" (1866), a translation of Marco Polo (2 vols. 1871; revised ed. 1875), articles on Central Asia and the Chinese empire, with Burnell "Hobson-Jobson: being a Glossary of Anglo-Indian Colloquial Words and Phrases, etc." (1886), and notes to the Hakluyt Society's reprint of the diary of William Hedges (1887).

Yuma. See Cuchan.

Yuman (yō'man). A linguistic stock of North American Indians. It formerly occupied the extreme southwest part of the United States, including much of the valleys of the Colorado and Gila rivers, northern Lower California, and the extreme southern part of California. Its name is from a Cuchan word meaning 'sons of the river.' Its number in the United States is nearly 5,000; that in Mexico is not known.

Yuncas. See Chimu.

Yunnan (yün'nän'). A province in the southwestern extremity of China, bounded by China proper, Tibet, Burma, and Tongking. Area, about 150,000 square miles. Population, 12,324,574.

Yunnan-fu (yün'nän'fö'). The capital of the province of Yunnan, China, about lat. 25° 6′ N., on Lake Tien-hai: noted for its manufactures. Population, estimated, 50,000.

Yurac-huasi. See Paytiti.

Yurok (yö'rok). A division of North American Indians, living in California. The name is from a Karok word meaning 'down' or 'below.' In 1870 their number was 2,700, which has since greatly decreased. About 600 are now to be found along the Klamath River and very few on the coast. See Weitspekan.

Yurucares (yö-rö-kä-räs'). [Probably corrupted from the Quichua yurak, white, and kari, men.] Indians of Bolivia, northeast of La Paz, at the foot of the mountains and in the forest-covered plains between the rivers Mamoré and Beni. They are tall and well formed, and nearly as white as Europeans (perhaps from the effects of a skin-disease). Their dress is a robe of bark cloth stamped with figures from engraved blocks. They are excessively vain, and are given to prolonged drinking-bouts (of chicha, prepared from maize). On his marriage, each man prepares a house and plantation widely separated from all others. They plant maize and manioc, but subsist largely by hunting. Children are often killed to get rid of them: but, by a strange custom, they are never punished, and are allowed complete liberty. The men often engage in duels with bows and arrows. They have a very complicated mythology. Several hordes are distinguished by different names, but all together do not now number more than 2,000.

Yurunas. See Jurunas.

Yuste (yös'tā). A convent in Spain, east of Plasencia. It is noted as the place of retirement of the emperor Charles V. after his abdication.

Yusuf, or Yussuf (yös'öf). Killed 759. The last emir of Spain for the Ommiad califs.

Yusuf, or Yussuf. Died 1106. An Almoravide prince. He founded Morocco, and made many conquests in Spain.

Yuthia. See Ayuthia.

Yverdon (ē-ver-dôṅ'), G. Iferten (ē'fer-ten). A town in the canton of Vaud, Switzerland, situated at the southwestern extremity of the Lake of Neuchâtel, at the outlet of the Orbe, 17 miles north of Lausanne: the Roman Eburodunum. It has a castle. The town was formerly the residence of Bernese magistrates, and from 1805 to 1825 the seat of Pestalozzi's educational institute. Near it is the watering-place Yverdon. Population, 7,985.

Yves d'Evreux (ēv dāv-rė'). Born at Evreux, Normandy, about 1577: died after 1620. A French Capuchin missionary at Maranhão, Brazil (1612–14). He published "Suite de l'histoire des choses plus memorables advenues en Maragnan es années 1613 et 1614" (Paris, 1615; 2d ed. 1864). It is a continuation of the history of Claude d'Abbeville, and is of great historical value.

Yvetot (ēv-tō'). A town in the department of Seine-Inférieure, France, 21 miles northwest of Rouen. With its territory, it became in the later middle ages a principality or kingdom, dependent directly on the French crown. Its privileges were only nominal by the close of the 17th century. Population, commune, about 7,200.

Yvetot, Le Roi d'. See Roi d'Yvetot, Le.

Yvon (ē-vôṅ'), Adolphe. Born at Eschwiller, Moselle, 1817: died at Passy, Sept., 1893. A French historical painter, professor of drawing at the École Polytechnique 1881–87. Among his works are "The First Consul Descending Mount St. Bernard," "The Taking of the Malakoff," "The Battle of Solferino," etc.

Zaandam (zän-däm′). A town in the province of North Holland, Netherlands, at the junction of the Zaan and Y, 5 miles northwest of Amsterdam. It is noted for the number of windmills in its neighborhood (400). Peter the Great worked here as a ship's carpenter in 1697. Population, 24,402. Also Saardam, Zaardam.

Zab (zäb), or Greater Zab. A river in Asiatic Turkey which joins the Tigris 25 miles south of Mosul. In the cuneiform inscriptions two rivers of this name are mentioned: the upper Zab (Zabuelû), which falls into the Tigris near Nimrud (the ancient Calah); and the lower Zab (Zabušaptû), which joins the Tigris south of Kileh Sherghat (the ancient city of Ashur). In the classical writers the river is mentioned under the names Zabatus, Zabas, Zerbis, or Lycos (wolf). Its modern name is Zarb. Length, about 250 miles.

Zab, Lesser, or Zab Asfal (zäb äs-fäl′). A small eastern tributary of the Tigris, south of the Greater Zab. See Zab, above.

Zabrze (tsäbr′tse). A coal-mining town in the province of Silesia, Prussia, 47 miles southeast of Oppeln. Pop., country commune, 55,634.

Zabulon (zab′ū-lon). The Greek form of Zebulon.

Zacapa (thä-kä′pä), or Sacapa (sä-kä′pä). A small town in Guatemala, situated on the Grande 70 miles northeast of Guatemala.

Zacatecas (tzä-kä-tä′käs or sä-kä-tä′käs). 1. A state in Mexico, surrounded by the states of Coahuila, San Luis Potosí, Jalisco, Aguas Calientes, and Durango. The surface is elevated. It is rich in mines, especially of silver. Area, 24,757 square miles. Population, 475,863, (1910).

2. The capital of the state of Zacatecas, about lat. 22° 40′ N. In its neighborhood are very rich silver-mines. Population, 25,905, (1910).

Zaccheus, or Zacchæus (za-kē′us). [Gr. Ζακχαῖος.] A tax-collector near Jericho, who, being a short man, climbed into a sycamore-tree in order to see Jesus who was passing by. Luke xix. 1–10.

Zachariah (zak-a-rī′ä). [Heb., 'remembered by Jehovah'; Gr. Ζαχαρίας.] King of Israel, son of Jeroboam II. See the extract and Jeroboam. See Zechariah.

According to the chronology which has passed into general currency from the "Annals" of Archbishop Ussher, and is represented on the margins of most English Bibles, the death of Jeroboam was followed by an interregnum of eleven years, after which his son Zachariah reigned for six months, when he was slain by Shallum. The Bible knows nothing of this interregnum, but on the contrary informs us in the usual way that Zachariah reigned in his father's stead (2 Kings xiv. 29). The coronation of Zachariah must in fact have followed as a matter of course, since his father died in peaceable possession of the throne.

W. R. Smith, Prophets of Israel, p. 145.

Zacharias (zak-a-rī′as). The Greek form of Zachariah, mentioned as the name of several different persons in the Bible.

Zacharias. Pope 741–752. He had great influence abroad, and aided in the setting aside of the Merovingian Childeric III. and the elevation of Pepin the Short to the throne. He was canonized, and is commemorated on March 15.

Zachariä von Lingenthal (tsä-chä-rē′ä fon ling′en-täl), Karl Salomo. Born at Meissen, Saxony, Sept. 14, 1769: died March 27, 1843. A German jurist, professor at Wittenberg 1797–1807, and at Heidelberg 1807–43. His works include "Die Einheit des Staates und der Kirche," "Handbuch des französischen Civilrechts," "Vierzig Bücher vom Staate" ("Forty Books on the State").

Zacynthus. See Zante.

Zadkiel (zad′ki-el). 1. In Jewish rabbinical lore, the angel of the planet Jupiter.—2. The pseudonym of William Lilly: also assumed by Lieutenant Richard James Morrison (1794?–1874), in his astrological almanac begun in 1830.

Zadok (zā′dok). 1. A chief priest of Israel, a contemporary of David.—2. A character in Dryden's "Absalom and Achitophel," representing Sancroft.

Zafarana (dzä-fä-rä′nä), Cape. A headland on the northern coast of Sicily, east of Palermo.

Zafra (thä′frä). A town in the province of Badajoz, Spain, 40 miles southeast of Badajoz: the Roman Julia Restituta. Population (1887), 6,120.

Zagazig (zä-gä-zēg′), or Zakazik (zä-kä-zēk′). A town in the Delta, Egypt, situated on the Tanitic arm of the Nile, 39 miles north by east of Cairo: nearly on the site of the ancient Bubastus. It is an important center of the cotton and grain trade. Population, 34,-999.

Zagora (zä-gō′rä). The modern name of Mount Helicon, Greece.

Zagoskin (zä-gos′kin), or Sagoskin (zä-gos′-kin), Mikhail. Born in the government of Penza, Russia, 1789: died at Moscow, July 5, 1852. A Russian novelist and dramatist. His chief work is "Yuri Miloslavski, or the Russians in 1812" (1829). From his historical novels he has been called "the Russian Walter Scott."

Zagreb (zä′greb). The Croatian name of Agram.

Zagros (zā′gros). [Gr. Ζάγρος.] In ancient geography, a range of mountains lying between Media and Assyria. Also Zagrus.

Zahleh (zä′le). A Maronite town in Syria, situated on the slope of Mount Lebanon 23 miles east of Beirut. Population, 15,000 (?).

Zahn (tsän), Johann Karl Wilhelm. Born at Rodenberg, Schaumburg, Aug. 21, 1800: died at Berlin, Aug. 22, 1871. A German painter, architect, and writer on art. His works include "Die schönsten Ornamente und merkwürdigsten Gemälde aus Pompeii, Herculaneum, und Stabiä" (1828–30), "Ornamente aller klassischen Kunstepochen" (1832–39), etc.

Zahna (tsä′nä). A town in the province of Saxony, Prussia, 48 miles southwest of Berlin. It was the scene of an engagement between the French and the Allies, Sept. 5, 1813. Population, about 3,000.

Zähringen (tsä′ring-en). A village in Baden, near Freiburg: the ancient seat of the dukes of Zähringen, ancestors of the house of Baden.

Zaide (zä-ē′de). An opera by Mozart, written in 1779 or 1780, published in 1838.

Zaire (zä-ēr′ä). The Kongo.

Zaïre (zä-ēr′). A tragedy by Voltaire, produced in 1733. It is borrowed to some extent from "Othello."

Zaire. An opera by Bellini, produced in 1829.

Zaisan (zī-zän′), or Nor (nor) Zaisan, Lake. A lake in Russian Central Asia, near the Chinese frontier, between the Altai and Tarbagatai mountains, about lat. 48° 20′ N. It receives the Black Irtish, and is the source of the White Irtish. Length, 70 miles.

Zakynthos. See Zante.

Zaleucus (za-lū′kus). The traditional lawgiver of the Epizephyrian Locrians in Italy, about the 7th century B. C.

Zalinski (za-lin′ski), Edmund Louis Gray. Born at Kurnick, Prussian Poland, Dec. 13, 1849: died at New York, March 10, 1909. An American military officer, noted for various inventions, especially in the development of the dynamite-gun. He came to the United States in 1853; served in the volunteer service during a part of the Civil War; received a commission in the regular army in 1866; and was made first lieutenant in 1867, and captain in 1887.

Zama (zā′mä). In ancient geography, a town in northern Africa, about 85 miles southwest of Carthage. A decisive victory was gained near it in 202 B. C. by the Romans under Scipio Africanus over Hannibal. It ended the second Punic war.

Zamacois (thä-mä-kō′is), Eduardo. Born at Bilbao, 1842: died at Madrid, Jan. 14, 1871. A Spanish figure-painter. He was a pupil of Federico de Madrazo and, at Paris, of Meissonier. Among his works are "The Rival Confessors" (1868), and "The Return to the Convent" (1869). He painted many 17th-century subjects.

Zambesi (zam-bē′zē). The principal river of Africa which flows into the Indian Ocean. It flows generally southeast and east, and empties by several mouths into Mozambique Channel about lat. 18° S. (For the great falls of the Zambesi, see Victoria Falls.) The Zambesi receives the waters of Lake Nyassa through the Shiré on the north. Its upper course was first explored by Livingstone. Length, about 1,500 miles.

Zambezia (zam-bē′zhiä), British. See the extract.

Under the unofficial title of British Zambezia is often included the whole of the region lying between the north and west of the South African Republic and the 22nd degree of south latitude and the southern boundaries of the Congo Free State, and having as its eastern and western boundaries the Portuguese and German spheres. The River Zambezi divides it into two portions, which may be described as Southern Zambezia and Northern Zambezia respectively. Statesman's Year-Book, 1894, p. 193.

Zamora (thä-mō′rä). 1. A province of Spain, bounded by León, Valladolid, Salamanca, Portugal, and Orense. The surface is generally level. Area, 4,097 square miles. Population, 275,545.—2. The capital of the province of Zamora, situated on the Douro in lat. 41° 30′ N., long. 5° 46′ W. It was formerly a frequent residence of the kings of León and Castile. Population, 17,160.

Zamora. An interior state of Venezuela, west of Miranda. Area, 25,212 square miles. Population, about 300,000.

Zamora (thä-mō′rä), Antonio de. Born at Bogotá, 1660: died there, after 1701. A New Granadan historian, of the Dominican order. His principal work is "Historia de la provincia de San Antonio del Nuevo Reyno de Granada" (Barcelona, 1701).

Zamora, Antonio de. Born at Madrid about 1660: died probably in 1722. A Spanish dramatist. His best works are "Mazariegos y Monsalves" and "El hechizado por Fuerza."

Zamora y Coronado (thä-mō′rä ē kō-rō-nä′-THŌ), José María. Born at Cartago, Costa Rica, 1785: died in Cuba after 1846. A Spanish-American jurist and author. He studied in Spain, and subsequently held civil and judicial offices in Porto Rico and Cuba. His principal work is "Registro de la legislacion ultramarina" (6 vols. 1844–46), a collection of the laws and regulations bearing on the Spanish colonies, of great historical value.

Zamore (za-mōr′). One of the principal characters in Voltaire's tragedy "Alzire": a noble and impetuous Peruvian.

Zampa, ou La Fiancée de Marbre. An opéra comique by Hérold, first produced in 1831.

Zampieri. See Domenichino.

Zancara (thän-kä′rä). A river in central Spain, regarded as the principal head stream of the Guadiana, which it joins northeast of Ciudad Real. Length, over 125 miles.

Zancle (zan′klē). The original name of Messana (Messina).

Zandeh (zän′dā). See Nyam-Nyam.

Zandt (zant), Marie Van (Mrs. Petrovich Tscherinoff). Born at New York, Oct. 8, 1861. An American opera-singer. She made her first appearance at Turin in 1879 as Zerlina. Her voice is a soprano.

Zanesville (zānz′vil). The capital of Muskingum County, Ohio, situated at the junction of the Licking and Muskingum rivers, 55 miles east of Columbus. It has varied manufactures. It was the capital of the State 1810–12. Population, 28,026, (1910).

Zanga (zang′gä). The principal character in Young's "Revenge." It was acted by Macready, and was a favorite with John Kemble.

Zankoff (tzän′kof), Dragan. Born at Sistova, 1827. A Bulgarian politician. He was premier in 1880, and minister of foreign affairs; was imprisoned in 1882; and was again premier 1883–84. He became leader of the Russian party, and took a leading part in the conspiracy against Prince Alexander in 1886.

Zanoni (za-nō′ni). A romance by Bulwer Lytton, published in 1842.

Zante (zän′te). 1. An island of the Ionian group, Greece, south of Cephalonia, intersected by lat. 37° 45′ N., long. 20° 45′ E.: the ancient Zacynthus. The surface is a plain, bordered by hills in the west. The island has often been visited by earthquakes. It produces large quantities of currants, and also olives, oranges, etc. Zante was colonized by Achæans; belonged to the Athenian confederacy; was long held by Venice; and formed part of the Ionian Republic. Length, 24 miles. Area, 168 square miles. Population, 42,-502.

2. A seaport and the capital of Zante, situated on the eastern coast, on the site of the ancient city Zacynthus. Population, 13,580.

Zanzalians (zan-zā′li-ạnz). The Jacobites of the East: so called occasionally from Zanzalus, a surname of Jacobus Baradæus. See Jacobites, 2.

Zanzibar (zän-zi-bär′). 1. An island off the eastern coast of Africa, about lat. 5° 40′–6° 30′ S.: the most important part of the sultanate of Zanzibar. The soil is fertile and highly cultivated. The island is especially noted for its cloves. Area, 640 square miles. Population, estimated, 176,000 (largely negroes). The Arabs are the dominant race. There are several thousand Hindus.

2. The capital of the sultanate of Zanzibar, situated on the western coast of the island of Zanzibar, in lat. 6° 10′ S.: the largest city on the eastern seaboard of Africa. It is a port of call of several steamship lines, and exports ivory, caoutchouc, hides, copal, sesame seeds, etc. Pop., estimated, 55,750.

Zanzibar. A sultanate in eastern Africa, comprising the islands of Zanzibar, Pemba, and smaller islands, and the coast of the British East Africa Protectorate up to 10 miles inland. It was placed under the protection of Great Britain in 1890. It is the remnant of a once strong Mohammedan power.

Zápolya (zä′pol-yo). A powerful Hungarian family. John Zápolya was king of Hungary 1526–40; his dominion was restricted to Transylvania and parts of Hungary. His son John Sigismund Zápolya (styled king of Hungary) ruled Transylvania 1540–71.

Zaporogians (zä-pō-rō′ji-ạnz). A warlike division of the Cossacks, who formerly dwelt along the lower Dnieper. They were compelled to remove in the 18th century to the Crimea, and later to the Kuban, etc. Also Saporogians.

Zapotec-Mixtec stock (tzä-pō-tek′mēs-tek′ stok). A linguistic stock of Mexican Indians, principally in Oajaca, extending into Guerrero and Puebla. It includes the Zapotecs, Mixtecs, and several smaller branches (Chatinos, Mazatecos, Soltecos, etc.). Estimated number, nearly 700,000.

Zapotecs (tzä-pō-teks′). Indians of southern Mexico, occupying the greater part of the state of Oajaca, and extending into Guerrero. Before the Spanish conquest they formed a powerful nation, and in culture and warlike prowess were not inferior to the Aztecs, whom they successfully resisted in several invasions. Their political system seems to have been a tribal federation. They constructed buildings of stone and mortar; subsisted mainly by agriculture; had a complicated mythology; and offered human sacrifices to their idols. Their system of numeration, calendar, and many of their rites and customs resembled those of the Nahuatl tribes; but their language was entirely distinct. In war they used cotton armor. The Zapotecs were conquered by the Spaniards in 1522–26. After transient revolts in 1531 and 1550, they submitted to missionary influence, and they are now a peaceful and laborious part of the Mexican population. They are intelligent, and frequently attain positions of trust. Estimated number, 260,000, of whom about 50,000 speak only their own language.

Zara (zä′rä; It. pron. dzä′rä). [Slav. Zadar, L. Jadera.] A seaport, capital of Dalmatia, situated on the Adriatic in lat. 44° 7′ N., long. 15° 14′ E. It has considerable coasting trade; and is noted for the manufacture of maraschino. Its cathedral is an interesting 13th-century structure. The Porta Marina or di San Chrysogono is a Roman triumphal arch of one graceful opening, flanked by Corinthian pilasters supporting an entablature with inscription. Statues, now gone, formerly stood on the top. Zara was a Roman town; was held in turn by Hungary and Venice; was taken by the Venetians aided by French Crusaders in 1202; was acquired by Venice in 1409; passed to Austria in 1797; and was held by France 1806–13. Population, 36,600, (1910).

Zara (zä′rä). A character in Congreve's play "The Mourning Bride." It is she who says:

> Heaven has no rage like love to hatred turned,
> Nor hell a fury like a woman scorned.
> Congreve, Mourning Bride (ed. 1710), iii. 8.

Zarafshan (zär-äf-shän′), or Zerafshan. The Yarkand, one of the head streams of the Tarim, in Eastern Turkestan.

Zaragoza. See Saragossa.

Zaramo (zä-rä′mō), or Wazaramo (wä-zä-rä′-mō). A Bantu tribe of German East Africa, between the Kingani and Rufiji rivers (lat. 6° 20′–8° 5′ S.). They are tall and vigorous. Their color is varied, owing to the great admixture of slaves from other districts; but the black complexion is preferred. They wear European cloth, dyed in native fashion, and a peculiar necklace of beadwork. In every village there are a few large houses, consisting of a stout framework, thatch roof, and walls made of large plates of bark. Formerly troublesome, they have become peaceful. The country is called Uzaramo, the language Kizaramo. Most of the people speak also Swahili.

Zárate (thär′ä-tā), Agustin de. Born about 1492: died at Madrid (?) about 1560. A Spanish historian. He was comptroller of Castile, and in 1543 went to Peru with the viceroy Nuñez Vela to examine into the financial affairs of the country. After his return he was treasurer of the Spanish Netherlands. He wrote "Historia del descubrimiento y conquista de la provincia del Perú" (1555: later editions and translations).

Zarathushtra (za-ra-thōsh′tra). [In mod. Pers. Zardusht, Gr. Ζωροάστρης, L. Zoroaster.] The founder of the Perso-Iranian national religion, which prevailed from the time of the Achæmenidæ (559–330 B. C.) to the close of the Sassanian dynasty (226–641 A. D.). It is to-day represented in Persia and Russian Transcaucasia by a population of about 8,000 in Yazd and neighboring villages, Teheran, Ispahan, Shiraz, and Baku, and by more than 50,000 in Bombay and the vicinity (the Parsis). The many attempts to etymologize the name cannot be considered as more than guesses. The extensive literature regarding Zarathushtra consists on the one hand of notices in Greek and Latin writers, on the other of what can be got from the Avesta and from the later Persian and Parsi literature. The one inference of value from the former source is that Zarathushtra was a historical person. The first inference from the Gathas of the Avesta (see these names) is that they relate to a time and place of transition from a nomadic to an agricultural life. This place must have been in or near the region from which the Vedic Hindus went southward into the valley of the Indus, and the Iranians westward: for the language of the Gathas, and even the primitive types of meter employed in the Avesta, stand very near to the Vedic, and in the absence of special proof to the contrary closely resembling dialects prove a close geographical vicinity. Such proof is not found in the legends that place the birth of Zarathushtra in Rhagæ or Shiz, both in Media. Mazdayasnianism, reaching its complete development in West Iran, could not in the view of its West Iranian supporters have originated except there in the chief seat of its culture. Supposing the religion to have originated in Bactria and reached its culmination in Media, the distance and the development of doctrine and practice in the Avesta, regarded as a whole, would imply a considerable age for the first beginnings. Roth puts them at about 1000 B. C. Primitive Zarathushtrianism had a brief creed, very different from the complicated prescriptions of the Vendidad and the extravagances of the Yashts. Varuna, the highest of the Adityas, the sons of Aditi, the infinite, as the chief god of light, and especially of the illuminated night heaven, was common to both branches of the Aryan race before its separation into Indian and Iranian. With Varuna were associated the highest spiritual conceptions. These the Hindus soon lost in an ever-increasing tendency to personify and worship the various powers of nature, while the Iranians had a longer and firmer grasp of them. The development of the spiritual side of Varuna into the conception of Ahuramazda, the Spiritual Wise One, or the Wise Spirit, or at least the clear expression of this view, was the essential fact in the work of Zarathushtra. As Varuna becomes Ahuramazda, the other Adityas become the Amesha Spentas or Amshaspands, the Immortal Holy Ones, the expression of his qualities and his ministering spirits. From the dominance of the supreme god of light grew a recognition of an opposing principle of darkness; and as light symbolizes truth, this principle found a natural designation in Druj or deceit, the same as Angro Mainyush or Ahriman. The dethroned devas (gods) of the popular religion, who were no longer to be worshiped in conjunction with the supreme Ahuramazda, were regarded as the servants of Druj, and were degraded to the rank of demons or devs. Good thoughts, good words, and good actions are the object of moral striving. Holiness is rewarded by immortality and heaven. The tillage of the soil is the best of actions. The elements—earth, air, fire, and water, but especially fire—receive homage as creations of Ahuramazda. Zarathushtra lived under a king, Vishtaspa, who in the epic is king of Bactria. There is absolutely no reason for identifying him with Hystaspes, father of Darius. Zarathushtra had several sons and daughters. According to the Shahnamah, he was murdered at the altar by Turanians who stormed Balkh. All attempts to connect him with Hebrew influences are groundless.

Zarephath. See Sarepta.

Zaribrod. See Tsaribrod.

Zarlino (dzär-lē′nō), Giuseppe or Gioseffe. Born at Chioggia, near Venice, 1519: died at Venice, Feb. 14, 1590. An Italian musician, choir-master at Venice. He is best known from his theoretical works on music: "Istituzioni armoniche" (1558), "Dimostrazioni armoniche" (1571), and "Sopplimenti musicali" (1588).

Zarncke (tsärn′ke), Friedrich. Born at Zahrenstorf, Mecklenburg-Schwerin, July 7, 1825: died at Leipsic, Oct. 15, 1891. A German critic and author, professor at Leipsic. He founded the "Literarisches Centralblatt für Deutschland" (1850); edited the "Narrenschiff," "Nibelungenlied," etc.; and wrote on the "Nibelungenlied," on the history of the legends of the grail, on the University of Leipsic, etc.

Zarpanit (zär′pa-nit). [Babylonian Zer-banit, she who creates posterity.] In Assyro-Babylonian mythology, the wife of Merodach (Marduk), the tutelar god of the city of Babylon.

Zauberflöte (tsou′ber-flē′te), Die. [G., 'The Magic Flute.'] An opera by Mozart, produced at Vienna in 1791. It has been played in French as "Les Mystères d'Isis."

Zaurak (zä′rak). [Ar. neyyir-al-zaurak, the bright star of the boat.] The third-magnitude star γ Eridani.

Zavijava (zav-i-jä′vä). [Ar., corrupted from záwiyat-al-'auwa, the retreat or kennel of the barking dog, alluding to some old Oriental constellation.] The fourth-magnitude star β Virginis.

Zaylah. See Zeila.

Zbarasz (zbä′räsh). A town in Galicia, Austria-Hungary, 11 miles northeast of Tarnopol. Population, commune, 9,941, (1910).

Zea. See Ceos.

Zea (thä′ä), Francisco Antonio. Born at Medellin, Oct. 21, 1770: died at Bath, England, Nov. 28, 1822. A New Granadan statesman. He was associated with Mutis in scientific explorations, and succeeded him as chief of the academy known as the "Expedicion botanica" in 1789; was imprisoned 1795–97 on the charge of circulating seditious pamphlets; resided in Europe after his release until 1815, when he joined Bolivar at Jamaica; was president of the Congress of Angostura in 1819; and the same year was elected vice-president of Colombia. In 1820 he went to Europe as envoy to France and England. He published a "Historia de Colombia" (1821) and many scientific papers. Zea has been called "the Franklin of Colombia."

Zeal (zēl), Arabella and Dorcas. Characters in Charles Shadwell's play "The Fair Quaker of Deal."

Zealand (zē′land). [Dan. Själland, G. Seeland.] The largest island of Denmark. It lies between the Cattegat and the Baltic, and is separated by the Sound from Sweden, and by the Great Belt from Fünen. The surface is level or undulating. Zealand contains the capital, Copenhagen. Length, 80 miles.

Zealand. A stift or bishopric of Denmark, including the islands of Zealand, Möen, Samsö, and Bornholm.

Zealand (zē′land). [D. Zeeland, G. Zeeland, F. Zélande.] A province of the Netherlands, bounded by the North Sea, South Holland, North Brabant, and Belgium. Capital, Middelburg. It comprises the islands Walcheren, North and South Beveland, Tholen, Duiveland, Schouwen, and others, and parts of the mainland. The surface is low (in large part below sea-level) and the soil fertile. Zealand took a prominent part in the war of independence. Area, 690 square miles. Population, 231,958.

Zealand, Bernese. A name given to a district in the canton of Bern, Switzerland, situated between the Lake of Neuchâtel and the canton of Solothurn.

Zealots (zel′ọts). A religio-political party in Judea. They assumed this name from their zeal for the law of God, denying any other authority. They demanded that the Judean state should be a republic, and especially hated Rome and the Roman supremacy over Judea. During the struggle of Judea with Rome, the Zealots were the promoters and supporters of the revolution; but they often sullied their lofty precepts with fanatical deeds of violence and crime. A portion of them who escaped the sword of the Romans established a community in North Arabia, in the vicinity of Medina, which lasted until the 7th century.

Zeballos. See Ceballos.

Zebedee (zeb′e-dē). The father of the apostles James and John.

Zebehr Pasha (ze-bär′ pash′â). An Egyptian governor in Sudan, imprisoned by the British about 1885–87.

Zeboim (ze-bō′im or zē′bō-im). In scriptural geography, one of the cities of the plain.

Zebú. See Cebú.

Zebulon (zeb′ū-lọn), or Zebulun (-lun). 1. One of the patriarchs, the tenth son of Jacob. —2. One of the twelve tribes of Israel. It occupied the later Galilee.

Zechariah (zek-ạ-rī′ä). [Same as Zachariah.] The title of one of the prophetic books of the Old Testament. It derives its name from the supposed author, who prophesied about 520 B. C., and relates to the judgments of God on the oppressors of Israel, and Israel's redemption and final restoration.

Zedekiah (zed-e-kī′ä). The last king of Judah and Jerusalem, 597 (598 ?)–586 (587 ?). He was carried captive to Babylon.

Zedlitz (tsed′lits), Baron Joseph Christian von. Born at Johannisberg, in Austrian Silesia, Feb. 28, 1790: died at Vienna, March 16, 1862. An Austrian poet and dramatic writer. Among his works are "Todtenkränze," "Waldfräulein," the dramas "Stern von Sevilla" and "Kerker und Krone," etc.

Zeehan (zē′han). A silver- and lead-mining town in western Tasmania, of recent development.

Zeeland (zā′länt). See Zealand.

Zeguha (zē-gō′hä), or Wazeguha (wä-zē-gō′hä), G. Wasegua. A Bantu tribe of German East Africa, between Uzaramo and the Pangani River. Uzeguha is the name of the country and Kizeguha that of the language, which is akin to the Kinguru, spoken by the Wanguru, their western neighbors.

Zehngerichtenbund (tsän-ge-riċh′ten-bönt). A league in the northern part of the canton of Grisons, Switzerland, which formed one of the original parts of that canton: founded in 1436.

Zeid (zād). The secretary of Mohammed, the founder of Islam. After Mohammed's death he collected the scattered revelations and sermons of the prophet, and united them into the Koran.

Zeila, or Zaylah (zā′lä). A town in eastern Africa, situated on the Gulf of Aden in lat. 11° 22′ N. It was occupied by the British in 1884. Population, estimated, 6,000.

Zeitz (tsīts). A town in the province of Saxony, Prussia, situated on the White Elster 23 miles south-southwest of Leipsic. It has various manufactures. Population, commune, 30,568.

Zela (zē'lä). In ancient geography, a town in Pontus, Asia Minor, about lat. 40° 11′ N., long. 36° E. It was the scene of a victory of Mithridates over the Romans about 67 B. C., and was famous for the victory by Cæsar over Pharnaces in 47 B. C. It was with reference to this battle that Cæsar uttered the famous "Veni, vidi, vici" ('I came, I saw, I conquered').

Zelle. See Celle.

Zeller (tsel'ler), Eduard. Born at Kleinbottwar, Würtemberg, Jan. 22, 1814: died at Stuttgart, March 19, 1908. A noted German historian of philosophy and Protestant theologian: professor of philosophy at Berlin from 1872 (emeritus 1895). He published "Platonische Studien" (1839); "Die Philosophie der Griechen" (1844–52 and later editions), his greatest work; "Geschichte der christlichen Kirche" (1847); "Die Apostelgeschichte" ("Acts of the Apostles," 1854); "Geschichte der deutschen Philosophie seit Leibniz" (1873); "Grundriss der Geschichte der griechischen Philosophie" (1883).

Zeller (zel-lär'), Jules Sylvain. Born at Paris, April 23, 1820: died there, July 25, 1900. A French historian, author of histories of Italy, Germany, the Roman emperors, Ulrich von Hutten, etc.

Zelmira (zel-mēr'ä). An opera by Rossini.

Zelter (tsel'ter), Karl Friedrich. Born at Berlin, Dec. 11, 1758: died May 15, 1832. A German composer, director at the Berlin Singakademie from 1800. He was best known through his correspondence with Goethe.

Zémire et Azor (zā-mēr' ā ā-zōr'). An opera by Grétry, words by Marmontel, from the story of "Beauty and the Beast." It was first produced at Fontainebleau in 1771.

Zempelburg (tsem'pel-börg). A small town in the province of West Prussia, Prussia, 78 miles southwest of Dantzic.

Zenaga (ze-nä'gä). A dialect of Berber, spoken in southern Morocco and on the banks of the Senegal River, largely by the negro population. See Berbers.

Zend (zend). The name commonly given to the language of the Avesta: an ancient form of Iranian or Persian. It was deciphered in the 19th century, largely by means of its resemblance to Sanskrit. See Avesta.

Zend-Avesta (zen-dä-ves'tä). See Avesta.

Zeno (zē'nō). [Gr. Ζήνων.] Lived in the 5th century B. C. A Greek philosopher of the Eleatic school, the favorite pupil of Parmenides. He went to Athens in his fortieth year, during the early youth of Socrates, and resided there many years. He is especially celebrated for his arguments designed to prove the inconceivability of motion. His doctrines are referred to in the "Parmenides" of Plato.

Zeno. Born at Citium, Cyprus: died about 264 B. C. A Greek philosopher, founder of the Stoic school. (See Stoics.) He studied philosophy at Athens, and founded his school there.

Zeno. Byzantine emperor 474–491. He was an Isaurian by birth, and was son-in-law of the emperor Leo I. He suppressed various revolts; instigated Theodoric to attempt the conquest of Italy; and promulgated the "Henoticon."

Zeno of Sidon. Lived about 150–80 B. C. An Epicurean philosopher, instructor of Cicero.

Zeno, Antonio. Lived about the end of the 14th century. A Venetian navigator, brother of Nicolo Zeno.

Zeno, Nicolo. Born about 1340: died about 1395. A Venetian explorer. He is said to have visited Greenland, Newfoundland, and the coast of North America. A narrative of his discoveries, with map, was published by Carlo Zeno in 1558 (edited by the Hakluyt Society in 1873).

Zenobia (ze-nō'bi-ä). Died after 274. Queen of Palmyra, wife of Odenathus, ruler of Palmyra. She was joint ruler in her husband's lifetime, and succeeded him in 271 as regent for her son and as queen. Her armies were defeated by Aurelian in 271; Palmyra was besieged and taken in 272; and she was captured and brought to Rome.

Zenobia. In Hawthorne's "Blithedale Romance," an impulsive, passionate woman who drowns herself.

> At length the body is found, and poor Zenobia is brought to the shore with her knees still bent in the attitude of prayer, and her hands clenched in immitigable defiance. Foster tries in vain to straighten the dead limbs. As the teller of the story gazes at her, the grimly ludicrous reflection occurs to him that if Zenobia had foreseen all "the ugly circumstances of death—how ill it would become her, the altogether unseemly aspect which she must put on, and especially old Silas Foster's efforts to improve the matter—she would no more have committed the dreadful act than have exhibited herself to a public assembly in a badly fitting garment."
>
> Leslie Stephen, Hours in a Library, p. 236.

Zenobia, or the Fall of Palmyra. A historical novel by William Ware, founded on the life of Queen Zenobia, published in 1837 as "Letters from Palmyra" and shortly after under its present title.

Zenodotus (ze-nod'ō-tus). [Gr. Ζηνόδοτος.] Born at Ephesus: lived in the 3d century B. C. An Alexandrian Homeric scholar, the first superintendent of the library at Alexandria.

Zenta (zen'to). A town in the county of Bács, Hungary, situated on the Theiss 24 miles south of Szegedin. A victory was gained there by the Imperialists under Prince Eugene over the Turks, Sept. 11, 1697. Population, commune, 28,588.

Zephaniah (zef-ạ-nī'ạ̈). [Etym. unknown.] The title of one of the prophetic books of the Old Testament. It derives its name from that of its supposed author, who prophesied about 642–611 B. C. The predictions contained in the book are chiefly of judgments against the Jews on account of national sins; but toward the close their restoration and future prosperity are indicated.

Zephon (zē'fon). A cherub in Milton's "Paradise Lost." He is made the "guardian angel of Paradise."

Zephyr (zef'èr). See Zephyrus.

Zephyrinus (zef-i-rī'nus). Bishop of Rome from about 200 to 217.

Zephyrus (zef'i-rus). [L., from Gr. Ζέφυρος, a personification of the west wind.] In classical mythology, a personification of the west wind, poetically regarded as the mildest and gentlest of all the sylvan deities. See Favonius.

Zerafshan (zer-äf-shän'). A river in central Asia which flows westward past Samarkand, and becomes lost in the neighborhood of the Amu-Daria, west of Bokhara. Length, 400–500 miles.

Zeram. See Ceram.

Zerbinette (zer-bē-net'). In Molière's "Les Fourberies de Scapin," the daughter of Argante, stolen by gipsies. Scapin intrigues for the money to ransom her.

Zerbino (dzer-bē'nō). The Prince of Scotland in the "Orlando Furioso" of Ariosto.

Zerbst (tserpst). A town in Anhalt, Germany, situated on the Nuthe 22 miles southeast of Magdeburg. It has varied manufactures, a noted castle, a Rathaus, and a church of St. Nicholas. It was formerly the residence of the princes of Anhalt-Zerbst. Population, commune, 18,128.

Zerlina (dzer-lē'nä). 1. One of the principal characters in Mozart's opera "Don Giovanni," affianced to Masetto.—2. A character in Auber's "Fra Diavolo."

Zermatt (tser-mät' or zer-mät'). A village in the canton of Valais, Switzerland, situated in the Matter Thal in lat. 46° 1′ N., long. 7° 44′ E.: a famous tourist center. It is in the neighborhood of the Matterhorn, Monte Rosa, Gorner Grat, Riffelberg, and Théodule Pass. Elevation, 5,315 feet.

Zerubbabel (ze-rub'ạ-bel). [Heb., 'begotten in Babylon.'] Son of Shealtiel, and grandson of King Jehoiachin. His Babylonian name was Sheshbazzar. He and Joshua, grandson of the high priest Seraiah, led the first colony of exiles (about 42,000) who returned from the captivity to Judea. He was invested by Cyrus with the office of governor (pechah) of the province which the exiles were to occupy. He began and promoted the rebuilding of the temple. Later he resigned the leadership, and probably returned to Babylon.

Zetes (zē'tēz). [Gr. Ζήτης.] In classical mythology, a son of Boreas.

Zethos (zē'thos). [Gr. Ζῆθος.] In Greek mythology, the brother of Amphion.

Zetland Islands. See Shetland Islands.

Zettinje, or Zetinje. See Cettinje.

Zeugitana (zū-ji-tā'nä). In ancient geography, the northern part of the Roman province of Africa: equivalent to northern Tunis.

Zeugma (zūg'mä). [Gr. Ζεῦγμα.] In ancient geography, a town on the right bank of the Euphrates, opposite the modern Biredjik, about lat. 37° N.: noted as a place of passage across the Euphrates.

Zeus (zūs). [Gr. Ζεύς, L. Jovis (gen.), Ju-piter.] In Greek mythology, the chief and master of the gods, the supreme deity, omnipresent and all-powerful, generally looked upon as the son of Cronus and Rhea, and held to have dethroned and succeeded his father. In a narrower sense, he was the god of the heavens, and controlled all celestial phenomena, as rains, snows, and tempests, heat and cold, and the lightning. His consort was Hera. Zeus was worshiped universally; but the most renowned of his sanctuaries were those of Olympia in Elis and Dodona in Epirus. In art Zeus was represented as a majestic and powerful figure, with full beard and flowing hair, in early works sometimes fully draped, but in later art, in general, only lightly draped in the himation. The type fixed by Phidias in the second half of the 5th century B. C., in his great chryselephantine statue for the temple at Olympia, influenced all artists who came after him. The usual attributes of the god are a long staff or scepter, the thunderbolt, the eagle, and sometimes a figure of Victory borne on one hand. The head is generally encircled by a fillet or a wreath; in later sculptures the hair rises from the brow in luxuriant locks like a crown, and falls in masses on either side of the face. Compare Jupiter.

Zeus, Olympian. A colossal chryselephantine statue of Zeus by Phidias, placed in the temple at Olympia, Greece. (See Olympia and Olympieum.) It was removed to Constantinople in the 5th century A. D., and burned in 476.

Zeus, Olympian, Temple of. See Olympieum.

Zeus Nicephorus (zūs nī-sef'ō-rus). ['Bearer of Victory.'] An antique statue found at the Villa Barberini, and now in the Hermitage Museum, St. Petersburg. It is remarkable for its colossal size, but has been much restored.

Zeuss (tsois), Johann Kaspar. Born at Vogtendorf, Upper Franconia, July 22, 1806: died at Vorstendorf, Upper Franconia, Nov. 10, 1856. A German historian and philologist, noted for his researches in German history and Celtic philology. He became professor of history at the lyceum in Speyer in 1839, and at the lyceum in Bamberg in 1847.

Zeuxis (zūk'sis). [Gr. Ζεῦξις.] Born at Heraclea (in Lucania (?) or in Macedonia (?)): flourished at the close of the 5th century B. C. A famous Greek painter. He formed his style in Athens under the influence of Apollodorus; worked in various other cities; and finally settled in Ephesus. Among his principal works were "Zeus on his Throne Surrounded by Gods," "Eros Crowned with Roses" (in the temple of Aphrodite at Athens), the "Marsyas" (in the temple of Concord at Rome), the "Centaur Family" (described by Lucian), the "Alcmene of the Argentines," "Hercules as a Child," the "Helena" (in the temple of Lucanian Hera), and the "Boy with Grapes."

Zhitomir, or Jitomir (zhit-om'ėr). The capital of the government of Volhynia, Russia, situated on the Tetereff in lat. 50° 15′ N. It has considerable trade, and a large Hebrew population. It is an ancient Lithuanian city. Population, 75,100.

Zhob (zhōb) Valley. A large valley in the southeastern part of Afghanistan. It was the scene of a British expedition in 1884.

Zia (zē'ä). A modern Greek name of Ceos.

Zidon. See Sidon.

Ziem (zēm), Félix. Born at Beaune, Côte-d'Or, Feb. 25, 1821. A French painter of landscapes, marines, and architecture. He resides in Paris. Many of his subjects are taken from Venice and the Bosporus.

Zieten (tsē'ten), Count Hans Ernst Karl von. Born March 5, 1770: died at Warmbrunn, May 3, 1848. A Prussian general, corps commander at Ligny and Waterloo.

Zieten, or Ziethen (tsē'ten), Hans Joachim von. Born at Wustrau, near Ruppin, Prussia, May 14, 1699: died at Berlin, Jan. 26, 1786. A Prussian general. He became a cavalry commander; served in the first and second Silesian wars; gained distinction from a march with his hussar regiment in 1745, and at the battle of Hohenfriedberg June 4, 1745; served at the battles of Prague and Kolin in 1757; and decided the victories of Leuthen and Torgau.

Ziklag (zik'lag). In scriptural geography, a town in southern Palestine: site undetermined, probably near the border of Philistia and Judah.

Zillerthal (tsil'ler-täl). An Alpine valley in Tyrol, about 25 miles east of Innsbruck, traversed by the Zillerbach, a tributary of the Inn: noted for its beauty. In 1837 about 400 of its inhabitants (Protestants) emigrated to Silesia in Prussia on account of religious persecution.

Zillerthaler Alps. A group of Alps in Tyrol, extending from the Brenner eastward to the Hohe Tauern.

Zimbabwe (zēm-bäb'wä). A ruined city in Mashonaland, southeastern Africa, discovered by Mauch in 1871. See the extract.

> The ruins of the Great Zimbabwe are in south latitude 20° 16′ 30″ and east longitude 31° 10′ 10″, at an elevation of 3,300 feet above the sea-level. They form the principal of a long series of such ruins stretching up the whole length of the west side of the Sabi river, the southernmost, which we visited, being that on the Lundi, and the northernmost in the Mazoe valley. There are also many other ruins on the Limpopo, in the Transvaal, in Matabeleland, at Tati, the Impakwe, and elsewhere, all of the same type and construction; but time would not permit our visiting them. Some are equal to the ruins of the Great Zimbabwe in workmanship, others again are very inferior, and point to the occupation of this country having continued over a long period, probably centuries. These all would seem to have been abandoned at one time in the face of some overwhelming calamity, for all the gateways at the Great Zimbabwe and at Matindela, the second ruin in importance, 80 miles northeast of it as the crow flies, have been carefully walled up as for a siege.
>
> Theodore Bent, quoted in Appletons' Annual Cyclopædia, [1892, p. 302.

Zimmermann (tsim'mer-män), Johann Georg, Ritter von. Born at Brugg, Aargau, Switzerland, Dec. 8, 1728: died at Hannover, Oct. 7, 1795. A Swiss physician and philosophical writer, court physician at Hannover. His chief works are "Über die Einsamkeit" ("On Solitude," 1755; revised 1784–85), "Vom Nationalstolz" ("National Pride," 1758), "Von der Erfahrung in der Arzneiwissenschaft" ("Experience in Medical Science," 1764), etc.

Zimmermann, Reinhard Sebastian. Born at Hagnau, Switzerland, Jan. 9, 1815: died Nov. 16, 1893. A Swiss genre-painter. He studied at Munich, and later at Paris. In 1850 he exhibited at Munich "The Three Magi." A number of his pictures are in the United States. His son Ernst (born at Munich, April 24, 1852), a historical and genre painter, has reputation as a colorist. His most noted picture, "Christ Among the Doctors," was exhibited in 1879.

Zimmerthal (tsim'mer-täl). The lowest part of the valley of the Avisio, in Tyrol, near Trent.

Zimri (zim'rī). 1. A king of Israel, overthrown by Omri.—2. A character in Dryden's "Absalom and Achitophel" who represents the Duke of Buckingham.

Zin (zin), Desert of. In scriptural geography, a wilderness region south of the Dead Sea.

Zingara (dzēn-gä'rä), La. The Italian version of Balfe's "Bohemian Girl," produced at London in 1858.

Zingarella (dzēn-gä-rel'lä). [It., 'The Gipsy.'] A noted painting by Correggio, in the Museo Nazionale, Naples. It represents the Madonna with her hair concealed by a white turban in gipsy fashion, and with a white robe and blue upper garment. It is a calm, idyllic conception, destitute of any superhuman element.

Zingarelli (dzēn-gä-rel'lē), Niccolò Antonio. Born at Naples, April 4, 1752: died at Torre del Greco, May 5, 1837. An Italian composer, choir-master at Milan, Loreto, Rome, and Naples. He wrote many serious and comic operas, oratorios, cantatas, and masses. His best work is the opera "Romeo e Giulietta" (1796).

Zingis Khan. Same as Jenghiz Khan.

Zinzendorf und Pottendorf (tsin'tsen-dorf önt pot'ten-dorf), Nikolaus Ludwig, Count von. Born at Dresden, May 26, 1700: died at Herrnhut, Saxony, May 9, 1760. A German religious reformer, famous as the reviver and organizer of the Moravian Church. He was educated at Halle and Wittenberg; was in the Saxon civil service 1721–27; settled on his estate at Berthelsdorf; established a colony of the Moravian Brethren at Herrnhut, and organized the church; was expelled from Saxony in 1736, but was allowed to return in 1748; was made a bishop of the Moravian Church; and traveled extensively in Europe and North America. He wrote sermons, hymns, polemics, etc.

Zion (zī'ǫn), or Sion (sī'ǫn), Mount. A hill on which was situated the old city of Jerusalem: the "city of David." The name was probably given originally to the Lower City or Acra, and then transferred to Mount Moriah, the Temple Hill. It has also been applied to the Upper City, and to Jerusalem as a whole, and symbolically to the Christian church and heaven.

Zipango, or Zipangu. See Cipango.

Zipas (tzē'päs). [Zipa, powerful chief.] The chiefs of the ancient Chibcha Indians of Colombia. At the time of the conquest they ruled the plateau of Bogotá and all the territory corresponding to the western part of the modern department of Cundinamarca: this is often called the kingdom of the Zipas. Another branch of the Chibchas, about Tunja (Boyacá), was ruled by chiefs called Zaques. At the time of the conquest the Zaques were at war with the Zipas, who, however, were much more powerful. The Zipas were absolute monarchs, and were treated with great ceremony. Each Zipa was the son of the sister of his predecessor, and was kept under special guardianship from his childhood, subject to singular rules: for example, he was not permitted to see the sun, and he could not eat salt. Subsequently he took the dignity of chief vassal until he attained the throne. He was allowed but one wife, but had hundreds of concubines. He left his house only in solemn procession, and his subjects were forbidden to look at him. At his death the whole kingdom went into mourning. Also written Cipas.

Zipporah (zip'ǫ-rä). [Heb., 'little bird.'] Wife of Moses: daughter of the Midianite priest Jethro.

Zirknitzer See, or Czirknitzer See (tsirk'nits-er zā). A lake in Carniola, Austria-Hungary, south of Laibach: the ancient Lacus Lugeus. It is noted for its extraordinary variations in depth. Length, 6 miles.

Ziska (zis'kä), or Žižka (zhizh'kä), John. Born at Troznow, near Budweis, Bohemia, about 1360: died at the siege of Przibislaw, Oct. 11, 1424. A noted Hussite leader. He was a page at the court of King Wenzel; volunteered in the service of the Teutonic Knights, Hungarians, and English; and became the chief leader of the Hussites. He built the stronghold of Tabor; repelled the Imperialists from Witkow (Ziskaberg) in 1420; gained many victories over the Imperialists, especially at Deutschbrod, Jan. 8, 1422; and invaded Moravia and Austria. He is the subject of an epic by A. Meissner.

Ziska, John, Oath of. See Oath of John Ziska.

Zittau (tsit'tou). A city in the district of Bautzen, Saxony, situated on the Mandau, near the Bohemian frontier, 49 miles east by south of Dresden. It has important manufactures of linen and damask, and is the center of an extensive manufacturing region. There are large coal-mines in the vicinity. The chief buildings are the Rathaus and the churches of St. John and of St. Peter and St. Paul. It was bombarded and nearly destroyed by the Austrians in 1757. It was the birthplace of Marschner. Population, commune, 34,719.

Zitu (zē'tū), or Mazitu (mä-zē'tū). See Viti.

Zizka. See Ziska.

Zloczow (zlo'chov). A town in Galicia, Austria-Hungary, 40 miles east of Lemberg. Population, commune, 13,212, (1910).

Z. Marcas (mär-kä'). A novel by Balzac, written in 1840.

Znaim, formerly Znaym (tsnīm), Bohem. Znojmo. A town in Moravia, situated on the Thaja 48 miles north-northwest of Vienna: formerly one of the principal cities of Moravia. It was founded on its present site in 1226. It has a Rathaus and the ruins of a castle. Population, 18,828, (1910).

Znaim, Armistice of. A truce between the French and Austrians, July 12, 1809, following the battle of Wagram, and preparatory to the peace of Vienna.

Zoan (zō'an). See the extract.

> Sân, or Tanis, the Tân, or Zoan of the Bible, is situated about twenty miles north of Tell-el-Kebir. It is of extremely ancient date, the cartouche of Pepi I., a king of the Sixth Dynasty, having been discovered there. It is mentioned in the Old Testament as having been founded seven years later than Hebron. It was used by the Hyksos as their capital, and was probably the residence of Joseph. In the reign of Ramses II. it was celebrated for its beauty, for the fertility of its fields, and for the abundance of both wild birds and fish. "He rejoices who has settled there." Later on the priests of Zoan-Tanis sided with Hir Hor, the priestly usurper of the throne of Ramses. Under the Twenty-third Dynasty it was again the seat of government. In the stela of Piankhi on Gebel Barkal we find an unnamed satrap ruling in Tanis. Finally Assurbanipal subdued the city and took the governor prisoner.
>
> Mariette, Outlines, p. 26, note.

Zoar (zō'är). In scriptural geography, a city near the Dead Sea: exact site unknown.

Zoar. A village in Tuscarawas County, Ohio, situated on Tuscarawas River 62 miles south by east of Cleveland: the seat of a communistic German settlement.

Zoba, or Zobah (zō'bä). In scriptural geography, a small independent kingdom in Syria, probably near Damascus.

Zobeide (zō-bī'de). A character in the "Arabian Nights' Entertainments," wife of the calif Harun-al-Rashid.

Zoe (zō'ē). [Gr. Ζωή.] Died 1050. Byzantine empress, wife of Romanus III. Argyrus (1028–1034), whom she put to death. She raised to the throne Michael the Paphlagonian, whom she married in 1034.

Zofingen (tsōf'ing-en). A town in the canton of Aargau, Switzerland, situated on the Wigger 25 miles southeast of Basel. Near it are antiquities of the Roman town Tobinium. Population, 4,591.

Zohar (zō'här), or Sohar (sō'här), or Sepher-haz-Zohar. ['Book of Splendor or of Light.'] A cabalistic work, in the form of a commentary on the Pentateuch. It is ascribed traditionally to the 2d century A. D., but by many is thought to have been written much later (13th century, by Moses de Leon).

Zoilus (zō'i-lus). [Gr. Ζωΐλος.] Lived in the 4th century B. C. A Greek rhetorician: called "Homeromastix" ("Scourge of Homer") from his severe criticisms of Homer.

Zola (zō'lä; F. pron. zō-lä'), Émile. Born at Paris, April 2, 1840: died there, Sept. 29, 1902. A noted French novelist. His father was Italian and his mother French. He studied at the Lycée Saint-Louis, but did not take a degree. From 1860 to 1862 he lived in great poverty, and finally entered Hachette's bookstore as a packing clerk. He studied the details of publishing until the close of the year 1865, but devoted to writing all the time that was his own. In 1864 he published his first work, "Contes à Ninon," followed in 1874 by the "Nouveaux contes à Ninon." In 1865 appeared "La confession de Claude," and then other separate novels as "Le vœu d'une morte" (1866), "Les mystères de Marseille" (1867), "Thérèse Raquin" (1867), and "Madeleine Férat" (1868); also a number of short stories (1882–84). From 1871 to 1893 Zola published, under the collective title "Les Rougon-Macquart," twenty novels: "La fortune des Rougons" (1871), "La curée" (1872), "Le ventre de Paris" (1873), "La conquête de Plassans" (1874), "La faute de l'abbé Mouret" (1875), "Son excellence Eugène Rougon" (1876), "L'Assommoir" (1877), "Une page d'amour" (1878), "Nana" (1880), "Pot-Bouille" (1882), "Au bonheur des dames" (1883), "La joie de vivre" (1884), "Germinal" (1885), "L'Œuvre" (1886), "La terre" (1887), "Le rêve" (1888), "La bête humaine" (1890), "L'Argent" (1891), "La débâcle" (1892), and "Le docteur Pascal" (1893). His "Trilogy of the Three Cities" includes "Lourdes" (1894), "Rome" (1896), and "Paris" (1898). His writings in criticism include "Mes haines" (1866), "Mon salon" (1866), "Édouard Manet" (1867), "La République Française et la littérature" (1879), "Le roman expérimental" (1880), "Le naturalisme au théâtre" (1881), "Nos auteurs dramatiques" (1881), "Les romanciers naturalistes" (1881), "Une campagne" (1881), and "Documents littéraires, études et portraits" (1881). Some of his novels have been dramatized, as "L'Assommoir" (1879), "Le ventre de Paris" (1887), "Renée" (1887: adapted from "La curée"), and "Germinal" (1888). Zola is the leader of the school of naturalism in France. On Feb. 23, 1898, he was sentenced to a year's imprisonment and the payment of a fine of 3,000 francs for libeling the court martial which tried and acquitted Major Esterhazy. The sentence was annulled by the Court of Cassation. He was again tried and sentenced to twelve months' imprisonment and the payment of a fine. He left France before notification of judgment in order to secure a retrial later, but soon returned.

Zöller (tsèl'ler), Hugo. Born at Oberhausen, Prussia, Jan. 12, 1852. A German traveler and journalist. He was traveling correspondent of the "Kölnische Zeitung," and explored and annexed for Germany various regions in West Africa in 1884–85. He wrote accounts of travels round the world and in Africa.

Zollern. Same as Hohenzollern.

Zollicoffer (zol'i-kof-èr), Felix Kirk. Born in Tennessee, May 19, 1812: killed at the battle of Mill Springs, Ky., Jan. 19, 1862. An American journalist, politician, and soldier. He was Whig member of Congress from Tennessee 1853–59; a delegate to the peace convention in 1861; and a Confederate brigadier-general. He was one of the Confederate commanders at Mill Spring.

Zöllner (tsèl'ner), Johann Karl Friedrich. Born at Berlin, Nov. 8, 1834: died April 25, 1882. A German physicist and astronomer, professor of astronomy at Leipsic from 1866. He is especially noted for his contributions to astronomical (especially solar) physics. He sought to explain spiritualistic phenomena by means of the conception of a fourth dimension of space, and became involved in controversies on this and other matters. His chief works are "Photometrie des Himmels" (1861), "Photometrische Untersuchungen" (1865), "Über die Natur der Kometen" (1872): the last contains much philosophical speculation.

Zollverein (tsōl'fer-īn'). [G., from zoll, custom, and verein, union.] A union of German states for the maintenance of a common tariff or uniform rates of duty on imports from other countries, and of free trade among themselves. It began with an agreement in 1828 between Prussia and the grand duchy of Hesse; received a great development in 1834 and succeeding years, ultimately including all the German powers except Austria and a few small states; and is now coextensive with the German Empire.

Zombor (zom'bor), or Sombor (som'bor). A royal free city, capital of the county of Bács, Hungary, 64 miles southwest of Szegedin. Population, commune, 29,609.

Zona Libre (thō'nä lē'brä). ['Free zone.'] A narrow strip of territory along the northern border of Mexico, adjoining the United States: by law it extends to a distance of 20 kilometers inland, but in actual usage this varies. The zone was first established in Tamaulipas alone (1858), and it was so called because certain articles imported for consumption in this territory were exempted from customs duties. At present imports to the zone pay 10 per cent. of the ordinary duties, the only exceptions being cattle, which pay the full duty. It has been urged that the Zona Libre is much used for smuggling; but the Mexican authorities claim that it is a commercial necessity owing to the retail trade across the border.

Zone, Free. See Zona Libre.

Zongora (zong-gō'rä), or Wazongora (wä-zong-gō'rä). The principal tribe of the kingdom of Karagwe, in German East Africa, on the southwest shore of Lake Victoria. The language is called Kizongora, and Kinyambo is said to be but a dialect of it.

Zophiel (zō'fi-el). 1. A cherub in Milton's "Paradise Lost."—2. A poem by Maria Brooks.

Zorah (zō'rä). In scriptural geography, a town in Palestine, 14 miles west of Jerusalem: the modern Surah.

Zörbig (tsèr'big). A small town in the province of Saxony, Prussia, 24 miles north-northwest of Leipsic.

Zorilla, or Zorrilla (thōr-rēl'yä), Manuel Ruiz. Born 1834: died June 13, 1895. A Spanish politician. He was a Progressist member of the Cortes in the reign of Isabella; minister under the republic; minister and premier in the reign of Amadeus; and later an exile and republican propagandist.

Zorndorf (tsorn'dorf). A village in the province of Brandenburg, Prussia, 53 miles east by north of Berlin. Here a victory was gained, Aug. 25, 1758, by the Prussians under Frederick the Great over the Russians under Fermor. Loss of the Russians, about 20,000; of the Prussians, about 10,000.

Zoroaster (zō-rǫ-as'tèr). See Zarathushtra.

Zoroastrians (zō-rǫ-as'tri-anz). The followers of Zoroaster, now represented by the Guebers and Parsis of Persia and India. See Zarathushtra.

Zorrilla. See Zorilla.

Zorrilla y Moral (thōr-rēl'yä ē mō-räl'), José. Born at Valladolid, Spain, Feb. 21, 1818: died there, Jan. 23, 1893. A noted Spanish poet. Among his works are "Cantos del trovador," "Floras perdidas," "Granada," and the comedy "El zapatero y el rey" ("The Shoemaker and the King").

Zosimus (zōs'i-mus). [Gr. Ζώσιμος.] Lived probably in the first half of the 5th century A. D. A Greek historian, author of a history of the Roman Empire from Augustus to 410.

Zosimus. Bishop of Rome 417–418.

Zosma (zŏs'mȧ). [Gr. ζῶσμα, a girdle: but the appropriateness of the name is not obvious.] The third-magnitude star δ Leonis, at the root of the animal's tail. The star is also called Duhr, and sometimes Zubra.

Zouave (zō-äv'). See Kabail, Berbers.

Zouaves (zō̤-ävz'). [F., from the name of a tribe inhabiting Africa.] 1. The soldiers belonging to a corps of light infantry in the French army, distinguished for their dash, intrepidity, and hardihood, and for their peculiar drill and showy Oriental uniform. The Zouaves were organized in Algeria in 1831, and consisted at first of two battalions chiefly of Kabyles and other natives, but ultimately became almost entirely French, with increased numbers. They served exclusively in Algeria till 1854, and afterward fought in European wars.

2. The members of those volunteer regiments of the Union army in the American Civil War (1861–65) which adopted the name and to some extent imitated the dress of the French Zouaves.

Zouaves, Papal or Pontifical. A corps of French soldiers organized at Rome, in 1860, for the defense of the temporal sovereignty of the Pope, under General Lamoricière, one of the first commanders of the Algerian Zouaves. After unsuccessfully resisting the entrance of the Italian government into Rome in 1870, they served in France against the Germans and the Commune, and in 1871 were disbanded.

Zrinyi (zrēn'yē), or Zrini, or Zriny (zrē'nē), Count Niklas. Killed at the siege of Sziget, Sept. 7, 1566. A Hungarian commander, famous for his defense of Sziget, with a garrison of 3,000, against Sultan Solyman's army, Aug.–Sept., 1566.

> The Turks were pressing forward along a narrow bridge which led to the castle, when the gates were flung open, a mortar filled with broken iron was fired into their midst, and through the smoke and carnage Zrinyi led his men to their death. Like the famous Light Brigade, the number of these devoted horsemen was six hundred; their leader tied the keys of the castle to his belt, and the banner of the Empire was borne above his head. Zrinyi fell pierced by two musket-shots and an arrow, and the Turks entered the castle of Szigetvár, only to find that a slow match had been applied to a mine containing 3,000 pounds of gunpowder, which speedily sent as many Turks to paradise. The castle still remains a ruin: a monument of the death of a Leonidas and an Alexander.
>
> Poole, Story of Turkey, p. 192.

Zschokke (tshok'ke), Johann Heinrich Daniel. Born at Magdeburg, March 22, 1771: died near Aarau, June 27, 1848. A German-Swiss historian, novelist, and religious writer. He held various administrative positions in Switzerland. Among his historical works are "Geschichte des Freistaats der drei Bünde in Rhätien" (1798), "Geschichte vom Kampfe und Untergange der schweizerischen Berg- und Waldkantone" (1801), "Bayrische Geschichten" (1813), "Des Schweizerlandes Geschichten" (1822). He also wrote tales and sketches, "Der Flüchtling im Jura," "Der Freihof von Aarau," "Der Creole," "Alamontade," etc.; and a religious work, "Stunden der Andacht" ("Hours of Meditation," 1847).

Zschopau (tshō'pou). A river in the kingdom of Saxony which joins the Freiberger Mulde near Leisnig. Length, 68 miles.

Zschopau. A town in the kingdom of Saxony, situated on the Zschopau 36 miles southwest of Dresden. Population, 6,810.

Zubenakravi, or Zubenhakrabi (zō-ben-ak'-ra-vi or -bi). [Ar. zubân-al-akrab, the claw of the Scorpion.] The third-magnitude star 20 Libræ, lettered by Bayer as γ Scorpii.

Zubenalgenubi (zō-ben-al-jen-ū'bi). [Ar. zuben-al-jenubi, the southern claw (of Scorpio).] The third-magnitude star α Libræ, which constellation was formerly reckoned as part of Scorpio. The star is also known as Kiffa Australis.

Zubenalshemali (zō-ben-al-shē̤-mä'li). [Ar. zuben-al-shemâli, the northern claw.] The third-magnitude star β Libræ, or Kiffa Borealis.

Zubra (zō'brȧ). [Ar. al-zubra, the mane or ridge of hair (on a lion's back).] A rarely used name for δ Leonis. See Duhr and Zosma.

Zug (zög or tsög). 1. A canton of Switzerland, bounded by Zurich, Schwyz, Lucerne, and Aargau. Capital, Zug. It has 1 representative in the National Council. The prevailing language is German, and the religion Roman Catholic. Zug joined the confederation in 1352, and sided with the Sonderbund. Area, 92 square miles. Population, 28,179, (1910).

2. The capital of the canton of Zug, situated on the Lake of Zug 13 miles northeast of Lucerne. Notable landslips into the lake occurred here in 1435 and 1887, and the town was partly undermined by the lake in 1887. Population, 6,508.

Zug, Lake of. A lake in Switzerland, inclosed by the cantons of Zug, Schwyz, and Lucerne. Its outlet is the Lorze into the Reuss. Length, 8¾ miles. Width, 2¾ miles.

Zuider Zee. See Zuyder Zee.

Zuinglius. See Zwingli.

Zukertort (tsö'ker-tort), Johannes Hermann. Born at Lublin, Russian Poland, 1842: died at London, June 20, 1888. A noted chess-player, editor of the "Chess Monthly." He won the first prize at the international tournament at Paris in 1878; and at the congress of 1883 gained the first place, Steinitz being second. He was noted as a blindfold player.

Zuleika (zṳ̄-lē'kȧ). A favorite name in Persian poetry.

Zulla (zöl'lä), or Zula (zö'lä), or Sula (sö'lä), or Dola (dō'lä). A village on Annesley Bay, eastern coast of Africa, lat. 15° 15′ N. Near it are the ruins of the ancient Adulis. It is in the Italian colony of Eritrea.

Zulla Bay. Same as Annesley Bay.

Züllichau (tsül'lē-ċhou). A town in the province of Brandenburg, Prussia, 51 miles east-southeast of Frankfort-on-the-Oder. Near it, July 23, 1759, the Russians under Soltikoff defeated the Prussians under Wedel. Population, commune, 7,485.

Zülpich (tsül'piċh). A small town in the Rhine Province, Prussia, 22 miles southwest of Cologne: the ancient Roman city Tolbiacum. It is incorrectly said to have been the scene of the victory of Clovis over the Alamanni in 496 A. D.

Zulu (zö'lö), or Amazulu (ä-mä-zö'lö). A Bantu nation of British South Africa. They occupy the region between Natal (from which it is separated by the Tugela and Umzinyati rivers) and Lourenço Marques. The Amazulu proper border on Natal, the Amahute and Amaswazi (or Amazwazi) on Lourenço Marques. The Zulus are fine specimens of physical manhood. They go almost naked, and are great orators and warriors, using the lance and the shield. Their huts are of the beehive pattern, but large. Their language and folk-lore have been more fully illustrated than those of most other Bantu nations. Their military superiority over neighboring tribes is due to the strict military system introduced by Chaka, who, it is said, got his ideas from the European troops in Cape Colony; and the phenomenal success and enlargement of Zulu conquest may be attributed to the custom of incorporating the conquered into their own army. The kingdom of Lobengula (Matabeleland) and that of Umzila (Gazaland) are of Zulu origin; and so are the Landins of the Zambesi. See Cettiwayo, Kaffir, Lobengula.

Zululand (zö'lö-land). A province (since 1897) of Natal. It comprises the former Zulu Reserve, etc., and was made a British possession in 1887. The Amaputaland Protectorate was annexed to Zululand in 1897. Area, about 12,500 square miles.

Zulu Reserve. Southern Zululand.

Zulu War. See Cettiwayo.

Zumárraga (thö-mär'rä-gä), Juan de. Born near Durango, Biscay, 1486: died at Mexico City, June 3, 1548. First bishop of Mexico. He was a Franciscan, guardian of the convent of Abrojo, and was appointed bishop Dec. 12, 1527, receiving at the same time the title and office of Protector of the Indians. Soon after his arrival in Mexico he caused careful search to be made for Aztec manuscripts, and had them burned in a great pile as heretical books: by his orders similar autos de fe took place in many other cities. Aside from this act he is greatly praised for his zeal and his championship of the rights of the Indians: under him the mission work was extended to all parts of the Spanish conquests in Mexico and Central America. He died eight days after receiving the bull which raised his see to an archbishopric.

Zumpt (tsömpt), August Wilhelm. Born at Königsberg, Dec. 4, 1815: died at Berlin, April 22, 1877. A German classical scholar, nephew of K. G. Zumpt: professor at the Frederick William gymnasium at Berlin. Among his works are "Commentationes epigraphicæ" (1850–54), "Studia Romana" (1859), "Das Kriminalrecht der römischen Republik" (1865–69), etc.

Zumpt, Karl Gottlob. Born at Berlin, March 20, 1792: died at Karlsbad, June 25, 1849. A German classical philologist, professor of Roman literature at Berlin from 1827. He published a Latin grammar (1818); edited Quintilian, Curtius, and several orations of Cicero; and wrote "Annales veterum regnorum et populorum" (1819), "Über den Stand der Bevölkerung und die Volksvermehrung im Altertum" (1841), and various works on Roman antiquities.

Zungaria. Same as Sungaria.

Zuñi (zö'nyē). ["A Spanish adaptation of the Keresan Sunyitsa, of unknown meaning." Handbook of American Indians. Cibola, though strictly the Mexican name for "buffalo," as applied to the seven ancient cities had its origin in Shiwina, the native name of the tribe.] A tribe of North American Indians which inhabits the largest of all the Indian pueblos, as well as three small summer villages, in the main and tributary valleys of the Rio Zuñi, an affluent of the Colorado Chiquito, in western New Mexico. It formerly comprised seven villages, known to the early Spanish explorers as the Seven Cities of Cibola, on the site of one of which stands the present communal pueblo of Zuñi. Number, about 1,500. Also Çuni, Soone, Sune, Cebola, Cibola, Sibola, Zibola.

Zuñian (zö'nyi-ạn). A linguistic stock of North American Indians, comprising only the Zuñi tribe (which see).

Zúñiga. See Ercilla y Zúñiga.

Zúñiga (thön'yē-gä), Alonzo Manrique de, Marquis of Villamanrique. Born at Seville about 1535: died about 1600. A Spanish administrator, viceroy of Mexico Oct. 18, 1585, to Jan., 1590. He was deposed on account of a quarrel with the audience of Guadalajara. His estate was confiscated, but was subsequently restored to his family.

Zúñiga, Baltazar de, Marquis of Valero and Duke of Arion. Born about 1670: died after 1729. A Spanish administrator, viceroy of Mexico Aug. 16, 1716, to Oct. 15, 1722.

Zúñiga, Diego Lopez de. See Lopez de Zúñiga.

Zúñiga y Azevedo (thē ä-thā-vā'ᵺHō), Gaspar de, Count of Monterey. Born about 1540: died at Lima, Peru, Feb. 10, 1606. A Spanish administrator. He was viceroy of Mexico Oct. 5, 1595,–1603. During this period he organized many expeditions for colonization and exploration in New Mexico, California, etc.: the city of Monterey, founded in 1596, and the Bay of Monterey, in California, were named in his honor. He was a zealous protector of the Indians. Transferred to Peru, he was viceroy of that country from Nov. 28, 1604, until his death.

Zuñi (zö'nyē) Mountains. A range of mountains in the western part of New Mexico, about lat. 35° N.

Zupitza (tsö'pit-sä), Julius. Born Jan. 4, 1844: died July 5, 1895. A German philologist, professor at Berlin. He edited Beowulf, Cynewulf's "Elene," Guy of Warwick, etc.

Zurbarán (thör-bä-rän'), Francisco. Born at Fuente de Cantos, Estremadura, Spain, 1598: died 1662. A Spanish painter. His chief work is "Apotheosis of St. Thomas Aquinas."

Zuri (dzö'rē). A small island in the Adriatic, belonging to Dalmatia, 38 miles south-southeast of Zara.

Zurich (zö'rik), G. Zürich (tsü'riċh). 1. A canton of Switzerland, bounded by Baden, Schaffhausen, Thurgau, St. Gall, Schwyz, Zug, and Aargau. Capital, Zurich. It contains a large part of the Lake of Zurich and several other lakes. The Rhine is on or near its northern border. It is traversed by hills and low mountains. It has manufactures of cotton, silk, machinery, etc., and a large trade. Zurich has 22 representatives in the National Council. The prevailing language is German, and the religion Protestant. Zurich was early occupied by the Alamanni; was under the rule of the Carolingians; was subject to the counts of Lenzburg and dukes of Zähringen; became a free imperial city in 1218; was allied with Uri and Schwyz in 1292; entered the confederation in 1351; expanded its territory, especially in the 15th century; was at variance with the confederation 1436–50; and was the center of the Swiss Reformation. Area, 666 square miles. Population, 500,455, (1910).

2. The capital of the canton of Zurich, situated at the outflow of the Lake of Zurich into the Limmat, in lat. 47° 22′ N., long. 8° 33′ E.: the Roman Turicum (whence the modern name). It consists of the city proper and 9 suburbs. It is the most flourishing city in Switzerland, the manufacturing center of the country, and a famous ecclesiastical and literary center. The cathedral was founded in the 11th century, and built for the most part in a plain but excellent Romanesque style. The upper portion of the west towers is of the 13th century, but their helmet-shaped roofs date from 1799. The fine cloister is in the early-Pointed style. Zurich is the seat of a university founded in 1832. Population, 150,703.

Zurich, Battles of. Near Zurich, June, 1799, the Austrians under Archduke Charles defeated the French under Masséna; and Sept. 25–26, 1799, the French under Masséna defeated the Russians under Korsakoff, Suvaroff arriving too late.

Zurich, Lake of, G. Zürichsee (tsü'riċh-zā) or Zürchersee (tsür'ċher-zā). A lake in Switzerland, nearly inclosed by the canton of Zurich, and bordering also on St. Gall and Schwyz. It is separated by a promontory and dam into the lake proper and the upper lake. It is surrounded by hills and (in the upper part) by mountains. Length, 25 miles. Extreme width, 2½ miles. Depth, 470 feet. Elevation above sea-level, 1,342 feet.

Zurich, Peace of. The treaty which terminated hostilities between France and Sardinia on one side and Austria on the other, Nov. 10, 1859. It was based on the preliminaries of Villafranca. Austria ceded Lombardy (except Mantua and Peschiera) to France, which ceded them to Sardinia. Sardinia assumed three fifths of the debt.

Zurita (thö-rē'tä), Alonso. Born about 1500: died after 1564. A Spanish lawyer and author. From 1544 to about 1560 he was successively a member of the audiences of Santo Domingo, Los Confines, and Mexico, traveling besides in New Granada (Santa Marta) to organize courts of justice. He wrote a treatise on the Indians of New Spain, which has been published in modern times. It relates principally to their customs and laws, and is a standard authority.

Zusmarshausen (tsös'märs-hou-zen). A village in Bavaria, situated on the Zusam 15 miles west of Augsburg. It was the scene of a victory of the Swedes and French over the Imperialists May 17, 1648.

Zütphen (züt'fen). A town in the province of Gelderland, Netherlands, situated at the junction of the Berkel with the Yssel, 57 miles east by south of Amsterdam. It was a Hanseatic town. It has several times been besieged and taken (sacked by Alva in 1572). Sir Philip Sidney was mortally wounded before it in 1586. Population, commune, 18,381.

Zuyder Zee, or Zuider Zee (zī'dėr zē; D. pron. zoi'der zā). An arm of the North Sea which penetrates deeply into the Netherlands, and is partly separated from the North Sea by the islands Texel, Vlieland, Terschelling, and Ameland. It was formerly a lake (Roman Flevo), and acquired its present size through inundations in the 13th century. The draining of the southern portion has been projected. Length, about 80 miles. Greatest width, about 40 miles. It is generally shallow.

Zwarte (zwär'te) Water. A stream in the Netherlands on which Zwolle is situated. It receives the Vecht, and as the Zwollsche Diep flows into the Zuyder Zee.

Zweibrücken (tsvī'brük-en). A former sovereign countship in Germany, later a duchy. It belonged to Sweden 1654–1718, and to France 1795–1814; and passed in great part to Bavaria.

Zweibrücken, F. Deux-Ponts (dė-pôn'). A town in the Rhine Palatinate, Bavaria, situated on the Erbach 48 miles west of Speyer. It was formerly the capital of the countship of Zweibrücken. The Bipontine editions of classics were published here at the end of the 18th century. Population, commune, 14,711.

Zweisimmen (tsvī'zim-men). The chief place in the Simmenthal, Switzerland.

Zwickau (tsvik'ou). 1. A district of the kingdom of Saxony.—2. A city in the kingdom of Saxony, situated on the Zwickauer Mulde in lat. 50° 44′ N., long. 12° 29′ E. It has the largest railway-station in Germany; has important commerce; and is the center of a large coal-field. It manufactures chemicals, machinery, porcelain, glass, paper, gloves, stockings, etc. Zwickau was a free city 1290–1348, and passed in 1348 under the rule of Meissen. It was the birthplace of Schumann. Population, commune, 68,502.

Zwickauer Mulde. See Mulde.

Zwieselalp (tsvē'zel-älp). A passand notedpoint of view in the Austrian Alps of the Salzkammergut, 13 miles southwest of Ischl. Height, 5,197 feet.

Zwillingsbrüder (tsvil'ingz-brü-der), Die. [G., 'The Twin Brothers.'] A musical farce, words by Hofmann, music by Schubert, produced in 1820.

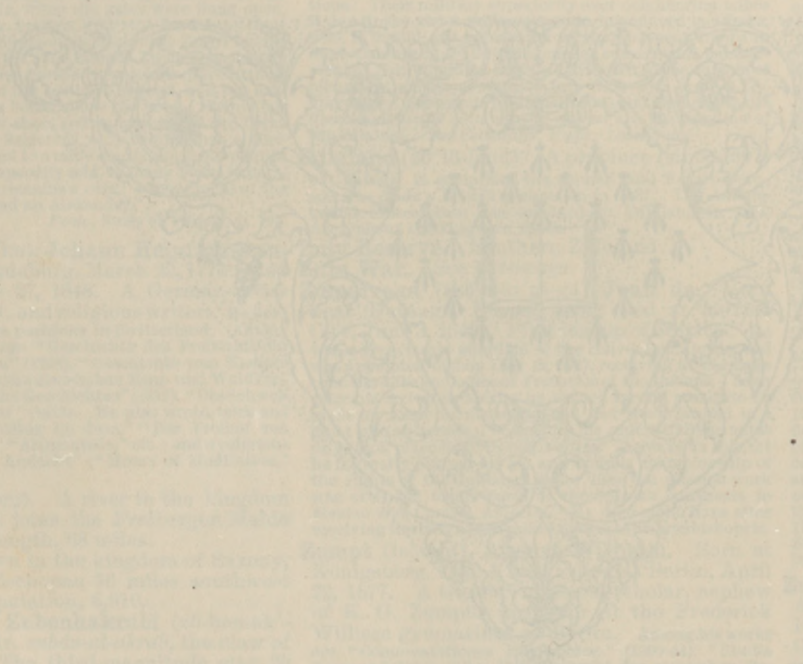
Zwinger (tsving'er). [G., 'prison,' 'fort.'] A famous museum in Dresden. Its picture-gallery contains about 2,500 paintings, including Raphael's Sistine Madonna and works by Correggio, Titian, Paul Veronese, Rembrandt, Rubens, Holbein, and others. There are also collections of drawings, casts, etc.

Zwingli (zwing'lē; G. pron. tsving'lē), L. Zuinglius (zwing'gli-us), Huldreich or Ulrich. Born at Wildhaus, St. Gall, Switzerland, Jan. 1, 1484: killed at the battle of Kappel, Oct. 11, 1531. A famous Swiss Reformer, with Calvin the founder of the Reformed Church. He was educated at Bern, Vienna, and Basel; became pastor in Glarus in 1506; accompanied the Glarus contingent in campaigns as chaplain; became preacher at Einsiedeln in 1516, and at Zurich in 1518; inaugurated, by his preaching, the Reformation at Zurich in 1519 (the Reformation was legalized by the Council of Zurich in 1523); held disputations at Zurich in 1523; was a leader in the political and religious disputes in Switzerland; met the Saxon Reformers in conference in 1529; and accompanied the Zurichers against the forces of the Forest Cantons in 1531. Among his works are "De vera et falsa religione" ("Of True and False Religion"), "Fidei ratio," "Christianæ fidei brevis et clara expositio."

Zwirner (tsvir'ner), Ernst Friedrich. Born at Jakobswalde, Silesia, Feb. 28, 1802: died Sept. 22, 1861. A German architect. He became architect of the restoration of the Cologne cathedral in 1833; and also built the Apollinaris church at Remagen, etc.

Zwittau (tsvit'tou). A town in Moravia, Austria-Hungary, situated near the Bohemian frontier 39 miles north of Brünn. Population, commune, 9,651, (1910).

Zwolle (zwol'le). The capital of the province of Overyssel, Netherlands, situated on the Zwarte Water, near the Yssel, in lat. 52° 31′ N., long. 6° 6′ E. It was a Hanseatic city, and joined the United Provinces in 1580. Near it is the Agnetenberg, long the home of Thomas a Kempis. Pop., commune, 30,560.



SUPPLEMENT

THE CENTURY CYCLOPEDIA OF NAMES SUPPLEMENT

The asterisk (*) is used to mark additions to articles in the Cyclopedia of Names

Abbazia (ä-bät-sē'ä). A village in Istria, Austria, situated on the Gulf of Quarnero, noted as a health-resort. It is protected on the north and west by mountains of considerable height and enjoys an equable climate (mean winter temperature, 50° F.; summer, 77° F.). The annual number of those seeking the baths is upward of 14,000. Population, with Volosca, 6,592, (1910).

Abbe*, Cleveland. He was professor of meteorology at George Washington University 1886–1909, and has been meteorologist of the United States Weather Bureau since 1891.

Abbe (äb'e), Ernst. Born at Eisenach, Saxe-Weimar, Jan. 23, 1840: died at Jena, Jan. 14, 1905. A German physicist, professor in the University of Jena 1870–91, and director of the astronomical observatory from 1878. He is noted for his theoretical work in optics and for the improvements which he made in optical glass and in optical instruments, especially in the microscope. The so-called Jena glass, including varieties much used for lenses, etc., was his invention. From 1866 he was connected with the firm of Karl Zeiss, the instrument-maker of Jena.

Abbé Constantin, L' (ä-bā' koṅ-stäṅ-faṅ'). A novel by Ludovic Halévy, published in 1882.

Abbey*, Edwin Austin. Died at London, Aug. 1, 1911. He was elected a member of the Royal Academy in 1898, and of the National Academy in 1902. He depicted Shaksperian characters, and illustrated works by Herrick, Goldsmith, etc. In 1903–04 he painted the official picture of the coronation of Edward VII., and at the time of his death was engaged on a series of decorations for the Capitol at Harrisburg, Pennsylvania. Part of the series was completed in 1908.

Abbot (ab'ọt), Charles Greeley. Born at Wilton, N. H., May 31, 1872. An American astrophysicist, director of the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory from 1907. He has published numerous papers upon special problems of solar research.

Abbot (ab'ọt), Henry Larcom. Born at Beverly, Mass., Aug. 13, 1831. An American soldier and engineer. He was graduated from the United States Military Academy in 1854; served through the Civil War; and rose to the brevet rank of major-general of volunteers. He has written "Physics and Hydraulics of the Mississippi" (1861: with General Humphreys), "Siege Artillery in the Campaign Against Richmond" (1867), "Experiments to Develop a System of Submarine Mines" (1881), "Problems of the Panama Canal" (1905), etc.

Abbott (ab'ọt), Alexander Crever. Born at Baltimore, Md., Feb. 26, 1860. An American bacteriologist, professor of hygiene and bacteriology in the University of Pennsylvania from 1897. He has published "The Principles of Bacteriology" (1892), etc.

Abbott (ab'ọt), Sir John Joseph Caldwell. Born at St. Andrew's, Quebec, March 12, 1821: died at Montreal, Oct. 30, 1893. A Canadian statesman. He was graduated at McGill University in 1847, was called to the bar in the same year, and was appointed queen's counsel in 1862. He was dean of the faculty of law in McGill University for several years, and was knighted in 1892. He was a member of Parliament for Argenteuil 1859–74 and 1881–87, and entered the Senate for the division of Inkerman, Quebec, May, 1887. He joined the Conservatives in 1865, was a member (without portfolio) of Sir J. A. Macdonald's cabinet in 1887, and was premier of Canada 1891–92.

Abbott (ab'ọt), Thomas Kingsmill. Born at Dublin, March 26, 1829. An Irish clergyman and scholar, a graduate and fellow of Trinity College, Dublin, in which he occupied the chair of moral philosophy 1867–72, of biblical Greek 1875–88, and of Hebrew 1879–1900. He has published "Sight and Touch" (1864), a translation of Kant's "Theory of Ethics" (1873), "Elementary Theory of the Tides" (1888), etc.

Abel (ā'bel), John Jacob. Born at Cleveland, Ohio, May 19, 1857. An American scientist, professor of pharmacology in Johns Hopkins University from 1893. He has conducted investigations in physiological chemistry, physiology, and pharmacology, and is the editor of the "Journal of Pharmacology and Experimental Therapeutics."

Aberdeen (ab-ėr-dēn'). A city in Chehalis County, Washington. It is situated on the north shore of Grays Harbor, 43 miles west of Olympia. It has sawmills, wood-working factories, machine-shops, etc. Population, 13,660, (1910).

Abney (ab'ni), Sir William de Wiveleslie. Born at Derby, England, July 24, 1844. An English physicist and captain in the Royal Engineers, known for his work in photography and spectroscopy. He was president of the Royal Astronomical Society 1893–95, and of the Physical Society 1895–97. Knighted in 1900.

Abra (ä'brä). 1. A river of Luzón, rising in Lepanto-Bontoc province and taking a circuitous course through Abra and Ilocos Sur provinces to the China Sea. Length, 55 miles.—2. A province of northwestern Luzón in the Philippine Islands. It is bounded by Ilocos Norte (separated by a spur of the Cordillera Norte) on the north, Cagayán and Lepanto-Bontoc (separated by the Cordillera Central) on the east, Lepanto-Bontoc and Ilocos Sur on the south, and Ilocos Sur on the west. Capital, Bangued. The highest peak in the province is Burnay, near the point of separation from Ilocos Norte and Ilocos Sur. The valleys are fertilized by the Abra and its branches. Corn, rice, and tobacco are the chief products. The population consists mainly of Ilocanos and Tinguianes. Area, 1,171 square miles. Population, 51,860.

Abraham (ā'brā-ham), William. Born in 1842. A Welsh politician, a member of the Labor party. He was the son of a miner, and was educated at the Carnarvon national school. Since 1873 he has represented the miners as agent. He has represented Glamorganshire (Rhondda division) in Parliament since 1885, and is president of the South Wales Miners' Federation.

Abruzzi (ä-bröt'sē), Duke of the (Prince Luigi Amadeo Giuseppe Maria Ferdinando Francesco). Born at Madrid, Jan. 24, 1873. An Italian explorer, third son of Prince Amadeo of Aosta, at one time King of Spain. (See Amadeus.) In July, 1897, he ascended Mount St. Elias in Alaska, and in 1899–1900 made an attempt in the Stella Polare to reach the north pole from Franz-Joseph-Land. Captain Cagni of his party, with three others, gained lat. 86° 33′ N., the highest then reached. In 1906 he made an ascent of the peaks of Mount Ruwenzori, and in 1909 conducted an expedition to the Himalayas. He has written "La Stella Polare nel mare artico 1899–1900" (1902), etc.

Academy, British. See ★British Academy.

Academy of Arts and Letters, American. An association organized in 1904 by the National Institute of Arts and Letters. Its aim is to represent and further the interests of the fine arts and literature. Its membership is limited to fifty citizens of the United States and its constitution demands that all vacancies shall be filled from the membership of the National Institute.

Academy of Fine Arts, Pennsylvania. See ★Pennsylvania Academy.

Academy of Fine Arts, The. An institution in Florence, Italy, occupying the building formerly known as the Ospedale di San Matteo. The pictures in the collection represent especially the Italian painters of the 15th century. In the "domed room" is Michelangelo's statue of David and a collection of casts of the sculptor's work.

Academy of Fine Arts, The. An institution in Venice which occupies the old Scuola di Santa Maria della Carità on the Grand Canal. The gallery, which was founded in 1798, is devoted to paintings by Venetian masters.

Acapulco*. It was destroyed by earthquakes July 30–31, 1909.

Achensee (äch'en-zā). A small lake in the Tyrol, Austria, lying north of the valley of the lower Inn. It empties into the Isar. Length, 5½ miles.

Acheson (ach'e-sọn), Edward Goodrich. Born at Washington, Pa., March 9, 1856. An American electrician, the inventor of carborundum, siloxicon, the process of Egyptianizing clay, and a method of producing artificial graphite, etc.

Ackermann (äk'er-män), Mme. (Louise Victorine Choquet). Born at Paris, Nov. 30, 1813: died at Nice, Aug. 2, 1890. A French poet. She published "Contes en vers" (1855), "Contes et poésies" (1863), "Poésies philosophiques" (1874), and a volume of prose, "Pensées d'une solitaire" (1883).

Acre (ä-krā'). A territory of Brazil lying north of the river Aquiri and bordering on Bolivia and Peru. It is rich in india-rubber. The boundary dispute between Bolivia and Brazil with regard to this territory was adjusted by a treaty in November, 1903, and an agreement to adjudicate a similar dispute between Brazil and Peru was reached in July, 1904.

Acton, Lord. See ★Dalberg-Acton.

Adam*, Mme. Edmond. Her reminiscences are contained in a series of books which includes "Le roman de mon enfance et de ma jeunesse" (1903), "Mes angoisses et nos luttes" (1907), "Après l'abandon de la revanche" (1911), etc.

Adams (ad'amz), Mrs. (Abigail Smith). Born at Weymouth, Mass., Nov. 23, 1744: died at Quincy, Mass., Oct. 28, 1818. The wife of John Adams (second President of the United States) and the mother of John Quincy Adams (sixth President). Her marriage to John Adams took place Oct. 25, 1764. She supported her husband in his political views and work; joined him in France in 1784; and accompanied him to London, where he was United States minister 1785–88. Her letters published in "Familiar Letters of John Adams and his Wife" (1876) are of historical value.

Adams (ad'amz), Brooks. Born at Quincy, Mass., June 24, 1848. An American lawyer and writer, son of Charles Francis Adams (1807–86). He was secretary to his father when the latter was arbitrator at the Geneva tribunal (1871–72), and practised law until 1881. He is the author of "The Emancipation of Massachusetts" (1887), "The Law of Civilization and Decay" (1896), "America's Economic Supremacy" (1900), "The New Empire" (1902), etc.

Adams (ad'amz), Cyrus Cornelius. Born at Naperville, Ill., Jan. 7, 1849. An American geographer, president of the department of geography of the Brooklyn Institute 1889–1893. He has written "David Livingstone," etc., and has been the editor of the "Bulletin" of the American Geographical Society since 1908.

Adams (ad'amz), Henry Carter. Born at Davenport, Ia., 1851. An American economist, writer, and educator. He was lecturer at Cornell University and the University of Michigan 1880–87, and at Johns Hopkins 1880–82; was director of the division of transportation of the eleventh census and statistician of the Interstate Commerce Commission; and has been professor of political economy and finance in the University of Michigan since 1887. He is the author of "Outline of Lectures on Political Economy" (1881, 1886), "The State in Relation to Industrial Action" (1887), "Taxation in the United States 1789–1816" (1884), "Public Debts" (1887), "The Science of Finance" (1888), "Statistics of Railways" (1888–1904), "Economics and Jurisprudence" (1897), "Special Report on Railway Mail Pay" (1900), "Commercial Valuation of Railway Property in the United States" (1904: with B. H. Meyer), and "Digest of Hearings before the Senate Committee on Interstate Commerce" (1906: with H. T. Newcomb).

Adams (ad'amz), Herbert. Born at West Concord, Vt., Jan. 28, 1858. An American sculptor. He was educated in Boston and was a pupil of Mercié in Paris; won honorable mention at the Paris Salon in 1888 and 1889, a medal at the Columbian Exposition, Chicago, in 1893, and a gold medal at the St. Louis Exposition in 1904; and has executed many memorial compositions and portrait statues. He has also been employed on the decoration of the great expositions.

Adams (ad'ąmz), Herbert Baxter. Born at Shutesbury, Mass., April 16, 1850; died at Amherst, Mass., July 30, 1901. An American historian and educator. He was educated at Amherst College, Heidelberg University, and Johns Hopkins University; was lecturer in history at Smith College 1878–81; and was for many years associate professor and professor of history at Johns Hopkins University. He edited the reports of the American Historical Association (after 1884); the "Contributions to American Educational History" for the United States Bureau of Education (after 1887), and the "Johns Hopkins University Studies in Historical and Political Science." He published "Life and Writings of Jared Sparks" (1893), and many historical monographs.

Adams (ad'ąmz), Maude. Born at Salt Lake City, Nov. 11, 1872. An American actress. For Kiskadden, her family name, she substituted her mother's maiden name, Adams. She first appeared on the stage as a child; supported John Drew in "The Masked Ball" in 1892; and has made her principal successes in J. M. Barrie's plays "The Little Minister," "Quality Street," "Peter Pan," and "What Every Woman Knows." She has also played in F. H. Burnett's "Pretty Sister of José," in "L'Aiglon," "Romeo and Juliet," "Joan of Arc," "Chantecler," etc.

Addams (ad'ąmz), Jane. Born at Cedarville, Ill., Sept. 6, 1860. An American worker for social reform. She was graduated at Rockford College in 1881, and in 1889 opened, with Ellen Gates Starr, Hull House social settlement in Chicago, of which she is (1911) head resident worker. She has written "Function of the Social Settlement" (1899), "Democracy and Social Ethics" (1902), "Newer Ideals of Peace" (1907), "The Spirit of Youth and the City Streets" (1909), "Twenty Years at Hull House" (1910), etc.

Addystone Pipe Case. A case decided Dec. 4, 1899, by the United States Supreme Court. Six iron-pipe manufactories in different States pooled all orders from thirty-six States, the prices being fixed by a representative board and each order being allotted to the member bidding the highest bonus to the pool. That member then bid the price fixed, and the others bid higher, to deceive the customer. The decision declared the combination illegal under the Sherman Antitrust Law, which, it states, is applicable to combinations both of corporations and of individual concerns.

Ade (ād), George. Born at Kentland, Ind., Feb. 9, 1866. An American journalist and playwright. He is the author of "Fables in Slang," "People You Knew," etc.; and among his plays are "The Sultan of Sulu" (1902), "Peggy from Paris" (1903), "The County Chairman" (1903), "The Sho-Gun" (1904), "The College Widow" (1904), "The Bad Samaritan" (1905), "Just Out of College" (1905), "Marse Covington" (1906), "Mrs. Peckham's Carouse" (1906), "In Pastures New" (1906), "The Slim Princess" (1907).

Adelbert (ą-del'bėrt) College. A college of the Western Reserve University (which see). It is named for the son of Amasa Stone. The latter, in 1880, offered the sum of $500,000 to the Western Reserve College provided it should be removed from Hudson, Ohio, to Cleveland and change its name to "Adelbert College of Western Reserve University."

Adenis-Colombeau (äd-nē'kō-loṅ-bō'), Jules. Born at Paris, 1821. A French journalist and dramatist. He was on the editorial staff of the "Corsaire" 1847–49, and has written many comedies, vaudevilles, and libretti. Among his independent works are "Philanthropie et repentir" (1855), "Une crise de ménage" (1857), "Les chasseurs et la laitière" (1865; music by Gavaert), "La fiancée d'Abydos" (1865; music by Barthe), "Le nouveau sorcier" (1867), and "Les trois souhaits" (1873; music by Poise). He has also written much in collaboration with Plouvier, Decourcelle, Tourte, Laurencin, Granvallet, Rostaing, Gastineau, and others.

Adeste fideles (ad-es'tē fi-dē'lēz). [L., 'Come, ye faithful.'] A hymn, originally in Latin, beginning with these words. It has been ascribed to Bonaventura (1221–74), but is more probably of the 17th or 18th century and of French or German authorship. The familiar arrangement, commencing "O come, all ye faithful, joyfully triumphant," first appeared in Murray's "Hymnal" in 1852 and is an adaptation of the translation made by the Reverend Frederick Oakeley in 1841. It has also been published in many other translations. The tune is ascribed to John Reading (1677–1764), organist, and was called the "Portuguese Hymn" because it was sung at the chapel of the Portuguese embassy in 1797 and at once became popular.

Adhémar de Chabannes (ä-dā-mär' de shä-bän'). Born at Chabannes in 988; died at Jerusalem in 1034. A medieval historian, author of a "Historia Francorum" which traces the history of the French from the legendary king Pharamond to 1028. He also wrote other works in Latin.

Adis, or Addis, Abeba (ä'dis ä-bā'bä). The present capital of Abyssinia, situated in the province of Shoa in lat. 9° N. It has a population of 30,000–35,000. A treaty of peace with Italy was concluded here, Oct. 26, 1896.

Adler (äd'lėr), Cyrus. Born at Van Buren, Ark., Sept. 13, 1863. An American Orientalist and archæologist. He was assistant secretary (in charge of the library and exchanges) of the Smithsonian Institution 1905–08 and curator of historic archæology in the United States National Museum 1889–1908. President of Dropsie College 1908–.

Adler (äd'lėr), Felix. Born at Alzei, Germany, Aug. 13, 1851. An American reformer, lecturer, and writer. He came to the United States in 1857; was professor of Hebrew and Oriental literature at Cornell University 1874–76; was the founder of the New York Society for Ethical Culture (1876), to which he gives addresses and in the work of which he is prominent; has been professor of political and social ethics at Columbia University since 1902; is a member of the editorial board of the "International Journal of Ethics"; and has been widely influential in educational and reform movements. He is the author of "Creed and Deed" (1877), "The Moral Instruction of Children" (1893), "Life and Destiny" (1903), "Marriage and Divorce" (1905), "Religion of Duty" (1905), "Essentials of Spirituality" (1905), and of many papers on related subjects. He was exchange professor at the University of Berlin 1908–09.

Adler (äd'lėr), Friedrich. Born at Berlin, Germany, Oct. 15, 1827; died at Berlin, Sept. 15, 1908. A German architect and archæologist. He was educated under the painters Weiss and Grieben and at the Berlin Bauakademie under the architect Strack. He has executed several important buildings, chiefly churches, but is best known as a writer on architecture, especially the medieval and Renaissance architecture of Germany. He was the chief associate of Ernst Curtius in the excavations at Olympia, the results of which were published between 1890 and 1897.

Adler (äd'ler), Victor. Born at Prague, July 24, 1852. An Austrian socialist. He was educated at the University of Vienna. He founded at Vienna a Social-Democratic weekly journal, which was suppressed by the government. Afterward he founded the "Arbeiterzeitung." He has published "Die Arbeiterkammern und die Arbeiter" (1886).

Adrienne Lecouvreur. An opera by Francesco Cilea (words by Scribe and Legouvé), first produced at Milan in 1902.

Afragola (ä-frä-gō'lä). A city of Italy, in the province of Naples, about ten miles northeast of the city of Naples. Population, about 22,500.

Agassiz (ag'ą-si), Lake. An extensive post-glacial lake which occupied the valley of the Red River in North Dakota, Minnesota, and Manitoba. The retreating ice-sheet ponded waters in front of it, and in these were laid down sediments, now the fertile wheat-fields of this region.

Agassiz (ag'ą-si), Mount. 1. A peak of the Uintah Mountains in Utah, 13,000 feet high.—2. A peak in Chile, in the territory of Magallanes, about lat. 50° S. It is about 10,000 feet high.

Agno (äg'nō). 1. A river of central Luzón, in the Philippine Islands. It rises in the northern mountains of Benguet province, and flows southward into Pangasinán, where it divides and turns westward, entering Lingayén Gulf by channels at Dagupan, Lingayén, San Isidro, and San Fabian. The produce of the northern part of the central valley of Luzón is carried by branches of the Agno to Lingayén Gulf. Length, about 128 miles. 2. A river of western Luzón, rising in the Zambales Mountains and flowing west to the China Sea.

Agnone (ä-nyō'nā). A city of Italy, in the province of Campobasso. Population, 6,606; commune, 9,793.

Agoo (ä-gō-ō'). A municipality of La Unión province, western Luzón, Philippine Islands. Civilized population, 10,653.

Aguadilla (ä-gwä-dēl'yä). 2. A department in the northwestern part of Porto Rico. It is bounded by the Atlantic Ocean on the north, Arecibo and Ponce on the east, Mayaguez (separated by mountains) on the south, and the Atlantic Ocean on the west. Capital, Aguadilla. Area, 240 square miles. Population, about 100,000.

Ai (ī). A river of southeastern Manchuria which flows into the Yalu opposite Wiju. It played an important part in the attack of the Japanese right upon the Russians in the battle of the Yalu River, May 1, 1904.

Aigun*. It was opened to international trade in 1905.

Aikawa (ī-kä'wä). A city of Japan, situated on the western coast of the island of Sado. Population, upward of 11,000.

Ainger (ān'jėr), Alfred. Born at London, Feb. 9, 1837; died at Darley Abbey, Derbyshire, Feb. 8, 1904. An English clergyman, author, and editor. He was educated at King's College, London, and at Trinity Hall, Cambridge, taking his degree in 1860. He was reader at the Temple Church 1866–92, canon of Bristol Cathedral 1887–1903, master of the Temple 1894–1904, and chaplain in ordinary to Queen Victoria and King Edward VII. He wrote biographies of Lamb (1882) and of Crabbe (1903), and published annotated editions of Lamb's "Essays of Elia" (1883), of Lamb's "Letters" (1888), and of Hood's "Poems," with a biographical memoir (1897). He also wrote "The Gospel and Human Life: Sermons" (1904), etc.

Aitken (āt'ken), Robert Grant. Born at Jackson, Cal., Dec. 31, 1864. An American scientist, assistant astronomer at the Lick Observatory on Mount Hamilton, California, 1895–1907, and astronomer from 1907. He has studied especially double stars, faint satellites, and photometry.

Ajanta Caves. See Ajunta.

Akashi (ä-kä-shē'). A city of Japan, situated on the shore of the Inland Sea about 12 miles west of Kobe. Population, upward of 22,000.

Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition. An exposition held at Seattle, Wash., from June to October, 1909, for the purpose of exhibiting the resources and demonstrating the progress of northwestern America and the Pacific coast generally. It was planned to occupy 250 acres of the campus of the University of Washington. The twelve main exhibit buildings were those of (1) the United States government, (2) Alaska, (3) Yukon, (4) Manufactures, Liberal Arts, and Education, (5) Agriculture, (6) Machinery, (7) Forestry, (8) Fine Arts, (9) Fisheries, (10) Mines, (11) Hawaii and the Philippines, (12) Foreign. The products of the countries bordering on the Pacific were shown in the foreign exhibits, and exhibits representative of their interest in Pacific trade development were made by the United States, Great Britain, France, Germany, Russia, the Netherlands, etc.

Albay. 2. A province in the southeastern part of Luzón in the Philippine Islands. It is bounded by Ambos Camarines on the north, the Pacific Ocean and Sorsogón on the east, Sorsogón and the Visayan Sea on the south, and the Visayan Sea on the southwest and west. Capital, Albay. Besides its area in Luzón it includes several islands, among them Catanduanes and Batán. Albay, including Catanduanes, is the largest abaca-producing province of the Philippines. A good quality of coal is mined in Batán. Gold and mercury are reported in other parts of the province. The northeastern coast is indented by Albay Gulf. Mountains extend from east to west, the eastern extremity being Mayón Volcano. The inhabitants are Bicols. Area, 1,783 square miles. Population, 240,326.

Albay (äl-bī') Gulf. A gulf on the eastern coast of Albay province, southeastern Luzón, in the Philippine Islands.

Albay Volcano. See Mayón.

Albert I. Born at Brussels, April 8, 1875. King of the Belgians. He succeeded his uncle Leopold II. Dec. 23, 1909. On Oct. 2, 1900, he married Elizabeth, Duchess of Bavaria.

Albert (äl-bär'), Eugène d'. Born at Glasgow, April 10, 1864. A pianist and composer, a pupil of Liszt. He has composed a number of operas, among them "Der Rubin" (1893), "Ghismonda" (1895), "Gernot" (1897), "Die Abreise" (1898), "Flauto Solo" (1906), and "Tiefland" (1908); two piano concertos; a symphony; two string quartets; and smaller works. As a pianist he is placed among the foremost of contemporary artists.

Albertina. A library and gallery at Vienna, built for the Archduke Albert in 1804. It is especially notable for its superb collection of drawings by the old masters.

Albion College. A coeducational Methodist college in Albion, Michigan. It was endowed as the Wesleyan Seminary in 1839, and was opened in 1843: the present name and system were adopted in 1861. It has an endowment of $280,000 and a total yearly income of about $50,000. The students number about 500.

Albrecht (äl'brecht), Sebastian. Born at Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 22, 1876. An American scientist, first astronomer of the Córdoba (Argentina) Observatory from 1910. He was assistant astronomer of the Lick Observatory 1908–10.

Albury (äl'bur-i). A town in New South Wales, Australia, situated on the border of Victoria about two hundred miles northeast of Melbourne. It is at the limit of steam navigation on the Murray River. Population, 5,823.

Alden (äl'den), Henry Mills. Born at Mount Tabor, Vt., Nov. 11, 1836. An American author, editor, and classical scholar. He was managing editor of "Harper's Weekly" 1863–69, and since 1869 has been editor of "Harper's Monthly." He is the author of "God in His World" (1890), "A Study of Death" (1895), "Magazine Writing and the New Literature" (1908), and, with A. H. Guernsey, "Harper's Pictorial History of the Great Rebellion" (1862–65), besides poems and essays.

Alden (äl'den), Percy. Born at Oxford, June 6, 1865. An English sociologist. He was warden of Mansfield House University Settlement 1891–1901, editor of the "Echo" 1901–02, and has been member of Parliament (Liberal and Labor parties) since 1906.

Alden (äl'den), William Livingston. Born at Williamstown, Mass., Oct. 9, 1837; died at Buffalo, N. Y., Jan. 14, 1908. An American author and journalist. He wrote "Canoe and Flying Proa," "Loss of the Swansea," "A Lost Soul," "Told by the Colonel," etc.

Aldrich (äl'drich) Deep. A very deep portion of the Pacific Ocean, lying northeast of New Zealand and east of the Kermadec Islands.

Aldwych (äld'wich) Street. An important new street of London. It is a crescent (100 feet wide) extending in a curve from St. Clement's to the south end of Catherine street.

Alert (ą-lėrt'). One of the steam-vessels of the British polar expedition under Sir George Strong Nares, 1875–76: the other was the Discovery. The Alert passed through Kennedy Channel and wintered at Floeberg Beach (82° 25′ N.), the most northerly point reached by ship up to that date.

Alexander (al-eg-zan′dėr) I. Born at Belgrad, Aug. 14, 1876: died there, June 11, 1903. King of Servia 1889–1903, son of Milan I. and Queen Natalie. He was proclaimed king, under a regency, upon the abdication of his father, March 6, 1889. On April 13, 1893, he assumed personal control of affairs. On April 7, 1903, he suspended the constitution and annulled a series of laws passed by the radical government, and on the night of June 10 was assassinated with Queen Draga in the palace. He was the last of the Obrenovitch dynasty and was succeeded by Peter I., the choice of the military party.

Alexander (al-eg-zan′dėr), Edward Porter. Born at Washington, Ga., May 26, 1835: died at Savannah, Ga., April 28, 1910. An American soldier and engineer. He was graduated at West Point in 1857; entered the Confederate army in 1861; served with the Army of Northern Virginia throughout the war; and became chief of ordnance. In 1864 he was promoted brigadier-general and chief of artillery in Longstreet's corps. At the battle of Gettysburg he directed the bombardment which preceded and accompanied the charge of Pickett's men.

Alexander (al-eg-zan′dėr), Sir George. Born at Reading, England, June 19, 1858. An English actor. He joined Sir Henry Irving in 1881, having previously shown efficiency as an amateur actor, and appeared successfully in "Faust." In 1891 he leased the St. James's Theatre, London, where he has produced many plays, including "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray," "The Prisoner of Zenda," "The Importance of Being Earnest," etc. He was knighted in 1911.

Alexander, John White. His works include a portrait of Walt Whitman (Metropolitan Museum, New York), "The Pot of Basil" (Boston Museum), "The Green Bow" (Luxembourg), mural decorations in the Congressional Library, Washington, etc.

Alexandra Feodorovna (al-eg-zan′drä fā-ō-dō-rōv′nä) (Victoria Alice (Alix) Helena Louise Beatrice). Born at Darmstadt, June 6, 1872. Empress of Russia, the fourth daughter of Ludwig IV., Grand Duke of Hesse, and Princess Alice, daughter of Queen Victoria. She married Nicholas II., Emperor of Russia, November 26, 1894.

Alexandria (al-eg-zan′dri-ä). A city of Madison County, Indiana, on Pipe Creek, 11 miles north of Anderson. It has iron- and steel-works, glass-factories, etc. Population, 5,096, (1910).

Alexeief (ä-lek′sä-yef), Eugenii Ivanovitch. Born 1843. A Russian admiral, appointed imperial lieutenant with control of both diplomatic and military affairs in the Far East, July 30, 1903, shortly before the outbreak of the Russo-Japanese war. From 1883 to 1893 he was naval attaché of the Russian embassy in Paris; commanded the Russian squadron during the Chinese-Japanese war 1894–1897; and took possession of Port Arthur. In 1898 he was promoted vice-admiral, took part in the work of the allies in China 1900–01, and became chief of the Russian Pacific squadron. His conduct of affairs after his appointment to the imperial lieutenancy was unsuccessful, and after the early Japanese successes he was deprived (April, 1904) of most of his power. He retired in November and returned to Russia.

Alexis (ä-lek′sis), Nord. Died at Kingston, Jamaica, May 1, 1910. A negro soldier and politician, president of Haiti 1902–08. He was forced to abdicate in Dec., 1908, and was banished. He was succeeded by General Antoine Simon.

Algeciras Conference. An international conference held at Algeciras, Spain, January 16–April 7, 1906, for the purpose of deliberating upon reforms in Morocco. It was presided over by the Duke of Almodovar, the Spanish minister of foreign affairs. It resulted in a compromise between the claims of France and Germany with regard to finance and police in Morocco. The maintenance of order in the ports of Morocco for the next five years was placed in the hands of France and Spain; and it was decided that the bank of Morocco, to be established at Tangier, should be international. Various reforms were urged upon the Sultan of Morocco, such as the removal of disabilities placed upon citizens of the United States (by the United States delegate), the abolition of slavery (Great Britain), the establishment of lighthouses (Germany), the publication of commercial statistics (Austria), and the immediate construction of railways (Spain). The United States was represented by Henry White, ambassador to Italy.

Alger (al′jėr), Philip Rounseville. Born at Boston, Sept. 29, 1859. An American naval officer. He was graduated at the United States Naval Academy in 1880, entered the service, was promoted ensign 1884, and rose to the rank of captain. He was professor of mathematics on duty at the Navy Department, Washington, D. C., 1891–99; and was head of the department of mechanics at the Naval Academy 1899–1907. He has written "Exterior Ballistics" (1904), "Elastic Strength of Guns" (1904), "Hydro-Mechanics" (1905), etc.

Alhambra (al-ham′brä). A city in Los Angeles County, California, 7 miles northeast of Los Angeles. It is situated in a fruit-growing region, and the manufacture of wine is its most important industry. Population, 5,021, (1910).

Alkan (äl-koń′) (Morhange), Charles Henri Valentin. Born at Paris, Nov. 30, 1813: died there, March 29, 1888. A French pianist, composer, and teacher. He entered the Paris Conservatory in 1819, winning many prizes, among them that for the pianoforte, at ten years of age. After visiting London (1833), he settled as a teacher at Paris. His compositions include concertos, sonatas, and many other pieces for his instrument.

Allan, George. A pseudonym of Frau Kremnitz. See ★Kremnitz.

Allbutt (âl′but), Sir Thomas Clifford. Born July 20, 1836. An English physician, professor of physics in Cambridge University from 1892. He has published "Science and Medieval Thought" (1901), and various works on medical subjects.

Allen (al′en), Henry Tureman. Born at Sharpsburg, Ky., April 13, 1859. An American soldier, appointed brigadier-general and chief of constabulary in the Philippine Islands in 1903. He was graduated at West Point in 1882; made a tour of exploration in Alaska in 1885; was instructor at West Point 1888–90; was military attaché in Russia and Germany 1890–98; served in the Santiago campaign and in the Philippines; and was governor of Leyte in 1901.

Allen (al′en), James Lane. Born near Lexington, Ky., 1849. An American novelist. Since 1886, when he was professor of Latin and higher English at Bethany College, West Virginia, he has given his entire attention to writing. He is the author of "Flute and Violin" (1891), "The Blue Grass Region of Kentucky" (1892), "John Gray" (1893), "A Kentucky Cardinal" (1894), "Aftermath" (1896), "A Summer in Arcady" (1896), "The Choir Invisible" (1897), "The Reign of Law" (1900), "The Mettle of the Pasture" (1903), "The Bride of the Mistletoe" (1909), "The Doctor's Christmas Eve" (1910), etc.

Allen (al′en), William Harvey. Born at Leroy, Minn., Feb. 9, 1874. An American social worker. He studied at the universities of Leipsic and Berlin; became the first editor of the "New Jersey Review of Charities"; acted as general agent of the New York Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor 1903–07, and as director of the Bureau of Municipal Research 1908; and is a member of the American Academy of Political and Social Science and of the American Sociological Society. He has written "Civics and Health" and "Efficient Democracy."

Almanach de Gotha. See Gotha, Almanach de.

Almirante Oquendo (äl-mi-rän′tā ō-ken′dō). A Spanish cruiser which took part in the naval battle off Santiago de Cuba, July 3, 1898. She was sister ship to the Vizcaya (which see). She was engaged by the Iowa, Indiana, and Oregon, took fire, and was run ashore and wrecked about six and a half miles west of the Morro. Her commander, Don Juan Bautista Lazaga, was drowned.

Alt (ält), Rudolf. Born at Vienna, Austria, Aug. 28, 1812: died there, March 12, 1905. An Austrian painter, son of Jakob Alt (1789–1872), also a painter of note. His work is confined to oil-paintings and water-colors of brilliant realism. He traveled extensively and found his subjects in every country.

Altgeld (ält′gelt), John Peter. Born in Germany, December, 1847: died at Joliet, Ill., March 12, 1902. An American Democratic politician. He was brought to the United States by his parents when an infant; served in the Union army; was admitted to the Missouri bar in 1869; was judge of the Superior Court, Chicago, 1886–91; and was governor of Illinois 1893–97. As governor he attracted wide attention by his pardon in June, 1893, of Neebe, Schwab, and Fielden, three anarchists who had been concerned in the Old Haymarket riot at Chicago, May 4, 1886. He was a prominent advocate of the free coinage of silver and was a supporter of W. J. Bryan for the Presidency in 1896 and 1900. He published "Our Penal Machinery and its Victims" (1884), "Live Questions" (1890), etc.

Altruria (al-trō′ri-ä). An imaginary commonwealth, the government and institutions of which are founded upon the principles of altruism. W. D. Howells has described such a community in his book "A Traveler from Altruria" (1894). The practical application of the principles resulted in the abolition of monopoly and competition and the establishing of social and economic equality.

Alverstone, Baron. See ★Webster, Richard.

Alwood (al′wůd), William Bradford. Born at Delta, Ohio, Aug. 11, 1859. An American agriculturist, entomologist, and mycologist. He was professor of horticulture in the Virginia Polytechnic Institute 1891–1904; special agent in the Bureau of Chemistry, United States Department of Agriculture, 1900–06; and has been œnological chemist of the Department of Agriculture since 1907. He has made special investigations in horticulture, the pathology of plants, etc.

Amacura (ä-mä-kō′rä). A small river in Venezuela which enters the delta of the Orinoco about fifteen miles west of the mouth of the Barima.

Amador de los Rios, José. See Rios.

Amana (a-man′ä). A village in Amana township, Iowa County, Iowa, 20 miles southwest of Cedar Rapids. It is important as the home of a number of German Protestant Christians, members of a sect founded about 1715 in Würtemberg. They came to America in 1843 and settled in the western part of New York. In 1855 the community moved to Amana. Agriculture and the manufacture of flour, woolens, etc., are the principal industries, and the people work for the common good of the community. Population of township, 1,729, (1910).

Aman-Jean (ä-moń-zhoń′), Edmond. Born at Chevry-Cossigny, France, in 1856. A French painter. He won recognition at first by historical and allegorical paintings, but later devoted himself especially to portraiture.

Amarillo (am-a-ril′ō). The capital of Potter County, Texas. Population, 9,957, (1910).

Amazulu. See Zulu.

Ambos Camarines (äm′bōs kä-mä-rē′näs). A province in southeastern Luzón, in the Philippine Islands. It is bounded by the Pacific Ocean on the north; Catanduanes Island (separated by Maqueda Channel), Lagonoy Gulf, and Albay on the east; Albay and Tayabas (separated by mountains) on the south; and Tayabas (partly separated by the Gulf of Ragay) on the west. Capital, Nueva Cáceres. The northern coast is deeply indented by San Miguel Bay, a safe harbor in all weather. The province is traversed by mountains, of which several exceed 5,000 feet in height. The volcanoes Iriga and Isarog are in the southern part. Gold, iron, and coal are found. Ambos Camarines is well watered, heavily forested with good timber, and productive of large quantities of rice, especially in Camarines Sur. The chief river, the Bicol, or Naga, is navigable by small steamers as far as Nueva Cáceres, 25 miles from its mouth. The native population is chiefly Bicol. Area, 3,279 square miles. Population, 239,405.

Ambridge (am′brij). A borough in Beaver County, Pennsylvania. It was incorporated from part of Harmony township in 1905. Population, 5,205, (1910).

Ambrose Channel (am′brōz chan′el). A channel (40 feet deep and 1,000 feet wide), one of the chief points at which vessels entering New York harbor cross Sandy Hook bar. The time of a voyage is reckoned to (or from) Ambrose Channel lightship.

Ambrosius Johanna. See ★Voigt.

Ambuella. Same as Amboella.

America. The name given by Lowell Mason to the tune of "God Save the King," after its adaptation for use in connection with the hymn "My Country, 'T is of Thee," written by Samuel F. Smith in 1832. The author of the hymn stated: "I found the tune in a German music-book, put into my hands by Lowell Mason."

American Museum of Natural History. An institution in New York city, incorporated in 1869 for the purpose of establishing and maintaining a museum and library of natural history, and of encouraging and developing the study of natural science. The collections are contained in a building which, when completed, will inclose four quadrangles and will fully occupy what is now known as Manhattan Square, an area lying west of Central Park and extending from Seventy-seventh to Eighty-first street. The portion of the structure now (1911) completed has a frontage of 1,072 feet and is the largest municipal building in New York. The museum is supported in part by an annual appropriation from the city, and in part by the income from a permanent endowment, from membership fees, and from gifts for special purposes. The total of running expenses for 1910 was $387,192.85. The affairs of the museum are administered by a board of trustees, the president of which is Henry Fairfield Osborn, who serve without compensation. The exhibits include extensive collections in anthropology, paleontology, geology, mineralogy, conchology, entomology, mammalogy, ornithology, the lower animals, and forestry. The library contains about 40,000 volumes and 20,000 pamphlets. The museum conducts scientific investigations at home and in the field, publishes memoirs, a bulletin, a journal, and anthropological papers, and is a center for the meetings of local scientific societies. It also offers free lectures to the public and to school children, and lends small collections to the public schools. More than 600,000 people visited the museum in 1910 and about 63,000 attended the lectures.

American Protective Association. A secret society organized at Clinton, Iowa, March 13, 1887. Its chief objects were the securing of greater restrictions on immigration and on the naturalization of immigrants, the prevention of State aid to parochial schools, and the exclusion of Roman Catholics from political and, as far as possible, from industrial affairs. Its chief activity was in the Middle West, but an international organization was effected, the membership of which, in 1896, was said to be about 2,500,000. The decline of the organization was as rapid as its rise. Abbreviated A. P. A.

American School of Classical Studies at Athens. A school founded at Athens, Greece, by the Archæological Institute of America, opened in 1882, and supported by individuals and the leading American colleges and universities. Its main purpose is the study of Greek archæology, and the most important work it has undertaken is the exploration of ancient Corinth (begun in 1896) and the excavation of the Heraion at Argos.

American School of Classical Studies at Rome. A school founded at Rome in 1895 by the Archæological Institute of America, and supported by individuals and the leading American colleges and universities.

American Tract Society. A society organized in 1825 and incorporated in 1841 for the purpose of printing and circulating the gospel in different languages and publishing and disseminating literature of an uplifting moral character. It is interdenominational, evangelical, and international in scope.

Americus (ą-mer'i-kus). The county-seat of Sumter County, Georgia. It has chemical works, machine-shops, manufactories of carriages, etc. It is important as a shipping-point for cotton. Population, 8,063, (1910).

Ames (āmz), James Barr. Born at Boston, Mass., June 22, 1846: died at Wilton, N. H., Jan. 8, 1910. An American jurist. He was graduated from Harvard University in 1868, and in 1877 was appointed professor of law in that institution, becoming dean of the Law School in 1895. He was a leading authority on legal questions.

Ames (āmz), Joseph Sweetman. Born at Manchester, Vt., July 3, 1864. An American scientist, professor of physics in Johns Hopkins University from 1899. He was assistant in physics 1888–91; associate 1891–93; and associate professor 1893–99. Among his publications are "Theory of Physics" (1897), "Elements of Physics" (1900), "Textbook of General Physics" (1904), etc. He is assistant editor of the "Astrophysical Journal" and associate editor of the "American Journal of Science."

Amherst (am'ėrst). A seaport of Nova Scotia, the capital of Cumberland County, situated on an arm of Chignecto Bay. It has manufactures and a considerable trade in lumber and ship-building. Population, about 5,000.

Amosis. See Aahmes.

Amundsen (ä'mönd-sen), Roald. Born in Borje, Norway, July 16, 1872. A Norwegian polar explorer. Between 1903 and 1907, in the Gjöa, he navigated the whole of the Northwest Passage and relocated the north magnetic pole. In 1910 he sailed for the Arctic, but changed his destination to the Antarctic.

Amytis (am'i-tis), or Amitu (ä'mi-tö). The Median wife of Nebuchadnezzar, King of Babylon, for whom he built the Hanging Gardens (which see).

Ancient and Honorable Artillery of Massachusetts, The. The first regularly organized military company in America, formed in 1637 and chartered in 1638. Its founders had been members of the Honourable Artillery Company of London, chartered in 1537. Formed to be a school for soldiers, it still exists under its original charter, and upon its rolls in every generation since its birth stand the names of the most distinguished men of the Colony and State.

Andersen (än'der-sen), Karl. Born at Copenhagen, Oct. 26, 1828: died there, Sept. 1, 1883. A Danish lyric and epic poet. He lived in Iceland 1837–48, when he returned to Denmark, becoming inspector and intendant of Castle Rosenborg in Copenhagen. His works include "Strit og Fred" (1858), "Romanser og Sanger" (1880), "Genrebilleder" (1867–81), etc.

Andover* (Mass.). The Andover Theological Seminary has been removed to Cambridge and is affiliated with Harvard University.

Andral (äⁿ-dräl'), Gabriel. Born at Paris, Nov. 6, 1797: died at Châteauvieux, Loir-et-Cher, Feb. 13, 1876. A French physician, professor in the University of Paris 1828–66. Among his works are "Clinique médicale" (1823–27), "Précis d'anatomie pathologique" (1829), "Cours de pathologie interne" (1836–37), etc.

Andrea Chenier. An opera by Umberto Giordano (words by Luigi Illica), first produced at Milan in 1896.

Andree (än'drā), Salomon August. Born at Grenna, Sweden, Oct. 18, 1854. A Swedish engineer and aëronaut. In 1896 he was prepared to attempt to reach the North Pole in a balloon from Spitzbergen, but was prevented by the direction of the wind. On July 11, 1897, with two friends, Strindberg and Fränkel, he made a successful start from Danes Island on the northwestern coast of Spitzbergen. Four days later a carrier-pigeon, with a message giving the position of the balloon as lat. 82° 2′ N., long. 15° 5′ E., on the 13th, was shot on the sealer Alken. Several buoys belonging to the balloon have been found, but no definite knowledge of the fate of the party has been obtained.

Andreef (än-drā'ef), Leonid. Born in the government of Orel, Russia, 1871. A Russian author. He has published a collection of short stories (1901), "The Lie and other Stories" (1902), "The Thought and other Stories" (1903), "Red Laughter" (1905), "The Governor" (1906), "Judas Iscariot and the Others" (1908), etc.

Andrews (an'dröz), Elisha Benjamin. Born at Hinsdale, N. H., Jan. 10, 1844. An American educator and Baptist clergyman, chancellor of the University of Nebraska 1900–1908. He served as a private and officer in the Union army in the Civil War; was graduated at Brown University in 1870; was president of Denison University (Granville, Ohio) 1875–79; was professor of homiletics in Newton Theological Institution 1879–82; was professor of history and political economy at Brown 1882–88, and of political economy and finance at Cornell 1888–89; and was president of Brown 1889–98. From 1898–1900 he was superintendent of schools in the city of Chicago. He is the author of "A History of the United States in Our Own Times" (1904), etc.

Angel in the House, The. A poem by Coventry Patmore. It was published in four parts: "The Betrothal" (published anonymously in 1854), "The Espousals" (1856), "Faithful Forever," a poem of disappointed love (1860), and "The Victories of Love," a poem of bereavement (1862). It is an idyl of the home.

Angell (ān'jel), James Rowland. Born at Burlington, Vt., May 8, 1869. An American psychologist, professor in the University of Chicago from 1904. He was assistant professor of experimental psychology 1895–1901, associate professor 1901–04, and has been dean of the senior colleges in that university since 1908. He has published a work on psychology and various technical papers.

Angström (ang'strėm), Knut J. Born at Upsala, Dec. 1, 1857: died March 4, 1910. A Swedish physicist. He was professor of physics at the University of Upsala 1896–1910. He invented the Angström pyrheliometer for measuring solar radiation.

Aniagmut (ä'nē-äg-möt), or Kaviagmut (kä'vē-äg-möt). [Sing. Aniagmu, or Kaviagmu.] A tribe of Eskimo which occupies a part of the Alaskan Peninsula and Kadiak Island.

Anicet-Bourgeois (ä-nē-sä'bör-zhwä'), Auguste. Born at Paris, Dec. 25, 1806: died at Pau, Jan. 12, 1871. A French dramatist, author of vaudevilles, melodramas, etc.

Anju (än-jö'). A town in Korea, situated near the coast at the head of Korea Bay. It is on the railroad and was of importance during the Russo-Japanese war.

Annunzio* (än-nön'tzi-ō), Gabriele d'. He has also written "La fiaccola sotto il moggio" (1905), "Più che l'amore" (1906), "L'Orazione e la canzone in morte d' Giosuè Carducci" (1907), "La nave" (1908), "Il mistero di S. Sebastiano" (1911), etc.

Anping (än-ping'). A seaport on the southwestern coast of the island of Formosa, about twenty miles north of Takow.

Antarctica (an-tärk'ti-kä). All that portion of the southern hemisphere which lies between the antarctic circle and the south pole; the Antarctic.

Antarctic Ocean*. Borchgrevink penetrated (1898–1901) to lat. 78° 50′ S., the farthest point then reached; Capt. R. F. Scott (1902), to 82° 17′ S.; Lieutenant Shackleton (1908–09), to 88° 23′ S. A notable scientific result of this last expedition was the location of the south magnetic pole at lat. 72° 25′ S., long. 154° E. Antarctic expeditions were led by Dr. Charcot in 1905 and 1908, and by Scott and Amundsen in 1910 and 1911. Valuable work was done by the Argentine government in establishing a number of antarctic meteorological stations.

Antigo (an'ti-gō). The capital of Langlade County, Wisconsin, about 85 miles northwest of Oshkosh. It has railroad shops, foundries, flour-mills, manufactures of woodenware, etc. Population, 7,196, (1910).

Antique (än-tē'kä). A province, long, narrow, and mountainous, in the western part of Panay, in the Philippine Islands. Capital, San José de Buenavista. It is bounded by Cápiz on the north, Cápiz and Iloilo on the east, and the Visayan Sea on the south and west. Mountains separate it from the other provinces of Panay. It has many rivers. The chief products are rice and sugar-cane, and the manufactures cotton cloths and blankets. The native race is Visayan. Area, 1,134 square miles. Population, 134,166.

Antitrust Law. See Sherman Antitrust Law.*

Antoine (oⁿ-twän'), André. Born at Limoges, Jan. 31, 1857. A French actor, the founder (October, 1887) of the Théâtre Libre and director of the Odéon 1906–. The Théâtre Libre gave its first representation at l'Élysée des Beaux-Arts, Montmartre, Paris. Its purpose was to present to an audience, consisting entirely of subscribers, plays of intrinsic merit which could not, for well-founded reasons, be given elsewhere. Its general tone was strongly naturalistic. For a short time in 1896 Antoine was director of the Odéon, and he opened the Théâtre Antoine in 1897.

Antung (än-tung'). A town of Manchuria situated on the Yalu River, near its mouth, below Wiju. It was opened to foreign trade, by agreement between China and the United States, in January, 1904, and after the Russo-Japanese war was reopened by Japan in 1906. The Japanese left approached it on the north during the battle of the Yalu River, May 1, 1904.

Anuyao (än-ö-yä'ō). A mountain in Cagayán province, Luzón, Philippine Islands. Height, 8,123 feet.

Aoki (ä-ō'ki), Viscount Siuzo. Born in Choshu, Japan, January, 1844. A Japanese statesman and diplomatist. He studied in Germany and was appointed secretary of the Japanese legation at Berlin in 1873 and minister in 1875, was vice-minister of foreign affairs 1886–89, and was minister of foreign affairs 1889–91 and 1898–1900. In 1906 he was appointed first Japanese ambassador to the United States, retiring in 1907. He is a member of the privy council of the empire.

A. P. A. An abbreviation of American Protective Association* (which see).

Aparri (ä-pä'rē). A municipality and port of Cagayán province, in the northern part of Luzón, Philippine Islands, at the mouth of the Rio Grande de Cagayán. Civilized population, 18,252.

Appalachian Plateau. A name defined by the United States Geographic Board (1907) as including the entire plateau forming the western member of the Appalachian system, known in the north as the Allegheny plateau and in the south as the Cumberland plateau.

Appalachian System. According to the United States Geographic Board (1907), all the eastern mountains of the United States from Alabama to northern Maine.

Apthorp (ap'thôrp), William Foster. Born at Boston, Mass., Oct. 24, 1848. A writer on and critic of music. He was graduated at Harvard in 1869, and studied music under J. K. Paine and later under B. J. Lang. He has taught harmony, the piano, and counterpoint, and was musical critic of the Boston "Transcript" (1870–1901). He has published "Hector Berlioz" (1879), "Musicians and Music Lovers" (1894), "By the Way" (1898), and "The Opera Past and Present" (1901).

Arbitration Court. See Peace Conference.*

Arcadelt (är'ka-delt), Jacob. Born in the Netherlands about 1514: died at Paris about 1560. A Dutch composer, long active in Rome in the papal choir and afterward in Paris. His finest compositions were madrigals: he also wrote many masses and motets. Also Archadelt, Archadet, Arcadet, Harcadelt.

Archæological Institute of America. A society for the promotion of archæological research, founded in Boston in 1879. It has since established affiliated societies in different cities. The Institute founded the American School of Classical Studies at Athens (opened 1882), the American School of Classical Studies at Rome (1895), and the American School for Oriental Study and Research in Palestine (1900). Its official organ is the "American Journal of Archæology." It also issues reports and special publications relating to archæology.

Archbald (ärch'bâld). A borough of Lackawanna County, Pennsylvania, 6 miles northeast of Scranton. It is in a rich coal-mining region. Population, 7,194, (1910).

Archer (är'chėr), William. Born at Perth, Scotland, Sept. 23, 1856. A British author and dramatic critic. He studied at the University of Edinburgh; was dramatic critic of the London "Figaro" 1879–81; and held a similar position on the staff of the London "World" 1884–1905, and afterward on the "Tribune" and the "Nation." He is the author of "English Dramatists of To-day" (1882), "Henry Irving" (1883), "About the Theatre" (1886), "Masks or Faces? A Study in the Psychology of Acting" (1888), a biography of W. C. Macready (1890), "Study and Stage" (1899), "America To-day" (1900), "Real Conversations" (1904), "Through Afro-America" (1910), etc. He has also translated Henrik Ibsen's prose dramas (1890–91), etc.

Arctic Explorers*. See also Abruzzi*, Amundsen*, Andree*, Baldwin*, Cook*, Fiala*, Lockwood*, Mylius-Erichsen*, Peary*, Wellman.*

Arctic Highlands. A region on the western coast of Greenland, north of Melville Bay and Cape York: so named by Captain Ross, its discoverer (1818). Its inhabitants, a small number of pure Eskimos, are called "Arctic Highlanders."

Ardmore (ärd'mōr). A city in Carter County, Oklahoma, 120 miles southeast of Guthrie. It is the cotton-market for the surrounding country, and deposits of coal and asphalt are found in the vicinity. Ardmore is the seat of Hargrove College. Population, 8,618, (1910).

Arecibo. 2. A department in the northern part of Porto Rico. It is bounded by the Atlantic Ocean on the north; San Juan on the east; Ponce (partly separated by mountains) on the southeast; Ponce on the south and southwest; and Aguadilla on the west. Capital, Arecibo. Area, 621 square miles. Population, 162,308.

Arène (ä-rān'), Paul Auguste. Born at Sisteron, France, June 26, 1843: died at Antibes, France, Dec. 18, 1896. A French journalist, dramatist, novelist, and Provençal poet, a member of Les Félibres. He wrote "Pierrot héritier," a one-act comedy in verse (1865), "Jean des Figues," a novel (1870), "Les comédiens errants" (1873: with Vernier), "Char" (1878: with Alphonse Daudet), "La vraie tentation de Saint Antoine" (1879), "Au bon soleil," Provençal tales (1879), "Paris ingénu" (1882), "Vingt jours en Tunisie" (1884), "La chèvre d'or" (1889), etc.

Arensky (ä-ren'ski), Anton Stepanovitch. Born at Novgorod, Russia, July 30, 1861: died in Finland, Feb. 25 (N. S.), 1906. A conductor and leading composer of the younger Russian school. He became professor of harmony and composition in the Moscow Conservatory 1882; conductor of the Russian Choral Society; and director of the Imperial Chapel, St. Petersburg, 1894. He wrote operas, symphonies, songs, and chamber music.

Argao (är-gä'ō). A municipality in the eastern part of Cebú province, Cebú, Philippine Islands. Civilized population, 35,448.

Argenta (är-jen'tą). A city in Pulaski County, Arkansas. It is on the north bank of the Arkansas, nearly opposite Little Rock, and has cotton-seed oil manufactories, cotton compresses, stock-yards, etc. Population, 11,138, (1910).

Ari (ä'rē), Frodi Thorgilsson. Born 1067: died 1148. An Icelandic historian. His works, compiled from oral report, poetry, and tradition, are the earliest Icelandic prose and the foundation of Icelandic history. Fragments of the "Islendingabok" ("Book of the Icelanders") have survived, also the "Konungabok" ("Book of Kings"), and the "Landnamabok" ("Landtaking Book"), which deals with the settlement of the island.

Ariane et Barbe-Bleue. An opera by Paul Dukas (words by Maeterlinck), first produced at Paris in 1907.

Arisaka (ä-rē-sä'kä), Lieutenant-General. Born in Choshu in February, 1852. A Japanese soldier, inventor (1901) of a quick-firing mountain gun used in the Japanese army. He was created a baron in 1907.

Armour (är'mŏr), Philip Danforth. Born at Stockbridge, N. Y., May 16, 1832: died at Chicago, Ill., Jan. 6, 1901. An American capitalist. His fortune was largely made in the commission business (pork, grain, etc.) in Chicago and elsewhere. He founded in Chicago the Armour Institute of Technology (opened Sept., 1893).

Armstead (ärm'sted), Henry Hugh. Born June 18, 1828: died Dec. 4, 1905. An English sculptor and royal academician. He achieved success as a silversmith, in particular with his "St. George's Vase" and "Outram Shield" (South Kensington Museum). Among his sculptural works are the external decorations of the colonial office at Whitehall, the fountain at King's College, Cambridge, the statuette "Remorse" (Chantrey Bequest in the National Gallery of British Art), etc.

Armstrong (ärm'strông), Andrew Campbell. Born at New York, Aug. 22, 1860. An American psychologist, professor of philosophy in Wesleyan University from 1888. He has published "Transitional Eras in Thought" (1904) and a translation, "History of Modern Philosophy," from Falckenberg.

Armstrong (ärm'strông), David Maitland. Born at Newburg, N. Y., April 15, 1836. An American artist. He studied art in Paris (where he was a pupil of Merson) and in Rome. For four years he was consul-general of the United States in Italy, and was appointed director of the department of American art at the exposition of 1878 in Paris. He has devoted himself mainly to mural painting and stained glass. He is a chevalier of the Legion of Honor.

Armstrong Legislative Committee. A joint committee of the New York Legislature, appointed July 20, 1905, to investigate the condition and the methods of the various life-insurance companies of the State and to recommend suitable legislation in the interests of the policy-holders. Of its eight members, three, including the chairman, W. W. Armstrong, were appointed from the Senate and five from the Assembly. Charles E. Hughes was chosen by the committee as its chief counsel. The sessions for receiving testimony opened Sept. 6, 1905, in the Aldermanic Chamber, New York, and closed Dec. 30, 1905. Many facts in regard to the mismanagement of the insurance companies of New York were brought to light, and important legislation resulted (1906) from the investigation.

Arnaboldi (är-nä-bōl'dē), Alessandro. Born at Milan, Nov. 19, 1827. An Italian lyric poet. He studied law in Pavia, and for eighteen years held a municipal appointment in Milan, but resigned in 1873 to devote himself to literature. His first volume, "Versi," appeared in 1872. He also published "Nuovi versi" in 1888.

Arnold-Forster (är'nōld-fôr'stėr), Hugh Oakeley. Born 1855: died at London, March 12, 1909. A British Liberal-Unionist statesman, son of William Delafield Arnold and adopted son of William Edward Forster (his uncle). He was educated at Rugby and at University College, Oxford, and was called to the bar of Lincoln's Inn in 1879. He was a member of the House of Commons for Belfast, West, 1892–1905, and for Croydon from 1906; was parliamentary secretary to the admiralty 1900–03; and was secretary of state for war 1903–Dec., 1905. He published "How to Solve the Irish Land Question" (1880), "In a Conning Tower" (1891), "Our Home Army" (letters in the "Times" 1891–92), "Army Letters" (1898), "Our Great City" (1900), "War Office, Army, and Empire" (1900), "English Socialism of To-day" (1908), etc.

Arrhenius (är-rā'ni-ŏs), Svante August. Born at Wyk, near Upsala, Sweden, Feb. 19, 1859. A Swedish chemist, professor of physics at Stockholm from 1891, and director of physical chemistry at the Nobel Institute in Stockholm since 1905: especially noted for his researches in physical chemistry. His most important contribution to science is his theory of electrolytic dissociation. He has published a text-book of electrochemistry (1890), "Lehrbuch der cosmischen Physik" (1903), "Theorie der Chemie" (1906), "The Life of the Universe" (1909), etc.

Arriaga (ä-rē-ä'gä), Manoel de. Born at Horta, Fayal, Azores, about 1840. A Portuguese educator and statesman, president of the Republic of Portugal, August, 1911–. He studied law and taught in the Coimbra University. He was procurator general in the provisional government, and was the first president elected under the new constitution.

Artesia (är-tē'ziä), 1. A village in Los Angeles Co., Cal.—2. A post-town in Lowndes Co., Miss.—3. A town in Eddy Co., N. Mex.

Arthur (är'thur), Timothy Shay. Born near Newburg, N. Y., 1809: died at Philadelphia, March 6, 1885. A writer of moral tales. He published some fifty stories, of which the best known is "Ten Nights in a Bar-room."

Art Institute of Chicago. An organization incorporated in 1879 for the purpose of maintaining in Chicago schools and collections in the arts of design. The present museum building on Michigan Avenue was opened in 1893.

Asakawa (ä-sä-kä'wä), Kan-Ichi. Born in Japan, Dec. 20, 1873. A Japanese scholar, appointed instructor in the history of Japanese civilization in Yale University from 1907. He was graduated at Waseda University, Tokio, and at Dartmouth College in 1899, where he was lecturer on East-Asian history 1902–06. He has published "The Early Institutional Life of Japan" (1903), "The Russo-Japanese Conflict" (1904), "Japan" (1906), etc.

Ascot, The. An English race-meeting, held annually in June at Ascot Heath. The distance of the course is over 2½ miles. The first race was run in 1711. The Ascot cup is generally regarded as setting the seal to the fame of a good horse, since few horses possess sufficient speed and staying power to endure the test of the course at a time of year when the ground at Ascot is peculiarly hard. The Ascot meeting is distinguished by the entire absence of selling plates, and much more "added money" (supplied by the directors of the meeting, and derived from the amounts paid for entrance to stands and inclosures) is given there than at any other course.

Ashikaga (ä-shi-kä'gä). A city of Japan, situated about sixty-five miles northwest of Tokio. Population, upward of 22,000.

Ashland (ash'land). A city in Jackson County, Oregon, about 195 miles south of Salem. It has fruit-growing and limestone-quarrying interests, lumber-yards, flour-mills, etc. Population, 5,020, (1910).

Ashmead-Bartlett (ash'mĕd-bärt'let), Sir Ellis. Born at Brooklyn, N. Y., 1849: died at London, Jan. 18, 1902. An English Conservative politician of American parentage. He was educated at Torquay and Christ Church, Oxford; was called to the bar of the Inner Temple in 1877; was a member of Parliament for Eye, Suffolk, 1880–85, and for Ecclesall, Sheffield, 1885–1902; and was civil lord of the admiralty 1885–92. Knighted in 1892. He was a strong imperialist and served in the South African war in 1900. He published "The Battlefields of Thessaly" (1897).

Ashmolean* Museum. The museum collections have been removed from the Old Ashmolean Museum (Broad street), which is now occupied in part by the Bodleian Library, to the New Ashmolean Museum, on Beaumont street. The museum contains King Alfred's jewel, some of the Arundel marbles, the Cretan antiquities discovered by Sir Arthur Evans, etc.

Aso (ä'sō), Mount. A living volcano in the island of Kiusiu, Japan.

Aspasia (as-pā'shiä) the Younger. Milto, the daughter of Hermotimus, a native of Phocæa in Asia Minor. On account of her beauty a satrap of Persia carried her off and presented her to Cyrus the Younger. He changed her name to Aspasia (after the mistress of Pericles) and lived with her as her husband. After his death she fell into the hands of Artaxerxes, from whom she was claimed by Darius when he was declared heir to the Persian throne by his father. Artaxerxes gave her up (in accordance with the Persian custom), but shortly afterward made her a priestess of Artemis (Anaitis) at Ecbatana, or, according to Justin, a priestess of the sun.

Asquith (as'kwith), Herbert Henry. Born at Morley, Yorkshire, Sept. 12, 1852. An English statesman. He was educated at Balliol College, Oxford, and was called to the bar in 1876. Since 1886 he has been Liberal member of Parliament for East Fife. He was secretary of state for the home department 1892–95; ecclesiastical commissioner 1892–95; chancellor of the exchequer December, 1905, to 1908; and premier and first lord of the treasury 1908–.

Assuan Dam. A dam constructed across the Nile at Assuan, by Sir Benjamin Baker, for purposes of irrigation, completed in 1902. It is 1¾ miles long and its maximum height from the foundation was about 130 feet. In 1907 it was decided to increase its height six meters.

Astley (ast'li), Sir John Dugdale. Born at Rome, Feb. 19, 1828: died at London, Oct. 10, 1894. A noted English patron of sport. He entered the army, served in the Crimea 1854–55, and retired in 1859 with the rank of lieutenant-colonel. He succeeded to the baronetcy in 1873 and was Conservative member of Parliament for North Lincolnshire 1874–80. For many years he was a patron of the turf. He wrote "Fifty Years of my Life in the World of Sport at Home and Abroad" (1894).

Astrup (äs'tröp), Eivind. Born at Christiania, Norway, Sept. 17, 1871: died on the Dovrefjeld, Norway, December, 1895. A Norwegian arctic explorer, a companion of Peary in his explorations of Greenland 1891–92 and 1893–95.

Atherton (ath'ėr-tọn), Mrs. (Gertrude Franklin). Born at San Francisco. A contemporary American author, grandniece of Benjamin Franklin. She has published "The Doomswoman" (1892), "A Whirl Asunder" (1895), "Patience Sparhawk and Her Times" (1897), "His Fortunate Grace" (1897), "American Wives and English Husbands" (1898), "The Californians" (1898), "A Daughter of the Vine" (1899), "The Valiant Runaways" (1899), "Senator North" (1900), "The Aristocrats" (1901), "The Conqueror" (1902), "The Splendid Idle Forties" (1902), "Rulers of Kings" (1904), "The Bell in the Fog" (1905), "The Travelling Thirds" (1905), "Ancestors" (1907), "The Gorgeous Isle" (1908), "Tower of Ivory" (1910), etc.

Atkinson (at'kin-sọn), George Francis. Born in Monroe County, Mich., Jan. 26, 1854. An American naturalist, professor of botany in Cornell University from 1896. He was assistant and associate professor there 1892–96. He was associate editor of the "Botanical Gazette" 1896–98, and has published "Studies of American Fungi" (1900), "Mushrooms" (1903), etc.

Atreus, Treasury of. See Treasury of Atreus.

Atsuta (ät-sö'tä). A town in Japan, a short distance southeast of Nagoya. Population, upward of 25,000.

Atterbury (at'ėr-bėr-i), Grosvenor. Born at Detroit, July 7, 1869. An American architect. He was graduated from Yale University in 1891, and from the École des Beaux-Arts, Paris, in 1895, and studied also at the Columbia School of Architecture. He is especially interested in town-planning and home-building, and is the architect of Forest Hills Gardens, the model town built by the Russell Sage Foundation at Forest Hills, L. I.

Atwater (at'wâ-tėr), Wilbur Olin. Born at Johnsburg, N. Y., May 3, 1844: died at Middletown, Conn., Sept. 22, 1907. An American physiological chemist, professor in Wesleyan University, Middletown, Connecticut, from 1873. He was the first director of the Connecticut Agricultural Experiment Station (the first to be established in the United States) 1875–77; was organizer and first director of the office of experiment stations in the United States Department of Agriculture 1888–91; was director of the Storrs Agricultural Experiment Station 1888–1902; and from 1894 had charge of the experiments upon nutrition established by the Department of Agriculture. With Rosa he was the inventor of the respiration calorimeter, used to demonstrate experimentally that the law of the conservation of energy holds true of the vital processes of the human body, and for various other physiological inquiries.

Atwood (at'wůd), Charles B. Born at Millbury, Mass., May 18, 1849: died at Chicago, Dec. 19, 1895. An American architect. He was educated at the Lawrence Scientific School of Harvard University and in the office of Ware and Van Brunt in Boston. He is especially known as the designer-in-chief of the Columbian Exposition at Chicago in 1893, where he created the Fine Arts Building and the Peristyle.

Auer (ou'ėr), Leopold. Born at Veszprém, June 7, 1845. A Hungarian violinist and teacher. After studying at the Budapest and Vienna conservatories he became a pupil of Joachim. He was appointed concert-master at Düsseldorf in 1863, and at Hamburg in 1866. Since 1868 he has been solo violinist to the Czar of Russia and teacher of the violin at the St. Petersburg Conservatory. His pupils include Mischa Elman, Kathleen Parlow, and Efrem Zimbalist. In 1895 he was ennobled, and in 1903 became a councilor of state.

Augustin (äö-gös'tēn). A contemporary Spanish colonial governor. He was captain-general of the Philippines at the time of the Spanish-American war and, shortly before the surrender of Manila to the United States, August 13, 1898, turned over his command to General Jaudenes and escaped with his family on board the German ship Kaiserin Augusta.

Aus der Ohe (ous dâr ō'e), Adèle. Born at Hanover, Germany. A contemporary German pianist and composer, a pupil of Liszt and Kullak. She has played frequently in the United States since her first visit in 1886. Her compositions include several pieces for the piano and a sonata for piano and violin.

Austin (âs'tin), Louis Winslow. Born at Orwell, Vt., Oct. 30, 1867. An American physicist, in charge of the radiotelegraphic laboratory of the United States Navy Department from 1908. He has been connected with the Bureau of Standards since 1904. His publications relate to physical measurements, radiotelegraphy, etc.

Australia*. It is now, with Tasmania, united under a federal government inaugurated Jan. 1, 1901. The six former colonies of New South Wales, Victoria, Queensland, South Australia, Western Australia, and Tasmania are denominated the "original States." Legislative power is vested in a federal parliament, consisting of a governor-general (representing the king), a senate, and a house of representatives. There is an executive council of seven ministers of state. The official title is the Commonwealth of Australia. In 1908 the Yass-Canberra district, near the town of Yass, New South Wales, was selected to contain the future federal capital.

Austria*, Lower. It has 64 representatives in the Austrian Reichsrath and a Landtag of 127 members.

Austria*, Upper. It has 22 representatives in the Austrian Reichsrath and a Landtag of 50 members.

Austria-Hungary*. "Under the electoral law of Jan. 26, 1907, the Lower House [of the Austrian Reichsrath] is elected on the basis of universal, equal, and direct suffrage. Entitled to vote for a deputy are all Austrian male citizens over 24 years of age who have resided for at least a year in the place of election. . . . The duration of the Lower House of the Reichsrath is for the term of six years." The Statesman's Year-book, 1911, pp. 595–596.

Authors' Club. A New York club for literary men, organized in 1882 and incorporated in 1887 for library purposes and the promotion of social intercourse among authors. The membership is unlimited, and now numbers about 200. The chief requirement for admission is that a man shall have published a book of recognized merit on some subject proper to art, literature, or science, and not purely technical in character.

Avalon (av'a-lon). A town on Santa Catalina Island, off the coast of California, opposite San Pedro. It has a wireless telegraph station, and is said to have published the first newspaper, "The Wireless," dependent for its news on wireless despatches.

Avebury, Baron. See Lubbock, Sir John.

Avery (ā'ver-i), Samuel Putnam. Born at New York, March 17, 1822: died there, August 12, 1904. An American connoisseur and collector. He began life as an engraver in New York city, and in 1865 entered business as a picture-dealer. In this capacity he assisted in the formation of many fine collections. In 1867 he was appointed commissioner in charge of the American art department at the Universal Exposition in Paris. In 1892 he and his wife founded, in memory of their son, the Henry O. Avery Architectural Library at Columbia University. During his life he was instrumental in bringing to America a large number of the finest works of art in every department.

Awata (ä-wä'tä). A village near Kioto, Japan, noted for its pottery, a yellow faïence, first made in the seventh century.

Babcock (bab'kok), Maltbie Davenport. Born at Syracuse, N. Y., Aug. 3, 1858: died at Naples, Italy, May 18, 1901. An American Presbyterian clergyman. He was graduated at Syracuse University in 1879, and at Auburn (N. Y.) Theological Seminary in 1882. He became pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Lockport, N. Y., 1882; of the Brown Memorial Church, Baltimore, Md., 1887; and of the Brick Presbyterian Church, New York city, 1899. His wife published selections from his writings, under the title "Thoughts for Every-day Living" (1901).

Bacarra (bä-kär'ä). A town of Ilocos Norte province, in the northwestern part of Luzón, Philippine Islands. Population, 7,669; municipality, 14,616.

Bacheller (bach'el-ėr), Irving Addison. Born at Pierrepont, N. Y., Sept. 26, 1859. An American journalist and author. For a number of years he was on the staff of the Brooklyn "Times" and on that of the New York "World." He is the author of "The Master of Silence" (1890), "The Still House of O'Darrow" (1894), "Eben Holden" (1900), "D'ri and I" (1901), "Darrel of the Blessed Isles" (1903), "Vergilius" (1904), "Silas Strong, Emperor of the Woods" (1906), "The Hand-made Gentleman" (1909), "Keeping up with Lizzie" (1911), etc.

Bachelors' Club. A London club established in 1881. It is of a purely social character. It has a membership of over 1,000, and its house is at 7 and 8 Hamilton Place, W.

Bacher (bäch'ėr), Otto H. Born at Cleveland, O., March 31, 1856: died at Bronxville, N. Y., Aug. 16, 1909. An American painter, etcher, and illustrator. He was a pupil of Duveneck in Munich, and of Lefebvre, Boulanger, and Carolus Duran in Paris. He was especially successful in etching landscapes and architectural subjects. He wrote "With Whistler in Venice" (1908).

Backlund (bäk'lönd), Johann Oskar. Born in Sweden, April 28, 1846. A Swedish astronomer. He was appointed observer at the observatory at Dorpat, Russia, in 1876, adjunct astronomer at Pulkowa in 1878, astronomer of the Academy of Sciences at St. Petersburg in 1887, and director of the observatory at Pulkowa in 1895.

Bacolod (bä-kō-lōd'). A town, the capital of Negros Occidental province, in the northwestern part of Negros, Philippine Islands, situated in lat. 10° 41′ N., long. 122° 56′ E. Population, 5,678.

Bacon (bā'kon), Mrs. (Josephine Dodge Daskam). Born at Stamford, Conn., Feb. 17, 1876. An American author. She was graduated at Smith College in 1898. Among her works are "Smith College Stories" (1900), "The Imp and the Angel" (1901), "The Madness of Philip" (1902), "Whom the Gods Destroyed" (1902), "Her Fiancé" (1904), and "An Idyll of All Fools' Day" (1908).

Bacon (bā'kon), Robert. Born in 1850. An American diplomatist. He was assistant secretary of state 1905–09, and became ambassador to France in 1909.

Bacoor (bä-kō-ōr'). A municipality of Cavite, southern Luzón, Philippine Islands. A military road follows the coast from Bacoor to Manila. Civilized population, 10,925.

Baddeck (ba-dek'). A fishing village and summer resort on Cape Breton Island, Nova Scotia, situated on the Little Bras d'Or. It is the capital of Victoria County. Population, about 1,700.

Baden-Powell (bā'den-pou'el), Sir Robert Stephenson Smyth. Born Feb. 22, 1857. A British major-general, inspector-general of cavalry from 1903–07, especially noted for his defense of Mafeking in 1900, during the Boer war. He served in India, Afghanistan, and South Africa 1876–89; in Zululand in 1888; in Malta 1890–93; in Ashanti 1895; in Matabeleland 1896–97; and in South Africa, as lieutenant-colonel, 1897–99. With a force of 1,200 men he was besieged in Mafeking for 215 days, being relieved on May 18, 1900. From 1900–03 he was general of South African constabulary. In 1908 he was appointed lieutenant-general commanding the Northumbrian Territorial Division, and in the same year founded the Boy Scouts' organization. Among his publications are "Cavalry Instruction" (1895), "The Matabele Campaign" (1896), "Sport in War" (1900), "Sketches in Mafeking and East Africa" (1907), "Scouting for Boys" (1908). He was knighted in 1909.

Badger State. A popular name of the State of Wisconsin.

Bagley (bag'li), William Chandler. Born at Detroit, Mich., March 15, 1874. An American psychologist, professor of education from 1908, and director of the School of Education from 1909, in the University of Illinois. He has published "Class-room Management" (1907), etc.

Baguio (bä-gē-ō'). A town, the capital of Benguet province, in the western part of Luzón, Philippine Islands, in lat. 16° 32′ N., long. 120° 38′ 50″ E. Civilized population of municipality, 489.

Bahr-el-Ghazal (bär'el-gä-zäl'). One of the thirteen provinces into which the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan is divided. Capital, Wau.

Bailey (bā'li), Liberty Hyde. Born at South Haven, Mich., March 15, 1858. An American botanist, horticulturist, and educator, director of the N. Y. State College of Agriculture in Cornell University from 1903. He was professor of horticulture and landscape-gardening in Michigan Agricultural College (of which he is a graduate) 1884–88, and professor of horticulture in Cornell University 1888–1903. Among his works are "The Survival of the Unlike" (1896), "The Principles of Fruit-growing" (1897), "Evolution of Our Native Fruits" (1898), "Cyclopedia of American Horticulture" (1900–02), "The Nature-Study Idea" (1903), "Outlook to Nature" (1905), "Cyclopedia of American Agriculture" (1907–09), text-books of botany and agriculture, and handbooks of horticultural practice.

Baker, Sir Benjamin. Born 1840: died at Pangbourne, Berkshire, May 19, 1907. An eminent English engineer. His most important works are the Forth Bridge and the dam across the Nile at Assuan.

Baker (bā'kėr), Hugh Potter. Born at St. Croix Falls, Wis., Jan. 20, 1878. An American forester, professor of forestry in the Pennsylvania State College and forester of the Agricultural Experiment Station.

Baker (bā'kėr), Marcus. Born at Kalamazoo, Mich., Sept. 23, 1849: died at Washington, Dec. 12, 1903. An American cartographer, connected with the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey 1873–86, and with the United States Geological Survey 1886–1903.

Baker (bā'kėr), Ray Stannard. Born at Lansing, Mich., April 17, 1870. An American magazine writer. He is the author of "Boys' Book of Inventions" (1899), "Second Boys' Book of Inventions" (1903), "Our New Prosperity" (1900), "Seen in Germany" (1901), "Following the Color Line" (1908), "New Ideals in Healing" (1909), "Spiritual Unrest" (1910), and has written many short stories and articles on industrial and political topics.

Baker City (bā'kėr sit'i). The county-seat of Baker County, Oregon, situated on a branch of Powder River, in the eastern part of the State. The chief industries are mining, stock-raising, and lumbering. Population, 6,742, (1910).

Bakersfield (bā'kėrz-fēld). The county-seat of Kern County, California, situated on Kern River. It has machine-shops, foundries, fruit-packing houses, etc., and is the commercial center of a region producing fruit, grain, and live stock. Population, 12,727, (1910).

Balabac (bä-lä'bäk). A hilly island south of Palawan (Paragua) and belonging to Paragua province in the Philippines. It has several good harbors. Area, 122 square miles. Population, 455; mainly uncivilized.

Balakiref (bä-lä'kē-ref), Mily Alexeivitch. Born at Nijni-Novgorod, Jan. 2, 1837: died at St. Petersburg, June 24, 1910. A Russian composer and conductor. He first studied with Oulibishef, and at eighteen went to St. Petersburg, where he appeared with success as a pianist, and where his compositions attracted the attention of Glinka, who regarded him as his successor. With Cui, Moussorgsky, Rimsky-Korsakof, and Borodin, Balakiref in 1861 founded the New Russian school. Under his leadership this group made a thorough analysis and study of the works of classical and contemporary composers, especially Bach, Schumann, Berlioz, and Liszt. He founded the Free Music School in 1862, and directed its concerts for many years. He was conductor of the Royal Russian Musical Society 1867–70, and musical director of the Imperial Chapel 1883–95. His principal compositions are the symphonic poems "Thamar" and "Russia," the music for "King Lear," a symphony, overtures, songs, and "Islamey" and other piano pieces. Especially notable and influential is his collection of Russian folk-songs (1866).

Baldwin (bâl'dwin), Evelyn Briggs. Born at Springfield, Mo., July 22, 1862. An American meteorologist and arctic explorer. He accompanied Peary to North Greenland as meteorologist 1893–94, and was a member (second in command) of the Wellman expedition to Franz-Joseph-Land 1898–99. In 1901–02 he organized and led the Baldwin-Ziegler polar expedition, and established a chain of stations, embracing portable houses and a cargo of equipment, through the Franz-Joseph-Land archipelago in contemplation of a sledge journey thence to the north pole during the proposed second year's work of the expedition. He also formed three stations of safety on Shannon Island, on the northeast coast of Greenland, in accordance with his plan to effect the return journey along that unexplored territory. These safety stations embraced three houses filled with an additional cargo of equipment. In addition to an exceptionally large pack of dogs, fifteen Siberian horses were used with marked success for drawing the sledges upon the sea-ice.

Baldwin (bâl'dwin), James Mark. Born at Columbia, S. C., Jan. 12, 1861. An American psychologist. He was professor of philosophy and psychology at Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, 1903–09, and at the National University of Mexico 1909–. He was a professor of philosophy at Lake Forest University, Illinois, 1887–90, and at Toronto University, Canada, 1890–93, and of psychology at Princeton University 1893–1903. He has written "Handbook of Psychology" (1888–1890), "Elements of Psychology" (1893), "Mental Development in the Child and the Race" (1896), "Social and Ethical Interpretations" (1897), "Story of the Mind" (1898), "Fragments in Philosophy and Science" (1902), "Development and Evolution" (1902), "Thoughts and Things" (1906–11), "Darwin and the Humanities" (1909), and "The Individual and Society" (1910), and edited the "Dictionary of Philosophy and Psychology" (1901–05). He founded (1894) and edited the "Psychological Review."

Baldwin (bâl'dwin), Simeon Eben. Born at New Haven, Conn., Feb. 5, 1840. An American jurist, elected governor of Connecticut in 1910 by the Democratic party. He was admitted to the bar in 1863, and became professor of constitutional and international law in Yale University in 1872. He was appointed chief justice of the Supreme Court of Errors, Connecticut, in 1907. He has served on various government commissions, and is the author of important works on law, including the "Connecticut Digest" (1872), "American Railroad Law" (1904), "American Judiciary" (1905), etc.

Balfour*, Arthur James. He was member of Parliament for the Eastern Division of Manchester 1885–1906, and for the City of London 1906–. He also wrote "Essays and Addresses" (1893, 1905), "The Foundations of Belief" (1895), "Economic Notes on Insular Free Trade" (1903), "Reflections Suggested by the New Theory of Matter" (1904), "Speeches (1880–1905) on Fiscal Reform" (1906), "Criticism and Beauty" (Romanes lecture: 1909), etc.

Balfour (bal'fŏr or bal'fêr), Gerald William. Born April 9, 1853. A British Conservative politician, brother of Arthur James Balfour. He was educated at Eton and at Trinity College, Cambridge. He was member for Central Leeds 1885–1906; was secretary to his brother, A. J. Balfour, when the latter was president of the Local Government Board 1885–86; was chief secretary for Ireland 1895–1900; was president of the Board of Trade 1900–05; and was president of the Local Government Board in 1905.

Baliuag (bä-lē'ŏ-äg). A municipality of Bulacán province, in the southern part of Luzón, Philippine Islands. Civilized population, 15,936.

Ball (bâl), Mary. Born in Lancaster County, Virginia, in 1706: died August 25, 1789. The second wife of Augustine Washington (married 1730) and the mother of George Washington.

Ballinger (bal'in-jėr), Richard Achilles. Born at Boonesboro, Iowa, July 9, 1858. An American lawyer, secretary of the interior March 5, 1909–March, 1911. He was mayor of Seattle 1904–06, and commissioner of the General Land Office 1907–09.

Banajao (bä-nä'yä-ō). An extinct volcano of La Laguna province, in the southern part of Luzón, Philippine Islands, approximately in lat. 14° 2′ N., long. 121° 27′ E. Height, 7,382 feet. Also Majaijai.

Banff (banf). A post-village of Alberta, Canada, situated on the Canadian Pacific Railway. It is a pleasure resort and the railway station for the Banff National Park. It has hot sulphur springs. Elevation, 4,500 feet above the sea.

Bangor (ban'gôr). A borough of Northampton County, Pennsylvania, 23 miles northeast of Allentown. It has silk-mills and machine-shops, as well as important slate-quarries. Population, 5,369, (1910).

Bangs (bangz), John Kendrick. Born at Yonkers, N. Y., May 27, 1862. An American author, editor, and humorist. He was graduated at Columbia in 1883; was associate editor of New York "Life" 1884–88; and was editor of the "Drawer" 1888–99, and of "Literary Notes" 1898–99, in "Harper's Magazine"; of "Literature" 1898–99; of "Harper's Weekly" 1898–1900; of the "Metropolitan Magazine" 1902–03; and of "Puck" 1904–05. He has published numerous humorous stories and articles.

Bangued (bän-gād'). A town, the capital of Abra province, northwestern Luzón, Philippine Islands, situated in lat. 17° 37′ N., long. 120° 39′ E. Civilized population of municipality, 12,956.

Bank of England, The. The principal bank in England, a private joint-stock institution incorporated by charter July 27, 1694. Being formed originally for the purpose of advancing a loan of £1,200,000 to the government, it still has the management of the national debt and acts as the government's banker. It also acts as banker for many leading British banks, and has branches in various parts of the country. It enjoys the monopoly of issuing notes, popularly known as Bank of England notes, which since 1833 have been legal tender everywhere in England (and Wales) except at the Bank of England itself. The Bank of England is the most important and widely known banking institution in the world, and has a capital of £14,553,000. Its building in London stands on Threadneedle street opposite the Mansion House: hence it has been called the "Old Lady of Threadneedle street." It is a structure one architectural story in height inclosing several courts, which was erected under the architect Sir John Soane in 1788–1827. He enlarged and rebuilt the building then standing, erected 1732–.

Bank of France, The. The principal bank in France, a private joint-stock institution acting as banker for the government, founded Feb. 13, 1800. Its building in Paris was formerly the private mansion called the Hôtel de Toulouse, but has undergone many alterations. The Bank has branches and offices throughout the country. It was established for the purpose of advancing national and other loans at a moderate rate and promoting national trade and industries. It has the exclusive right to issue notes, which are used in business transactions generally in preference to specie. Since 1890 it has practised the making of small loans (250 francs and upward) on moderate security. It also receives jewels, plate, and other valuables at a fixed charge for safe deposit. In international importance and repute the Bank of France ranks next to the Bank of England. It has a capital of 182,500,000 francs.

Bantayán (bän-tä-yän'). 1. One of the Visayan group of islands in the Philippines, northwest of Cebú. Its fisheries are of some importance. Area, 47 square miles. Population, 18,325.—2. A port in the southwestern part of Bantayán Island, province of Cebú. Population, 5,242.

Bantock (ban'tok), Granville. Born at London, Aug. 7, 1868. An English composer and conductor. He made a tour of the world (1894–95) as conductor of a musical comedy company, and has since led various orchestras in England, also conducting concerts in Antwerp, and has introduced many new works by English composers. His own compositions are numerous, including symphonic poems, suites, overtures, and vocal and chamber music, many of them dealing with Oriental subjects. He was principal of the School of Music at Birmingham, and succeeded Edward Elgar as professor in Birmingham University in 1908.

Barbara Frietchie (bär'ba-rä frē'chi). A war ballad by John Greenleaf Whittier, first published in the "Atlantic Monthly" for October, 1863. The incident told (the waving of the Union flag in the faces of Confederate troops) was based on a report of the patriotic act of a woman at Frederick, Maryland, when it was occupied by the Confederates under General Thomas J. Jackson.

Barber (bär'bėr), Edwin Atlee. Born at Baltimore, Md., Aug. 13, 1851. An American ceramist, archæologist, and writer, director of the Pennsylvania Museum and School of Industrial Art at Philadelphia. Among his publications are "Pottery and Porcelain of the United States" (1893), "Anglo-American Pottery" (1899), "American Glassware" (1900), "Tulip-ware of the Pennsylvania-German Potters" (1903), "Marks of American Potters" (1904), "Artificial Soft Paste Porcelain" (1907), "Salt Glazed Stoneware" (1907), "Tin Enamelled Pottery" (1907), "Lead Glazed Pottery" (1908), "The Majolica of Mexico" (1908), etc.

Barberton (bär'bėr-tọn). A village in Summit County, Ohio, 7 miles southwest of Akron. It has manufactories of sewer-pipe, rubber, matches, etc. Population, 9,410, (1910).

Barbour (bär'bėr), Ralph Henry: pseudonym Richard Stillman Powell. Born at Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 13, 1870. An American author. Among his works are "Kitty of the Roses" (1904), "The Crimson Sweater" (1906), "Four Afloat" (1907), "Harry's Island" (1908), and "Double Play" (1909).

Barchester (bär'ches-tėr) Towers. A novel by Anthony Trollope, published in 1857.

Bardeen (bär-dēn'), Charles William. Born at Groton, Mass., Aug. 28, 1847. An American writer upon education. He has been editor of the "School Bulletin" since 1874, and has published numerous works upon educational topics.

Baret, or Barret (bar'et), John. Died about 1580. An English lexicographer. He received the degree of M. A. from Trinity College, Cambridge, in 1558 and the degree of M. D. at Cambridge in 1577. In 1574 he published "An Alvearie, or Triple Dictionarie in English, Latin, and French."

Barge Canal. See ★Erie Canal.

Bargello, The. See Florence.

Barker (bär'kėr), Albert Smith. Born at Hanson, Mass., 1843. An American naval officer, commissioned rear-admiral in 1899. He was graduated from the United States Naval Academy in 1861; served in the Union navy during the Civil War (New Orleans, Port Hudson); ran a line of deep-sea soundings around the world while in command of the Enterprise 1883–86; was a member of the board of strategy at the opening of the war with Spain; commanded the Newark and later the Oregon; and relieved Admiral Dewey at Manila in May, 1899. From 1900–03 he was commandant of the New York navy-yard, and was commander-in-chief of the North Atlantic fleet 1903–05. He retired in 1905.

Barker (bär'kėr), Wharton. Born at Philadelphia, May 1, 1846. An American politician and financier. He was graduated at the University of Pennsylvania in 1866, and has been identified with many important commercial and financial enterprises, including Russian canals and railways. In 1895 he visited China, on the invitation of Li Hung Chang. He received the cross of St. Stanislaus from Alexander II. of Russia in 1879. He was a prominent Republican until 1896, when he joined the Populist party. As presidential nominee of the anti-fusion Populists in 1900 he polled a popular vote of 50,373 against the 7,207,923 votes cast for President McKinley.

Barlow (bär'lō), Jane. Born at Clontarf, Ireland, Oct. 17, 1860. An Irish novelist and poet. Among her works are "Bogland Studies" (1892), "Irish Idylls" (1892), "Kerrigan's Quality" (1893), "The End of Elfintown" (1894), "Strangers at Lisconnel" (1895), "A Creel of Irish Stories" (1897), "At the Back of Beyond" (1902), "By Beach and Bog Land" (1905), "Irish Neighbors" (1907), "Irish People in Irish Places" (1909), "Flaws" (1911), etc.

Barnard (bär'närd), Charles. Born at Boston, Mass., Feb. 13, 1838. An American writer. Among his works are "First Steps in Electricity" (1887), "Tools and Machines" (1903), "The Door in the Book" (1903), and "The County Fair" and other plays.

Barnard*, Edward Emerson. He has been astronomer of the Yerkes Observatory since 1895.

Barnard (bär'närd), George Grey. Born at Bellefonte, Pa., May 24, 1863. An American sculptor. He was educated at the Art Institute, Chicago, and at the École des Beaux-Arts, Paris (1884–87). He was awarded gold medals at the Exposition Universelle, Paris, 1900, the Pan-American Exposition, Buffalo, 1901, and the Louisiana Purchase Exposition, St. Louis, 1904. His marble statue of the "Two Natures" is in the Metropolitan Museum, and his "God Pan" in Central Park, New York city. Among his other works are "Work and Fraternity" and "The Burden of Life," sculptural groups designed for the Capitol, Harrisburg, Pa., first exhibited at the Paris Salon in the spring of 1910. He has developed a powerful emotional style.

Barnardo (bär-när'dō), Thomas John. Born in Ireland, 1845: died at Surbiton, England, Sept. 19, 1905. A British philanthropist, noted for his labors in rescuing and training destitute children. He began his work in London about 1866; established a home for destitute children in 1867; founded a village for girls at Ilford in 1873, and a hospital for sick waifs in 1887; and formed the "Young Helpers' League" in 1891. About 150 branches are now in operation in London and the provinces and over 9,000 children are in their care. The institutions were incorporated in 1899 under the name of "The National Institution for the Reclamation of Destitute Waif Children." The institutions which he founded have rescued and trained upward of 66,800 waifs, about 20,500 of whom have established themselves in Canada and the colonies.

Barnett*, John Francis. He has taught at the Guildhall School of Music and at the Royal College of Music, London. His first work to attract public attention was "Symphony in A Minor," performed in 1864. He has also composed the cantatas "The Ancient Mariner" (1867), "Paradise and the Peri" (1870), the oratorio "The Raising of Lazarus" (written 1873; produced at Hereford 1876), etc.

Barnett (bär'net), Samuel Augustus. Born at Bristol, Feb. 8, 1844. An English clergyman and social worker. He was educated at Oxford University (Wadham College). He was vicar of St. Jude's, Whitechapel, London, 1872–94; was appointed canon of Bristol in 1893, and canon of Westminster in 1906. He was one of the founders of Toynbee Hall, and was its warden until 1906, and its president 1906–. He has published "Practicable Socialism" (1893: with his wife), "Service of God" (1897), "Religion and Progress" (1907), and "Towards Social Reform" (1909).

Baron de Hirsch Fund. A fund established by Baron Maurice de Hirsch of Austria to provide schools in New York and elsewhere for Russian, Rumanian, and Galician Hebrew immigrants to the United States, for the purpose of giving them instruction in elementary English and the principles of the Constitution and inculcating improved sanitary habits. Its object is to Americanize the immigrants and help them to become useful citizens.

Barotseland (bä-rot'se-land). A region in Rhodesia, north of the Zambesi River; Northwestern Rhodesia. It is administered by the British South Africa Company. Area, est., 182,000 sq. miles; pop., over 500,700.

Barr (bär), Robert: pseudonym Luke Sharp. Born at Glasgow, Scotland, Sept. 16, 1850. An English novelist and editor. He was educated in Toronto, Canada; taught in Canada until 1876; joined the editorial staff of the Detroit (U. S.) "Free Press" in that year; established the weekly English edition of the "Free Press" in London in 1881; and in 1892 founded, with Jerome K. Jerome, the "Idler" magazine, of which he was co-editor until 1895. Among his works are "In a Steamer Chair" (1892), "From Whose Bourne" (1893), "In the Midst of Alarms" (1894, 1900), "The Face and the Mask" (1895), "The Countess Tekla" (1899), "The Strong Arm" (1900), "The Unchanging East" (1900), "Over the Border" (1903), "The O'Ruddy" (1904: with Stephen Crane), "The Woman Wins" (1904), "A Chicago Princess" (1904), "Speculations of John Steele" (1905), "The Triumph of Eugene Valmont" (1906), "A Rock in the Baltic" (1907), "Cardillac" (1909), "The Swordmaker" (1910), etc.

Barrès (bä-räs'), Maurice. Born at Charmes-sur-Moselle, France, Aug. 17, 1862. A French politician, journalist, and author. He was a Boulangist deputy 1889–93. Among his works are "Sous l'œil des barbares" (1888), "Un homme libre" (1889), "Le jardin de Bérénice" (1890), "L'Ennemi des lois" (1893), "Les déracinés" (1897), "Le voyage de Sparte" (1906), etc. He was elected to the French Academy in 1906.

Barrias (bä-ri-äs'), Louis Erneste. Born at Paris, April 3, 1841: died there, Feb. 4, 1905. A French sculptor. He was a pupil of Cavelier, Cogniet, and Jouffroy, and of the École des Beaux-Arts. He was awarded the grand prix de Rome in 1865, the première médaille at the Salon of 1872, and the médaille d'honneur in 1878. In 1884 he was elected a member of the Institute. He produced a large number of fine decorative and independent works. Among the more important may be mentioned the "Oath of Spartacus" (1872), "Religion and Charity" (1873), and the "Defense of Paris" at Courbevoie.

Barrie (bar'i). A town of Ontario, Canada, the capital of Simcoe County, situated on the western shore of Lake Simcoe. Population, 5,949.

Barrows (bar'ōz), Samuel June. Born at New York, May 26, 1845: died there, April 21, 1909. An American penologist. He became stenographer to Secretary Seward in 1867; was graduated from the Harvard Divinity School in 1875; was pastor of the First Unitarian Church of Dorchester, Massachusetts, 1876–80; and was editor of the "Christian Register" 1881–97. He represented the United States on the International Prison Commission in 1896, and wrote various penological reports, including "The Prison Systems of the United States."

Bartered Bride, The. [G. "Die Verkaufte Braut."] An opera by Friedrich Smetana (words by Sabina), produced at Prague in 1866.

Barth (bärt), Auguste. Born at Strasburg, March 22, 1834. A French Orientalist. Among his works are "Les religions de l'Inde" (1879) and "Inscriptions sanscrites du Cambodge" (1885). He has also written for the "Journal asiatique," "Mélusine," "Mémoires de la société de linguistique," "Journal des savants," and "Revue de l'histoire des religions."

Barth, Theodor. Born at Duderstadt, Hannover, July 16, 1849: died at Baden-Baden, June 2, 1909. A German publicist. He practised law 1871–72; was amtsassessor at Bremerhaven 1872–76; was syndic of the Bremen Chamber of Commerce 1876–1883; and became a member of the Reichstag in 1881. He was a Liberal. He edited "Die Nation," a weekly paper, 1883–1907. He published "Amerikanisches Wirthschaftsleben" (1887) and "Amerikanische Eindrücke" (1896).

Bartlesville (bär'tlz-vil). A town in Washington County, in the northern part of Oklahoma, 30 miles southwest of Coffeyville, Kansas. Population, 6,181, (1910).

Bartlett (bärt'let), Homer Newton. Born at Olive, N. Y., Dec. 28, 1845. An American musician. He has written numerous compositions for the voice, the violin, the piano, etc.

Bartlett (bärt'let), Paul Wayland. Born at New Haven, Conn., 1865. An American sculptor, the son of Truman H. Bartlett, also an American sculptor of note. He was a pupil of Frémiet and of the École des Beaux-Arts in Paris; was created a chevalier of the Legion of Honor in 1895; and was awarded a gold medal at Buffalo in 1901, the grand prize at St. Louis in 1904, and the first medal at the Liège exposition in 1905. Among his prominent works are a statue of Michelangelo in the Congressional Library, Washington; the "Bear Tamer" in the Metropolitan Museum in New York city; equestrian statues of General McClellan in Philadelphia and of Lafayette in Paris; and many excellent busts.

Barton*, Clara. She superintended relief work during the Spanish-American war in 1898 and the Boer war 1899–1902, conducted Red Cross work in Galveston, Tex., August, 1900, etc. She has written "History of the Red Cross in Peace and War" (1898), etc.

Barton (bär'tọn), Sir Edmund. Born at Glebe, Sydney, N. S. W., Jan. 18, 1849. An Australian statesman, first premier of the Australian Commonwealth. He was educated at the University of Sydney and was called to the bar in 1871; was a member of the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales 1879, 1880, 1882–87, 1891–94, and 1898–1900, and its speaker 1883–1887; was attorney-general of New South Wales 1889 and 1891–93; and was a member of the Federal conventions of 1891, 1897–98. He went to England in 1900 as the Federal delegate for New South Wales in support of the Federal Constitution Bill and was the first premier and minister for external affairs of the Australian Commonwealth, 1901–1903. He has been judge of the High Court of Australia since 1903. He was made a privy councilor in 1901, and was knighted in 1902.

Barton (bär'tọn), Port. A bay on the western coast of Paragua, Philippine Islands: safe for large vessels in all weather.

Bartow (bär'tō), Edward. Born at Glenham, N. Y., Jan. 12, 1870. An American chemist, professor in the University of Illinois from 1906, and director of the State Water Survey from 1905. His publications relate chiefly to the water supply of Illinois and other States.

Bartsch (bärtsh), Johann Adam Bernhardt, Ritter von. Born at Vienna, Aug. 17, 1757: died at Vienna, Aug. 21, 1821. An Austrian engraver and historian of engraving. He was a librarian of the Imperial Library and a member of the Academy of Art in Vienna, and in 1816 was appointed custodian of the Cabinet of Engravings. His most important publication is the monumental "Peintre-graveur" (1802–1821: 21 volumes), a catalogue of engravers and engravings before the nineteenth century.

Barus (bar'us), Carl. Born at Cincinnati, Ohio, Feb. 19, 1856. An American physicist, professor of physics at Brown University from 1895. He was physicist of the United States Geological Survey 1880–92; professor of meteorology of the United States Weather Bureau 1892–93; and physicist of the Smithsonian Institution 1893–95. The Rumford medal of the American Academy of Sciences was awarded to him in 1900 for his researches in heat. He has published numerous scientific papers.

Basilan (bä-sē'län) Islands. A group of islands south of the western peninsula of Mindanao, in the Philippines, and now a part of Zamboanga district of Moro province. It consists of 32 named and 12 unnamed islands. The largest, Basilan, is mountainous, wooded and fertile, and has, at Isabela de Basilan, on the northwest coast, a harbor safe in all weather for large vessels. Area of the group, 501.8 square miles. Population of Basilan Island, 27,017.

Basilan (bä-sē'län) Strait. A strait which separates Basilan Island from Mindanao, in the Philippines, and connects the Sulu (Jolo) with the Celebes Sea. Width, about 8 miles.

Basin Ranges. A name given by the United States Geographic Board in 1907 to all those ranges which lie between the Plateau Region on the east, the Sierra Nevada and Cascade Range on the west, and the Blue Mountains of Oregon on the north, including the Wahsatch and associated ranges.

Baskerville (bas'kėr-vil), Charles. Born at Deer Brook, Miss., June 18, 1870. An American chemist and author, professor in the College of the City of New York from 1904. He was a member of the faculty of the University of North Carolina 1892–1904. The discovery of two supposed new elements, berzelium and coralinium, was announced by him.

Bastable (bas'ta-bl), Charles Francis. Born at Charleville, County Cork, Ireland, 1855. An Irish economist, professor of political economy in the University of Dublin from 1882, and of jurisprudence and international law since 1902. He has written "The Commerce of Nations" (1892), "Public Finance" (1892), "The Theory of International Trade" (1897), etc.

Bastidas (bäs-tē'däs), Rodrigo de. A Spanish navigator and explorer of the fifteenth century. After the discoveries of Columbus he joined de la Casa in an expedition to the New World. He visited the shores of the Caribbean Sea, including the site of Cartagena.

Bataán (bä-tä-än'). A peninsular province of southwestern Luzón, Philippine Islands, south of Zambales province, and between Manila Bay on the east and the China Sea on the west. Capital, Balanga. Two groups of mountains, continuations of the Zambales range, culminate in the Mariveles Peaks, the loftiest of which is an extinct truncated volcano, 4,615 feet in height. Mariveles Bay, on the southern coast, is a safe harbor in all weather. The province is watered by many small streams, and produces sugar-cane, tobacco, rice, and indigo. The native inhabitants are chiefly Tagalogs. Area, 537 square miles. Population, 46,787.

Batac (bä'täk). 1. A municipality of Ilocos Norte province, in the northwestern part of Luzón, Philippine Islands. Civilized population, 19,524.—2. A town of the same province. Population, 5,767.

Batán (bä-tän'). An island of the Batán group, north of Luzón, Philippine Islands. It belongs to Cagayán province. Its coal deposits are of good quality, and are now in part worked by the United States for transport supply. Area, 24 square miles. Population, 5,332.

Batangas. 2. The most southerly of the western provinces of Luzón, Philippine Islands. It is bounded by Cavite (separated by the Tagatay Mountains) and La Laguna on the north; La Laguna, Tayabas, and Tayabas Bay on the east; and the Mindoro Sea and Mindoro Island (separated by Verde Island Passage) on the south. Capital, Batangas, on Batangas Bay, in lat. 13° 45′ 30″ N., long. 121° 3′ E. The native population is Tagalog. The mountains are wooded and the valleys fertile, producing coffee, maize, pineapples, rice, and sugar-cane. The province is rich in mineral springs and streams, the waters of which are beneficial in cutaneous diseases and in rheumatism. The north-central part of Batangas is occupied by Lake Bombón or Taal, in which is situated Taal volcano. Area, 1,201 square miles. Population, 257,715.

Bates*, Arlo. He was editor of the "Boston Sunday Courier" 1880–86, and has been professor of English literature in the Massachusetts Institute of Technology since 1893. Among his later works are "A Lad's Love" (1887), "The Philistines" (1889), "The Puritans" (1898), "Talks on Writing English" (1901), "Diary of a Saint" (1902), "Talks on Teaching Literature" (1906), "The Intoxicated Ghost" (1906), etc.

Bates (bāts), John Coalter. Born in St. Charles County, Mo., Aug. 26, 1842. An American soldier, appointed major-general in the United States army in 1902. He entered the army in 1861 and served with the Army of the Potomac until the close of the Civil War; was promoted colonel in 1892 and brigadier-general in 1901; served in the Santiago campaign (promoted major-general of volunteers); was commander and military governor of the department of Santa Clara, Cuba, and of Cienfuegos, in 1899; and was sent to the Philippines in 1899, where (1900) he commanded the department of Southern Luzón and conducted the campaigns there and in Mindanao. He became lieutenant-general, Feb. 1, 1906, and retired from active service in April of the same year.

Bates (bāts), Katharine Lee. Born at Falmouth, Mass., Aug. 12, 1859. An American writer and educator. She was graduated at Wellesley College in 1880 and has taught there since 1885, becoming professor of English literature in 1891. She has written "Rose and Thorn" (1889), "English Religious Drama" (1893), "American Literature" (1898), "Spanish Highways and By-Ways" (1900), etc.

Bateson (bāt'sọn), William. Born at Whitby, England, 1861. An English naturalist, fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge, from 1885, and professor of biology at Cambridge 1908–09. In 1910 he was appointed director of the John Innes Horticultural Institution at Merton, Surrey. Besides numerous papers on biological topics, he has published "Materials for the Study of Variation" (1894), and "Mendel's Principles of Heredity" (1902).

Bath Club. A London club established in 1894 for social and athletic purposes. Its house is at 34 Dover street, W., and it has a membership of about 2,000.

Batiste (bä-tēst'), Antoine Édouard. Born at Paris, March 28, 1820: died there, Nov. 9, 1876. A French organist, composer, and teacher. As a student at the Paris Conservatory he won many prizes, and in 1840 the second Prix de Rome. He became organist at the church of St. Nicolas des Champs, and at the church of St. Eustache (1854–76). He composed many pieces for the organ, but is best known for his valuable solfeggio method.

Battenberg, Princess Ena of. See Victoria Eugénie.*

Battle Hymn of the Republic, The. A song written by Julia Ward Howe during a visit to the camps near Washington in 1861. It is sung to the same tune as "John Brown's Body." The opening line is "Mine eyes have seen the glory of the coming of the Lord." It was first published anonymously in the "Atlantic Monthly" for February, 1862.

Battle of Mukden. See Mukden.*

Battle of the Sea of Japan. See Sea of Japan, Battle of the.*

Battle of the Sha River (Shaho). See Sha.*

Battle of the Yalu River. See Yalu River, Battle of the.*

Bauán (bä-ä-än'). A municipality of Batangas province, in the southwestern part of Luzón, Philippine Islands. Civilized population, 39,094.

Bauer (bou'ėr), Harold. Born at London, April 28, 1873. A piano virtuoso. At the age of nine he made his début as a violinist, touring in concert for the next nine years. He then (1892) devoted himself to the study of the piano. On this instrument he is largely self-taught, although he received some instruction from Paderewski. He first appeared in the United States at Boston, Dec. 1, 1900, and has since made several American tours. He is especially known for his playing of Schumann and the modern French composers.

Bauer (bou'ėr), Louis Agricola. Born at Cincinnati, Ohio, Jan. 26, 1865. An American physicist, director of the department of terrestrial magnetism of the Carnegie Institution from 1904. He was chief of the division of terrestrial magnetism of the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey 1899–1906.

Baumann (bou'män), Oskar. Born at Vienna, June 25, 1864: died there, Oct. 12, 1899. An Austrian explorer and traveler in Africa. In 1885 he accompanied Oskar Lenz to Stanley Falls on the Kongo; in 1890 explored Usambara; and 1891–93 explored the regions south and west of the Victoria Nyanza. From 1896 he was honorary consul in Zanzibar.

Baumbach (boum'bäch), Rudolf. Born at Kranichfeld, Germany, Sept. 28, 1840: died at Meiningen, Sept. 22, 1905. A German lyric poet. He is best known for his poetic rendering of popular legends. Among his works are "Zlatorog" (1877), "Horand und Hilde" (1878), "Frau Holde" (1881), "Thüringer Lieder" (1891), "Neue Märchen" (1896), "Bunte Blätter" (1897), etc.

Bayamón (bī-ä-mōn'). 1. The former name of the department of San Juan in the northern part of Porto Rico.—2. A city in the department of San Juan, Porto Rico, situated on the Bayamón River. Population, 5,272, (1910).

Baybay (bī-bī'). A municipality in the northern part of the island and province of Leyte, in the Philippine Islands. Civilized population, 22,990.

Bayliss (bā'lis), Sir Wyke. Born at Madeley, Salop, Oct. 21, 1835: died at London, April 6, 1906. A British artist, president of the Royal Society of British Artists from 1888. He was knighted in 1897.

Baylor*, Frances Courtenay. She has also written "Behind the Blue Ridge" (1894), "Juan and Juanita" (1897), "Miss Nina Barrow" (1897), etc.

Bayombong (bī-ōm-bōng'). A town, the capital of Nueva Vizcaya province, Luzón, Philippine Islands. It is situated on the Magat River in about lat. 16° 28′ N., long. 121° 4′ 30″ E.

Bay State. A name given to Massachusetts because of the bays (Massachusetts, Cape Cod, and Buzzard) which indent its coast.

Bazin (bä-zaṅ'), René François Marie: known as René. Born at Angers, France, Dec. 26, 1863. A French novelist and writer of travels. He studied law in Paris and upon his return to Angers was made professor in the Faculté Libre de Droit. Several of his works have been crowned by the French Academy, of which he was elected a member in 1903, succeeding Legouvé. He has published "Ma tante Giron" (1886), "Une tache d'encre" (1888), "Les Noellet" (1889), "La sarcelle bleue" (1892), "Sicile" (1892), "Madame Corentine" (1893), "Les Italiens d'aujourd'hui" (1894), "Terre d'Espagne" (1895), "En province" (1896), "De toute son âme" (1897), "La terre qui meurt" (1899), "Les Oberlé" (1901), "L'isolée" (1905), "Le blé qui lève" (1907), "Le mariage de Mademoiselle Gimel, dactylographe" (1909), "La barrière" (1910), etc.

Beach (bēch), Mrs. (Amy Marcy Cheney). Born at Henniker, N. H., Sept. 5, 1867. An American pianist and composer. Her compositions include a symphony (Gaelic), a concerto for piano and orchestra, a sonata for piano and violin, and a mass, but she is best known by her setting of Browning's verses, "The Year 's at the Spring."

Bean (bēn), Tarleton Hoffman. Born at Bainbridge, Pa., Oct. 8, 1846. An American zoölogist, State fish-culturist of New York from 1906. He was curator of fishes in the United States National Museum 1876–95, director of the New York Aquarium 1895–98, and chief of the departments of forestry and fish and game at the Paris and St. Louis expositions. He has received decorations from France, Germany and Japan. His works include "Fishes of Pennsylvania" (1893), "Fishes of New York" (1893), "Oceanic Ichthyology" (1896: with George Brown Goode), "Fishes of Long Island" (1902), "Fishes of Bermuda" (1906), etc.

Beardmore Glacier (bērd'mōr glā'shiėr). The largest known ice-river in the world, in the antarctic region, in lat. 83° 33'–85° S. It was discovered and traversed by Sir Ernest H. Shackleton and his party in their antarctic expedition of 1907–09. The glacier is 100 miles long, 50 miles wide, and covers an area of about 5,000 square miles. It passes between sandstone mountains from 10,000 to 15,000 feet in height. These walls force the ice-stream into a winding route. Its surface is broken into ridges and crevasses which constitute a constant peril to the explorer.

Beardsley (bērdz'li), Aubrey Vincent. Born at Brighton, England, Aug. 24, 1872: died at Mentone, France, March 16, 1898. An English illustrator and draftsman. He had little special training and at first divided his time between business and an architect's office. From this he turned to book illustration, in which he found extensive employment. His work is full of charming caprices which suggest Preraphaelitism, the Japanese convention, and French art of the eighteenth century.

Bear State, The. A name variously applied to Arkansas, California, and Kentucky.

Beaufort (bō'fōrt) Sea. A part of the Arctic Ocean, lying north of Alaska and the provinces of Yukon and Mackenzie, and west of Banks Land.

Beaumont (bō'mont). A city of Texas, the capital of Jefferson County, situated on the Neches River. It has an extensive lumber trade, car-shops, machine-shops, etc. Large deposits of oil have been discovered in its vicinity. Population, 20,640, (1910).

Beaupré (bō-prā'), Arthur Matthias. Born at Oswego, Ill., July 29, 1853. An American diplomatist. He was consul-general and secretary of legation in Guatemala 1897–98, and in Colombia 1899, and minister to Colombia 1903, to the Argentine Republic 1904–08, to the Netherlands 1908–11, and to Cuba 1911–.

Béchamp (bā-shoṅ'), Pierre Jacques Antoine. Born at Bassing, near Dieuze (Meurthe), Oct. 16, 1816: died at Paris, April 15, 1908. A distinguished French chemist, especially noted for his researches in organic, and particularly in biological, chemistry (fermentation, etc.).

Becker (bek'er), Hugo. Born at Strasburg, Feb. 13, 1864. An Alsatian violoncello virtuoso and quartet-player. He is the son of Jean Becker, an eminent violinist, who was his first teacher. He studied the cello with Grützmacher, Piatti, and De Swert, and made his début in Leipsic. He is widely known as a concert-player, first appearing in the United States at Boston, Jan. 12, 1901. He has composed a concerto and other pieces for his instrument.

Becque (bek), Henri François. Born at Paris, April 9, 1837: died there, May 12, 1899. A noted French dramatist and critic. His works include "L'Enfant prodigue," "Michel Pauper," "L'Enlèvement," "La Navette," "Les honnêtes femmes," "Les Corbeaux," "La Parisienne," "Le départ," "Veuve," "Le domino à quart," and "Une exécution"; an opera, "Sardanapale," music by de Jonciers; a volume of "Memoirs"; "Querelles littéraires"; etc. He received the decoration of the Legion of Honor in 1886.

Becquerel (bek-rel'), Antoine Henri. Born at Paris, Dec. 15, 1852: died at Paris, Aug. 25, 1908. An eminent French physicist, professor at the École Polytechnique from 1895: son of Alexandre Edmond Becquerel. In 1896 he discovered the radiation from uranium which bears his name ('Becquerel rays'). His investigations were concerned chiefly with phosphorescence, ultra-red radiation, and spectroscopy. In 1903 he received, with Curie, the Nobel prize in chemistry. In 1908 he was made perpetual secretary of the Academy of Sciences.

Bedford (bed'ford), Francis. Born at Paddington, London, June 18, 1799: died at Shepherd's Bush, Hammersmith, June 8, 1883. An English bookbinder. In 1817 he was apprenticed to a binder and later became assistant to Charles Lewis (b. 1786–d. 1836). He was an especial protégé of the Duke of Portland, and was the best English binder of his time.

Beecher (bē'chėr), Charles Emerson. Born at Dunkirk, N. Y., Oct. 9, 1856: died at New Haven, Conn., Feb. 14, 1904. An American paleontologist and geologist, professor of paleontology and curator of the geological collection at Yale University. He published "Studies in Evolution" (1901) and various scientific papers.

Beernaert (bār'närt), Auguste. Born at Ostend, July 26, 1829. A Belgian statesman. He was minister of labor 1873–78, minister of agriculture 1884, and subsequently minister of finance and president of the council. He initiated various reforms in taxation, promoted the interests of the Kongo State, and supported the claims of the Flemish people. In 1894 he resigned, but acted as president of the Chamber of Deputies 1895–1900. He was a member of the Peace Conference at The Hague in 1899, and in 1909 received the Nobel prize for his services in the cause of peace.

Behring (bā'ring), Emil von. Born at Hansdorf, near Prussian Eylau, Germany, March 15, 1854. A German physiologist, professor of hygiene and director of the Hygienic Institute at Marburg from 1895. In 1890 he announced his discovery of the anti-diphtheria serum. Since that time he has devoted himself chiefly to the study of immunity. He received the Nobel prize for medicine in 1901. Among his works are "Die Blutserumtherapie" (1892), "Die Geschichte der Diphtherie" (1893), "Therapie der Infektionskrankheiten" (1899), and "Beiträgen zur Experimentellen Therapie" (1900).

Beilstein (bīl'stīn), Friedrich Konrad. Born at St. Petersburg, Feb. 17, 1838: died there, October, 1906. A Russian chemist, professor of chemistry at the Institute of Technology in St. Petersburg from 1866. He made important investigations in physical and organic chemistry. His most important publication was his "Handbuch der organischen Chemie" (1880–83).

Belgian Kongo. The name of the Kongo Free State (which see) since 1908.

Bell (bel), James Franklin. Born at Shelbyville, Ky., Jan. 9, 1856. An American soldier. He was graduated at the United States Military Academy in 1878; served on the plains until 1894; and was aide to General Forsyth in California 1894–97. He took part in the campaign in the Philippine Islands in 1898; was awarded a medal of honor by Congress for gallantry in action near Porac, Luzón; was brigadier-general of volunteers 1899–1901; and was provost-marshal-general of Manila until 1901, when he was made a brigadier-general in the regular army. In 1903 he was appointed commandant of the Infantry and Cavalry School, Signal School, and Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, and was chief of the general staff of the United States army 1906–10, succeeding Lieutenant-General John C. Bates. He was made a major-general in 1907.

Bell (bel), James Montgomery. Born at Williamsburg, Pa., Oct. 1, 1837. An American soldier, promoted brigadier-general in 1901. He entered the army in 1862 and served in the Civil War, in various campaigns against the Indians, on the frontiers, and in the Philippine Islands 1900–01. He retired in the latter year.

Bell (bel), Lilian. Born at Chicago in 1867. An American author. Among her works are "A Little Sister to the Wilderness" (1895), "As Seen by Me" (1900), "Abroad with the Jimmies" (1902), "At Home with the Jardines" (1904), and "Carolina Lee" (1906).

Bell (bel), Robert. Born at Toronto, Canada, June 3, 1841. A Canadian geologist, connected from 1857 with the Geological Survey of Canada, of which he became the director. He was naturalist and geologist of the Neptune (1884) and Alert (1885) expeditions to Baffin Bay and Strait, and of that of the Diana (1897) to the south coast of Baffinland, and has made important geological and topographical surveys in many parts of the Dominion. From 1863 to 1867 he was professor of chemistry in Queen's University, Kingston.

Bellevue (bel-vū'). A city in Campbell County, Kentucky, about 3 miles from Cincinnati, Ohio. It has manufactures of wagons, paper boxes, etc. Population, 6,683, (1910).

Bellevue (bel-vū'). A borough of Allegheny County, Pennsylvania. It is near Allegheny, of which it is a residential suburb. Population, 6,323, (1910).

Bellingham (bel'ing-ham). A city of Whatcom County, Washington, situated on Bellingham Bay about fifty miles southeast of Vancouver, formed by the union in 1903 of New Whatcom and Fairhaven. Population, 24,298, (1910).

Belloc (be-lok'), Hilaire Joseph Peter. Born July 27, 1870. An English writer, illustrator, and Liberal politician. He was educated at the Oratory School, Edgbaston, and at Balliol College, Oxford, and was member of the House of Commons for Salford, south division, 1906–10. He has published "The Bad Child's Book of Beasts" (1896), "More Beasts for Worse Children" (1897), "The Modern Traveller" (1898), "The Path to Rome" (1902), "Caliban's Guide to Letters" (1903), "Esto Perpetua" (1906), "The Historic Thames" (1907), "On Nothing" (1908), "The Pyrenees" (1909), "Hills and the Sea" (1910), "Pongo and the Bull" (1910), etc.

Beltrami (bel-trä'mē), Eugenio. Born at Cremona, Nov. 16, 1835: died at Rome, Feb. 18, 1900. A noted Italian mathematician, one of the originators of the non-Euclidean geometry. He was originally a civil engineer, and became professor successively at Bologna, Pisa, Rome, Pavia, and again at Rome. His "Opere matematiche" were published in 1902.

Bemidji (bē-mid'ji). The county-seat of Beltrami County, Minnesota. It is a summer resort, situated on Bemidji Lake about 140 miles northwest of Duluth. Population, 5,099, (1910).

Benavides (be-nä-vē'dās), Alonso de. Born about 1580. A Spanish Franciscan friar who in 1621 was appointed "Father Custodian" of the missions of New Mexico. He arrived on the Rio Grande in 1622 and indefatigably labored to convert the Pueblo Indians, assisted by twenty-six others of his order, till 1629, when he was relieved. In 1630 he went to Spain and through Santander presented to the king the now world-famous "Memorial" containing the record of his work, travels, the natives, their towns, etc. This was published in 1630 at Madrid and was soon translated into other languages. No English translation was made until recently. The work forms the foundation of the history of New Mexico for that period. In 1632 he published another book on the opening to commerce of the rivers of the Bay of Espiritu Santo. He became assistant bishop in Portuguese India, and on the death of the Archbishop of Goa succeeded him.

Benguet (ben-get'). An inland province in the western part of Luzón, Philippine Islands. Capital, Baguio. It is bounded by La Unión and Lepanto-Bontoc (separated by spurs of the Caraballos Occidentales) on the north; Nueva Vizcaya (separated by the Cordillera Sur) on the east; Pangasinán on the south: and La Unión on the west. It is traversed by the Agno, which rises in the mountains of the north and flows southward into Pangasinán. The surface is irregular, and indicates former great volcanic activity. For centuries gold and copper have been mined in small quantities by the Igorrotes, who form about 95 per cent. of the population. Area, 822 square miles. Population, 22,745.

Benham (ben'am), Andrew Ellicott Kennedy. Born at New York, April 10, 1832: died at Lake Mahopac, N. Y., Aug. 11, 1905. An American naval officer, promoted rear-admiral in 1890. He entered the navy in 1847 and served through the Civil War. In 1894 he was in command of the United States squadron at Rio de Janeiro and forced the insurgent Brazilian vessels to raise the blockade of the port.

Benjamin (ben'ja-min), Marcus. Born at San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 17, 1857. An American chemist, editor to the United States National Museum from 1896. He was graduated from the School of Mines, Columbia University, in 1878; was chemist to the United States laboratory of the New York appraiser's stores 1883–85; and was sanitary engineer of the New York Board of Health in 1885. He has contributed scientific articles to many publications; and has been a member of the editorial staffs of various encyclopedias and dictionaries.

Benjamin (ben'ja-min), Park. Born at New York, May 11, 1849. An American patent lawyer and writer, son of Park Benjamin, the poet. He was graduated at the United States Naval Academy in 1867 (resigning from the navy in 1869), and at the Albany Law School in 1870, and was associate editor of the "Scientific American" 1872–78. He is the author of "The Age of Electricity" (1886), "The Voltaic Cell" (1892), "Intellectual Rise in Electricity" (1895), "The United States Naval Academy" (1900), etc. He has also edited Appletons' "Cyclopedia of Applied Mechanics" (1880) and "Modern Mechanism" (1892), and has written extensively on naval subjects.

Benjamin (ben'ja-min), Samuel Greene Wheeler. Born at Argos, Greece, Feb. 13, 1837. An American author and artist, the son of an American missionary. He was graduated from Williams College in 1859; studied law, seamanship, and art; and served as first United States minister to Persia, 1883–85. His works include "Contemporary Art in Europe" (1877), "Art in America" (1879), "The Multitudinous Seas" (1879), "Troy, its Legend and Literature" (1880), "Persia and the Persians" (1887), numerous paintings, etc.

Benn (ben), Alfred William. Born in Westmeath County, Ireland, 1843. A British classical scholar and historian. He is the author of "The Greek Philosophers" (1882), "The Philosophy of Greece" (1898), "A History of English Rationalism in the Nineteenth Century" (1906), "Modern England" (1908), "Revaluations" (1909), etc.

Bennett (ben'et), Enoch Arnold. Born in North Staffordshire, England, May 27, 1867. An English author. He was assistant editor and subsequently editor of "Woman" 1893–1900, and has since devoted himself to general literary work. Besides several plays and miscellaneous writings, he has published a number of novels, including "A Man from the North" (1898), "Anna of the Five Towns" (1902), "The Old Wives' Tale" (1908), "Clayhanger" (1910), and "Denry the Audacious" (1911).

Bennett (ben'et), James Gordon. Born at New York, May 10, 1841. An American journalist, proprietor of the New York "Herald": son of James Gordon Bennett. Under his auspices (with the London "Telegraph") Henry M. Stanley made his journey of exploration across Africa 1874–77. He also fitted out the Jeannette polar expedition in 1879.

Benson (ben'son), Arthur Christopher. Born April 24, 1862. An English educator and author, son of Edward White Benson, Archbishop of Canterbury. He was fellow and lecturer of Magdalene College, Cambridge; was master at Eton College 1885–1903; and was appointed professor of English fiction in the Royal Society of Literature, London, in 1911. He has published "Archbishop Laud" (1887), "Rossetti" (1904), "The Upton Letters" (1905), "Walter Pater" (1906), "From a College Window" (1906), "Selections from the Correspondence of Queen Victoria" (edited, with Viscount Esher, 1907), "The Silent Isle" (1910), "Ruskin, a Study in Personality," "The Leaves of the Tree," etc.

Benson (ben'son), Mrs. (Constance Featherstonhaugh). An English actress. She was a member of Sir Henry Irving's company in 1883, and later joined the company of F. R. Benson, whom she married in 1886. She has appeared in various Shaksperian parts.

Benson (ben'sŏn), Edward Frederic. Born at Wellington College, Berkshire, England, July 24, 1867. An English novelist, son of Edward White Benson, Archbishop of Canterbury. He is the author of "Dodo" (1893), "The Babe" (1897), "Mammon and Co." (1900), "Scarlet and Hyssop" (1902), "The Challoners" (1904), "The Angel of Pain" (1906), "The Blotting Book" (1908), "The Climber" (1908), "The Osbornes" (1910), etc.

Benson (ben'sŏn), Francis Robert. Born at Alresford, Hampshire, Nov. 4, 1858. An English actor, nephew of Archbishop Benson. While at Oxford he superintended the production of Greek plays at that university. In 1882 he appeared at the Lyceum Theatre under the Irving management, and in 1889 undertook the production of Shaksperian plays by a specially selected company of his own. Since 1887 he has superintended the staging of the annual Shaksperian performance at Stratford-on-Avon. In 1886 he married Constance Featherstonhaugh. He and his wife established a traveling school for dramatic instruction, in which many prominent London actors obtained their introduction to the public.

Benson (ben'sŏn), Robert Hugh. Born Nov. 18, 1871. An English Catholic priest and author, son of Edward White Benson, Archbishop of Canterbury. His works include "The Light Invisible," "By What Authority?" "The Queen's Tragedy," "The Religion of the Plain Man," "Lord of the World," "The Cost of a Crown," etc.

Bentley (bent'li), John Francis. Born at Doncaster, England, 1839: died at Clapham, England, March 2, 1902. An English architect. He was especially successful in the designing and decoration of Roman Catholic churches. In 1894 he was made commissioner to erect the new Roman Catholic cathedral of Westminster, of which the structural part alone was finished at his death.

Benton Harbor (ben'tŏn här'bor). A city of Berrien County, Michigan, 1¼ miles from Lake Michigan. It exports grain, lumber, and fruit, and bottled water from mineral springs in and near the city is shipped in large quantities. Population, 9,185, (1910).

Bentzon (bañ-tsoṅ'), Th. The pseudonym of Mme. Blanc.

Ben Venue (ben ve-nō'). A mountain near the Trossachs, Scotland, rising from the southern shore of Loch Katrine. Height, 2,393 feet.

Benwood (ben'wŭd). The capital of Marshall County, West Virginia. It is situated on the Ohio River 5 miles southwest of Wheeling. Population, 4,976, (1910).

Beraldi (be-räl'dī), Henri. Born at Paris, Feb. 6, 1849. A French collector and historian of engraving. He inherited from his father a collection of many thousand engravings to which he made large additions. He is best known by his "Les graveurs du XVIIIe siècle" (1885–86), "Les graveurs du XIXe siècle" (1885–92), and "Estampes et livres" (1892).

Berenson (ber'en-sŏn), Bernhard. Born at Wilna, Russia, June 26, 1865. An American art critic and writer. He is the author of "Venetian Painters of the Renaissance" (1894), "Lorenzo Lotto, an Essay in Constructive Art Criticism" (1895), "Florentine Painters of the Renaissance" (1896: rev. ed., 1909), "Central Italian Painters of the Renaissance" (1897), "The Study and Criticism of Italian Art" (1901: second series 1902), "The Drawings of the Florentine Painters" (1903), "North Italian Painters of the Renaissance" (1906), "A Sienese Painter of the Franciscan Legend" (1910), and shorter contributions to various magazines and reviews.

Beresford (ber'es-fŏrd), Lord Charles William de la Poer. Born in Ireland, Feb. 10, 1846. An English admiral and parliamentarian, second son of the fourth Marquess of Waterford. He entered the navy in 1859 and rose to the rank of rear-admiral in 1897, of vice-admiral in 1902, and of admiral in 1906. He was rear-admiral in the Mediterranean 1900–02, commanded the Channel squadron 1903–05 and the Mediterranean fleet 1905–07, and was commander-in-chief of the Channel fleet 1907–09. He has been a Conservative member of Parliament for various terms. In the bombardment of Alexandria in 1882 he commanded the Condor, and in the Nile expedition of 1884–85 was a member of Lord Wolseley's staff, and subsequently commanded the naval brigade at the battles of Abu-Klea, Abu-Kru, and Metamneh, in the Sudan. He has written "Nelson and his Times" (1898: with W. H. Wilson), "The Break-up of China" (1899), etc. He was retired in February, 1911.

Berger (bèr'gėr), Victor L. Born in Transylvania, Feb. 28, 1860. An American socialist. He studied at Budapest and Vienna, but before he could take his degree his family emigrated to America because of financial losses. After working at various trades he became a teacher in the public schools. In 1892 he was made editor of the Milwaukee daily "Vorwärts," of the German paper "Wahrheit," and of the English "Social-Democratic Herald," and was soon recognized as a prominent advocate of the socialist cause. He was one of the organizers of the Social Democracy (1897) and of the Social Democratic party (1898), known since 1900 as the Socialist party, and, except for a short interval, has been a member of the National Executive Committee of that party since its origin. He was a representative in Congress from Wisconsin, 1911–.

Bergmann (berg'măn), Ernst von. Born at Ruhen, Livonia, Dec. 16, 1836: died at Wiesbaden, March 25, 1907. An eminent German surgeon, professor of surgery and director of the surgical clinic of the University of Berlin from 1882. He was especially noted for his work in aseptic surgery.

Bergson (berg-sôṅ'), Henri Louis. Born at Paris, Oct. 18, 1859. A French philosopher. After holding the professorship of philosophy at several French institutions he was called to the College of France in 1900. He became a member of the Academy of Moral and Political Science in 1901. His works include an "Essai sur les données immédiates de la conscience" (1889), "Matière et mémoire" (1897), "L'Évolution créatrice" (1907), etc.

Berlin (bèr'lin). A city in Coos County, New Hampshire, on the Androscoggin River 90 miles northeast of Concord. It has pulp- and paper-mills and other industrial establishments. Population, 11,780, (1910).

Bernardino Strait. See ★San Bernardino Strait.

Bernhardt, Sarah (Rosine Bernard). In 1899 she founded in Paris the Théâtre Sarah Bernhardt, of which she is director. She is also professor at the Conservatoire. She has appeared also in "Phèdre," "La dame aux camélias," "La Princesse Lointaine," "L'Aiglon" (1903), "Théroigne de Méricourt" (1905), "La sorcière" (1906), "Sainte Thérèse" (1906), "Les Bouffons" (1907), etc. Her "Memoirs" were published in 1907. She again visited the United States 1910–11.

Bernstein (bern'stīn), Edward. Born at Berlin, Jan. 6, 1850. A German socialist and author. He edited the "Sozial-Demokrat" 1881–90; was a member of the Reichstag 1902–06; and founded the "Documente des Socialismus." He has published various works on socialism.

Bernstein (bern'stīn), Frau (Elsa Porges): pseudonym Ernst Rosmer. Born at Vienna, Oct. 28, 1866. A German writer of plays. Her "Königskinder" (1895) forms the basis of an opera by Humperdinck. Among her other works are "Dämmerung" (1893), "Themistokles" (1897), "Mutter Maria" (1900), "Nausikaa" (1906), and "Achilles" (1910).

Berthelot (bert-lō'), Pierre Eugène Marcellin. Born at Paris, Oct. 25, 1827: died there, March 18, 1907. A noted French chemist. He became professor in the École de Pharmacie in 1860 and in the Collège de France in 1865; was general inspector of higher education in 1876; became a member of the Senate in 1881; and was minister of education 1886–87. He published numerous works on chemical and allied topics, "Science et libre pensée" (1905), "Archéologie et histoire des sciences" (1906), etc.

Bertillon, Alphonse. He has also written "La comparison des écritures et l'identification graphique" (1897), "Anthropologie métrique et photographique," with Dr. A. Chervin (1909), etc.

Bertrand (bãr-troṅ'), Joseph Louis François. Born at Paris, March 11, 1822: died there, April 3, 1900. A noted French mathematician and littérateur. He was educated at the École Polytechnique, and held in succession positions on the staffs of the Lycée Saint-Louis, École Polytechnique, École Normale, Collège de France, and Lycée Napoléon. He was elected a member of the Academy of Sciences in 1856 and its perpetual secretary in 1874, and succeeded J. B. Dumas as member of the French Academy in 1884. His works include "Traité d'arithmétique" (1849), "Traité d'algèbre" (1850), "Traité de calcul différentiel et de calcul intégral" (1864–70), "Thermodynamique" (1887), "Calcul des probabilités" (1889), and various other mathematical articles and treatises. He also published "Les fondateurs de l'astronomie moderne" (1865), "L'Académie des sciences et les académiciens de 1666 à 1793" (1868), "D'Alembert" (1889), "Blaise Pascal" (1890), etc.

Bertrand (bãr-troṅ'), Marcel. Born at Paris, July 2, 1847: died Feb. 13, 1907. An eminent French geologist, professor of geology in the French National School of Mines. In 1896 he was elected a member of the Académie des Sciences as successor to Pasteur.

Berwick (bèr'wik). A borough of Columbia County, Pennsylvania, 23 miles southwest of Wilkes-Barre. It has flour- and planing-mills, manufactories of pipe and pottery, ironworks, etc. Population, 5,357, (1910).

Berwyn (bèr'win). A city of Cook County, Illinois, incorporated in 1902. Population, 5,841, (1910).

Besant (bez'ant), Mrs. (Annie Wood). Born at London, Oct. 1, 1847. An English theosophist and writer on theosophical and philosophical topics. In 1867 she married the Rev. Frank Besant and was legally separated from him in 1873. She was influential in the radical free-thought movement represented by Charles Bradlaugh, and in 1880 became prominent as a pupil of Madame Blavatsky and a member of the Theosophical Society. In 1898 she founded the Central Hindu College at Benares, and in 1904 the Central Hindu Girls' School at Benares. Her publications include "Reincarnation" (1892), "Death and After" (1893), "Karma" (1895), "Four Great Religions" (1897), "Esoteric Christianity" (1901), "A Study in Consciousness" (1904), "Theosophy and the New Psychology" (1904), "Hints on the Bhagavad Gitâ" (1905), "The Wisdom of the Upanishats" (1906), etc.

Beside the Bonnie Brier Bush. A collection of short stories by Ian Maclaren (John Watson) published in 1894. The book contains sketches, humorous and pathetic, of Scottish village life, and is one of the most popular works of the so-called "kailyard" school of fiction.

Besnard (be-när'), Paul Albert. Born at Paris, June 2, 1849. A French painter. He studied at the École des Beaux-Arts and with the painters Cabanel and Brémond, winning the grand prix de Rome. In 1890 he took part in the installation of the secession of the Salon du Champ de Mars. His decorations of the École de Pharmacie are notable.

Bessemer (bes'e-mėr). A town in Jefferson County, Alabama, 11 miles southwest of Birmingham. It is a railroad center, and contains blast-furnaces, machine-shops, foundries, etc. Iron- and coal-mining are extensively carried on. Population, 10,864, (1910).

Bessey (bes'i), Charles Edwin. Born at Milton, Ohio, May 21, 1845. An American botanist, professor in the University of Nebraska from 1884. He has published botanical textbooks, "Plant Migration Studies" (1905), "Synopsis of Plant Phyla" (1907), and various technical papers.

Best (best), William Thomas. Born at Carlisle, England, Aug. 13, 1826: died at Liverpool, May 10, 1897. An English organist. He edited many organ classics.

Bethmann-Hollweg (bet'măn-hol'veg), Theobald Theodore Frederic Alfred von. Born at Hohenfinow, Brandenburg, Nov. 29, 1856. A German statesman, chancellor of the empire, Prussian president of the council, and minister of state for foreign affairs 1909–. He was Prussian minister of the interior 1905, imperial secretary of state for the interior and vice-president of the Prussian council 1907.

Beutenmüller (boi'tn-mül-ėr), William. Born at Hoboken, N. J., March 31, 1864. An American entomologist and writer on related subjects. He was editor of the "Journal" of the New York Entomological Society (Vols. I.–XI.) and was curator of the department of entomology in the American Museum of Natural History, New York city, 1889–1909.

Beveridge (bev'ėr-ij), Albert Jeremiah. Born on a farm on the border of Adams and Highland counties, Ohio, Oct. 6, 1862. An American lawyer, Republican politician, and writer. He was graduated at De Pauw University, Indiana, in 1885, and was admitted to the bar. He was elected United States senator for Indiana in 1899 and again in 1905. His works include "The Russian Advance" (1903), "The Young Man and the World" (1905), etc.

Beyrich (bī'riċh), Heinrich Ernst. Born at Berlin, Germany, Aug. 31, 1815: died there, July 9, 1896. A German geologist and paleontologist, professor in the University of Berlin from 1856. He was associate director of the Geological Survey of Prussia and published a number of important paleontological works.

Bezold (bet'zōld), Wilhelm von. Born at Munich, June 21, 1837: died at Berlin, Feb. 17, 1907. A noted German meteorologist, professor of meteorology and director of the Meteorological Institute at Berlin from 1885. He is best known for his studies in the physics of the atmosphere and in terrestrial magnetism. He published numerous scientific works and papers.

Bickerdyke (bik'ėr-dīk), John. The pseudonym of Charles Henry Cook.

Bickmore (bik'mōr), Albert Smith. Born at St. George, Maine, March 1, 1839. An American naturalist and traveler, professor in charge of the department of public instruction of the American Museum of Natural History, New York, 1882–1904. He was superintendent of the museum 1869–1884. He has published "Travels in the East Indian Archipelago" (1868), etc.

Bicol (bē'kōl). The chief river of Ambos Camarines, southeastern Luzón, Philippine Islands. It flows from Lake Bato northwest to San Miguel Bay, and is navigable by steamers of 9 feet draft to Nueva Cáceres, a distance of 15 miles. Also Inaya.

Big-bend State, The. The State of Tennessee, so called from the Tennessee River ('the River of the Great Bend'), which traverses it.

Bigelow (big'ę-lō), Frank Hagar. Born at Concord, Mass., Aug. 28, 1851. An American meteorologist, professor of meteorology in the United States Weather Bureau 1891–1910. He was professor of mathematics in Racine College 1884–1889; assistant in the office of the "Nautical Almanac" 1889–91; and professor of solar physics in George Washington University 1894–1910. Since 1910 he has been professor of meteorology in the Meteorological Office at Buenos Aires. He is a member of the International Solar Commission.

Bigelow (big'ę-lō), Poultney. Born at New York, Sept. 10, 1855. An American journalist and historian, son of John Bigelow. He was graduated from Yale University in 1879, and was admitted to the bar in 1882, but abandoned law for journalism and traveled extensively. He edited "Outing" 1885–87; served as foreign correspondent on "Harper's Weekly" and the London "Times"; and has written and lectured on modern history and colonial administration. His publications include "The German Emperor and his Eastern Neighbors" (1891), "Borderland of Cæsar and Kaiser" (1893), "White Man's Africa" (1897), "Children of the Nations" (1901), "History of the German Struggle for Liberty" (completed 1906), etc.

Biggs (bigz), Herman Michael. Born at Trumansburg, N. Y., Sept. 29, 1859. An American pathologist and bacteriologist, professor in New York University and Bellevue Hospital Medical College from 1887, and chief medical officer of the Health Department of the city of New York from 1902. He established the bacteriological laboratories of the Health Department of New York city in 1892, the first municipal institution of the kind, and is director of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research (1901–).

Bikélas (bi-kā'läs), Dimitrios. Born at Hermupolis, on the island of Syra, in 1835: died at Athens, July 20, 1908. A Greek poet and essayist. His best-known work is his novel "Lukis Laras" (1879), a story of the Greek war of independence. A collection of his poems was published in 1862 (second edition, 1885). He also translated a number of Shakspere's plays into modern Greek.

Bilirán (bē-lē-rän'). An island of the Philippines, off the north coast of Leyte and belonging to Leyte province. Its surface is mountainous. The highest peak is Mabui, 4,430 feet in height. Area, 190 square miles. Population, 19,147.

Billings (bil'ingz). The county-seat of Yellowstone County, Montana, on the Yellowstone River. It is the center of an extensive cattle- and sheep-raising district, and is one of the most important inland wool-markets of the country. Population, 10,031, (1910).

Billings (bil'ingz), John Shaw. Born in Switzerland Co., Ind., April 12, 1839. An American librarian, director of the New York Public Library from 1896. He was graduated at Miami University in 1857 and at the Ohio Medical College in 1860, and served in the Northern army as a surgeon during the Civil War. In 1864 he was transferred to the surgeon-general's office in Washington and took charge of the medical library there. From 1893 to 1896 he was professor of hygiene in the University of Pennsylvania. Among his publications are the index-catalogue of the library of the surgeon-general's office, and the reports on vital and social statistics for the eleventh census.

Billotte (bi-lōt'), René. Born at Tarbes (Hautes-Pyrénées), June 24, 1846. A French painter, one of the founders, and secretary, of the Société Nationale des Beaux-Arts. He was a pupil of Eugène Fromentin. His work is represented in the Luxembourg, Paris, in the Pennsylvania Academy of the Fine Arts, the Carnegie Institute of Pittsburg, and elsewhere; and he has received numerous medals.

Biloxi (bi-lok'si). A city in Harrison County, Mississippi, on the Gulf of Mexico. Besides its shipyards, it has establishments for packing and shipping oysters, vegetables, and fruits. The first French settlement in the vicinity of the Gulf of Mexico was made near here in 1699, and about 1712 a second was established, on the site of the present city of Biloxi, which was for some years the capital of the French colony of Louisiana. Population, 8,049, (1910).

Binet (bē-nā'), Alfred. Born at Nice, France, July 8, 1857. A French psychologist, director of the laboratory of physiological psychology at the Sorbonne. Among his works are "La psychologie du raisonnement" (1886), "Le magnétisme animal" (1887: with Charles Féré), "Études de psychologie expérimentale" (1889), "Les altérations de la personalité" (1892), "L'Âme et le corps" (1905), etc. He is one of the editors of "L'Année psychologique."

Binet (bē-nā'), Satané. The pseudonym of Francisque Sarcey.

Bingham (bing'am), Hiram. Born at Honolulu, Nov. 19, 1875. An American geographer and explorer, assistant professor and curator of the Latin-American collections in Yale University from 1910. He lectured upon South American geography and history at Yale 1907–08, and upon diplomatic history at Johns Hopkins University 1910. In 1906–1907 he explored Bolivar's route through Venezuela and Colombia, and in 1908–09 the Spanish trade-route from Buenos Aires to Lima. He has published "An Expedition Across Venezuela and Colombia" (1909), etc.

Binmaley (bēn-mä-lā'). A municipality of Pangasinán province, in the western part of Luzón, Philippine Islands. Civilized population, 16,439.

Binondo (bē-nōn'dō). A division of the city of Manila, Luzón, Philippine Islands. Civilized population, 16,657.

Binyon (bin'yon), Laurence. Born at Lancaster, England, Aug. 10, 1869. An English author and poet, assistant in the department of printed books of the British Museum 1893–1895, and in the department of prints and drawings from 1895. Among his works are "Lyric Poems" (1894), "Poems" (1895), "London Visions" (1895, 1898), "The Praise of Life" (1896), "Porphyrion and Other Poems" (1898), "Odes" (1900), "The Death of Adam" (1903), "Penthesilea" (1905), "Paris and Œnone" (1906), and "Attila" (1907). He has also compiled a catalogue of English drawings in the British Museum.

Bird (bėrd), Arthur. Born in Cambridge, Mass., July 23, 1856. An American composer, resident in Berlin since 1886. He has composed a symphony and other orchestral works, a comic opera, "Daphne," and many piano-pieces. In 1901 he received the Paderewski prize for the encouragement of American composers.

Birmingham, University of. See ★University of Birmingham.

Biron (bē'rōn: F. pron. bē-rôṅ'), Ernest Johann: also Biren; originally, perhaps, Bühren. Born Dec. 1, 1690: died Dec. 28, 1772. Duke of Courland: the son of noble parents in Courland, but according to old authorities a groom or shoemaker. He was educated at the University of Königsberg, and in 1724 became permanently connected with the court of the widowed duchess of Courland, Anna Ivanovna, niece of Peter the Great. He accompanied her to Russia when she ascended the throne, in defiance of the express stipulation excluding him in the pact of the new empress with the Russian nobles who gave her the empire, and was created by her hereditary duke of Courland. As chief favorite, hated by all for his cruelty and haughtiness, he ruled Russia during the entire reign of Anna Ivanovna (1730–40); and his epoch, regarded as the worst in Russian history, is known as the "Bironovshtchina." Having made the infant Ivan Antonovitch her heir, the empress appointed Biron regent of Russia during the emperor's minority; but he had ruled only a few weeks when (1741) he and his family were exiled to Siberia. The Empress Elizabeth (1742) allowed him to live in Yaroslavl, on the Volga; Peter III. summoned him to St. Petersburg, restoring his orders and property; Catharine II. (1762) restored to him the duchy of Courland; and he reigned in Mitau until 1769, when he abdicated in favor of his son Peter.

Birrell (bir'el), Augustine. Born at Wavertree, near Liverpool, England, Jan. 19, 1850. An English essayist, lecturer, and statesman. He studied at Cambridge; was admitted to the bar in 1875; sat in Parliament as Liberal member for Fifeshire West 1889–1900, and for Bristol North 1906–; was professor of law in University College, London, 1896–99; was bencher of the Inner Temple 1903; and was president of the board of education, with a seat in the cabinet, December, 1905–07. He was appointed chief secretary for Ireland in 1907. He is the author of "Obiter Dicta" (1884: second series 1887), "Life of Charlotte Brontë" (1885), "Res Judicatæ" (1892), "Men, Women, and Books" (1894), "Sir Frank Lockwood" (1898), "Collected Essays" (1900), "Essays and Addresses" (1901), "Miscellanies" (1901), "William Hazlitt" (1902), "In the Name of the Bodleian" (1906), "Andrew Marvell" (1906), etc.

Bisayas. See ★Visayan Islands.

Bisbee (biz'bē). A city in Cochise County, Arizona, 84 miles southeast of Tucson. Its chief industries are copper-mining and -smelting. Population, 9,019, (1910).

Bischoff (bish'ōf), Joseph Eduard Konrad: pseudonym Konrad von Bolanden. Born at Niedergailbach, Rhine Palatinate, Germany, Aug. 9, 1828. A German novelist. He was ordained priest in the Roman Catholic Church in 1852, and in 1872 was appointed by Pope Pius IX. acting privy chamberlain. His works include "Franz von Sickingen" (1859), "Barbarossa" (1862), "Die Aufgeklärten" (1864), "Angela" (1866), "Deutsche Kulturbilder" (1893–94), "Die Säule der Wahrheit" (1907), etc.

Bishop (bish'up), Mrs. (Isabella Lucy Bird). Born at Boroughbridge, Yorkshire, Oct. 15, 1832: died at Edinburgh, Oct. 7, 1904. An English writer of travels, philanthropist, and geographer. She traveled extensively in North America and Asia, was especially interested in medical missions, and built five hospitals and an orphanage in the East. Among her books of travel are "The English-woman in America" (1856), "Unbeaten Tracks in Japan" (1880), "Among the Tibetans" (1894), "Korea and her Neighbours" (1897), "The Yangtse Valley and Beyond" (1899), etc.

Bishop (bish'up), William Henry. Born at Hartford, Conn., Jan. 7, 1847. An American novelist. He was graduated from Yale in 1867; studied architecture; became proprietor and editor of the Milwaukee "Commercial Times"; and was instructor in modern languages at Yale 1893–1902. In 1903 he was appointed United States consul at Genoa, and in 1905 consul at Palermo. His novels include "Detmold" (1879), "The House of a Merchant Prince" (1885), "The Golden Justice" (1887), "A Pound of Cure" (1894), "Writing to Rosina" (1894), "Tons of Treasure" (1902), etc.

Bishops' Bible, The. A folio edition of the Bible, published in October, 1568. It was a revision of the Great Bible of 1539, organized by Archbishop Parker and undertaken in 1563 by himself, eleven bishops, and four deans and prebendaries. It was not reprinted after 1606.

Bismarck (bis'märk), Herbert, Fürst von. Born at Berlin, Dec. 28, 1849: died at Friedrichsruh, Sept. 18, 1904. A German statesman, son of Prince Otto von Bismarck. He was occupied chiefly with diplomatic affairs and was secretary of state for foreign affairs 1886–90.

Bispham (bis'fam), David Scull. Born at Philadelphia, Jan. 5, 1857. An American barytone. He studied in Italy under Vannuccini and Lamperti 1886–89, and made his début in London in 1891. Since 1897 he has been a member of grand-opera companies in New York and London.

Bitter (bit'ėr), Karl Theodore Francis. Born at Vienna, Austria, Dec. 6, 1867. An Austrian-American sculptor. He was educated at the Academy of Art in Vienna, and came to New York in 1889. His work has been chiefly monumental, the best examples being decorations of the expositions at Chicago, 1893, Buffalo, 1901, and St. Louis, 1904. He was elected a member of the National Academy of Design in 1902.

Bitterroot Range. A range of mountains extending from Clark's Fork, on the northwest, to Monida, the crossing of the Oregon Short Line, on the southeast, including all mountain spurs. U. S. Geog. Board, Feb. 6, 1907.

Bixby (biks'bi), William Herbert. Born at Charlestown, Mass., Dec. 27, 1849. An American civil and military engineer. He was graduated from the United States Military Academy in 1873, and became brigadier-general in 1910. He was chief engineer of the Department of the Lakes, Dakota and Missouri 1907–08, and has been president of the Mississippi River Commission since 1908.

Björnson*, Björnstjerne. In 1903 he received the Nobel prize for literature.

Blackmore*, Richard Doddridge. His latest works include "Perlycross" (1894), "Fringilla" (1895), "Tales from the Telling House" (1896), "Dariel" (1897).

Black Pope, The. The general of the Jesuit order.

Blackstone (blak'stōn). A town in Worcester County, Massachusetts, 35 miles southwest of Boston. It has manufactures of cotton and woolen goods, rubber, etc. Population, 5,648, (1910).

Blackwell (blak'wel), Elizabeth. Born at Bristol, England, Feb. 3, 1821: died at Hastings, May 31, 1910. An English-American physician. Her family emigrated to the United States in 1832. In 1849 she was graduated at the Geneva Medical College (Geneva, N. Y.), being, it is said, the first woman to obtain a medical diploma in the United States. After two years of study abroad she began the practice of medicine in New York city. In 1869 she returned to England.

Blackwell (blak'wel), Emily. Born at Bristol, England, in 1826: died at York Cliffs, Me., Sept. 8, 1910. An Anglo-American physician. She was the sister of Dr. Elizabeth Blackwell, with whom in 1853 she founded the New York Infirmary for Women and Children, the first hospital for women in America. She was at first refused admission to several medical colleges, but finally was allowed to take her degree at Cleveland, after which she completed her medical studies at Edinburgh, Paris, and London, and returned to practise in America.

Blaikie (blā'ki), William. Born at York, N. Y., May 24, 1843: died at New York, Dec. 6, 1904. An American lawyer, and writer on physical training. He was graduated at Harvard in 1866 and at the Harvard Law School in 1868, and accompanied the Harvard crew to England in 1869. He wrote "How to Get Strong and How to Stay So" (1879), "Sound Bodies for Our Boys and Girls" (1883), etc.

Blake (blāk), Francis. Born at Needham, Mass., Dec. 25, 1850. An American physicist, inventor (1878) of a widely used telephone transmitter which bears his name.

Blakelock (blāk'lok), Ralph Albert. Born at New York, Oct. 15, 1847. An American landscape-painter. He was destined for the medical profession, but became instead a self-taught artist and musician. He traveled in the far West and embodied his study of Indian life in his work. His painting is notable for its dignity and power, and for its rich color and strong individuality.

Blakely (blāk'li). A borough of Lackawanna County, Pennsylvania, about 5 miles northeast of Scranton. It has mines of anthracite coal. Population, 5,345, (1910).

Blanc (bloṅ), Mme. (Marie Thérèse de Solms): pseudonym Th. Bentzon. Born at Seine-Port, Seine-et-Marne, Sept. 21, 1840: died Feb. 5, 1907. A French novelist, journalist, and critic. She was for a number of years on the staff of the "Revue politique et littéraire" ("Revue bleue") and the "Revue des deux mondes." She wrote many novels, among them "Un remords" (1878) and "Tony" (1884), both of which were crowned by the French Academy; and a number of her contributions to the "Revue des deux mondes" were collected and published under the titles "Nouveaux romanciers américains" (1885), "Littérature et mœurs étrangères" (1887), and "Les américaines chez elles" (1895).

Bland (bland), Mrs. (Edith Nesbit). Born at London, Aug. 15, 1858. An English novelist, poet, and writer of children's stories. Among her works are "A Pomander of Verse" (1895), "Songs of Love and Empire" (1897), "The Story of the Treasure-Seekers" (1899), "The Wouldbegoods" (1901), "The Red House" (1903), "Oswald Bastable" (1905), "An Incomplete Amorist" (1906), "The Enchanted Castle" (1908), etc.

Bland (bland), Richard Parks. Born near Hartford, Ky., Aug. 19, 1835: died near Lebanon, Mo., June 15, 1899. An American politician. He was admitted to the (Utah) bar in 1860 and was a Democratic member of Congress from Missouri 1873–95 and 1897–99. Throughout his congressional career he was a conspicuous champion of the free coinage of silver and was the author of the Bland Silver Bill (1878).

Blashfield (blash'fēld), Edwin Howland. Born at New York, Dec. 15, 1848. An American painter. In 1867 he went to Paris and entered the atelier of Léon Bonnat, coming also under the influence of Gérôme and Chapu. He has been especially successful in the execution of monumental decorations, among which are a dome in the Manufactures and Liberal Arts Building at the Chicago Exposition in 1893; the central dome of the Congressional Library in Washington; "Westward," a large picture in the State capitol, Des Moines, Iowa; and a ballroom ceiling in the Waldorf-Astoria hotel, New York city. He has been a member of the National Academy of Design since 1888.

Blass (bläs), Friedrich. Born at Osnabrück, Jan. 22, 1843: died at Halle, March 6, 1907. A noted German philologist, professor of classical philology at Halle from 1892. He was especially distinguished for his studies of the Greek language and his work upon Greek texts.

Blériot (blă-ri-ō′), Louis. A French inventor and aviator. He crossed the English Channel in a monoplane invented by himself on July 25, 1909, starting from Calais and landing at the Shakspere Cliff near Dover. The time occupied by the flight was about 40 minutes. He was awarded the £1,000 prize offered by the "London Mail" for the first aviator to make an unbroken flight across the Channel by daylight.

Blind (blind), Mathilde. Born at Mannheim, March 21, 1841: died at London, Nov. 26, 1896. An Anglo-German poet, daughter of a banker named Cohen, and stepdaughter of Karl Blind. She published "Poems by Claude Lake" (1867), "The Prophecy of St. Oran" (1881), "The Heather on Fire" (1886), "The Ascent of Man" (1888), "Dramas in Miniature" (1891), "Songs and Sonnets" (1893), "Birds of Passage" (1895). She translated Strauss's "The Old Faith and the New" (1873–74) and "The Journal of Marie Bashkirtseff" (1890), and wrote biographies of George Eliot (1883) and Madame Roland (1886).

Bliss (blis), Cornelius Newton. Born at Fall River, Mass., Jan. 26, 1833. An American merchant and cabinet officer. He was treasurer of the National Republican Committees of 1892, 1896, 1900, and 1904, and was secretary of the interior 1897–99.

Bliss (blis), Frederick Jones. Born on Mount Lebanon, Syria, Jan. 22, 1859. An American archæologist, explorer for the Palestine Exploration Fund (London) 1891–1900. He excavated the site of Lachish (Tel-el-Hesy), and conducted explorations at Jerusalem and other localities. His publications include "A Mound of Many Cities" (1894), "Excavations at Jerusalem, 1894–97" (1898), "Excavations in Palestine, 1898–1900" (1902), and "The Development of Palestine Exploration" (1906).

Bliss (blis), William Dwight Porter. Born at Constantinople, Turkey, in 1856. An American sociologist. He was graduated from the Hartford Theological Seminary in 1882, and has held pastorates in the Congregational and Protestant Episcopal churches. In 1907–09 he acted as investigator for the United States Bureau of Labor, and since 1909 has been director of the Social Science Library Bureau. In 1889 he organized the first Christian Socialist society in the United States, and in 1899 became president of the National Social Reform Union. He is the author of the "Handbook of Socialism" (1895) and the "Directory of Social Thought and Work" (1910).

Blomfield (blum′fēld), Sir Arthur William. Born at Fulham Palace, London, March 6, 1829: died at Broadway, Worcestershire, England, Oct. 30, 1899. An English architect, fourth son of Charles James Blomfield, bishop of London. He was articled for three years (1853–56) to Philip Charles Hardwick, architect of the Bank of England, whom he succeeded in this office in 1883. He was especially identified with the Gothic revival of the middle of the nineteenth century, his best buildings being churches. At various times he had charge of restorations at the cathedrals of Salisbury, Canterbury, Lincoln, and Chichester. His reconstruction of the Church of St. Mary Overie in London is especially notable.

Blomfield (blum′fēld), Reginald. Born Dec. 20, 1856. An English architect and writer, a nephew of Sir Arthur Blomfield. His practice is mainly confined to residential architecture and gardens. Among his published works are "The Formal Garden in England" (1892), "History of Renaissance Architecture in England" (1897), "Studies in Architecture" (1906), and numerous contributions to architectural periodicals.

Blondel (bloṅ-del′), Jacques François. Born at Rouen, France, Jan. 8, 1705: died Jan. 9, 1774. A noted French architect. He executed several important works in Paris and in 1773 designed an extensive scheme of reconstruction in the city of Metz, according to which were built the Hôtel de Ville (1765), the Place d'Armes, and the portal of the cathedral (1771). He also designed similar improvements in Strasburg. In 1739 he opened an architectural school in Paris, which was merged in 1756 with the Académie d'Architecture, in which he became professor. He is best known from his books "De la distribution des maisons de plaisance" (1737–38), "Architecture française" (the "Grand Blondel," 1752–56), and "Cours d'architecture civile," continued by Patte (the "Petit Blondel," 1771–77).

Blondlot (bloṅd-lō′), Prosper René. Born at Nancy, France, July 3, 1849. A French physicist, appointed adjunct professor in the University of Nancy in 1886 and full professor in that institution in 1896. He is the author of a treatise on static electricity ("Introduction à l'étude de l'électricité statique": 1885), of a volume on thermodynamics ("Introduction à l'étude de la thermodynamique": 1888), and also of numerous papers on physics and particularly on electric waves. Blondlot's announcement in March, 1903, of the discovery of a new type of obscure rays, which he named N-rays, after his birthplace Nancy, attracted wide attention and his observations have since been a subject of lively discussion among physicists.

Blood (blŭd), Sir Bindon. Born Nov. 7, 1842. A British lieutenant-general, commander of the forces in the Panjab (northern command, India). He served in the Jowaki expedition (1877–78), the Zulu war (1879), the Afghan war (1880), the campaign in Egypt (1882), and the relief of Chitral (1895); was commander of the Malakand field force and the Buner field force (1897–98); was lieutenant-general in command of the troops in the eastern Transvaal in 1901; and retired in 1907.

Bloomfield (blōm′fēld). A town in Essex County, New Jersey, 11 miles northwest of New York. It has manufactures of paper, silks, woolen goods, pins, electric elevators, brake-shoes, etc., and is the seat of a German Theological School. Population, 15,070, (1910).

Bloomfield (blōm′fēld), Maurice. Born at Bielitz, Austria, Feb. 23, 1855. An American scholar, professor of Sanskrit and comparative philology in Johns Hopkins University. He was graduated at Ferman University, Granville, S. C., in 1877. He has edited the Kāṅgika-Sūtra from the original manuscripts (1890), translated the hymns of the Atharvaveda (in Max Müller's "Sacred Books of the East"), and edited, with Professor Garbe of Tübingen, the Kashmirian Paipaladaveda (1901). Among his other publications are "The Atharva-Veda and the Gopatha-Brâhmaṇa" (1899), "Cerberus the Dog of Hades" (1905), a concordance of the entire literature of the Veda (1907), and numerous technical articles.

Bloomfield-Zeisler (blōm′fēld-zīs′lêr), Fanny. Born at Bielitz, Austria, July 16, 1866. An American pianist. After studying in Chicago, whither she went with her parents in 1868, she became a pupil of Leschetitzky (1878–83) in Vienna, where she appeared in concerts. She made an extensive concert tour in Europe in 1893, and has since played in the United States, England, and Germany.

Bloomington (blōm′ing-ton). The county-seat of Monroe County, Indiana, 46 miles southwest of Indianapolis. It has extensive quarrying interests, chiefly in limestone, and manufactures of furniture, woolen goods, leather, etc., and is the seat of Indiana University (which see). Population, 8,838, (1910).

Bloomsburg (blōmz′bėrg). The county-seat of Columbia County, Pennsylvania, 35 miles southwest of Wilkes-Barre. It has iron-foundries, car-works, and manufactories of silks, carpets, woolen goods, carriages, etc., and is the seat of the Bloomsburg State Normal School. Population, 7,413, (1910).

Bluefield (blō′fēld). A city in Mercer County, West Virginia, about 70 miles west of Roanoke. It has coal-mining interests, and contains a State normal school for negroes. Population, 11,188, (1910).

Blue Hill Meteorological Observatory. A meteorological observatory at Hyde Park, Massachusetts, founded by Abbott Lawrence Rotch in 1885 and directed by him.

Blue Island (blō ī′land). A village in Cook County, Illinois, 10 miles southwest of Chicago. It is important as a railroad and commercial center, and has stone-quarries, brick-yards, smelting-works, etc. Population, 8,043, (1910).

Blue Mountains*. 3. These include all the mountains of northeastern Oregon, with the exception of the Wallowa Mountains, and extend into Washington. U. S. Geog. Board, 1907.

Blue Ridge*. According to the U. S. Geog. Board (1907), this includes the ridge extending from a few miles north of Harper's Ferry to northern Georgia.

Blumenthal (blō′men-täl), Oskar. Born at Berlin, March 13, 1852. A German dramatist. He founded the Lessing Theater in Berlin in 1888 and conducted it until 1897. His works include a large number of comedies, many of which have been successful. Among the best known are "Die grosse Glocke," "Der schwarze Schleier," "Ein Tropfen Gift," "Als ich wiederkam" (with Kadelburg).

Boac (bō′äk). 1. A municipality of Marinduque island in Tayabas province in the southern part of Luzón, Philippine Islands. Civilized population, 15,823.—2. The capital of Marinduque subprovince, situated in the northwestern part of the island of Marinduque, in lat. 13° 27′ N., long. 121° 49′ E.

Boas (bō′as), Franz. Born at Minden, Westphalia, July 9, 1858. A German-American anthropologist and philologist, professor of anthropology in Columbia University from 1898. He studied at the universities of Heidelberg, Bonn, and Kiel; visited the United States 1884–85; was assistant at the Royal Ethnographical Museum, Berlin, and docent at the University 1885–86; was instructor in anthropology at Clark University 1888–92; and was assistant curator (later curator) of the anthropological collection of the American Museum of Natural History, New York, 1896–1905. He has published many papers upon the Eskimo and other northern tribes, and has issued Chinook texts, etc.

Bode (bō′de), Wilhelm. Born at Calvörde, Brunswick, Germany, Dec. 10, 1845. A noted German critic and historian of art, director of the Kaiser Friedrich Museum in Berlin. Among his publications are "Geschichte der deutschen Plastik" (1887 and 1893), "Italienische Bildhauer der Renaissance" (1887), "Florentiner Bildhauer der Renaissance" (1902), "Denkmäler der Renaissance-skulptur Toscanas" (1892–), "Rembrandt" (1897–1900), etc.

Boeckh (bėėh), Richard. Born at Berlin, March 28, 1824: died at Grunewald, near Berlin, Dec. 6, 1907. A noted German statistician, professor of statistics (1852–92) and director of the city statistical department (1875–92) in Berlin. He edited the Berlin "Jahrbuch" and published numerous technical works and papers.

Boehm von Bawerk (bėm fon bä′verk), Eugen. Born at Brünn, Austria, Feb. 12, 1851. An Austrian political economist, professor in the University of Vienna. In 1884 he was appointed professor at Innsbruck; in 1889 entered the ministry of finance in Vienna; and for a short time in 1895, from November, 1897, to March, 1898, and again, 1900–04, was minister of finance. He has published "Kapital und Kapitalzins" (1884–89), "Einige strittige Fragen der Kapitalstheorie" (1900), etc.

Boëllmann (bō-el-män′), Léon. Born at Ensisheim, Alsace, Sept. 25, 1862: died at Paris, Oct. 11, 1897. A French composer, organist at the church of St. Vincent de Paul, Paris. As a composer he is best known by his "Symphonic Variations" for cello and orchestra, but he also wrote many other compositions for organ, orchestra, piano, and strings.

Bogert (bō′gėrt), Marston Taylor. Born at Flushing, N. Y., April 18, 1868. An American chemist, professor of chemistry in Columbia University from 1904. He was adjunct professor there 1901–04. He has published papers upon various topics in organic chemistry.

Bogoslof (bō′gos-lof) Island. A small volcanic island in the Aleutian group (Alaska), northwest of Unalaska, in lat. 54° N., long. 168° W. The Bogoslof volcano was discovered by the Russian admiral Bogoslof in 1790. A second island, 2½ miles distant, appeared in the winter of 1886–87 and became connected with the original island. Since then various changes have occurred, new peaks having appeared and disappeared.

Bohème, La. An opera by Giacomo Puccini (words, from Henri Murger's "Scènes de la vie de Bohème," by Giacosa and Illica), first produced at Turin in 1897.

Bohol (bō-hōl′). A province of the Philippines, situated between Cebú and Leyte, and consisting of numerous islands, the largest of which is Bohol. Most of the rivers are unimportant for navigation. A few are navigable by boats of light draft for distances of from 3 to 12 miles. The population is chiefly Visayan. The capital, Tagbilaran, is in Bohol, in lat. 9° 38′ N., long. 123° 50′ E., on the strait of the same name which separates that island from Panglao. Area of province, 1,511 square miles. Population, 269,223.

Boissier (bwä-syā′), Marie Louis Gaston: known as Gaston. Born at Nîmes, France, August 15, 1823: died at Paris, June 10, 1908. A French classical scholar, historian, and critic, perpetual secretary of the French Academy from 1895. He became professor of Latin literature in the Collège de France in 1861. In 1876 he was elected to the French Academy, succeeding Patin, and in 1886 to the Academy of Inscriptions and Belles-Lettres. Among his works are "Cicéron et ses amis" (1865), "L'Opposition sous les Césars" (1875), "La religion romaine d'Auguste aux Antonins" (1874), "Promenades archéologiques" (1880), "La fin du paganisme" (1891), "Saint Simon" (1892), "L'Afrique romaine" (1895), "Tacite" (1903), "La conjuration de Catilina" (1905), etc.

Bolanden (bō′län-den), Konrad von. The pseudonym of Joseph Eduard Konrad Bischoff.

Bolan Pass. 2. A district in northern Baluchistan, officially known as Bolan Pass and Nushki Railway district, administered by the political agent of Khelat.

Boldini (bōl-dē′nē), Giovanni. Born at Ferrara, Italy, 1845. An Italian painter. He was trained at the Academy of Fine Arts in Florence, and made his initial success in London. In 1872 he established himself in Paris and has produced many portraits and easel pictures. He is a brilliant colorist and technician of the school of Fortuny and Rico.

Boldrewood (bōl′dėr-wŭd), Rolf. The pseudonym of Thomas Alexander Browne.

Bolivia*. In November, 1903, the republic ceded to Brazil the territory of the Acre for $10,000,000. In March, 1905, a treaty was negotiated between Bolivia and Chile whereby Chile agreed to build a railway from Arica to La Paz and Bolivia was to have free transit to the Pacific ports. The question of the boundary with Peru was submitted to the president of the Argentine Republic for arbitration in 1908 and settled in 1909.

Bolles (bōlz), Albert Sidney. Born at Montville, Conn., March 8, 1846. An American lawyer and writer on finance. He has been professor of mercantile law and banking in the Wharton School of Finance and Economy in the University of Pennsylvania; chief of the Bureau of Industrial Statistics of the State of Pennsylvania; and editor of the "Bankers' Magazine." His works include "A Financial History of the United States for the periods 1774–1789" (1879), "1789–1860" (1883), and "1860–1885" (1886), "Practical Banking" (1884), "Industrial History of the United States" (1878), "Conflict Between Labor and Capital" (1876), "A History of Pennsylvania" (1899), "American Finance" (1901), etc.

Boltwood (bōlt'wûd), Bertram Borden. Born at Amherst, Mass., July 27, 1870. An American chemist, professor of radiochemistry in Yale University from 1910. He was assistant professor of physics there 1906–10. He has published various papers on radioactivity.

Boltzmann (bōltz'män), Ludwig. Born at Vienna, Austria, Feb. 20, 1844: died at Duino, Sept. 5, 1906. An Austrian physicist, professor of physics in the University of Vienna from 1902. He became professor of mathematics and physics at Gratz in 1869, of mathematics at Vienna in 1873, of experimental physics at Gratz in 1876, and of physics at Munich in 1890, at Vienna in 1895, and at Leipsic in 1900. His investigations were chiefly in thermodynamics and electricity. Among his works are "Vorlesungen über Maxwells Theorie der Elektricität und des Lichts" (1891–93), "Vorlesungen über Gastheorie" (1896–98), "Vorlesungen über die Prinzipe der Mechanik" (1897; 2d vol., 1904), and "Populäre Schriften" (1905).

Bolyai (bōl'yō-i), Farkas. Born at Bolya, Hungary, Feb. 9, 1775: died Nov. 20, 1856. A Hungarian mathematician, professor in the Reformed College of Maros-Vásárhely 1802–49. His chief work was "Tentamen juventutem studiosam in elementa matheseos puræ introducendi" (1832–33).

Bolyai (bōl'yō-i), János. Born at Klausenburg, Hungary, Dec. 15, 1802: died at Maros-Vásárhely, Jan. 27, 1860. A distinguished Hungarian mathematician, son of Farkas Bolyai. His most famous work is an appendix to the first volume of the "Tentamen" of his father, entitled "Appendix scientiam spatii absolute veram exhibens," in which he develops the idea of a geometry which is independent of Euclid's axiom of parallels.

Bombón (bōm-bōn'), or Taal (tä-äl'), Lake. A lake in the northern part of Batangas province, southwestern Luzón, Philippine Islands, of about 12 miles mean diameter. It discharges through the Pansipit River into the Gulf of Balayán, a distance of about 6 miles. The northern part of the lake is occupied by Taal volcano.

Bombonón (bōm-bō-nōn'), Port. A bay and port on the southern coast of Negros Island, in the Philippines. It is safe for large vessels in all weather.

Bonaparte (bō'na-pärt), Charles Joseph. Born at Baltimore, June 9, 1851. An American lawyer and cabinet officer, grandson of Jérôme Bonaparte. He was graduated at Harvard University in 1871 and at the Harvard Law School in 1874. He has been prominent in reform movements, was secretary of the navy 1905–06, and was attorney-general 1906–09.

Bonci (bōn'chē), Alessandro. Born at Cesena, Forlì, about 1870. An Italian tenor. Beginning his career as a church singer, he made his operatic début at Parma as Fenton in "Falstaff." He has since sung in most of the large cities of the world, and has spent his winters in America since the fall of 1906, singing in opera and concert. His principal rôles include Rodolfo ("La Bohème"), Ottavio ("Don Giovanni"), the Duke ("Rigoletto"), and Alfredo ("Lucia di Lammermoor").

Bond (bond), Sir Edward Augustus. Born at Hanwell, England, Dec. 31, 1815: died at Bayswater, London, Jan. 2, 1898. Principal librarian of the British Museum 1878–88. In 1833 he entered the Record Office as an assistant and was transferred to the British Museum in 1838. In conjunction with Sir E. Maunde Thompson he founded the Palæographical Society in 1873. He was knighted a few days before his death.

Bond (bond), Sir Robert. Born at St. John's, Newfoundland, Feb. 25, 1857. A Canadian statesman. He was elected to the Newfoundland House of Assembly in 1882 and became speaker of that body in 1884, was colonial secretary 1889–97, and was premier and colonial secretary of Newfoundland 1900–09. In 1902 he negotiated the Hay-Bond treaty in the interest of reciprocal trade between the United States and Canada. He was knighted in 1902.

Boni (bō'ni), Giacomo. Born at Venice, April 25, 1859. An Italian architect and archæologist. Since September, 1898, he has had charge of excavations in the Roman Forum by which the conditions of ancient Roman life have been revealed to a remarkable extent. He has also superintended the reconstruction of the Campanile at Venice.

Bonsal (bon'sal), Stephen. Born at Baltimore, Md., March 29, 1865. An American journalist and author. He was special correspondent of the New York "Herald" in the Bulgarian-Servian war (1885), in the Macedonian uprising (1890), in the Chino-Japanese war (1895), in the Cuban insurrection (1897), in the Spanish-American war (1898), with the China relief expedition (1900), in the Philippine Islands (1901), in Venezuela (1903), and in the Balkans, Albania, Macedonia, Montenegro, etc. (1904). He was in the diplomatic service of the United States as secretary of legation and chargé d'affaires in Peking, Madrid, Tokio, and Korea 1891–96. He is the author of "Morocco as it is" (1892), "The Real Condition of Cuba" (1897), "The Fight for Santiago" (1899), and "The Golden Horseshoe" (1900).

Boodle's (bō'dlz). A London club established in 1762. It was kept by one Boodle, and was a famous resort for country squires and masters of foxhounds. It now has about 700 members, and its house is at 28 St. James's street.

Boone (bōn). The county-seat of Boone County, Iowa, 36 miles northwest of Des Moines. It has machine-shops, brick- and tile-works, flour-mills, tobacco factories, etc. Deposits of coal and potter's clay are found in the vicinity. Population, 10,347, (1910).

Booth (bōth), Ballington. Born at Brighouse, Yorkshire, England, July 28, 1859. A religious writer and speaker, president and general-in-chief of the Volunteers of America: second son of William Booth, founder of the Salvation Army. He commanded the Salvation Army in Australia 1885–87 and in the United States 1887–96, and in the latter year founded an independent organization, the Volunteers of America, having its centers of Christian and philanthropic operation in different parts of the country.

Booth (bōth), Charles. Born at Liverpool, March 30, 1840. An English statistician. He was president of the Royal Statistical Society 1892–94, and in 1904 served on the tariff commission. He has taken an active part in the agitation in England for old age pensions, a subject on which he has written extensively. His publications include "Life and Labour of the People in London" (1889–1903), a standard work in twelve volumes, "Pauperism and Endowment of Old Age" (1892), "The Aged Poor, Condition" (1894), and "Old Age Pensions" (1899).

Booth (bōth), Mrs. (Maud Charlesworth). Born at Limpsfield, Surrey, Sept. 13, 1865. A writer and leader of the Volunteer prison work: wife of Ballington Booth, president of the Volunteers of America. She has written "Branded," "Look up and Hope," "After Prison, What?," "Sleepy Time Stories," etc.

Booth-Tucker (bōth'tuk'ėr), Frederick St. George de Lautour. Born at Monghyr, Bengal, March 21, 1853. An English religious worker, commander of the Salvation Army in the United States 1896–1905. He married Emma Moss Booth (died 1903), a daughter of William Booth, in 1888, and prefixed the name 'Booth' to his own. He established the Salvation Army in India in 1882, retaining command of it until 1891, when he went to London and served as secretary in the international work of the army. He has written a "Life of General William Booth," "In Darkest India," etc.

Borchgrevink (bōrch'gre-vingk), Carsten Egeberg. Born at Christiania, Norway, 1864. A Norwegian antarctic explorer. He emigrated to Australia in 1888 and worked there for several years as surveyor and teacher; made a voyage to the antarctic seas on a whaler in 1894; and commanded an antarctic expedition (in the Southern Cross) 1898–1900, attaining lat. 78° 50′ S. (in King Edward VII. Land), the farthest then reached. He also determined (approximately) the position of the south magnetic pole. He has written "First on the Antarctic Continent: an Account of the British Antarctic Expedition 1898–1900" (1901), etc. See Century Atlas, Map 3½.

Borglum (bôr'glum), John Gutzon de la Mothe. Born in Nevada, March 25, 1867. An American sculptor and painter. He was educated at the school of the Art Association in San Francisco and at the Julien Academy and the École des Beaux-Arts in Paris. His bronze group, "The Mares of Diomedes," won a gold medal at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition in 1904 and has been secured for the Metropolitan Museum in New York city.

Boring (bō'ring), William Alciphron. Born at Carlinville, Ill., Sept. 9, 1859. An American architect. He was educated at the University of Illinois, Columbia University, and the École des Beaux-Arts, Paris. He built the University of Southern California, the United States Immigrant Station at Ellis Island, the Jacob Tome Institute at Port Deposit, Maryland, and many other public buildings in various parts of the United States.

Bornier (bôr-nyā'), Henri, Vicomte de. Born at Lunel, Hérault, France, Dec. 25, 1825: died at Paris, Jan. 29, 1901. A French poet and dramatist. He succeeded Xavier Marmier as member of the French Academy in 1893. Among his works are "Les premières feuilles," a volume of poems (1848); the plays "Le mariage de Luther" (1845), "Dante et Béatrix" (1853), "Le mond renversé" (1853), "Les noces d'Attila" (1879), "La Moabite" (1880), "L'Apôtre" (1881), "Mahomet" (1890), "Le fils de l'Arétin" (1895), "France d'abord!" (1899), etc. He published his collected verse, "Poésies complètes," in 1888.

Borodin (bō'rō-dēn), Alexander Porphyrievitch. Born at St. Petersburg, Nov. 12, 1834: died there, Feb. 27, 1887. A Russian composer, a member of the young national school founded by Balakiref. He studied medicine and chemistry, becoming assistant professor of chemistry in the Academy of Medicine in St. Petersburg in 1862, but from that time devoted his leisure to music. He composed three symphonies (the third unfinished), string quartets, piano-pieces and songs, and an opera, "Prince Igor" (unfinished, but completed by Rimsky-Korsakoff and Glazounof and published in 1889).

Bortniansky (bōrt-nyän'ski), Dimitri Stepanovitch. Born at Glucho, Tchernigof, Russia, 1752: died at St. Petersburg, Oct. 9, 1825. A Russian composer, pupil of the Italian Galuppi. He was director of the imperial choir and composed much music for the Russian Church.

Bosanquet (bō'zan-get), Bernard. Born at Alnwick, England, 1848. An English philosophical writer, professor of moral philosophy at St. Andrews 1903–08. He was graduated at Oxford and was lecturer at University College there 1871–1881. Among his publications are "Logic, or Morphology of Knowledge" (1888), "The Philosophical Theory of the State" (1899), and a translation of Lotze's "System of Philosophy."

Boss (bos), Lewis. Born at Providence, R. I., Oct. 26, 1846. An American astronomer, director of the Dudley Observatory, Albany, New York, from 1876, and also director of the department of meridian astronomy, Carnegie Institution, from 1906. He was graduated at Dartmouth College in 1870; was astronomer of the northern boundary commission 1872–76; and was chief of the United States government expedition sent to Chile in 1882 to observe the transit of Venus. He has published "Declinations of Fixed Stars" (1878), "Catalogue of 8,241 Stars" (1890), "Positions and Motions of 627 Principal Standard Stars" (1904), and numerous scientific papers. He was awarded the gold medal of the Royal Astronomical Society of London in 1905.

Boston Public Library. A building, in the Roman Renaissance style, situated on the west side of Copley Square, Boston. It was erected 1888–95, at a cost of $2,486,000, from the designs of the architectural firm of McKim, Mead, and White. It is 228 feet long, 225 feet wide, and 68 feet high (to the cornice), and incloses an open court 136 feet long and 100 feet wide. The decorations are notable and include sculpture by MacMonnies and Augustus and Louis Saint-Gaudens, and paintings by Puvis de Chavannes, Edwin A. Abbey, John S. Sargent, and others. It contains over 900,000 volumes and pamphlets. Among its valuable collections are the Ticknor collection of Spanish and Portuguese books, the Barton library (containing Shaksperiana), the Prince library (MSS. and early New England books), the Barlow library (Americana), etc.

Bostonians, The. A novel by Henry James, published in 1886.

Bostwick (bost'wik), Arthur Elmore. Born at Litchfield, Conn., March 8, 1860. An American scientific writer, librarian of the St. Louis Public Library from 1909. He was librarian of the New York Free Circulating Library 1895–99; of the Brooklyn Public Library 1899–1901; and chief of the department of circulation of the New York Public Library 1901–09.

Botha (bō'thä), Louis. Born at Greytown, Natal, Sept. 27, 1862. A noted Boer general and statesman. He commanded the Boer forces at Colenso (Dec. 15, 1899) and Spion Kop (Jan. 22–24, 1900), and on the death of Joubert became commander-in-chief of the Boer forces. In 1907 he became the first prime minister of the Transvaal Colony, and in 1910 premier of the Union of South Africa.

Botta (bot'tä), Mrs. (Anne Charlotte Lynch). Born at Bennington, Vt., 1820: died at New York, March 23, 1891. An American writer. In 1855 she married Vincenzo Botta, and their house in New York city became a literary center. She wrote "Leaves from the Diary of a Recluse" (1845), "Poems" (1848), etc.

Botta (bot'tä), Vincenzo. Born at Cavallermaggiore, Italy, Nov. 11, 1818: died at New York, Oct. 5, 1894. An Italian-American educator. He was graduated at the University of Turin and held the post of professor of philosophy there. In 1849 he was elected to the Sardinian parliament. For more than thirty years he was professor of the Italian language and literature in the University of the City of New York (now New York University). He wrote "Discourse on the Life, Character, and Policy of Cavour" (1862), "Dante as Philosopher, Patriot, and Poet" (1865), etc.

Bötticher (bėt'i-chėr), Karl. Born at Nordhausen, Germany, May 29, 1806: died at Berlin, June 21, 1889. A German archæologist, assistant director of the sculpture gallery of the Berlin Museum 1854–68, and director 1868–76. His chief work, "Tektonik der Hellenen" (1844–52), was an important contribution to the knowledge of Greek architecture.

Bottome (bo-tōm'), Mrs. (Margaret McDonald). Born at New York, Dec. 29, 1827: died Nov. 14, 1906. An American writer, founder and president of the international order of the King's Daughters and Sons. She was an editor of the "Ladies' Home Journal," and contributed many articles to religious and other papers. Among her publications are "Crumbs from the King's Table," "A Sunshine Trip to the Orient," "Heart to Heart Letters," etc.

Boulger (bul'jėr), Demetrius Charles. Born at London, July 14, 1853. An English historian and writer on Asiatic affairs. In 1885, with Sir Lepel Griffin, he founded the "Asiatic Quarterly Review," of which he was editor for several years. His works include "England and Russia in Central Asia" (1879), "Central Asian Portraits" (1880), "History of China" (1881), "Central Asian Questions" (1885), "The Story of India" (1897), "The Congo State" (1898), "India in the Nineteenth Century" (1901), "History of Belgium" (1902), "Belgian Life in Town and Country" (1904), "Life of Sir Halliday Macartney" (1908), etc.

Boulle, or Boule (böl), Charles André. Born at Paris, Nov. 11, 1642: died there, Feb. 29, 1732. The leading member of a large family of French cabinet-makers. He learned his trade from his father, Jean Boulle, and in 1672 was granted quarters in the Louvre palace, where he built up an establishment for the manufacture of fine furniture and inlaid work, which in 1720 was destroyed by fire. He was a protégé of Louis XIV., for whom his best work was done. His characteristic effects are secured by inlaying metals, tortoise-shell, mother-of-pearl, and other colored materials on ebony or ebonized wood. Modern boule is an imitation of this. Erroneously, Buhl.

Bourdillon (bör'di-lon), Francis William. Born March 22, 1852. An English poet. He has written "Among the Flowers, and Other Poems" (1878), "Ailes d'Alouette" (1890), "A Lost God" (1891), "Sursum Corda" (1893), "Nephelé" (1896), "Minuscula" (1897), "Preludes and Romances" (1906), etc.; and has edited and translated "Aucassin and Nicolette" (1887).

Bourgeois (bör-zhwä'), Léon Victor Auguste. Born at Paris, May 21, 1851. A French statesman. He was deputy for Marne in 1888; was under-secretary of state in the ministry of the interior 1888–89; was elected deputy for Rheims in 1889; was minister of the interior 1890, of public instruction 1890–1892 and 1898, and of justice 1892; was premier 1895–96; was president of the Chamber of Deputies 1902–03; and was minister of foreign affairs March–Oct., 1906. In politics he is Republican Radical. He was delegate to the Hague Peace Conference in 1899 and in 1907. His works include "Des travaux publics communaux" (1877), "Les chemins de fer économiques à voie étroite et les accotements" (1878).

Bourne (börn), Edward Gaylord. Born at Strykersville, N. Y., June 24, 1860: died at New Haven, Conn., Feb. 24, 1908. An American historian and educator, professor of history in Yale University from 1895. He was graduated at Yale University in 1883 and was professor of history at Adelbert College 1890–95. His works include "The History of the Surplus Revenue of 1837" (1885), "Essays in Historical Criticism" (1901), a historical introduction to "The Philippine Islands" (1903), "Spain in America" (1904), "Discovery, Conquest, and Early History of the Philippine Islands" (1907), "Travels of Jonathan Carver" (1907), editions of the narratives of the explorations of De Soto, of Champlain, and of Columbus, etc.

Boutet de Monvel (bö-tă' dė moṅ-vel'), Louis Maurice. Born at Orléans, France, 1851. A French painter and illustrator. He first exhibited in the Salon in 1874. Between 1876 and 1880 he made several visits to Algeria, and he has painted numerous portraits and Algerian subjects, but is best known as an illustrator. His colored drawings for books, especially those for children, have a peculiar simplicity and naïveté.

Bowditch (bou'dich), Henry Pickering. Born at Boston, Mass., April 4, 1840: died at Jamaica Plain, Mass., March 13, 1911. An American physiologist, professor in the Medical School of Harvard University 1871–1906. He made numerous contributions to the science of physiology.

Bowdler (bōd'lėr), Thomas. Born at Ashley, near Bath, July 11, 1754: died at Rhyddings, near Swansea, Wales, Feb. 24, 1825. An English editor of Shakspere. He published "The Family Shakespeare" (1818), and his method of expurgating the text gave rise to the term bowdlerize. He prepared, on similar lines, an edition of Gibbon's "History" (completed 1825 and published 1826).

Bowles (bōlz), Francis Tiffany. Born at Springfield, Mass., Oct. 7, 1858. An American naval officer, chief constructor of the United States navy, with the rank of rear-admiral, 1901–03. He was graduated from the United States Naval Academy in 1879, and was engaged in the construction of the new navy of the United States from its foundation. In 1903 he resigned from the navy to engage in private ship-building.

Bowling Green (bō'ling grēn). The county-seat of Wood County, Ohio, 20 miles southwest of Toledo. It is the center of a great oil-region, and has foundries, canneries, cut-glass works, etc. Population, 5,222, (1910).

Bowman (bō'man), Sir William. Born at Nantwich, England, July 20, 1816: died near Dorking, March 29, 1892. An English surgeon, noted especially for his work in ophthalmology and for his investigations relating to the mucous membranes, muscular fiber, and the structure of the kidney.

Bowne (boun), Borden Parker. Born at Leonardville, N. J., Jan. 14, 1847: died April 1, 1910. An American educator and author. He studied at Halle, Paris, and Göttingen, and from 1876 was professor of philosophy and dean of the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences in Boston University. He made a tour of the world 1905–06, lecturing in India, China, and Japan. Among his philosophical and religious works are "The Philosophy of Herbert Spencer" (1874), "The Philosophy of Theism" (1888), "The Theory of Thought and Knowledge" (1897), and "The Essence of Religion" (1910).

Boyne City (boin sit'i). A city in Charlevoix County, Michigan, incorporated in 1907. Its chief industries are lumbering and manufacturing. Population, 5,218, (1910).

Boys' Brigade. A boys' organization, established in 1883 by W. A. Smith of Glasgow, the aim of which is "the promotion of all that tends towards a true Christian manliness." The boys are trained largely by means of military drill and discipline, and companies are formed in connection with religious organizations. The membership in the United Kingdom is 65,000, and the total strength of the brigade, including the members in the United States, is about 110,000.

Boy Scouts. A movement initiated and organized in 1908 by Lieutenant-General Sir Robert Baden-Powell. Its object is officially stated as being "to help the boys of whatever class to become 'all-round' men, to give them 'character,' and to make them capable of looking after themselves in whatever circumstances they are placed." Education is given in groups under leaders and the administration is based on decentralization of authority and responsibility. Among the subjects taken up are ambulance service, woodcraft, seamanship, marksmanship, and scoutcraft. The movement is spreading throughout the British dominions. The headquarters are in London.

Boy Scouts of America. A movement which grew, with the aid of many workers, out of the organization known as the "Woodcraft Indian Scouts" (which see in supplement). Its object is the formation of manly character. It is diametrically opposed to military ideas and methods, its object being brotherhood and good citizenship. It has a following of about 500,000. The national headquarters are in New York, and it has a national council. The chief scout is Ernest Thompson Seton.

Bozeman (bōz'man). The county-seat of Gallatin County, Montana, 80 miles southeast of Helena. It is in a mountainous region, and situated at an altitude of 4,750 feet. It has flour- and lumber-mills, and gold, silver, coal, lead, onyx, iron, and copper are found in the neighborhood. The State College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts is at Bozeman. Population, 5,107, (1910).

Bracquemond (bräk-môṅ'), Félix Joseph Auguste. Born at Paris, May 22, 1833. A French painter, etcher, ceramist, and ornamenter. He was a pupil of Joseph Guichard, who was a pupil of Ingres. He exhibited first in the Salon of 1852. His chief successes have been in etching.

Braddock (brad'ok). A borough in Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, named in memory of General Braddock, who was killed in the vicinity in 1755. It has manufactures of steel and of other articles used in the construction of railroads and railroad cars. Population, 19,357, (1910).

Bradford (brad'fȯrd), Gamaliel. Born at Boston, Mass., Jan. 15, 1831. An American banker and publicist. He is the author of "The Lesson of Popular Government" (1898), and of various essays and monographs.

Bradley (brad'li), Arthur Granville. Born Nov. 11, 1850. An English historian and writer. Among his publications are a "Life of Wolfe" (1895), "Highways and Byways of North Wales" (1898), "Highways and Byways of the English Lake District" (1901), "Owen Glyndwr" (1901), "Highways and Byways of South Wales" (1903), "Marches of South Wales" (1905), "The Romance of Northumberland" (1908), etc.

Bradley (brad'li), Henry. Born at Manchester, England, Dec. 3, 1845. An English historian and philologist. He was educated at Oxford and Heidelberg, and was employed as a clerk and foreign correspondent at Sheffield until 1884, when he removed to London. He was president of the Philological Society 1891–93 and 1900–03. In 1889 he became joint editor with Dr. Murray of "The Oxford English Dictionary." His publications include "The Story of the Goths" (1888), "The Making of English" (1904), etc. He was made fellow of the British Academy in 1907.

Bradley (brad'li), Joseph P. Born in Berne, N. Y., March 14, 1813: died in Washington, D. C., Jan. 22, 1892. An eminent American jurist, appointed an associate justice of the United States Supreme Court in 1870. He was a member of the Electoral Commission in 1877.

Brady (brā'di), Cyrus Townsend. Born at Allegheny, Pa., Dec. 20, 1861. An American clergyman and author. He was graduated from the United States Naval Academy in 1883; was ordained priest in the Protestant Episcopal Church in 1890; was archdeacon of Kansas 1892–95, and of Pennsylvania 1895–1899; was rector at Overbrook, Philadelphia, in 1899; of Trinity Church, Toledo, Ohio, 1905–09; and of St. George's Church, Kansas City, 1909–; and served as chaplain of the First Pennsylvania Volunteers during the Spanish-American war. He has written "Recollections of a Missionary in the Great West" (1900), "American Fights and Fighters Series," and many volumes of fiction and biography.

Braga (brä'gä), Theophilo. Born in the Azores, Feb. 24, 1843. President of Portugal 1910–11. He has written "The History of Portuguese Literature," etc.

Brahmaputra*. In 1908 Dr. Sven Hedin announced that he had determined in Tibet the true sources of the river Brahmaputra.

Brainard (brā'nārd), David Legge. Born in Norway, Herkimer County, N. Y., Dec. 21, 1856. An American arctic explorer. He enlisted in the United States army in 1876 and was promoted sergeant; fought in the Indian campaigns of 1877–78 under General Miles; and was a member of Greely's expedition to Lady Franklin Bay 1881–84. With Lieutenant J. B. Lockwood he reached lat. 83° 24′ N., the highest then attained, in May, 1882, and in 1883 explored Grinnell Land and the northwestern coast of Greenland with him. In 1886 he was commissioned second lieutenant in the United States army "for distinguished and meritorious services in connection with the Arctic Expedition 1881–1884," and was promoted lieutenant-colonel in the Subsistence Department in 1905.

Brainerd (brā'nėrd). The county-seat of Crow Wing County, Minnesota. It is on the Mississippi River, about 105 miles southwest of Duluth, and has foundries, railroad shops, lumber-yards, flour-mills, cigar factories, etc. Population, 8,526, (1910).

Brampton, Baron. See ★Hawkins, Sir Henry.

Brand (brand), Sir Henry Bouverie William, first Viscount Hampden and twenty-third Baron Dacre. Born Dec. 24, 1814: died at Pau, France, March 14, 1892. An English statesman. He was Liberal member for Lewes 1852–68, and for Cambridgeshire 1868–84; was parliamentary secretary to the treasury 1859–66; and was speaker of the House of Commons 1872–84. He was knighted in 1881, created Viscount Hampden of Glynde in 1884, and succeeded to the title of Lord Dacre in 1890.

Brandis (brän'dis), Sir Dietrich. Born at Bonn, March 31, 1824: died there, May 28, 1907. An eminent German botanist and authority on forestry. In 1856 he went to India and was placed in charge of the teak forests of Burma, and in 1864 was appointed the first inspector-general of the forests of India. He retired to Bonn in 1883. Knighted in 1887.

Brandon (bran'dọn). A manufacturing city, the capital of Brandon County, Manitoba. It has an industrial school for Indians. Population, 5,380.

Brangwyn (brang'win), William Francis. Born of Welsh parents at Bruges, Belgium, 1867. A British painter, etcher, and decorator. He exhibited at the Royal Academy in London as early as 1886, and at the Chicago Exposition in 1893 won a medal with his picture "The Convict Ship." His etchings are printed in small editions and are highly valued by connoisseurs. Among his most notable decorations are a series in the great hall of the Skinners' Company and a wall picture at Lloyd's Registry.

Branner (bran'ėr), John Casper. Born at Newmarket, Tenn., July 4, 1850. An American geologist, professor in Leland Stanford University from 1891, and vice-president since 1899. He was graduated at Cornell University in 1874; was geologist of the Imperial Geological Commission of Brazil 1875–77, and agent of the United States Department of Agriculture in Brazil 1882–83; was connected with the geological survey of Pennsylvania 1883–85; was professor of geology in the University of Indiana 1885–91; was State geologist of Arkansas 1887–93; and conducted an expedition to Brazil in 1899. He has published numerous scientific reports and papers.

Brassey*, Thomas. He was president of the Institute of Naval Architects 1893–95; and was governor of Victoria 1895–1900. He was the founder and first editor of the "Naval Annual." Among his works are "British Navy" (1881), "Sixty Years of Progress, and the New Fiscal Policy" (1904), etc. He was created an earl in 1911.

Braun (broun), Karl Ferdinand. Born at Fulda, Germany, June 6, 1850. A German physicist. He studied mathematics and the natural sciences at Marburg and Berlin, and after occupying chairs at various German universities became professor of physics and director of the Physical Institute at Strasburg in 1895. He has investigated the elasticity of matter and the relation between chemical energy and electricity, and has made improvements in the use of the cathode rays. In 1901 he published "Drahtlose Telegraphie durch Wasser und Luft" ("Wireless Telegraphy through Water and Air"), and in 1909, together with Marconi, was awarded the Nobel prize for physics.

Brazil*. The republic contains 20 states: Alagoas, Amazonas, Bahia, Ceará, Espirito Santo, Goyaz, Maranhão, Matto Grosso, Minas Geraes, Pará, Parahyba do Norte, Paraná, Pernambuco, Piauhy, Rio Grande do Norte, Rio Grande do Sul, Rio de Janeiro, Santa Catharina, São Paulo, and Sergipe; one national territory, known as the Acre country, and acquired from Bolivia by treaty in November, 1903, in consideration of $10,000,000; and the federal district. A national exposition was held at Rio de Janeiro in 1908. In April, 1907, a boundary treaty was signed with Colombia, by which the frontier is traced from Cuchuhy on the Rio Negro to the confluence of the Apaporis and Yapura. From this point southward to the Amazon, the boundary is still unsettled.

Brazil (bra-zil'). The county-seat of Clay County, Indiana, 55 miles southwest of Indianapolis. Block-coal mines in the neighborhood afford an important industry, and there are extensive iron-working establishments and manufactories of tiles, bricks, sewer-pipes, etc. Population, 9,340, (1910).

Bredichin (brā'di-ċhin), Fedor Alexandrovitch. Born at Nikolaief, Russia, Dec. 8, (N. S.), 1830: died at St. Petersburg, May 14, 1904. An eminent Russian astronomer, director of the observatory of the University of Moscow 1873–90, and of that of Pulkowa 1890–94. His principal work was his investigation of the forms of comets, in connection with his theory of meteors.

Breeches Bible, The. See ★Geneva Bible.

Brehm (brām), Christian Ludwig. Born at Schönau, near Gotha, Germany, Jan. 24, 1787: died at Renthendorf, near Neustadt-on-the-Orla, Saxe-Weimar, June 23, 1864. A German naturalist, author of numerous works on ornithology.

Bressler-Gianoli (bres'ler-jē-ä-nō'lē), Madame Chlotilde. Born at Geneva, of Italian parents. A mezzo-soprano operasinger. She studied at the Milan Conservatory, first appeared at Geneva in Saint-Saëns's "Samson et Dalila," and sang there for two years. She had a season at La Scala, Milan, and appeared as Carmen at the Théâtre de la Monnaie, Brussels, in 1895, and in the same part in the Opéra Comique in Paris in 1900, and at the Manhattan Opera House, New York, in 1906. She has also been successful in Wagnerian opera, in Gluck's "Orphée," in Massenet's "Werther," etc.

Brewer (brö'èr). A city in Penobscot County, Maine. It is situated on the Penobscot River, opposite Bangor, with which it is connected by a bridge. It has paper-, pulp-, and lumber-mills, ship-building yards, a tannery, etc. Population, 5,667, (1910).

Brewer (brö'èr), David Josiah. Born June 20, 1837: died March 28, 1910. An American jurist, nephew of Stephen J. Field. He was graduated at Yale in 1856 and at the Albany Law School in 1858; was justice of the Supreme Court of Kansas 1870–84; was judge of the Circuit Court of the United States 1884–1889; and was appointed associate justice of the United States Supreme Court in 1889. In 1897 he was president of the British-Venezuelan Boundary Commission appointed by President Cleveland, and was a member of the Arbitration Tribunal to determine that boundary (Paris, 1899). He wrote "The Pew to the Pulpit" (1897), "The Twentieth Century from Another Viewpoint" (1899), "American Citizenship" (1902), "The United States a Christian Nation" (1905).

Brewer (brö'èr), William Henry. Born at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Sept. 14, 1828: died at New Haven, Conn., Nov. 2, 1910. An American scientist. He studied at Heidelberg, Munich, and Paris; was professor of chemistry in the University of California 1863–64, and of agriculture in the Sheffield Scientific School, Yale University, 1864–1903. He was engaged on the California Geological Survey 1860–64, on the topographical survey of Connecticut, and on the scientific survey of the Philippine Islands in 1903. He also visited the arctic regions, and was president of the Arctic Club 1894–1909. He published a "Botany of California" (1875), etc.

Brewster (brö'stèr), Benjamin Harris. Born in Salem County, N. J., Oct. 13, 1816: died at Philadelphia, April 4, 1888. An American jurist. He was graduated at Princeton in 1834 and admitted to the Philadelphia bar in 1838. In 1867 he was appointed attorney-general of Pennsylvania, and was attorney-general of the United States 1881–85.

Brewster (brö'stèr), William. Born at Wakefield, Mass., July 5, 1851. An American ornithologist, in charge of the birds in the Museum of Comparative Zoölogy of Harvard University from 1900.

Briand (bri-oṅ'), Aristide. Born at Nantes, March 28, 1862. A French statesman, a member of the Socialist party. In March, 1905, he became minister of instruction and public worship in the cabinet of Sarrien, and remained in that position under Clemenceau from Oct., 1906, to July, 1909. In Jan., 1908, he became also minister of justice. He secured the passage of the law effecting the separation of church and state. He was premier and minister of the interior July, 1909–Feb., 1911.

Brice (brīs), Calvin Stewart. Born at Denmark, Ohio, Sept. 17, 1845: died at New York, Dec. 15, 1898. An American politician. He was graduated from Miami University (Oxford, Ohio) in 1863, and was admitted to the bar in 1866. He served with the Union army in the Civil War; was identified with railroad interests in the United States and China; was chairman of the Democratic campaign committee which conducted the national campaign in 1888; and was United States senator from Ohio 1891–97.

Bridges (brij'ez), Robert. Born Oct. 23, 1844. An English poet, critic, and physician. He held various positions in the London hospitals until 1882, when he retired from practice. He has written several volumes of poems, a study of "Milton's Prosody," "The Growth of Love," a number of plays, including "Nero," "Palicio," "Ulysses," "Christian Captives," "Achilles in Scyros," "Humours of the Court," and "The Feast of Bacchus," and also an oratorio entitled "Eden."

Bridges (brij'ez), Robert: pseudonym Droch. Born at Shippensburg, Pa., July 13, 1858. An American author, editor, and critic. He was graduated at Princeton in 1879; was a reporter for the Rochester "Democrat and Chronicle" in 1880; was assistant news-editor of the New York "Evening Post" 1881–87; was literary reviewer for "Life" 1883–1900; and since 1887 has been assistant editor of "Scribner's Magazine." He is the author of "Overheard in Arcady" (1894), "Suppressed Chapters and Other Bookishness" (1895), "Bramble Brae," a volume of poems (1902), etc.

Brieux (bri-ė'), Eugène. Born at Paris, Jan. 19, 1858. A French dramatist. He worked as journalist on the Paris periodicals "La Patrie," "Le Figaro," and "Le Gaulois." His first play, "Bernard Palissy," written in collaboration with Gaston Salandri, was produced in 1880. Antoine produced his "Ménage d'artistes" at the Théâtre Libre in 1890. This was followed by "Blanchette" (1892), "Les Bienfaiteurs" (1896), "Les trois filles de M. Dupont" (1897), "Les Avariés" (1901; read privately at the Théâtre Antoine), "Les Hannetons" (1906), "Simone" (1908), etc. His effort has been to depict social evils with a view to their reform.

Briggs, Charles Augustus. Among his recent works are "Incarnation of the Lord" (1902), "Ethical Teaching of Jesus" (1904), "New Light on the Life of Jesus" (1904), "The Papal Commission and the Pentateuch," with Baron Friedrich von Hügel (1906), etc.

Bright (brīt), Mynors. Born 1818: died Feb. 23, 1883. An English scholar, proctor and president of Magdalene College, Cambridge, and editor of Pepys's "Diary." His edition of Pepys (1875–79), which is based upon a complete redecipherment of the original manuscript, corrects many errors in the earlier editions and includes a large number of passages previously suppressed.

Brink (bringk), Jan ten. Born at Appingedam, Netherlands, June 15, 1834: died at Leyden, July 19, 1901. A Dutch author, educator, and critic. In 1889 he was appointed professor of the history of Dutch literature at Leyden. Among his critical works are "Schets eener geschiedenis der Nederlandsche letterkunde" (1867–69), "Vondel bekroond" (1868), "Bulwer Lytton: biografie en kritiek" (1873), "Letterkundige schetsen" (1874–75), "Émile Zola" (1879), "Onze hedendaagsche letterkundigen" (1882–87: reprinted in 1902 as "Geschiedenis der Noord-Nederlandsche letteren in de XIX. eeuw"), "Causerien over moderne romans" (1884), and "De Roman in brieven 1740–1840" (1889). He is also the author of a number of novels.

Brinton, Daniel Garrison. Among his later works are "Races and Peoples" (1890), "American Race" (1891), "Religions of Primitive Peoples" (1897), "Basis of Social Relations" (1902), etc.

Brisbane (briz'bān), Arthur. Born at Buffalo, N. Y., Dec. 12, 1864. An American newspaper editor. He served first as reporter, later as London correspondent, for the New York "Sun"; was for a time editor of the "Evening Sun," and subsequently managing editor of the New York "World"; and has been editor of the New York "Evening Journal" since 1897.

Bristol (bris'tol). A borough in Hartford County, Connecticut, in Bristol township, 15 miles southwest of Hartford. It has machine-shops and foundries, and manufactories of clocks, tableware, brass goods, tools, etc. Population, 9,527, (1910).

Bristol (bris'tol). In part a town in Sullivan County, Tennessee, and in part an independent city of Virginia. The two portions adjoin and to all intents and purposes form one place, with the boundary line of Tennessee and Virginia running through the principal street. Bristol is the seat of King College, Sullins College, and Southwest Virginia Institute. There are lumber-mills, pulp-mills, iron industries, etc. Population of Bristol, Tennessee, 7,148, (1910); of Bristol, Virginia, 6,247, (1910).

British Academy for the Promotion of Historical, Philosophical, and Philological Studies, The. An association incorporated by royal charter, Aug. 8, 1902. Its formation was due to a suggestion made at the assembling of the International Association of Academies at Wiesbaden in 1899, and a consequent meeting of representative scholars at the British Museum in 1901. The fellowship is limited to one hundred. Its first president was Lord Reay.

Britton (brit'on), Nathaniel Lord. Born at New Dorp, Staten Island, N. Y., Jan. 15, 1859. An American botanist, director of the New York Botanical Garden from 1896. He was graduated at the Columbia School of Mines in 1879, and was professor of botany in Columbia University 1888–96. Among his publications are "Illustrated Flora of the Northern United States and Canada" and "Manual of the Flora of the Northern United States and Canada."

Broadland (brôd'land). A name for the region of the Norfolk Broads, England.

Broca (brō'kä), Paul. Born at Sainte-Foy-la-Grande, Gironde, France, June 28, 1824: died at Paris, July 9, 1880. An eminent French anthropologist, founder of the Anthropological Society of Paris (1859), of the School of Anthropology (1876), and of the French Association for the Advancement of the Sciences (1872). He became a member of the Senate in 1880. Among his works are "Instructions générales pour les recherches anthropologiques" (1865), "Instructions craniologiques et craniométriques" (1875), "Mémoires sur les caractères physiques de l'homme préhistorique" (1869), and "Mémoires d'anthropologie" (1871–83: fifth vol., edited by Pozzi, 1888).

Brock (brok), Sir Thomas. Born at Worcester in 1847. An English sculptor. He was elected to the Royal Academy in 1891. In 1911 his memorial to Queen Victoria, in front of Buckingham Palace, was unveiled, and in consideration of his work he was knighted.

Brockway (brok'wā), Howard A. Born at Brooklyn, N. Y., Nov. 22, 1870. An American pianist and composer. He has written for orchestra, piano, cello, and voice, his best-known work being the "Sylvan Suite" for the orchestra.

Brockway (brok'wā), Zebulon Reed. Born at Lyme, Conn., April 28, 1827. An American penologist, superintendent of the New York State Reformatory at Elmira 1876–1900, and mayor of Elmira 1906–07. He was appointed deputy superintendent of the Albany Penitentiary in 1851, superintendent of the Monroe County (New York) Penitentiary in 1854, and of the Detroit House of Correction in 1861. He has written numerous papers on the subject of penology.

Brodrick (brod'rik), William St. John Fremantle, ninth Viscount Midleton. Born Dec. 14, 1856. A British Conservative statesman. He was educated at Eton and Balliol College, Oxford; represented Surrey (West 1880–85 and South-west 1885–1906) in the House of Commons; and was financial secretary to the War Office 1886–92, under-secretary of state for war 1895–98, under-secretary of state for foreign affairs 1898–1900, secretary of state for war 1900–03, and secretary of state for India 1903–Dec., 1905.

Brodsky (brōd'ski), Adolf. Born at Taganrog, Province of the Don Cossacks, Russia, March 21, 1851. A distinguished Russian violinist. He was a member of the Hellmesberger Quartet in Vienna, and from 1868 to 1870 of the imperial opera orchestra there, and later was a professor at the conservatory of Moscow (1875–79). From 1879 to 1881 he was conductor of the symphony orchestra in Kief; made concert tours in Austria, Germany, and England 1881–83; and was professor at the Leipsic Conservatory 1883–91. From 1891 to 1894 he was in the United States and Canada. In 1895 he was appointed professor, and later principal, at the Manchester Royal College of Music in England.

Bronx (bronks). The northernmost borough of the city of New York (see New York, Greater). It is northeast of the Harlem River, and extends as far north as Westchester County. The borough contains Bronx Park, with its botanical and large zoölogical gardens, Van Cortlandt Park, Pelham Bay Park, etc. Population, 430,980, (1910).

Bronzino (bron-zē'nō), Angiolo Allori: called Bronzino. Born at Monticelli, near Florence, 1502: died at Florence, 1572. A Florentine painter and poet. He was a pupil of Raffaellino del Garbo and Jacopo Carrucci, called Pontormo. He was also much influenced by Michelangelo, whose style of drawing he affected. Bronzino was the favorite painter of Cosimo I., duke of Tuscany, and has left a fine series of portraits of the Medici family. His best works are in Florence and Pisa.

Brooke (brůk), John Mercer. Born at Tampa, Florida, Dec. 18, 1826: died at Lexington, Va., Dec. 14, 1906. An American physicist. He was graduated from the Naval Academy at Annapolis in 1847, but resigned from the U. S. navy in 1860. In 1861 he entered the Confederate service and became chief of the bureau of ordnance and hydrography. He invented a gun, named for him, and made the plans which were used in refitting the "Merrimac" ("Virginia"). He was professor of physics in the Virginia Military Institute 1865–99.

Brooke (brůk), John Rutter. Born at Pottsville, Pa., July 21, 1838. An American soldier, promoted major-general in the regular army in 1897. He enlisted in the Northern army in 1861 and attained the brevet rank of major-general of volunteers in 1864. In April, 1898, during the Spanish-American war, he was placed in command of the troops in Chickamauga Park, and in July was sent to Porto Rico, where he was head of the military commission and governor-general until December, when he became governor-general of Cuba. In 1900 he was placed in command of the department of the East. He retired in 1902.

Brookfield (brůk'fēld). A city in Linn County, Missouri, about 90 miles east of St. Joseph. It is a shipping-point for grain and live stock, also for coal, which is mined in the vicinity. It has railroad shops, iron-works, brick-yards, lumber-mills, etc. Population, 5,749, (1910).

Brookhaven (brůk'hā-vn). The county-seat of Lincoln County, Mississippi, 52 miles southwest of Jackson. It has extensive cotton interests, and is the seat of Whitworth Female College. Population, 5,293, (1910).

Brooks (brŭks), John Graham. Born at Acworth, N. H., July 19, 1846. An American sociologist. He studied at the universities of Berlin, Jena, and Freiburg; lectured on economic subjects at Harvard and the University of Chicago; and was employed as an expert by the United States Department of Labor, and in 1893 furnished a report on workingmen's insurance in Germany. Since 1909 he has been a lecturer in the University of California. He is president of the National Consumers' League, and is the author of "The Social Unrest" (1903), "As Others See Us" (1908), and "An American Citizen" (1910).

Brooks (brŭks), Noah. Born at Castine, Me., Oct. 24, 1830: died at Pasadena, Cal., Aug. 16, 1903. An American journalist and writer of biography, history, and fiction, particularly for boy readers. He was editor of the Newark (New Jersey) "Advertiser" 1884–94. He published "The Boy Emigrants" (1876), "The Life of Abraham Lincoln" (1889), "American Statesmen" (1893), "The Story of Marco Polo" (1896), etc.

Brooks (brŭks), William Keith. Born at Cleveland, Ohio, March 25, 1848: died at Lake Roland, near Baltimore, Nov. 12, 1908. An American biologist, professor of zoölogy at Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore. He was graduated at Williams College in 1870 and was assistant in the Boston Society of Natural History 1875–76. Among his published works are "Handbook of Invertebrate Zoölogy" (1882), "Heredity" (1884), "Lucifer: a Study in Morphology" (1881), "The Stomatopoda of H. M. S. Challenger" (1886), "Foundations of Zoölogy" (1898), etc.

Brosch (brōsh), Moritz. Born at Prague, April 7, 1829: died at Venice, July 15, 1907. A German historian and journalist. His works include "Papst Julius II. und die Gründung des Kirchenstaats" (1878), "Geschichte des Kirchenstaats" (1880–82), "Lord Bolingbroke und die Whigs und Tories seiner Zeit" (1883), "Oliver Cromwell und die puritanische Revolution" (1886), "Geschichte von England, 1603–1850" (1890–97).

Brown (broun), Alice. Born at Hampton Falls, N. H., Dec. 5, 1857. An American author. Her works include "Meadowgrass" (1895), "By Oak and Thorn" (1896), "Tiverton Tales" (1899), "King's End" (1901), "Margaret Warrender" (1901), "The Mannerings" (1903), "Judgment" (1903), "High Noon" (1904), "The Court of Love" (1906), "The Story of Thyrza" (1909), "John Winterbourne's Family" (1910), etc.

Brown (broun), Elmer Ellsworth. Born at Kiantone, N. Y., Aug. 28, 1861. An American educator and author. He was professor in the University of California 1893–1906; was appointed United States commissioner of education in 1906; and became chancellor of New York University in 1911. He has written "The Making of Our Middle Schools" (1903), "Origin of American State Universities" (1905), "Government by Influence" (1909), etc.

Brown (broun), Ernest William. Born at Hull, England, Nov. 29, 1866. An American mathematician, professor of mathematics in Yale University from 1907.

Brown (broun), Francis. Born at Hanover, N. H., Dec. 26, 1849. An American scholar, clergyman, and educator, president of Union Theological Seminary 1908–. He was instructor in biblical philology in Union Theological Seminary, New York, 1879–81, and associate professor 1881–90; and was appointed professor of Hebrew and cognate languages in 1890. He is the author of "Assyriology: Its Use and Abuse" (1885) and "The Christian Point of View" (1902; with George William Knox and Arthur C. McGiffert); and has compiled, with S. R. Driver and C. A. Briggs, a "Hebrew and English Lexicon of the Old Testament" (1891–1906).

Brown (broun), Glenn. Born in Fauquier County, Va., Sept. 13, 1854. An American architect. He studied at Washington and Lee University and took the architectural course in the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He has been a practising architect in Washington, etc., since 1878; has written on house sanitation, etc.; and edited the "Proceedings" of the American Institute of Architects 1899–1909.

Brown (broun), Henry Billings. Born at South Lee, Mass., March 2, 1836. An American jurist. He was graduated at Yale in 1856 and was admitted to the (Michigan) bar in 1860. He was United States judge for the Eastern District of Michigan 1875–90, and associate justice of the United States Supreme Court 1891–1906. His publications include "Admiralty Reports" (1876), and sundry articles in legal magazines.

Browne (broun), Thomas Alexander: pseudonym Rolf Boldrewood. Born at London, England, Aug. 6, 1826. An Australian novelist. Among his works are "Robbery Under Arms" (1888), "The Miner's Right" (1890), "The Squatter's Dream" (1895), "The Crooked Stick" (1895), "War to the Knife" (1899), "The Ghost Camp" (1902), "The Last Chance" (1905), "A Tale of the Golden West" (1906), etc.

Brownell (brou-nel'), William Crary. Born at New York, Aug. 30, 1851. An American critic, author, and editor. He was graduated at Amherst College in 1871 and became in 1888 a literary adviser to the publishing house of Charles Scribner's Sons. He has written "French Traits" (1889), "French Art" (1892), "Victorian Prose Masters" (1901), and "American Prose Masters" (1909).

Browning (brou'ning), Oscar. Born at London, England, Jan. 17, 1837. An English historian, critic, and writer. He is the author of "Modern England, 1820–1874" (1878), "Modern France, 1814–1879" (1880), "England and Napoleon in 1803" (1887), "Aspects of Education" (1888), "History of Educational Theories" (1889), "Life of George Eliot" (1890), "Dante, Life and Writings" (1891), "Goethe, his Life and Writings" (1891), "The Life of Bartolommeo Colleoni" (1891), "Guelphs and Ghibellines" (1893), "The Age of the Condottieri" (1895), "Peter the Great" (1898), "Charles XII. of Sweden" (1898), "Wars of the Nineteenth Century" (1899), "Impressions of Indian Travel" (1903), "Napoleon: First Phase" (1905), "The Fall of Napoleon" (1907), "Memories of Sixty Years" (1910), etc.

Brownwood (broun'wŭd). The county-seat of Brown County, Texas, about 150 miles southwest of Dallas. It is the seat of Howard Payne and Daniel Baker colleges, and has cotton-gins, flour-mills, and machine-shops, and a trade in cotton, wool, wheat, etc. Population, 6,967, (1910).

Bruce (brös), Victor Alexander, ninth Earl of Elgin and thirteenth Earl of Kincardine. Born near Montreal, May 16, 1849. A British Liberal statesman. He was educated at Eton and at Balliol College, Oxford; succeeded his father in 1863; was viceroy of India 1894–99; was chairman of the war commission in 1902, and chairman of the royal commission on the Scottish church crisis in 1904; and was secretary of state for the colonies Dec., 1905–08.

Bruce (brös), William Speirs. Born Aug. 1, 1867. A Scottish explorer. He took part in the Scottish antarctic expedition of 1892–93, the Jackson-Harmsworth polar expedition of 1896–97, and the Andrew Coats expedition to Nova Zembla in 1898, and accompanied the Prince of Monaco to Spitzbergen in 1898–99. In 1902–04 he headed the Scottish national antarctic expedition on board the Scotia, discovering 150 miles of the antarctic continental coast-line, and surveying the South Atlantic Ocean to 74° 1′ S. In 1906–09 he explored Prince Charles Foreland, Spitzbergen. He has published an account of his voyage in the Scotia.

Bruch*, Max. He was director of the Orchesterverein at Breslau 1883–90; and in 1892 succeeded Herzogenberg as director of composition in the Hochschule of Berlin.

Bruckner (brök'ner), Anton. Born at Ansfelden, Upper Austria, Sept. 4, 1824: died at Vienna, Oct. 12, 1896. An Austrian organist, composer, and teacher. He was professor of harmony and counterpoint in the Vienna Conservatory. His most important works are nine symphonies (the last unfinished) which show the strong influence of Wagner, masses, a Te Deum, and other church music.

Brumidi (brō-mē'dē), Constantino. Born at Rome, June 20, 1805: died at Washington, Feb. 19, 1880. An Italian-American historical painter, sculptor, and architect. He painted frescos in palaces in Rome and in the Vatican, was naturalized an American in 1852, and was intrusted with the decoration of the Capitol, Washington.

Bruneau (brū-nō'), Alfred. Born at Paris, March 3, 1857. A French composer and critic of music. His most important works are the operas "Le rêve" (1891), "L'Attaque du moulin" (1893), "Messidor" (1897), "L'Enfant roi" (1905), "Naïs Micoulin" (1907), etc.; and songs. He has also published several volumes of critical writings.

Brunner (brŭn'ėr), Arnold William. Born at New York, Sept. 25, 1857. An American architect. He was educated at the College of the City of New York and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology; served on the Board of Supervision for Public Buildings in Cleveland, Ohio, and on similar commissions in other cities; and in 1907 became a member of the Art Commission of the City of New York. Among the buildings designed by him are the Mount Sinai Hospital, the Columbia University School of Mines, and the United States post-office and custom-house and the court-house at Cleveland. He is to design also a building for the State Department at Washington.

Brush (brush), George Jarvis. Born at Brooklyn, N. Y., Dec. 15, 1831. An American mineralogist, professor of metallurgy 1855–64 and of mineralogy from 1864 in the Yale (Sheffield) Scientific School. He was director of the Sheffield Scientific School 1872–98.

Bryan (brī'an), Charles Page. Born at Chicago, Oct. 2, 1856. An American diplomatist. He was a member of the Colorado House of Representatives in 1880, and of the Illinois House of Representatives 1888–97. He was minister to China 1897–98, to Brazil 1898–1902, to Switzerland 1902–03, to Portugal 1903–10, to Belgium 1910–11, and ambassador to Japan 1911–.

Bryce*, James. He was chief secretary for Ireland 1905–06; member of Parliament (Liberal) for Aberdeen 1885–1906; and ambassador extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to the United States 1907–. Among his later publications are "Impressions of South Africa" (1897), "Studies in History and Jurisprudence" (1901), and "Studies in Contemporary Biography" (1903).

Bucás (bö-käs') Islands. Three small islands of the Philippines, lying northeast of Mindanao and southwest of Siargao and forming part of the eastern boundary of Surigao Strait. On the eastern coast of Bucás Grande is Port Sibonga, a harbor safe in all weather for vessels not exceeding 15 feet draft. Area of the three islands, 53.4 square miles. Area of Bucás Grande, 43 square miles. Population, 810.

Buchan (buch'an), Alexander. Born at Kinnesswood, Kinross-shire, Scotland, April 11, 1829: died at Edinburgh, May 13, 1907. A Scotch meteorologist, secretary of the Scottish Meteorological Society from 1860. He published numerous works and papers upon meteorological subjects, including "A Handy Text-book of Meteorology" (1867), "Introductory Text-book of Meteorology" (1871), "Atmospheric Circulation" (1889), "Oceanic Circulation" (1895), etc.

Bücheler (büch'e-ler), Franz. Born in Rheinberg, June 3, 1837: died at Bonn, May 8, 1908. A noted German philologist, professor of classical philology at Bonn from 1870. He is especially known for his critical work on the classics.

Buchner (böch'ner), Eduard. Born at Munich, May 20, 1860. A German chemist. After studying at Munich and Erlangen he became assistant in the chemical laboratory at Munich in 1890, lecturer at Kiel in 1893, professor extraordinary at Tübingen in 1896, professor in the Agricultural College, Berlin, in 1898, and in 1909 accepted a call to the University of Breslau. He has made various investigations in organic chemistry, and in particular has shown that alcoholic fermentation is caused by an enzym (zymase) in the yeast-cells. In 1907 he received the Nobel prize for chemistry. He has published "Die Zymasegärung" ("Zymase-fermentation"; 1903, in joint authorship with others) and "Beziehungen der Chemie zur Landwirthschaft" ("Relation of Chemistry to Agriculture"; 1904).

Buchner (bûk'nėr), Edward Franklin. Born at Paxton, Ill., Sept. 3, 1868. An American psychologist, professor of education and philosophy in Johns Hopkins University from 1908. He was professor of philosophy and education in the University of Alabama 1903–1908. He has published "A Study of Kant's Psychology" (1897), "The Educational Theory of Immanuel Kant" (1904), etc.

Buckingham (buk'ing-am), William Alfred. Born at Lebanon, Conn., May 28, 1804: died at Norwich, Conn., Feb. 3, 1875. An American governor. He was governor of Connecticut 1858–66 and Republican senator from that State 1869–75. During the Civil War he was influential in raising the 55,000 volunteers which Connecticut sent to the Union army.

Buckley (buk'li), James Monroe. Born at Rahway, N. J., Dec. 16, 1836. An American clergyman, author, and editor. From 1859 to 1880 he filled pastorates of the Methodist Episcopal Church in New Hampshire, Michigan, Connecticut, and Brooklyn; since then he has been editor of "The Christian Advocate" of New York. Among his publications are "Oats or Wild Oats" (1885), "Faith Healing, Christian Science, and Kindred Phenomena" (1887), "Travels in Three Continents" (1894), "History of Methodism in the United States" (1897), "The Fundamentals and Their Contrasts" (1906), etc.

Bucyrus (bū-sī'rus). The county-seat of Crawford County, Ohio, 56 miles north of Columbus. It has manufactures of machinery, furniture, plows, wagons, etc. Population, 8,122, (1910).

Budde (böd'e), Karl Ferdinand Reinhard. Born at Bensberg, near Cologne, Germany, April 13, 1850. A German evangelical theologian, professor of Old Testament theology in the University of Marburg from 1900. Among his works are "Die biblische Urgeschichte untersucht" (1883), "Die Bücher Richter und Samuel" (1890), "Der Kanon des Alten Testaments" (1900), "Das Alte Testament und die Ausgrabungen" (1903).

Budge (buj), Ernest Alfred Thompson Wallis. Born in Cornwall, July 27, 1857. An English archæologist, keeper of Assyrian and Egyptian antiquities at the British Museum. He has conducted explorations at Nineveh, Dêr (Mesopotamia), Assuan (Egypt), and Gebel Barkal (Sudan), and has published a large number of works on Oriental subjects.

Buffalo Exposition. See ★Pan-American Exposition.

Bugge (bö'ge), Elsius Sophus. Born at Laurvig, Norway, Jan. 5, 1833: died at Christiania, July 8, 1907. A distinguished Norwegian philologist, professor of comparative philology in Christiania from 1866. He is best known from his work on the Eddas and earlier sagas.

Buhl. See ★Boulle.

Bulacán (bö-lä-kän'). A province in southern Luzón, Philippine Islands. It is bounded by Nueva Écija on the north; Nueva Écija and Infanta (separated by the Sierra Madre Mountains) on the east; Rizal and Manila Bay on the south; and Pampanga on the west. Capital, Malolos. The Rio Grande de la Pampanga flows through it from north to south. The eastern part of the province is mountainous; the western part is fertile, producing sugar-cane and rice. The population is Tagalog. Area, 1,173 square miles. Population, 223,742.

Bulfinch (bûl'finch), Charles. Born at Boston, Mass., Aug. 8, 1763: died there, April 15, 1844. An American architect. He designed the Doric column which replaced the beacon on Beacon Hill; built the Boston State House between 1795 and 1798, the McLean Hospital, Somerville, and the General Hospital, Boston; and became architect of the Capitol at Washington, January 8, 1818, succeeding Benjamin H. Latrobe. He built there the porticos on the western side.

Bulgaria*. There is also a Grand Sobranje, consisting of members elected in the proportion of 1 to 10,000 of the population, to which constitutional and other questions of state are referred. On Oct. 5, 1908, Bulgaria declared her independence and the ruler assumed the title of czar.

Bullen (bůl'en), Frank Thomas. Born at London, April 5, 1857. An English author and lecturer. He led a roving life from 1866 to 1883, chiefly at sea, rising from seaman to the rank of chief mate, and was a junior clerk in the Meteorological Office 1883-99. He has written "The Cruise of the 'Cachalot'" (1898), "Idylls of the Sea" (1899), "The Log of a Sea-waif" (1899), "Men of the Merchant Service" (1900), "With Christ at Sea" (1900), "Deep-sea Plunderings" (1902), "Creatures of the Sea" (1904), "Back to Sunny Seas" (1905), "Son of the Sea" (1907), "Our Heritage—the Sea" (1907), "Call of the Deep" (1908), "Young Nemesis" (1909), etc.

Buller (bůl'ėr), Sir Redvers Henry. Born in Devonshire in 1839: died June 2, 1908. A British general. He served in China 1860, the Red River Expedition 1870, the Ashanti war 1873-74, the Kaffir war 1878, the Zulu war 1879, the Boer war 1881, the Egyptian war 1882, and the Sudan campaigns 1884-85. He was under-secretary for Ireland 1886-87, and quartermaster-general 1887-90, and was appointed adjutant-general Oct., 1890. In 1891 he was made lieutenant-general, and in 1899 was commander-in-chief of the British forces in South Africa. Retired 1901.

Bullion State, The. A nickname of the State of Missouri.

Bülow (bü'lō), Prince Bernhard Henry Martin Charles von. Born at Klein-Flottbeck, Holstein, Germany, May 9, 1849. A German statesman, chancellor of the empire 1900–09. He entered the diplomatic service in 1873; was a secretary of the Berlin Congress in 1878; was second and afterward first secretary of the embassy at Paris 1879–83; was first secretary of the embassy at St. Petersburg 1883–88; was minister at Bukharest 1888–93; was ambassador at Rome 1893–97; was minister of state and secretary of state for foreign affairs 1897–1900; and was imperial chancellor and Prussian president of the council of ministers from October, 1900. In June, 1905, he was created a prince after he had secured the retirement of M. Delcassé, foreign minister of France, whose policy, especially with regard to Morocco, had become offensive to Germany. His diplomacy resulted in the conference at Algeciras (which see).

Bulthaupt (bölt'houpt), Heinrich. Born at Bremen, Oct. 26, 1849: died there, Aug 20, 1905. A German poet and dramatist, librarian of the city of Bremen from 1879. Among his dramatic works are "Saul" (1870), "Die Arbeiter" (1876), "Die Malteser" (1883), "Gerold Wendel" (1884), "Viktoria" (1894), etc. He has also written "Dramaturgie des Schauspiels" (1882–1901), an exposition of the art of Shakspere and of the great German dramatists.

Buluan (bö-lö'än), Lake. A marshy lake in the southeastern part of Cottabato district, Mindanao, Philippine Islands. It is connected by narrow streams with Lake Liguasan, and thus feeds the Rio Grande de Mindanao, which flows through the latter lake. Area, about 114 square miles.

Bumpus (bum'pus), Hermon Carey. Born at Buckfield, Maine, May 5, 1862. An American biologist, director of the American Museum of Natural History in New York city 1902–11. He was professor (of biology) at Olivet College (Michigan) 1886–89, and at Brown University (successively assistant professor and associate professor of zoölogy and professor of comparative anatomy) 1890–1901; was assistant director of the marine biological laboratory at Woods Hole 1893–95, and director of the biological laboratory of the United States Fish Commission at Woods Hole 1898–1901; was curator of invertebrate zoölogy in the American Museum of Natural History 1901–02; and was appointed business manager of the University of Wisconsin in 1911.

Bunce (buns), Francis Marvin. Born at Hartford, Conn., Dec. 25, 1836: died there, Oct. 19, 1901. An American naval officer, appointed rear-admiral in 1898. In the same year he retired from active service. He was graduated from the United States Naval Academy in 1857; served in the Union navy in the Civil War; and commanded the North Atlantic Squadron 1895–97.

Burauen (bö-rä'ö-än). A municipality in the north-central part of Leyte island and province, Philippine Islands. Civilized population, 18,197.

Burbank (bėr'bangk), Luther. Born at Lancaster, Mass., March 7, 1849. An American naturalist, noted for his experiments in developing new varieties of fruits and flowers. He removed to Santa Rosa, California, in 1875, and established experimental farms. He has produced important varieties of the potato, plum, prune, peach, apple, rose, lily, amaryllis, canna, daisy (Shasta), cactus (thornless), etc., and some new species of fruits (the plumcot, Primus berry, and others), and has added to the knowledge of the laws of heredity and environment. He is in receipt of a grant from the Carnegie Institution for the furtherance of his work.

Burckhardt (börk'härt), Jakob. Born at Basel, Switzerland, May 25, 1818: died there, Aug. 8, 1897. A Swiss historian, especially of art, professor in the University of Basel. His chief books are the "Cicerone," a general guide to the art of Italy (1855), which has several times been reëdited by Wilhelm Bode (8th edition 1901), "Die Kultur der Renaissance in Italien" (1859: 5th German edition 1896), and "Geschichte der Renaissance in Italien" (1867).

Burgess (bėr'jes), John William. Born in Giles County, Tenn., Aug. 26, 1844. An American historian and educator. He was graduated at Amherst College in 1867; was professor of English and political economy in Knox College 1869–71; was professor of history and political science at Amherst College 1873–76; and has been professor of political science and constitutional law in Columbia University since 1876, and dean of the faculty of political science since 1890. He was Roosevelt professor of American history and institutions at the University of Berlin 1906–07. His works include "Political Science and Comparative Constitutional Law" (1890), "Middle Period, 1817–1853" (1897), "The Civil War and the Constitution, 1859–1865" (1901), "Reconstruction and the Constitution, 1866–1876" (1902), etc.

Burias (bö'ri-äs). An island of the Philippines, lying between Luzón and Masbate, and belonging to Masbate province. It has three ports good in all weather—Port Busin on the northwest and Port Busaiñga and Boca Engaño on the east coast. Area, 197 square miles. Population, 1,627.

Burlingame (bėr'ling-gām), Edward Livermore. Born at Boston, Mass., May 30, 1848. An American editor, son of Anson Burlingame. He was educated at Harvard and at the University of Heidelberg; became connected with the publishing house of Charles Scribner's Sons in 1879; and has edited "Scribner's Magazine" since 1886.

Burlington Fine Arts Club. A London club established in 1866 by artists and art collectors. It has about 500 members, and its house is at 17 Savile Row.

Burnand (bėr-nand'), Sir Francis Cowley. Born Nov. 29, 1836. An English editor, author, and playwright. He has produced many plays, chiefly burlesques and comedies (among which are "Black-eyed Susan," "Ixion," and "The Colonel"), and two light operas ("Contrabandista" and "The Chieftain") in collaboration with Arthur Sullivan, with whom he also wrote "Cox and Box," a musical version of Morton's farce "Box and Cox." From about 1862 he was on the editorial staff of "Punch" and one of its principal contributors, and was its editor-in-chief 1880–1906. He is the author of "Mokeanna," several series of "Happy Thoughts," "New Light on Darkest Africa," an "Eccentric Guide to the Isle of Thanet," and of a volume of reminiscences (1904).

Burnell (bėr-nel'), Arthur Coke. Born at St. Briavels, Gloucestershire, 1840: died at West Stratton, Hampshire, Oct. 12, 1882. An eminent English Sanskrit scholar and authority on the languages and literature of India. He was educated at King's College, London; entered the Indian Civil Service in 1857; and lived in India (except for terms of leave) 1860–80. His most important work, "Classified Index to the Sanskrit MSS. in the Palace at Tanjore," was printed for the Madras government in 1880. He also published a "Handbook of South Indian Palæography" (1874), "The Aindra School of Sanskrit Grammarians" (1875), translations from the Sanskrit, etc. "Hobson Jobson, being a Glossary of Anglo-Indian colloquial words and phrases," a work which he compiled with Colonel Yule, was published in 1886.

Burnett*, Mrs. (Frances Hodgson). Among her later works are "His Grace of Ormonde" (1897), "In Connection with the De Willoughby Claim" (1899), "The Making of a Marchioness" (1901), "The Methods of Lady Walderhurst" (1902), "The Shuttle" (1907), "The Cozy Lion" (1907), "Spring Cleaning" (1908), etc.

Burnham (bėrn'am), Daniel Hudson. Born at Henderson, N. Y., Sept. 4, 1846. An American architect. He has received degrees from Harvard, Yale, and Northwestern universities, and from the University of Illinois. In 1890 he was made chief architect and director of works at the Chicago Exposition. He is an expert in municipal planning, and served on the commission for the improvement of Washington, and on a similar commission for Cleveland, Ohio. He also made plans for the improving of the cities of Manila, Baguió, San Francisco, and Chicago. He is chairman of the United States Government Commission of Fine Arts. Among the buildings designed by him are the Rookery, the Masonic Temple, and Field's department store in Chicago; the Mills Building in San Francisco; the (so-called) Flat-iron Building in New York; the Land Title Building in Philadelphia; and the new Wanamaker stores in New York and Philadelphia.

Burnham (bėrn'am), Sherburne Wesley. Born at Thetford, Vt., Dec. 12, 1838. An American astronomer, professor of practical astronomy in the University of Chicago: especially noted as a discoverer and observer of double stars. He was observer of the Dearborn Observatory 1877–81, of the Washburn Observatory 1881–82, of the Dearborn Observatory 1882–84; and astronomer of the Lick Observatory 1888–92, and of the Yerkes Observatory 1897–1911. He has published a "General Catalogue of 1,290 Double Stars, discovered from 1871 to 1899" (1900). In 1904 he was awarded the Lalande prize in astronomy by the Academy of Sciences of Paris.

Burns (bėrnz), Anthony. Born in Virginia about 1830: died at Saint Catherines, Canada, July 27, 1862. A fugitive slave, the last to be seized in Massachusetts under the fugitive slave law of 1850. He escaped from slavery in 1853, and his arrest in Boston, May 24, 1854, caused great indignation. An attempt was made to rescue him, but it failed, and he was adjudged to his owner and sent back. His freedom was bought in the following year, and he later studied at Oberlin College and became a Baptist minister at Saint Catherines.

Burns (bėrnz), John. Born at London, Oct., 1858. A British labor leader and cabinet officer. He was an unsuccessful Socialist candidate for the western division of Nottingham in 1885; has represented Battersea for the Liberal and the Labor party in the House of Commons since 1892; and was appointed president of the Local Government Board, with a seat in the cabinet, in December, 1905.

Burr (bėr), William Hubert. Born at Watertown, Conn., July 14, 1851. An American engineer, professor of civil engineering at Columbia University from 1893. He has been consulting engineer to several of the departments of the city of New York, and in 1899 was appointed a member of the Isthmian Canal Commission to report upon a route. In 1904 he was appointed a member of the Isthmian Canal Commission to construct the Panama Canal, and in 1905 was made a member of the international board of consulting engineers to determine the plan of the canal. He has published a number of works on engineering.

Burrian (bů'ri-än), Karl. Born at Prague, Jan. 12, 1870. A German tenor singer. He first appeared at Reval in 1892, later singing in all the prominent German cities, and finally becoming a permanent member of the Dresden Court Opera. Since 1906 he has been a member of the Metropolitan Opera Company, New York, singing the leading tenor rôles in the Wagner operas. He created the rôle of Herod in Strauss's "Salome."

Burrillville (bur'il-vil). A town in Providence County, Rhode Island, about 22 miles northwest of Providence. It has manufactures of cotton and woolen goods. In the vicinity is Wallum Lake (or Pond), a summer resort, lying partly in Massachusetts. Population, 7,878, (1910).

Bürstenbinder (bürs'ten-bin-dėr), Elisabeth: pseudonym E. Werner. Born at Berlin, Nov. 25, 1838. A German novelist. Her works include "Gartenlaubenblüten" (1872), "Am Altar" (1873), "Glück Auf!" (1874), "Gesprengte Fesseln" (1875), "Vineta" (1877), "Gebannt und erlöst" (1884), "Die Blume des Glücks" (1885), "Heimatklang" and "Sankt Michael" (1887), "Flammenzeichen" (1890), "Gewagt und gewonnen" (1891), "Freie Bahn" (1893), "Fata Morgana" (1896), "Hexengold" (1900), etc.

Burton (bėr'tọn), Frederick Russell. Born at Jonesville, Mich., Feb. 23, 1861: died at Lake Hopatcong, N. J., Sept. 30, 1909. An American author and composer. He was graduated from Harvard University in 1882 with musical and other honors. He was especially interested in the music of the North American Indians, among whom he spent some time. The music of his cantata "Hiawatha" (1898) is based on Indian themes, and he collected and published others as "Songs of the Ojibway Indians" (1903) and "An Indian Campfire" (1907). Among his literary works are a novel, "Redcloud of the Lakes" (1909), and "American Primitive Music" (1909).

Burton (bėr'tọn), Marion LeRoy. Born at Brooklyn, Iowa, Aug. 30, 1874. An American theologian and educator, president of Smith College from 1910. He was ordained to the Congregational ministry in 1905; was assistant professor of systematic theology in Yale University 1907–08; and was pastor of the Church of the Pilgrims, Brooklyn, N. Y., 1908–1909. He is the author of "The Problem of Evil" (1909).

Burton (bėr'tọn), Richard. Born at Hartford, Conn., March 14, 1859. An American poet and educator. He was professor of English literature in the University of Minnesota 1888–1902, lecturer in English literature at the University of Chicago 1902–06, and professor of English literature at the University of Minnesota 1906–. His works include "Dumb in June" (1895), "Memorial Day" (1897), "Literary Likings" (1898), "Lyrics of Brotherhood" (1899), "John Greenleaf Whittier" (1901), "Forces in Fiction" (1902), "Message and Melody" (1903), "Literary Leaders of America" (1904), "Rahab" (1906), "From the Book of Life" (1909), "Masters of the English Novel" (1909), "Midsummer Memory" (1910), etc.

Busck (bösk), August. Born at Randers, Denmark, Feb. 18, 1870. A Danish-American entomologist, assistant in the division of entomology of the United States Department of Agriculture from 1896. He was engaged in the investigation of the mosquitos in the West Indies in 1905, and in the Panama Canal Zone in 1907.

Busoni (bö-zō'nē), Ferruccio Benvenuto. Born at Empoli, near Florence, April 1, 1866. An Italian pianist and composer. He appeared first in Vienna at the age of nine, and at seventeen was elected a member of the Philharmonic Academy of Bologna. He toured Europe as a pianist, taught at Helsingfors Conservatory in 1888, won the Rubinstein prize at Moscow in 1890, and became professor in the Moscow Conservatory. He went to Boston, Mass., in 1891, gave successful concerts in Berlin in 1894, and succeeded Sauer in the Vienna Conservatory in 1908. His compositions include string quartets, violin, piano, and orchestral pieces, songs, and ballet scenes.

Busson (bů-soṅ'), Charles. Born at Montoire, Loir-et-Cher, July 15, 1822: died April 4, 1908. A French painter. His works are chiefly landscapes.

Busuanga (bö-sö-ang'gä). The largest island of the Calamianes group, between Mindoro and Paragua, in the Philippine Islands. It belongs to Paragua province. There is an anchorage at Port Usón, on the southern coast. Area, 390 square miles. Population, 4,371.

Butcher (bůch'ėr), Samuel Henry. Born at Dublin, April 16, 1850: died at London, Dec. 29, 1910. A British scholar, professor of Greek at Edinburgh 1882–1903, president of the British Academy of Letters 1909–10, and member of Parliament for Cambridge University 1906-10.

Butler (but'lėr). A borough, the capital of Butler County, Pennsylvania. It has manufactures of silk, woolen, glass, engines, etc. Population, 20,728, (1910).

Butler (but'lėr), Howard Crosby. Born at Croton Falls, N. Y., March 7, 1872. An American archæologist. He organized and conducted archæological expeditions to Syria 1899–1900, 1904–1905, and 1909, and in 1910 took charge of excavations at Sardis. His published works include "Scotland's Ruined Abbeys" (1900), "The Story of Athens" (1902), etc.

Butler (but'lėr), Nicholas Murray. Born at Elizabeth, N. J., April 2, 1862. An American educator, president of Columbia University from 1902. He was graduated from Columbia University in 1882; organized and was president of the Teachers College (New York) 1886–91; and became professor of philosophy and education, and first dean of the faculty of philosophy, in Columbia, in 1890. He founded the "Educational Review" (1891), and has written and edited other educational publications.

Butler (but'lėr), Samuel. Born in Nottinghamshire, Dec. 4, 1835: died June 18, 1902. An English author, grandson of Samuel Butler, bishop of Lichfield. He went to New Zealand in 1859 and engaged in sheep-raising; returned to England about 1864; studied painting, and exhibited at the Academy 1868–76; devoted himself to literature, publishing, besides several romances, works dealing with questions in science, philosophy, art, Shaksperian criticism, and classical scholarship; and also composed musical pieces, collaborating in two oratorios, "Narcissus" (1888) and "Ulysses" (1902). Among his writings are "Erewhon" (1872), "Life and Habit" (1877), "Unconscious Memory" (1880), "Alps and Sanctuaries of Piedmont" (1881), "Ex Voto" (1888), and "The Life and Letters of Dr. Samuel Butler" (1896).

Bütschli (bütsh'li), Otto. Born at Frankfort-on-the-Main, Germany, May 3, 1848. A German naturalist, professor of zoölogy and paleontology in the University of Heidelberg from 1878. His investigations have related to the developmental history of invertebrates, and in later years especially to cell-division and the physicochemical aspects of the vital processes. Among his works are "Protozoen" (1880–89), "Untersuchungen über Strukturen" (1898), "Untersuchungen über die Mikrostruktur künstlicher und natürlicher Kieselsäuregallerten" (1900), "Mechanismus und Vitalismus" (1901).

Butter (but'ėr), Nathaniel. Died Feb. 22, 1664 (1663?). An English printer and journalist. He issued, in London, pamphlets describing murders and plays 1605–39, weekly redactions of foreign news-letters 1622–39, and half-yearly volumes of foreign news 1630–40. His news-sheets were the forerunners of the modern newspaper. Ben Jonson ridiculed him under the name of "Cymbal" in his "Staple of News" (1625), and Fletcher and Shirley also referred to him in their works.

Butterfield (but'ėr-fēld), Daniel. Born at Utica, N. Y., Oct. 31, 1831: died at Coldspring, N. Y., July 17, 1901. An American soldier, brevet major-general in the United States army. He entered the Union army in 1861 as colonel of the Twelfth New York regiment of militia; was promoted brigadier-general of volunteers in the same year and commanded a brigade during the Peninsular campaign of the Army of the Potomac; commanded a division in the second battle of Bull Run; was brevetted major-general of volunteers in 1862; commanded the Fifth Army Corps at the Battle of Fredericksburg; was chief of staff to Hooker at Chancellorsville and to Meade at Gettysburg; and was again chief of staff to Hooker during the battle of Chattanooga. During Sherman's Georgia campaign he commanded a division of the Twentieth Corps. He was United States subtreasurer in New York city 1869–70.

Butterworth (but'ėr-wėrth), Hezekiah. Born at Warren, R. I., Dec. 22, 1839: died there, Sept. 5, 1905. An American editor and writer of children's books. He was assistant editor of the "Youth's Companion." Among his works are a series of "Zigzag Journeys," "Poems for Christmas, Easter, and New Year," "Songs of History," "Story of the Hymns," "South America," "In the Boyhood of Lincoln," and "The Patriot Schoolmaster."

Butulan (bö-tö'län) Mountains. A range of mountains in the eastern part of Davao district, Mindanao, in the Philippine Islands. It extends from the most southern point of the island north to Casilaran Bay, an arm of the Gulf of Davao. Height of the loftiest peak, 4,520 feet.

Buxtehude (böks'te-hö-de), Dietrich. Born at Helsingör, Denmark, in 1637: died at Lübeck, Germany, May 9, 1707. A famous organist and composer, organist at Lübeck from 1668. He exerted a strong influence on Bach, who once journeyed fifty miles on foot to hear him play at his famous "Abendmusiken" in Lübeck. His most important compositions were organ-pieces.

Buys-Ballot (bois-bä-lō'), Christophorus Henricus Didericus. Born at Kloetinge, province of Zealand, Netherlands, Oct. 10, 1817: died at Utrecht, Feb. 3, 1890. A Dutch meteorologist, director of the meteorological institute at Utrecht 1854–87. He was the first to establish a system of storm-signals in Europe. He is best known as the propounder of the meteorological law or rule named for him, which states a relation between the difference of the barometrical readings at any two stations and the direction of the winds relative to a line joining the two stations.

Byelostok. Same as Bielostok.

Byerly (bī'ėr-li), William Elwood. Born at Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 13, 1849. An American mathematician, professor of mathematics in Harvard University from 1881. He was assistant professor of mathematics in Cornell University 1873–76, and in Harvard 1876–81.

Cabatuan (kä-bä-tö'än). A municipality in the central part of Iloilo province, Panay, Philippine Islands. Civilized population, 16,497.

Cabicungán (kä-bē-kön-gän'). A volcano in Cagayán province, in the northern part of Luzón, Philippine Islands. Height, 4,326 feet.

Cable*, George Washington. He has also written "Bylow Hill" (1902), "Kincaid's Battery" (1908), etc.

Cabrillo (kä-brēl'yō), João or Juan Rodriguez. Born toward the end of the 15th century: died Jan. 3, 1543. A Portuguese navigator in the service of Spain. He explored the coast of California in 1542 from about lat. 33°; discovered the Santa Barbara Islands; and sailed as far north as about 38°. On his death the command was taken by his chief pilot Ferrelo, who continued the exploration of the coast to about lat. 42°. See Century Atlas, Map 4.

Cabusilan (kä-bö-sē'län) Mountains. See ★Zambales Mountains.

Cadbury (kad'bu-ri), George. Born at Edgbaston, Birmingham, in 1839. An English manufacturer and philanthropist, founder of the Bournville model village. His wife (Elizabeth Taylor) is an advocate of the cause of women workers, and has served on national education committees.

Cadillac (kad-i-lak'). The county-seat of Wexford County, Michigan. It is surrounded by an important timber region, and has extensive lumber-mills, besides foundries, machine-shops, chemical works, etc. Population, 8,375, (1910).

Cadiz. A municipality in the northern part of Negros Occidental province, Negros Island, in the Philippines. Civilized population, 16,429.

Cady (kā'di), Josiah Cleveland. Born at Providence, R. I., in 1837. An American architect. He has designed buildings for Yale and Wesleyan universities and Trinity and Williams colleges. He also built the New York Skin and Cancer Hospital, the Bellevue Medical College, the Metropolitan Opera House, the American Museum of Natural History (all in New York). He is president of the New York Skin and Cancer Hospital and a governor of the Presbyterian Hospital. He is also a trustee of Berea College and vice-president of the New York City Mission.

Cagayán (kä-gä-yän'). 1. A river in Misamis province, Mindanao, Philippine Islands, flowing north into Macajalar Bay.—2. A lake in the northeastern part of Cagayán province, Luzón. Area, about 70 square miles.—3. See ★Rio Grande de Cagayán.—4. See ★Cagayanes.—5. The most northeasterly province of Luzón, Philippine Islands. It is bounded by the Pacific Ocean on the north and east; Isabela and Lepanto-Bontoc on the south; and Abra and Ilocos Norte (both separated from it by the Cordillera Norte) on the west. Capital, Tuguegarao. The province is bordered on the eastern coast by the Sierra Madre Mountains. The mountains are densely wooded. The central plain of the Rio Grande de Cagayán, which intersects the province from north to south, is very fertile and produces large quantities of tobacco. The native races are chiefly Cagayanes and Ilocanos. Area, 5,052 square miles. Population, 156,239.—6. A town, the capital of Misamis province in Mindanao, Philippine Islands, situated near the mouth of the Rio Grande de Cagayán, approximately in lat. 8° 11′ N., long. 124° 41′ E. Civilized population of municipality, 7,108.

Cagayán de Joló (kä-gä-yän' dā hō-lō') and adjacent islands. A group of islands lying in the Sulu (Joló) Sea, in lat. 7° 2′ N., long. 18° 32′ E., ceded by Spain to the United States by a treaty signed November 7, 1900. The islands are a part of the Joló district of Moro province. Area, 29.1 square miles. Population of largest island, 2,000. Formerly Cagayán de Sulu.

Cagayanes (kä-gä-yä'näs) and adjacent islands of the Sulu (Joló) Sea. A group of small islands lying between Negros and Paragua, and belonging to Paragua province, Philippine Islands. It consists of 8 Cagayanes, 4 other named islands, and 10 unnamed islets and rocks. The largest of the group is Cagayán. Total area, 8.2 square miles. Population of Cagayán, 2,448.

Cagua (kä'gö-ä), or Caua (kä'ö-ä). A volcanic peak in Cagayán province, northern Luzón, Philippines, about lat. 18° 13′ N., long. 122° 4′ E. Height, 3,920 feet.

Cahokia Mound (kä-hō'ki-ą mound). The largest of the Indian mounds, situated in Illinois about 6 miles east of St. Louis. The base is 998 feet north and south, and 721 feet east and west. The height is 99 feet.

Caillaux (kä-yō'), Joseph. Born at Le Mans, March 30, 1863. A French statesman. He was formerly an inspector of finance, and professor at the École des Sciences Politiques. He served as minister of finance in the cabinet of Waldeck-Rousseau 1899–1902, and held office under Clemenceau in 1906 and under Monis in 1911. On the fall of the ministry of Monis in June, he was placed as premier at the head of a new cabinet.

Caimanera (kī-mä-nā'rä). A town in the province of Oriente, Cuba, situated on Guantánamo Bay. It is connected by rail with Guantánamo.

Caine*, Thomas Henry Hall. His later works include "The Prodigal Son" (1904), "Drink" (1907), "My Story" (1909), "The White Prophet" (1909), etc. "The Bondman" was dramatized in 1907, "Pete" (with Louis N. Parker) in 1908, "The Bishop's Son" in 1910, "The Eternal Question" in 1910, etc.

Caissa (ką-is'ą). [NL., artificially formed from chess, appar. on the model of chasc^{2} = F. caisse, with -issa conforming to the L. and Gr. fem. suffix -issa (E. -ess).] The goddess of chess: a modern invention of chess-players. The name is said to have originated with Sir William Jones, the Orientalist (1746–94).

Calabria*. It was visited by a most destructive earthquake Dec. 28, 1908, which also destroyed Messina.

Calasiao (kä-lä-sē-ä'ō). A municipality of Pangasinán province, in the western part of Luzón, Philippine Islands. Civilized population, 16,539.

Calbayog (käl-bä'yōg). A municipality in Samar province, on the west coast of Samar, Philippine Islands. Civilized population, 15,895.

Caldecott (kal'di-kot), Randolph. Born at Chester, England, March 22, 1846: died at St. Augustine, Fla., Feb. 12, 1886. An English painter and illustrator. He was educated at King Henry VIII.'s School at Chester and in 1872 went to London. In 1882 he became a member of the Royal Institute of Painters in Water Colours, exhibiting there, at the Royal Academy, and at the Grosvenor Gallery. His most characteristic and interesting work was done for children's books.

Calderwood (kâl'dėr-wůd), Henry. Born at Peebles, Scotland, May 10, 1830: died at Edinburgh, Nov. 19, 1897. A Scotch philosophical writer, professor of moral philosophy in the University of Edinburgh 1868–97.

Calhoun (kal-hön'), William James. Born at Pittsburg, Oct. 5, 1848. An American diplomatist. He was admitted to the bar in 1875, and subsequently practised law. He was a member of the United States Interstate Commerce Commission 1898–1900, special commissioner to Venezuela in 1905, and minister to China from December, 1909.

California, University of. See ★University of California.

Calkins (kâ'kinz), Gary Nathan. Born at Valparaiso, Ind., Jan. 18, 1869. An American zoölogist, professor in Columbia University from 1904. He was biologist of the New York State Cancer Laboratory in the University of Buffalo 1902–08. He has published "The Protozoa" (1901), "Protozoölogy" (1908), etc.

Calvo (käl′ vō), Carlos. Born at Buenos Aires, 1824: died at Paris, May 2, 1906. An Argentine jurist and diplomat. He was in the consular service 1852–58; became deputy of the lower house 1859; from 1860 to 1864 represented Paraguay as chargé d'affaires at Paris, being also accredited to Great Britain; was accredited, 1884, as envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to Berlin, St. Petersburg, and Vienna; and in 1899 was transferred to Paris, being accredited to both France and the Holy See. He formulated the doctrine that "the recovery of debts and the pursuit of private claims do not justify de plano the armed intervention of governments," with special reference to such action by European states against South American governments. He published numerous treatises on international law, etc., his most important work being "Le droit international et pratique" (1868, 5th ed. 1896).

Camagüey (kä-mä′gwā). 1. A province of Cuba (formerly Puerto Principe), situated between the provinces of Santa Clara and Oriente. Area, 10,064 square miles. Population, 118,269.—2. The capital (formerly Puerto Principe) of the province of Camagüey, Cuba. Population, 29,616.

Cambridge (kām′brij). The capital of Dorchester County, Maryland, on the south bank of the Choptank River, 36 miles southeast of Annapolis. It has extensive canning industries, and exports oysters and fish. Population, 6,407, (1910).

Cambridge (kām′brij). The county-seat of Guernsey County, Ohio, 55 miles southwest of Canton. In the vicinity there are deposits of coal, natural gas, iron, etc. Population, 11,327, (1910).

Cambridgeshire Handicap, The. An English race held annually at Newmarket at the end of October. The first race was run in 1843. Of all handicaps throughout the year the Cambridgeshire is regarded as the most important, and has usually attracted large fields and brought out horses of a good class.

Camiguín (kä-mi-gōēn′) 1. A very fertile mountainous island in Mindanao Sea, north of Mindanao, Philippine Islands. It belongs to Misamis province, and contains Camiguín volcano. Highest elevation, 5,383 feet. Area, 94 square miles. Population, 30,754.

2. A volcano on Camiguín Island, approximately in lat. 9° 12′ N., long. 124° 42′ E. Its last great eruption took place in 1871, activity continuing into 1875. New solfataras appeared in 1897 and 1902. Height, 2,392 feet.

Camiguín (kä-mi-gōēn′). A volcanic island of the Babuyán group, north of Luzón, Philippine Islands. It belongs to Cagayán province, and contains an extinct volcano, Camiguín de Babuyanes. Highest elevation, 2,790 feet. Area, 61 square miles. Population, 98.

Camiling (kä-mē-ling′). 1. A municipality of Tarlac province, in the southwestern part of Luzón, Philippine Islands. Civilized population, 25,243.—2. A town of Tarlac province. Population, 7,149.

Camotes (kä-mō′tās) Islands. A group of islands lying between Cebú and Leyte, in the Philippines, and belonging to Cebú province. The largest is Pasiján. Area, 90.1 square miles. Population, 21,123.

Camp (kamp), Walter. Born at New Britain, Conn., April 7, 1859. An American business man and authority on athletics, treasurer of Yale Field and a member of Yale University Council. He is the author of "Book of College Sports," "American Football," "Football Facts and Figures," "Drives and Puts" (with Lilian Brooks), "Football" (with Lorin F. Deland), "Yale, her Campus, Classroom, and Athletics" (with L. S. Welch), "Book of Football," etc.

Campanile of St. Mark's*. The foundations have been strengthened, and the rebuilding of the tower was begun in 1905.

Campanini (käm-pä-nē′nē), Cleofonte. Born at Parma in 1860. An Italian musical director, brother of the tenor Italo Campanini, and brother-in-law of Luisa Tetrazzini. He first appeared as a conductor at Parma, in 1883, directing "Carmen." The same season he appeared in New York as second conductor at the Metropolitan Opera House, and in 1888 at the Academy of Music. He was musical director at the Manhattan Opera House, New York, 1906–10, where he conducted the first American performances of "Pelléas et Mélisande" and "Louise." He has been leading conductor at Covent Garden, London, for several seasons.

Campbell (kam′bel), Douglas. Born at Cooperstown, N. Y., July 13, 1840: died at Schenectady, N. Y., March 7, 1893. An American lawyer and historical writer. He was educated at Union College; served as captain of the 121st New York Volunteers in the Civil War; and practised law in New York until 1890. He wrote "The Puritan in Holland, England, and America, an Introduction to American History" (1892).

Campbell (kam′bel), Lewis. Born at Edinburgh, Sept. 3, 1830: died Oct. 25, 1908. A Scotch classical scholar, professor of Greek at St. Andrews from 1863. He has published editions of Greek texts (including Sophocles 1871–81), a life of James Clerk Maxwell (1882: with W. Garnett), translations of Sophocles and Æschylus, a life of Benjamin Jowett (1897: with E. Abbott), "Tragic Drama in Æschylus, Sophocles, and Shakespeare" (1904), "Paralipomena Sophoclea" (1907), etc.

Campbell (kam′bel), Mrs. Patrick (Beatrice Stella Tanner). Born in London. A contemporary English actress. She made her début with a provincial company as Rosalind in "As You Like It," and two years later was engaged by Pinero to play the title rôle in "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray," one of her strongest parts. She has done much to make known to the English public the work of Ibsen, Maeterlinck, and Sudermann. Later she became manager of her own theater. Among her best-known rôles are Ophelia, Lady Macbeth, Juliet, Lady Teazle, Magda, and Mrs. Ebbsmith.

Campbell (kam′bel), William. Born at Newcastle-on-Tyne, England, June 24, 1876. An Anglo-American scientist, associate professor of metallurgy in Columbia University from 1910. He was adjunct professor 1907–10. His studies relate chiefly to the microstructure and physical properties of metals and alloys.

Campbell (kam′bel), William Wallace. Born in Hancock County, Ohio, April 11, 1862. An American astronomer, director of the Lick Observatory from 1901. He has been astronomer in this observatory since 1891. He conducted eclipse expeditions to India in 1898, to Georgia in 1900, and to Spain in 1905. His works include "The Elements of Practical Astronomy" (1899), and numerous technical papers. He received the Lalande prize of the Paris Academy in 1903, the gold medal of the Royal Astronomical Society, and the Draper gold medal of the National Academy of Sciences in 1906. Silliman lecturer at Yale 1909–10.

Campbell-Bannerman (kam′bel-ban′ėr-man), Sir Henry. Born Sept. 7, 1836: died April 22, 1908. A British statesman. He was the son of Sir James Campbell, but assumed the additional surname of Bannerman (under the will of his maternal uncle) in 1872. He was educated at Glasgow University and Trinity College, Cambridge, and was Liberal member of Parliament for Stirling Burghs from 1868. He was financial secretary to the war office 1871–74, 1880–82; secretary to the admiralty 1882–84; chief secretary for Ireland 1884–85; secretary of state for war 1886, 1892–95; leader of the Liberal party in the House of Commons from 1899; and premier and first lord of the treasury December, 1905,–April, 1908. In 1895 he was knighted (G. C. B.). He was popularly referred to as "C.-B."

Campidoglio, Piazza del. See Piazza del Campidoglio.*

Canal Dover (ka-nal′ dō′vėr). A city in Tuscarawas County, Ohio, 70 miles southeast of Cleveland. It has manufactories of wagons, tin, sheet-iron, etc. In the vicinity are deposits of coal and iron. Population, 6,621, (1910).

Canal Zone, Isthmian. See Isthmian Canal Zone.*

Candón (kän-dōn′). A municipality in Ilocos Sur province, on the west coast of Luzón, Philippine Islands. Civilized population, 18,828.

Canlaón (kän-lä-ōn′), or Malaspina (mä-lä-spē′nä). A volcano in the northwestern part of Negros Oriental province, Negros, Philippine Islands, approximately in lat. 10° 30′ N., long. 123° 6′ E. It is a picturesque mountain, always steaming. A notable eruption took place in 1902. Height, 8,192 feet.

Cannizzaro (kän-nē-tsä′rō), Stanislao. Born at Palermo, July 13, 1826: died at Rome, May 10, 1910. An Italian chemist. He studied medicine and other sciences at Palermo; served as assistant in the chemical laboratory at Pisa 1845–46; went to Paris in 1849, where he entered Chevreul's laboratory; and became professor of chemistry in 1851 at Alessandria in Piedmont, in 1855 at Genoa, in 1861 at Palermo, and in 1871 at Rome. He discovered important compounds and reactions in organic chemistry, and brought out decisive facts in connection with the atomic theory. For this latter service to science he was awarded in 1891 the Copley medal of the Royal Society of London.

Cannon (kan′on), Joseph Gurney. Born at Guilford, N. C., May 7, 1836. An American statesman. He was admitted to the (Illinois) bar in 1858, and was Republican member of Congress from Illinois 1873–91 and 1893–. He was chairman of the Committee on Appropriations in the 55th, 56th, and 57th Congresses (1897–1903), and speaker of the 58th, 59th, 60th, and 61st Congresses (1903–11).

Cañon City (kan′yon sit′i). The county-seat of Fremont County, Colorado, 37 miles northwest of Pueblo, on the Arkansas River just below the Grand Cañon, and at an altitude of 5,350 feet. It is a health resort, noted for its fine climate and mineral springs, and is the seat of the State penitentiary. Copper, silver, iron, coal, and limestone are found in the vicinity. Population, 5,162, (1910).

Canton (kan′ton). A city in Fulton County, Illinois, 86 miles northeast of Quincy. It has coal-mining interests, important manufactories of agricultural implements, also machine-shops, tile- and marble-works, cigar-factories, etc. Population, 10,453, (1910).

Cape Colony*. In 1909 a bill was passed providing for the union of the Transvaal, Cape Colony, Orange Free State, and Natal into a single nation with a centralized government, known as the Union of South Africa (which see). It is to be known as the Cape of Good Hope. It is represented in the Union Parliament by 8 members in the Senate and 51 in the House of Assembly.

Cape Girardeau (kāp jē-rär-dō′). A city in Cape Girardeau County, Missouri, on the Mississippi River 97 miles southeast of St. Louis. It has a considerable trade in lumber, flour, lime, etc. St. Vincent's College and the Southeast Missouri State Normal School are at this place. Population, 8,475, (1910).

Cape to Cairo Railway. An African railway system which when completed will connect Cape Town with Cairo, a distance of about 6,000 miles. The project was first conceived by Cecil Rhodes about 1893, when the Cape Colonial Railway from Cape Town to Kimberley was extended northward to Mafeking. At the time of its inception the project was thought to be impracticable, since much of the route in the equatorial region lay through hostile native territory and districts infested with wild beasts. However, a beginning was made, and the line was built from Mafeking first to Bulawayo and later to the Victoria Falls on the Zambesi. At present (1911) this southern section is completed for traffic as far as Broken Hill in Northwest Rhodesia, about 2,000 miles from Cape Town. It is to be continued to Lake Tanganyika, and thence through German East Africa and British East Africa. From Cairo southward the northern section has been carried beyond Khartum. It is expected that the system will be completed about 1918.

Cápiz (kä′pēth). 1. The northeastern province of Panay, with adjacent small islands, in the Philippines. It is bounded by the Visayan Sea on the north; Iloilo (separated by mountains) on the east and south; and Antique (separated by mountains) on the west and south. Capital, Cápiz. It is a mountainous and densely forested province, with numerous small rivers and with fertile valleys that yield large crops, notably of hemp, corn, sugar-cane, and rice. The chief river is the Panay. Among the minerals found here are gold, iron, and coal. The native race is Visayan. Area, 1,749 square miles. Population, 230,721.

2. A town, the capital of Cápiz province, situated on the northern coast near the mouth of the Panay River, in lat. 11° 36′ N., long. 122° 42′ E. Population, 7,186; municipality, civilized population, 18,525.

Caraballos Occidentales (kä-rä-bäl′yōs ōk-thē-den-tä′lās). A mountain-system of Luzón, Philippine Islands, extending for about 200 miles from north to south, and separating the valley of the Rio Grande de Cagayán from the China Sea. The northern part of the range, between Cagayán and Ilocos Norte provinces, is called the Cordillera Norte; the central part, separating Cagayán and Lepanto-Bontoc, the Cordillera Central; the southern part, intersecting Lepanto-Bontoc and separating Benguet from Nueva Vizcaya, the Cordillera Sur. The Cordillera Norte gradually increases in height from north to south to its culminating peak, Pagsan, 7,261 feet high. In the Cordillera Central are peaks 6,000 to 6,500 feet in height, and in the Cordillera Sur is Mount Data, 7,364 feet high. Spurs trending in different directions separate branches of the Cagayán River, or form the boundary between provinces. These spurs contain some of the higher peaks of the system.

Caraballos Sur (kä-rä-bäl′yōs sör). A range of mountains in Luzón, Philippine Islands, extending east and west between Nueva Vizcaya and Nueva Écija provinces and connecting the Sierra Madre system on the east with the Caraballos Occidentales on the west.

Caran d'Ache (kä-räṅ′ däsh′). [Russian karandash, a crayon.] The pseudonym of Emmanuel Poiré (born at Moscow, 1858: died at Paris, Feb. 26, 1909), a French illustrator and caricaturist. He was the grandson of a soldier in Napoleon's army, and was educated in Moscow. Coming to Paris, he was first an attaché in the ministry of war and afterward became an illustrator of popular journals, making clever caricatures for "Tout Paris," "La Vie Parisienne," "Chat Noir," and others.

Carbondale (kär′bon-dāl). A city in Jackson County, Illinois, 50 miles north of Cairo. Coal is mined in the vicinity, and there are flour-mills, etc. The Southern Illinois Normal University is at Carbondale. Population, 5,411, (1910).

Carcar (kär′kär). A municipality in Cebú province, on the eastern coast of Cebú island, in the Philippines. Civilized population, 31,895.

Cárdenas (kär′dā-näs), Bernardino de. Born in the seventeenth century at Chuquisaca (Sucre), Bolivia (then Peru). A Spanish friar of the order of St. Francis. He devoted his life to missionary work among the natives of the country and opposed the intrigues and ambitions of the Jesuits. He wrote three books relating to the field of his endeavors (acquiring the title of "Historian of Peru"), the chief being "Manual y relación de las cosas del reyno del Peru," published at Madrid in 1634.

Cárdenas (kär′dā-näs), Don Garcia Lopez de. A Spanish nobleman who became one of Coronado's captains on the expedition of 1540 to New Mexico and beyond. With his party he was the first to see and describe the Grand Cañon of the Colorado, which he looked into about September, 1540. He reported the gorge as extremely deep, with a distance of three or four leagues from brink to brink. Cárdenas was very active in the battles with the Pueblo Indians, once saving Coronado's life, and on another occasion causing a large number of natives to be put to death. He was sent by Coronado to Spain with a letter to the king, and was one of the most resolute and distinguished officers of the expedition. See Century Atlas, Map 4.

Carey (kā'ri), James F. Born at Haverhill, Mass., Aug. 19, 1867. An American socialist. He learned the shoemaking trade, joined the International Boot- and Shoemakers' Union, and became prominent in labor affairs. He was the first socialist elected to political office in New England, and a national organizer of the Socialist party. He was a member of the Massachusetts House of Representatives 1898–1902.

Carey (kā'ri), Rosa Nouchette. Born at London: died there, July 19,1909. An English novelist whose stories for girls attained wide popularity. Among them are "Nellie's Memories" (1868), "Wee Wifie" (1869), "Heriot's Choice" (1879), "Not Like Other Girls" (1884), "The Old, Old Story" (1894), "Herb of Grace" (1901), "The Household of Peter" (1905), "The Angel of Forgiveness" (1907), etc.

Caribou (kar'i-bö). A town in Aroostook County, Maine. It has starch- and shingle-factories, etc. Population, 5,377, (1910).

Carigara (kä-ri-gä'rä). 1. A municipality in the northern part of Leyte, on Carigara Bay. Civilized population, 16,382.—2. A town of Leyte province. Population, 5,338.

Carissimi (kä-rēs'si-mi), Giacomo. Born at Marino, near Rome, about 1604: died at Rome, Jan. 12, 1674. A noted Italian operatic composer, kapellmeister in Assisi, 1620, and in the church of Saint Apollinaris in Rome, 1628. He did much toward perfecting the recitative in the then new operatic form, and developed the sacred cantata.

Carleton (kärl'ton), Will. Born at Hudson, Mich., Oct. 21, 1845. An American poet, journalist, and lecturer. He is the author of "Farm Ballads" (1873), "Farm Festivals" (1881), "City Ballads," (1885), "Songs of Two Centuries" (1902), "In Old School Days" (1907), "Drifted In" (1908), etc.

Carlos (kär'lōs) I. Born at Lisbon, Sept. 28, 1863: assassinated there (together with his older son), Feb. 1, 1908. King of Portugal. He was the son of King Luiz I. and Maria Pia, daughter of Victor Emmanuel II., King of Italy. He succeeded to the throne October 19, 1889. On May 22, 1886, he married Marie Amélie, daughter of Louis Philippe, Duc d'Orléans, Comte de Paris. He was succeeded by his younger son, Manoel II., who was deposed by the Liberal party, October, 1910.

Carmalt (kär'mâlt), William Henry. Born at Friendsville, Pa., Aug. 3, 1836. An American surgeon, professor of the principles and practice of surgery in Yale University 1881–1907. He was professor of ophthalmology and otology there 1879–81.

Carman (kär'man), William Bliss. Born at Fredericton, New Brunswick, April 15, 1861. An American poet, essayist, and journalist. He is the author of "Low Tide on Grand Pré" (1893), "St. Kavin" (1894), "A Sea Mark" (1895), "Behind the Arras" (1895), "Ballads of Lost Haven" (1896), "By the Aurelian Wall" (1897), "The Vengeance of Noel Brassard" (1899), "Christmas Eve at St. Kavin's" (1901), "Ode on the Coronation of King Edward" (1902), "From the Book of Myths" (1902), "The Kinship of Nature" (1903), "From the Green Book of the Bards" (1903), "Songs of the Sea Children" (1903), "Sappho" (1903), "The Friendship of Art" (1904), "The Word at St. Kavin's" (1904), "Songs from a Northern Garden" (1904), "From the Book of Valentines" (1905), "Collected Poems" (1905), "The Poetry of Life" (1905), "The Making of Personality" (1908), "The Rough Rider" (1909), and, with Richard Hovey, "Songs from Vagabondia" (1894), "More Songs from Vagabondia" (1896), and "Last Songs of Vagabondia" (1900).

Carnavalet Museum. A historical museum at Paris. The Hôtel Carnavalet was built in 1550, in the farms which then occupied the eastern portion of Paris, by Pierre Lescot, architect, and Jean Goujon, sculptor. It derived its name from one of its early tenants, the Dame de Kernevenoy, called 'Carnavalet' at court. Madame de Sévigné lived here from 1677 to 1696. In 1866 it was bought by the city of Paris for a museum. Since 1872, and under the superintendence of M. Jules Cousin, collections and a library have been formed, devoted to material relating to the history of Paris.

Carnegie (kär-nā'gi). A borough in Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, 7 miles southwest of Pittsburg. It has important steel-manufactories, and is in an active coal-mining region. Population, 10,009, (1910).

Carnegie*, Andrew. He has also given large sums for the promotion of international peace, etc. His later books include "The Gospel of Wealth" (1900), "The Empire of Business" (1902), "James Watt" (1905), "Problems of To-day" (1908), etc.

Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching, The. An institution founded by Andrew Carnegie in 1905, and incorporated by act of Congress in 1906, for the purpose of advancing the profession of teaching by a system of retiring-allowances for teachers and officers in colleges, universities, and technical schools in the United States, Canada, and Newfoundland, and of pensions for their widows. The original fund of $10,000,000 was increased by Mr. Carnegie in 1908 to $15,000,000, to include also in its scope teachers and officers in State institutions. The distribution of allowances and pensions is based on the qualifications, not of individual teachers, but of institutions, and in the course of determining what institutions meet the requirements of the foundation interesting and valuable reports have been made both on the standards and methods of institutions and on the condition of higher education in general. Thus the foundation has become an educational agency of more than national influence. In 1911 the list of accepted institutions numbered 72.

Carnegie Hero Fund. A fund created by Andrew Carnegie in April, 1904, for the benefit of persons in the United States, Canada, and Newfoundland who have suffered injury in heroic efforts to save human life, or, in case of their death, for the benefit of their dependent families. Medals also are awarded for heroic acts. The endowment is placed in the hands of a commission of twenty-one persons, who adjudicate upon cases submitted to them.

Carnegie Institution of Washington, The. An institution founded at Washington, D. C., by Andrew Carnegie, in 1902. He stated that his purpose was to "found in the city of Washington an institution which, with the coöperation of institutions now or hereafter established, shall in the broadest and most liberal manner encourage investigation, research, and discovery, show the application of knowledge to the improvement of mankind, and provide such buildings, laboratories, books, and apparatus as may be needed." By an act of Congress, approved April 28, 1904, the Institution was placed under the control of a board of twenty-four trustees. The trustees meet annually, and during the intervals between such meetings the affairs of the Institution are conducted by an executive committee, chosen by and from the board of trustees, acting through the president of the Institution as chief executive officer. Dr. Daniel C. Gilman was the first president of the Institution, holding office until his resignation took effect in December, 1904, when the trustees elected Dr. Robert S. Woodward to the position. Many projects in widely different fields of inquiry have been considered or are under consideration by the executive committee, and over 100 volumes of scientific importance have been published. The endowment is twenty-five million dollars.

Carnegie Peace Fund. An endowment of $10,000,000 made by Andrew Carnegie in December, 1910, to be devoted to measures calculated to lead to universal peace by the abolition of war among nations. The fund is administered by a board of twenty-seven trustees.

Carnochan (kär'no-kan), John Murray. Born at Savannah, Georgia, July 4, 1817: died at New York, Oct. 28, 1887. An American surgeon, noted especially for the treatment of elephantiasis Arabum by ligature of the femoral artery, and for the successful removal of the entire lower jaw in one operation.

Caro (kä-rō'), Elme Marie. Born at Poitiers, March 4, 1826: died at Paris, July 13, 1887. A French philosopher. He was appointed professor in the Sorbonne in 1864, and was elected to the French Academy in 1874. He was a contributor to the "Revue de l'instruction publique," "Revue contemporaine," and "Revue des deux mondes." Among his published works are "Le mysticisme au xviiie siècle" (1852), "Études morales sur le temps présent" (1855), "L'Idée de Dieu et ses nouveaux critiques" (1864), "La philosophie de Goethe" (1866), "Le matérialisme et la science" (1868), "Mélanges et portraits" (1888), etc.

Carpenter (kär'pen-tėr), Frederick Warner. Born at Sauk Center, Minn., Dec. 12, 1873. An American diplomatist. He was admitted to the bar of Minnesota and of California in 1898. In 1900 he accompanied William H. Taft to the Philippine Islands as stenographer, and became his private secretary in 1901. He was appointed minister to Morocco in 1911.

Carreño (kär-rā'nyō), Teresa. Born at Caraças, Venezuela, Dec. 22, 1853. A Venezuelan pianist. She studied with Gottschalk, Mathias, and Anton Rubinstein. She appeared at the Academy of Music, New York, at the age of nine, giving concerts until 1875, when she appeared in opera. In 1889 she returned to the concert stage, and has since toured extensively in Europe and America. She married Eugène d'Albert in 1892.

Carrère (kä-rär'), John Merven. Born at Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, Nov. 9, 1858: died at New York, March 1, 1911. An American architect. He was graduated from the École des Beaux-Arts, Paris, in 1882; served on commissions for remodeling Cleveland, Ohio, and other cities of the United States; designed various features of the Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo in 1901; and with his partner (since 1884), Thomas Hastings, designed many notable buildings, including the Ponce de Leon and Alcazar hotels at St. Augustine, the Public Library and the New Theater at New York, the Senate Office Building at Washington, etc. He was also a special lecturer on architectural subjects at Harvard University.

Carrick (kar'ik). A borough in Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, incorporated from part of Baldwin township in 1904. Pop., 6,117, (1910).

Carrière (kär-yär'), Eugène Anatole. Born Jan. 17, 1849: died at Paris, March 27, 1906. A French painter. He studied at the École des Beaux-Arts and under Cabanel; took part in the Franco-Prussian war and was captured. For a long time he worked in poverty and neglect, from which he did not emerge until 1884, when his works began to attract much attention. He painted a large number of portraits.

Carroll (kar'ọl), James. Born in England, June 5, 1854: died at Washington, Sept. 16, 1907. An Anglo-American physician, surgeon in the United States army. He was a member of the Havana Yellow Fever Commission appointed in 1900, and in the conduct of experiments submitted himself to inoculation, with a consequent severe attack of the fever. His death was regarded as an ultimate result of the disease. He was promoted to the grade of major-surgeon by a special act of Congress, March 2, 1907.

Carryl (kar'il), Guy Wetmore. Born at New York, March 4, 1873: died there, April 1, 1904. An American humorist. He was graduated from Columbia University in 1895. Among his publications are "Fables for the Frivolous" (1898), "Mother Goose for Grown-ups" (1900), "Grimm Tales Made Gay" (1902), "The Lieutenant-Governor" (1903), "Zut, and Other Parisians" (1903), "The Transgression of Andrew Vane" (1904), "Far from the Maddening Girls" (1904), and "The Garden of Years" (1904).

Carson (kär'son), Alexander. Born near Stewartstown, County Tyrone, Ireland, 1776: died at Belfast, August 24, 1844. A Baptist theologian. He was of Scottish parentage and was for a time a Presbyterian minister, but separated from that church in 1804. Later he adopted Baptist views. He published numerous controversial writings.

Carson*, Christopher. He acted as guide to Frémont on his exploring expeditions, and to the U. S. troops in the conquest of California; was appointed Indian agent for New Mexico, 1853; and took part in the Civil War, rising to the rank of brigadier-general.

Carter (kär'tėr), James Coolidge. Born at Lancaster, Mass., Oct. 14, 1827: died at New York, Feb. 14, 1905. An American lawyer. He was graduated at Harvard University in 1850, and at the Harvard Law School in 1853. In 1875 he was appointed by Governor Tilden a member of the commission to devise a form of municipal government for the cities of New York State, and in 1892 was appointed one of the counsel to represent the United States before the Bering Sea tribunal. He published "The Proposed Codification of our Common Law" (1884).

Carter (kär'tėr), John Ridgely. Born at Baltimore, Nov. 28, 1864. An American diplomatist. He was admitted to the bar in 1889. He served as secretary to the American ambassador at London 1894–96, as second secretary of the American embassy 1896–1905, and secretary 1905–09; was minister to the Balkan States 1909–11, and to the Argentine Republic 1911–.

Carus (kä'rös), Paul. Born at Ilsenburg, Germany, July 18, 1852. A German-American philosophical writer, editor of the "Monist" and "The Open Court" (Chicago). He was educated at the Universities of Strasburg and Tübingen. Among his publications are "Fundamental Problems," "The Gospel of Buddha," "Karma" "The Idea of God," "The History of the Devil," "The Nature of the State," etc.

Caruso (kä-rö'sō), Enrico. Born at Naples, Italy, 1874. A noted Italian dramatic tenor. He made his début in a small theater near Naples, and was not brought into prominence until 1896, when he sang at the Fondo theater in Naples. In 1898 he sang in Milan. In 1903 he began a series of engagements in New York that brought him great popularity.

Carver (kär'vèr), Thomas Nixon. Born at Kirkville, Iowa, March 25, 1865. An American political economist. He was professor of economics in Oberlin College 1894–1900, and assistant professor of political economy in Harvard University 1900–02, and has been professor there since 1902. He has published "The Distribution of Wealth" (1904), "Sociology and Social Progress" (1905), and articles on economic subjects in various periodicals.

Cary, Annie Louise. See ★Raymond, Mrs.

Casablanca (kä-sä-blän'kä) (Dar-el-Beida). A seaport of Morocco, situated on the Atlantic coast, about lat. 33° 35′ N., long. 7° 50′ W. On July 30, 1907, the Moors murdered eight Europeans and the city was bombarded by French ships Aug. 5, and captured by French troops. The conflict between France and Morocco continued until August, 1908. The forcible removal by French soldiers from the protection of the German consulate (Sept. 5, 1908) of deserters from the French Foreign Legion led to a dispute between France and Germany which, after mutual explanations, was referred by them to the Hague Tribunal for arbitration. The decision of the court was accepted by both countries, May, 1909.

Casals (kä-säls'), Pablo. Born at Vendrell, Catalonia, Dec. 30, 1876. A Spanish violoncellist. He studied organ, pianoforte, violin, clarinet, and cello, and became professor of the last-named instrument at the Barcelona University (1897). He has been a member of the Paris Opera and the Lamoureux orchestras and has made extensive tours as a virtuoso in Europe and (1901, 1903) in America. His compositions include works for orchestra, cello, violin, piano, and organ.

Cascade Mountains*. According to the United States Geographic Board (1907), this range is limited on the south by the gap south of Lassen Peak, California, and extends northward into British Columbia. Officially known as the Cascade Range.

Case School of Applied Science. A technical school in Cleveland, O., founded by Leonard Case, Jr., in 1877. Instruction was begun in 1881. It is attended by about 500 students, to whom it offers courses leading to the degrees of B.S., M.S., M.E., C.E., and E.E.

Casiguran (kä-si-gö'rän). A town in Principe, Tayabas province, eastern Luzón, Philippine Islands, situated at the head of Casiguran Bay. Civilized population of municipality, 2,067.

Casiguran (kä-si-gö'rän) Bay. A deep bay on the eastern coast of Luzón, indenting Principe, Tayabas province: a safe harbor for large vessels in all weather.

Cassatt (ka-sat'), Alexander Johnston. Born at Pittsburg, Pa., Dec. 8, 1839: died at Philadelphia, Dec. 28, 1906. An American business man, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company from 1899. He was educated at the Polytechnic School, Darmstadt, and the Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, Troy, New York, graduating from the latter in 1859. He became connected with the Pennsylvania Railroad in 1861 as rodman, and was appointed general manager in 1871 and vice-president in 1874, resigning in 1882.

Cassatt (ka-sat'), Mary. Born at Pittsburg, Pa. A contemporary American painter, a sister of A. J. Cassatt, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad. She studied in Rome, Antwerp, and Paris, coming under the influence of Degas. Her works are figure-paintings. She was elected an associate member of the Academy of Design in 1909.

Cassel (käs'el), Sir Ernest Joseph. Born at Cologne, March 3, 1852. A German-English philanthropist. He was educated in his native city, but emigrated to London, where he founded a successful banking establishment. He has rendered important aid to industrial enterprise in Sweden, and has contributed large sums for charitable purposes in England. He was knighted in 1899 for his services in connection with Egypt.

Cassini (kä-sē'nē), Count Arthur Pavolitch. Born at St. Petersburg, 1838. A Russian diplomatist. He entered the government service (ministry of finance) in 1854; and has held the posts of secretary of the Russian legation in Denmark, minister resident in Hamburg, minister to China 1891–98, ambassador to the United States 1898–1905, and ambassador to Spain, October, 1905–09.

Castañeda (käs-tän-yä'dä), Pedro de (de Naçera). A Spanish soldier with Coronado on the expedition of 1540–42 into New Mexico, Texas, and Kansas, and its chief historian. He was a painstaking and critical recorder, though he seems to have written without official order or sanction. His narrative is entitled: "Relacion de la Jornada de Cibola conquesta por Pedro de Castañeda de Naçera. Donde se trata de todos aquellos poblados y ritos, y costumbres, la qual fue el Año de 1540." The manuscript, which is frequently alluded to as the "original," is owned by the New York Library, but since it ends with the words: "finished copying Saturday the 26th of October 1596 in Seville," there must have been another earlier manuscript. The original has never been seen. A transcript with English translation, notes, and introduction, by George Parker Winship, was published in the fourteenth annual report of the Bureau of American Ethnology, Washington, 1896.

Castle (kas'l), Egerton. Born at London, March 12, 1858. An English novelist. He is the author of "Schools and Masters of Fence" (1884), "Consequences" (1891), "English Book-plates" (1892), "The Jerningham Letters" (1896), "Young April" (1899), "Marshfield, the Observer" (1900); and with his wife (Agnes Sweetman) he has written "The Pride of Jennico" (1898), "The Bath Comedy" (1900: dramatized as "Sweet Kitty Bellairs"), "The Secret Orchard" (1901: dramatized 1901), "The Star Dreamer" (1903), "Incomparable Bellairs" (1904), "Rose of the World" (1905), "The Heart of Lady Anne" (1905), "If Youth but Knew" (1905), "My Merry Rockhurst" (1907), "Flower of the Orange" (1908), "Wroth" (1908), "Panther's Cub" (1910), etc.

Castro (käs'trō), Cipriano. Born at Capacho, Venezuela, Oct. 12, 1860. A Venezuelan military leader and politician. He took arms in 1886 against the Lopez government; supported Palacio against the revolt of Crespo in 1892; and then ceased to be the leader of the Liberal party and for about six years was engaged in farming near San José de Cucuta, Santander, Colombia. In May, 1899, he invaded Venezuela with sixty men; rapidly gathered an army; won victories at Las Pilas, Zumbador, etc.; entered Caracas (from which the president, General Ignacio Andrade, had fled); and declared himself "supreme military leader." The constitutional assembly made him provisional president March 30, 1901, and on Feb. 20, 1902, he was elected president for a term of six years. This position he resigned temporarily April 9, 1906. He was "constitutionally suspended from the presidency" in March, 1909, and was banished from the country.

Catalan Grand Company. A band of mercenaries, mostly Catalans and Aragonese, who, after the wars in Sicily, entered the service of the Eastern Empire under the leadership of Roger di Flor. After his death in 1306 they waged war against the Greeks and became masters of Bœotia and Attica. Their power disappeared before the end of the fourteenth century.

Catalani (kä-tä-lä'nē), Alfredo. Born at Lucca, June 19, 1854: died at Milan, Aug. 6, 1893. An Italian operatic composer. He was a pupil at the conservatories of Paris and Milan. He first composed church music, writing a mass at the age of fourteen. His compositions are "Ero e Leandro" (a symphonic poem for orchestra) and the operas "La falce" (1875), "Elda" (1880), "Dejanire" (1883), "Edmea" (1886), "Loreley" (1890), and "La Wally" (1892).

Catanduanes (kä-tän-dō-ä'näs). A hilly island of the Philippines, east of the southern part of Luzón, from which it is separated by Maqueda Channel. It belongs to the province of Albay. Area, 682 square miles. Population, 39,288.

Catari (kä-tä'rē), Tomás. An eighteenth-century Peruvian revolutionist, an Aymará Indian from Macha, province of Chayanta. He secretly aspired to the position of corregidor of the district, and in 1780 went to Buenos Aires to advance his interests, under the pretext of laying the grievances of the Indians before the Spanish viceroy. He received only promises of redress, but on returning home showed documents which he asserted gave him authority to depose or kill the corregidors. An Indian uprising followed, during which Tomás Catari himself was killed. But his widow and his two brothers, Nicolas and Dámaso, gathered a large body of Indians and moved upon Sucre (Chuquisaca), where the royal audiencia resided, and were with difficulty repulsed by the Spanish forces. The Cataris were afterward captured and executed, and the rising was ended in 1781.

Catasauqua (kat-a-sâ'kwą). A borough in Lehigh County, Pennsylvania, on the Lehigh River 3 miles above Allentown. It has machine-shops, ironworks, and manufactories of axles, boilers, silk, etc. Population, 5,250, (1910).

Catbalogan (kät-bä-lō'gän). A town, the capital of Samar province, Philippine Islands, situated on the western coast of Samar Island, in lat. 11° 46′ 30″ N., long. 124° 52′ E. Civilized population of municipality, 7,758.

Catherwood (kath'ėr-wůd), Mrs. (Mary Hartwell). Born at Luray, O., Dec. 16, 1847: died at Chicago, Dec. 26, 1902. An American novelist. Author of "The Romance of Dollard" (1889), "The Story of Tonty" (1890), "The Lady of Fort St. John" (1891), "Days of Jeanne D'Arc" (1897), etc.

Catholic University of America, The. A Roman Catholic institution of learning situated at Washington, D. C. It was founded in 1884, through a gift of $300,000 from Miss M. G. Caldwell of Newport, Rhode Island, for the higher education of the clergy. The university was incorporated in 1887 and opened to the clergy in 1889. Schools for the laity were opened in 1895. It now includes faculties of theology, law, philosophy, letters, and sciences. Eight colleges of religious communities, each with its own faculty and student body, are academically related to the university, and with one exception are located in its immediate vicinity.

Cattell (ka-tel'), James McKeen. Born at Easton, Pa., May 25, 1860. An American psychologist, professor of psychology in Columbia University from 1891. He is the editor of "Science," of "The Popular Science Monthly," of "American Men of Science," and of the "Library" and "Archives of Philosophy, Psychology, and Scientific Methods."

Caua. See ★Cagua.

Causeries du lundi (kōz-rē' dü lün-dē'). [F., 'Monday talks.'] A series of critical essays contributed by Sainte-Beuve to current French periodicals and later collected and published in book form (1851–57). They were followed by "Nouveaux lundis" (1863–72) and "Premiers lundis" (1875).

Cavalcaselle (kä-väl-kä-sel'lä), Giovanni Battista. Born at Legnago, near Verona, Italy, Jan. 22, 1817: died at Rome, Oct. 31, 1897. An Italian art critic and historian. In 1848 he became involved in the struggle for liberation from Austria and was imprisoned. Later he was banished and sought refuge in England. With Joseph Archer Crowe he published "The Early Flemish Painters" (1857), "Titian: his Life and Times" (1877), "A New History of Painting in Italy" (Vol. I., 1864), "A History of Painting in North Italy" (1871), "Raphael: his Life and Works" (1882). He was appointed inspector of the Museo Nazionale in Florence in 1867, and later general inspector of fine arts in Rome.

Cavalieri (kä-väl-yä'rē), Emilio del. Born at Rome about 1550: died March 11, 1602. A member of the group of Florentine musicians and poets who launched the new form of the opera at the end of the sixteenth century. His most important work was "La rappresentazione di anima e di corpo," the first oratorio. He was one of the first to use solo voices with instrumental accompaniment, and the mode of notation called "figured bass."

Cavite. 2. A province in the southwestern part of Luzón, Philippine Islands. It is bounded by the bay and the city of Manila on the north; the city of Manila on the northeast; Laguna de Bay and Laguna de Bay province on the east; Batangas (separated by the Tagaytay range and Sungay Mountain) on the south and southeast; and Manila Bay on the northwest. Capital, Cavite. The northern part of Cavite, watered by many rivers, is very fertile and produces rice, abaca, sugar-cane, and coffee. Over twenty-five per cent. of the land is agricultural. The native race is Tagalog. Area, 619 square miles. Population, 134,779.

Cebú. 2. A province of the Philippines, consisting of Cebú and adjacent islands lying between Negros and Leyte in the Visayan Sea. Capital, Cebú. The native race is Visayan. The main island is long and narrow, and is traversed from northeast to southwest by the Cordillera Central Mountains, which, though not exceeding 2,000 feet in height, interfere with communication between the eastern and western parts of the island, as there are few passes. The rivers are unimportant, only one, the Cabiangón, being navigable by native boats a distance of 3 miles. There are two good harbors on the eastern coast—Cebú and Port Bugut or Carmen. Cebú contains the largest coal deposits of the Philippines. Petroleum has been reported in connection with the coal-beds. Gold and marble are found in the western part of the island. The mountains are wooded, the most extensive forests being on the western slopes. The industries of the province are chiefly the manufacture of sugar, salt, and cheese, and of fabrics of hemp and pine-apple fiber. The fisheries are of importance. Area of province, 1,939 square miles. Population, 653,727.

3. The capital and chief port of Cebú province, in lat. 10° 18′ N., long. 123° 53′ 5″ E. The harbor is excellent. Population, 18,330; municipality, civilized population, 31,079.

Celebes (sel'e-bes) Sea. That part of the Pacific Ocean which lies south of Mindanao, north of Celebes, and east of Borneo, the Sulu (Joló) Archipelago, and Basilan Island. It is connected with the Java Sea by the Strait of Macassar.

Centennial State, The. A name given to the State of Colorado, because it was admitted to the Union in 1876.

Centerville (sen'tėr-vil). The county-seat of Appanoose County, Iowa, 32 miles southwest of Ottumwa. It is in a region rich in deposits of coal and limestone. The city has iron- and tile-works, flour-mills, machine-shops, woolen-mills, cigar-factories, etc. Population, 6,936, (1910).

Central American Arbitration Treaty. A treaty signed on Dec. 20, 1907, by the representatives of the five Central American states at a conference at Washington, by which all the states agreed to submit disputed matters to a court of arbitration, the judges of which are to be appointed by the congress of each country and the decisions of which are to be binding on all parties.

Central Falls (sen'tral fâlz). A manufacturing city situated on the Blackstone River, in Providence County, Rhode Island. Population, 22,754, (1910).

Centralia (sen-trā'li-ą) A city in Clinton and Marion counties, Illinois, 60 miles southeast of St. Louis. It has a considerable trade in fruit, especially apples and strawberries, and has canneries, fruit-box factories, woolen-mills, marble-yards, etc. Population, 9,680, (1910).

Centralia (sen-trā'li-ą). A city in Lewis County, Washington, 24 miles southwest of Olympia. Lumbering is extensively carried on. Population, 7,311, (1910).

Century Association, The. A New York club for men, incorporated in 1857 for the advancement of art and literature. It has over 1,200 members. Its house is at 7 West 43d street.

Cernuschi (cher-nös'ki), Enrico. Born at Milan, 1821: died at Mentone, May 12, 1896. An Italian-French financier and political economist, an advocate of bimetallism. He played a conspicuous part in the insurrections at Milan in 1848, and at Rome in 1849, but in 1850 escaped to France, where he was afterward naturalized. He wrote "Mécanique de l'échange" (1865), "Illusions des sociétés coöpératives" (1866), "La diplomatie monétaire" (1878), "Le bimétallisme en Angleterre" (1879), "Le bimétallisme à quinze et demi" (1881), "Le grand procés de l'union latine" (1884), "Les assignats métalliques" (1885), etc.

Cervantes (ther-vän'tes). A town, the capital of Lepanto-Bontoc province, Luzón, in the Philippine Islands. It is situated approximately in lat. 17° 1′ 10″ N., long. 120° 50′ 30″ E.

Cesarewitch Stakes, The. One of the great English handicap race-meetings of the year, which takes place at Newmarket in the early part of October. The course is 2½ miles. Class is better represented in this race than in any other of the long-distance handicaps, and the field is almost invariably good. This meeting has always been of great national and international interest. The success of Prioress in 1857, after a dead heat with two other animals, El Hakim and Queen Bess, was one of the first victories gained by American horses in England. This race was instituted in 1839, and was named after the Russian imperial prince, afterward Alexander II., who visited England during that year.

Chabrier (shä-bri-ā'), Alexis Emmanuel. Born at Ambert, Puy-de-Dôme, France, March 18, 1841: died at Paris, Sept. 13, 1894. A French composer, chiefly of operas. His most important works are "Gwendoline" (1886), "Le roi malgré lui" (1887), and some orchestral pieces.

Chadwick (chad'wik), French Ensor. Born at Morgantown, W. Va., Feb. 29, 1844. An American naval officer, promoted rear-admiral in 1903. He was graduated at the United States Naval Academy in 1865; was naval attaché in London 1882–89; was chief intelligence officer 1892–93; was chief of the Bureau of Equipment 1893–97; and served as captain of the cruiser New York and chief of staff to Admiral Sampson during the war with Spain (1898). From 1900–03 he was president of the Naval War College and commanded the South Atlantic squadron in 1904. He retired in 1906.

Chadwick (chad′wik), George Whitefield. Born at Lowell, Mass., Nov. 13, 1854. An American composer. He studied in Boston and later in Leipsic and Munich. On his return to America he became an organist in Boston and teacher of composition in the New England Conservatory. Since 1897 he has been its director. He has composed three symphonies, half a dozen overtures, five string quartets, a pianoforte quintet, the lyric drama "Judith" (1900), choral works ("Phœnix Expirans," 1891, etc.), and many songs. He has written a treatise on harmony.

Chadwick (chad′wik), John White. Born at Marblehead, Mass., Oct. 19, 1840: died at Brooklyn, N. Y., Dec. 11, 1904. An American Unitarian minister, literary critic, and author. He was graduated at the Cambridge Divinity School in 1864, and was minister of the Second Unitarian Society of Brooklyn 1864–1904. Among his works are "The Bible of To-day" (1878), "Faith of Reason" (1879), "The Man Jesus" (1881), "A Book of Poems" (1888), "Old and New Unitarian Belief" (1894), "A Life for Liberty" (1899), "Theodore Parker" (1900), "William Ellery Channing" (1903).

Chaliapine (shä′lē-ä̇-pēn), Feodor. Born at Kazan, Russia, about 1875. A Russian bass singer. He first appeared as a boy soprano in his native town, and in opera, at the age of twenty, as Mephistopheles in Gounod's "Faust" at Tiflis. Since then he has sung in most of the principal opera-houses in Europe and America. He has won much of his fame in Boito's "Mefistofele," in Russian works like "Ivan the Terrible," and in Massenet's "Don Quichotte." He has appeared in New York.

Challenger Deep. One of the deepest portions of the Pacific Ocean. It occurs between Guam and the Caroline Islands, and was discovered by H. M. S. Challenger, which obtained a sounding of 4,475 fathoms at this place.

Challenger Expedition*. The expedition was undertaken at the suggestion of the Royal Society, which drew up a complete scheme of instructions. Captain (later Sir) George Nares was in command (1872–74). The ship sailed for a year in the Atlantic, reached Cape Town in Oct., 1873, and Kerguelen Island, Jan., 1874. She was the first steamship to cross the Antarctic Circle. The expedition made researches in the Pacific, reached Hong Kong, recrossed the ocean to Valparaiso, and, passing through the Strait of Magellan, reached Sheerness, May, 1876. The Challenger report was published in 50 volumes (1880–95).

Chamberlain (chām′bėr-lān), Alexander Francis. Born at Kenninghall, England, Jan. 12, 1865. An English-American anthropologist, assistant professor of anthropology in Clark University, Worcester, Massachusetts, from 1904. He was graduated at the University of Toronto in 1886. His works include "The Child: a Study in the Evolution of Man" (1900), "Poems" (1904), etc. He was editor of the "Journal of American Folklore" (1900–08).

Chamberlain (chām′bėr-lān), Daniel Henry. Born at West Brookfield, Mass., June 23, 1835: died near Charlottesville, Va., April 13, 1907. An American lawyer, politician, and writer. He was graduated at Yale University in 1862, and at the Harvard Law School in 1863; served in the Union army in the last years of the Civil War; established himself as a cotton-planter in South Carolina in 1866; and was attorney-general of that State 1868–72 and governor 1874–77.

Chamberlain (chām′bėr-lān), J. Austen. Born 1863. An English Liberal-Unionist statesman, eldest son of Joseph Chamberlain. He was educated at Rugby, and at Trinity College, Cambridge; has sat for Worcestershire (East) in the House of Commons since 1892; was a civil lord of the admiralty 1895–1900; was financial secretary to the treasury 1900–02; was postmaster-general 1902–03; and was chancellor of the exchequer 1903–Dec., 1905.

Chamberlin (chām′bėr-lin), Thomas Chrowder. Born at Mattoon, Ill., Sept. 25, 1843. An eminent American geologist, professor of geology and director of the Walker Museum in the University of Chicago from 1892. He was professor of geology at Beloit College 1873–82; assistant State geologist of Wisconsin 1873–76 and chief geologist 1876–82; president of the University of Wisconsin 1887–92; and geologist of the Peary Relief Expedition 1894. He has published "Geology of Wisconsin" (1877–83), "Text-book of Geology" (1904–06: with Salisbury), "The Tidal and other Problems" (1909: with F. R. Moulton and others), and many scientific papers; and is the editor of the "Journal of Geology." He is the author of the "planetesimal hypothesis," relating to the formation of planetary systems.

Chambers (chām′bėrz), Robert William. Born at Brooklyn, N. Y., May 26, 1865. An American artist and novelist. He studied art abroad, exhibited at the Salon in 1889, and in 1891 went to New York, where he worked as an illustrator. Since 1893 he has been engaged chiefly in literary work. He has written "The Witch of Ellangowan," a drama, "The King in Yellow" (1895), "Lorraine" (1898), "The Cambric Mask" (1900), "The Conspirators" (1900), "Cardigan" (1901), "The Maid-at-Arms" (1902), "The Reckoning" (1905), "Iole" (1905), "The Tracer of Lost Persons" (1906), "The Fighting Chance" (1906), "The Younger Set" (1907), "The Firing Line" (1908), "The Special Messenger" (1909), etc.

Chaminade (shä-mi-näd′), Cécile. Born at Paris, Aug, 8, 1861. A French composer and pianist. She has written many pieces and songs that are popular, several orchestral suites, a symphony with chorus, and chamber-music.

Champaign (sham-pān′). A city in Champaign County, Illinois, 43 miles northeast of Decatur. It has foundries, railroad shops, etc. Population, 12,421, (1910).

Champney (champ′ni), James Wells. Born at Boston, July 16, 1843: died at New York, May 1, 1903. An American painter. He learned wood-engraving in Boston, and in 1866 went to Paris and became a pupil of Édouard Frère. He also studied in the Academy at Antwerp. He was elected an associate of the National Academy in 1882.

Champneys (champ′niz), Basil. Born 1842. An English architect and writer on art, son of William Weldon Champneys. He was educated at the Charterhouse school and at Trinity College, Cambridge, being graduated in 1864. Among the buildings which he has designed are the Archæological Museum at Cambridge, the Rylands Library at Manchester, and the Butler Museum at Harrow.

Chandler (chand′lėr), Charles Frederick. Born at Lancaster, Mass., Dec. 6, 1836. An American scientist, professor of chemistry in Columbia University 1877–1911. He was adjunct professor of chemistry and medical jurisprudence in the College of Physicians and Surgeons, New York, 1872–76, and professor there 1876–97. He is also president of, and professor of organic chemistry in, the New York College of Pharmacy, and was chemist and later president of the Metropolitan Board of Health 1867–84.

Chandler (chand′lėr), Francis Ward. Born at Boston, Sept. 30, 1844. An American architect. He practised his profession in Boston 1874–88, and has been professor of architecture in the Massachusetts Institute of Technology since 1888, and advisory architect to the mayor of Boston since 1896. He has published "Construction Details" (1892), "Notes on Limes, Cements, Mortars, and Concretes" (1892), etc.

Chandler (chand′lėr), Seth Carlo. Born at Boston, Sept. 17, 1846. An American astronomer. He was a member of the U. S. Coast and Geological Survey 1864–70, and has conducted private investigations in stellar astronomy, etc., from 1886. He has edited the "Astronomical Journal" since 1896.

Chandler (chand′lėr), William Eaton. Born at Concord, N. H., Dec. 28, 1835. An American lawyer and statesman. He was graduated from the Harvard Law School and admitted to the bar in 1855; was reporter of the Supreme Court of New Hampshire in 1859; was a member of the New Hampshire legislature 1862–64, 1881, and speaker 1863–64; was solicitor and judge-advocate-general of the Navy Department 1865. He was assistant secretary of the treasury 1865–67, secretary of the navy 1882–85, United States senator 1887–1901, and president of the Spanish treaty claims commission 1901–07.

Channing (chan′ing), William Henry. Born at Boston, May 25, 1810: died at London, Dec. 23, 1884. An American Unitarian minister and writer, nephew of William Ellery Channing. He was graduated from Harvard College in 1829 and from the Cambridge Divinity School in 1833; succeeded James Martineau as minister of the Hope Street Unitarian Chapel in Liverpool, England, in 1857; and returned to the United States in 1862 and filled a Unitarian pulpit in Washington, D. C. He was interested in the Brook Farm experiment, contributed to "The Harbinger," and with Emerson and J. F. Clarke wrote "Memoirs of Margaret Fuller Ossoli" (1852). He also published a translation of Jouffroy's "Ethics" (1840), "Memoirs of William Ellery Channing" (1848), etc.

Chanticleer. 3. The cock in Edmond Rostand's play "Chantecler" (1907–09).

Chanute (sha-nūt′). A city in Neosho County, Kansas, 42 miles southwest of Fort Scott. It is situated in an important oil and gas region, and has oil-refineries, railway repair-shops, glass-factories, etc. Population, 9,272, (1910).

Chanute (sha-nūt′), Octave. Born at Paris, Feb. 18, 1832: died at Chicago, Nov. 23, 1910. A Franco-American civil engineer and experimenter in aviation. He came to the United States in 1838; was engaged for many years in the construction of railroads; and was president of the American Society of Civil Engineers 1891–92. In 1894 he published his "Progress in Flying Machines," a study of the experiments hitherto made in aviation, and in 1896 instituted further experiments with various forms of gliding-machine, and devised means of securing equilibrium by automatic movements of the machine.

Chapman (chap′man), Frank Michler. Born at Englewood, N. J., June 12, 1864. An American ornithologist. He has been associate curator of ornithology and mammalogy in the American Museum of Natural History, New York city, since 1887, and is editor and founder of "Bird-Lore" and associate editor of "The Auk." He has published "Handbook of Birds of Eastern North America" (1895), "Bird-Life" (1897), "Bird Studies with a Camera" (1900), "A Color Key to North American Birds" (1903), "The Economic Value of Birds to the State" (1903), "Warblers of North America" (1907), "Camps and Cruises of an Ornithologist" (1908), etc.

Chapu (shä-pü′), Henri Michel Antoine. Born at Le Mée (Seine-et-Marne), France,

Sept. 29, 1833: died at Paris, April 20, 1891. A French sculptor. He was a pupil of Pradier, Duret, and Léon Cogniet, and won the grand prix de Rome, in sculpture, in 1855. His works include the statue of "Jeanne d'Arc hearing voices" (1870), the monument to Henri Regnault in the École des Beaux-Arts (1876), the tomb of Monsignor Dupanloup (1886), the monument to the Duchess of Orléans, and many important statues and busts. He won the médaille d'honneur at the Salon in 1875 and 1877, and was elected member of the Institute in 1880.

Charcot (shär-kō′), Jean Baptiste Étienne Auguste. Born at Neuilly-sur-Seine, July 15, 1867. A French physician and explorer. As leader of the French antarctic expedition (1903–05) he established the connection of Bismarck Strait with the sea east of Graham Land, and mapped the west coast of that land. In 1908–10 he commanded a second expedition to the Antarctic, the main objects of which were to make a collection of the fossils to which attention was drawn by Dr. Nordenskjöld, and to explore the region south of Loubet Island (Adelaide Island), and, if possible, to reach the south pole. He reached 70° south lat. His ship was named "Pourquoi Pas?" ("Why Not?"). He has written accounts of his journeys in "Le Français au Pôle Sud" and "Le voyage du Pourquoi Pas?" See Century Atlas, Map 3½.

Charleroi (shär-lę-roi′). A borough in Washington County, Pennsylvania, about 22 miles southeast of Pittsburg. It is in an important coal-mining region, and has plate-glass factories, etc. Population, 9,615, (1910).

Charles City (chärlz sit′i). The county-seat of Floyd County, Iowa, on Cedar River 110 miles northwest of Dubuque. It is the seat of Charles City College. Its manufactures include furniture, machinery, flour, agricultural implements, etc. The breeding of Normandy horses is here an important industry. Population, 5,892, (1910).

Charles's Wain. See Wain, Charles's.

Charleston (chärlz′ton). The county-seat of Coles County, Illinois, 43 miles west of Terre Haute, Indiana. In the vicinity are oil-fields and coal-deposits. The city has manufactories of flour, wool, stoves, etc., and is the seat of the Eastern Illinois Normal School. Population, 5,884, (1910).

Charlotte Temple; or, a Tale of Truth. A tale by Mrs. Susanna (Haswell) Rowson, published in 1790. It has been many times republished. The heroine, an innocent school-girl, is induced to come to America by Montraville, a lieutenant in the British service, on his promise of marriage upon arrival. This promise is not fulfilled; he deserts her, and she dies after giving birth to a child. A grave marked by a tombstone bearing the name of "Charlotte Temple," erected by a sexton in the eighteenth century, lies in the graveyard of Old Trinity Church, New York city. The author in her preface states that the tale is a true one, "yet I have substituted names and places according to my own fancy." The real name of Charlotte Temple is said to have been Stanley.

Charpentier (shär-poń-tyā′), Gustave. Born at Dieuze, Lorraine, June 25, 1860. A French composer. He studied at the Conservatoire in Paris, and took the Roman prize there in 1887. His most important works are a suite for orchestra, "Impressions d'Italie," the opera "Louise" (produced at the Opéra Comique, Paris, in 1900, with great success), which has been considered one of the most noteworthy of modern French operas, and the "symphonie-drama" "La vie du poète" (1892).

Chartran (shär-troń′), Théobald. Born at Besançon, 1849: died at Paris, July 16, 1907. A French painter, a pupil of Cabanel. His works are chiefly portraits and religious subjects.

Chatelain*, Héli. In 1897 he founded the Phil-African Mission, near the edge of the Angola Highlands, for the industrial training of the natives under Christian influence.

Chausson (shō-soń′), Ernest. Born at Paris, 1855: died at Limay, June 10, 1899. A French composer, a pupil and follower of César Franck. His most important works are the opera "Le roi Arthus" (produced in 1903), a symphony, a symphonic poem "Viviane" (1888), chamber-music, and songs.

Chauvin (shō-vań′), Nicolas. Born at Rochefort, France, in the 18th century. A French soldier of the Republic and the Empire. He was severely wounded and mutilated in the wars of Napoleon and received as reward for his services a saber of honor, a red ribbon, and a pension of 200 francs. His enthusiasm for the emperor was so demonstrative that it won for him the ridicule of his comrades and gave rise to the term "chauvinism."

Cheboygan (shę-boi′gan). The county-seat of Cheboygan County, Michigan, situated on Lake Huron at the mouth of the Cheboygan River. It has extensive lumber interests, and has paper- and canning-factories, machine-shops, tanneries, etc. Population, 6,859, (1910).

Chehalis (chē-hā′lis). The capital of Lewis County, Washington, 27 miles southwest of Olympia. It is in a coal-mining region, and has lumber-mills, etc. Population, 4,507, (1910).

Chelan (shē-lan′). A lake in Chelan County, Washington. It is about fifty miles long and from one to two miles wide.

Cheliabinsk (chel-i-ä-binsk′). A city of Orenburg, Russia, situated near the northern boundary of the province in lat. 55° N. Population, upward of 10,000.

Chelminski (chel-min′ski), Jan. Born in Russian Poland, Jan. 27, 1851. A Polish painter. He received his professional training at the Academy in Munich and under Franz Adam. In 1873 he began painting, independently, genre subjects taken from the common life of Poland. His work is widely distributed.

Chelmsford (chelmz′fȯrd). A town in Middlesex County, Massachusetts, on the New York, New Haven, and Hartford Railroad 23 miles northwest of Boston. It has box-factories, worsted-mills, etc. Population, 5,010, (1910).

Chemulpo (shē-mul-pō′), Battle of. A naval engagement in the harbor of Chemulpo, Korea, Feb. 9, 1904, between two Russian cruisers, the Variag and Korietz, and a Japanese fleet consisting of four cruisers, seven torpedo-boats, and three transports. Both of the Russian vessels were damaged and were sunk by their officers after the engagement.

Cheney (chē′ni), John Vance. Born at Groveland, N. Y., Dec. 29, 1848. An American poet and librarian. He studied law at Woodstock, Vermont, 1871–74, and at Haverhill, Massachusetts, 1874–75, and practised in New York for a year. On his removal to California in 1876 he became librarian of the Free Public Library in San Francisco 1887–1894, and was librarian of the Newberry Library in Chicago 1894–1900. He has published two volumes of essays, "The Golden Guess" (1892) and "That Dome in Air" (1895), and several volumes of poems, among them "Thistle-Drift" (1887), "Wood-Blooms" (1888), "Lyrics" (1902), and "Poems" (1905).

Chesney (ches′ni), Sir George Tomkyns. Born at Tiverton, Devonshire, April 30, 1830: died at London, March 31, 1895. A British general, engineer, and author, nephew of F. R. Chesney. He entered the army in 1848; served in the Indian mutiny; was president of the engineering college in Calcutta; was the first president of the Royal Indian Civil Engineering College, Cooper's Hill, Staines, near London, 1871–80; was secretary to the military department of the Indian government 1880–86; and was military member of the governor's council 1886–91. He was knighted in 1890, and was elected a Conservative member of Parliament for Oxford in 1892. In 1871 he published anonymously in "Blackwood's Magazine" "The Battle of Dorking, or Reminiscences of a Volunteer," a brochure which attracted much attention. He also published "Indian Polity" (1868); "The True Reformer" (1874), "The Dilemma" (1876), novels dealing with army affairs; "The Lesters, or a Capitalist's Labor" (1893); etc.

Chester (ches′tėr), Colby Mitchell. Born at New London, Conn., Feb. 29, 1844. An American naval officer, astronomer, and naval engineer. He was graduated at the United States Naval Academy in 1863; was instructor there 1874–77; was hydrographic inspector in the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey 1880–85; and was superintendent of the United States Naval Observatory 1902–06. He directed the United States surveys in China and Korea 1871–73. He served in the Civil War, was promoted rear-admiral in 1903, and retired in 1906.

Chesterton (ches′tėr-tọn), Gilbert Keith. Born at Kensington, England, 1874. An English journalist and author. Among his published volumes are "The Wild Knight and other Poems" (1900), "Greybeards at Play" (1900), "Robert Browning" (1903), "G. F. Watts" (1904), "The Napoleon of Notting Hill" (1904), "Charles Kingsley" (1906), "The Man Who Was Thursday" (1908), "All Things Considered" (1908), "George Bernard Shaw" (1909), "What 's Wrong with the World" (1910), "William Blake" (1911), "Alarms and Discursions" (1911), "Appreciations and Criticisms of the Works of Charles Dickens" (1911), etc.

Cheyne (chā′ni), Thomas Kelly. Born at London, England, Sept. 18, 1841. A noted English clergyman and biblical critic. He was a member of the Old Testament Revision Company 1884; was rector of Tendring, Essex, 1880–85; and was Oriel professor of the interpretation of Scripture at Oxford, and canon of Rochester, 1885–1908. In 1904 he was elected a member of the British Academy. Among the best known of his works are "The Prophecies of Isaiah" (1880–81), "The Book of Psalms," a new translation (1884–88, 1904), "Founders of Old Testament Criticism" (1893), "Introduction to the Book of Isaiah" (1895), "Isaiah," critically revised text, and translation in "Sacred Books of the Old Testament" (1898), "Jewish Religious Life after the Exile" (1898), "Critica Biblica" (1904), "Traditions and Beliefs of Ancient Israel" (1907), "Decline and Fall of the Kingdom of Judah" (1908), "The Two Religions of Israel" (1910), etc.

Chicago Drainage Canal. A canal which extends from the west fork of the south branch of the Chicago River in Robey street, Chicago, to Lockport, Illinois, a distance of about 28 miles, and thence to Joliet, a further distance of 7 miles. It discharges the sewage of Chicago into the Illinois River, a branch of the Mississippi. Work was begun in 1892 and the canal was formally opened in 1900, having cost $33,000,000. It is designed to be also used for shipping and is flushed by 300,000 cubic feet of water (drawn from Lake Michigan) per minute. The flow reverses the direction of that of the Chicago River.

Chicago Exposition. See ★World's Columbian Exposition.

Chicago Heights (shi-kä′gō hīts). A city in Cook County, in the northeastern part of Illinois. It was incorporated in 1901. Manufacturing is the most important industry, the products including chemicals, brick, iron and steel goods, stoves, glass, etc. Population, 14,525, (1910).

Chickamauga National Park. A national reservation in Georgia, containing the battlefield of Chickamauga. It has an area of about fifteen square miles, comprising parts of Walker and Catoosa counties. It was dedicated in September, 1895.

Chickasha (chik′a-shā). A city in Grady County, Oklahoma, 34 miles south of El Reno. It is situated in a fruitful agricultural region, and has manufactories of lumber, flour, agricultural implements, etc. Stock-raising is an important industry. Population, 10,320, (1910).

Children of the Abbey, The. A story by Mrs. Regina Maria Roche, published in 1798.

Chillicothe (chil-i-koth′ē). The county-seat of Livingston County, Missouri. The important industries are agriculture, stock-raising, coal-mining, and manufacturing. The Missouri Industrial School for Girls and a normal school are at Chillicothe. Population, 6,265, (1910).

China*. Steps have been taken toward the ultimate establishment of a constitutional government. Manchuria was occupied by Russia as a result of the "Boxer" uprising in 1900, but was restored to China, with the exception of the Liao-tung Peninsula, by the treaty of Portsmouth, Sept. 5, 1905. By the treaty of Dec. 22, 1905, China leased to Japan the Liao-tung Peninsula and ceded the control of the railways as far as Chang-chun, and the right to construct a railway from Antung to Mukden, and agreed to open 16 Manchurian ports and cities to foreign commerce. On Nov. 21, 1906, regulations were issued providing for a gradual decrease in the use, growth, and importation of opium. Provincial assemblies were inaugurated in October, 1909, and the first Imperial Senate met in October, 1910.

Chinam-pho, Chinnampo (chē-näm-pō′). A free port on the western coast of Korea, about one hundred miles northwest of Seul. Population, upward of 17,000.

Chisholm (chiz′ọm). A village in St. Louis County, Minnesota, incorporated from part of Stuntz township in 1901. Population, 7,684, (1910).

Chittenden (chit′en-den), Russell Henry. Born at New Haven, Conn., Feb. 18, 1856. An American chemist, professor of physiological chemistry at Yale University from 1882, and director of the Sheffield Scientific School (Yale) from 1898. He was graduated at Yale in 1875. His most important publications are "Studies in Physiological Chemistry" and "Physiological Economy in Nutrition."

Chivers (chiv′ėrz), Thomas Holley. Born at Digby Manor, Wilkes County, Ga., in 1807: died at Decatur, Ga., Dec. 18, 1858. An American poet. He studied medicine, but soon abandoned it for literature. He was a friend and admirer of Edgar Allan Poe (whom he first met in New York in 1845), though he accused Poe of plagiarizing him. To substantiate this claim he published several articles in 1853, under the pseudonym "Fiat Justitia." He published nine volumes of verse.

Choate (chōt), Joseph Hodges. Born at Salem, Mass., Jan. 24, 1832. A noted American lawyer, orator, and diplomatist, first cousin, once removed, of Rufus Choate. He was graduated at Harvard in 1852, and was admitted to the Massachusetts bar in 1855 and to the New York bar in 1856. In 1871, as a member of the Committee of Seventy, he aided in the overthrow of the "Tweed Ring" in New York. He was United States ambassador to Great Britain 1899–1905, and in 1907 was delegate to the International Peace Conference at The Hague. He has published "Abraham Lincoln, and Other Addresses in England" (1910), etc.

Cholmondeley (chum′li), Mary. Born at Hodnet, Shropshire, England. A contemporary English novelist. Her best-known works are "The Danvers Jewels" (1887: written under the pseudonym "Pax"), "Diana Tempest" (1893), "Red Pottage" (1899), "Prisoners" (1906), "The Lowest Rung" (1908), "Hand on the Latch" (1909), etc.

Chouart (shō-ärʹ), Medard: known as Sieur des Groseilliers. Born at Brie, France, 1621. An early Canadian explorer. He left France when about 16 years of age, and became a trader among the Huron Indians. With the Sieur Radisson (Pierre d'Esprit), he discovered the upper Mississippi and explored the country in the region of Lake Superior (1659–60). In 1662 he made a journey from Quebec to Hudson Bay. He went to England and secured the indorsement of Prince Rupert and other eminent men for an expedition to Hudson Bay by a northwest passage, which was successfully carried out in 1668, and as a result of which the Hudson Bay Company was chartered in 1670. See Century Atlas, Map 4.

Christian Endeavor, Young People's Society of. A society originated in 1881 by Francis E. Clark, pastor of the Williston Congregational Church in Portland, Maine. Its object is to make young people loyal members of the church. It is directed by a central corporation (the United Society) and local societies (numbering in both hemispheres over 70,000), in connection with evangelical churches. The total membership is nearly four millions.

Christie's (kris′tiz). A noted auction-room in London. On December 5, 1766, the first James Christie (1730–1803) held his initial public auction on the site of the United Service Club in Pall Mall. The business was at first general, but the picture sales soon became the chief attraction. The "private view-day" was especially popular with the prominent people of the time. The first Christie was succeeded by James Christie the second (1773–1831), who in 1824 moved to the present location at 8 King street. The two sons of James Christie second, James Stirling (died 1834) and George Henry, succeeded him. The present firm name of "Christie, Manson, and Woods" was created in 1859.

Chrysander (krē′sän-der), Friedrich. Born at Lübtheen, Germany, July 8, 1826: died at Bergedorf, September 3, 1901. A German musical historian and biographer. His chief work is his biography of Handel, unfinished, in three volumes (1858–67). From 1868–71 and 1875–82 he was editor of the "Allgemeine Musikalische Zeitung," and he founded the "Vierteljahrsschrift für Musikwissenschaft." He was the founder of the German Handelgesellschaft and edited its complete edition of Handel's works.

Church (chėrch), Richard William. Born at Lisbon, April 25, 1815: died at Dover, England, Dec. 9, 1890. An English clergyman and writer, dean of St. Paul's 1871–90. He lived in Florence 1818–28; was graduated at Oxford in 1836; was fellow of Oriel 1838–52; was ordained priest in 1852; and received the living of Whatley in Somerset in the same year. He was select preacher at Oxford 1868, 1876–78, and 1881–82. He wrote "Anselm" (1843: enlarged 1870), "Dante" (1850), "Spenser" (1879), "Bacon" (1884), "A History of the Oxford Movement" (1891), etc.

Churchill (chėrch′il), Winston. Born at St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 10, 1871. An American novelist. He was graduated from the United States Naval Academy in 1894, and has been a member of the New Hampshire legislature. He has worked chiefly in the fields of historical and political fiction. Among his works are "Richard Carvel" (1899), "The Crisis" (1901), "The Crossing" (1904), "The Title Mart," a play (1905), "Coniston" (1906), "Mr. Crewe's Career" (1908), "A Modern Chronicle" (1910), etc.

Churchill (chėrch′il), Winston Leonard Spencer. Born Nov. 30, 1874. An English war correspondent, author, and cabinet officer, son of Lord Randolph Churchill. He entered the army and served with the Spanish forces in Cuba as correspondent for the "Daily Graphic" in 1895, with the Malakand field force in 1897, and with the Nile expeditionary force in 1898. He was correspondent for the London "Morning Post" during the South African campaign 1899–1900, and was taken prisoner in action Nov. 15, 1899, but escaped Dec. 12. As a Conservative he was elected from Oldham to the House of Commons in 1900, and as a Liberal sat for Northwest Manchester 1906–08 and for Dundee 1908–. His change of party was largely due to his attitude toward Brodrick's army and Chamberlain's fiscal proposals. He was under-secretary to the colonial office 1906–08, president of the board of trade 1908–10, and home secretary 1910–. He has written "The Story of the Malakand Field Force" (1898), "The River War" (1899), "Savrola" (1900), "London to Ladysmith via Pretoria" (1900), "Ian Hamilton's March" (1900), "Lord Randolph Churchill" (1906), and "My African Journey" (1908).

Cicero (sis′ę-rō). A town in Cook County, Illinois. Population, 14,557, (1910).

Cicerone (chē-che-rō′nā). A noted guide-book by Jakob Burckhardt which contains a historic and descriptive account of the ancient and modern art of Italy. The first edition was published at Basel in 1855 in seven small volumes.

Cilea (chi-lā′ä), Francesco. Born at Palmi, Calabria, July 29, 1866. An Italian composer. He has written mostly for the operatic stage, and his works include "Gina" (1889), "La Tilda" (1892), "L'Arlesiana" (1896), "Adrienne Lecouvreur" (1902), which has been sung in America, and "Gloria" (1907). He has also written an orchestral suite, some piano pieces, a trio, and a sonata for cello and piano.

Cincinnati, University of. See ★University of Cincinnati.

City and Suburban, The. An English handicap race-meeting held at Epsom in April. Its course is 1¼ miles.

City Club. A New York club for men, incorporated in 1892. Its object is to aid in securing permanent good government for the city of New York through the election and appointment of honest and able municipal officers and the establishment of a clear and stable system of city laws. It has over 1,300 members. Its house is at 55 West 44th street.

Ciudad Juárez (thē-ü-däᵺʹ hwä′rāth). The present name of El Paso del Norte.

Clark (klärk), Alvan Graham. Born at Fall River, Mass., July 10, 1832: died at Cambridge, Mass., June 9, 1897. An American optician and astronomer, son of Alvan Clark. He became a member of the firm of Alvan Clark and Company in 1852, and completed the telescope for the Lick Observatory (36 inches). He made the 30-inch refractor for the Imperial Observatory at St. Petersburg, for which he was presented with a gold medal by the emperor; the 40-inch lens for the Yerkes Observatory of the University of Chicago (at Williams Bay, Wis.); and many others. He was also known as an astronomer, and made many discoveries of double stars, among them that of the companion of Sirius, for which he was awarded the Lalande gold medal by the French Academy.

Clark (klärk), Champ. Born in Anderson

County, Ky., March 7, 1850. An American Democratic politician. He was educated at Kentucky University, Bethany College, and the Cincinnati Law School; was president of Marshall College 1873–74; was admitted to the bar in 1875, and subsequently practised law in Missouri; was a member of the House of Representatives 1889–91; and was a member of Congress from Missouri 1893–95 and 1897–. He became speaker of the House in 1911.

Clark (klärk), Charles Edgar. Born at Bradford, Vt., Aug. 10, 1843. An American naval officer, promoted rear-admiral in 1902. He was ordered, with his class at the United States Naval Academy, into active service in 1863; took part in the battle of Mobile Bay and the bombardment of Fort Morgan; and rose to the rank of captain in 1896. At the outbreak of the war with Spain (1898) he was appointed to the command of the battle-ship Oregon, then in San Francisco, and with remarkable skill and success brought her to Key West, upward of 14,000 miles, in time to take a very important part in the battle of Santiago. He retired in 1905.

Clark (klärk), John Bates. Born at Providence, R. I., Jan. 26, 1847. An American political economist and educator. He was graduated at Amherst College in 1872, and later studied in the universities of Heidelberg and Zurich. Since 1895 he has held a chair of political economy in Columbia University. He has written "The Philosophy of Wealth" (1885), "The Distribution of Wealth" (1899), "The Control of Trusts" (1901), "The Problem of Monopoly" (1904), "Essentials of Economic Theory" (1907), besides monographs, parts of joint publications, and many contributions to reviews.

Clark (klärk), Walter Appleton. Born at Worcester, Mass., 1876: died at New York, Dec. 27, 1906. An American artist and illustrator.

Clark (klärk), William Bullock. Born at Brattleboro, Vt., Dec. 15, 1860. An American geologist, professor and director of the geological laboratory in Johns Hopkins University from 1894. He was graduated at Amherst College in 1884, studied abroad, and became instructor (1887) and later associate professor (1892–94) in Johns Hopkins University. Since 1896 he has been State geologist of Maryland and geologist on the staff of the United States Geological Survey. He was also appointed by the governor of Maryland, in 1900, commissioner for that State in the rerunning of Mason and Dixon's line.

Clarke (klärk), Sir Caspar Purdon. Born at London, 1846: died there, March 29, 1911. A British archæologist, director of the Metropolitan Museum in the city of New York 1905–10. He was connected with the South Kensington Museum, London, from 1862, becoming in 1883 keeper of the Indian collections, in 1892 keeper of the art collections, in 1893 assistant director, and in 1896 director. In 1878 he was made a chevalier of the Legion of Honor, in 1883 a companion of the Indian Empire, and a commander of the Victorian Order in 1905. He was knighted in 1902.

Clarke (klärk), John Mason. Born at Canandaigua, N. Y., April 15, 1857. An American naturalist, director of the New York State Museum. He was graduated at Amherst College in 1877; studied at Göttingen; was professor of geology and mineralogy at Smith College, Northampton, Massachusetts, 1881–84; has been professor of geology at the Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, Troy, New York, since 1894; and became assistant State geologist in 1894, State paleontologist in 1898, and State geologist and paleontologist in 1904. He has published numerous scientific books and monographs.

Clarksburg (klärks'bėrg). The county-seat of Harrison County, West Virginia, on the west branch of the Monongahela River 58 miles southeast of Wheeling. The surrounding region contains valuable deposits of coal and oil. The manufactures include glass, miners' supplies, woolen goods, etc. The Broaddus and St. Mary's institutes are at Clarksburg. Population, 9,201, (1910).

Clarksville (klärks'vil). The county-seat of Montgomery County, Tennessee, lying on the north bank of the Cumberland, near the mouth of the Red River. It is an important shipping-point for tobacco, and is the seat of the Southwestern University (Presbyterian) and a Methodist seminary for girls. Population, 8,548, (1910).

Claypole, or Claypoole (klā'pōl), Mrs. (Elizabeth Cromwell). Born July 2, 1629: died Aug. 6, 1658. The youngest daughter of Oliver Cromwell. She is said to have interceded with her father in behalf of many Royalist offenders. She was buried in Henry VII.'s chapel in Westminster Abbey, but after the Restoration her body was taken up and cast, with others, into a pit.

Clear (klēr), Claudius. See ★Nicoll.

Clearfield (klēr'fēld). The county-seat of Clearfield County, Pennsylvania, about 90 miles northeast of Pittsburg. It has machine-shops, lumber-mills, flour-mills, brick-yards, etc. There are deposits of coal and fire-clay in the vicinity. Population, 6,851, (1910).

Cleburne (klē'bėrn). The county-seat of Johnson County, Texas, about 45 miles southwest of Dallas. It is an active trade-center for grain, fruit, live stock, wool, and cotton, and has flour-mills, railroad shops, etc. Population, 10,364, (1910).

Cleburne (klē'bėrn), Patrick Ronayne. Born near Cork, Ireland, March 17, 1828: died at the battle of Franklin, Tenn., Nov. 30, 1864. An American soldier, a general in the Confederate army. He served in the British army for three years, and came to America in 1849. He was admitted to the bar in Arkansas in 1855, and practised until the outbreak of the Civil War, when he enlisted as a private. He rose to be commander of a corps, and was distinguished for his courage and skill, which earned for him the title of the "Stonewall of the West" (in allusion to "Stonewall" Jackson).

Clemens*, Samuel Langhorne: pseudonym Mark Twain. Among his later works are "Pudd'nhead Wilson" (1893–94 (serially) and 1895), "Personal Recollections of Joan of Arc" (1896), "Following the Equator" (1897), "The Man that Corrupted Hadleyburg" (1900), "The Jumping Frog" (1903), "Extracts from Adam's Diary" (1904), "A Dog's Tale" (1904), "Editorial Wild Oats" (1905), "Eve's Diary" (1906), "The $30,000 Bequest" (1906), "A Horse's Tale" (1907), "Christian Science" (1907), "Is Shakespeare Dead?" (1909).

Clement (klem'ent), Clara Erskine. See ★Waters.

Clément (klā-moṅ'), Edmond Jean Frédéric. A contemporary French tenor. After winning the first prize at the Paris Conservatory, he became a member of the Opéra Comique. He made his New York début in 1909 with the Metropolitan Opera Company at the New Theater, singing the title part of "Werther," and toured in America in concert in 1910–11. He has achieved his greatest success in lyric rôles, such as Des Grieux in Massenet's "Manon" and Fra Diavolo.

Clements (klem'ents), Frederic Edward. Born at Lincoln, Neb., Sept. 16, 1874. An American naturalist, professor of botany in the University of Minnesota from 1907. He taught in the University of Nebraska 1894–1907. His studies relate especially to experimental evolution, alpine vegetation, and forest ecology.

Cleopas (klē-ō'pas). According to the account in Luke (chapter xxiv.), one of the two disciples who were accompanied by the risen Jesus in their walk to Emmaus.

Clerke (klärk), Agnes Mary. Born in Ireland, Feb. 10, 1842: died at London, Jan. 20, 1907. A British astronomer. She made astronomical observations at the Royal Observatory, Cape of Good Hope, in 1888; won the Actonian prize in 1893; and in 1901 wrote the Hodgkins essay on low temperature research at the Royal Institution. Her works include "The System of the Stars" (1890), "The Herschels and Modern Astronomy" (1895), "Astronomy" (1898: with A. Fowler and J. E. Gore), and "Problems in Astrophysics" (1903).

Cleveland (klēv'land). The county-seat of Bradley County, Tennessee, situated 26 miles northeast of Chattanooga. It has woolen- and flour-mills, foundries, lumber-mills, etc., and is the seat of the Centenary Female College. Population, 5,549, (1910).

Cleveland*, (Stephen) Grover. He wrote "Presidential Problems" (1904), "Fishing and Shooting Sketches" (1907), "Good Citizenship" (1908), "Addresses, State Papers, and Letters" (ed. by A. E. Bergh, 1909), etc.

Cleveland National Forest. A forest reserve in California, formerly known as the San Jacinto and renamed in 1908 by President Roosevelt in honor of President Cleveland. See ★National Forests.

Clifden (klif'den). A market-town and seaport of County Galway, Ireland, situated about 43 miles northwest of Galway, on an inlet of Ardbear Harbor. It is a wireless telegraph station. Commercial messages have been transmitted between it and Glace Bay, Nova Scotia, since 1907.

Clifford (klif'ord), John. Born at Sawley, Derbyshire, Oct. 16, 1836. An English Baptist, minister of the Westbourne Park Chapel, London, since 1877. He was minister of the Praed Street Chapel, London, 1858–77, president of the London Baptist Association 1879, of the Baptist Union 1888 and 1899, of the National Council of Evangelical Churches 1898, and of the Baptist World Alliance 1905–11. He advocated and led the opposition to the Education Act of 1902 by a method which became known as "passive resistance." He has published "The Fight for Education: Clericalism in British Politics" (1902), "The Ultimate Problems of Christianity" (1906), etc.

Clifton Forge (klif'ton fōrj). An independent city in Virginia, formerly in Alleghany County, about 45 miles northwest of Lynchburg. Iron-mining and the manufacture of powder are its principal industries. Population, 5,748, (1910).

Clinton (klin'ton). The county-seat of Dewitt County, Illinois, 23 miles south of Bloomington. It has railroad shops, machine-shops, iron-works, etc. Population, 5,165, (1910).

Clinton (klin'ton). A city in Vermilion County, Indiana, 13 miles north of Terre Haute. It has coal-mining interests. Population, 6,229, (1910).

Cloquet (klō-kā'). A city in Carlton County, Minnesota, on the south bank of the St. Louis River 17 miles southwest of Duluth. It has lumber-mills and manufactories of boxes, paper, etc. Population, 7,031, (1910).

Coaldale (kōl'dāl). A borough in Schuylkill County, Pennsylvania, incorporated in 1906. Its chief industry is the mining and breaking of coal. Population, 5,154, (1910).

Coamo (kō'ä-mō). A city in the eastern part of Ponce department, Porto Rico, situated on the Coamo River. It is a place of resort on account of its thermal medicinal baths. Population, 3,869, (1910); municipality, 17,129, (1910).

Coast Ranges*. According to the U. S. Geog. Board (1907), they extend northward into Canada and southward into Lower California, and include all mountains west of Puget Sound and the Willamette, Sacramento, and San Joaquin valleys, and southwest of Mohave Desert.

Coatesville (kōts'vil). A borough in Chester County, Pennsylvania, 32 miles west of Philadelphia. It is an active manufacturing center, with foundries, iron- and steel-works, boiler-works, silk- and woolen-mills, etc. Population, 11,084, (1910).

Cobalt (kō'bâlt). A mining village in Coleman township, Ontario, Canada, about 340 miles north of Toronto. It has become famous for its silver mines.

Cobden-Sanderson (kob'den-san'dėr-son), Thomas J. Born 1840. An English bookbinder. After a short stay with the binder Coverley, he began practice, with his wife as assistant. The Doves Press (Hammersmith), which he founded, was much influenced by William Morris and Walter Crane.

Cobet (kō-bet'), Carel Gabriel. Born at Paris, Nov. 28, 1813: died at Leyden, Oct. 26, 1889. A Dutch philologist, paleographer, and classical scholar. He was educated at The Hague gymnasium and at the University of Leyden, and was professor at Leyden from 1846 (emeritus 1884). In 1856 he became joint editor of "Mnemosyne," a philological review. He published "Variæ lectiones" (1854), "Novæ lectiones" (1858), "Miscellanea critica" (1876), "Collectanea critica" (1878), etc.

Cochin China*, French. It is now represented in the parliament at Paris by one deputy.

Cockran (kok'ran), William Bourke. Born in Ireland, Feb. 28, 1854. An American lawyer and politician. He came to the United States in 1871; has long been identified with politics in New York city; and has been a member (Democratic) of Congress 1887–89, 1891–95, and 1904–09.

Cœur d'Alene (kėr dā-lān'). A city in Kootenai County, Idaho, 30 miles east of Spokane. It is situated in a mining district. Population, 7,291, (1910).

Coffeyville (kof'i-vil). A city in Montgomery County, Kansas, 75 miles southwest of Fort Scott. It has an oil-refinery, flour-mills, glass-factories, brick-works, chemical works, etc., and is a shipping-point for grain. Population, 12,687, (1910).

Coghlan (kōg'lan), Joseph Bullock. Born at Frankfort, Ky., Dec. 8, 1844: died at New Rochelle, N. Y., Dec. 5, 1908. An American naval officer, promoted rear-admiral in 1902. He was graduated at the United States Naval Academy in 1863. At the battle of Manila Bay, May 1, 1898, he commanded the cruiser Raleigh. He was second in command of the North Atlantic fleet 1902–04; was appointed commandant of the Navy-yard, New York, in 1904; and retired in December, 1906.

Colchester (kōl'ches-tėr). A town in Chittenden County, Vermont, near Lake Champlain, 6 miles northeast of Burlington. It has manufactories of lumber, carriages, cotton and woolen goods, etc. Population, 6,450, (1910).

Cole*, Timothy. His latest works include "Old Dutch and Flemish Masters" (1895: text by John C. Van Dyke); "Old English Masters" (1902: notes by John C. Van Dyke and comments by the engraver); "Old Spanish Masters" (1907: text by Charles H. Caffin). A series of engravings of "Masterpieces in American Galleries" is appearing in "The Century Magazine" (1910–).

Coleman (kōl'man), Charles Caryl. Born at Buffalo, N. Y., 1840. An American painter. In 1859 he went to Europe to study art, but returned to serve three years in the Federal army in the Civil War. Since 1866 he has lived and worked in Europe, his studio now being on the island of Capri, Italy.

Coleridge-Taylor (kōl'rij-tā'lor), Samuel. Born at London, Aug. 15, 1875, of a full-blooded African father and an English mother. An English composer. His principal works are the three cantatas comprised in "Scenes from the Song of Hiawatha," the oratorio "The Atonement," songs, and a number of pianò-pieces in which he has reproduced certain characteristics of negro music.

Colgate University. An institution of learning situated at Hamilton, New York, founded in 1819 originally for the education of Baptist ministers. It comprises a college and a theological seminary, with a large preparatory school, Colgate Academy. In 1835 the exclusive ministerial charter of the school was given up, and in 1846 the collegiate department was incorporated under the name of "Madison University"; this name was changed to "Colgate University" in 1890, in honor of William Colgate and his sons, who for many years had been its leading patrons. The faculty numbers about 50 professors and instructors, and the students about 550.

Colin Tampon. A nickname for a Swiss.

College of St. Francis Xavier, The. A college in New York city conducted by the fathers of the Society of Jesus, founded in 1847 and chartered in 1861. It is the outgrowth of the first Latin school in New York, opened in 1683. A high school is connected with it. The present name was adopted in 1850.

College of the City of New York. An institution of learning, free to all young men of New York city. It is the outgrowth of the Free Academy of New York (established in 1848); the present name was adopted in 1908. The institution is governed by trustees, appointed by the mayor of New York and the president of the Board of Education, who is ex officio a trustee. The college course is four years in length, preceded by a subfreshman course with a minimum requirement of three years of residence, in which students are directly prepared for the college. Degrees are granted in arts and science. New buildings at 138th street and St. Nicholas Avenue, New York, for which nearly $6,000,000 have been appropriated, were ready for occupancy in September, 1907.

Collins (kol'inz), John Churton. Born at Bourton-on-the-Water, Gloucestershire, England, March 26, 1848: died at Lowestoft, Sept. 15, 1908. An English author, lecturer, and educator, professor of English literature at Birmingham from 1904. He was graduated at Balliol College, Oxford, in 1872. Among his publications are "The Study of English Literature at the Universities" (1891), "Jonathan Swift" (1893), "Essays and Studies" (1895), "Ephemera Critica" (1901), "Studies in Shakespeare" (1904), and "Studies in Poetry and Criticism" (1905).

Collinson (kol'in-son), Sir Richard. Born at Gateshead, 1811: died at Ealing, September 13, 1883. An English admiral and arctic explorer. He commanded the expedition in search of Sir John Franklin 1850–54, and was shut up with the Enterprise in the arctic regions for three years, wintering 1851–1852 at the southern entrance to Prince of Wales Strait, 1852–53 in Cambridge Bay, and 1853–54 in Camden Bay. His contribution to geographical knowledge was large and nearly amounted to the discovery of the Northwest Passage, which was actually achieved by his subordinate M'Clure in the Investigator. He was knighted in 1875.

Collinsville (kol'inz-vil). A city in Madison County, Illinois, 11 miles northeast of East St. Louis. It has coal-mines, brick-factories, zinc-works, a lead-smelter, etc. Population, 7,478, (1910).

Colombia*, Republic of. The republic is divided into thirteen departments, according to decree of April, 1910, as follows: Antioquia, Bolivar, Boyaca, Caldas, Cauca, Cundinamarca, Huila, Magdalena, Nariño, Panama (language of the decree), Santander, Tolima, Valle. In November, 1903, after a bloodless revolution, Panama was declared independent of Colombia.

Colonial Dames of America. 1. A patriotic society of women organized in the city of New York, May 23, 1890, and incorporated April 23, 1891. Its object is to collect and preserve relics, traditions, etc., relating to the early history of the United States and to the War of Independence, and to educate the young in the history of their country by means of the celebration of events of national importance, etc.

2. A similar but distinct society, with branches in 36 States and a membership of over 5,500 women lineally descended from Colonial ancestry. Its object is to preserve or restore manuscripts, traditions, relics, and buildings connected with the Colonial period; to diffuse information concerning, and to create a popular interest in, the Colonial period; and to stimulate, especially in the young, a spirit of true patriotism and a genuine love of country. The society was organized in April, 1891.

Colonne (kō-lon'), Édouard. Born at Bordeaux, France, July 24, 1838: died at Paris, March 28, 1910. A distinguished French musical conductor. He founded the famous "Concerts du Châtelet" in Paris in 1874, and conducted them until his death. In these he brought out a very large number of musical works new to Paris; did much for the spread of Berlioz's fame; and introduced the music of Brahms, Wagner, and other moderns.

Colony Club, The. A New York city club for women, incorporated April 5, 1905, for social purposes. It has 1,000 members. Its house is at 122 Madison Avenue.

Colorado (kol-ō-rä'dō) College. A non-sectarian, coeducational institution of learning situated at Colorado Springs, Colorado. The college was established in 1874 and a school of engineering was organized in 1902 and one of forestry in 1906. The number of students is about 600.

Colorado (kol-ō-rä'dō) Desert. A desert region in southern California, lying in Imperial County and extending into Lower California.

Colquhoun (kō-hön'), Archibald Ross. Born at sea off the Cape of Good Hope, March, 1848. A Scotch engineer, traveler, and writer. He has held various official positions in India, Siam, and Upper Burma; was the "Times" correspondent in the Franco-Chinese war and the far East 1883–84; accompanied the pioneer expedition to South Africa in 1890; and upon the occupation of Mashonaland was made administrator. He retired in 1894. He has traveled and explored extensively in many parts of the world. He is the author of "Across Chrysê" (1883), "China in Transformation" (1898), "The 'Overland' to China" (1900), "The Renascence of South Africa" (1900), "The Mastery of the Pacific" (1902), "Greater America" (1904), "The Africander Land" (1906), "From Dan to Beersheba" (1908), etc.

Columbus (kō-lum'bus). The county-seat of Platte County, Nebraska, situated on Loup Fork 55 miles northwest of Lincoln. It has flour-mills, a shoe-factory, etc., and lumber interests. Population, 5,014, (1910).

Colvin (kol'vin), Sir Sidney. Born at Norwood, England, June 18, 1845. An English writer and critic. He was educated at Trinity College, Cambridge; was Slade professor of the fine arts at Cambridge 1873–85; and held the directorship of the Fitzwilliam Museum 1876–84. He was appointed keeper of prints and drawings in the British Museum in 1884. He has published "Children in Italian and English Design" (1872), "Landor" (1881), "Keats" (1887), "A Florentine Picture Chronicle" (1898), "The Early History of Engraving in England" (1901), etc.; and has edited Robert Louis Stevenson's works (1894–98: 27 vols.), together with his "Letters" (1899: 2 vols., and 1911: 4 vols.). Knighted Jan. 1, 1911.

Combs (kōmz), Leslie. Born at Little Compton, R. I., July 31, 1852. An American diplomatist. In 1900 he was chairman of the Republican executive committee of Kentucky. He was minister to Guatemala and Honduras 1902–06, and was appointed minister to Peru in 1906.

Commerson (ko-mer-sôṅ'), Philibert. Born at Châtillon-les-Dombes, France, in 1727: died at Mauritius in 1773. A French naturalist. He studied medicine at Montpellier, taking his degree in 1755; became a collector of plants, and traveled through Europe in search of specimens; wrote a description of the fishes of the Mediterranean at the request of Linnæus; and in 1767 set out with Bougainville on his expedition around the world. During this voyage he made many drawings and collected many specimens of plants and animals. At Mauritius he remained for special researches, visiting Réunion and Madagascar, but died at Mauritius before he could publish the results of his labors.

Commons (kom'ənz), John Rogers. Born at Hollandsburg, Ohio, Oct. 13, 1862. An American political economist, professor in the University of Wisconsin from 1904. In 1892 he became professor of sociology in Oberlin College, subsequently holding similar positions in Indiana and Syracuse universities. In 1901 he acted as expert for the Industrial Commission, and in 1904 became director of the American Bureau of Industrial Research. His published works include "Social Reform and the Church," "Proportional Representation," "Trade Unionism and Labor Problems," and "Races and Immigrants in America."

Commonwealth of Australia. The federal union of the British colonies ("original states") of New South Wales, Victoria, Queensland, South Australia, Western Australia, and Tasmania, proclaimed Jan. 1, 1901. Legislative power is invested in a federal parliament, consisting of the king, represented by a governor-general; a senate of thirty-six members (six for each of the original states), chosen for six years; and a house of representatives to consist, as nearly as may be, of twice as many members as there are senators, chosen in proportion to the population, but not less than five for any state. The executive is assisted by a council of ministers of state. The seat of the federal government is at Melbourne, but the Yass-Canberra district, New South Wales, was acquired by the Commonwealth in January, 1911, and is the future site. In 1905 the administration of New Guinea, or Papua, was transferred to the Commonwealth, and the Northern Territory passed from the jurisdiction of South Australia to that of the federal government Jan. 1, 1911. Area, 2,974,581 square miles. Population, 4,275,306.

Comstock (kom'stok), George Cary. Born at Madison, Wis., Feb. 12, 1855. An American astronomer, professor in the University of Wisconsin from 1887, and director of the Washburn Observatory from 1889. He has published a "Text-book of Astronomy" (1900) and "Field Astronomy for Engineers" (1902), and has edited a number of volumes of the publications of the Washburn Observatory.

Conaty (kon'ə-ti), Thomas James. Born in Ireland, Aug. 1, 1847. An American Roman Catholic prelate, bishop of Monterey and Los Angeles, California, since 1903. He was ordained to the priesthood in 1872; was pastor of the Church of the Sacred Heart at Worcester, Massachusetts, 1880–97; and in 1896 was appointed rector of the Catholic University at Washington. In 1897 the title of domestic prelate was conferred upon him by Pope Leo XIII., and he was consecrated titular bishop of Samos in 1901. In 1892 he helped to establish the Catholic summer school at Plattsburg, New York, of which he was president till 1896.

Concord (kong'kord). The county-seat of Cabarrus County, North Carolina, 18 miles northeast of Charlotte. It is in a cotton-growing district, and has cotton-factories, machine-shops, etc. Population, 8,715, (1910).

Cone (kōn), Helen Gray. Born at New York, March 8, 1859. An American writer, professor of English in New York Normal College from 1899. She has published "Oberon and Puck: Verses Grave and Gay" (1885), "The Ride to the Lady, and other Poems" (1891), "Soldiers of the Light" (1910).

Congressional Library. See ★Library of Congress.

Conklin (kongk'lin), Edwin Grant. Born at Waldo, Ohio, Nov. 24, 1863. An American zoölogist, professor in Princeton University from 1908. He was professor of biology in Ohio Wesleyan University 1891–94; of zoölogy in Northwestern University 1894–96; and of zoölogy in the University of Pennsylvania 1896–1908.

Conneau (kon-nō'), Jean. Born at Lodère, Hérault, France, Feb. 8, 1880. A French naval officer and aviator. Under the name of André Beaumont he has won several long-distance cross-country aëroplane races in Europe. Of these the most notable are a flight from Paris to Rome, 910 miles, which he made May 28–31, 1911; a "European circuit" (Paris, Utrecht, London, Paris), 948½ miles, which he covered in 58 hours, 36 minutes, June 18 to July 7, 1911; and a "British circuit" (Brooklands, Edinburgh, Glasgow, Brooklands), 1,010 miles, which he covered July 22–26, 1911.

Conneaut (kon-ē-ât'). A city in Ashtabula County, Ohio, on Conneaut Creek 2 miles from Lake Erie. It is an important shipping-point for coal, ore, and farm produce, and has railroad shops, canning-factories, flour-mills, etc. Population, 8,319, (1910).

Connersville (kon'ėrz-vil). The county-seat of Fayette County, Indiana. It has manufactories of flour, wheels, axles, wagons, mirrors, furniture, etc. Population, 7,738, (1910).

Connor (kon'ėr), Ralph. The pseudonym of Charles William Gordon.

Conrad (kon'rad), Joseph. Born in Poland, Dec. 6, 1857. An English novelist. He went to sea at an early age, and served in the merchant marine, attaining the rank of captain. Among his works are "Lord Jim" (1900), "Youth" (1902), "Typhoon" (1903), "Falk" (1903), "Nostromo" (1904), "The Secret Agent" (1907), "A Set of Six" (1908), etc.; two novels written with Ford M. Hueffer, "The Inheritors" (1901) and "Romance" (1903); a play, "One Day More" (1905); and "Razunov" (1910).

Conried (kon'rēd), Heinrich. Born at Bielitz, Silesia, Sept. 13, 1855: died at Meran, Tyrol, April 27, 1909. An Austro-American actor, stage-director, and impresario. He began his career at the Burg Theater, Vienna, as an actor, and afterward played in many German cities. He then came to New York city, becoming stage-director of the Germania Theater in 1878, where he also acted character parts; of the Thalia Theater in 1881, later of the Casino; and of the Irving Place Theater from 1892. He was appointed director of the Metropolitan Opera House in 1903, where he produced "Parsifal" during his first season and "Salome" in 1907, retiring May 1, 1908. He assisted in planning the New Theater. He received honorary decorations from the rulers of Germany, Austria, Belgium, and Italy.

Conshohocken (kon-shō-hok'ėn). A borough in Montgomery County, Pennsylvania, 13 miles northwest of Philadelphia. It has cotton- and woolen-mills, foundries, stone-quarries, etc. Population, 7,480, (1910).

Constitutional Club. A London political club established in 1883. It has a membership of 6,500. Its house is on Northumberland Avenue.

Constitutional Convention, The. In United States history, the body of delegates from the several States which framed the Federal Constitution, sitting at Philadelphia from May 25 to Sept. 17, 1787. The convention was called in accordance with the recommendation of the Annapolis Convention (which see).

Constitutional Union Party. The name adopted by the remnant of the Whig party at the South in the presidential election of 1860. Delegates from twenty States met at Baltimore, May 9, 1860, and nominated John Bell for president and Edward Everett for vice-president. A platform was adopted which sought to evade the slavery question by declaring for "the Constitution of the country, the union of the States, and the enforcement of the laws."

Contes d'Hoffmann, Les. An opera by Jacques Offenbach (words by Jules Barbier), first produced at Paris in 1881.

Converse (kon'vėrs), Frederick Shepherd. Born at Newton, Mass., Jan. 5, 1871. An American composer. He was instructor of harmony at the New England Conservatory of Music 1899–1901, and instructor of music, 1902–05, and assistant professor of music, 1903–07, at Harvard University; and is vice-president of the Boston Opera Company. Among his works are "Sonata in A"; the symphonic poems, "Festival of Pan," "Endymion's Narrative," and "The Mystic Trumpeter"; the oratorio "Job"; the operas "The Pipe of Desire" and "The Sacrifice"; string quartet in A minor; "Serenade" for male voices and orchestra; motet for male voices, "Laudate Dominum"; songs and piano-pieces.

Conway (kon'wā), Sir William Martin: known as Sir Martin. Born at Rochester, April 12, 1856. An English traveler, art critic, and geographer. He was professor of art in University College, Liverpool, 1885–88, and Slade professor of fine arts in the University of Cambridge 1901–04. He has traveled in the Himalayas, the Andes, Tierra del Fuego, Spitzbergen, etc. Among his publications are "Woodcutters of the Netherlands in the Fifteenth Century" (1884), "Early Flemish Artists" (1886), "The Bolivian Andes" (1901), "Early Tuscan Artists" (1902), "Aconcagua and Tierra del Fuego" (1902), "Great Masters" (1904), "The Alps" (1904), "No Man's Land: a History of Spitzbergen" (1906), etc.

Conze (kônt'ze), Alexander Christian Leopold. Born at Hannover, Dec. 10, 1831. A German archæologist, professor in the University of Berlin from 1877. Among his works are "Melische Tongefässe" (1862), "Reise auf der Insel Lesbos" (1865), "Die attischen Grab-reliefs" (1893–1900: with Michaelis and others), and "Archäologische Untersuchungen auf Samothrake" (1875–80: with Hauser and Niemann).

Cook (kůk), Albert Stanburrough. Born at Montville, N. J., March 6, 1853. An American philologist, professor of the English language and literature in Yale University from 1889. He was graduated at Rutgers College in 1872; studied at Göttingen, Leipsic, and Jena; was associate in English in Johns Hopkins University 1879–81; and was professor of English in the University of California 1882–89. His publications include a translation of Sievers's "Old English Grammar" (1885), and various treatises and monographs upon philological and literary topics. He is general editor of the "Yale Studies in English."

Cook (kůk), Charles Henry: pseudonym John Bickerdyke. Born at London, July, 1858. An English novelist, journalist, and writer on sports. Among his works are "An Irish Midsummer Night's Dream" (1885), "The Curiosities of Ale and Beer" (1886: with J. M. Dixon), "The Book of the All Round Angler" (1889), "Sea Fishing" (1895), "Wild Sports in Ireland" (1897), "Practical Letters to Young Sea Fishers" (1898), etc.

Cook (kůk), Frederick Albert. Born at Callicoon Depot, N. Y., June 10, 1865. An American physician and explorer. He was surgeon of the Peary arctic expedition 1891–92, and of the Belgian antarctic expedition 1897–99. In 1903 and 1906 he led expeditions for the exploration of Mount McKinley, announcing its ascent in September, 1906. In the summer of 1907 he started in an attempt to reach the north pole. He returned in 1909 and announced that he had reached the pole with two Eskimos on April 21, 1908 — a statement which was soon discredited.

Cook Islands*. They were annexed to New Zealand in June, 1901. Total population, about 6,800.

Coolidge (kō'lij), Thomas Jefferson. Born at Boston, Mass., Aug. 26, 1831. An American manufacturer and diplomatist. He was United States minister to France 1892–93, and was appointed a member of the joint high commission to adjust disputes between the United States and Canada.

Cope (kōp), Walter. Born at Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 30, 1860: died there, Nov. 3, 1902. An American architect. In 1885 he formed a partnership with John Stewardson, who was succeeded at his death by his brother Emlen L. Stewardson. They erected buildings for Bryn Mawr College, the University of Pennsylvania, and Princeton University, and also numerous churches and private residences.

Copeland (kōp'land), Edwin Bingham. Born at Monroe, Wis., Sept. 30, 1873. An American botanist, dean of the College of Agriculture of the University of the Philippines from 1909. He was botanist to the Philippine government 1903–08, and superintendent of the School of Agriculture in the Philippine Islands 1908–09. He has published "Philippine Agriculture" (1908), "Cocoanut Cultivation" (1910), etc.

Coppée*, François Édouard Joachim (called François). He wrote also an autobiographical romance, "Toute une jeunesse" (1890), "Le coupable" (1897), "La bonne souffrance" (1898), "Dans la prière et dans la lutte" (1901), "Contes pour les jours de fête" (1903), etc.

Coraopolis (kō-rā-op'ō-lis). A borough in Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, 10 miles northwest of Pittsburgh. It is in a natural-gas and oil region. Population, 5,252, (1910).

Cordele (kôr-dēl'). The county-seat of Crisp County, Georgia, 65 miles southwest of Macon. It is in a cotton-growing region, and has machine-shops, cottonseed-oil factories, etc. Population, 5,883, (1910).

Corelli (kō-rel'i), Arcangelo. Born at Fusignano, near Bologna, Italy, Feb. 12, 1653: died at Rome, Jan. 10, 1713. A noted violinist and composer, one of the early founders of the modern art of violin-playing. He had many pupils of distinction who transmitted the traditions of his style. He composed sonatas for several instruments, that are still regarded as classic.

Corelli*, Marie. She has also written "Soul of Lilith" (1892), "Free Opinions" (1905), "The Treasure of Heaven" (1906), "Holy Orders" (1908), "The Devil's Motor" (1910), etc.

Cornelius (kôr-nā'li-ös), Peter. Born at Mainz, Germany, Dec. 24, 1824: died there, Oct. 26, 1874. A German composer and poet. He was a follower of Liszt in Weimar, and a champion of Wagner, whose cause he upheld in numerous critical writings. He composed the operas "Der Barbier von Bagdad" (the failure of which in 1858 through factious opposition was the cause of Liszt's leaving Weimar), "Der Cid" (1865), "Gunlöd" (uncompleted), and many songs. He also published an autobiography (1874).

Corrigan (kor'i-gan), Michael Augustine. Born at Newark, N. J., Aug. 13, 1839: died at New York, May 5, 1902. A Roman Catholic prelate, archbishop of New York 1885–1902. He was president of Seton Hall College, South Orange, New Jersey, 1868–76; was bishop of Newark 1873–80; and was coadjutor (titular archbishop of Petra) to the Archbishop of New York 1880–85.

Corsicana (kôr-si-kan'ă). The county-seat of Navarro County, Texas, situated in an oil region about 50 miles southeast of Dallas. It has cotton-gins, cotton-compresses, machine-shops, flour-mills, etc., and an important oil industry. The State Orphan Asylum is at Corsicana. Population, 9,749, (1910).

Corson (kôr'son), Hiram. Born at Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 6, 1828: died at Ithaca, N. Y., June 15, 1911. An American scholar, author, and educator, professor at Cornell University from 1870 (emeritus, 1903). He was connected with the library of the Smithsonian Institution 1849–56; was lecturer on English literature in Philadelphia 1859–65; and was professor at Girard College 1865–66, and at St. John's College, Annapolis, 1866–70. Among his works are "Hand-book of Anglo-Saxon and Early English" (1871), "An Introduction to the Study of Robert Browning's Poetry" (1886), "An Introduction to the Study of Shakespeare" (1889), "A Primer of English Verse" (1892), "The Aims of Literary Study" (1894), "The Voice and Spiritual Education" (1896), and "An Introduction to the Prose and Poetical Works of John Milton" (1899).

Cortelyou (kôr'tel-yō), George Bruce. Born at New York, July 26, 1862. An American cabinet officer. He was assistant secretary (1898–1900) and secretary (1900–03) to Presidents McKinley and Roosevelt; was first secretary of the Department of Commerce and Labor 1903–04; was elected chairman of the Republican National Committee in June, 1904; was postmaster-general of the United States 1905–07; and was secretary of the treasury 1907–09.

Cory (kō'ri), William (Johnson). Born Jan. 9, 1823: died June 11, 1892. An English educator and poet. In 1872 he assumed the name of Cory. He wrote "Ionica" (1858: enlarged edition 1891), "Lucretilis" (1871), "Iophon" (1873), "Guide to Modern English History" (1882), etc. "Extracts from the Letters and Journals of William Cory" (1897) was published after his death.

Coshocton (kō-shok'ton). The county-seat of Coshocton County, Ohio, 23 miles north of Zanesville. It is on the Muskingum River, and is important as a shipping-point for live stock, grain, coal, etc. It has machine-shops, glass-works, manufactories of novelty goods, etc. Population, 9,603, (1910).

Cotabato (kō-tä-bä'tō), or Cottabato. 1. Formerly, a comandancia of southwestern Mindanao, Philippine Islands; now, a district of Moro province, to which a part of Mindanao belongs. It is bounded by Misamis on the north; Davao (separated by a mountain-range) on the east; the Celebes Sea on the south and southeast; and Illana Bay and Lanao district on the west. Capital, Cotabato. The southern coast is deeply indented by Sarangani Bay, near the head of which is Mount Matutum. Mountains follow the southwestern coast. The largest river, the Rio Grande de Mindanao, flows circuitously through the district southward to Lake Liguasan, thence northwestward to Illana Bay. The district is fertile but not developed. It is inhabited by Tirurayes, Moros, Subanos, and Bilans. Area, 9,572 square miles. Population, 46,558.

2. A town, the capital of Cotabato province, situated near the coast of Illana Bay, on the delta of the Rio Grande de Mindanao, in lat. 7° 12′ N., long. 124° 16′ E.

Cotes (kōts), Mrs. Everard (Sara Jeannette Duncan). Born at Brantford, Canada. A British journalist and novelist. Her first volume, "A Social Departure" (1890), included letters written from Japan and the East to the Montreal "Star," of which she had been correspondent. She has also written "An American Girl in London" (1891), "His Honour and a Lady" (1896), "Those Delightful Americans" (1902), "The Pool in the Desert" (1903), "The Imperialist" (1904), "Set in Authority" (1906), "Cousin Cinderella" (1908), "The Burnt Offering" (1909), etc.

Cottet (ko-tā'), Charles. Born at Le Puy, France, July 12, 1863. A French painter. He was a pupil of Puvis de Chavannes and of Roll, and first came into prominence as a painter of scenes on the coast of Brittany. A triptych, "Au pays de la mer," appeared in the Salon of 1898 and is now in the Luxembourg Museum. His pictures in general represent the somber aspects of the lands by the sea and the pathos and sorrows of the people.

Couch, Sir Arthur Thomas Quiller-. See ★Quiller-Couch.

Coulter (kōl'tėr). John Merle. Born at Ningpo, China, Nov. 20, 1851. An American naturalist, professor of botany in the University of Chicago from 1896. He was graduated at Hanover College, Indiana, in 1870; was professor of natural sciences there 1874–79; was professor of biology at Wabash College 1879–91; was president of, and professor of botany in, the University of Indiana 1891–93; and president of Lake Forest University 1893–96. He has been editor of the "Botanical Gazette" since 1875. His works include "A Manual of Rocky Mountain Botany" (1885), "A Manual of Texan Botany" (1891), "Morphology of Gymnosperms" (1901: with C. J. Chamberlain), "Morphology of Angiosperms" (1903: with C. J. Chamberlain), etc.

Councilman (koun'sil-man), William Thomas. Born at Pikesville, Md., Jan. 1, 1854. An American pathologist, professor in Harvard University from 1891. He was associate professor of pathology in Johns Hopkins University 1886–91.

Couperin (kōp-raṅ'), François. Born at Paris, Nov. 10, 1668: died there in 1733. A French organist and harpsichord player, and the first great composer for the harpsichord exclusively. He wrote many suites and pieces for the harpsichord, and these, as well as his method of playing the instrument, expounded in his book on the subject, had a strong influence on Bach and on the subsequent development of the art.

Courrières (kö-ri-ār'). A mining village near Béthune, Pas-de-Calais, France. An accident occurred in the mines here on March 10, 1906, by which over 1,000 miners were killed.

Courtney (kôrt'ni), Leonard Henry, Baron Courtney of Penwith. Born at Penzance, Cornwall, July 6, 1832. An English politician and author. He was professor of political economy in University College, London, 1872–75; Liberal member of the House of Commons for Liskeard, Cornwall, 1876–85; and Liberal-Unionist member for the Bodmin division of Cornwall 1885–1900. He was under-secretary of state for the home department 1880–81, and for the colonies 1881–1882; financial secretary to the treasury 1882–84; and chairman of committees and deputy speaker 1886–92. He has written "The Working Constitution of the United Kingdom and its Outgrowths" (1901), etc. He was created Baron Courtney of Penwith in 1906.

Courtney (kôrt'ni), William Leonard. Born at Poona, India, Jan. 5, 1850. An English journalist and author, editor of the "Fortnightly Review" from 1894. Among his publications are "Studies in Philosophy" (1882), "Constructive Ethics" (1886), "Life of J. S. Mill" (1889), "The Development of Maeterlinck" (1904), "The Feminine Note in Fiction" (1905), "The Literary Man's Bible" (1907), etc.

Coventry (kuv'en-tri). A town in Kent County, Rhode Island, on the Pawtuxet River, 14 miles southwest of Providence. It has manufactories of cotton and woolen goods. Population, 5,848, (1910).

Coville (kō'vil), Frederick Vernon. Born at Preston, N. Y., March 23, 1867. An American naturalist, assistant botanist of the United States Department of Agriculture and curator of the National Herbarium from 1893. In 1902 he procured the establishment, by the Carnegie Institution, of the Desert Botanical Laboratory, located at Tucson, Arizona. He has published "Botany of the Death Valley Expedition" (1893) and various scientific papers.

Cowen (kou'en), Sir Frederic Hymen. Born at Kingston, Jamaica, Jan. 29, 1852. An English composer and conductor. From 1863 to 1868 he frequently appeared as a pianist. He conducted the London Philharmonic Society 1888–92, 1900–; the concerts of the Melbourne Exposition in 1888; the Hallé Orchestra 1896–99; etc. His compositions include orchestral works (his Scandinavian symphony, 1880, bringing him into general notice), concertos, operas, songs, and choral and chamber music. He was knighted in 1911.

Coxsackie (kok-sak'i). A town in Greene County, New York, situated on the west bank of the Hudson River. Population, including that of Coxsackie village, 3,620, (1910).

Crabtree (krab'trē), Lotta: known as Lotta. Born at New York, 1847. An American actress. She made her first appearance on the stage at the age of six, and ten years later made her début in New York at Niblo's Garden. Her best-known rôle was that of the Marchioness in a dramatization of "The Old Curiosity Shop": she also appeared in "Firefly," "Topsy," "Musette," "Bob," "Nitouche," "The Little Detective," etc. She retired from the stage in 1894.

Cracker State. A popular name of the State of Georgia.

Crafts (krăfts), James Mason. Born at Boston, Mass., March 8, 1839. An American chemist, professor of organic chemistry in the Massachusetts Institute of Technology 1892–1897, and president of that institution 1897–1900.

Craigie (krā'gi), Mrs. (Pearl Mary Teresa Richards): pseudonym John Oliver Hobbes. Born at Boston, Mass., Nov. 3, 1867: died at London, Aug. 13, 1906. An American novelist and dramatist. For many years she resided in England. She published "Some Emotions and a Moral" (1891), "A Bundle of Life" (1894), "The Gods, Some Mortals, and Lord Wickenham" (1895), "The Herb-moon" (1896), "The School for Saints" (1897), "Robert Orange" (1900), "Love and the Soul-hunters" (1902), "The Dream and the Business" (1906), etc. Among her plays are "The Ambassador" (1898), "The Wisdom of the Wise" (1900), "The Flute of Pan" (1905), etc.

Craigie (krā'gi), William A. Born at Dundee, Aug. 13, 1867. A Scottish lexicographer. He studied the Scandinavian languages at Copenhagen 1892–93; was assistant and lecturer in humanity at St.

Andrews University 1893–97; and in 1897 joined the staff of the "New English Dictionary," becoming a joint editor in 1901 with Sir James Murray and Dr. Henry Bradley. He has published articles on Scottish, Gaelic, and Scandinavian subjects in various periodicals, and also "A Primer of Burns" (1896), "Religion of Ancient Scandinavia" (1906), "Skotlands Rimur" (1908), etc.

Cram (kram), Ralph Adams. Born at Hampton Falls, N. H., Dec. 16, 1863. An American architect and author. He has practised architecture since 1889, and is a member of the firm of Cram, Goodhue and Ferguson of Boston and New York, which designed important additions to the United States Military Academy at West Point. In 1911 he succeeded C. Grant La Farge as consulting architect of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine at New York. He has written "Church Building" (1901), "The Ruined Abbeys of Great Britain" (1906), "Impressions of Japanese Architecture and the Allied Arts" (1906), "The Gothic Quest" (1907), "Excalibur" (1909), etc.

Crampton (kramp'tọn), Henry Edward. Born at New York, Jan. 5, 1875. An American zoölogist, professor in Barnard College from 1904. He was instructor in embryology at Woods Hole 1895–1903, and had charge of the embryological work in the biological laboratory at Cold Spring Harbor 1904–06. He has been curator of invertebrate zoölogy in the American Museum of Natural History since 1909.

Crane (krān), Bruce. Born at New York, 1857. An American painter, a pupil of A. H. Wyant. He exhibited first at the National Academy in 1879 and was elected academician in 1902. He is a member of the American Water Color Society and was also a member of the Society of American Artists. His specialty is American landscape.

Crane (krān), Stephen. Born at Newark, N. J., November 1, 1871: died at Badenweiler, Germany, June 5, 1900. An American journalist and novelist. In 1897 he was correspondent for "The Westminster Gazette" and the New York "Journal" in the Greco-Turkish war, and in 1898 went to Cuba for the New York "World." He wrote "Maggie: a Girl of the Streets" (1891), "The Red Badge of Courage" (1895), "George's Mother" (1896), etc.

Crane (krān), William Henry. Born at Leicester, Mass., April 30, 1845. An American comedian, best known for his impersonation of eccentric American characters. He has played leading parts in "The Henrietta," "The Senator," "On Probation," "For Money," "The American Minister," "Brother John," "A Fool of Fortune," "A Virginia Courtship," "David Harum," etc. For many years he played in conjunction with Stuart Robson.

Cranston (kran'stọn). A manufacturing town in Providence County, Rhode Island. Population, 21,107, (1910).

Crawford*, Francis Marion. Among his later works are "Ave Roma Immortalis" (1898), "The Heart of Rome" (1903), "Fair Margaret" (1905), "Arethusa" (1907), "The Primadonna" (1908), "The Diva's Ruby" (1908), "The White Sister" (1909), "Stradella" (1909), "The Undesirable Governess" (1910), "Wandering Ghosts" (1911).

Creelman (krēl'man), James. Born at Montreal, Canada, Nov. 12, 1859. An American journalist and author. He was editor of the New York "Evening Telegram" 1892–93; was for sixteen years in the service of the New York "Herald" as editor and correspondent; was war correspondent for various American papers during the Chino-Japanese war, the Greco-Turkish war, the Spanish-American war, and the Philippine war (1899); was on the editorial staff of the New York "World" 1899–1906; and was associate editor of "Pearson's Magazine" 1906–10. He was a member of the New York city Board of Education and was appointed president of the Civil Service Commission of New York city in 1911. He is the author of "On the Great Highway" (1901), "Eagle Blood" (1902), "Why We Love Lincoln" (1909), "Diaz, Master of Mexico" (1910), etc.

Creighton (krī'tọn), Mandell. Born at Carlisle, England, July 5, 1843: died at London, Jan. 14, 1901. An English prelate and historical writer, bishop of London 1897–1901. He was graduated at Oxford in 1867; became professor of ecclesiastical history at Cambridge in 1884; edited the "English Historical Review" 1886–91; became canon of Worcester in 1885 and of Windsor in 1890; and was appointed bishop of Peterborough in 1891. Among his works are "The Age of Elizabeth" (1876), "Papacy During the Reformation" (1882–94: republished in 1897 as "History of the Papacy from the Great Schism to the Sack of Rome"), "Cardinal Wolsey" (1888), "Persecution and Tolerance" (1895), "Queen Elizabeth" (1896), "Thoughts on Education" (1902), etc.

Cremona (krā-mō'nä), Luigi. Born at Pavia, Italy, Dec. 7, 1830: died June 10, 1903. A noted Italian mathematician. He was appointed professor at Bologna in 1860, at the Milan Polytechnic in 1866, and at the University of Rome in 1873. In 1879 he was made a senator of the kingdom of Italy and was minister of public instruction in 1898. His works include "Introduzione ad una teoria geometrica sulle curve piane" (1862), "Preliminari di una teoria geometrica della superficie" (1867), and "Elementi di calcolo grafico" (1874).

Cresceus (kres'ē-us), An American trotting stallion, by Robert McGregor, dam Mabel, foaled in the spring of 1894. He gained the world's championship, August 2, 1901, by the record of one mile in 2:02¼ made at Columbus, Ohio; lost it in 1903 to Lou Dillon's 2 minutes; regained it October 19, 1903, at Wichita, Kansas, by a mile in 1:59¼; and again lost it to Lou Dillon, who trotted a mile in 1:58½ at Memphis, Tennessee, October 24, 1903.

Cret (krā), Paul Philippe. Born at Lyons, France, Oct. 23, 1876. A Franco-American architect. He studied architecture at Lyons and at the École des Beaux-Arts, Paris, and has been professor of design in the University of Pennsylvania since 1903. He has been the recipient of several prizes and medals, and was the architect of the Pan-American Union building at Washington, the Washington memorial arch at Valley Forge, etc.

Crete*. Since December, 1898, it has been administered by a high commissioner for the four powers France, Great Britain, Italy, and Russia. Since Aug. 14, 1906, the right of the King of the Hellenes to propose the high commissioner has been recognized by the powers. The constitution of February, 1907, provides for an Assembly of 65 deputies, elected in the proportion of 1 for every 5,000 inhabitants. In May, 1908, the powers decided gradually to withdraw their troops from the island. An effort is making in the Cretan Assembly for the establishment of Cretan autonomy under Greece. This is strongly opposed by the Young Turk party.

Crewe-Milnes (krū-milz'), Robert Offley Ashburton, first Marquis of Crewe. Born at London, Jan. 12, 1858. A British statesman, secretary of state for the colonies 1908–1910, and secretary of state for India 1910–. He was lord lieutenant of Ireland 1892–95, and lord president of the council 1905–08. Created earl of Crewe in 1895, and marquis of Crewe in 1911.

Cristofori (krēs-tō'fō-ri), Bartolommeo. Born at Padua, May 4, 1655: died at Florence, Jan. 17, 1731. An Italian instrument-maker, the inventor of the pianoforte.

Crivelli (krē-vel'lē), Carlo. Born at Venice about 1430: died after 1493. A Venetian painter. He worked chiefly in the cities of the Marches, and finally settled at Ascoli. In 1490 he was knighted by Prince Ferdinand of Capua. Among his paintings are a "Madonna with Saints," in the Brera, Milan; an "Annunciation," in the National Gallery, London; a "Magdalen," in the Berlin Museum; and a "Pietà," in the Vatican.

Crocker (krok'ėr), Francis Baker. Born at New York, July 4, 1861. An American electrical engineer and educator, professor of electrical engineering in Columbia University from 1893. He is the author of works on the management of dynamos, electric lighting, etc.

Crockett*, Samuel Rutherford. His later works include "Joan of the Sword Hand" (1900), "The Dark of the Moon" (1902), "An Adventurer in Spain" (1903), "Strong Mac" (1904), "Maid Margaret" (1905), "Cherry Ribband" (1905), "Deep Moat Grange" (1908), "The Men of the Mountain" (1909), etc.

Crofts (krôfts), Ernest. Born at Leeds, Sept. 15, 1847: died at London, March 19, 1911. An English painter of historical and military scenes. Among his pictures are "Napoleon at Ligny," "Cromwell at Marston Moor," "Marlborough after Ramillies," "Napoleon leaving Moscow," "Wellington's March to Waterloo," and the fresco "Queen Elizabeth Opening the First Royal Exchange," at the Royal Exchange, London.

Croker (krō'kėr), Richard. Born at Blackrock, Ireland, Nov. 24, 1843. An American Democratic politician. He was brought to the United States as a child and was educated in the New York public schools. He was an alderman of New York 1868–70 and 1883, coroner 1873–76, fire commissioner 1883, and city chamberlain 1889–90. He was the recognized leader ("boss") of Tammany Hall for many years.

Croll (krōl), James. Born at Little Whitefield, Perthshire, Scotland, Jan. 2, 1821: died near Perth, Dec. 15, 1890. A Scotch physical geologist. He was connected with the geological survey of Scotland 1867–80. His most important work is "Climate and Time" (1875).

Cro-Magnon (krō-mä-nyoṅ'). A cave near Les Eyzies, Dordogne, France, in which were found, in 1858, prehistoric remains consisting of portions of several skeletons. They are taken as typical of a race assumed to have inhabited southwestern Europe near the close of the Pleistocene period.

Cronje (krōn'ye), Pietrus Arnoldus. Born 1835: died Feb. 4, 1911. A Boer general, noted for his resistance to the British under Lord Methuen (who was marching to the relief of Kimberley) at the Modder River (Nov. 28, 1899), and his crushing defeat of that general at Magersfontein (Dec. 11). On the approach of Lord Roberts, in 1900, he retreated toward Bloemfontein, but was overtaken at Paardeberg and forced to surrender (Feb. 27). In the war against England in 1881 he distinguished himself at Majuba Hill, and in 1896 dispersed the raiders led by Dr. Jameson into the Transvaal.

Crookes*, Sir William. He is an authority on sanitation and has published a number of works on the subject, and he is noted for his researches into the properties of radiant matter. In 1903 he invented the spinthariscope. He is known also for his investigation of psychic phenomena.

Crookston (krůk'stọn). The county-seat of Polk County, Minnesota. It is in a fertile agricultural region in the northwestern part of the State, and is a market for farm produce. Its manufactures include lumber, farming implements, flour, wagons, etc. Population, 7,559, (1910).

Crosby (kroz'bi), Ernest Howard. Born at New York, Nov. 4, 1856: died Jan. 3, 1907. An American writer and social reformer, son of Howard Crosby. He was graduated from the University of New York in 1876 and from Columbia Law School in 1878; practised in New York 1878–89; and was appointed judge of the international court at Alexandria, Egypt, in 1889. He resigned in 1894 and returned to New York, where he devoted much attention to social reform. He wrote "Plain Talk in Psalm and Parable" (1899), "Captain Jenks, Hero" (1902), "Swords and Plowshares" (1902), "Tolstoi and his Message" (1903), "Broadcast" (1905), "Tolstoi as a Schoolmaster" (1905), "Garrison, the Non-resistant" (1905), "Labor and Neighbor" (1908), etc.

Cross (krôs), Charles Whitman. Born at Amherst, Mass., Sept. 1, 1854. An American scientist, geologist of the United States Geological Survey from 1880. He was graduated at Amherst College in 1875 and at Leipsic in 1880. He has published many geological and mineralogical papers and, with Pirsson, Iddings, and Washington, "Quantitative Classification of Igneous Rocks" (1903).

Crothers (kruᵀᴴ'ėrz), Samuel McChord. Born at Oswego, Ill., June 7, 1857. An American clergyman and author. Originally a Presbyterian, he entered the Unitarian ministry in 1882, and has been pastor of the First Church in Cambridge, Massachusetts since 1894. He has written "Miss Muffet's Christmas Party" (1901), "The Gentle Reader" (1903), "The Understanding Heart" (1903), "The Pardoner's Wallet" (1905), "The Endless Life" (1905), "Oliver Wendell Holmes and his Fellow Boarders" (1909), "Book of Friendship" (1910), etc.

Crouch (krouch), Frederick Nicholls. Born at London, July 31, 1808: died at Portland, Me., Aug. 18, 1896. An English musician, the composer of the music for the ballad "Kathleen Mavourneen." He came to the United States in 1849.

Crowe (krō), Sir Joseph Archer. Born at London, Oct. 20, 1825: died at Gamburg-on-the-Tauber, Baden, Sept. 6, 1896. An English diplomatist and connoisseur and historian of art. In 1847 he met Cavalcaselle, with whom he collaborated in "Early Flemish Painters" (1865) and other works.

Crowley (krou'li). The county-seat of Acadia Parish, Louisiana, 137 miles northwest of New Orleans. Its principal industries are the growing and milling of rice. Population, 5,099, (1910).

Crowninshield (kroun'in-shēld), Frederic. Born at Boston, Nov. 27, 1845. An American painter. He was graduated from Harvard University in 1866 and studied art for several years in Europe. From 1879 to 1885 he was instructor in drawing and painting at the school of the Boston Museum of Fine Arts. In 1885 he established a studio in New York and devoted himself to general artistic work, including glass and mural painting. In 1909 he was appointed director of the American Academy in Rome. He has published several volumes of poems and a manual of "Mural Painting" (1887).

Crozier (krō'zhėr), William. Born at Carrollton, Ohio, Feb. 19, 1855. An American soldier, inventor of a wire-wound rifled cannon, and, with General Buffington, of a disappearing gun-carriage. He was graduated from West Point in 1876; fought against the Indians in the West; was major and inspector-general of United States Volunteers in 1898 (Spanish-American war); was a delegate to the Peace Conference at The Hague in 1899; served in the suppression of the Philippine insurrection; was chief ordnance officer, under General Chaffee, in the Peking relief expedition in 1900; and was appointed brigadier-general and chief of ordnance in the United States army in 1901.

Cuadrado (kō-ä-drä'dō). A peak in the western part of Pampanga province, southwestern Luzón, Philippine Islands. Height, 5,443 feet.

Cuba*. In accordance with the requirements of the United States Congress, Cuba undertook (June 12, 1901) to make no treaty with any foreign power endangering its independence, to contract no debts for which the current revenue would not suffice, to concede to the United States government a right of intervention, and also to grant to it the use of naval stations; and on May 20, 1902, it was proclaimed a republic and the control of the island was formally transferred to the new Cuban government. On account of the breaking out of an insurrection, the United States again assumed temporary control of its affairs in September, 1906, and again withdrew in January, 1909.

Cui (kü'ē), César. Born at Vilna, Russia, Jan. 18 (N. S.), 1835. A Russian composer, by profession a military engineer. He is a representative of the neo-Russian school of music, and has written operas, also symphonies, songs, and piano-pieces.

Cuirayán (kö-i-rä-yän'). A mountain of Lepanto-Bontoc province, in the northwestern part of Luzón, Philippine Islands. Height, 6,200 feet.

Culebra (kö-lā′brä). A station on the railroad about ten miles from Panama. At this point is the deepest and most difficult cut in the Panama Canal. The width of the cut at the bottom is designed to be 300 feet for a distance of four and one half miles.

Culin (kū′lin), Robert Stewart. Born at Philadelphia, July 13, 1858. An American anthropologist, curator of ethnology in the Brooklyn Institute from 1903. He has published "Korean Games" (1896), "Chess and Playing Cards" (1896), "American Indian Games" (1905), etc.

Culión (kö-li-ōn′). The second in size of the Calamianes Islands, northeast of Paragua, Philippines. It belongs to Paragua province. Halsey Harbor on the western, and Port Culión on the eastern coast are good harbors in all weather for large vessels. Area, 153 square miles. Population, 1,051.

Culión, Port. A bay and harbor on the eastern coast of Culión Island, safe for large craft in all weather.

Cullinan Diamond. A diamond discovered in the Premier Mine, near Pretoria, in the Transvaal, Jan. 25, 1905. It was the largest ever found, weighing 3,030½ carats (English carat) and measuring 4 by 2½ by 2 inches. It was given to the King of England by the Transvaal Colony. The largest two gems cut from it were a drop briolette, of 516½ carats, called the "Star of Africa" and set for the scepter, and a square English-cut brilliant, of 309¾ carats, set for the crown; and besides these the crystal furnished a drop diamond of 92 carats, a square brilliant of 62 carats, five other fine stones of from 18½ to 4⅝ carats, and 96 smaller brilliants with an aggregate weight of 7⅞ carats, not including nine unpolished ends.

Cumberland (kum′bèr-land). A town in Providence County, in the northeastern part of Rhode Island. It manufactures cotton, silk, horseshoes, etc., and has deposits of limestone and granite, also coal and other minerals. Population, 10,107, (1910).

Cuore (kö-ō′rā). ['Heart.'] A book by Edmondo de Amicis, written in 1886. It is the daily record of the events of a school year as told by a boy pupil, to which are added letters from his parents, etc. It was translated into English by Isabel F. Hapgood in 1887.

Curie (kö-rē′), Mme. (Marie Sklodowska). Born at Warsaw, Russia, Nov. 7, 1867. A noted Polish chemist and physicist, wife of Pierre Curie. She was educated at the Lycée of Warsaw, and later studied at the Sorbonne in Paris. She is the discoverer of the element polonium and, with her husband, of radium. In 1906 she was appointed (as "chargée de cours") to the position at the Sorbonne made vacant by her husband's death, and in Nov., 1908, was appointed chief professor of physics. Among her publications are "Recherches sur les propriétés magnétiques des aciers trempés" and "Recherches sur les substances radioactives."

Curie (kö-rē′), Pierre. Born at Paris, May 15, 1859: died there, April 19, 1906. A noted French chemist. He was educated at the Sorbonne; became professor in the School of Physics and Chemistry at Paris in 1895; and was appointed professor in the faculty of sciences at the Sorbonne in 1900. Together with his wife, he made important experiments in radioactivity and discovered the element radium. They received the La Caze prize of 10,000 francs from the French Academy of Sciences in 1901, the Nobel prize for chemistry (with Professor Becquerel) in 1903, and in the same year a part of the French Osiris prize, consisting of 60,000 francs, for their services to science. In 1905 Professor Curie was elected a member of the French Academy of Sciences, succeeding Potier. He contributed many scientific articles to the "Comptes Rendus" of the Academy of Sciences, the "Journal de Physique," and the "Annales de Physique et Chimie."

Currie (kur′i), Lady (Mary Montgomerie Lamb): pseudonym, Violet Fane. Died at Harrogate, Yorkshire, Oct. 13, 1905. An English novelist and poet. She married in 1864 Henry S. Singleton; he died in 1893 and in 1894 she became the wife of Philip Henry W. (later Baron) Currie. She wrote "From Dawn to Noon" (1872), "Denzil Place" (1875), "The Story of Helen Davenant" (1888), "Two Moods of a Man" (1901), etc.

Curtin (kėr′tin), Jeremiah. Born at Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 6, 1840: died Dec. 14, 1906. An American ethnologist and writer, assistant ethnologist of the United States Bureau of Ethnology from 1883. From 1865–70 he was secretary of the United States legation at St. Petersburg, and was acting consul-general there 1865–66. He published numerous anthropological papers and translations of Polish and Russian fiction.

Curtis (kėr′tis), Heber Doust. Born at Muskegon, Mich., June 27, 1872. An American scientist, astronomer of the Lick Observatory from 1909. He was a member of the United States Naval Observatory eclipse expedition to Sumatra in 1901, and was acting astronomer in charge of the Mills expedition to the southern hemisphere 1906–09.

Curtiss (kėr′tis), Glenn Hammond. Born at Hammondsport, N. Y., May 21, 1878. An American aviator. He was director of experiments of the Aërial Experiment Association founded by Alexander Graham Bell. On July 4, 1908, he won (in an aëroplane) the prize offered by the "Scientific American" for the first flight of one kilometer. Record, 1¼ miles in 1 min. 42⅖ sec. On July 17, 1909, he made a second record for the "Scientific American" trophy (24.7 miles in 52 min. 30 sec.). At Rheims, France, on Aug. 28, 1909, he won (in a biplane) the Gordon Bennett international aviation cup, flying 20 kilometers (12.42 miles) in 15 min. 50⅖ sec. On Sept. 12, 1909, at Brescia, Italy, he won the grand prize, making a flight of 31.05 miles in 49 min. 24 sec. On May 29, 1910, he flew from Albany to New York (137 miles) in 2 hrs. 32 min.

Curzon* (kėr′zon), George Nathaniel. He has also written "Lord Curzon in India" (1906), "Frontiers" (1908), and "Principles and Methods of University Reform" (1909). In 1908 he was elected a member of the British Academy.

Cushing (kŭsh′ing), Frank Hamilton. Born at Northeast, Pa., July 22, 1857: died at Washington, April 10, 1900. An American ethnologist, especially noted for his studies of the Zuñi Indians. He published "Zuñi Fetiches" (1883), "Adventures in Zuñi" (1883), "Zuñi Folk-tales" (1901), etc.

Custer (kus′tėr), Mrs. (Elizabeth Bacon). Born at Monroe, Mich. A contemporary American writer, wife of General George Armstrong Custer, whom she accompanied in many of his campaigns. She is the author of "Boots and Saddles, or Life in Dakota with General Custer" (1885), "Tenting on the Plains" (1887), and "Following the Guidon" (1891).

Cuyler (kī′lėr), Theodore Ledyard. Born at Aurora, N. Y., Jan. 10, 1822: died at Brooklyn, Feb. 26, 1909. An American clergyman and author. He was pastor of the Lafayette Avenue Presbyterian Church, Brooklyn, 1860–90, and then retired to devote himself to temperance reform and other philanthropic work. He helped to organize the Republican party in 1856. In addition to his "Recollections of a Long Life" (1902), he was the author of many religious works, contributions to periodicals, etc.

Cuyo. See ★Cuyos Islands.

Cuyos (kö′yōs) Islands. A group of small islands in the Philippines, east of the northern part of Paragua and belonging to that province. It consists of 49 islands and rocks. The largest is Cuyo, with a small harbor and good anchorage. Its chief town, Cuyo, was formerly the capital of Paragua province. Area of the island, 21 square miles. Population, 7,545. Area of group, 47 square miles.

Cuyuni (kö-yö′ni). A river in British Guiana emptying into the Essequibo near its mouth. It rises in Venezuela and for a part of its course forms the boundary of the two countries.

Cyrano de Bergerac (sē-rä-nō′ dė bārzh-räk′). A play by Edmond Rostand, produced in 1897. The character of the hero is modeled upon that of his historic original (see Bergerac) and is sketched by the dramatist in superlatives. He is depicted as extraordinarily brave, extravagantly lavish, superbly indifferent to patronage, extremely ugly (owing to his very large nose), and loyally self-sacrificing in his love for his cousin, Roxane. The events of the play are those which are reported to have befallen the original Cyrano. Coquelin aîné (supported by Bernhardt as Roxane) played the part of Cyrano in French; Richard Mansfield played it in English.

Dabney (dab′ni), Charles William. Born at Hampden-Sidney, Va., June 19, 1855. An American chemist and educator, president of the University of Cincinnati from 1904. He was graduated at Hampden-Sidney College in 1873 and at the University of Virginia in 1877; studied in Berlin and Göttingen 1878–80; was State chemist of North Carolina 1880–87; was professor of agricultural chemistry and director of the agricultural experiment station in the University of Tennessee 1887–90; was president of this university 1887–1904; and was assistant (United States) secretary of agriculture 1894–97. His publications include numerous papers on scientific and educational topics.

Dagami (dä-gä′mē). A town in the eastern part of Leyte Island in the Philippines. It is on the Binahaan River, at the head of navigation by cascos, 15 miles from the river's mouth. Civilized population of municipality, 12,591.

Dagupan (dä-gö′pän). A municipality of Pangasinán province, in the western part of Luzón, Philippine Islands. It borders the southeastern shore of Lingayén Gulf. Civilized population, 20,357.

Daingerfield (dān′jėr-fēld), Elliott. Born at Harper's Ferry, Va., March 26, 1859. An American painter. He studied at the Art Students' League, New York city, and in Europe. His work consists of easel pictures and decorations, notably those of the Lady-chapel of the church of St. Mary the Virgin in New York. In his figure-work he has formed himself mainly on Italian models, while in landscape he owes much to the friendship and influence of George Inness. In 1906 he was elected a member of the National Academy of Design.

Daiquiri (dāi-ki-rē′). A town on the southern coast of Cuba, about 15½ miles southeast of Santiago. On June 22, 1898, the American army of invasion (excepting Kent's division, which was disembarked at Siboney, June 23) made a successful landing at this place (which, in many of the reports from the front, was miscalled Baiquiri). Population, 1,380.

Dairen. See ★Dalny.

Dajó (dä-hō′). A mountain on Joló (Sulu) Island, in the Philippines. Height, 2,100 feet. An engagement between United States troops and Moros took place here March 6–7, 1906. Fifteen Americans, three members of the native constabulary, and six hundred Moros were reported killed.

Dakar (dä-kär′). A seaport on the extreme point of Cape Verd, in French West Africa. A fortified naval station has been established there, and it is the administrative seat of the colony of Senegal. Population, about 18,500.

Dalaguete (dä-lä-gā′tā). A municipality in the southeastern part of Cebú, in the Philippine Islands. Civilized population, 21,354.

Dalberg-Acton (dal′bėrg-ak′ton), Sir John Emerich Edward, first Baron Acton. Born at Naples, Jan. 10, 1834: died at Tegernsee, Upper Bavaria, June 19, 1902. An English historian. He succeeded his father as eighth baronet in 1837; was member of Parliament for Carlow 1859–65 and for Bridgenorth 1865–66; was raised to the peerage in 1869; and was appointed regius professor of modern history in Cambridge University in 1895. His famous historical library of about 60,000 volumes was purchased by Andrew Carnegie, who, after Lord Acton's death, gave it to John Morley, who presented it to the University of Cambridge. He published "Lecture on the Study of History" (1895), and designed the "Cambridge Modern History," edited by others after his death. His "Lectures on the French Revolution," edited by J. Neville Figgis and Reginald Vere Laurence, were published in 1910.

D'Albert, Eugène. See ★Albert.

Dalmorès (dăl-mō-rās′), Charles. Born at Nancy in 1872. A French tenor singer. He began his career as a player of the French horn, and was sent by some of his townspeople for further study to the Paris Conservatory. He played in many Paris orchestras, and later became a member of the teaching staff of the Lyons Conservatory, where he began to cultivate his voice. As an opera-singer he made his début at Rouen about 1899. He afterward sang for several years at Brussels, and since 1906 has sung during the winter in America. He has appeared in "Lohengrin" at Bayreuth, and sings many rôles in French, German, and Italian.

Dalny (däl′ni). A seaport in Manchuria, situated on Victoria Bay, in the Liao-tung Peninsula, about twenty miles northeast of Port Arthur. It was founded by the Russians in 1899 and was designed to be the commercial terminus of the Trans-Siberian Railway. During the Russo-Japanese war (1904–1905) it was captured by the Japanese. In September, 1906, it was made a free port. It is now known as Tairen, or Dairen. It has a fine harbor, protected by a breakwater, and it is connected by railway with Port Arthur, Mukden, Harbin, and the Eastern Chinese Railway System.

Daly (dā′li), John Augustin. Born at Plymouth, N. C., July 20, 1838: died at Paris, France, June 7, 1899. An American playwright and theatrical manager. In 1869 he opened the Fifth Avenue Theater in New York, and in 1879 established Daly's Theater. His productions were noted for their finished style, and he brought before the public some of the best-known plays of his time. He wrote several original plays, including "Horizon" and "Divorce," and many adaptations, and was the author of a life of Peg Woffington (1888).

Dameron (dam-e-roṅ′), Charles Emile. Born in Paris, 1848: died there, Jan. 22, 1908. A French painter, a pupil of Pelousse. His works are chiefly landscapes.

Damrosch (dăm′rosh), Frank. Born in Breslau, Germany, June 22, 1859. A conductor of choral societies in and near New York, including the Oratorio Society, the Musical Art Society, and the People's Choral Union: son of Leopold Damrosch. In 1905 he was appointed director of the Institute of Musical Art in New York city.

Dana (dā′nȧ), Charles Loomis. Born at Woodstock, Vt., March 25, 1852. An American pathologist, professor of nervous diseases in the Cornell Medical College from 1899. He has published "A Text-book of Nervous Diseases and Psychiatry" (1892), etc.

Danao (dä-nä'ō). 1. A river in Negros Occidental province, Negros, Philippine Islands. —2. A municipality in the eastern part of Cebú, Philippine Islands. Civilized population, 16,173.

D'Annunzio, Gabriele. See ★Annunzio.

Dapitan (dä-pē'tän). 1. A river in Mindanao Island, in the Philippines, flowing northwest into Dapitan Bay.—2. A subdistrict of Moro province, in the Philippine Islands. It occupies the northwestern part of Mindanao, and is bounded by the Sulu (Joló) Sea on the west and north; Misamis on the east; and Zamboanga on the south. Both the eastern and western parts of the district are mountainous. The highest peak is Malindang. Forests of valuable woods, especially of ebony, extend nearly to the sea-coast. There are numerous harbors. Dapitan Bay, on the northwestern coast, is safe for all vessels during the northeast monsoon. At the north of this bay is Port Tagaguilong, safe in all weather for vessels not exceeding 15 feet draft. Port Murcielagos, on the northern coast, is equally good. The native race is chiefly Moro. The census of 1903 gives also 5,995 Subanos. Agriculture is carried on by native methods. Wax and cacao are exported in small quantities. Cattle-raising is an important industry. Area of district, including small dependent islands, 2,015 square miles. Population, 23,577.

3. A town, the capital of Dapitan province, on the Dapitan River, in lat. 8° 39′ N., long. 123° 24′ E. Civilized population of municipality, 5,825.

Dapitan (dä-pē'tän) Bay. A bay on the northwestern coast of Mindanao Island. It is a safe harbor in the northeast monsoon.

Daraga (dä-rä'gä). A municipality of Albay province, in the southeastern part of Luzón, Philippine Islands. The town is at the southern base of Mayón volcano. Civilized population, 18,695.

Daram (dä-räm'). An irregularly shaped island on the west coast of Samar, in the Philippines, east of Daram Channel. It is a part of Samar province. Area, 35 square miles. Pop., 3,586.

Daram (dä-räm') Channel. A channel north of Leyte Island, in the Philippines. It separates Biliran from Daram Island, and is connected by San Juanico Strait with San Pedro and San Pablo Bay on the eastern coast of Leyte.

Darby (där'bi). A borough in Delaware County, Pennsylvania, 6 miles southwest of Philadelphia. It has manufactories of woolens, lumber, paper, etc. Population, 6,305, (1910).

Dare (dãr), Virginia. Born on Roanoke Island, in the province of Virginia, August, 1587. The first child born of English parents in the New World. She was the daughter of William and Eleanor Dare, and the granddaughter of John White, governor of a colony which was sent out by Sir Walter Raleigh from Plymouth in April, 1587, and reached Roanoke Island in July. White soon went back to England for supplies, and on his return to Roanoke, in 1590, he found the island deserted. The fate of the "lost colony" is unknown, but it has been thought that the English settlers were absorbed into some Indian tribe.

Dar-el-Beida (där-el-bā'i-dä). See ★Casablanca.

Dargomijsky (där-go-mēzh'ski), Alexander Sergeivitch. Born in the government of Tula, Feb. 14, 1813: died at St. Petersburg, Jan. 17, 1869. A leading composer of the New Russian school. He was in the government service, but, forming a friendship with Glinka, adopted music as his profession. Of his earlier works the best known are the operas "Esmeralda" (1847, founded on Victor Hugo's "Notre Dame de Paris") and "Russalka" (1856). He traveled in 1864, but met with little success except in Belgium. On his return he joined Balakiref, and became prominent in the New Russian school, his most notable composition being "The Stone Guest," which, while it has not met with popular recognition, is regarded as a remarkable work, embodying the most advanced ideas of his school. Its text is Pushkin's poem "Don Juan," and it was orchestrated by Rimsky-Korsakof after the composer's death and performed at St. Petersburg in 1872.

Darrow (dar'ō), Clarence S. Born at Kinsman, Ohio, April 18, 1857. An American lawyer. He has acted professionally in many cases against monopolies or on the side of labor. He was counsel in the Debs strike case, and for the miners in the anthracite coal strike arbitration at Scranton and Philadelphia 1902–03; was attorney for Moyer, Haywood, and Pettibone when tried for the murder of Ex-Governor Steunenberg of Idaho in 1907; and was attorney for the defendants in the case of the destruction of the Los Angeles "Times" building in 1911.

Darwin (där'win), Sir George Howard. Born at Down, Kent, England, July 9, 1845. An English physicist and astronomer, son of Charles Robert Darwin. He was called to the bar in 1874, but abandoned the law for the study of mathematics, and in 1883 was appointed Plumian professor of astronomy and experimental philosophy at Cambridge. The most notable of his works is "The Tides and Kindred Phenomena in the Solar System" (1898). He was made K. C. B. in 1905.

Daskam (das'kam), Josephine Dodge. See ★Bacon, Josephine Dodge Daskam.

Data (dä'tä). An extinct volcano in the south-central part of Lepanto-Bontoc province, Luzón, in the Philippine Islands, in lat. 16° 57′ N., long. 120° 55′ E. Height, 7,364 feet.

Davao (dä'vä-ō). 1. A river in Mindanao, in the Philippine Islands. It rises in the eastern part of Cotabato, and flows southeast through Davao into the Gulf of Davao.—2. A district of Moro province, in the Philippine Islands. It is bounded by Surigao on the north; the Pacific Ocean on the east and south; and Cotabato (separated by a mountain range) on the west. Capital, Davao. The southern coast is indented by the Gulf of Davao, in which is situated Samal Island, a part of the province. Among the bays on the eastern coast is Pujada, a safe harbor in all weather. The district is very mountainous. The active volcano Apo, 10,311 feet in height, is in the range separating Davao from Cotabato, approximately in lat. 7° 3′ N., long. 125° 17′ E. The Butulan Mountains extend from south to north parallel with the eastern coast. The largest river is the Agusan, which rises among the Butulan Mountains and flows north into Surigao. Many other rivers water the district. Most of the staples, as hemp and sugar-cane, are produced. Forests of teak, ebony, and other valuable woods cover the mountains. The mineral resources of Davao are undeveloped. Coal and iron are found near Mati, north of Pujada Bay. The Christianized inhabitants are Visayans, the wild are Moros, Bagobos, and Mandayas. Area of the district, 9,707 square miles. Population, 65,496.

3. A town, the capital of Davao province, situated on the Gulf of Davao, at the mouth of the Davao River, in lat. 7° 1′ N., long. 125° 4′ E. Civilized population of municipality, 8,560.

Davao (dä'vä-ō), Gulf of. An arm of the Pacific Ocean indenting the southern coast of Davao district, Mindanao, Philippine Islands. It is partly occupied by Samal Island.

Davenport (dav'en-pōrt), Charles Benedict. Born at Stamford, Conn., June 1, 1866. An American zoölogist, director of the Carnegie Institution Station for Experimental Evolution at Cold Spring Harbor, New York, since 1904. He has written "Experimental Morphology" (1897–99), "Statistical Methods in Biological Variation" (1899), "Inheritance of Characteristics of Fowl" (1909), "Eugenics" (1910), "Elements of Zoölogy" (1911), "Race Improvement by Eugenics" (1911), etc.

David (dä'vēd), Gérard (Gheerardt or Gheeraert). Born at Oudewater, South Holland, about 1460: died at Bruges, Flanders, Aug. 13, 1523. A Flemish painter. He is mentioned by early writers, but was entirely lost sight of until 1860, when information about him was discovered in the archives of Bruges. He settled in Bruges in 1483 and lived there during the remainder of his life. Well-authenticated works by him are to be found in many European collections. He is one of the most important of the Flemish primitives.

David Grieve. A novel by Mary A. (Mrs. Humphry) Ward, published in 1892.

David Harum (dā'vid hā'rum). A novel by Edward Noyes Westcott, published in 1898. The scene is laid in central New York. The book won popularity through the shrewdnesss, humor, and homely philosophy of its principal character, an old horse-trading country banker, for whom it is named.

Davidof (dä-vē'dof), Charles. Born at Goldingen, Courland, March 17, 1838: died at Moscow, Feb. 25, 1889. A Russian violoncellist. He studied with Schmidt, Schuberth, and Grützmacher, and first appeared at the Gewandhaus, Leipsic, Dec. 15, 1859, where he became solo cellist of the orchestra. He also became a teacher in the Conservatory. After several concert tours he settled in St. Petersburg as solo cellist of the imperial orchestra, teacher in the Conservatory (1862), and later its director (1876–87). His compositions include a symphonic poem and an orchestral suite, chamber music, four concertos, and many solo pieces for his instrument. His method for the cello is widely known.

Davidson (dā'vid-son), John. Born at Barrhead, near Glasgow, Scotland, April 11, 1857: died in March (?), 1909. A Scottish poet and playwright. In 1890 he went to London, having previously published three plays, "Bruce" (1886), "Smith: a Tragedy" (1888), and "Scaramouch in Naxos" (1890). His works include "Perfervid" (1890), "Fleet Street Eclogues" (1893), "Ballads and Songs" (1894), "New Ballads" (1896), "Godfrida: a Play" (1898), "The Testament of an Empire Builder" (1902), "A Queen's Romance, etc." (1904), "The Testament of a Prime Minister" (1904), "Ballad of a Nun" (1905), "The Triumph of Mammon" (1907), "Mammon and his Message" (1908), etc.

Davidson (dā'vid-son), Randall Thomas. Born April 7, 1848. An English prelate. He was educated at Harrow and at Trinity College, Oxford; was chaplain and private secretary to Archbishop Tait 1877–82 and to Archbishop Benson 1882–83; was dean of Windsor and domestic chaplain to Queen Victoria 1883–91; was bishop of Rochester 1891–95, and of Winchester 1895–1903; and was consecrated archbishop of Canterbury in 1903. Among his publications are "Life of Archbishop Tait" (1891: with W. Benham), "The Christian Opportunity" (1904), etc.

Davidson (dā'vid-son), Thomas. Born at Deer, Aberdeenshire, Oct. 25, 1840: died at Montreal, Canada, Sept. 14, 1900. A Scotch-American philosophical writer. He was graduated at the University of Aberdeen in 1880; went to Canada in 1866; and removed to the United States in 1867, establishing his residence at Cambridge, Massachusetts, in 1875. The Fabian Society (which see in supplement) was founded as a result of the conferences which he held in London in 1883.

Davies, Ffrangcon-. See ★Ffrangcon-Davies, David Thomas.

Davis (dā'vis), Charles Henry. Born at Cambridge, Mass., Aug. 28, 1845. An American naval officer, son of Rear-Admiral C. H. Davis; appointed rear-admiral in 1904. He was graduated from the United States Naval Academy in 1864; attained the rank of captain in 1898; was superintendent of the Naval Observatory 1897–1902 (except April–Sept., 1898); commanded the auxiliary cruiser Dixie during the Spanish war (1898); was division commander of the battle-ship squadron in 1904, 1905, and 1906; and was a member of the international commission which investigated, at Paris (1904–05), the attack of the Russian squadron under Rozhestvensky upon the British fishing-fleet in the North Sea. He retired in August, 1907.

Davis (dā'vis), Cushman Kellogg. Born at Henderson, N. Y., June 16, 1838: died at St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 27, 1900. An American Republican politician. He was graduated at the University of Michigan in 1857; was admitted to the bar in 1859; and served in the Union army 1861–64, rising to the rank of assistant adjutant-general. He was elected to the Minnesota legislature in 1867; was district attorney for Minnesota 1868–73; was governor of Minnesota 1874–75; and was elected United States senator in 1887 and in 1893 and 1899. In August, 1898, he was appointed a member of the Spanish-American Peace Commission. He published "The Law in Shakespeare" (1884).

Davis (dā'vis), George Breckinridge. Born at Ware, Mass., Feb. 13, 1847. An American soldier and jurist, judge-advocate-general of the United States army. He was appointed a delegate to the Second Peace Conference in 1907. He has published several works upon international and military law.

Davis (dā'vis), Mrs. (Rebecca Blaine Harding). Born at Washington, Pa., June 24, 1831: died at Mount Kisco, N. Y., Sept. 29, 1910. An American writer, mother of Richard Harding Davis. She was the author of "Life in the Iron Mills," through which she first came into prominence (1861), "Dallas Galbraith" (1868), "A Law Unto Herself" (1878), "Natasqua" (1886), "Silhouettes of American Life" (1892), "Kent Hampden" (1892), "Frances Waldeaux" (1897), "Dr. Warrick's Daughters" (1896), "Bits of Gossip" (1904), etc., besides many shorter stories and miscellaneous articles.

Davis, Richard Harding*. He has also written "The King's Jackal" (1898), "With Both Armies in South Africa" (1901), "In the Fog" (1901), "Ranson's Folly" (1902), "The Bar Sinister" (1903), "Real Soldiers of Fortune" (1906), "The Scarlet Car" (1907), "Vera, the Medium" (1908), "The White Mice" (1909), "Once upon a Time" (1910), "The Consul" (1911), etc.

Davis (dā'vis), William Morris. Born at Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 12, 1850. An American geologist, professor of geology in Harvard University from 1899. He was graduated at the Lawrence Scientific School (Harvard) in 1869; was assistant in the Argentine National Observatory at Cordova 1870–73; and was assistant professor (1885–90) and professor (1890–99) of physical geography at Harvard. In 1903 he acted as physiographer of the Pumpelly (Carnegie Institution) expedition to Turkestan, and in 1905 accompanied the British Association to South Africa. Among his works are "Elementary Meteorology" (1894) and "Physical Geography" (1899). He was exchange professor at the University of Berlin 1908–09.

Davitt (dav'it), Michael. Born at Straide, County Mayo, Ireland, March 25, 1846: died at Dublin, May 31, 1906. An Irish journalist and political leader. His parents were evicted and he was sent to work when ten years of age in a Lancashire cotton-mill. He joined the Fenian Brotherhood in 1865; founded, with C. S. Parnell and others, the Irish Land League in 1879; and went to the United States to organize an auxiliary Land League in 1880. He three times suffered imprisonment on charges of treason-felony and sedition. He was first elected to Parliament for County Meath, in 1882, but was disqualified by a special vote of the House of Commons for non-expiration of sentence for treason-felony; was elected Nationalist member for Meath, North, in 1892, but was unseated on petition; and sat for Cork, Northeast, in 1893, and as Anti-Parnellite member for Kerry, East, 1895–96, and Mayo, South, 1895–1899. He published "Leaves from a Prison Diary" (1884), "Defence of the Land League" (1891), "Life and Progress in Australasia" (1898), "The Boer Fight for Freedom" (1902), "Within the Pale" (1903), and "The Fall of Feudalism in Ireland: Story of the Land League Revolution" (1904).

Dawson (dâ'son), George Mercer. Born at Pictou, Nova Scotia, Aug. 1, 1849: died at Ottawa, Canada, March 2, 1901. A Canadian geologist and explorer, son of Sir John William Dawson. He was appointed geologist and botanist to the Northwest Boundary Commission in 1873; and in 1875 joined the geological survey of Canada, of which he became assistant director in 1883 and director in 1895. In 1891 and 1892 he served on the Bering Sea Commission. His publications include a "Report of the Geology and Resources of the Region in the Vicinity of the Forty-ninth Parallel" (1875), "Descriptive Sketch of the Physical Geography and Geology of Canada" (1884: with A. R. Selwyn), a preliminary report on the physical and geological features of a portion of the Rocky Mountains (1886), and many monographs.

Dawson (dâ'sŏn), Thomas Cleland. Born at Hudson, Wis., July 30, 1865. An American diplomatist. He was assistant attorney-general of Iowa 1891–94; took part in the work of the Republican National Committee in 1900; was secretary of the United States legation to Brazil 1897–1904, minister resident and consul-general in Santo Domingo 1904–07, and minister to Colombia 1907–09 and to Chile 1909–10; and became minister to Panama in 1911. In 1910 he was made chief of the division of Latin-American affairs in the department of state. He is the author of "South American Republics" (1903–04).

Day (dā), Frank Miles. Born at Philadelphia, Pa., April 5, 1861. An American architect. He was graduated at the University of Pennsylvania in 1883 and studied architecture at that university and in Europe. He is a fellow of the American Institute of Architects and was elected its president in 1906. He is also a trustee of the American Academy in Rome.

Day (dā), William Rufus. Born at Ravenna, Ohio, April 17, 1849. An American jurist and statesman. He was graduated at the University of Michigan in 1870 and was admitted to the (Ohio) bar in 1872. He succeeded John Sherman as secretary of state in April, 1898, but resigned in September to become chairman of the United States Peace Commission at Paris; was judge of the United States Circuit Court, 6th circuit, 1899–1903; and was appointed associate justice of the United States Supreme Court in 1903.

Dayton (dā'tŏn). A city in Campbell County, Kentucky, opposite Cincinnati and adjoining Newport. It has whisky-distilleries and manufactories of watch-cases, pianos, cigars, etc. Population, 6,979, (1910).

Deakin (dē'kin), Alfred. Born in Melbourne, Aug. 3, 1856. An Australian statesman, prime minister of the Commonwealth of Australia 1903–04, 1905–08, and 1909–10. He was for many years a member of the parliament of Victoria; served in many official positions; and had an important part in bringing about the federation of the Australian colonies. He was the attorney-general for the Commonwealth 1901–1903. He represented Australia in the Imperial Conference in 1907.

De Amicis*, Edmondo. His later works include "Poesie" (1880), "Ritratti letterarii" (1881), "Gli amici" (1882), "Alle porte d'Italia" (1886), "La carrozza di tutti" (1898), "Speranze e gloria" (1900), "Memorie" (1900), "Ricordi d'infanzia e di scuola" (1901), "Capo d'anno" (1902), "Giardino della follia" (1902).

Dean (dēn), Bashford. Born at New York city, Oct. 28, 1867. An American zoölogist, professor of vertebrate zoölogy at Columbia University from 1904. He studied at the College of the City of New York and afterward at Columbia, Munich, Naples, and Misaki (Japan). In 1889–92 and 1900–01 he was engaged in biological work for the United States Fish Commission, and was curator of fishes in the American Museum of Natural History, New York, 1903–10 and 1911–. He is the author of numerous works on the anatomy and embryology of fishes. He has been curator of arms and armor in the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York, since 1903.

Debs (debz), Eugene Victor. Born at Terre Haute, Ind., Nov. 5, 1855. An American labor leader. He received a common-school education; became a locomotive fireman; was grand secretary and treasurer of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen 1880–93; was sent to the Indiana legislature in 1885; was president of the American Railway Union 1893–97; successfully conducted a large strike on the Great Northern Railway; and while managing the strike of western railways in 1894 was, with others, restrained by injunction from interfering with interstate commerce in violation of the Antitrust Law, and from obstruction of the United States mails. Proceedings were taken against them later for disobeying the injunction, and they were found guilty and punished. He ran for President in 1900 on the Socialist-Democratic ticket, receiving 87,814 votes; again in 1904, as a Socialist, receiving 402,283 votes; and in 1908, receiving 420,793 votes.

Debussy (dā-büs-sē'), Claude Achille. Born at St. Germain-en-Laye, August 22, 1862. A French composer. He represents the extreme left wing of the young French school in finding new methods of expression and in harmonic combinations. His compositions include an opera, "Pelléas et Mélisande" (1902); cantatas, "L'Enfant prodigue" (1884) and "La demoiselle élue"; a string quartet; nocturnes and other pieces for the orchestra; piano pieces; and songs.

Dechen (dā'chen), Heinrich von. Born at Berlin, March 25, 1800: died at Bonn, Feb. 15, 1889. An eminent German geologist and mining engineer, for many years director of mines at Bonn. With Karsten he edited the "Archiv für Mineralogie, Geognosie, Bergbau, und Hüttenkunde" (1838–55).

De Espejo. See ★Espejo.

De Forest (dē for'est), Robert Weeks. Born April 25, 1848. An American lawyer and worker for social reform. He was educated at Yale and Columbia universities, and was admitted to the bar in 1871. He is a director of many commercial enterprises, is trustee (since 1889) and secretary (since 1904) of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, and from 1888 has been president of the Charity Organization Society of the city of New York.

De Garmo (dē gär'mō), Charles. Born at Mukwonago, Wis., Jan. 7, 1849. An American educator, professor of the science and art of education in Cornell University from 1898. He was professor of psychology and education in the University of Illinois 1890–91, and president of Swarthmore College 1891–98. His publications relate chiefly to the principles and methods of secondary education.

Degas (dā-gä'), Hilaire Germain Edgard. Born at Paris, July 19, 1834. A French painter. He belongs to the group of Impressionists and was early associated with Manet, Monet, Renoir, and Fantin-Latour. His first successes were made with pictures representing race-courses; but his subjects were later usually taken from the theater, and he has depicted life behind the scenes with great appreciation. He has visited America and has painted a noted picture of negroes loading cotton at New Orleans.

Degeneration. The title of the English translation of "Entartung" (1893), by Max Nordau.

de Gubernatis, Angelo. See ★Gubernatis.

Dekalb (dē-kalb'). A city in Dekalb County, Illinois, 58 miles west of Chicago. It has manufactories of wire, shoes, gloves, agricultural implements, etc., and is the seat of the Northern Illinois State Normal School. Population, 8,102, (1910).

De Kay (dē kā'), Charles. Born at Washington, D. C., July 25, 1848. An American author, poet, and critic. He was graduated at Yale in 1868; was literary and art critic of the New York "Times"; and was United States consul-general at Berlin 1894–97. He was the originator and one of the founders of the National Sculpture Society (1892) and of the National Arts Club (1898). Among his publications in book form are "Hesperus, and other Poems" (1880), "The Vision of Nimrod" (1881), "The Vision of Esther" (1882), "The Love Poems of Louis Barnaval" (1883), "Bird Gods" (1898), etc.

DeKoven (dē-kō'vĕn), Henry Louis Reginald. Born at Middletown, Conn., April 3, 1861. An American composer of light operas. Among his works are "Robin Hood" (1890), "The Fencing Master" (1892), "Rob Roy" (1894), "The Highwayman" (1897), and "Happyland" (1905), etc. He has also written and published many songs.

Delagrange (dē-lä-grŏnzh'), Léon. Born at Orléans, March 13, 1872: died at Pau, Jan. 4, 1910. A French sculptor and aviator. He studied at the École des Beaux-Arts, Paris, and executed works of sculpture of recognized merit, including "The Florentine Page," "A Templar," "Love and Youth," "Miserere," and "A Huguenot." Becoming interested in aviation, he made many notable flights (1907–09) in France, Italy, and England, establishing a record of 124 miles at the rate of 49 miles per hour in a Blériot monoplane at Juvisy, France, Dec. 30, 1909. He was killed as the result of an accident to his monoplane during experiments at Pau.

Deland*, Mrs. (Margaretta Wade Campbell). Among her later works are "An Encore" (1907), "R. J.'s Mother and Some Other People" (1908), "The Way to Peace" (1910), "The Iron Woman" (serially, 1910–11), etc.

De la Ramée*, Louise: pseudonym Ouida. She also wrote "Under Two Flags" (1867), "A Dog of Flanders" (1872), "In Maremma" (1882), "A Rainy June" (1885), "Othmar" (1885), "Don Gesualdo" (1886), "A House Party" (1887), "Guilderoy" (1889), "Ruffino" (1890), "Syrlin" (1890), "The Tower of Taddeo" (1890), "Santa Barbara" (1891), "The New Priesthood" (1893), "The Silver Christ" (1894), "Two Offenders" (1894), "Le Selve" (1896), "The Massarenes" (1897), "Toxin, an Altruist" (1897), "La Stregha" (1899), "The Waters of Edera" (1900), "Critical Studies" (1900), "Street Dust" (1901), etc.

De la Rey (dā lä rā'i), Jakobus Herklaas: called Oom Koos. Born in the Orange Free State, Oct. 22, 1847. A noted Boer general of French Huguenot descent. In 1893 he was elected member for the Lichtenburg district of the Transvaal in the Volksraad, and was a strong adherent of Joubert. He was one of the few members opposed to a rupture with England and favored a policy of conciliation, but at the outbreak of hostilities in 1899 advocated an aggressive military policy. He was elected to the command of the Lichtenburg burghers, who became part of Cronje's western column, and secured the first victory of the war at Kraaipan (Oct. 12–13, 1899). In 1902 he succeeded in capturing Lord Methuen, together with a number of British troops. He was a member of the Boer commission which arranged the terms of submission, and afterward one of a deputation which visited Europe and the United States to raise funds for the assistance of their countrymen.

Delbœuf (del-bĕf'), Joseph. Born at Liège, Belgium, Sept. 30, 1831: died at Bonn, Aug. 13, 1896. A Belgian philosophical writer and psychologist, professor of classical philology in the University of Liège 1866–96. Among his works are "La psychologie comme science naturelle" (1876), "Questions de philosophie et de science" (1883), "Examen critique de la loi psychophysique" (1883), and "La matière brute et la matière vivante" (1887).

Delcassé (del-käs-sā'), Théophile. Born at Pamiers, Ariège, France, March 1, 1852. A French statesman and journalist. He was under-secretary for the colonies in 1893, colonial minister 1894–1895, minister of foreign affairs 1898–1905 (under premiers Brisson, Dupuy, Waldeck-Rousseau, and Combes), and minister of marine under Monis, 1911–. While minister of foreign affairs he adjusted the "Fashoda affair"; negotiated the agreement with Great Britain as to the Nile valley and Central Africa; and, with Lord Lansdowne, prepared the Anglo-French agreement of 1904. He retired in 1905 on account of the difficulty with Germany over Morocco. In politics he is a radical Republican.

De Leon (dē lē'ŏn), Daniel. Born on the island of Curaçao, Dec. 14, 1852. An American socialist. He was educated at the University of Leyden; came to the United States in 1872; lectured on Latin-American diplomacy at Columbia University 1886–1891; joined the Knights of Labor in 1888 and the Socialist-Labor party in 1890; and has been active in national and international socialist movements. He has been editor of the "Daily People" since 1900.

Delibes (dē-lēb'), Clément Philibert Léo: known as Léo. Born at Saint-Germain-du-Val, Sarthe, France, Feb. 21, 1836: died at Paris, Jan. 16, 1891. A French composer. He was a chorus conductor at the Opéra, and in 1881 was appointed professor of composition at the Conservatoire. His music consisted chiefly of operettas and ballets, of which latter two, "Coppélia" (1870) and "Sylvia" (1876), have been very popular. He also wrote a few songs.

Delisle (dē-lēl'), Léopold Victor. Born at Valognes, Manche, France, Oct. 24, 1826: died at Paris, July 22, 1910. A noted French historian, bibliographer, and paleographer. In 1852 he was appointed assistant in the manuscript department of the National Library at Paris, of which he later became conservator, and was administrator-general 1874–1905. He was made chevalier of the Legion of Honor in 1857, officer in 1877, and commander in 1883. He wrote many important papers on the history of France, particularly that of Normandy, and on paleography and bibliography.

Delitzsch*, Friedrich. He has also published "Wo lag das Paradies?" (1881), "Assyrisches Wörterbuch" (1887), "Assyrisches Handwörterbuch" (1894–96), "Babel und Bibel" (1903), etc.

Delius (dā'lē-ŏs or dē'li-us), Frederick. Born at Bradford, Yorks., Jan. 29, 1863. An English composer, of German parentage. He has lived in Florida, Leipsic, and Paris. His works include an opera, "Koanga" (1896–97); the music dramas "Romeo and Juliet" (1900–01) and "Margot la Rouge"; several symphonic poems, "Appalachia," "Brigg Fair," "Paris," and "In a Summer Garden"; and "A Mass of Life," for soloists, chorus, and orchestra.

Dellenbaugh (del'en-bâ), Frederick Samuel. Born at McConnelsville, Ohio, Sept. 13, 1853. An American explorer and writer, librarian of the American Geographical Society from 1909. He accompanied Major Powell on his second journey of exploration through the Grand Cañon of the Colorado 1871–73, and went with the Harriman expedition to Alaska in 1899. His works include "The North Americans of Yesterday" (1900), "The Romance of the Colorado River" (1903), "Breaking the Wilderness" (1905), and "A Canyon Voyage" (1908).

Delmenhorst (del'men-hôrst). A town in Germany, in the grand duchy of Oldenburg, near Bremen. It has manufactures of ironware, linoleum, cigars, bricks, etc. Population, 20,150.

Delna (del-nä'), Ledan Marie. Born at Paris, Aug. 3, 1875. A French contralto singer. She has sung at the Paris Opéra, the Opéra Comique, and the Gaité Lyrique. Her principal rôles are Orphée, Dido (in Berlioz's "Les Troyens"), Charlotte (in "Werther"), Mistress Quickly (in "Falstaff"), Marceline (in "L'Attaque du Moulin"), Fides (in "Le Prophète"), Dalila, and Carmen. She was a member of the Metropolitan Opera Company (1909–10), and was heard in New York in "Orphée" and "L'Attaque du Moulin."

Delphos (del'fos). A village in Allen and Van Wert counties, Ohio, 14 miles northwest of Lima. It is a railroad center, and has railroad shops, furniture factories, etc. Population, 5,038, (1910).

Demolins (dē-mō-laṅ'), Edmond. Born at Marseilles, 1852: died at Roches, July 22, 1907. A French historian and sociologist. In 1886 he founded, with others, "La Science Sociale," a journal devoted to the study of social economics along new lines, following the methods of Le Play, of whom he was a pupil. Among the best known of his publications are "A quoi tient la supériorité des Anglo-Saxons" (1897), "Les Français d'aujourd'hui" (1898), "L'Éducation nouvelle" (1898), "Les grandes routes des peuples" (1904), and "Classification sociale" (1905).

De Morgan (de môr'gan), William Frend. Born at London, Nov. 16, 1839. An English novelist. He studied at the Royal Academy, and later worked in stained glass and ceramics. He has written "Joseph Vance" (1906), "Alice-for-Short" (1907), "Somehow Good" (1908), "It Never Can Happen Again" (1909), and "An Affair of Dishonour" (1910).

Denby (den'bi), Charles. Born in Botetourt County, Va., 1830: died at Jamestown, N. Y., Jan. 13, 1904. An American diplomatist. He was educated at the Georgetown University and at the Virginia Military Institute and was admitted to the Indiana bar in 1855. He served in the Union army during the Civil War, rising to the rank of colonel, and was United States minister to China 1885–98. In 1898 he was appointed by the President a member of the commission for the investigation of the war with Spain, and in 1899 a member of the civil commission for the investigation of affairs in the Philippines.

Denison (den'i-sŏn), Henry Willard. Born at Guildhall, Vermont, May 11, 1846. An American jurist. He was the legal adviser of the Japanese during the negotiation of the peace with Russia at Portsmouth, New Hampshire, in 1905, and was a delegate to the second Peace Conference in 1907. Since 1880 he has been legal adviser of the Japanese Department of Foreign Affairs.

Denman (den'man), Thomas, third Baron Denman. Born Nov. 16, 1874. An English official, appointed governor-general of Australia in 1911. He was educated at the Royal Military College, Sandhurst, and in 1900 served in the South African war as captain of a squadron of the Imperial Yeomanry. He has been deputy speaker of the House of Lords. He is a great-grandson of the first Baron Denman, lord chief justice of England 1832–1850.

Denmark*. The country is divided for administrative purposes into 18 counties (amter). In 1907 a commission was appointed to report on the relations of Denmark and Iceland, and in 1908 a bill was drafted declaring Iceland a free, autonomous, independent country, forming with Denmark the United Danish Empire, and having in common the kingship, the ministry of foreign affairs, and the ministry of defense. The measure, however, was not acted upon.

Dennery. See ★Ennery, d'.

DePauw University. A coeducational institution of learning, under the patronage of the Methodist Episcopal Church, situated at Greencastle, Indiana. It is the outgrowth of the Indiana Asbury University (chartered in 1837), the name of which was changed in 1884 owing to the financial and other aid given to it by W. C. DePauw. The university offers courses in the liberal arts, music, and art, and is attended by about 1,000 students.

Derenbourg (der-oṅ-bōrg'), Hartwig. Born at Paris, June 17, 1844: died there in 1908. A French Orientalist. He studied at Göttingen and Leipsic; assisted in editing the catalogue of Arabic manuscripts at the Bibliothèque Nationale; in 1875 became teacher, and in 1879 professor, of Arabic at the École Spéciale des Langues Orientales Vivantes, and in 1886 professor at the École Pratique des Hautes Études. Among his published works are "Le Diwân de Nâbiga Dhobyâni" (1869), "Chrestomathie élémentaire de l'arabe littéraire" (1885), and "Oumâra du Yémen" (1897).

Déroulède*, Paul. He was president of the League of Patriots 1886–1908; was banished in 1900 for ten years for trying to substitute republican plebiscite for parliamentary constitution, and was pardoned 1905.

Derry (der'i). A town in Rockingham County, New Hampshire, 10 miles southeast of Manchester. Population, 5,123, (1910).

Deschanel (dā-shä-nel'), Paul Eugène Louis. Born at Brussels, Belgium, Feb. 13, 1856. A French statesman and author, son of Émile Augustin Étienne Martin Deschanel. He was secretary to two ministers of the interior, de Marcère and Simon, 1876–77; and after filling various minor offices was elected to the Chamber of Deputies in 1885, of which he was president 1898–1902, and reëlected in 1901. In 1899 he was elected a member of the French Academy, succeeding Hervé. His published work includes "La question du Tonkin" (1883), "La politique française en Océanie" (1884), "Les intérêts français dans le Pacifique" (1885), "Orateurs et hommes d'état' (1888; crowned by the French Academy), "Figures de femmes" (1889; also crowned), "Figures littéraires" (1889), "Questions actuelles," a collection of his principal speeches (1891), "La décentralisation" (1895), "La question sociale" (1898), "Quatre ans de présidence" (1902), "Politique intérieure et étrangère" (1906), "À l'institut" (1907), etc.

Des Groseilliers. See ★Chouart.

Deshayes (dā-zā'), Gérard Paul. Born at Nancy, May 13, 1795: died at Boiran, Oise, June 9, 1875. A French naturalist, especially known as a paleontologist (studies of Mollusca). Among his works are "Description des coquillages fossiles des environs de Paris" (1824–37), "Traité élémentaire de conchyliologie" (1839–58), and "Description des animaux sans vertèbres découverts dans le bassin de Paris" (1857–65).

Despradelle (dā-prä-del'), Constant Désiré. Born in France, May 20, 1862. A Franco-American architect. He was graduated from the École des Beaux-Arts, Paris, in 1889, being classed first in the Concours de Rome, and was inspector of state buildings and national palaces of France 1889–93. Coming to the United States, he became professor of architectural design in the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Boston, in 1893, and in 1910 special lecturer on architectural design in Harvard University. In 1900 he was appointed a member of a permanent board of architectural advisers to the University of California, and 1906 consulting architect to the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston.

d'Esprit. See ★Radisson.

Destinn (des'tin) (Kittl), Emmy. Born at Prague, Feb. 20, 1878. A noted opera-singer. She is said to have taken her stage-name from that of Marie Loewe-Destinn, with whom she studied singing at Prague. She sang at the New Royal Opera-house, Berlin, 1898–1908. She has also sung at the Metropolitan Opera House, New York; at Covent Garden, London; etc. Among her principal rôles are Mignon, Santuzza in "Cavalleria Rusticana," Elizabeth in "Tannhäuser," Salome, and Carmen. In 1910 she appeared in Puccini's "The Girl of the Golden West."

Devil's Lake (dev'ilz lāk). The capital of Ramsey County, North Dakota, situated on a lake of the same name, 85 miles northwest of Grand Forks. Population, 5,157, (1910).

Devine (dē-vīn'), Edward Thomas. Born at Union, Hardin County, Iowa, May 6, 1867. An American sociologist, general secretary of the Charity Organization Society of the city of New York, and professor of social economy in Columbia University. He was graduated at Cornell College, Iowa, in 1887; studied in Germany 1890–1891; and spent several years in teaching. His publications include "Economics" (1898), "The Practice of Charity" (1901), "The Principles of Relief" (1904), "Efficiency and Relief" (1906), "Misery and its Causes" (1909), etc. He is the editor of "The Survey."

De Vinne (dē-vin'i), Theodore Low. Born at Stamford, Conn., Dec. 25, 1828. An eminent American printer, established in business in New York city from 1859. He is the author of "The Invention of Printing" (1876), "Historic Printing Types" (1886), "Plain Printing Types" (1900), "Correct Composition" (1901), "Title-Pages" (1902), "Modern Book Composition" (1904), "Notable Printers of Italy during the Fifteenth Century" (1910), etc.

Dewar (dū'ar), Sir James. Born at Kincardine-on-Forth, Perthshire, Sept. 20, 1842. A British physicist and chemist, professor of experimental philosophy in Cambridge and of chemistry in the Royal Institution, London. He is best known for his investigations of the properties of matter at the lowest temperatures. By evaporating liquid hydrogen under diminished pressure he obtained the lowest known temperature (−493° F.). With Sir Frederick Abel he invented cordite. He was knighted in 1904.

De Wet (de vet'), Christiaan Rudolf. Born in the Orange Free State, South Africa, Oct. 7, 1854. A noted Boer general. He was a member of the Volksraad 1889–97; at the outbreak of the South African war in 1899 was appointed vice-commandant in Natal; and in December of the same year was made vechtgeneral on the western frontier under the command of General Cronje. He was most successful in guerrilla warfare, and was distinguished as a leader and strategist. After the close of the war he was a member of the committee for raising funds for the distressed Boers. In 1902 he published "Three Years of War." In 1907 he was made minister for agriculture of the Orange River Colony (now Orange Free State).

Dewey (dū'i), Charles Melville. Born at Lowville, N. Y., July 16, 1849. An American painter. He was a pupil of Carolus Duran in Paris 1876–77. His work is composed of landscapes which usually represent the subdued light of morning or evening, with masses of dark trees against the sky. He won silver medals at the Pan-American Exposition in Buffalo in 1901, and at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition in St. Louis in 1904, and was elected associate of the National Academy of Design in 1903 and member in 1907.

Dewey (dū'i), John. Born at Burlington, Vt., Oct. 20, 1859. An American philosopher, professor of philosophy in Columbia University from 1904. He was professor in the University of Minnesota 1888–89, in the University of Michigan 1889–94, and in the University of Chicago 1894–1904. He has published a number of works upon psychology, ethics, logical theory, and pedagogics.

Dewey (dū'i), Melvil. Born at Adams Center, N. Y., Dec. 10, 1851. An American librarian, director of the New York State Library and New York State Library School at Albany 1888–1905. He was graduated at Amherst College in 1874; was acting librarian at Amherst 1873–76; was chief librarian and professor of library economy in Columbia University 1883–88; and was secretary of the University of the State of New York 1888–1900. He organized, in 1876, the Spelling Reform Association, of which he has been secretary from 1876, and the Metric Bureau for the introduction of the international system of weights and measures. In 1887 he founded at Columbia the first library school, which later became the New York State Library School at Albany. He was State director of libraries 1904–05.

De Windt (dē wint'), Harry. Born at Paris, April, 1856. An English traveler and explorer. He was educated at Cambridge; was aide-de-camp to Raja Brooke of Sarawak, his brother-in-law, 1876–78; traveled from Peking to France by land in 1887; rode from Russia to India through Persia in 1889; and attempted to travel from New York to Paris by way of Alaska, but nearly lost his life in Bering Strait, where he was rescued by a whaler. In 1901–02 he made the trip from Paris to New York; traveled through the Balkan states in 1905; and crossed Lapland in the winter of 1908. He has published a number of books of travel, including "From Paris to New York by Land" (1903), "Through Savage Europe" (1905), "Moles and their Meaning" (1908), "Notes of a Restless Life" (1908), etc.

Dewing (dū'ing), Thomas Wilmer. Born at Boston, Mass., May 4, 1851. An American painter. He studied art under Jules Lefebvre in Paris 1876–79; was elected associate of the National Academy of Design in 1887 and academician in 1888; and won the Clarke prize at the Academy (New York) in 1887. His work is composed of figure-pictures and interiors expressing much delicacy and refinement.

Dexter (deks'tėr), Timothy. Born at Malden, Mass., Jan. 22, 1743: died at Newburyport, Mass., Oct. 26, 1806. An American merchant, noted for his eccentricities. He accumulated a large fortune; assumed the title of "Lord"; maintained a poet laureate; and adorned his garden with colossal images of famous men, including one of himself labeled "I am the first in the East," etc. He published a book entitled "A Pickle for the Knowing Ones," entirely without punctuation, and then, as a reply to criticism, published an edition also unpunctuated, but with a mass of points of all kinds at the end, and invited readers to "pepper the dish to suit themselves."

Diana of the Crossways. A novel by George Meredith, published in 1885.

Diaz (dē'äth), Melchior. A Spanish captain in Mexico. From about 1536 to 1539 he commanded Culiacan. In November, 1539, he was sent by the viceroy Mendoza to verify the tale of Friar Marcos as to wealthy cities in the north. Going as far as "Chichilticalli," he was forced back by cold. He rejoined Coronado at Chiametla, sending a report to the viceroy. This was not favorable to Marcos, but secrecy was preserved by his superiors and the expedition proceeded. Later he escorted the discredited friar back. Executing, then, orders to explore northwest from Corazones, he crossed with twenty-five men northwest Mexico and southwest Arizona (the first to do this) to the Colorado River, which he reached (1540) about eighty miles above its mouth, soon after Alarçon, the first to ascend, had passed on his return. Crossing the river, which he called Rio del Tizon, he went west four days. Throwing a spear at an unruly dog, Diaz was accidentally so injured that he died (about Jan. 1, 1541). He was one of the most judicious and trusted officers of the period.

Dickinson (dik'in-sọn), Goldsworthy Lowes. A contemporary English author. He was educated at the Charterhouse and at King's College, Cambridge. He is a fellow and lecturer of King's College, Cambridge, and a lecturer at the London School of Economics and Political Science; and delivered the Ingersoll lecture at Harvard in 1909. He has published "The Development of Parliament in the Nineteenth Century," "The Greek View of Life," "Letters from a Chinese Official," "A Modern Symposium," "Justice and Liberty," etc.

Dickinson (dik'in-sọn), Jacob McGavock. Born at Columbus, Miss., Jan. 30, 1851. An American jurist. He was assistant attorney-general of the United States 1895–97; was counsel for the United States before the Alaska Boundary Tribunal in 1903; and was appointed secretary of war in March, 1909.

Dickson City (dik'sọn sit'i). A borough in Lackawanna County, Pennsylvania, 3 miles northeast of Scranton. It has machine-shops, foundries, silk-mills, etc., and coal-mining is among its important industries. Population, 9,331, (1910).

Diéterle (di-ā-terl'), Mme. (Marie von Marcke). Born at Sèvres. A contemporary French artist. She is the daughter and pupil of Émile von Marcke, and is known as a painter of landscapes and cattle.

Dinagat (dē-nä'gät). A long, narrow island of the Philippines, belonging to Surigao province and lying north of Mindanao, from which it is separated by Surigao Strait. It is traversed from north to south by mountains, of which Redondo, a peak at the northern extremity, is the highest. Port Gabo, at the southeastern end of the island, is a good harbor in all weather for large vessels. Area, 309 square miles. Population, 5,243.

D'Indy. See ★Indy, d'.

Dingras (dēn-gräs'). A municipality of Ilocos Norte province, in the northwestern part of Luzón, Philippine Islands. Civilized population, 15,792.

Dipper, The Great. See Wain, Charles's.

Dirichlet (di-rėsh-lā'), Peter Gustave Lejeune. Born at Düren, Prussia, Feb. 13, 1805: died at Göttingen, May 5, 1859. A noted German mathematician, successor of Gauss as professor of mathematics at Göttingen in 1855. He is best known for his work in the theory of numbers.

Discovery. 3. The ship in which Captain Robert F. Scott made the antarctic expedition of 1900–04.

Distinguished Service Order. A British naval and military order of distinction, instituted Sept. 6, 1886. It consists of the sovereign and those officers who have been mentioned in despatches for meritorious or distinguished service in the field, or before the enemy, and upon whom the sovereign wishes, therefore, to confer honor. The badge of the order is a gold cross, enameled white, bearing upon the obverse the imperial crown within a wreath of laurel, and on the reverse the imperial cipher within a wreath of laurel. It is suspended by a red ribbon edged with blue. The order has over 1,400 companions. Foreign officers are, under certain conditions, eligible to honorary membership.

Ditters von Dittersdorf (dit'erz fon dit'erz-dôrf), Karl. Born at Vienna, Nov. 2, 1739: died near Neuhof, near Pilgram, Bohemia, Oct. 24, 1799. A noted Austrian violinist and composer. The best of his many operas, "Hieronymus Knicker" (1787) and "Doktor und Apotheker" (1786), long retained a place on the stage. His symphonies on Ovid's "Metamorphoses" (published in 1785) are remarkable specimens of early program music, and his string quartets foreshadow some of the developments of Haydn and Mozart.

Dix (diks), John Alden. Born at Glens Falls, N. Y., Dec. 25, 1860. An American politician. He was educated at Cornell University; has been interested in several manufacturing enterprises; and is a director of the First National Bank at Albany. He was nominated for lieutenant-governor in 1908; was chairman of the New York Democratic State Committee in 1910; and in November of that year was elected governor of New York by the Democratic party.

Dixon (dik'son). The county-seat of Lee County, Illinois, 98 miles west of Chicago. Its manufactures include shoes, wagons, condensed milk, flour, etc. The Northern Illinois Normal School and the Rock River Military Academy are at Dixon. Population, 7,216, (1910).

Dobbs Ferry (dobz fer'i). A village in Westchester County, New York, on the Hudson River, about 20 miles north of New York city. In the old Livingston mansion there, in 1783, Washington, Clinton, and Carleton met to settle the terms on which England should recognize the independence of the American colonies. Population, 3,455, (1910).

Dodge (doj), Charles Wright. Born at Cape Vincent, N. Y., Jan. 15, 1863. An American naturalist, professor of biology at the University of Rochester from 1892. He was graduated from the University of Michigan in 1886. He has published an "Introduction to Elementary Practical Biology" (1894), etc.

Dodge (doj), Grenville Mellen. Born at Danvers, Mass., April 12, 1831. An American soldier and civil engineer. He served through the Civil War, rising to the rank of major-general of volunteers in 1864, and resigned from the army in 1866. He was a member of Congress from Iowa 1867–69, and was chief engineer of the Union Pacific Railroad 1866–70, and of the Texas and Pacific Railway 1871–81. In 1898 he was appointed president of the commission for investigating the management of the war with Spain.

Dohrn (dōrn), Anton. Born at Stettin, 1840: died at Munich, Sept. 26, 1909. A German naturalist. He founded and directed the Zoölogical Station at Naples.

Dolbear (dol'bār), Amos Emerson. Born at Norwich, Conn., Nov. 10, 1837: died Feb. 23, 1910. An American physicist and inventor, professor of physics in Tufts College from 1874, best known for his inventions in telephony and wireless telegraphy. He invented the static telephone in 1879 and the air-space cable in 1882.

Dole (dōl), Nathan Haskell. Born at Chelsea, Mass., Aug. 31, 1852. An American author, journalist, and translator. He is the author of "A Young Folks' History of Russia" (1881), "A Score of Famous Composers" (1891), "The Hawthorn Tree, and Other Poems" (1895), "Omar, the Tent-maker" (1899), "Peace and Progress" (1904), reissued as "The Building of the Organ" (1906), "The Pilgrims" (1908), and "A Teacher of Dante" (1908), and has translated from many languages, notably the writings of Tolstoy.

Dole (dōl), Sanford Ballard. Born at Honolulu, H. I., April 23, 1844. A Hawaiian statesman. He is of American parentage, and was educated in the Hawaiian Islands and at Williams College, Massachusetts; studied law in Boston and was admitted to the bar in 1868; returned to Honolulu, and practised law there; and in 1887 was appointed associate judge of the supreme court. In 1893 he resigned to lead the revolution against the monarchy; was made head of the provisional government; and in 1894 became president of the republic of Hawaii. After the annexation of Hawaii to the United States he was appointed (1900) governor of Hawaii by President McKinley, and resigned in 1903 to become United States district judge for Hawaii.

Dolores, Mission. A Franciscan mission founded under Father Junípero Serra in October, 1776, on the lagoon of Nuestra Señora de los Dolores (Our Lady of Sorrows), within the limits of the present city of San Francisco. Originally called the Mission of San Francisco de Assisi.

Domingo (dō-mēng'gō), José. Born in Spain. A contemporary Spanish genre-painter. He was a pupil in Paris of the elder Meissonier, whose style he follows. Among his works are "Card Players," "Halt at the Inn," "Return from the Pasture," etc.

Dominican Republic* (Santo Domingo, or San Domingo). It is divided into six provinces and six maritime districts. By the constitution adopted in 1908 the legislative power is vested in a national congress, consisting of a senate of 12 senators and a chamber of deputies of 24 members, elected by restricted suffrage for a term of four years. The executive is vested in a cabinet council composed of the president and seven ministers.

Donora (don'ō-rā). A borough of Washington County, Pennsylvania, incorporated in 1901. Lumbering and agriculture are its main industries. Population, 8,174, (1910).

Don Quichotte. An opera by Massenet, first produced at Monte Carlo in February, 1910.

D'Ooge (dō'gi), Benjamin Leonard. Born at Grand Rapids, Mich., Jan. 10, 1860. An American classical scholar, professor of ancient languages in the Michigan State Normal College from 1886. He was graduated at the University of Michigan in 1881, and took his doctor's degree at the University of Bonn in 1901. His works include textbooks, editions of Latin texts, etc.

Dooley (dō'li), Mr. A humorous creation of Finley Peter Dunne: an Irish-American publican of "Archey Road," Chicago, whose comments on topics of the day are compounded of shrewd wit and common sense.

Doppler (dōp'lėr), Christian. Born at Salzburg, Germany, Nov. 30, 1803: died at Venice, March 17, 1853. A German physicist and mathematician, professor of experimental physics in the University of Vienna 1851–53. The important principle that when the source of waves of light, or sound, etc., moves away from the observer the waves appear to become less frequent, and vice versa, was announced by and has been named for him.

Doremus (dō-rē'mus), Charles Avery. Born at New York, Sept. 6, 1851. An American chemist, son of Robert Ogden Doremus. He was professor of chemistry and toxicology in the University of Buffalo, Medical Department, 1877–82, and in the American Veterinary College of New York 1882–92; adjunct professor in Bellevue Hospital Medical College 1879–97; assistant professor of chemistry in the College of the City of New York 1897–1903, and acting professor there 1903–04. He has published a "Report on Photography, Vienna Exposition" (1873), "Gaseous Poisons" in "Textbook of Legal Medicine and Toxicology" (1903), etc.

Doremus (dō-rē'mus), Robert Ogden. Born at New York, Jan. 11, 1824: died there, March 22, 1906. An American chemist, professor of chemistry and toxicology and medical jurisprudence in the Bellevue Hospital Medical College, and of chemistry and physics in the College of the City of New York.

Dorr (dôr), Mrs. (Julia Caroline Ripley). Born at Charleston, S. C., Feb. 13, 1825. An American poet and novelist. She is the author of "Poems" (1871), "Friar Anselmo and Other Poems" (1879), "Afternoon Songs" (1885), "Poems Complete" (1892), "Afterglow" (1900). Among her prose writings are "Farmingdale" (1854), "Lammere" (1856), "Sibyl Huntington" (1869), "Expiation" (1872), "Bermuda" (1884), "The Flower of England's Face" (1895), "A Cathedral Pilgrimage" (1896), "In Kings' Houses" (1898), etc.

Dorsey (dôr'si), George Amos. Born at Hebron, Ohio, Feb. 6, 1868. An American naturalist, assistant curator (1896–97) and curator (1897–) of anthropology in the Field Columbian Museum, Chicago. In 1900 he was appointed professor of comparative anatomy at the Northwestern University; in 1905 became assistant professor of anthropology at the University of Chicago; and became associate professor in 1909. He has published numerous anthropological and anatomical papers.

Dothan (dō'than). The county-seat of Houston County, Alabama, in the southeastern part of the State. It has iron-works, lumber-mills, cotton-compresses, etc. Pop., 7,016, (1910).

Doucet (dö-sā'), Charles Camille. Born at Paris, May 16, 1812: died there, April 1, 1895. A French dramatist and critic. He was the dramatic critic of the "Moniteur parisien," and was appointed chief of the theater division in the state department in 1853 and director of theaters in the imperial household in 1863. He was elected to the French Academy as successor to Alfred de Vigny in 1865 and became its perpetual secretary in 1876. His works include "Léonce" (1838; with Bayard), "Un jeune homme" (1841), "L'Avocat de sa cause" (1842), "La chasse aux fripons" (1846), "Velasquez" (1847), "La barque d'Antonio" (1849), "Les ennemis de la maison" (1851), "Le fruit défendu" (1858), "La considération" (1860), "Concours littéraires" (1886), etc.

Douglas. 3. A city in Cochise County, Arizona, incorporated in 1906. There are large copper-mines in the vicinity. Population, 6,437, (1910).

Doumic (dö-mik'), René. Born at Paris, March 7, 1860. A French man of letters, literary and dramatic critic of the "Revue des Deux Mondes." In 1909 he was chosen a member of the French Academy to fill the chair of M. Gaston-Boissier. He has published a number of works on literary themes.

Dove (duv), Patrick Edward. Born at Lasswade, near Edinburgh, July 31, 1815: died April 28, 1873. A British editor and philosophical writer. He published "The Theory of Human Progression, and Natural Probability of a Reign of Justice" (1850), in which, among other doctrines, he maintained that rent belongs to the nation, and thus, in a measure, anticipated the single-tax theory of Henry George.

Dowagiac (dō-wä'ji-ak). A city in Cass County, Michigan, 35 miles southwest of Kalamazoo. It has foundries, lumber- and flour-mills, and manufactories of stoves, grain-drills, etc. It is in a fertile agricultural region. Population, 5,088, (1910).

Dowden*, Edward. He has also published an edition of Wordsworth (1892–93), a critical edition of "Romeo and Juliet" (1900) and of "Cymbeline" (1903), and has written "New Studies in Literature" (1895), "The French Revolution and English Literature" (1897), "A History of French Literature" (1897), "Puritan and Anglican" (1900), "Robert Browning" (1904), "Michel de Montaigne" (1905), "Essays, Modern and Elizabethan" (1910), etc.

Dowie (dou'i), John Alexander. Born at Edinburgh in 1848: died at Chicago, March 9, 1907. A Scottish-American fanatic. He came to the United States in 1886, and in 1896 organized the "Christian Catholic Apostolic Church in Zion," of which he was "general overseer," establishing it in 1901 at Zion City, near Chicago. In 1906 his followers brought various charges against him, including that of financial mismanagement, and deposed him.

Doyle*, Sir Arthur Conan. He was knighted in 1902. His later works include "The Adventures of Gerard" (1903), "Sir Nigel" (1906), "The Croxley Master" (1906), "Round the Fire Stories" (1908), "Through the Magic Door" (1908), "The Fires of Fate" (1909), "Songs of the Road" (1911), "The Last Galley: Impressions and Tales" (1911), etc.

Drachman*, Holger Henrik Herholdt. His later poetical works include "Dybe Strenge" (1884), "Fjældsange og Æventyr" (1885), "Sangenes Bog" (1889), "Ungdomsdigte" (1898), "Broget Løv" (1901). He wrote also an autobiographical romance, "Den hellige Ild" (1899), "Smaa Fortællinger" (1884), "Med den brede Pensel" (1887), "Forskrevet" (1890), "Dädalus" (1900), and a number of dramatic works.

Dragomirof (drä'gō-mi-rôf), Michael Ivanovitch. Born 1830: died at Konotop, Oct. 28, 1905. A Russian general. He served in the Russo-Turkish war; was wounded at Shipka Pass; and was later appointed director of the Academy of the General Staff. In 1889 he was appointed governor-general of Kief, Podolia, and Volhynia. He published various important works on tactics and military administration. He retired in 1904.

Drake (drāk), Alexander Wilson. Born near Westfield, N. J., Sept. 4, 1843. An American wood-engraver and draftsman on wood, art director of "The Century Magazine" from 1870 ("Scribner's Monthly" 1870–81). He studied art in the Cooper Institute and the National Academy of Design, New York, and was largely instrumental in founding and developing the American school of wood-engraving. He was one of the founders of the Grolier Club, New York.

Dreadnought (dred'nât). A British battle-ship, launched in 1906. It is of 17,900 tons displacement; length, 490 ft.; beam, 82 ft.; draft, 26½ ft.; has belt-armor 11 inches thick; mounts ten 12-inch guns; has 5 torpedo-tubes; develops 27,500 indicated horse-power; and has a maximum speed of 21.85 knots. It gives name to the class of modern "all-big-gun" ships, at present regarded as the most efficient type of battle-ship.

Dresser (dres'ėr), John Alexander. Born at Richmond, Quebec, June 27, 1866. A Canadian geologist and petrographer, geologist of the Canadian Geological Survey from 1909. He has been lecturer on geology at McGill University since 1907.

Drexel (drek'sel), J. Armstrong. Born at Philadelphia. An American aviator, son of Anthony Drexel. He learned to fly a Blériot monoplane at Pau. He took part in numerous European exhibitions, winning many prizes, and came to America to enter the international races at Belmont Park, Long Island, in October, 1910. His flights for altitude have been especially notable. He ascended 6,750 feet at Lanark, Scotland, Aug. 11, 1910; and at Philadelphia, on Nov. 23, 1910, his barograph indicated an altitude of 9,970 feet above sea-level—a world's record at that date, although this figure was slightly modified by subsequent correction.

Drisler (dris'lėr), Henry. Born on Staten Island, N. Y., Dec. 27, 1818: died at New York, Nov. 30, 1897. An American classical scholar, lexicographer, and educator. In 1843 he was appointed tutor in Columbia College (later University), and was continuously connected with that institution during the rest of his active life, becoming professor of Greek in 1867, and dean of the faculty of arts in 1889. In 1894 he resigned and was made professor emeritus. In 1867 and 1888–89 he was acting president of the university. He re-edited Liddell and Scott's edition of Passow's Greek lexicon (1851), and was associate editor of the seventh revised Oxford edition, published in 1883.

Driver (drī'vėr), Samuel Rolles. Born at Southampton, England, Oct. 2, 1846. An English scholar, regius professor of Hebrew and canon of Christ Church in the University of Oxford from 1883. He was one of the revisers of the English translation of the Old Testament 1876–84. Among his works are "Isaiah" (1893), "An Introduction to the Literature of the Old Testament" (1897), and commentaries on "Joel and Amos" (1897), "Daniel" (1901), "Deuteronomy" (1902), "The Minor Prophets" (1905), "Job" (1905), "Genesis" (1909), "Three Papers on the Higher Criticism," with A. F. Kirkpatrick (1905), etc.

Droch (drōch). The pseudonym of Robert Bridges (born 1858).

Dropsie (drop'si), Moses Aaron. Born in Philadelphia, March 9, 1821: died there, July 8, 1905. A lawyer and philanthropist. He translated and edited Mackeldey's "Handbook of the Roman Law" (1883) and wrote "Roman Law of Testaments" (1892). He was interested in Hebrew learning and left his fortune of one million dollars for the establishment of a college for Hebrew and cognate learning in the city of Philadelphia.

Drummond (drum'ond), William Henry. Born near Mohill, County Antrim, Ireland, April 13, 1854: died at Cobalt, Ontario, Canada, April 6, 1907. A Canadian physician and poet, known as "the poet of the habitant." He removed to Canada in his youth and was educated there. He began the practice of medicine in the province of Quebec, where he came in close contact with the French-Canadian voyageurs and habitants, about whom most of his poems were written. Later he removed to Montreal, and for some years was professor of medical jurisprudence at Bishop University. His works include "The Habitant, and Other French-Canadian Poems" (1897), "Phil-o-rum's Canoe" and "Madeleine Vercheres" (1898), "Johnnie Courteau" (1901), "The Voyageur, and Other Poems" (1905), and "The Great Fight" (1908).

Drygalski (dri-gäl'ski), Erich von. Born at Königsberg, Prussia, Feb. 9, 1865. A German explorer. He conducted an expedition to Greenland 1891–93, and was the leader of an expedition to the antarctic 1901–03. In the latter he reached the neighborhood of lat. 66° S., long. 90° E., where his ship was frozen fast in the ice (Feb. 12, 1902). Here, in the vicinity of Kaiser Wilhelm II. Land (named by him), a year was spent in scientific observation. He became professor extraordinary of geography in the University of Berlin in 1899.

Dublin (dub'lin). The county-seat of Laurens County, Georgia, 48 miles southeast of Macon. It has manufactories of cotton, cotton-seed oil, wagons, etc. Population, 5,795, (1910).

Dubois (dū-bois'). A borough in Clearfield County, Pennsylvania, 48 miles northwest of Altoona. It has iron-works, tanneries, machine-shops, flour-mills, etc., but the principal industries are lumbering and coal-mining. Population, 12,623, (1910).

Ducasse (dü-käs'), Roger. Born at Bordeaux, April 18, 1873. A French composer. He was a pupil of Fauré in the Paris Conservatory, and received the second Prix de Rome in 1902. He has written a "Suite Française" for orchestra, a string quartet, a set of variations for harp and orchestra, a pastoral for organ, and a number of songs and piano pieces.

Dudley (dud'li), Irving Bedell. Born at Jefferson, Ohio, Nov. 30, 1861. An American diplomatist, appointed ambassador to Brazil in 1906. He was minister to Peru 1897–1906.

Dudley (dud'li), Plimmon Henry. Born at Freedom, Ohio, May 21, 1843. An American civil engineer, consulting engineer on rails, tires, and structural steel of the New York Central lines from 1880. He invented the dynagraph, the track-indicator, and the stremmatograph, and designed the first 5-inch and 6-inch steel rails used in the United States.

Dudley (dud'li), William Russell. Born at Guilford, Conn., March 1, 1849. An American botanist, professor in Leland Stanford University from 1892. He was assistant professor in Cornell University 1876–92. He has published works on local botany, "A Manual of Histology" (1894: with M. B. Thomas), etc.

Dudley (dud'li) Observatory. An astronomical observatory situated (since 1893) on Lake Avenue, Albany, New York. In 1873 it was incorporated with Union College, Schenectady, etc., to form Union University. It is supported by an endowment, by appropriations from the National Academy of Sciences, by grants from the Carnegie Institution, etc., and is devoted to original research. Elaborate star-catalogues, annals, etc., have been issued from the observatory.

Dufay (dü-fā'), Guillaume. Born at Chimay, Belgium, about 1400: died at Cambrai, Nov. 27, 1474. A French composer and contrapuntist, originator of improvements in musical notation, such as the use of white notes.

Duff (duf), Sir Mountstuart Elphinstone Grant. Born at Eden, Aberdeenshire, Scotland, Feb. 21, 1829: died at London, Jan. 12, 1906. A British Liberal politician and author. He was educated at Balliol College, Oxford, and was called to the bar in 1854; was a member of the House of Commons for Elgin Burghs 1857–81; was under-secretary of state for India 1868–74; was under-secretary for the colonies 1880–81; and was governor of Madras 1881–86. He was knighted in 1886. Among his works are "Studies in European Politics" (1866), "Elgin Speeches" (1871), "Sir Henry Maine: a Brief Memoir" (1892), "Renan: In Memoriam" (1893), "Notes from a Diary" (1897–1905), "Out of the Past" (1903), etc.

Dukas (dü-kä'), Paul. Born at Paris, France, Oct. 1, 1865. A musical critic and a composer of the advanced French school. He was a pupil at the Paris Conservatory, winning the second Prix de Rome. His works include the opera "Ariane et Barbe Bleue," with text by Maeterlinck (1907), a symphony (1897), a symphonic poem (1897), a piano sonata (1901), and overtures.

Dulanganes (dö-län-gä'näz). A pagan people of southeastern Mindanao, by some regarded as part Indonesian.

Dulong (dü-long'), Pierre Louis. Born at Rouen, France, Feb. 12, 1785: died at Paris, July 19, 1838. A noted French physicist and chemist, professor of physics at the École Polytechnique in Paris from 1820, and permanent secretary of the Academy of Sciences from 1832. With Petit he announced (1819) the law that the product of the specific heat of any element in the solid state multiplied by its atomic weight is (approximately) constant.

Dumaguete (dö-mä-gā'tā). A town, the capital of Negros Oriental province, in the Philippines. It is situated on the eastern coast, near the southern entrance to the Strait of Tañón, in lat. 9° 18' 30" N., long. 123° 18' E. Civilized population of municipality, 14,894.

Dumanjug (dö-män-hög'). A municipality of Cebú province, in the Philippine Islands. It is situated on the west coast of Cebú Island. Civilized population, 22,203.

Dumarán (dö-mä-rän'). An island of Paragua province, in the Philippine Islands. It is situated east of the northern part of Paragua, from which it is separated by Dumarán Channel. It is high and well wooded. Area, 122 square miles. Population, 1,987.

Dunant (dü-noṅ'), Jean Henri. Born at Geneva, May 8, 1828. A Swiss philanthropist. While visiting the battle-field of Solferino in 1859 he observed the want of an adequate ambulance corps, and thereafter applied himself to urging measures for the relief of the wounded in time of war. His efforts, sustained by his countrymen, resulted in the Geneva Convention in 1864 and the founding of the Red Cross Society. Having devoted his whole fortune to the cause, he was obliged to support himself by teaching, but received a pension from the Empress of Russia. In 1901 he was awarded the Nobel prize for services in the cause of peace. His "Souvenir de Solferino" (1862) made a deep impression on the public. He published also "Fraternité et charité internationale en temps de guerre" (1864), and other works.

Dunbar (dun'bär), Paul Laurence. Born at Dayton, Ohio, June 27, 1872: died there, Feb. 9, 1906. An American author and poet, of African descent. He was engaged in journalistic work in Dayton and New York, and was employed in the Congressional Library in Washington. Among the better known of his works are "Oak and Ivy" (1893), "Majors and Minors" (1895), "Lyrics of Lowly Life" (1896), "Lyrics of the Hearthside" (1899), "The Strength of Gideon" (1900), "The Fanatics" (1901), "The Sport of the Gods" (1902), "Lyrics of Love and Laughter" (1903), "Lyrics of Sunshine and Shadow" (1905), etc.

Duncan (dung'kan), Isadora. Born at San Francisco, Cal., May 27, 1880. An American dancer. When very young she came to New York, where she appeared in public and also opened a dancing school. She danced in scant draperies, with bare feet, imitating the postures of the figures on Greek vases. She then went abroad, danced in Berlin with success, and established a school in the Grünewald, near that city. After some time she returned to America. Her principal success has been made in Greek dances arranged for Gluck's music.

Duncan (dung'kan), Norman. Born at Brantford, Ontario, Canada, July 2, 1871. A Canadian educator and author. He was on the staff of the New York "Evening Post" 1897–1901; was professor of rhetoric in Washington and Jefferson College 1902–06; and adjunct professor of English literature in the University of Kansas 1907–10. He has published "The Soul of the Street" (1900), "Doctor Luke of Labrador" (1904), "Dr. Grenfell's Parish" (1905), "The Mother" (1905), "Every Man for Himself" (1908), "The Suitable Child" (1909), "The Measure of a Man" (1911), etc.

Duncan, Sara Jeannette. The maiden name and pseudonym of Mrs. Everard Cotes, a contemporary novelist.

Dunmore (dun'mōr), Earl of. See ★Murray, John.

Dunne (dun), Finley Peter. Born at Chicago, Ill., July 10, 1867. An American journalist and humorist, best known for his creation of "Mr. Dooley." He was a reporter for various Chicago newspapers from 1885 to 1891; was city editor of the "Times" 1891–92; was on the staffs of the "Evening Post" and "Times-Herald" 1892–97; and was editor of the "Journal" 1897–1900 (all in Chicago). His works include "Mr. Dooley in Peace and in War" (1898), "Mr. Dooley in the Hearts of his Countrymen" (1898), "Mr. Dooley's Philosophy" (1900), "Mr. Dooley's Opinions" (1901), "Observations by Mr. Dooley" (1902), "Dissertations by Mr. Dooley" (1906), "Mr. Dooley Says" (1910), etc.

Dunstable (dun'sta-bl), John. Born about 1370: died Dec. 24, 1453. An English composer, chief of the early school of contrapuntists, and said to have been the inventor of true counterpoint.

Dunwich (dun'ich). A village in Suffolk, England, on the coast between Southwold and Aldeburgh about 90 miles northeast of London. It was the seat of the bishopric of East Anglia, said to have been founded about 630, and was important in the early middle ages. Successive inroads of the sea have destroyed churches and other buildings, leaving only a small village. Population, 157.

Dupré (dü-prā'), August. Born at Mainz, Germany, Sept. 6, 1835: died at Sutton, England, July 15, 1907. A German-English analytical chemist. He studied at Darmstadt, Giessen, and Heidelberg; came to London in 1855; was lecturer on chemistry at Westminster Hospital 1864–97; became chemical referee to the medical department of the Local Government Board in 1871; and was also chemical adviser to the explosives department of the Home Office. Besides publishing many papers on scientific subjects, he collaborated with others in writing "The Nature, Origin, and Use of Wine" and a "Manual of Inorganic Chemistry."

Dupuy (dü-püē'), Charles Alexandre. Born at Le Puy, France, Nov. 5, 1851. A French politician. He was professor of philosophy at the lycée of Le Puy (1876) and of St.-Étienne (1880), and inspector of the academy at Ajaccio (1884). He entered politics in 1885, and was minister of public instruction under Ribot in 1892, president of the council and minister of the interior 1894, 1898–99; president of the Chamber of Deputies and minister of the interior 1893–94, and senator from Haute-Loire 1900–09.

Duquesne (dū-kān'). A borough in Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, on the Monongahela River, about 1 mile northwest of McKeesport. It has steel-works and blast-furnaces. Population, 15,727, (1910).

Duquoin (dū-kwoin'). A city in Perry County, Illinois, 70 miles north of Cairo. It has iron-works, machine-shops, flour-mills, and an important coal industry. Population, 5,454, (1910).

Durant (dū-rant'). A city in Bryan County, in southern Oklahoma. Agriculture is its principal industry, cotton being produced, and there are cotton-compresses, etc. Population, 5,330, (1910).

Durendal (dö'ren-däl), or Durendart. See Durandana.

Durham University. A university at Durham, England, founded in 1832. It comprises, in Durham, University College (1837), Bishop Hatfield's Hall (1846), St. Chad's Hall (1904); and in Newcastle-upon-Tyne, the Durham College of Medicine (1852) and the Durham College of Science (now styled Armstrong College: 1871). It is attended by over 200 students at Durham, and (including those not reading for degrees) by about 2,000 at Newcastle. It confers degrees upon men in divinity and on men and women in civil law, arts, letters, medicine, surgery, literature, science, and music. Its affiliated colleges are Codrington College, Barbados (1875), and Fourah Bay College, Sierra Leone (1876).

Dutuit (dü-tüē') Collection. A celebrated collection of works of art and historic interest in the possession of the city of Paris. It was formed by Eugène (1807–1885) and Auguste (1810–1902) Dutuit, with their sister Héloïse. The Dutuits made their fortune at Marseilles, but went to Rouen, and began their collections there in 1832. The Dutuit Collection is housed in the Petit Palais des Beaux-Arts in Paris, and has been illustrated in several important books.

Eakins (ā'kinz), Thomas. Born at Philadelphia, July 25, 1844. An American artist and lecturer on art anatomy, educated in art at the École des Beaux-Arts under Gérôme. He won medals at the Columbian Exposition, Chicago, 1893; at the Pan-American Exposition, Buffalo, 1901; and (a gold medal) at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition, St. Louis, 1904; also the gold medal of the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts. He has painted many portraits and easel pictures. In sculpture his most notable works are the horses of the equestrian statues of Grant and Lincoln on the Memorial Arch in Brooklyn. He has also done two of the low reliefs on the Washington Monument at Trenton, New Jersey. He became a member of the Academy of Design in 1902.

Eames (ēmz), William S. Born at Clinton, Mich., Aug. 4, 1857. An American architect. He studied at the École des Beaux-Arts, Paris, and in Rome, and has practised his profession at St. Louis since 1882. He was deputy commissioner of public buildings in St. Louis 1881–83; United States representative at the International Congress at Madrid in 1904; and president of the American Institute of Architects 1904–05.

Earle (ėrl), Mrs. Henry (Alice Morse). Born at Worcester, Mass., April 27, 1853: died at Hempstead, L. I., Feb. 16, 1911. An American writer on colonial history. Among her works are "The Sabbath in Puritan New England" (1891), "Customs and Fashions in Old New England" (1893), "Colonial Dames and Goodwives" (1895), "Colonial Days in Old New York" (1896), "Home Life in Colonial Days" (1898), "Child Life in Colonial Days" (1899), "Stage Coach and Tavern Days" (1900), "Old-time Gardens" (1901), "Sun-dials and Roses of Yesterday" (1902), and "Two Centuries of Costume in America" (1903).

Early English Text Society. A society founded in 1864 by F. J. Furnivall (1825–1910) and directed by him. Its object is the promotion of the study of early English. It has rendered valuable service to literature in the publication of specially prepared editions of early English works. Abbreviated E. E. T. S.

East Chicago (ēst shi-kä'gō). A city in Lake County, Indiana, on Lake Michigan, 17 miles southeast of Chicago. It has foundries, lumber-mills, steel-works, and manufactories of cement, chemicals, etc. Population, 19,098, (1910).

East Cleveland (ēst klēv'land). A village in Cuyahoga County, Ohio, about 3 miles northeast of Cleveland, and connected with it by electric railway. Population, 9,179, (1910).

East Conemaugh (ēst kon'e-mâ). A borough in Cambria County, Pennsylvania, 26 miles southwest of Altoona. It has important iron-works. Population, 5,046, (1910).

Eastern Bengal and Assam. A province in British India, formed from Assam and the eastern part of Bengal in October, 1905. It consists of the territories formerly governed by the chief commissioner of Assam, to which have been added the Dacca and Chittagong divisions, with the districts of Rajshahi, Dinajpur, Jalpaiguri, Rangpur, Bogra, Pabna, and Malda. It is bounded on the north by the Himalayas, on the east by Burma, on the south by Burma and the Bay of Bengal, and on the west by Bengal. The capital of the province is Dacca City, and the seaport is Chittagong. The chief products are jute, tobacco, tea, rice, and sugar-cane. The total area is 111,569 square miles. Population, 30,961,459.

East Ham (ēst ham). A town, an eastern suburb of London, situated in the southwestern part of Essex, England. Population, 96,018.

East Hartford (ēst härt'förd). A town in Hartford County, Connecticut, on the east bank of the Connecticut River, opposite Hartford. Its chief industries are tobacco-raising and paper-manufacturing. Population, 8,138, (1910).

Eastman (ēst'man), Charles Alexander (Ohiyesa). Born at Redwood Falls, Minn., 1858. An American physician of native Sioux Indian parentage. He was graduated at Dartmouth College in 1887 and at the Boston University School of Medicine in 1890. In 1891 he married Elaine Goodale, the author. He was government physician at the Pine Ridge Agency, South Dakota, 1890–93; was in charge of the Indian work of the Young Men's Christian Association 1894–97; was attorney for the Santee Sioux at Washington, D. C., 1897–1900; and was government physician at Crow Creek, South Dakota, 1900–03. He has published "Indian Boyhood" (1902), "Red Hunters and the Animal People" (1904), "Old Indian Days" (1907), "Wigwam Evenings" (1909), "The Soul of the Indian" (1911), etc.

Easton (ēs'ton). A town in Bristol County, Massachusetts, 25 miles southwest of Boston. It has manufactories of shovels, wire goods, hardware, automobiles, etc. Population, 5,139, (1910).

East Pittsburgh (ēst pits'bèrg). A borough in Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, 3¼ miles northeast of McKeesport. It has machine-shops, electric plants, and factories. Population, 5,615, (1910).

East Providence (ēst prov'i-dens). A town in Providence County, Rhode Island. It contains chemical and electrical works, wire-factories, etc. Population, 15,808, (1910).

Ecclesiasticus (e-klē-zi-as'ti-kus). The Latin name of an apocryphal book of the Greek Bible (Septuagint) entitled "Wisdom of Jesus the Son of Sirach," probably written in the first third of the second century. The Hebrew original, which had been lost, was rediscovered in 1896 by Dr. Solomon Schechter.

Echegaray (ā-chā-gä-rä'i), José. Born at Madrid, March, 1832. A Spanish mathematician, statesman, and dramatist, the foremost representative of the modern Spanish drama. He was made professor of mathematics in the Engineering College of Madrid in 1858; became a member of the Academy of Sciences in 1866; and is the author of a number of mathematical works of recognized value. He became a member of the Cortes in 1868; was minister of commerce, education, and finance 1868–74; withdrew from political life in 1874; and was again minister of finance in 1905. Among his best-known works are "La esposa del vengador" (1874), "La ultima noche" (1875), "O locura ó santidad" (1877), "En el seno de la muerte" (1879), "El gran galeoto" (1881), "Mariana" (1892), "El hijo de Don Juan" (1892), "Mancha que limpia" (1895), and "El loco dios" (1900). Many of his plays have been translated into other languages. In 1904 he received, with Mistral, the Nobel prize for literature.

Ecuador*. The executive is vested in a president, elected directly by the people for a term of four years; and the legislative is vested in a congress of two houses, the senate, consisting of two members for each province, and the house of deputies, with one deputy for every 15,000 inhabitants, elected for two years.

Eddy (ed'i), Spencer Fayette. Born at Chicago, Ill., June 18, 1874. An American diplomatist. He was attached to the American embassy at London in 1899, and to that at Paris 1899–1901; was first secretary of legation at Constantinople 1901–03, at St. Petersburg 1903–06, and at Berlin 1906–07; and was minister to the Argentine Republic 1908–09. He became minister to Rumania, Servia, and Bulgaria in 1909, but resigned from the diplomatic service in that year.

Eddy (ed'i), William Abner. Born at New York, Jan. 28, 1850: died at Bayonne, N. J., Dec. 26, 1909. An American meteorologist. An accountant by profession, in 1890 he began experiments in kite-flying for scientific purposes. By means of kites with the necessary apparatus attached he secured records of temperature at varying heights (1891), photographs taken in mid air (1895), and facts concerning air-currents, atmospheric electricity, etc. In 1903 he experimented with model aëroplanes released from kites in mid air. He also devised instruments for recording tremors of the earth. Much of his work was done in connection with the United States Weather Bureau.

Edith Swan-neck (ē'dith swon'nek). The mistress of Harold II., king of the English, and mother, probably, of some of his children. By her aid the mutilated body of Harold was identified after the battle of Hastings (1066). She appears as a greatly idealized character in modern romance and poetry.

Edwards (ed'wärdz), Harry Stillwell. Born at Macon, Ga., April 23, 1855. An American journalist and author. He was assistant editor and editor of the Macon "Telegraph" 1881–87, and of the "Evening News" and "Sunday Times" 1887–88. In 1900 he became postmaster of Macon. Among his publications are "Two Runaways, and Other Stories" (1889), "Sons and Fathers," for which he was awarded the $10,000 prize in a contest opened by the Chicago "Record" (1895), "The Marbeau Cousins" (1898), "His Defense, and Other Stories" (1899), etc.

Edwardsdale. Same as ★Edwardsville, Pennsylvania.

Edwardsville (ed'wärdz-vil). The county-seat of Madison County, Illinois, 17 miles northeast of East St. Louis. It has manufactories of machinery, carriages, plumbers' supplies, etc. Coal-mining is carried on in the surrounding region. Population, 5,014, (1910).

Edwardsville (ed'wärdz-vil). A borough in Luzerne County, Pennsylvania, 3 miles northwest of Wilkes-Barre. It has coal-mines and breweries. Population, 8,407, (1910).

E. E. T. S. An abbreviation of Early English Text Society.

Egan (ē'gan), Maurice Francis. Born at Philadelphia, Pa., May 24, 1852. An American author and diplomat, envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to Denmark 1907–. He was editor of "The Freeman's Journal" 1881–88, professor of English literature at the University of Notre Dame, Indiana, 1889–95, and professor of the English language and literature in the Catholic University at Washington, D. C., 1895–1907. His works include "Preludes" (1880), "Songs and Sonnets" (1892), "Lectures in English Literature" (1894), "The Flower of the Flock" (1894), "The Chatelaine of the Roses" (1897), "From the Land of St. Lawrence" (1898), "The Leopard of Lauclanus" (1898), "The Dream of Gerontius" (1903), "St. Martin's Summer" (1905), "The Ghost in Hamlet, and Other Essays" (1906), "The Wiles of Sexton Maginnis" (1909), etc.

Eggleston (eg'l-ston), George Cary. Born at Vevay, Ind., Nov. 26, 1839: died at New York, April 14, 1911. An American journalist and author, brother of Edward Eggleston. He studied at Richmond College, Virginia, and began the practice of law in that State, but abandoned it to enlist in the Confederate army, in which he served throughout the Civil War. Later, at New York, he held editorial positions on various newspapers, among others the "Evening Post" (1875–81), the "Commercial Advertiser" (1884–1889), and the "World" (1889–1900). He published many novels and other books, including "A Rebel's Recollections" (1874), "Southern Soldier Stories" (1898), "A Carolina Cavalier" (1901), "Evelyn Byrd" (1904), "A Daughter of the South" (1905), "Two Gentlemen of Virginia" (1908), "Westover of Wanalah" (1910), etc.

Egoist, The: a Comedy in Narrative. A psychological novel by George Meredith, published in 1879.

Egypt*. Egypt proper is administratively divided into 5 governorships (mohafzas) and 15 mudiriehs or provinces. The predominant position of Great Britain was formally recognized by France in the Anglo-French Agreement (April, 1904), and a khedival decree appended thereto and approved by the Anglo-French Convention has removed most of the restrictions governing the management of finance. The great Nile dam at Assuan was completed in 1902. (See ★Assuan Dam.)

Ehrlich (ār'liĉh), Paul. Born at Strehlen, in Silesia, March 14, 1854. An eminent German physiologist, director of the Royal Institute for Experimental Therapeutics at Frankfort-on-the-Main, and professor in the University of Göttingen: especially noted for his studies in immunity. His "lateral chain theory," announced in 1897, has played an important part in the explanation of the facts of immunization. In 1908 he received, with Professor Metchnikoff, the Nobel prize in medicine.

Eidlitz (īd'litz), Leopold. Born at Prague, Bohemia, March 29, 1823: died at New York, March 22, 1908. An American architect. He was educated at the Polytechnic School at Prague, and, after a course of study at Vienna, came to America and established himself in New York city. He was associated with H. H. Richardson in the construction of the State House at Albany.

Elbe and Trave Canal. A canal joining the Elbe at Lauenburg with the Trave at Lübeck, thus connecting the North Sea with the Baltic. It is 41 miles long, is 72 feet broad, and has seven locks. It was completed in 1900 at a cost of nearly six million dollars.

Elberton (el'bèr-ton). The county-seat of Elbert County, Georgia, 69 miles northwest of Augusta. It has cotton-mills, fertilizer-factories, etc. Population, 6,483, (1910).

Elektra (ē-lek'trä). An opera by Richard Strauss, first produced at Dresden in 1909.

Elgar (el'gär), Sir Edward. Born at Broad Heath, Worcestershire, England, June 2, 1857. A noted English composer, professor of music in Birmingham University from 1904. He has written the oratorios "The Dream of Gerontius" (1900), "The Apostles" (1903), and "The Kingdom" (1906). He has also composed much for the orchestra, including a series of variations, overtures ("Cockaigne" and "In the South"), "Symphony in A Flat" (1908), "Symphony in E Flat" (1911), and an "introduction and allegro" for solo quartet of strings and string orchestra. Of his earlier cantatas "Light and Life," "King Olaf," and "Caractacus" are the most notable. He was knighted in 1904.

Elgar (el'gär), Francis. Born at Portsmouth, England, April 24, 1845: died Jan. 17, 1909. A noted British naval architect. He was adviser in naval construction to the Japanese government 1879–1881; director of dockyards at the British admiralty 1886–92; and was connected with private ship-building firms from 1892. He wrote "Ships of the Royal Navy" (1873), and numerous technical papers.

Elgin, Ninth Earl of. See ★Bruce.

Eliot*, Charles William. His later works include "Five American Contributions to Civilization" (1897), "Educational Reform" (1898), "Charles Eliot" (1902), "More Money for the Public Schools" (1903), "The Happy Life" (new ed. 1905), "Great Riches" (1906), "Four American Leaders" (1906), "University Administration" (1908), etc.

Eliot (el'i-ot), Sir John. Born at Lamesley, Durham, England, May 25, 1839: died at Cavalaire, France, March 18, 1908. An Anglo-Indian educator and meteorologist. He was educated at St. John's College, Cambridge; was professor of mathematics at the Rurki Engineering College in India 1869–72, and at the Muir Central College, Allahabad, 1872–1874; was professor of physics at the Presidency College, Calcutta, and also meteorological reporter to the government of Bengal, 1874–86; was meteorological reporter to the government of India and director-general of Indian observatories 1886–1903; and on his retirement in 1903 was made Knight Commander of the Indian Empire. Besides many papers on meteorological subjects, he published a "Handbook of Cyclonic Storms in the Bay of Bengal" and "The Climatological Atlas of India."

Elkin (el'kin), William Lewis. Born at New Orleans, La., April 29, 1855. An American astronomer, director of the Yale Observatory 1896–1910. He took part in investigations of the parallaxes of southern stars at the Royal Observatory, Cape of Good Hope, 1881–83.

Elkins (el'kinz). The county-seat of Randolph County, West Virginia, 92 miles southeast of Wheeling. It has brick-making and tanning establishments, coal and coke interests, etc. Population, 5,260, (1910).

Elkins (el'kinz), Stephen Benton. Born in Perry County, Ohio, Sept. 26, 1841: died at Washington, D. C., Jan. 4, 1911. An American Republican cabinet officer. He was graduated at the University of Missouri in 1860 and was admitted to the bar in 1863; was delegate to Congress from New Mexico 1873–77; was secretary of war in President Harrison's cabinet 1891–93; and United States senator from West Virginia 1895–1901, 1901–07, and 1907–11. He had large mining and railroad interests.

Elliot (el'i-ot), Daniel Giraud. Born at New York, March 7, 1835. An American naturalist, honorary curator of zoölogy in the Field Columbian Museum, Chicago. He has made extensive explorations in Canada, Alaska, South America, East Africa, Arabia, and elsewhere, and has published about 20 volumes and several hundred papers on zoölogical (especially mammalogical and ornithological) subjects.

Elliot, Gilbert John Murray Kynynmound. See ★Minto, Earl of.

Elliot (el'i-ot) Islands. A group of small islands in the Bay of Korea, off the southeast coast of the Liao-tung peninsula. They were used by the Japanese during the Russo-Japanese war as a naval base.

Elliott (el'i-ot), Charles. Born in Ireland in 1792: died 1869. An American Methodist clergyman and writer. He emigrated to the United States in 1815, and 1857–60 and 1864–67 was professor of biblical literature (and president) in the Iowa Wesleyan University. His best-known work is his "Delineation of Roman Catholicism" (1841).

Ellis (el'is), Henry Havelock. Born at Croydon, Surrey, Feb. 2, 1859. An English man of letters and anthropologist. He edited the works of John Ford and of Christopher Marlowe in the "Mermaid Series" of old English dramatists, and has written "The New Spirit" (1890), "The Criminal" (1890), "Man and Woman" (1894), "Sexual Inversion" (1897), "Affirmations" (1897), "The Evolution of Modesty" (1899), "Analysis of Sexual Impulse" (1903), "Sexual Selection in Man" (1905), "The Soul of Spain" (1908), etc.

Ellis Island. A small island in upper New York Bay, about one mile from Manhattan

Island. It is the property of the United States government and since 1892 has been used as an immigrant station. It receives the majority of the immigrants to the United States.

Elman (el'män), Mischa. Born at Talnoi, in the province of Kieff, Jan. 21, 1891. A Russian violinist. He began his studies at Odessa, displaying unusual ability while still very young. In 1901 he went to St. Petersburg and became a pupil of Leopold Auer. He made his début in Berlin, Oct. 14, 1904, and has since appeared in most of the important cities on the Continent, and in England and America.

El Reno (el rē'nō). The county-seat of Canadian County, Oklahoma, 25 miles northwest of Oklahoma. It is in an agricultural region, and has large produce interests, as well as flour-mills, canning-factories, etc. Population, 7,872, (1910).

Elson (el'sŏn), Louis Charles. Born at Boston, Mass., April 17, 1848. A musical writer and critic. His most important works are "National Music of America and its Sources" (1900), "Shakespeare in Music" (1901), "History of American Music" (1904), a dictionary of music (1906), "Curiosities of Music" (1908), etc.

Elwell (el'wel), Frank Edwin. Born at Concord, Mass., June 15, 1858. An American sculptor. He studied sculpture at the École des Beaux-Arts in Paris and under Falguière, and modeled the first statue by an American sculptor to be placed in Europe (at Edam, Holland). Among his works are "Dickens and Little Nell," equestrian statue of General Hancock (Gettysburg), "Awakening of Egypt," "Greece" and "Rome" (for the New York Custom-house), "Despatch Rider," etc., and busts of Elihu Yale (for the Yale Club in New York city), Vice-President Morton, and others.

Elwood (el'wŭd). A city in Madison County, Indiana. It has a trade in live stock, grain, etc., and brickyards, planing-mills, and various manufactures. Population, 11,028, (1910).

Ely (ē'li), Eugene B. Born at Davenport, Iowa, Oct. 21, 1885. An American aviator. On November 14, 1910, he first demonstrated the feasibility of starting an aëroplane from a vessel. In his Curtiss biplane he left the deck of the U. S. cruiser Birmingham, stationed in Hampton Roads, Va., and five minutes later landed safely on Willoughby Spit near Norfolk, a distance of about 3 miles. At San Francisco, Jan. 23, 1911, he flew to the battle-ship Pennsylvania, alighted, and returned, covering a distance of about 12 miles.

Ely (ē'li), Richard Theodore. Born at Ripley, N. Y., April 13, 1854. An American economist. He was graduated at Columbia 1876; studied abroad 1877–80, taking the degree of Ph. D. at Heidelberg; had charge of political economy at Johns Hopkins University 1881–92; and has since held the professorship of political economy in the University of Wisconsin. He has probably done more than any other American to awaken a popular interest in economics. He was founder of the American Economic Association and its president 1899–1901. His works include "French and German Socialism" (1883), "Problems of To-day" (1888), "Outlines of Economics" (1893; rev. ed. 1908), "Socialism and Social Reform" (1894), "Monopolies and Trusts" (1900), "Studies in the Evolution of Industrial Society" (1903), etc.

Emerson (em'ėr-sŏn), Benjamin Kendall. Born at Nashua, N. H., Dec. 20, 1843. An American geologist, professor of geology and mineralogy in Amherst College from 1872, and in Smith College from 1878. He is geologist of the United States Geological Survey, and was president of the Geological Society of America in 1899. His investigations have been concerned chiefly with the geology of Massachusetts.

Emery (em'e-ri), Henry Crosby. Born at Ellsworth, Maine, Dec. 21, 1872. An American political economist, chairman of the United States Tariff Board from 1909. He was instructor and professor of political economy in Bowdoin College 1894–1900, and has been professor of political economy in Yale University since 1900.

Emmet (em'et), Lydia Field. Born at New Rochelle, N. Y., in 1866. An American artist. She studied under Bouguereau and Robert-Fleury at Paris, and under Chase and Kenyon Cox at New York. She was awarded medals at the Chicago Exposition of 1893 and the Atlanta Exposition of 1895; won the Shaw prize at the exhibition of the Society of American Artists in 1906; and was elected an associate of the National Academy of Design in 1909. She is best known for her pictures of children.

Emmons (em'ŏnz), Samuel Franklin. Born at Boston, Mass., March 29, 1841: died at Washington, D. C., March 28, 1911. An American geologist and mining engineer, geologist of the United States Geological Survey 1867–1877 and 1879–1911. He wrote "Descriptive Geology of the 40th Parallel Region" (1877: with Hague), "Orographic Movements in the Rocky Mountains" (1879), "Geology and Mining Industry of Leadville, Colorado" (1886), "Geology of Lower California" (1890), "Geological Guide-book of the Rocky Mountains" (1894).

Emmons (em'ŏnz), William Harvey. Born at Mexico, Mo., Feb. 1, 1876. An American geologist, associate professor of economic geology in the University of Chicago from 1909. He was assistant professor there 1908–1909, and has been an assistant geologist of the United States Geological Survey since 1906.

Empire State of the South. A popular title of the State of Georgia.

Encounter Rock. A reef in the Lao-tie-shan Channel, about twenty miles southeast of Port Arthur.

Engineers' Club, The. A New York club, incorporated Dec. 7, 1888, for engineers and others interested in the engineering profession. It has 2,000 members. Its house is at 32 West 40th street.

Englefield (eng'gl-fēld), Sir Francis. Born about 1520: died at Valladolid, Spain, in 1596. An English politician. He at first accepted Protestantism, and in 1547 was knighted by Edward VI., but on the accession of Mary became a Roman Catholic, and advocated persecution for heresy. He was made a privy councilor in 1553, and was a member of every parliament but one during Mary's reign. After the accession of Elizabeth he fled to the Continent, where he took an active part in the many schemes for the restoration of Catholicism in England. In 1564 he was outlawed, and in 1585 convicted of high treason, his estates being declared to be forfeited, but he received a pension from Philip of Spain. He lived for some time at Rome and at Brussels, but retired finally to Valladolid.

Engler (eng'lėr), Adolf. Born at Sagan, Silesia, March 25, 1844. An eminent German botanist, professor in the University of Berlin and director of the Botanical Garden from 1889. From 1878 to 1884 he was professor at Kiel, and from 1888 to 1889 at Breslau. Among his published works are "Versuch einer Entwickelungsgeschichte der Pflanzenwelt" (1872–82), and "Die natürlichen Pflanzenfamilien" (1888–1909: with Prantl and others).

Enid (ē'nid). The county-seat of Garfield County, Oklahoma, 44 miles northwest of Guthrie. It has tile-works, flour-mills, etc., and agricultural and stock-raising interests. Population, 13,799, (1910).

Ennery (aṅ-rē'), Adolphe Philippe d'. Born at Paris, June 17, 1811: died there, Jan. 26, 1899. A French dramatist and librettist. In 1858 he changed his name of Dennery by legal process to d'Ennery. He was a prolific writer and produced, independently or in collaboration, a large number of pieces. He wrote, with Desnoyer, "Émile, ou le fils d'un pair de France" (1831); with Dumas, "Halifax" (1842); with Dumanoir, "Don César de Bazan" (1844); with Jules Verne, "Le tour du monde en quatre-vingts jours" (1874); with Cormon, "Les deux orphelines" (1875); with Paul Ferrier, "Le trésor des Radjahs" (1894), etc.

Ennis (en'is). A city in Ellis County, Texas, 34 miles southeast of Dallas. It has cotton-gins, lumber-mills, etc. Population, 5,669, (1910).

Epaphroditus (e-paf-rō-dī'tus). 1. The messenger or delegate sent by the Apostle Paul to the church at Philippi. He visited Paul during his imprisonment at Rome. Paul characterizes him as "my brother, and companion in labour, and fellow soldier."—2. A freedman of Nero, and his secretary. He assisted Nero in his attempt at suicide. The philosopher Epictetus was his freedman.

Ephrata (ef'ra-tă). A township and borough of Lancaster County, Pennsylvania. It is noteworthy as having been the seat of the monastic community of Seventh-day German Baptists, or Dunkers, founded there by Johann Conrad Beissel about 1738. The borough was incorporated in 1891. Population, township, 2,565; borough, 3,192, (1910).

Ephrussi (ā-frü-sē'), Charles. Born at Odessa, Russia, Dec. 24, 1844: died at Paris, Sept. 30, 1905. A French art critic and editor. He was educated at Odessa and Vienna and came to Paris in 1871. In 1885 he became a proprietor of the "Gazette des Beaux-Arts" and in 1894 its director.

Epworth League (ep'wėrth lēg). A society of the Methodist Episcopal Church, organized at Cleveland, Ohio, in May, 1889: named for the birthplace of John Wesley. Its object is to strengthen the hold of each church upon the young people in its parish. Its organ is the "Epworth Herald" and its membership is over one million.

Er (ėr). A Pamphylian, the son of Armenius: a character introduced by Plato into the tenth book of "The Republic." He was slain in battle, and on the twelfth day after, as he was lying on the funeral pile, returned to life and told what he had seen in the other world.

Erichsen, L. Mylius-. See ★Mylius-Erichsen, L.

Erie Canal*. In 1896 an appropriation of $9,000,000 was voted for its enlargement to a depth of 9 feet; but this sum was soon expended, and in 1903 a further enlargement was determined on, so as to allow the passage of barges of 1,000 tons, the depth to be 12 feet and the width to be 200 feet at bottom in larger rivers and canalized lakes, and 110 to 150 feet at bottom in smaller rivers and valleys, while the minimum bottom width of canal sections proper is to be 75 feet. Concrete is to be used instead of stone, and the total cost of construction is to be $101,000,000. The entire length of the New York State Barge Canal system will be 431 miles, instead of 350 as at present; it will include that of the tributary Oswego and Champlain canals. The enlargement is expected to be finished by the year 1914.

Eritrea*. The colony extends on the coast of the Red Sea from Cape Kasar (18° 2′ N.) to Cape Dumeirah on the strait of Babel-Mandeb (12° 30′ N.), about 670 miles. The inland boundary was defined (by treaty of 1891, protocols of 1898, 1899, and 1901, and agreement concluded in 1901) as running from Ras Kasar to Barka, thence to Sabderat, 13 miles east of Kassala, thence southward about 120 miles to the Atbara, and southeastward to Obok. By the treaty of July 10, 1900, between Italy and Abyssinia, Eritrea annexed the province of Cunama; and by the treaty of May 15, 1902, between Great Britain, Italy, and Abyssinia, the boundaries between Eritrea and Sudan, withdrawn from the Atbara, were determined by a line running southward from Labderah to Abu Gamel on the Gash and Ombruga on the Setit river. It has the control of its own administration and finance, under a civil governor appointed by the king. Asmara is the seat of government. Area, about 45,800 square miles.

Erlanger (er-loṅ-zhā'), Camille. Born at Paris, May 25, 1863. A French composer. He was educated at the Paris Conservatory, where he took the Prix de Rome in 1888. His principal works are "Le Juif Polonais," produced at the Paris Opéra Comique in 1900, and "Aphrodite," produced there in 1906. He has written other lyric dramas, an oratorio, a cantata, several orchestral suites, and songs.

Erlanger (er-loṅ-zhā'), Frédéric d'. Born at Paris, May 29, 1868. A French composer. His works include three operas, among them "Tess of the d'Urbervilles," and orchestral and chamber music.

Erman (er'män), Adolf. Born at Berlin, Oct. 31, 1854. An eminent German Egyptologist, professor in the University of Berlin from 1883, and director of the Egyptian department of the Royal Museum from 1885. Among his works are "Die Pluralbildung des Ägyptischen" (1878), "Neuägyptische Grammatik" (1880), "Ägypten und ägyptisches Leben im Altertum" (1885–87), "Ägyptische Grammatik" (2d ed. 1902), "Zaubersprüche für Mutter und Kind" (1901), etc.

Escalante (ās-kä-län'tā), Francisco Silvestre Velez. A Spanish Franciscan friar, the first explorer of Utah and "ministro doctrinero" of Zuñi. In 1776 he went from Zuñi to Santa Fé to explore a road to connect the missions of the Rio Grande with those of California. With Escalante were three civilians, four soldiers, and his brother friar Dominguez. They crossed the tributaries of the San Juan, went down the Dolores, crossed Grand River, the Book Plateau, the head of White River, and finally the Green (which he called "San Buenaventura") some miles above the mouth of the Uinta. Going up the latter, they surmounted the Wasatch range and descended to Utah Lake. They heard of Salt Lake, but did not go there. Turning then south, they decided, October 7th, that winter would overtake them before they could reach Monterey and that they would strike for the Moki towns. Crossing the Sevier and passing the sites of Fillmore, Beaver, and Parowan, they reached the Virgin near St. George or Toquerville. Thence they went south, southeast, north, etc., as the topography compelled, finally arriving at the Ute Ford of the Colorado about where the 37th parallel intersects the river. Fording here, they at length reached the Moki towns and Zuñi. This ford has since been known as El Vado de los Padres (the Crossing of the Fathers).

Escanaba (es-ka-nâ'bä). The county-seat of Delta County, Michigan. It is situated on Little Bay de Noquette, an inlet of Green Bay, Lake Michigan, 58 miles southeast of Marquette. It is an active shipping-point for iron-ore, lumber, coal, and fish. Population, 13,194, (1910).

Espejo (ās-pā'hō), Antonio de. A wealthy Spaniard who went to New Mexico, 1582–83, with several Franciscan friars. At the close of 1582 he was on the Rio Grande near El Paso. He went up the river, passing native settlements, and arrived at Tiguex. Six leagues further up the river was Quires; thence fourteen leagues, Cunames; thence five or six leagues northwest, Amefes; thence fifteen leagues west, Acoma; and twenty-four leagues west, Zuñi. He continued to the San Francisco Mountains. Returning via Zuñi, he again visited the Rio Grande pueblos, whence he went east to Hubates, north to Tamos, and then east to Pecos river, which he followed out of the country, naming it "Rio de las Vacas" because of the many buffalo he saw.

Esprit (es-prē'), Pierre d'. See ★Radisson.

Estournelles de Constant (ās-tōr-nel' dė kôṅ-stoṅ'), Paul Henri Benjamin Balluat d'. Born at La Flèche, Nov. 22, 1852. A French diplomatist and statesman. He studied at the École des Langues Orientales; held diplomatic posts in Tunis, Montenegro, and Holland, and (1892–94) at London; was a member of the Chamber of Deputies 1895–1904, and has been senator since 1904. He represented France in the peace conferences at The Hague in 1899 and 1907, and is a member of the permanent court of arbitration there established. In 1909 he received the Nobel prize for services in the cause of peace. He has published "La vie de province en Grèce" (1876), "Les congrégations religieuses chez les Arabes" (1886), etc.

Etna (et'nă). A borough in Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, just above Pittsburgh. It has brass-foundries, steel-mills, pipe-factories, furnaces, etc. Population, 5,830, (1910).

Eucken (oi'ken), Rudolf Christoph. Born in Aurich, East Friesland, Jan. 5, 1846. A German philosopher, professor of philosophy at Jena from 1874. He has published "Geschichte und Kritik der Grundbegriffe der Gegenwart" (1878, 1892), "Geschichte der philosophischen Terminologie" (1879), "Gesammelte Aufsätze zur Philosophie und Lebensanschauung" (1903), etc.

Eugene (ū-jēn′). The county-seat of Lane County, Oregon, on the Willamette River, 105 miles southwest of Portland. It has machine-shops, furniture-factories, canneries, lumber-mills, and agricultural interests, and is the seat of the University of Oregon. Population, 9,009, (1910).

Eugen Onegin. An opera by Peter Tschaikovsky, words adapted from Pushkin's "Eugene Onyegin," first produced at the Moscow Conservatory March 29, 1879.

Evans (ev′anz), Sir Arthur John. Born at Nash Mills, Hertfordshire, England, 1851. An English archæologist, keeper of the Ashmolean Museum 1884–1908 (honorary), and fellow of Brasenose College, Oxford. He is especially known for his explorations in Crete, which were begun in 1893 and resulted in the important discovery of a pre-Phenician script and the excavating (1900–08) of a prehistoric palace at Cnosus (palace of Minos) containing many remains of Minoan civilization. He has published "Cretan Pictographs" (1896), "Further Discoveries of Cretan and Ægean Script" (1898), "The Mycenæan Tree" (1901), reports on the excavations at Cnosus, etc. He was knighted in 1911.

Evans (ev′anz), Sir John. Born at Britwell Court, Berkhamstead, Buckinghamshire, Nov. 17, 1823: died there, May 31, 1908. An English archæologist. His works include "The Coins of the Ancient Britons" (1864: supplement, 1890), "The Ancient Stone Implements of Great Britain" (1872), "The Ancient Bronze Implements of Great Britain and Ireland" (1881), etc.

Evans (ev′anz), Robley Dunglison. Born in Floyd County, Va., Aug. 18, 1846. An American naval officer, appointed rear-admiral in 1901. He was graduated at the United States Naval Academy in 1863; served in the Union navy during the last years of the Civil War (Fort Fisher); commanded the Yorktown, which was sent to Valparaiso, Chile, in 1891, when trouble occurred between that country and the United States and sailors from the Baltimore were attacked in the streets of Valparaiso; was promoted captain in 1893; and commanded the battle-ship Iowa in Admiral Sampson's squadron during the Spanish war, taking part in the battle of Santiago, July 3, 1898. In 1908 he commanded the battle-ship fleet as far as San Francisco in its voyage around the world. He retired in August, 1908.

Evans (ev′anz), Thomas Wiltberger. Born at Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 23, 1823: died at Paris, France, Nov. 14, 1897. An American dentist. He went to Paris and became the official dentist of Napoleon III. and Empress Eugénie; was prominent in the organization of the Red Cross Society; and founded the "American Register" in Paris, one of the first English newspapers published in that city. It was through his efforts that the Empress Eugénie was rescued from the violence of the Commune in 1870, and reached England in safety.

Eveleth (ev′e-leth). A city in St. Louis County, Minnesota, about 50 miles northwest of Duluth. Iron-mining is its principal industry. Population, 7,036, (1910).

Everett (ev′ėr-et). The county-seat of Snohomish County, Washington, on Possession Sound, 28 miles northeast of Seattle. Its main interests are agriculture, lumbering, and mining, and it has paper-factories, flour-mills, lumber-mills, refining-works, etc. Population, 24,814, (1910).

Everett (ev′ėr-et), Charles Carroll. Born at Brunswick, Me., June 19, 1829: died at Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 17, 1900. An American Unitarian minister and educator. He was graduated at Bowdoin College in 1850; was minister of the Independent Congregational (Unitarian) Church at Bangor, Maine, 1859–68; and was appointed professor of theology at Harvard University in 1869 and dean of the Harvard Divinity School in 1878. He wrote "The Science of Thought" (1869), "Religions before Christianity" (1883), "Fichte's Science of Knowledge" (1884), "The Gospel of Paul" (1893), "Essays Theological and Literary" (1901), etc.

Everett (ev′ėr-et), William. Born Oct. 10, 1839: died Feb. 16, 1910. An American educator and author, son of Edward Everett. He was graduated at Harvard University in 1859 and at Trinity College, Cambridge, England, in 1863. He was admitted to the bar in Boston in 1866, but never practised, and in 1872 was licensed to preach in the Unitarian Church. He was tutor and later assistant professor of Latin in Harvard University 1870–77; master of Adams Academy, Quincy, Mass., 1877–93; and was Democratic member of Congress 1893–95. In 1897 he was recalled to the mastership of Adams Academy. Among his publications are "On the Cam" (1865), "School Sermons" (1882), "Thine, not Mine" (1890), "The Italian Poets since Dante" (1904), etc.

Ever Faithful Isle. A name formerly given to the island of Cuba.

Evermann (ev′ėr-man), Barton Warren. Born in Monroe County, Iowa, Oct. 24, 1853. An American biologist: ichthyologist and assistant in charge of the scientific work of the United States Bureau of Fisheries from 1903, and curator of the division of fishes in the United States National Museum from 1905. He has published "The Fishes of North and Middle America" (1896–1900: with David Starr Jordan), "Food and Game Fishes of North America" (1902: also with Jordan), "Fishes of Hawaii" (1905), "Fishes of Alaska" (1907), etc.

Eversley, Viscount. See ★Shaw-Lefevre, Charles.

Ewald (ā′väld), Karl. Born Oct. 15, 1856: died at Copenhagen, Feb. 26, 1908. A noted Danish novelist. His works include stories of modern life, historical romances, fairy tales, etc. He was called the "Danish Hans Andersen."

Ewing (ū′ing), Mrs. (Juliana Horatia Gatty). Born at Ecclesfield, Yorkshire, 1841: died at Bath, May 13, 1885. An English writer for the young, daughter of Margaret Gatty. She married in 1867 Major Alexander Ewing of the army pay department. Her works include "Melchior's Dream" (1862), "The Brownies" (1870), "A Flat-iron for a Farthing" (1872), "Lob-lie-by-the-Fire" (1873), "We and the World" (1873), "Six to Sixteen" (1875), "Jan of the Windmill" (1876), "Jackanapes" (1883), "The Story of a Short Life" (1885), etc.

Excelsior State. A popular name for the State of New York: from the motto "Excelsior" on its shield.

Exner (eks′nėr), Siegmund. Born at Vienna, Austria, April 5, 1846. An Austrian physiologist, professor at the University of Vienna from 1874. His works include "Untersuchungen über die Lokalisation der Funktionen in der Grosshirnrinde des Menschen" (1881), "Die Physiologie des Fliegens und Schwebens in den bildenden Künsten" (1882), etc.

Eyre (ār), Wilson. Born at Florence, Italy, Oct. 30, 1858. An American architect. He was educated at schools in Italy and America, and acquired his professional training in the office of James P. Sims in Philadelphia. He has been especially successful in domestic architecture. He was elected a national academician in 1910.

Fabian (fā′bi-an) Society. An organization for the advancement of socialism, formed as a result of informal conferences for the discussion of social questions held by Thomas Davidson in London in 1883. The society (named for the Roman Fabius) held its first public meetings in 1888 and entered on a definite propaganda of socialism. The addresses have been published as the "Fabian Essays" (1889). "Tracts" have been issued at intervals.

Fabre (fäbr), Jean Henri. Born at St. Léons, France, Dec. 21, 1823. A French naturalist. He has published many elementary and popular works of science, including "Science élémentaire" (1862–65), "Astronomie élémentaire" (1872), "La plante" (1875), and "Souvenirs entomologiques" (1879–99). This last work has been crowned by the Institute of France.

Faguet (fä-gā′), Émile. Born at La Roche-sur-Yon, France, Dec. 17, 1847. A French historical critic, professor at the Sorbonne from 1890. He was dramatic critic of the "Soleil" for three years, and in 1896 succeeded Jules Lemaître on the "Journal des Débats." In 1900 he was elected to the French Academy, succeeding Cherbuliez. Among his works are studies of the four literary centuries of France, "Corneille" (1885), "La Fontaine" (1889), "Notes sur le théâtre contemporain" (1889–91), "Voltaire" (1894), "Flaubert" (1899), "Histoire de la littérature française" (1900), "André Chénier" (1902), "En lisant Nietzsche" (1904), "L'Anticléricalisme" (1906), etc.

Fairbanks (fār′bangks). A town in Alaska, on a branch of the Yukon River, about lat. 65° N., long. 147° 50′ W. It is an important mission station of the Protestant Episcopal Church, and has a post-office and a wireless telegraph station. It is the largest gold-camp in the interior. Population, 3,541, (1910).

Fairbanks (fār′bangks), Charles Warren. Born near Unionville Center, Ohio, May 11, 1852. An American lawyer and Republican statesman, Vice-President of the United States 1905–09. He was graduated at the Ohio Wesleyan University, Delaware, Ohio, in 1872, and was admitted to the (Ohio) bar in 1874. In 1898 he was appointed a member of the Joint High British-American Commission and chairman of the American commissioners. He was elected United States senator from Indiana in 1897 and in 1903, and Vice-President of the United States in 1904.

Fairbury (fār′bė-ri). The county-seat of Jefferson County, Nebraska, 53 miles southwest of Lincoln. It is a railroad junction, and has nurseries, manufactories, etc. Population, 5,294, (1910).

Fairchild (fār′chīld), Charles Stebbins. Born at Cazenovia, N. Y., April 30, 1842. An American lawyer, banker, and cabinet officer. He was graduated at Harvard in 1863; practised law in Albany and New York city 1865–85, being deputy attorney-general of the State 1874–75, and attorney-general 1876–77; and was assistant secretary of the United States treasury 1885–87, and secretary 1887–89.

Fairchild (fār′chīld), Herman Leroy. Born at Montrose, Pa., April 29, 1850. An American geologist, professor in the University of Rochester from 1888. He has published numerous technical papers relating especially to the glacial geology of New York.

Fairhaven (fār-hā′vn). A town in Bristol County, Massachusetts, on the Acushnet River opposite New Bedford. It is a summer resort, and has fishing interests and various manufactures. The town is connected with New Bedford by ferry, bridge, and electric railway. Population, 5,122, (1910).

Fairmont (fār′mont). The county-seat of Marion County, West Virginia, on the Monongahela River, 52 miles southeast of Wheeling. It is in a coal-mining region, and has foundries, flour-mills, glass-factories, etc. It is the seat of a State normal school. Population, 9,711, (1910).

Fall (fäl), Leo. A contemporary German composer. He has devoted himself to light opera, following in the footsteps of Johann Strauss and Franz von Suppé. His works include "Irrlicht" (1905), "Der Rebell" (1905), "Der fidele Bauer" (1907), "Die Dollar Prinzessin" (1907), "Die geschiedene Frau," and "Die schöne Risette." Many of these works have been heard in London and New York under English titles, the most successful being "The Dollar Princess" and "The Girl in the Train" ("Die geschiedene Frau").

Fallières (fäl-yār′), Clément Armand. Born at Mézin, Lot-et-Garonne, Nov. 6, 1841. A French statesman. He was elected to the Chamber of Deputies in 1876; was minister of the interior 1882–83 and 1887, minister of public instruction 1883–85 and 1889–1890, minister of justice 1887–88 and 1890–92, senator 1889–1906, and president of the Senate 1899–1906; and was elected President of the French Republic, January 17, 1906.

Fame, Hall of. See ★Hall of Fame.

Fane, Violet. The pseudonym of Lady Currie (Mrs. Mary Montgomerie Singleton).

Farina (fä-rē′nä), Salvatore. Born at Sorso, Italy, Jan. 10, 1846. An Italian novelist and journalist. Among his works are "Fiamma Vagabonda" (1872), "Il tesoro di Donnina" (1873), "Amore bendato" (1875), "Oro nascosto" (1878), "Mio figlio" (1879–81), "Il Signor Io," his best-known book (1882), "Amore ha cent' occhi" (1882), "Pe' begli occhi della gloria" (1887), "Più forte dell' amore" (1890), "Il numero 13" (1895), "Madonnina Bianca (Vanitas)" (1897), "Fino alla morte" (1902), etc.

Farlow (fār′lō), William Gilson. Born at Boston, Mass., Dec. 17, 1844. An American botanist, professor of cryptogamic botany in Harvard University from 1879. He was assistant professor there 1874–79. He has published various books and papers upon botanical subjects.

Farman (fār′man), Henri. Born in Paris (of an English father and French mother) in 1873. An English aviator. He began experiments with a Voisin biplane in August, 1907; on Jan. 13, 1908, won the Deutsch-Archdeacon prize for the first machine to fly one kilometer in a complete circle; on July 6, 1908, won the Armengaud prize offered for the first machine to remain over 15 minutes in the air; came to the United States in August, 1908; Oct. 30, 1908, made the first flight from city to city (Bouy to Rheims); and on Aug. 27, 1909, won the Grand Prix de la Champagne at Rheims by a record flight of 180 kilometers (111.848 miles) in 3 hrs. 4 min. 56⅘ sec. He continued his flight beyond the official time-limit until he had covered 190 kilometers (118.06 miles). On Nov. 9, 1910, he carried 6 passengers (including the aviator) for two circuits, at Châlons, France.

Farmer of St. Ives. A name given to Oliver Cromwell. He rented grazing-lands at St. Ives, Huntingdonshire, 1631–36.

Farmington (fār′ming-ton). A town in Hartford County, Connecticut, 9 miles southwest of Hartford. It has manufactories of stone-crushers, etc., and is the seat of a well-known school for girls, established about 1845. Population, 3,478, (1910).

Farrand (far′and), Livingston. Born at Newark, N. J., June 14, 1867. An American anthropologist and psychologist, professor of anthropology in Columbia University from 1903. He was adjunct professor there 1901–03. His studies relate chiefly to the American Indians.

Farrar (far′är or fâ-rär′), Geraldine. Born at Melrose, Mass., Feb. 28, 1882. An American soprano singer. She studied with Lorenz in Boston, Trabadello in Paris, and Lilli Lehmann in Germany. She made her operatic début at Berlin in 1901 as Marguerite in "Faust," became a member of the Court Opera, and sang later in Paris and Russia. She joined the Metropolitan Opera Company in 1906, and made her first American appearance as Juliet in Gounod's opera. Her rôles include Madame Butterfly, the Goose Girl (in "Königskinder"), which she created, Ariane (in "Ariane et Barbe-Bleue"), Elizabeth (in "Tannhäuser"), Nedda (in "Pagliacci"), Mimi (in "La Bohème"), and Tosca.

Fashoda Affair. The culminating incident of the effort of France to gain control of the upper Nile. See ★Marchand.

Faunce (fâns), William Herbert Perry. Born at Worcester, Mass., Jan. 15, 1859. An American clergyman and educator, president of Brown University from 1899. He was graduated at Brown University in 1880, and was pastor of the State Street Baptist Church, Springfield, Massachusetts, 1884–89, and of the Fifth Avenue Baptist Church, New York city, 1889–99.

Fauré (fō-rā′), Gabriel. Born at Pamiers, France, May 13, 1845. A French composer. He has composed an opera, "L'Organiste" (1885), a symphony, incidental music to several plays (including "Pelléas et Mélisande"), a number of highly esteemed songs, a violin sonata, and piano pieces.

Fedora (fā-dō′rä). An opera by Umberto Giordano and Victorien Sardou, first produced at Milan in 1898.

Feng-huang-cheng (feng-hwang-cheng′). A town in southern Manchuria, situated about forty miles northwest of the mouth of the Yalu. It was captured from the Russians by the Japanese under Kuroki, May 6, 1904. In 1907 it was opened to international trade.

Fenn (fen), George Manville. Born at Westminster, Jan. 3, 1831: died Aug. 26, 1909. An English author. He contributed numerous sketches and short stories to various magazines; published over one hundred books for boys, and many novels; and was editor of "Cassell's Magazine," and editor and proprietor of "Once a Week." Among his books are "The Parson o' Dumford" (1879), "Double Cunning" (1886), "This Man's Wife" (1887), "A Crimson Crime" (1899), and "The Cankerworm" (1901).

Fenollosa (fen-ō-lō′sä), Ernest Francisco. Born at Salem, Mass., Feb. 18, 1853: died Sept., 1908. An American educator. He was graduated at Harvard University in 1874, was professor of political economy and philosophy at Tokio University 1878–80, and of philosophy and logic 1880–86. He was manager of the art department of the Imperial Museum at Tokio 1887–90, and curator of the department of Oriental art in the Boston Museum of Fine Arts 1890–96. He published poems, monographs on art, etc.

Fergus Falls (fėr′gus fâlz). The county-seat of Otter Tail County, Minnesota, on the Red River. It has many mills and factories, the products including flour, lumber, woolen goods, iron, etc. Population, 6,887, (1910).

Fernow (fer′nō), Bernhard Eduard. Born at Inowrazlaw, Posen, Prussia, Jan. 7, 1851. A German-American forester, dean of the faculty of forestry of Toronto University from 1907. He was chief of the forestry division of the United States Department of Agriculture 1886–98, and director and dean of the New York State College of Forestry of Cornell University 1898–1903. He has been honorary curator of the United States National Museum from 1887. His works include "The White Pine" (1899), "Economics of Forestry" (1902), "History of Forestry" (1907), etc.

Ferrari (fer-rä′rē), Carlotta. Born at Lodi, Jan. 27, 1837: died at Bologna, Nov. 23, 1907. An Italian poet and composer. She studied music at the Milan Conservatory. Her compositions include a well-known mass, several operas, and many songs, of which she wrote both words and music. Her long poem, "Dante Alighieri," ran into several editions.

Ferraris (fā-rä′rēs), Galileo. Born at Livorno, Piedmont, Italy, Oct. 31, 1847: died at Turin, Feb. 7, 1897. An eminent Italian physicist, noted for his researches in electricity, and especially for his discovery of the principle of the rotary field. From 1879 he was professor of physics at the Royal Industrial Museum and instructor of physics in the Superior Military Academy in Turin. Among his works are "Sulla illuminazione elettrica" (1879) and "Lezioni di elettrotecnica" (1898).

Ferrelo (fā-rā′lō), Bartolomeo: correctly Ferrer. A Spanish navigator of about the middle of the sixteenth century. He accompanied Cabrillo as pilot on his expedition to the western coast of California 1542–43.

Ferrer. See ★Ferrelo.

Ferrero (fe-rā′rō), Guglielmo. Born at Turin, 1872. An Italian author. His translated works include "Militarism: a Contribution to the Peace Crusade" (1903), "Characters and Events of Roman History from Cæsar to Nero" (Lowell lectures, 1908), "The Greatness and Decline of Rome" (5 volumes, 1907–09), "The Women of the Cæsars" (serially, 1911), etc.

Ferrer y Guardia (fer-rär′ ē gwär-dē′ä), Francisco. Born in 1859 at Abella, in the province of Barcelona: executed Oct. 13, 1909. A Spanish educator. He was an active propagandist of advanced socialistic doctrines, and was arrested, Sept. 1, 1909, on the charge of being a notorious anarchist and implicated in the Barcelona riots of the preceding July. His execution, occurring on the very day of his trial, roused intensely bitter feeling among socialists at large, especially in France.

Ferri (fer′rē), Enrico. Born at San Benedetto Po, Mantua, Feb. 25, 1856. An Italian socialist and criminologist. He studied at Bologna, Pisa, and Paris, and was a pupil of Lombroso; and was professor at Bologna, Siena, Pisa, Brussels, and the College of Social Science at Paris. He has been a member of the Italian Chamber of Deputies since 1886, and is a leader of the socialist party. He is the author of various works on sociological and criminological subjects.

Fevrier (fā-vrē-ā′), Henri. A contemporary French composer. He has written chamber music and two operas, "Le roi aveugle" and "Monna Vanna" (after Maeterlinck's drama), the latter being produced at the Paris Opera, Jan. 23, 1909.

Ffrangcon-Davies (frang′kon-dā′viz), David Thomas. Born at Bethesda, Carnarvonshire, Dec. 11, 1860. A Welsh barytone. He was educated at Jesus College, Oxford, and took orders, but withdrew to become a singer. He made his début in opera in 1890, but since 1893 has devoted himself to concert work, appearing in Europe and America. He became a teacher in the Royal Academy of Music, London, and has published "The Singing of the Future."

Fiala (fē-ä′lä), Anthony. Born at Jersey City, N. J., Sept. 19, 1869. An American arctic explorer. He was a member of the Baldwin-Ziegler expedition 1901–02, and commanded the Ziegler expedition which sailed from Tromsö, Norway, July, 1903, and attained lat. 82° 13′ N., returning in 1905. He is the author of "Fighting the Polar Ice" (1906).

Fiebeger (fē′be-gėr), Gustave Joseph. Born at Akron, Ohio, May 9, 1858. An officer of engineers and educator, professor of engineering and the art of war in the United States Military Academy. He was graduated from the Academy in 1879, and was assistant professor there 1883–88. His publications include "Field Fortification" (1901), "Civil Engineering" (1904), etc.

Fiedler (fēd′ler), August Max. Born at Zittau, Saxony, Dec. 31, 1859. A German conductor and composer. He studied at the Leipsic Conservatory 1877–80, became a teacher at the Hamburg Conservatory in 1882, and director in 1903. He also conducted the Philharmonic Concerts there. In 1908 he came to America as conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. He has composed symphonies, songs, piano pieces, and chamber music.

Field*, Eugene. His works include "The Denver Tribune Primer" (1882), "Culture's Garland" (1887), "A Little Book of Profitable Tales" (1890), "A Little Book of Western Verse" (1890), "With Trumpet and Drum" (1892), "Echoes from the Sabine Farm" (1893), "The Holy Cross, and Other Tales" (1893), "A Second Book of Verse" (1893), "Love-songs of Childhood" (1894), "The House" (1895), "Second Book of Tales" (1896), "Songs, and Other Verse" (1896), "Eugene Field, an Auto-analysis" (1896), "Love-affairs of a Bibliomaniac" (1896), "Lullaby-land" (1897), etc.

Field (fēld), Kate. Born at St. Louis, Mo., 1838: died at Honolulu, Hawaii, May 19, 1896. An American actress, journalist, and lecturer. She established a periodical, "Kate Field's Washington," in 1890, discontinued shortly before her death.

Field (fēld), Marshall. Born at Conway, Mass., Aug. 18, 1835: died at New York, Jan. 16, 1906. An American merchant. He went to Chicago in 1856 and in 1860 entered into partnership with Potter Palmer and Levi Z. Leiter. Later, on the withdrawal of the two latter, the firm became Marshall Field and Company. He founded the Field Columbian Museum in Chicago.

Field Columbian Museum. A museum situated at the north end of Jackson Park, Chicago, formed out of the Art Building of the World's Columbian Exposition of 1893 at the expense of Marshall Field. It contains collections in anthropology, ethnology, geology, natural history, etc.

Fildes (fildz), Sir Luke. Born at Liverpool in 1844. An English painter. Much of his early work consisted of illustrations for London periodicals. His paintings include English and Venetian genre subjects, also portraits, among the latter those of King Edward VII. and Queen Alexandra. Among his most famous paintings are "The Village Wedding" (1883) and "The Doctor" (1891). He was knighted in 1906.

Finck (fingk), Henry Theophilus. Born at Bethel, Mo., Sept. 22, 1854. An American critic and writer on musical and other subjects. He was graduated at Harvard in 1876, and since 1881 has been musical critic on the New York "Evening Post." He has published "Romantic Love and Personal Beauty" (1887), "Chopin, and Other Musical Essays" (1889), "Wagner and his Works" (1893), "Primitive Love and Love Stories" (1899), "Songs and Song Writers" (1900), "Edvard Grieg" (1906), "Grieg and his Music" (1909), and books of travel in Spain, California, and Japan.

Finland*. The administration is vested in a national parliament consisting of one chamber of 200 members chosen by direct and proportional election. There are 16 electoral districts with a representation proportioned to the population. The suffrage is possessed by all citizens, male or female, above the age of 24 years. The "Imperial Legislation Law," enacted June 30, 1910, deprived the Diet of its right to pass upon Finnish questions involving imperial interests.

Finlay (fin′lā), Charles John. Born at Puerto Principe, Cuba, Dec. 3, 1833, of English parents. An American physician, chief sanitary officer of Cuba 1902–08. He was graduated from Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, in 1855. He originated (1881) the theory, since demonstrated, that yellow fever is transmitted by a species of mosquito (Stegomyia fasciata, Theo.).

Finley (fin′li), John Huston. Born at Grand Ridge, Ill., Oct. 19, 1863. An American educator. He was graduated at Knox College in 1887, and studied at Johns Hopkins University 1887–89. He was president of Knox College 1892–99, professor of politics in Princeton University 1900–03, and president of the College of the City of New York 1903–.

Finsen (fin′sen), Niels Ryberg. Born at Thorshavn in the Faroe Islands, Dec. 15, 1860: died at Copenhagen, Sept. 24, 1904. A Danish physician, noted for his application of solar and electric light to the cure of diseases of the skin, especially of lupus. He was prosector at Copenhagen 1890–93, and thereafter devoted himself to the development of the light-cure. He published a number of works on this subject. In 1903 he received the Nobel prize in medicine.

Firth (fėrth), Charles Harding. Born at Sheffield, England, March 16, 1857. A noted English historian and educator. He was educated at Balliol College, Oxford; was lecturer at Pembroke College, Oxford, 1887–93; was lecturer in English history at the University of Oxford 1900; was fellow of All Souls' College 1901; and has been regius professor of modern history at Oxford since 1904. In 1903 he was made a fellow of the British Academy. He is the author of "Scotland and the Protectorate" (1899), "Oliver Cromwell and the Rule of the Puritans in England" (1900), "Cromwell's Army" (1902), "The House of Lords during the Civil War" (1910), etc., and has edited numerous biographical and historical volumes.

Fischer (fish′ėr), Emil. Born at Euskirchen, Prussia, Oct. 9, 1852. A noted German chemist, professor in the University of Berlin from 1892. His most notable achievement is the production, synthetically, of the simpler sugars. He has written "Anleitung zur Darstellung organischer Präparate" (6th edition 1901), etc. He received the Nobel prize in chemistry in 1902.

Fisher (fish′ėr), Andrew. Born at Crosshouse, Kilmarnock, Scotland, Aug. 29, 1862. An Australian statesman. He went to Queensland in 1885, entered the Queensland Parliament in 1893, and has been a member of the Federal Parliament from its inauguration in 1901. He is leader of the Federal Parliamentary Labor party, and was prime minister 1908–09 and 1910–.

Fisher (fish′ėr), John Arbuthnot, first Baron Fisher of Kilverstone. Born Jan. 25, 1841. A British naval officer, first sea-lord of the Admiralty 1904–05, and admiral of the fleet 1905–11. He served in the Crimean (1855), Chinese (1859–60), and Egyptian (1882) wars, became vice-admiral in 1890, and was lord of the admiralty 1892–97, a delegate to the peace conference at The Hague in 1899, commander-in-chief of the Mediterranean station 1899–1902, second naval lord of the admiralty 1902–03, and commander-in-chief at Portsmouth 1903–04. In 1905 he was made a member of the Order of Merit. He was knighted in 1894, and raised to the peerage in 1909.

Fisher (fish′ėr), Mark. Born at Boston, Mass., of English and Irish parentage. A contemporary English painter. After receiving his education at Boston he studied under Gleyre at Paris, settled in England, and devoted himself to landscape and animal painting. He was elected an associate of the Royal Academy in 1911.

Fisher (fish′ėr), Walter Lowrie. Born at Wheeling, W. Va., July 4, 1862. An American lawyer, appointed secretary of the interior, March 7, 1911. He was admitted to the bar in 1888, and has since practised law in Chicago. He has been special counsel for the city of Chicago in traction affairs since 1906, and was a member of the commission appointed in 1910 to investigate the control of stock and bond issues by railroad companies.

Fishguard (fish′gärd). A seaport in Pembrokeshire, Wales. The Cunard steamers from New York land passengers at Fishguard harbor before going on to Liverpool. Population, 2,002.

Fiske (fisk), Mrs. (Minnie Davey): known as Minnie Maddern Fiske. Born at New Orleans, La., Dec. 19, 1865. An American actress. She took her mother's maiden name of Maddern. She went on the stage at the age of three and has starred since she was sixteen. In 1890 she married Harrison Grey Fiske, journalist and playwright. Her principal successes have been made in "Tess of the D'Urbervilles," "Becky Sharp," "Leah Kleschna," "Salvation Nell," etc.

Fiske (fisk), Thomas Scott. Born at New York, May 12, 1865. An American mathematician, professor of mathematics in Columbia University from 1897. He was adjunct professor there 1894–97.

Fisk University. An institution at Nashville, Tennessee, founded in 1865 by the American Missionary Association of New York and the Western Freedman's Aid Commission for the purpose of providing Christian education for the colored people of the South. It offers courses in preparation for the degrees of bachelor of arts and bachelor of science, and has a theological, a music, and a normal school. The students number over 450 and the alumni about 700. The endowment is less than $80,000. It has also a college preparatory department and a training-school.

Fitch (fich), William Clyde. Born at Elmira, New York, May 2, 1865: died at Paris, Sept. 4, 1909. An American playwright. He graduated at Amherst College in 1886, and from 1889 produced plays for the stage. Among them are "Barbara Frietchie," "Captain Jinks of the Horse Marines," "Beau Brummel," "The Climbers," "The Girl and the Judge," "The Girl with the Green Eyes," "The Woman in the Case," etc.

Fitzgerald (fits-jer'ald). A city in Ben Hill County, Georgia, 135 miles southwest of Savannah. Its main interests are iron and cotton. Population, 5,795, (1910).

Flammarion*, Camille. His later works include "La fin du monde" (1893), "L'Inconnu et ses problèmes psychiques" (1900), "Les éruptions volcaniques et les tremblements de terre" (1902), and "La planète Mars et ses conditions d'habitabilité" (1909).

Flat River (flat riv'ėr). A city in St. Francois County, Missouri, incorporated in 1908. Population, 5,112, (1910).

Fleay (flā), Frederick Gard. Born 1831: died at Upper Tooting, London, March 10, 1909. A British Shaksperian scholar. He graduated from King's College, London, in 1849, and from Trinity College, Cambridge, in 1853. Among his well-known works are "Life of Shakespeare" (1886), "Biographical Chronicle of the English Drama," and "Chronicle of the English Stage."

Fleming (flem'ing), Mrs. (Williamina Paton). Born at Dundee, Scotland, May 15, 1857: died at Boston, Mass., May 21, 1911. A Scottish-American astronomer, curator of astronomical photographs in the Harvard Observatory 1898–1911. She was assistant in the observatory 1879–98, and discovered new stars and the spectra of meteors.

Fletcher (flech'ėr), Banister. Born 1833: died at Hampstead, London, July 5, 1899. An English architect. He was trained in architecture in the office of Charles James Richardson (author of several books on Elizabethan architecture), and was professor of architecture and building construction in King's College, London, where he created an excellent school with a fine museum. His best-known publication is the "History of Architecture" (1896 : 5th ed. 1905), written with the assistance of his son Banister F. Fletcher.

Fletcher (flech'ėr), Henry Prather. Born at Green Castle, Pa., April 10, 1873. An American diplomatist. He was admitted to the bar in 1894, and served with the Rough Riders in the war with Spain in 1898, and with the United States Volunteer Infantry in the Philippine Islands 1899–1901. He was second secretary of the American legation to Cuba 1902–03, and to China 1903–05; secretary of the legation to Portugal 1905–1907; and first secretary of the legation to China 1907–09. He was appointed minister to Chile in 1909.

Fletcher (flech'ėr), Horace. Born at Lawrence, Mass., Aug. 10, 1849. An American writer on dietetics and vital economics. He is best known as the founder of "Fletcherism," a dietetic system which emphasizes especially the thorough mastication of food. His works include "Menticulture," "What Sense? or Economic Nutrition," "Glutton or Epicure," "Optimism," etc.

Flexner (fleks'nėr), Simon. Born at Louisville, Kentucky, March 25, 1863. An American pathologist and bacteriologist. He has been director of the laboratories of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research in New York city from 1903. He has published various technical papers and monographs.

Flint (flint), Albert Stowell. Born at Salem, Mass., Sept. 12, 1853. An American scientist, astronomer of the Washburn Observatory of the University of Wisconsin from 1904. He was computer in the United States Naval Observatory 1881–83 and 1888–89; assistant with the United States Transit of Venus Commission 1883–88; and assistant astronomer of the Washburn Observatory 1889–1904. His publications relate chiefly to meridian observations for stellar parallax and star positions.

Florence (flor'ens). The county-seat of Florence County, South Carolina, 97 miles northeast of Charleston. It is a cotton-market, and has railroad shops, lumber-mills, tobacco-warehouses, etc. Population, 7,057, (1910).

Florianopolis (flō'ri-an-op'ō-lis). See Desterro.

Flynt (flint), Josiah. The pseudonym of Josiah Flynt Willard. See ★Willard.

Fogazzaro (fō-gät-zä'rō), Antonio. Born at Vicenza, Italy, March 25, 1842: died near there, March 7, 1911. An Italian poet and novelist. Among the best known of his works are "Miranda" (1874), "Valsolda," a volume of poems (1876), "Malombra" (1881), "Daniel Cortis" (1885), "Il mistero del poeta" (1888), "Piccolo mondo antico" (1896), "Piccolo mondo moderno" (1900); two volumes of essays, "Discorsi" (1898) and "Ascensioni umane" (1899); a book of plays, "Scene" (1903); and his last story, "Leila" (1910). His "Il Santo" (1905) was placed on the condemnation list by the Congregation of the Index in 1906 because of its liberal utterances in regard to the Roman Catholic Church.

Folk (fōk), Joseph Wingate. Born at Brownsville, Tenn., Oct. 28, 1869. An American lawyer and Democratic politician, governor of Missouri 1905–09. As circuit attorney of St. Louis, 1900–04, he became noted for the prosecution of bribery cases.

Folkething (fōl'ke-ting). [Dan., < folk, folk (= G. volk), + thing, a meeting (of lawmakers): see Landsthing.] The lower house of the Danish parliament or Rigsdag. It consists of 114 members elected for three years by universal suffrage. All matters regarding the budget and taxation must first be introduced into the Folkething and discussed by it before being taken up by the Landsthing, or upper house.

Folks (fōks), Homer. Born at Hanover, Mich., Feb. 18, 1867. An American social worker. He was graduated from Albion College, Mich., in 1889, and from Harvard College in 1890. He was superintendent of the Children's Aid Society of Pennsylvania 1890–1893; has been secretary of the State Charities Aid Association of New York since 1893 (except when he was commissioner of public charities of New York city 1902–03); is associate editor of "The Survey"; and has been president of the State Probation Commission since its establishment in 1907. He has written "History of the Care of Destitute, Neglected and Delinquent Children in the United States" (1902), etc.

Fontane (fon-tān'), Theodor. Born at Neuruppin, Prussia, Dec. 30, 1819: died at Berlin, Sept. 20, 1898. A German poet, novelist, and essayist. He was educated at the Industrial School in Berlin, and was editor of the English department of the "Neuen Preussischen Zeitung" (1860–70), and dramatic critic of the "Vossische Zeitung" (1870–90). Among his works are "Aus England: Studien und Briefe" (1860), "Jenseit des Tweed: Bilder und Briefe aus Schottland" (1860), "Balladen" (1861), "Vor dem Sturm" (1878), "L'Adultera" (1882), "Graf Petöfy" (1884), "Irrungen, Wirrungen" (1888), "Effi Briest" (1895), "Der Stechlin" (1899), etc.

Foote (fůt), Arthur. Born at Salem, Mass., March 5, 1853. An American composer and organist, a pupil of B. J. Lang and J. K. Paine. He has composed an overture, "In the Mountains"; a symphonic prologue, "Francesca da Rimini"; a suite for orchestra in D minor, a suite in E major for strings, a piano quintet, quartet, and trio, two string quartets, and other chamber music; an organ suite and other organ music; and many piano pieces and songs.

Foraker (for'a-kėr), Joseph Benson. Born near Rainsboro, Ohio, July 5, 1846. An American lawyer and politician. He served in the Civil War; was graduated from Cornell in 1869; was admitted to the (Ohio) bar; was judge of the Superior Court, Cincinnati, 1879–82; was elected governor of Ohio in 1885 and 1887; and was Republican United States senator from Ohio 1897–1909. He was delegate at large from Ohio to the National Republican Conventions 1884–1904, and in 1896 and 1900 presented the name of McKinley for nomination to the presidency.

Forbes (fôrbz), Stephen Alfred. Born at Silver Creek, Ill., May 29, 1844. An American zoölogist, State entomologist of Illinois from 1882. He has been professor in the University of Illinois since 1884. His publications relate chiefly to the zoölogy and especially to the economic entomology of Illinois.

Forbes-Robertson (fôrbz-rob'ėrt-son), Johnston. Born at London, Jan. 16, 1853. An English actor. He was educated at the Charterhouse, London; at Rouen; and at the Royal Academy of Arts. He went on the stage at the age of 21 and has been an actor-manager since 1896. His principal rôles have been in "The Profligate," "Hamlet," "For the Crown," "Pelléas and Mélisande," "The Light that Failed," "Cæsar and Cleopatra," and "Passing of the Third Floor Back." He married the actress Gertrude Elliott.

Force (fôrs), Manning Ferguson. Born at Washington, D. C., Dec. 17, 1824: died near Sandusky, Ohio, May 8, 1899. An American soldier and writer, son of Peter Force. He studied law, enlisted in the Northern army in the Civil War, and at its close received the brevet rank of major-general of volunteers. He was judge of the Superior Court of Cincinnati 1877–87. His works include "From Fort Henry to Corinth" (1881), "Marching across Carolina" (1883), "Personal Recollections of the Vicksburg Campaign" (1885), etc.

Ford (fôrd), Worthington Chauncey. Born at Brooklyn, N. Y., Feb. 16, 1858. An American historian, economist, and statistician. He was chief of the Bureau of Statistics of the Department of State 1885–89, and of the Treasury Department 1893–98; was in the Boston Public Library 1897–1902; was lecturer on statistics at the University of Chicago in 1901; was chief of the division of manuscripts in the Library of Congress 1902–09; and has been editor for the Massachusetts Historical Society since 1909. He is the author of "The American Citizen's Manual" (1882–83), "The Standard Silver Dollar" (1884), "George Washington" (1900), "John Quincy Adams" (1902), "The Case of Samuel Shrimpton" (1905), etc.; and has edited "The Writings of George Washington" (1889–91), etc.

Fordham (fôr'dam) University. A university situated in New York city, consisting of a school of medicine, a school of law, and a collegiate department (St. John's College). See ★St. John's College.

Forest City (for'est sit'i). A borough in Susquehanna County, Pennsylvania, 19 miles northeast of Scranton. Its principal industries are coal-mining and silk-manufacturing. Population, 5,749, (1910).

Forest Hills Gardens. See ★Russell Sage Foundation.

Forest Park (for'est pärk). A village in Cook County, Illinois. Population, 6,594, (1910).

Forrest (for'est), Sir John. Born in Western Australia, Aug. 22, 1847. An Australian explorer and statesman. He led an expedition into central Australia in search of Dr. Leichhardt in 1869; conducted explorations along the coast from Perth to Adelaide in 1870, and through the center of Australia from Champion Bay to the telegraph line between Adelaide and Fort Darwin in 1874; was engaged for several years in the trigonometrical survey of Western Australia; was first premier and treasurer of Western Australia (1890–1901); and was minister of defense for the Commonwealth of Australia 1901–03, minister of home affairs 1903–04, treasurer 1905–07, and acting prime minister March–June, 1907. See Century Atlas, Map 115.

Fort Collins (fôrt kol'inz). The county-seat of Larimer County, Colorado. It is situated on Cache la Poudre River, in a fine agricultural region, 58 miles north of Denver. It is the seat of the State Agricultural College. Population, 8,210, (1910).

Fort Jameson (fôrt jā'me-son). A station in North-Eastern Rhodesia, on the Tanganyika plateau. It is the present headquarters of the administrator of North-Eastern Rhodesia.

Foss (fos), Cyrus David. Born Jan. 17, 1834: died Jan. 29, 1910. An American clergyman, a bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church from 1880. He was graduated at Wesleyan University in 1854; entered the itinerant ministry in 1857; and was president of Wesleyan University 1875–80. He made official visits to the missions of his church in Europe in 1886, in Mexico in 1893, and in India and Malaysia 1897–98, and 1906–07 made a tour of missionary observation around the world. Among his works are "In Sickness and Accidents" (1895), "From the Himalayas to the Equator" (1899), and "Religious Certainties" (1905).

Foss (fos), Eugene Noble. Born at West Berkshire, Vt., Sept. 24, 1858. An American politician, elected governor of Massachusetts in 1910 by the Democratic party. He has been connected with various manufacturing and other business enterprises, and has been a strong advocate of tariff revision and of reciprocity with Canada. In March, 1910, he was elected to Congress by the Democratic party.

Foster (fos'tėr), Ben. Born at North Anson, Maine. An American landscape-painter. He has received numerous medals, and became a member of the National Academy in 1904. For several years he was art critic for the "Evening Post" of New York.

Foster (fos'tėr), John Watson. Born in Pike County, Ind., March 2, 1836. An American lawyer and diplomatist. He was graduated at the Indiana State University in 1855 and was admitted to the (Indiana) bar. He served in the Union army; was minister to Mexico 1873–80, to Russia 1880–81, and to Spain 1883–85; was secretary of state 1892–93; was United States agent in the Bering Sea Arbitration at Paris in 1893; participated (by the invitation of the Emperor of China) in the peace negotiations between China and Japan in 1895; was a member of the Anglo-Canadian Commission in 1898; was United States agent before the Alaskan Boundary Tribunal at London in 1903; and was the representative of China at the second Hague conference in 1907. He has published "A Century of American Diplomacy" (1900), "American Diplomacy in the Orient" (1903), "Arbitration and the Hague Court" (1904), "The Practice of Diplomacy" (1906), "Diplomatic Memoirs" (1909), etc.

Foster (fos'tėr), Robert Frederick. Born at Edinburgh, Scotland, May 31, 1853. An authority on indoor games, especially cards. He was educated as a civil engineer and architect, retiring from practice in 1893. Since 1895 he has been card editor of the New York "Sun." He has published twenty-six hand-books on games, including the "Whist Manual" (1890), "Foster's Hoyle" (1897), "Foster's Complete Bridge" (1906), etc. He was the inventor of the eleven rule and of self-playing cards, and originated the present card notation.

Fostoria (fos-tō'ri-ä). A city in Hancock and Seneca counties, Ohio, 35 miles southeast of Toledo. It has manufactories of automobile engines, glass, iron, flour, etc. Population, 9,597, (1910).

Fouillée (fō-yā'), Alfred Jules Émile. Born at La Pouëze, Maine-et-Loire, France, Oct. 18, 1838. A French philosophical and sociological writer. He taught in various colleges and schools, including the University of Bordeaux and the Normal School at Paris, and in 1879 retired to Mentone. He has written "La philosophie de Platon" (1869), "La philosophie de Socrate" (1874), "Histoire de la philosophie" (1875), "Critique des systèmes de morale contemporaine" (1883), "La propriété sociale et la démocratie" (1884), "L'Évolutionisme des idées-forces" (1893), "La psychologie des idées-forces" (1893), "Le mouvement positiviste et la conception sociologique du monde" (1896), "Le mouvement idéaliste et la réaction contre la science positiviste" (1896), "Psychologie du peuple français" (1898), "Nietzsche et l'immoralisme" (1902), "Esquisse psychologique des peuples européens" (1903), etc.

Four Peaks, The. Mountains in Paragua, in the Philippine Islands. Cleopatra's Needle is the highest. Heights, 4,730, 4,800, 4,900, and 5,200 feet.

Fowler (fou'lèr), Charles Henry. Born at Burford, Ontario, Aug. 11, 1837: died at New York, March 20, 1908. An American clergyman, a bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church from 1884. He entered the ministry in 1861, and was president of the Northwestern University 1872–76. In 1885 he visited the missions of his church in South America, and in 1888 went on a tour of visitation around the world. He organized the Peking and Nanking universities, established the first Methodist Episcopal church in St. Petersburg, established McClay College of Theology in southern California, and assisted in founding Nebraska Wesleyan University. He published "Colenso's Fallacies" (1863), "Missions and World Movements" (1904), "Addresses on Notable Occasions" (1908), etc.

Fowler (fou'lèr), Frank. Born at Brooklyn, N. Y., July 12, 1852: died at New Canaan, Conn., Aug. 18, 1910. An American painter. He studied with Edwin White, N. A., in Florence, and for six years in Paris at the École des Beaux-Arts and under Carolus Duran. He was a member of the National Academy of Design and of the Society of American Artists.

Fowler (fou'lèr), Henry Hartley, Viscount Wolverhampton. Born at Sunderland, May 16, 1830: died at London, Feb. 25, 1911. A British Liberal statesman. He sat for Wolverhampton in the House of Commons 1880–1908; and was under-secretary to the home department 1884–85, financial secretary to the treasury 1886, president of the Local Government Board 1892–94, secretary of state for India 1894–1895, chancellor of the duchy of Lancaster 1905–08, with a seat in the cabinet, and lord president of the council 1908–1910. In 1895 he was knighted, and in 1908 he was raised to the peerage.

Fox (foks), John. Born 1861. An American author. He has published "A Cumberland Vendetta" (1895), "The Kentuckians" (1897), "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come" (1903), "Following the Sun Flag" (1905), "A Knight of the Cumberland" (1906), "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine" (1908), etc.

Fox (foks), Williams Carlton. Born at St. Louis, May 20, 1855. An American diplomatist. He was American consul at Brunswick, Germany, 1876–88; vice-consul-general at Teheran, Persia, 1891–92; secretary to the American minister to Greece, Rumania, and Servia 1892–93; chief clerk of the Bureau of American Republics 1898–1905; and director 1905–07. He was appointed minister to Ecuador in 1907.

Fragonard (frä-gô-när'), Jean Honoré. Born at Grasse, France, April 5, 1732: died at Paris, Aug. 22, 1806. A French painter and engraver. He was a pupil first of Chardin and later of Boucher, with whose style he was more in sympathy. Like other French painters of his day, he was much influenced by the works of Tiepolo.

France*. The religions supported by the state, before the passage of the Briand Bill in 1905, were the Roman Catholic, Protestant, and Jewish. By the passage of that bill the separation of the church and the state was effected, the adherents of all creeds were authorized to form associations for public worship (associations cultuelles), and the state, the departments, and the communes were relieved from payment of salaries.

France*, Anatole: Jacques Anatole Thibault. He has also written "Thaïs" (1890); "La rôtisserie de la reine Pédauque" (1893), "Histoire contemporaine"; a series of four novels: "L'Orme du mail" (1897), "Le mannequin d'osier" (1897; dramatized 1904), "L'Anneau d'améthyste" (1899), and "Monsieur Bergeret à Paris" (1901); "Jeanne d'Arc" (1908); etc. In 1896 he was elected to the French Academy.

Francis (fran'sis), Joseph. Born at Boston, Mass., March 12, 1801: died at Cooperstown, N. Y., May 10, 1893. An American inventor. In 1829 he constructed life-boats for the United States vessels Santee and Alabama, and by 1841 all government ships had been equipped with boats of his invention. He was the first to make life-cars and boats of metal. In 1888 the United States Congress passed a resolution tendering him the thanks of the government and authorizing the preparation of a gold medal, which was presented to him in 1890.

Franck (fraṅk), César. Born at Liège, Belgium, Dec. 10, 1822: died at Paris, Nov. 8, 1890. A French composer, generally regarded as the founder of the modern French instrumental school. In 1872 he became professor of the organ at the Conservatoire, and organist at Ste. Clotilde. Among his compositions are the opera "Hulda" (produced 1894); an unfinished one, "Ghisèle"; oratorios, "Ruth," "La Redemption," and "Les Béatitudes"; a symphony; a symphonic poem, "Le chasseur maudit"; a sonata for piano and violin; a string quartet; a piano quintet; piano music; and songs.

Francke (fräṅg'ke), Kuno. Born at Kiel, Germany, Sept. 27, 1855. A German-American author, critic, and educator, professor of the history of German culture and curator of the Germanic Museum in Harvard University. Among his publications are "Zur Geschichte der Schulpoesie des 12 Jahrhunderts" (1879), "De Hymno in Cererem Homerico" (1880), "Libelli de Lite Imperatorum et Pontificum" (1892), "Social Forces in German Literature" (1896), "Glimpses of Modern German Culture" (1898), "History of German Literature" (1901), "German Ideals of To-day" (1907), etc. He is chevalier of the Royal Prussian Order of the Red Eagle.

Frankfort (frangk'fôrt). The county-seat of Clinton County, Indiana, 41 miles northwest of Indianapolis. It has machine-shops, railroad shops, and manufactories of brick, tile, farming implements, etc. It is in a natural-gas region. Population, 8,634, (1910).

Frankfort (frangk'fôrt). The county-seat of Benzie County, Michigan, on Lake Michigan, 29 miles north of Manistee. It has a wireless telegraph station. Population, 1,555, (1910).

Franklin (frangk'lin). A town in Norfolk County, Massachusetts, 27 miles southwest of Boston. It has manufactories of straw, cotton, pianos, etc. Population, 5,641, (1910).

Franklin (frangk'lin). A city in Merrimack County, New Hampshire, on the Merrimac River, 17 miles northwest of Concord. It is the birthplace of Daniel Webster (1782, being then known as Salisbury). It has manufactories of needles, paper, woolen goods, etc. Population, 6,132, (1910).

Franklin (frangk'lin). A district of the Northwestern Territories of Canada. It comprises Melville Island, Bathurst Island, Banks Land, Prince Albert Land, Victoria Land, Prince of Wales Land, Cockburn Island, Baffin Land, etc.; is bounded by arctic waters on the north; and is separated on the east from Greenland by Baffin Bay and Davis Strait. Most of the district lies north of the arctic circle. Area, 500,000 square miles. Population, 9,000.

Franklin (frangk'lin), Mrs. (Christine Ladd). Born at Windsor, Conn., Dec. 1, 1847. An American psychologist and logician. She was graduated at Vassar College in 1869; studied at Johns Hopkins University, Göttingen, and Berlin; and has been lecturer at Johns Hopkins University since 1904.

Franklin (frangk'lin), Edward Curtis. Born at Geary City, Kansas, March 1, 1862. An American chemist, professor of organic chemistry in Stanford University from 1906. He was associate professor there 1903–06, and had previously been professor of physical chemistry in the University of Kansas (1899–1903).

Fraser (frā'zėr), Alexander Campbell. Born at Ardchattan Manse, Argyll County, Scotland, Sept. 3, 1819. A Scotch philosophical writer, professor of logic and metaphysics in the University of Edinburgh from 1856 (emeritus 1891), succeeding Sir William Hamilton. He has published "Essays" (1846–56, 1858–68), "Life and Letters of Berkeley" (1871), "Berkeley" (1881), "Locke" (1890), "Thomas Reid" (1898), "Philosophy of Theism" (1894–96), "Biographia Philosophica" (1904), "Spiritual Realism" (1908), etc.

Fraunces's Tavern. A historic building on the southeast corner of Broad and Pearl streets in New York city. It was built for a private residence by Étienne De Lancey about 1700; was purchased by Samuel Fraunces for use as an inn in 1762; was a meeting-place for the Sons of Liberty prior to the Revolution; was Washington's headquarters after the evacuation of New York; and was the place where he said farewell to his officers on Dec. 4, 1783. The New York Chamber of Commerce was organized in the building in 1768. The Society of the Sons of the Revolution was organized in the long room of the tavern Dec. 4, 1883, and in 1904 it purchased the property for use as its headquarters.

Frederic (fred'ėr-ik), Harold. Born at Utica, N. Y., Aug. 19, 1856: died at Henley, England, Oct. 19, 1898. An American journalist and novelist. He was London correspondent of the New York "Times" 1884–98. His works include "Seth's Brother's Wife" (1887), "In the Valley" (1890), "The New Exodus: a Study of Israel in Russia" (1892), "The Copperhead" (1894), "The Damnation of Theron Ware," published in England as "Illumination" (1896), "March Hares" (1896), "Gloria Mundi" (1898), and "In the Marketplace" (1899).

Frederick VIII.: full name Christian Frederick William Charles. Born at Copenhagen, June 3, 1843. King of Denmark, eldest son of Christian IX., whom he succeeded January 30, 1906. He married Louise, daughter of Charles XV. of Sweden, July 28, 1869.

Frederick Augustus III. Born at Dresden, May 25, 1865. King of Saxony. He succeeded to the throne upon the death of his father, King George, Oct. 15, 1904. He married Princess Louise of Tuscany in 1891; the marriage was dissolved in 1903.

Freeland (frē'land). A borough in Luzerne County, Pennsylvania, 15 miles south of Wilkes-Barre. Its principal industries are agriculture and coal-mining. It has foundries, machine-shops, silk-mills, etc. Population, 6,197, (1910).

Freestone State. A popular name of the State of Connecticut, from the brownstone quarries which it contains.

Fremantle (frē'man-tl), William Henry. Born 1831. An English theologian, dean of Ripon from 1895. He was canon of Canterbury 1882–1895. He is the author of "The Gospel of the Secular Life" (1882), "The World on the Subject of Redemption" (1885), "Church Reform (1887), "Works of St. Jerome and Rufinus" (trans.: 1893), "Christian Ordinances and Social Progress" (1900), etc.

Fremstad (frem'stät), Olive. Born at Stockholm about 1870. A Swedish-American dramatic soprano singer. She came to America at the age of 12 with her family, and settled in Minnesota, having previously appeared in public as a pianist. Coming to New York several years later, she studied singing, becoming soloist at St. Patrick's Cathedral. In 1893 she became a pupil of Lilli Lehmann at Berlin, and made her operatic début as Azucena, in "Il Trovatore," in 1895. She subsequently appeared at Bayreuth (1896), Vienna (1897, as Brangäne, in "Tristan und Isolde"), Cologne, Munich, and London. In November, 1903, she appeared in New York, having joined the Metropolitan Opera Company, with which she has since been identified. She has sung almost all the women's parts in the Wagner music-dramas, and her répertoire also includes Salome, Carmen, Armide, and Tosca.

French (french), Alice: pseudonym Octave Thanet. Born at Andover, Mass., March 19, 1850. An American novelist, and writer of short stories. She was educated at the Abbot Academy, Andover, and has lived west of the Mississippi, the field of much of her work. She has published "The Bishop's Vagabond" (1884), "Knitters in the Sun" (1887), "Expiation" (1890), "Stories of a Western Town" (1893), "A Book of True Lovers" (1898), "Man of the Hour" (1905), "By Inheritance" (1910), etc.

French (french), Edwin Davis. Born at North Attleboro, Mass., June 19, 1851: died Dec. 8, 1906. An American engraver. He studied with William Sartain, and for many years made a specialty of the art of book-plate engraving.

French (french), Frank. Born at Loudon, N. H., May 22, 1850. An American artist and wood-engraver. His work has appeared for many years in "The Century," "Harper's," and "Scribner's" magazines.

French India. The French possessions in India, comprising Pondicherry, Karikal, and Yanaon on the Coromandel coast; Mahé, on the Malabar coast; and Chandernagor, in Bengal. Total area, 203 square miles. Population, 273,185.

French Indo-China. The French possessions in Indo-China. The territory is bounded on the north by China, on the east and southeast by the Gulf of Tongking and the China Sea, on the west by Siam and the Gulf of Siam, and on the northwest by Burma, and lies between lat. 8° 31'–23° 25' N. and long. 100°–109° 20' E. It comprises Annam, Cambodia, Cochin China, Tongking, and Laos, and Kwang-chau Wan, leased from China. The seat of government is Hanoi. Area, about 256,000 square miles. Population, about 18,230,000.

Frenssen (fren'sen), Gustav. Born at Barlt, Holstein, Oct. 19, 1863. A German pastor and novelist. He has written "Jörn Uhl" (1901), "Hilligenlei" (1906), "Klaus Hinrich Baas" (1911), etc.

Friday Harbor. A town in San Juan County, Washington, incorporated in 1909. It has a wireless telegraph station. Population, 400, (1910).

Froberger (frō'ber-gėr), Johann Jakob. Born in Halle, Germany: died at Héricourt, France, May 7, 1667. A German composer and organist, one of the pioneers in the early development of instrumental composition.

Front Range*. According to the United States Geographic Board (1907), it includes on the north the Laramie Range as far as the crossing of the North Platte, and on the south the Pike's Peak group.

Frost (frôst), Edwin Brant. Born at Brattleboro, Vt., July 14, 1866. An American astronomer, professor of astrophysics in the University of Chicago from 1898, and director of the Yerkes Observatory from 1905. He was professor of astronomy in Dartmouth College 1895–1902, and since 1902 has been editor of the "Astrophysical Journal."

Frostburg (frôst'bėrg). A town in Allegany County, Maryland, in a mountainous region, 8 miles west of Cumberland. Besides coal-mines, it has foundries and brick-factories. It contains a State normal school. Population, 6,028, (1910).

Frye (frī), William Pierce. Born at Lewiston, Maine, Sept. 2, 1831: died there, Aug. 8, 1911. An American lawyer and statesman, United States senator (Republican) from Maine 1881–1911. He was graduated at Bowdoin College in 1850; was attorney-general of Maine 1867–69; and was a member of Congress 1871–81. He was president pro tempore of the Senate after the death of Vice-President Hobart and also after the death of President McKinley.

Fugère (fü-zhãr'), Lucien. Born at Paris in 1848. A French barytone singer. He has been a member of the company of the Paris Opéra Comique since 1877, and has seldom sung elsewhere. Two of his best rôles are the father in "Louise," and Boniface in "Le Jongleur de Notre Dame." He is a chevalier of the Legion of Honor.

Fukushima (fö-kö-shē'mä), Baron Yasumasa. Born in Matsumoto, Japan, Sept., 1853. A Japanese soldier, promoted major-general in 1900 and lieutenant-general in 1906. He was military attaché of the Japanese legation at Peking in 1883; held a similar position at Berlin 1887–92; returning to Japan, made the journey through Siberia on horseback in 1893; served with distinction as chief of the second section of the general staff in the Russo-Japanese war 1904–05; and became vice-chief of the general staff of the army in 1906, succeeding General Kodama. He has been knighted (K. C. B.), and in 1907 was created baron.

Fukuzawa (fö-kö-zä'wä), Sutejiro. Born at Tokio, 1863. A Japanese journalist, second son of Yukichi Fukuzawa. He came to the United States with his brother Ichitaro in 1883, and entered Yale University, and on his return in 1890 took up the management of the "Jiji" newspaper, founded by his father.

Fukuzawa (fö-kö-zä'wä), Yukichi. Born in Buzen province, Japan, 1834: died Feb. 3, 1901. A Japanese author and journalist, one of the most noted educationalists of Japan. In 1858 he went to the United States and in 1862 to Europe to study Occidental institutions. The results of his observations were published in 1866 in a voluminous work on Western manners and customs which had a great influence upon the modernization of Japan. Later he established the "Jiji" newspaper.

Fuller-Maitland. See Maitland.*

Funston (fun'ston), Frederick. Born in Clarke Co., Ohio, Nov. 9, 1865. An American soldier, appointed brigadier-general in the United States army in 1901. He joined the insurgent army in Cuba in 1896; was commissioned colonel of the Twentieth Kansas Volunteers in 1898; was sent to the Philippines; was promoted brigadier-general of volunteers in 1899 for establishing a ferry across the Rio Grande River at Calumpit in the face of a heavy fire; and captured Aguinaldo, the chief of the Filipino insurgents, in March, 1901. He was commander of the Department of California 1905–06 and 1907–08, of the Southwestern Division at St. Louis 1906–07; was commandant of the army service schools at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, 1908–11; and commander of the Department of Luzón, Philippine Islands, January, 1911–.

Furness*, Horace Howard. His variorum edition of Shakspere's plays also includes: "The Winter's Tale" (1898), "Much Ado About Nothing" (1899), "Twelfth Night" (1901), "Love's Labor Lost" (1904), "Antony and Cleopatra" (1907), "Richard III." (1908), etc. Since 1901 he has received the assistance of his son Horace Howard Furness, Jr., as co-worker.

Furniss (fêr'nis), Harry. Born at Wexford, Ireland, 1854. A British illustrator and caricaturist. He went to London at the age of nineteen and has been employed on leading English periodicals (the "London News," "Graphic," "Dramatic News," etc.). In 1880 he joined the staff of "Punch." He has illustrated many books (including the centenary edition of the works of Thackeray) and has published accounts of journeys, a novel, etc.

Furniss (fêr'nis), Henry Watson. Born at Brooklyn, N. Y., Feb. 14, 1868. An American diplomatist, minister to Haiti from 1906. He was consul at Bahia, Brazil, 1898–1906.

Furtwängler (fört'veng-ler), Adolf. Born at Freiburg-im-Breisgau, Germany, June 30, 1853: died in Athens, Oct. 10, 1907. A German classical archæologist, professor in the University of Munich from 1894, and director of the Glyptothek. He was educated at the universities of Freiburg, Leipsic, and Munich; held a traveling stipendium of the German Archæological Institute 1876–78; and was attached to the expedition to Olympia 1878–79. Among his many works on ancient art and archæology are "Mykenische Tongefässe" (1879), "Die Sammlung Sabouroff" (1883–87), "Mykenische Vasen" (1886), "Die Bronzen und die übrigen kleineren Funde von Olympia" (1890), "Die Sammlung Somzée" (1897), "Neuere Fälschungen von Antiken" (1899), "Die Antiken Gemmen, Geschichte der Steinschneidekunst im klassischen Altertum" (1900), etc.

Gabô (gä-bô'), Port. A bay and harbor at the southeastern extremity of Dinagat Island, Philippines: safe in all weather.

Gabrieli (gä-brē-ā'lē), Andrea. Born at Venice, about 1510: died there, 1586. A noted Italian composer and organist. His nephew and pupil, Giovanni, was born at Venice in 1557: died probably in 1612, and was equally noted. Both were organists in St. Mark's, Venice.

Gabrilovitch (gä-bri-lō'vich), Ossip Salomonovitch. Born at St. Petersburg, Feb. 7, 1878. A Russian pianist. He studied at the St. Petersburg Conservatory 1888–94, and then at Vienna with Leschetitzky. He made his first appearance in 1896 at Berlin, and since then has made American and European tours. He married Clara, daughter of Samuel L. Clemens ("Mark Twain"), Oct. 8, 1909. He has published pieces for the piano.

Gadow (gä'dō), Hans Friedrich. Born in Pomerania, March 8, 1855. A German-English naturalist, curator of and lecturer on zoölogy in the University of Cambridge from 1884. He has published "A Classification of Vertebrata" (1898), the volumes on birds in Brown's "Animal Kingdom," and those on amphibia and reptiles in the "Cambridge Natural History," "Through Southern Mexico" (1908), etc.

Gadsden (gadz'den). The county-seat of Etowah County, Alabama, on the Coosa River, 59 miles northeast of Birmingham. It has lumber-mills, blast-furnaces, car-factories, machine-shops, pipe-works, etc. Population, 10,557, (1910).

Gadski (gäd'ski), Johanna. Born in Pomerania, June 15, 1872. A German soprano singer. She made her first appearance in Berlin, in May, 1891, as Pamina, in "Die Zauberflöte." On Sept. 20, 1892, she married Herr Tauscher, a German army officer. In 1894 she came to America as a member of the Damrosch German Opera Company. She first appeared as Elsa, in "Lohengrin," later creating the part of Hester Prynne, in Walter Damrosch's opera "The Scarlet Letter" (Feb. 10, 1896). She has been a member of the Metropolitan Opera Company during several seasons, and has made extensive concert tours in America. Her répertoire is large, and embraces rôles in German, Italian, and English, including Brunhild and Sieglinde (in Wagner's Nibelungen tetralogy), Aïda, Santuzza (in "Cavalleria Rusticana"), and Leonora (in "Il Trovatore").

Gaetano (gä-ā-tä'nō), Giovanni. Flourished about 1542. An Italian pilot in the service of Spain. He was sent on the expedition from Mexico to the Philippines commanded by Lopez de Villalobos. To this expedition the discovery of the Hawaiian Islands is attributed.

Gage (gāj), Henry T. An American diplomatist, minister to Portugal from 1909. He was governor of California 1899–1903.

Gainesville (gānz'vil). The county-seat of Alachua County, Florida, in an orange-growing and phosphate district, 60 miles southwest of Jacksonville. It is a well-known winter resort, and is the seat of the University of Florida. Population, 6,183, (1910).

Gainesville (gānz'vil). The county-seat of Hall County, Georgia, 52 miles northeast of Atlanta. Its mineral springs make it popular as a health resort. Population, 5,925, (1910).

Gainesville (gānz'vil). The county-seat of Cooke County, Texas, 65 miles northwest of Dallas. It has stock-raising and packing industries, flour-mills, iron-works, brick-factories, etc. Population, 7,624, (1910).

Galdhöpiggen (gäld-hē-pig'en). The highest mountain of Norway, situated in Jotunheimen, about lat. 61° 40′ N. Height, 8,400 feet.

Galdós (gäl-dōs'), Benito Perez. Born at Las Palmas, Canary Islands, 1845. A Spanish novelist and dramatist. His most notable work is a series of romances entitled "Episodios nacionales," dealing with the history of Spain from 1808 to 1834 (1873–1907). He has also written many other novels and a number of plays.

Galena (gą-lē'nä). A city in Cherokee County, Kansas, 148 miles southeast of Topeka. The mining of lead and zinc is the principal industry, and there are large smelting-works. Population, 6,096, (1910).

Galsworthy (gâls'wêr-ᵺHi), John. Born in 1867. An English novelist and playwright. His works treat largely of social topics. He has written "The Island Pharisees" (1904), "Fraternity" (1909), "A Motley" (1910), "The Patrician" (1911), "The Silver Box" (1906: a play), "Strife" (1909: a play), "Justice" (1910: a play), etc.

Ganne (gän), Louis Gaston. Born at Buxières-les-Mines, Allier, April 5, 1862. A French composer. He was a pupil of Dubois and César Franck at the Paris Conservatory. He has written several ballets and operettas, including "Les Saltimbanques" (1899) and "Hans le Joueur de Flute" (1900), and many small pieces for orchestra, voice, and piano. For some time he has been director of an orchestra at Monte Carlo.

Gannett (gan'et), Henry. Born at Bath, Maine, Aug. 24, 1846. An American statistician, geographer of the United States Geological Survey from 1882. He was geographer of the tenth, eleventh, and twelfth censuses and was assistant director of the census of the Philippine Islands 1902–03, and of the census of Cuba 1907–08. He has published "A Manual of Topographic Methods," statistical atlases of the tenth, eleventh, and twelfth censuses, "Commercial Geography," "Building of a Nation," and numerous other geographical and statistical works.

Gannett (gan'et) Peak. The highest peak of the Wind River Mountains, situated in Wyoming a short distance north of Frémont's Peak. Height, 13,775 feet.

Garden (gär'dn), Mary. Born in Scotland. An American opera-singer. She was brought to Chicago at six years of age and lived in the United States until she was nineteen, when she went to Paris. She first appeared there in the Opéra Comique, and has sung with the Manhattan Opera Company in New York and the Chicago Opera Company (1910–11). Among her principal rôles are Louise, Mélisande (in "Pelléas et Mélisande"), Thaïs, Salome, etc.

Gardiner*, Samuel Rawson. His later works include "What Gunpowder Plot Was" (1897), "Cromwell's Place in History" (1897), "Oliver Cromwell" (1899), etc.

Gardner (gärd'nėr), Ernest Arthur. Born at London, 1862. An English classical archæologist, professor of archæology in University College, London. He was director of the British School of Archæology at Athens 1887–90. Among the explorations which he has conducted are those at Naucratis, Egypt (1885–86), Paphos, Megalopolis, and other sites in Greece. He has written "Chapters on Inscriptions in Naucratis" (1886–88), "Handbook of Greek Sculpture" (1896–97), "Six Greek Sculptors" (1910), etc.

Gardner (gärd'nėr), Percy. Born at Hackney, London, Nov. 24, 1846. An English archæologist, professor of classical archæology in the University of Oxford from 1887. He was editor of the "Journal of Hellenic Studies" (1880–96), and an editor of the coin catalogues of the British Museum 1873–86. Among his works are "The Parthian Coinage" (1877), "Samos and Samian Coins" (1882), "Types of Greek Coins" (1883), "New Chapters in Greek History" (1892), "Manual of Greek Antiquities" (1895: with Jevons), "Sculptured Tombs of Hellas" (1896), "Grammar of Greek Art" (1905), "The Growth of Christianity" (1907), etc.

Garfield (gär'fēld). A borough in Bergen County, New Jersey, on the Passaic River opposite Passaic. It has manufactories of paper, woolen goods, chemicals, etc. Population, 10,213, (1910).

Garfield (gär'fēld), Harry Augustus. Born at Hiram, Ohio, Oct. 11, 1863. An American educator, son of President James A. Garfield. He was graduated at Williams College in 1885; studied and practised law; was professor of politics in Princeton University 1903–08; and has been president of Williams College since 1908.

Garland (gär'land), Hamlin. Born at West Salem, Wis., Sept. 16, 1860. An American novelist. He has found his material chiefly in the Mississippi valley and in the mountains of the West. His works include "Main-traveled Roads" (1890), "A Little Norsk" (1891), "Rose of Dutcher's Coolly" (1895), "Her Mountain Lover" (1901), "The Captain of the Grayhorse Troop" (1902), "Hesper" (1903), "The Tyranny of the Dark" (1905), "The Long Trail" (1907), "The Shadow World" (1908), "Other Main-traveled Roads" (1910), a biography of Ulysses S. Grant (1898), a volume of verse, "Prairie Songs" (1893), and various pieces of criticism.

Garman (gär'man), Harrison. Born at Lena, Ill., Dec. 27, 1858. An American scientist, State entomologist of Kentucky from 1897. He was assistant State entomologist of Illinois 1883–85, and professor of zoölogy and entomology in the Kentucky State University 1892–96. He has been entomologist and botanist of the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station since 1889.

Garrison (gar'i-son), Wendell Phillips. Born at Cambridgeport, Mass., June 4, 1840: died at South Orange, N. J., Feb. 27, 1907. An American editor, son of William Lloyd Garrison, the abolitionist. In 1865 he was associated with Edwin Lawrence Godkin in founding the New York "Nation," of which he was literary editor until his retirement in 1906. He was also literary editor of the "Evening Post" from 1881. He was the author of a "Life of William Lloyd Garrison" (1885: with F. J. Garrison), etc.

Garrison (gar'i-son), William Lloyd. Born at Boston, Jan. 21, 1838: died at Lexington, Mass., Sept. 12, 1909. An American publicist, son of William Lloyd Garrison, the abolitionist. He was a wool-merchant at Boston for many years, with various other business interests, but retired from active life in 1900. He took a warm interest in questions of public policy, speaking and writing in behalf of free trade, the enfranchisement of women, and the single-tax theory. He was for some time president of the Massachusetts Single Tax League and of the American Free Trade League.

Garros (gä-rōs'), Roland. Born at St.-Denis, Réunion, Oct. 6, 1888. A French aviator. He first attracted attention as a skilful operator of the Demoiselle monoplane, making one over-water flight of 8 miles. He was one of the entrants at the international races at Belmont Park, Long Island, in October, 1910. He subsequently flew also the Blériot monoplane. He reached an altitude of 6,495 feet at New Orleans, on Dec. 26, 1910. Returning to Europe, he participated in numerous cross-country races, and finished second to Lieutenant Conneau (A. Beaumont) in the European circuit race (Paris, Utrecht, London, Paris), a course of 948 miles, June 18–July 7, 1911.

Gary (gā'ri). A city in Lake County, Indiana, founded in 1906 by the United States Steel Corporation expressly for the production of steel. It has the largest and best equipped steel plant in existence, and all the residential advantages of a model industrial city. Population, 16,802, (1910).

Gary (gā'ri), Elbert Henry. Born at Wheaton, Ill., Oct. 8, 1846. An American jurist and financier. He was admitted to the Illinois bar in 1867, and to the bar of the United States Supreme Court in 1878; served for two terms as county judge in Dupage County, Illinois; and subsequently practised law in Chicago, acting chiefly for corporations. In 1898 he retired from the practice of law to become president of the Federal Steel Company. He took part in the organization of the United States Steel Corporation in 1901, becoming chairman of its board of directors and of its finance committee.

Gary (gā'ri), James Albert. Born at Uncasville, Conn., Oct. 22, 1833. An American manufacturer and cabinet officer. He was delegate to the Republican national conventions of 1872, 1876, 1880, 1884, 1892, and 1896, and was postmaster-general March, 1897–May, 1898.

Gaspar (gas'pär), or Kaspar. The legendary name of one of the three Magi who came from the East to worship the infant Jesus. See Cologne, Three Kings of, and Magi.

Gastonia (gas-tō'ni-ä). A town in Gaston County, North Carolina, 20 miles west of Charlotte. It has cotton-mills, cement-works, iron-works, etc. Population, 5,759, (1910).

Gatacre (gat'a-kr), Sir William Forbes. Born Dec. 3, 1843: died at Gambela, Africa, March 4, 1906. A British major-general. He served in Burma (1889–90) and Chitral (1895); commanded the British troops in the Sudan, in the first advance on Atbara (1898); and led a division in the attack on Khartum and Omdurman (1898). He commanded the third division of the South African field force 1899–1900; was defeated in an attack on Stormberg Junction, Dec. 11, 1899; occupied Burghersdorp in March, 1900; and was ordered home in April. In June, 1900, he was appointed major-general in command of the East District, and retired March 19, 1904.

Gatschet (gä'chet), Albert Samuel. Born at St. Beatenberg, Switzerland, Oct. 3, 1832: died March 16, 1907. An American anthropologist, philologist in the Bureau of American Ethnology from 1879. He was ethnologist of the United States Geological Survey 1877–79. His investigations were concerned chiefly with the languages of the North American Indians.

Gatún (gä-tön'). A town near Colón, on the Panama railroad. For the Gatún dam, see ★Panama Canal.

Gaudry (gō-drē'), Albert. Born at Saint-Germain-en-Laye, Sept. 15, 1827: died at Paris, Nov. 27, 1908. An eminent French paleontologist, professor in the Museum of Natural History at Paris from 1872 (assistant professor 1853). He published numerous reports, monographs, and papers on paleontological and geological topics, of which the best known is "Animaux fossiles et géologie de l'Attique" (1862–67). In 1882 he was elected a member of the French Academy of Sciences.

Gebhart (geb-här'), Emile Nicolas. Born in Nancy, July 19, 1839: died at Paris, April 21, 1908. A French scholar, best known as a historian of art. He became professor of foreign literature at Nancy in 1869, and of Romance literature at the Sorbonne in 1880. He was elected a member of the French Academy in 1904. His works include "Histoire du sentiment poétique de la nature dans l'antiquité grecque et romaine" (1875), "Praxitèle" (1864), "Essai sur la peinture de genre dans l'antiquité" (1868), "Les historiens florentins de la Renaissance" (1875), "Rabelais" (1876), "De l'Italie" (1876), "La Renaissance italienne et la philosophie de l'histoire" (1887), "L'Italie mystique" (1890), "Conteurs florentins du moyen-âge" (1901), "D'Ulysse à Panurge" (1902), "Sandro Botticelli" (1907), etc.

Geddes (ged'es), Patrick. Born Oct. 2, 1854. A British biologist, professor of botany in University College, Dundee. He has written "Evolution of Sex" (1889: with J. A. Thomson), and many scientific and educational papers.

Geikie, Sir Archibald. His later works include "Field Geology" (5th ed., 1900), "Memoir of Sir Andrew Crombie Ramsay" (1895), "The Ancient Volcanoes of Britain" (1897), "The Founders of Geology" (1897), "Geological Map of England and Wales" (1897), "Types of Scenery, and their Influence on Literature" (1898), "The Geology of Central and Western Fife and Kinross" (1901), "The Geology of Eastern Fife" (1902), "Scottish Reminiscences" (1904), "Landscape in History" (1905), "Charles Darwin as Geologist" (1909), etc. He was made secretary to the Royal Society in 1903 and president in 1908.

Geikie (gē'ki), John Cunningham. Born at Edinburgh, Scotland, Oct. 26, 1824: died April 1, 1906. A British clergyman and writer. He was the son of a Presbyterian minister of Toronto, Canada; entered the Presbyterian ministry in 1848; and took orders in the Church of England in 1876. Until 1860 he lived in Canada and Nova Scotia, and after that in England, except from 1879 to 1881, when he was rector of a church in Paris. His works include "The Life and Words of Christ" (1876), "The English Reformation" (1884), "Hours with the Bible" (1894–96), "Landmarks of Old Testament History" (1894), "The Vicar and his Friends" (1901), etc.

Gelsenkirchen (gel'zen-kēr-chen). A town in the province of Westphalia, Germany, 17 miles west of Dortmund. Its recent prosperity and growth are due to the development of coal-mines in the neighborhood, and to the incorporation of several adjoining places with the town in 1903. Population, 168,293, (1910).

Genée (zhe-nā'), Adeline. Born at Aarhus, Jutland, about 1882. A Danish dancer. She learned her first steps at the age of three, her aunt, Antonia Zimmermann, being a famous danseuse. At eight she began regular dancing lessons with her uncle at Copenhagen. She made her first success at Berlin, and after dancing at Copenhagen and Munich went to London, where for many seasons she was the première danseuse of the Empire Theatre ballet, appearing in "Coppélia" and other modern ballets. She made her American début in Philadelphia in 1908, and appeared there for three successive seasons.

General Education Board. An organization established at New York in 1902 to promote education in the United States, irrespective of race, creed, or sex. It is especially concerned with regulating and utilizing various forms of educational beneficence. It has received about $53,000,000 from John D. Rockefeller, of which about $7,200,000 have been given to the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research and about $12,600,000 to the University of Chicago.

General Grant Park. A park in the San Joaquin Valley, California, about 1½ miles south of Millwood. It contains 125 mammoth trees, among them "General Grant," one of the largest sequoias known, measuring 106 feet in circumference at its base.

Geneva Bible. An English translation of the Bible issued from Geneva in 1560 by several English divines who had fled thither to escape the persecution of the reign of Mary. It was the first complete Bible to appear in Roman type, the first to omit the Apocrypha, and the first to recognize the division into verses. This translation was in common use in England till the version made by order of King James was introduced in 1611. The Geneva Bible has also been called the Breeches Bible, because Gen. iii. 7 is translated, "Then the eyes of them both were opened, and they knew that they were naked, and they sewed fig leaves together and made themselves breeches." "Breeches" occurs in previous translations, though the name is given especially to this one.

Gen-san. See ★Yuen-san.

George V.: full name, George Frederick Ernest Albert. Born at Marlborough House, London, June 3, 1865. King of Great Britain and Ireland and Emperor of India, May, 1910–: second son of Edward VII. In 1892, by the death of his elder brother, the Duke of Clarence, he became the heir to the throne of Great Britain and Ireland. He was created Duke of York in 1892; married Princess Victoria Mary (May) of Teck, daughter of Queen Victoria's first cousin, July 6, 1893; succeeded his father as Duke of Cornwall in 1901; and on Nov. 9, 1901, was given the title of Prince of Wales. He was crowned in Westminster Abbey, June 22, 1911.

Georgetown University. An institution of higher learning for men, situated at Georgetown, District of Columbia. Since 1805 it has been under the control of the Society of Jesus. The university consists of Georgetown College (founded in 1789), the School of Medicine (opened in 1851), the School of Law (opened in 1870), and the Dental School (opened in 1901). Congress authorized the conferring of degrees in 1815, and in 1833 the authorities at Rome granted the power of conferring degrees in philosophy and theology in the name of the Holy See. The number of students is over 1,100. The university library contains nearly 100,000 volumes.

George Washington University. The name under which Columbian University has been known since 1904. See Columbian University.

Georgia, University of. See ★University of Georgia.

Gerardy (zhe-rär-dē'), Jean. Born at Spa, Dec. 7, 1877. A Belgian violoncellist. After studying with Bellman, he entered the Verviers Conservatory, from which he graduated at the age of eleven. He then toured extensively in Europe and America, giving recitals, and playing in concert with Paderewski, Ysaye, Marteau, Kreisler, and Josef Hofmann.

Germanic National Museum. See Nuremberg.

Gevaërt (ge-värt'), François Auguste. Born at Huysse, near Oudenarde, Belgium, July 31, 1828: died at Brussels, Dec. 24, 1908. A Belgian musical historian and composer. He lived in Paris for a time and brought out several operas there. In 1871 he was made director of the Brussels Conservatory, succeeding Fétis. His principal literary works are his "Traité générale d'instrumentation" (1863: revised as "Nouveau traité d'instrumentation," 1886), "Les origines du chant liturgique de l'église latine" (1890), "La mélopée antique dans l'église latine" (1895), etc.

Gherardi (ge-rär'di), Bancroft. Born at Jackson, La., Nov. 10, 1832: died at Stratford, Conn., Dec. 10, 1903. An American naval officer, appointed rear-admiral in 1887. He entered the navy as midshipman in 1846, and served through the Civil War. He retired in 1894.

Giacosa (jä-kō'sä), Giuseppe. Born in Colleretto-Parella, near Ivrea, Turin, Italy, Oct. 21, 1847: died there, Sept. 2, 1906. A noted Italian dramatist. His works include "Una partita a scacchi" (1873), "Trionfo d'amore" (1875), "I figli del marchese" (1874), "La signora di Challant" (1891), "Tristi amori" (1891), "Come le foglie" (1900), etc.

Giard (zhē-är'), Alfred Mathieu. Born at Valenciennes, Aug. 8, 1846: died Aug. 8, 1908. A distinguished French zoölogist, professor at the Sorbonne 1892–1908. He was the author of "Principes de biologie générale" (1877), "Recherches sur la castration parasitaire" (1887), "Controversies transformistes" (1900), etc.

Gibbs (gibz), Josiah Willard. Born at New Haven, Conn., Feb. 11, 1839: died there, April 28, 1903. A distinguished American physicist and mathematician, son of Josiah Willard Gibbs (1790–1861). He was graduated at Yale College in 1858 and became professor of mathematical physics there in 1871. The series of important papers in which the results of his investigations were embodied began with two, published in 1873, entitled "Graphical Methods in the Thermodynamics of Fluids" and "A Method of Geometrical Representation of the Thermodynamic Properties of Substances by Means of Surfaces." These were followed by a paper on the "Equilibrium of Heterogeneous Substances" (two parts, 1876 and 1878), one on "Multiple Algebra" (1886), etc. His work was most fruitful for the physicist, the chemist, and the mathematician. In 1906 his "Scientific Papers" were published in two volumes.

Gibbs (gibz), Oliver Wolcott. Born at New York, Feb. 21, 1822: died at Newport, R. I., Dec. 9, 1908. An American chemist, professor of applied science in Harvard University from 1863 (emeritus 1887). He was professor of physics and chemistry in the College of the City of New York 1847–63. His publications include numerous important papers on chemical topics. In 1884 he was elected an honorary member of the German Chemical Society, and was the first American who received this honor.

Gibson (gib'son), Charles Dana. Born at Roxbury, Mass., Sept. 14, 1867. An American illustrator. He received his artistic education at the Art Students' League in New York and the Julian Academy in Paris. He has produced a large number of illustrations for "Life" and other pictorial magazines, his subjects being taken chiefly from American social life.

Gibson, Edward, first Baron Ashbourne. He was lord chancellor of Ireland, with a seat in the cabinet, 1885–86, 1886–92, and 1895–1906.

Gibson's Desert. A desert region in Western Australia, lying between the great Victoria Desert and the Great Sandy Desert.

Giddings (gid'ingz), Franklin Henry. Born at Sherman, Conn., March 23, 1855. An American sociologist. He was graduated from Union College in 1877; worked as a journalist until 1888; was lecturer on political science at Bryn Mawr 1888–91, and professor 1891–94; was professor of sociology at Columbia University 1894–1906; and has been professor of sociology and the history of civilization there since 1906. He has written "Principles of Sociology" (1896), "Elements of Sociology" (1898), "Democracy and Empire" (1900), "Inductive Sociology" (1901), "Descriptive and Historical Sociology" (1907), etc.

Giffard (gif'ärd), Sir Hardinge Stanley, first Earl of Halsbury. Born Sept. 3, 1825. An English statesman. He was educated at Merton College, Oxford; was called to the bar at the Inner Temple in 1850; and was appointed queen's counsel in 1865. In 1875 he was created a knight, in 1885 a baron, and in 1898 an earl (Viscount Tiverton and Earl of Halsbury). He was Conservative member of Parliament for Launceston 1877–85, and lord high chancellor 1885–86, 1886–92, and 1895–Dec., 1905.

Gigout (zhē-gō'), Eugène. Born at Nancy, France, March 23, 1844. A noted French organist, composer, and teacher. He was for many years professor in the Niedermeyer School in Paris, and since 1863 has been organist at the Church of Saint-Augustin. In 1885 he founded an organ school in Paris. He has published many organ works and choruses in the Gregorian style.

Gilbert (gil'bêrt), Cass. Born at Zanesville, Ohio, Nov. 24, 1859. An American architect. He was educated at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Among the buildings designed by him are the Capitol at St. Paul, the Central Public Library at St. Louis, and the Custom-house and the Woolworth Building at New York. He is a member of the National Academy, and was president of the American Institute of Architects 1908–09.

Gilbert (gil'bêrt), Grove Karl. Born at Rochester, N. Y., May 6, 1843. An American man of science, geologist of the United States Geological Survey from 1879. He was engaged on the Ohio Geological Survey 1869–71; in the Wheeler survey 1871–74; and in the Powell survey of a portion of the Rocky Mountains 1874–79. His publications include many reports and papers on geology and physiography.

Gilberton (gil'bėr-tŏn). A borough in Schuylkill County, Pennsylvania, 41 miles northwest of Allentown. Coal-mining is its most important industry. Population, 5,401, (1910).

Giles (jīlz), Herbert Allen. Born Dec. 8, 1845. A British Orientalist, professor of Chinese at the University of Cambridge. He was a member of the consular service in China 1867–93. In 1902 he was appointed lecturer on Chinese in Columbia University. He has published a "Glossary of Reference" (1878), "Historic China" (1882), "Chinese Biographical Dictionary" (1897), "A History of Chinese Literature" (1901), "The Religions of Ancient China" (1906), etc.

Gilibert (zhē-lē-bār'), Charles. Born at Paris, about 1867: died at New York, Oct. 12, 1910. A French barytone. He was a graduate of the Paris Conservatory and for a time a member of the Paris Opéra Comique Company, but he sang more often in Brussels, London, and New York. His limited voice restricted his choice of characters, but he was successful in small rôles. He played the buffo parts in the old Italian operas as well as barytone parts in the French works, his Massetto, in "Don Giovanni," being especially notable. He made a success in an entirely different field as the father, in "Louise," in its first American production. He was also successful in concert.

Gillette (ji-let'), William. Born at Hartford, Conn., July 24, 1855. An American actor and playwright. He appeared for a number of years in various stock companies, and has played leading rôles in many of his own dramas. Among these are "The Professor," "The Private Secretary," "Held by the Enemy," "Too Much Johnson," "Secret Service," "Sherlock Holmes," etc.

Ginsburg (ginz'bėrg), Christian David. Born at Warsaw, Russian Poland, Dec. 25, 1831. A British biblical scholar and writer. He was a member of the committee for the revision of the English version of the Old Testament. Among his works are the "Massorah" (1880–), commentaries upon various books of the Old Testament, etc.

Gioconda (jō-kōn'dä), La. 1. See Mona Lisa. —2. An opera by Ponchielli (words by Arrigo Boito), first produced at Milan in 1876.

Giordano (jor-dä'nō), Umberto. Born at Foggia, Aug. 27, 1867. An Italian composer. While still a pupil at the Naples Conservatory he received a commission to write an opera, "Mala Vita" (1892). His next opera, "Regina Diaz" (1894), was unsuccessful. His operas "Andrea Chenier" (1896), "Fedora" (1898), and "Siberia" (1904) have been produced in America.

Girl of the Golden West, The. [It. La Fanciulla del West.] An opera by Puccini (words by Zangarini), first produced at New York, Dec. 11, 1910. The story is based on the play of the same name by Belasco, produced in New York city in 1905, with Blanche Bates as heroine.

Girofle Girofla (zhē-rō-flä' zhē-rō-flä'). An opera bouffe in three acts (libretto by Vanloo and Leterrier, music by A. C. Lecocq) which was first produced at the Theater of Parisian Fantasies in Brussels, March 21, 1874.

Gissing (gis'ing), George. Born at Wakefield, England, Nov. 22, 1857: died at St.-Jean-de-Luz, France, Dec. 28, 1903. An English novelist, a portrayer of modern social conditions and in particular of English middle-class life. He was educated at Owens College, Manchester. His works include "The Unclassed" (1884), "Demos" (1886), "The Nether World" (1889), "New Grub Street" (1891), "The Whirlpool" (1897), "The Town Traveller" (1898), "Our Friend the Charlatan" (1901), "By the Ionian Sea" (1901), "The Private Papers of Henry Ryecroft," an autobiographical book originally entitled "An Author at Grass" (1902), "Veranilda" (1905), "The House of Cobwebs" (1906), etc. He was a student of Dickens and published "Charles Dickens, a critical essay" (1898), an abbreviation of Forster's life of Dickens (1902), and introductions to the "Rochester" edition of Dickens's novels.

Glace (gläs) Bay. A town on the northeastern coast of Cape Breton Island, Nova Scotia. There are sheet-metal works in the town and coal-mines in the vicinity. It is a transatlantic wireless telegraph station. Population, 6,945.

Glacier National Park. A national park in northern Montana, established in 1910, comprising over 1,500 square miles. It contains over 60 glaciers. Mount Cleveland, the highest peak, is 10,434 feet in height.

Gladden (glad'ėn), Washington. Born at Pottsgrove, Pa., Feb. 11, 1836. An American Congregational clergyman and writer. He was graduated at Williams College in 1859; was pastor of churches in Brooklyn and Morrisania, New York, and North Adams and Springfield, Massachusetts (1860–82); was pastor of the First Congregational Church in Columbus, Ohio, 1882–1911, and was moderator of the Congregational Council 1904–07. Among his publications are "Plain Thoughts on the Art of Living" (1868), "The Christian League of Connecticut" (1883), "Applied Christianity (1887), "Who Wrote the Bible?" (1891), "Tools and the Man" (1892), "The Christian Pastor" (1898), "How Much is Left of the Old Doctrines?" (1899), "Social Salvation" (1902), "When Does the Sky Begin?" (1904), "The Church and Modern Life" (1908), "Recollections" (1909).

Gladsheim (gläds'hīm). ['Home of gladness.'] In Old Norse mythology, a region in Asgard which contains the Valhalla, the assembling-place of the gods and heroes. It is the dwelling of Odin.

Gladstone (glad'stŏn), Herbert John, Viscount Gladstone of Hawarden. Born at London, Jan. 7, 1854. An English Liberal statesman, youngest son of W. E. Gladstone. He was educated at Eton and at University College, Oxford; has represented Leeds and Leeds West in the House of Commons since 1880; was private secretary to his father 1880–81; and was junior lord of the treasury 1881–85, financial secretary to the War Office 1886, under-secretary to the Home Office 1892–94, first commissioner of works 1894–95, chief Liberal whip 1899–1905, and home secretary Dec., 1905–10. He was raised to the peerage in 1910, and in the same year was appointed governor-general of South Africa.

Gladstone (glad'stŏn), John Hall. Born at London, 1827: died Oct. 6, 1902. An English chemist, professor of chemistry at the Royal Institute 1874–77. He published the "Life of Michael Faraday" (1872), "Spelling Reform from an Educational Point of View" (1878), and numerous papers on chemical topics.

Glasgow (glas'gō), Ellen Anderson Gholson. Born at Richmond, Va., April 22, 1874. An American novelist. She has written "The Descendant" (1897), "Phases of an Inferior Planet" (1898), "The Freeman and other Poems" (1900), "The Voice of the People" (1900), "The Battleground" (1902), "The Deliverance" (1904), "The Wheel of Life" (1906), "Ancient Law" (1908), "The Romance of a Plain Man" (1909), "The Miller of Old Church" (1911), etc.

Glass (glas), Henry. Born in Kentucky, Jan. 7, 1844: died at Paso Robles, Cal., Sept. 1, 1908. An American naval officer, promoted rear-admiral in 1901. He was graduated at the United States Naval Academy in 1863; served in the last years of the Civil War; commanded the cruiser Charleston on the Pacific Station in the Spanish war; and captured the Ladrone Islands (Guam) June 20, 1898. He was commander-in-chief of the Pacific Station 1903–04, and was appointed commandant of the Pacific Naval District in 1904, retiring in January, 1906.

Glassport (glas'pōrt). A borough in Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, incorporated in 1902. It has glass-factories, foundries, etc. Population, 5,540, (1910).

Glastonbury (glas'tŏn-ber-i). A town in Hartford County, Connecticut, on the Connecticut River, 5 miles below Hartford. It has manufactories of wool, paper, etc. Population, 4,796, (1910).

Glave (glāv), Edward James. Born Sept. 13, 1862: died at Underhill, Matadi, Belgian Kongo, May 12, 1895. An English explorer in Central Africa. In 1883 he was sent by the Bureau of the International Association of Brussels to serve under Henry M. Stanley on the Kongo River. He was in command of the station at Lukolela 1884–86, explored the Kongo basin 1886–89, came to America on a lecturing tour in 1889, and explored Alaska 1890–91. Between August, 1893, and April, 1895, he crossed Africa from the mouth of the Zambesi River, journeying to the east and north of Lake Nyassa, west of Lake Bangweolo, east of Lake Moero, and west of Lake Tanganyika to the mouth of the Kongo River. This journey was undertaken for the investigation of the slave-trade, with a view to aiding in its abolition. He wrote "In Savage Africa" (1892).

Glazounof (glä'zō-nof), Alexander Constantinovitch. Born at St. Petersburg, Aug. 10, 1865. A Russian composer of the advanced national school, though also affected by more cosmopolitan Western influences. He has composed seven symphonies, several symphonic poems and suites, six string quartets and other instrumental music, cantatas, and songs. In 1906 he was appointed director of the St. Petersburg Conservatory.

Glenn (glen), John Mark. Born at Baltimore, Oct. 28, 1858. An American social worker. He was educated at Johns Hopkins University, and was admitted to the bar in 1882. He was a member of the board of supervisors of city charities in Baltimore 1898–1907, and in 1907 was made director of the Russell Sage Foundation at New York.

Globe (glōb). The county-seat of Gila County, Arizona, 84 miles northeast of Tucson. It has rich mines of copper, gold, and silver. Population, 7,083, (1910).

Gluck (glŏk), Alma. Born at Bukharest, about 1883. An American soprano singer. She came to America when about three years old, studied singing in New York, and in 1909 was engaged for the Metropolitan Opera Company. Her début was made as Sophie, in "Werther," Nov. 16, 1909, at the New Theatre. Since that time she has been heard in a variety of parts. She has also sung in recital and oratorio.

Glyptothek (glip'tō-tāk). [G., < NL. glyptotheca, < Gr. γλυπτόν, a carved image, + θήκη, a collection.] A gallery of sculpture on the Königsplatz, Munich, built externally in the Ionic style, with thirteen halls lighted from a central quadrangle. It was erected from designs by Klenze, 1816–30, by Louis I., king of Bavaria, primarily to provide a home for the Æginetan marbles. The name is also given to a museum of art in Copenhagen.

Godard (gō-där'), Benjamin Louis Paul. Born at Paris, Aug. 18, 1849: died at Cannes, Jan. 10, 1895. A French composer. Among his works are the operas "Pedro de Zalamea" (1884), "Jocelyn" (1888), "Dante et Béatrice" (1890), "Jeanne d'Arc" (1891), "La vivandière" (1895), symphonies and suites, many piano pieces, and songs.

Godowsky (gō-dof'ski), Leopold. Born at Vilna, Feb. 13, 1870. A Russian piano virtuoso and composer. He first appeared in concert when nine years of age, playing in Russia, Poland, and Germany. In 1884 he toured in America with Ovide Musin, and then, after studying with Saint-Saëns, toured in France, England, and America. He was director of the Chicago Conservatory 1895–1900, and succeeded Busoni at the Vienna Conservatory in 1908. He has written pianoforte pieces, and fifty studies on the "Études" of Chopin.

Godwin-Austen (god'win-ôs'ten), Robert Alfred Cloyne. Born at Guildford, Surrey, March 17, 1808: died there, Nov. 25, 1884. An English geologist. He was educated at Oxford (Oriel College), and was a pupil of William Buckland, the geologist. In 1849 he was elected a fellow of the Royal Society. He took the additional surname of Godwin in 1853. He is best known through his essay "On the Possible Extension of the Coal-measures beneath the South-Eastern Part of England" (1854).

Goeje (gö'ye), Michiel Johannes de. Born in Friesland, Aug. 13, 1836: died in 1909. A Dutch Orientalist, professor in the University of Leyden. He was especially distinguished as an Arabic scholar, and edited many texts in that language.

Goethals (gō'thalz), George Washington. Born at Brooklyn, June 29, 1858. An American engineer. He was graduated at West Point in 1880 and assigned to the Engineer Corps, becoming major in 1900 and colonel in 1909. He was chief of engineers during the war with Spain in 1898, and in 1907 was appointed chief engineer of the Panama Canal.

Gold Coast. In 1901 Ashanti was annexed by Great Britain and the administration placed in the hands of the governor of the Gold Coast, and in the same year the territories between the French and German possessions north of lat. 8° N. were put under British protection. Area of colony, Ashanti, and protectorate, 82,000 square miles. The name is also given to a considerably more extensive stretch of the coast.

Golden Hill. A lofty hill south of Port Arthur, Manchuria, rising from the sea on the northeasterly side of the entrance to the inner harbor. It is heavily fortified and played an important part in repelling the attacks of the Japanese fleet upon Port Arthur during the Russo-Japanese war.

Goldfield (gōld'fēld). A town (not incorporated in 1910), the county-seat of Esmeralda County, Nevada, about 40 miles south of Tonopah. There are gold-mines in the vicinity. Population, 4,838, (1910).

Goldsboro (gōldz'bur-ō). The county-seat of Wayne County, North Carolina, 78 miles north of Wilmington. It has cotton-mills, machine-shops, lumber-mills, furniture-factories, etc. A State normal school and the Eastern Insane Asylum are located here. Population, 6,107, (1910).

Golgi (gōl'jē), Camillo. Born at Corteno, Italy, July 7, 1844. An Italian pathologist, professor of general pathology and histology in the University of Pavia. In 1887 he made a study of the life-cycle of the malarial parasite. In 1906 he received the Nobel prize for works dealing with the anatomy of the nervous system.

Gollancz (gōl'änz), Israel. Born at London, 1864. An English scholar, educator, and author. He was graduated at Christ's College, Cambridge, in 1887; was university lecturer in English at Cambridge, 1896–1906; and has been professor of English literature and language, and dean of the faculty of arts, at King's College, London. He has been fellow and secretary of the British Academy since its foundation in 1902. Among his works are "Cynewulf's 'Christ'" (1892), "Exeter Book of Anglo-Saxon Poetry" (1895), "Hamlet in Iceland" (1898), etc. He is also editor of the "Temple Classics," "Temple Dramatists," "Temple Shakespeare," etc. He was appointed director of the Early English Text Society in 1910.

Goltermann (gōl'ter-măn), Georg Eduard. Born at Hannover, Aug. 19, 1824: died at Frankfort, Dec. 29, 1898. A German violoncellist, conductor, and composer. His teachers were Prell, the younger, and Menter, of Munich. He toured as a virtuoso 1850–52 and became music director at Würzburg in 1852, second conductor at the Stadt Theater, Frankfort, in 1853, and first conductor in 1874. Among his compositions the best known is a cello concerto.

Gompers (gom'pėrz), Samuel. Born in England, Jan. 27, 1850. An Anglo-American labor leader. He came to the United States in 1863. A cigar-maker by trade, in 1864 he helped to organize the Cigar-Makers' International Union, and has since attained foremost rank as an advocate and acting representative of organized labor. He was one of the founders of the American Federation of Labor, and has been its president almost continuously from the beginning. He is also the editor of the "American Federationist."

Goodale (gūd'āl), George Lincoln. Born at Saco, Maine, Aug. 3, 1839. An American botanist, professor of botany in Harvard University 1878–1909, and Fisher professor of natural history and director of the Botanic Garden. He was graduated at Amherst College in 1860; was professor at Bowdoin College 1869–72; and was assistant professor at Harvard 1873–78. His publications include many works on economic botany.

Good Hope, Cape of. 2. The name by which Cape Colony is known in the Union of South Africa.

Goodhue (gūd'hū), Bertram Grosvenor. Born at Pomfret, Conn., April 28, 1869. An American architect. He is a member of the firm of Cram, Goodhue, and Ferguson of New York and Boston, which designed the reconstruction and development of the United States Military Academy at West Point and built the Anglican cathedrals at Halifax, Nova Scotia, and Havana, Cuba, and the new edifice for St. Thomas's Church, New York city. He designed the "Altar Book."

Goodspeed (gūd'spēd), Arthur Willis. Born at Hopkinton, N. H., Aug. 8, 1860. An American physicist, professor in the University of Pennsylvania from 1904, best known for his studies in radiation (X-rays, etc.). He was graduated at Harvard in 1884, and became connected with the University of Pennsylvania, as instructor, in 1884.

Goodyear (gūd'yēr), William Henry. Born at New Haven, Conn., April 21, 1846. An American connoisseur and curator of art collections: son of Charles Goodyear (1800–60). He was graduated at Yale University in 1867 and studied at the universities of Heidelberg and Berlin. From 1881 to 1888 he was curator of the Metropolitan Museum in New York, and since 1899 has been curator of fine arts in the Museum of the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences. He has investigated numerous irregularities which he has discovered in nearly all styles of architecture, and which in many cases were intentional; and his measurements of monuments have modified greatly the accepted theories of architectural development. He has written "A History of Art" (1888), "Grammar of the Lotus" (1891), "Roman and Medieval Art" (1893), "Renaissance and Modern Art" (1894), etc.

Gopher State. A popular name of the State of Minnesota.

Gordon (gôr'don), Charles William: pseudonym Ralph Connor. Born at Indian Lands, Ontario, 1860. A Canadian clergyman, missionary, and author. From 1890 to 1894 he was engaged in missionary work among the miners and lumbermen in the Canadian Rocky Mountains; represented the Canadian Western Missions of the Presbyterian Church in Great Britain 1893–94; and since 1894 has been minister of St. Stephen's Church in Winnipeg. He is the author of "Black Rock" (1898), "The Sky Pilot" (1899), "Beyond the Marshes" (1901), "The Man from Glengarry" (1901), "Glengarry School Days" (1902), "The Prospector" (1904), "The Doctor" (1906), "Life of James Robertson" (1908), "The Recall of Love" (1910), etc.

Gordon (gôr'don), John Brown. Born in Upson County, Ga., Feb. 6, 1832: died at Miami, Fla., Jan. 9, 1904. An American soldier. He was educated at the University of Georgia; studied law and was admitted to the bar; served with distinction in the Confederate army in the Civil War, and rose to the rank of lieutenant-general; was a member of the national Democratic conventions of 1868 and 1872; was a member of the United States Senate 1873–80 and 1891–1897; and was governor of Georgia 1887–90. He was the author of "Reminiscences of the Civil War" (1903).

Gorgas (gôr'gas), William Crawford. Born at Mobile, Ala., October 3, 1854. A medical officer in the United States army, especially noted for his services in freeing Havana from yellow fever. He entered the medical corps of the United States army as first lieutenant in 1880, became captain in 1885 and major in 1898, and was promoted colonel by a special act of Congress in 1903 for his yellow-fever work. In 1904 he was appointed chief sanitary officer of the Panama Canal, and he has been a member of the Isthmian Canal Commission since March, 1907.

Gorky (gôr'ki), Maxim. The pseudonym of Aleksyei Maksimovitch Pyeshkof.

Gorman (gôr'man), Arthur Pue. Born in Howard County, Md., March 11, 1839: died at Washington, D. C., June 4, 1906. An American Democratic politician. He became a page in the United States Senate in 1852; was a member of the Maryland House of Delegates 1870–75 (speaker 1873–75); was State senator 1875–81; and was United States senator from Maryland 1881–99 and 1903–06.

Gorst (gôrst), Sir Eldon. Born in New Zealand, June 25, 1861: died at Castle Combe Manor, Chippenham, Wiltshire, July 12, 1911. A British statesman, successor to Lord Cromer as British agent and consul-general in Egypt in 1907. He was financial adviser to the Egyptian government 1898–1904, and assistant undersecretary of state for foreign affairs 1904–07.

Gortynian Inscription. An inscription found at Gortyna in Crete, a small part in 1862 and the rest in 1884. It is supposed to date from the fifth century B.C., although it contains references to the sixth and seventh centuries. It is of great value as giving what is practically a code of early Greek law and, to a considerable extent, its procedure.

Görz and Gradiska*. It has 6 representatives in the Austrian Reichsrath and has a landtag of 30 members.

Goschen*, George Joachim. His later works include "Life and Times of Georg Joachim Goschen" (1903) and "Essays and Addresses on Economic Questions" (1905).

Goshen (gō'shen). The county-seat of Elkhart County, Indiana, 99 miles southeast of Chicago. It is engaged in lumbering, agriculture, and the manufacture of flour, machinery, woolen goods, furniture, etc. Population, 8,514, (1910).

Goss (gos), Warren Lee. Born at Brewster, Mass., Aug. 19, 1838. An American author and editor. Among his works are "The Soldier's Story of Captivity at Andersonville" (1866), "Jed" (1889), "The Recollections of a Private" (1890), "Tom Clifton" (1892), "Jack Alden" (1895), and "In the Navy" (1898).

Gosse*, Edmund W. He has also written "Firdausi in Exile" (1885), "In Russet and Silver" (1894), "Collected Poems" (1896), "Hypolympia" (1901), "French Profiles" (1905), "Father and Son" (1907), "Henrik Ibsen" (1908), and "The Autumn Garden" (1908).

Götz (gĕts), Hermann. Born at Königsberg, Dec. 17, 1840: died near Zurich, Switzerland, Dec. 3, 1876. A German composer. He was a pupil of Stern, Von Bülow, and Ulrich at Berlin. His most celebrated opera, "The Taming of the Shrew" ("Der Widerspenstigen Zähmung"), was first performed at Mannheim, Oct. 11, 1874. He also wrote orchestral, piano, and chamber music.

Gould (göld), Elgin Ralston Lovell. Born at Oshawa, Ontario, Canada, Aug. 15, 1860. An American publicist and philanthropist. He studied at the Toronto and Johns Hopkins universities, and was professor of statistics in the University of Chicago 1895–96. In 1896 he became president of the City and Suburban Homes Company, New York, an organization for providing improved dwelling accommodations for wage-earners on terms allowing a measure of profit to investors. He was lecturer on political economy in Columbia University 1901–02, city chamberlain of New York 1902–1904, and has taken an active part in philanthropic and reform movements in that city. He is the author of "The Housing of the Working People," "Popular Control of the Liquor Traffic," "The Social Condition of Labor," "European Bureaus of Labor Statistics," "The Housing Problem in Great Cities," "Civic Reform and Social Progress," etc.

Gould (göld), Sir Francis Carruthers. Born at Barnstaple, Dec. 2, 1844. An English political caricaturist and editor. In 1879 he began illustrating the Christmas numbers of the London "Truth," and was subsequently connected with the "Pall Mall Gazette," and later with the "Westminster Gazette," of which he became assistant editor. He is especially noted for his political caricatures, which serve to further the ends of the Liberal party. His cartoons in the "Westminster Gazette" have been reprinted periodically in "Picture Politics." He has published also "Who Killed Cock Robin?" (1897), "Froissart's Modern Chronicles" (1902–03), etc. He was knighted in 1906.

Gourock (gō'rok). A seashore resort in Renfrewshire, Scotland, situated on the Firth of Clyde, 3 miles west of Greenock. Pop., 5,244.

Grabau (grä'bō), Amadeus William. Born at Cedarburgh, Wis., Jan. 9, 1870. An American geologist, professor of paleontology in Columbia University from 1905. He was adjunct professor there 1902–05.

Grafton (graf'ton). The county-seat of Taylor County, West Virginia, 64 miles southeast of Wheeling. It has railroad shops, glass-factories, planing-mills, etc. A national cemetery and a State reform school are located here. Population, 7,563, (1910).

Graham (grā'am), Ennis. The pseudonym of Mrs. Molesworth.

Grahame (grā'am), Kenneth. Born at Edinburgh, March 8, 1859. A British author, secretary of the Bank of England 1898–1908. He has written "Pagan Papers" (1893), "The Golden Age" (1895), "Dream Days" (1898), "The Headswoman" (1898), "The Wind in the Willows" (1908), etc.

Grahame-White (grā'am-hwīt'), Claude. Born at Southampton, England, Aug. 21, 1879. An English aviator. He learned to fly at the Blériot and Farman schools in France, obtaining there a pilot's license. At Pau, on Nov. 28, 1909, he made a record flight at the rate of 70 miles an hour. Competing with Paulhan in a 117-mile race from London to Manchester, April 28, 1910, he covered 107 miles, but was forced to descend. In a flight of 33 miles out over Boston Harbor, in September, 1910, he won a $10,000 prize. In a flight over Washington, D. C., on Oct. 14, 1910, he made a landing in a public street near the White House and a successful return flight to the Bennings race-track. He won the Gordon-Bennett international cup at Belmont Park, Long Island, on Oct. 29, 1910, with a Blériot monoplane, at a speed of about 61 miles an hour, flying 100 kilometers in 1 hr., 1 min., 4.74 sec.

Grand (grand), Sarah. The pseudonym of Mrs. McFall.

Grand Island (grand ī'land). The county-seat of Hall County, Nebraska, on the Platte River. Besides a large trade in live stock, the city has brick-works, sugar-factories, breweries, railroad shops, etc. Grand Island College (Baptist) and the State Soldiers' and Sailors' Home are located here. Population, 10,326, (1910).

Grand Isle (grand īl). A village in Jefferson Parish, Louisiana, in the southeastern part of the State, on the Gulf of Mexico. It has a wireless telegraph station.

Grand Marais (grand ma-rā'). A village in Cook County, Minnesota, incorporated in 1903. It is on Lake Superior, and has a wireless telegraph station. Population, 355, (1910).

Grand Rapids (grand rap'idz). The county-seat of Wood County, Wisconsin, on the Wisconsin River, 67 miles northwest of Oshkosh. It has lumber-mills, flour-mills, furniture-factories, etc. Population, 6,521, (1910).

Granite (gran'it). A city in Madison County, Illinois, about 5 miles northeast of East St. Louis. It has granite-ware factories, steel- and iron-works, etc. Population, 9,903, (1910).

Gran Malindang (grän mä-lēn'däng). A group of mountains in Misamis province, northern Mindanao, Philippine Islands. Height of loftiest peak, 8,580 feet.

Grant (grant), Frederick Dent. Born at St. Louis, Mo., May 30, 1850. An American soldier, son of Ulysses S. Grant: appointed major-general in the United States army in 1906. He was graduated at West Point in 1871 and resigned from the army in 1881; was minister to Austria-Hungary 1889–93; and was police commissioner of New York city 1895–97. On the outbreak of the war with Spain in 1898 he was appointed colonel and later brigadier-general of volunteers; served in Porto Rico; and in 1899 was sent to the Philippines, where he took part in various operations against the insurgents in Luzón. In 1901 he was appointed brigadier-general in the United States army. He commanded the Department of Texas 1902–04, the Department of the Lakes 1904, the Department of the East 1904–08, and again the Department of the Lakes 1908–.

Grant (grant), Robert. Born at Boston, Mass., Jan. 24, 1852. An American author and lawyer. Among his works are "The Reflections of a Married Man" (1892), "The Opinions of a Philosopher" (1893), "The Art of Living" (1895), "Unleavened Bread" (1900), "The Undercurrent" (1904), "The Orchid" (1905), "The Lawbreakers" (1906), "The Chippendales" (1909), etc.

Gras (grä), Félix. Born at Malemort, France, May 3, 1844: died at Avignon, March 4, 1901. A Provençal poet and novelist. He was a member of the brotherhood of Les Félibres, and succeeded his brother-in-law, its founder, Joseph Roumanille, as its head in 1891. He published, in Provençal, "Li Carbounié" (1876), "Toloza" (1881), "Roumancero prouvençal," a collection (1882), "Lí Papalino" (1891). In 1898 the novel "The Reds of the Midi" was first published in an English translation by Mrs. T. A. Janvier; "The Terror" and "The White Terror" (1899) were also published in Provençal, French, and English.

Grassi (grä'sē), Giovanni Battista. Born March 27, 1856. An Italian anatomist and physiologist, professor of comparative anatomy in the University of Rome. He is especially noted for his investigations of the sources and methods of malarial infection and of similar diseases. He was made a senator of the kingdom of Italy in 1908.

Grassmarket. A wide thoroughfare in Edinburgh, near the castle and the Cowgate. It was for a long time the place of execution and was the scene of the Porteous Riots in 1736.

Grau (grou), Maurice. Born at Brünn, Austria, Dec. 20, 1849: died March 14, 1907. An American operatic manager. He organized the Kellogg English Opera Company in 1873; became managing director of the Maurice Grau Opera Company and manager of the Metropolitan Opera House (New York) in 1897; and retired in 1903.

Grave (grāv), Caswell. Born at Monrovia, Ind., Jan. 24, 1870. An American naturalist, associate professor of zoölogy in Johns Hopkins University from 1906. He was instructor in invertebrate zoölogy at Woods Hole in 1901, and director of the Beaufort Laboratory of the Bureau of Fisheries 1902–06.

Graves (grāvz), Charles Hinman. Born at Springfield, Mass., Aug. 14, 1839. An American diplomatist. He served throughout the Civil War, and in 1867 was brevetted lieutenant-colonel. He was a member of the Minnesota Senate 1875–78, and of the House of Representatives 1889–91; was State Capitol commissioner of Minnesota 1893–1905; and was appointed minister to Sweden in 1906.

Graves (grāvz), Henry Solon. Born at Marietta, Ohio, May 3, 1871. An American forester, chief of the United States Forest Service from 1910. He was professor of forestry and director of the Department of Forestry in Yale University 1900–10. He has published "The White Pine" (1896), "Forest Mensuration" (1906), etc.

Gray (grā), George. Born at New Castle, Del., May 4, 1840. An American statesman and jurist. He was graduated at Princeton in 1859; studied law at Harvard; was admitted to the bar in 1863; was attorney-general of Delaware 1879–85; was United States senator (Democratic) from Delaware 1885–99; and has been judge of the United States Circuit Court, third judicial circuit, since 1899. He was a member of the American and Spanish peace commission at Paris and of the American and British joint high commission at Quebec in 1898; and was appointed a member of the permanent court of arbitration under the Hague convention in 1900. He was also president of the anthracite coal strike commission appointed by President Roosevelt in 1902.

Gray (grā), Robert. Born at Tiverton, R. I., 1755: died at Charleston, S. C., 1806. An American trader and explorer. In 1787–90 he made a voyage around the world, in command of the sloop Washington, which, together with the ship Columbia, had been fitted out for trading with the natives of the northwest coast. On a second voyage in 1791 he discovered the Columbia River, which he named after his own vessel.

Gray's Harbor. A bay entering the coast of Chehalis County, Washington, from the Pacific Ocean and receiving the waters of the Chehalis River.

Great Bible. See under Coverdale.

Greater Punxsutawney (grā'tėr pungk-sutâ'ni). A borough in Jefferson County, Pennsylvania, 43 miles northwest of Altoona, in a coal and iron region. Population, 9,058, (1910).

Great Sandy Desert. An extensive desert region lying in the central and northern parts of Western Australia.

Great Victoria Desert. An extensive desert region in the southeastern part of Western Australia.

Greco (grā'kō), El. See ★Theotocopuli.

Greely, Adolphus Washington. He was appointed commander of the northern division of the United States army in September, 1906. He retired in 1908. His works include "American Weather" (1888), "American Explorers" (1893), "Handbook of Arctic Discoveries" (1897), and "Handbook of Alaska" (1909).

Green (grēn), Andrew Haswell. Born at Worcester, Mass., Oct. 6, 1820: died at New York, Nov. 13, 1903. An American lawyer, the originator of the plan of consolidating New York, Brooklyn, and the adjacent cities in the one city of "Greater" New York, which was carried out in 1897. He practised law in New York, was active in the city government in several capacities (most notably as controller 1871–76), and was identified with many business, public, and philanthropic enterprises.

Green (grēn), Thomas Hill. Born at Birkin, Yorkshire, April 7, 1836: died at Oxford, March 26, 1882. An English philosopher. He was educated at Rugby and at Balliol College, Oxford, and taught at Oxford, first as tutor, and 1878–82 as professor of moral philosophy. He was the leading British exponent of the doctrines of Hegel, and exerted a powerful influence on the philosophical thought of his time. Of his published works the most important, the "Prolegomena to Ethics," appeared in 1883.

Greenaway (grēn'a-wā), Kate. Born in London, March 17, 1846: died at Hampstead, London, Nov. 6, 1901. An English water-color painter and illustrator. She enjoyed great popularity as an illustrator of children's stories. Her figures were dressed in a peculiar fashion, based on the Empire style in France, which became known as the "Kate Greenaway style."

Greene (grēn), Francis Vinton. Born at Providence, R. I., June 27, 1850. An American soldier, engineer, and writer, appointed major-general of volunteers in 1898. He was graduated at West Point in 1870; was military attaché of the United States legation at St. Petersburg 1877–78, and was with the Russian army at the battles of Shipka, Plevna, and Sophia, and in other engagements; was engineer of public works in Washington, D. C., 1879–80; and was professor of military engineering at West Point 1885–86. During the war with Spain in 1898 he served in the Philippines, commanding the American forces in the battle of Malate, and took part in the capture of Manila. Later he was in command at Havana. In 1903 he was police commissioner of the city of New York. He has written "The Russian Army and its Campaigns in Turkey" (1879), "Army Life in Russia" (1881), "The Mississippi Campaigns of the Civil War" (1882), "Life of Nathanael Greene" (1893), "The Revolutionary War and the Policy of the United States" (Vol. I., 1911), etc.

Greenland*. Peary explored the northern ice-cap in 1891–92 (during which expedition he determined the insularity of Greenland), and visited the same region 1893–1895 and 1900, in the latter year rounding the northern end of the island, at that time supposed to be the most northerly land in the world. During 1906–08 the northeast coast was surveyed by the Mylius-Erichsen (Danish) expedition, which connected with Peary's explorations and completed the mapping of the island.

Greensboro (grēnz'bur-ō). A city, the capital of Guilford County, North Carolina. It contains a female college, the State Normal and Industrial College, Bennett College (colored), and the Agricultural and Mechanical College (colored), and has manufactures of cotton goods, flannels, carpets, machinery, etc. Population, 15,895, (1910).

Greensburg (grēnz'bėrg). The county-seat of Decatur County, Indiana, 47 miles southeast of Indianapolis. It has flour-mills, stone-quarries, and manufactories of chairs, carriages, etc. Population, 5,420, (1910).

Greensburg (grēnz'bėrg). The county-seat of Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania, 26 miles southeast of Pittsburg. It is situated in a coal and gas region, and has iron- and brass-works, glass-factories, flour-mills, etc. Population, 13,012, (1910).

Greenville (grēn'vil). The county-seat of Washington County, Mississippi, on the Mississippi River 73 miles north of Vicksburg. It is the cotton-trading center for the surrounding region, and has cotton-seed oil mills, lumber-mills, etc. Population, 9,610, (1910).

Greenville (grēn'vil). The county-seat of Darke County, Ohio, 52 miles southwest of Lima. It has tobacco and lumber interests, machine-shops, etc. Population, 6,237, (1910).

Greenville (grēn'vil). A borough in Mercer County, Pennsylvania, 37 miles west of Oil City. It has coal-mines, machine-shops, steel-works, flour-mills, etc., and is the seat of Thiel College (Lutheran). Population, 5,909, (1910).

Greenville (grēn'vil). The county-seat of Hunt County, Texas, 50 miles northeast of Dallas. It is important as a cotton-market, and has cotton-compresses, cotton-seed oil mills, etc. Burleson College is located here. Population, 8,850, (1910).

Greenwood (grēn'wůd). The county-seat of Leflore County, Mississippi, 90 miles northeast of Vicksburg. Population, 5,836, (1910).

Greenwood (grēn'wůd). The county-seat of Greenwood County, South Carolina, in the western part of the State. It has cotton-seed oil mills, spool-factories, etc. Population, 6,614, (1910).

Greer (grēr), David Hummell. Born at Wheeling, W. Va., March 20, 1844. An American bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church. He was ordained priest in 1868, and was rector at Covington, Kentucky, 1868–71; of Grace Church, Providence, Rhode Island, 1871–88; and of St. Bartholomew's Church, New York city, 1888–1904. He was consecrated bishop coadjutor of the diocese of New York in 1904, and became bishop in 1908.

Gregory (greg'ō-ri), Caspar René. Born at Philadelphia, Nov. 6, 1846. An American theologian and New Testament scholar. He studied at the University of Leipsic, and became professor of theology there in 1889. He is the literary executor of Tischendorf, and has published various works in New Testament criticism.

Gregory (greg'ō-ri), Herbert Ernest. Born at Middleville, Mich., Oct. 15, 1869. An American physiographer, professor of geology in Yale University from 1904. He has been a geologist of the United States Geological Survey since 1909.

Grenfell (gren'fel), Wilfred Thomason Born Feb. 28, 1865. An English physician and missionary, superintendent of the Labrador medical mission of the Royal National Mission to Deep Sea Fishermen. He fitted out the first hospital ship for North Sea fisheries and began his work on the Labrador coast in 1892. He has written "Vikings of To-day," "The Harvest of the Sea," "Off the Rocks," "Labrador," etc.

Grévin (grā-vaṅ'), Alfred. Born at Épineuil, France, 1827: died at Saint-Mandé, France, 1892. A French illustrator and caricaturist. He devoted himself wholly to the humorous illustration of Parisian life, creating a personal style which has been much imitated. In the "Journal Amusant," "Journal pour Rire," and "Charivari" he published more than 4,000 designs. In 1882 he founded in Paris a museum for the exhibition of waxworks which now bears his name.

Grey (grā), Albert Henry George, fourth Earl Grey. Born Nov. 28, 1851. An English statesman, grandson of the second Earl Grey. He was educated at Harrow and Trinity College, Cambridge, and succeeded his uncle, the third Earl Grey, in 1894. He was a Liberal member of the House of Commons 1880–86; was administrator of Rhodesia 1896–97; has been director of the British South Africa Company from 1898; was lord-lieutenant of Northumberland 1899–1904; and has been governor-general and commander-in-chief in Canada from 1904.

Grey (grā), Sir Edward. Born April 25, 1862. An English Liberal statesman. He was educated at Winchester and at Balliol College, Oxford, and succeeded to the baronetcy in 1882. He has represented Berwick-on-Tweed in the House of Commons since 1885; was under-secretary for foreign affairs 1892–95; and has been secretary for foreign affairs from December, 1905.

Gridley (grid'li), Charles Vernon. Born at Logansport, Ind., June 23, 1845: died at Kobe, Japan, June 4, 1898. An American naval officer. He was appointed acting midshipman in the United States navy in 1860, and was promoted captain in 1897. In the battle of Manila Bay, May 1, 1898, he commanded the Olympia, flagship of Commodore (later Admiral) Dewey, and received the latter's order to open fire.

Griffenfeldt (grif'en-felt), Peder Schumacher, Count. Born at Copenhagen, Aug. 24, 1635: died March 12, 1699. A Danish statesman. He belonged to a wealthy middle-class family, and was educated in Copenhagen until 1654, when he set out to travel and study in Germany, the Netherlands, England, France, and Spain. He returned to Copenhagen in 1662, became royal librarian in 1663, and rapidly advanced in favor and rank until in 1673 he was created chancellor and count. The three years of his administration strengthened the royal power and accomplished much for the kingdom, but won him many enemies. In 1676 he was charged with high treason and condemned to death, but on the scaffold his sentence was commuted to imprisonment for life, and he regained his freedom only in 1698, the year before his death.

Griggs (grigz), John William. Born at Newton, N. J., July 10, 1849. An American lawyer and cabinet officer. He was graduated at Lafayette College in 1868; was admitted to the bar in 1871; was a Republican member of the New Jersey State Assembly 1876–77; was State senator 1882–88, and president of the New Jersey Senate in 1886; was governor of New Jersey 1896–98; and was attorney-general 1898–1901. He is a member of the Hague permanent court of arbitration.

Gripenberg (grē'pen-berg), Oscar Kasimirovitch. Born 1838. A Russian general. He served in the Crimea and in the Polish insurrection of 1863. In the Turkestan campaigns of 1867 and 1868 he gained the cross of St. George and a sword of honor, and was appointed aide-de-camp to the czar. He commanded the Moscow life-guards during the Russo-Turkish war 1877–78, receiving the rank of major-general for his services; was given charge of the sixth army corps and appointed to military command at Vilna in 1902; and commanded the second Manchurian army in the Russo-Japanese war 1904–05.

Griscom (gris'kom), Lloyd Carpenter. Born at Riverton, N. J., Nov. 4, 1872. An American diplomatist. He was secretary of legation at Constantinople 1899, and chargé d'affaires 1899–1901; minister to Persia 1901–02; ambassador to Brazil 1906–07; and ambassador to Italy 1907–09.

Groseilliers (grō-sā-yā'), Sieur des. See ★Chouart.

Gros Ventres (grō vänt'r). 1. The northernmost subdivision of the Arapaho, an Algonquin tribe, now living in northern Montana. The Gros Ventres have separated from the body of the Arapaho and formed a tribal community by themselves.—2. A tribe belonging to the Siouan family.

Gruber (grö'bėr), Max. Born at Vienna, July 6, 1853. A German physiologist, professor of hygiene and bacteriology in the University of Munich from 1902. He is best known for his discovery in 1896 of the specific agglutination of bacteria by the blood-serum of animals which have been immunized with them, a discovery of great importance in serum-diagnosis.

Grünwald (grün'vält), Battle of. A battle fought July 15, 1410, near Tannenberg, Prussia, in which the Polish and Lithuanian forces won a decisive victory over the knights of the Teutonic Order, and thus preserved the integrity of the kingdom of Poland.

Grützmacher (grüts'mäch-er), Friedrich Wilhelm Ludwig. Born at Dessau, March 1, 1832: died at Dresden, Feb. 23, 1903. A German violoncellist, teacher, and composer. In 1848 he went to Leipsic as a member of a small orchestra, at once attracted the attention of David, and was subsequently first cellist at the Gewandhaus (1849–60) and teacher in the Conservatory. In 1860 he went to Dresden as cello virtuoso of the court orchestra. Besides pieces and valuable studies for his instrument, he wrote orchestral and chamber music, piano compositions, and songs.

Guanacaste (gwä-nä-käs'tä). A province in the northwestern part of Costa Rica. It has large forests with valuable trees, and open grazing-lands. Cattle-raising is one of the important industries. Population, 31,635.

Guanacaste (gwä-nä-käs'tä). See ★Liberia.

Guards' Club. A London club established in 1813. Its membership is limited to past and present officers of four regiments of Guards. Its house is at 70 Pall Mall.

Guatemala*. In December, 1907, the republic signed a treaty with the other Central American states establishing a court of arbitration for the settlement of disputes. (See ★Central American Arbitration Treaty.) In 1908 the transcontinental railway from Puerto Barrios on the Atlantic to San José on the Pacific was opened.

Guayama (gwi-ä'mä). 1. A department in the east-central and southern part of Porto Rico. It is bounded by San Juan and Humacao on the north; Humacao on the east; the Caribbean Sea on the south; and Ponce on the west. Capital, Guayama. Area, 561 square miles.

2. A city, the capital of Guayama, situated in the southeastern part of the province. Population, municipality, 17,379; urban, 8,321, (1910).

Gubat (gö'bät). A municipality of Sorsogón province, southeastern Luzón, in the Philippine Islands. Civilized population, 15,590.

Gubat (gö'bät), Port. A bay and harbor on the eastern coast of Sorsogón province, Luzón, safe during the southwest monsoon for vessels not exceeding 15 feet draft.

Gubernatis (gö-bär-nä'tēs), Comte Angelo de. Born at Turin, Italy, April 7, 1840. An Italian Oriental scholar, author, critic, and dramatist, editor of the "Revue Internationale." In 1863 he was appointed professor of Sanskrit and comparative literature at the Instituto degli Studii Superiori at Florence. He was for a time a disciple of the anarchist Bakúnin, and gave up his position at Florence in 1865 in order to follow out his views, but resumed it in 1867. In 1891 he went to the University of Rome. He founded "L'Italia Letteraria" (1862), "La Rivista Orientale" (1867), "La Civiltà Italiana" (1869), and "La Rivista Europea" (1869), and has been a contributor to various English and French reviews. Among his works are "Sâvitri" (1877), "Zoological Mythology" (1872: written in English), "Storia universale della letteratura" (1882–85), "Dizionario biografico degli scrittori contemporanei" (1879–80), "Dizionario degli artisti italiani viventi" (1889–), "La Hongrie politique et sociale" (1885), "Peregrinazioni indiane" (1887), "L'Argentina ricordi a letture" (1898), "Su le orme di Dante" (1901), etc.

Guiangas (gē-än'gäs). A pagan people of southeastern Mindanao, by some regarded as Indonesian. Also Guangas.

Guilmant (gēl-mäṅ'), Félix Alexandre. Born at Boulogne, March 12, 1837: died at Meudon, April, 1911. A noted French organist and composer. For many years he was organist at the Church of the Trinity in Paris. He published many works for the organ, a symphony for organ and orchestra, seven sonatas, and vocal music. He had great influence as a teacher, and among his pupils are many American players.

Guimarás (gē-mä-räs'). An island southeast of Panay, in the Philippine Islands. It belongs to Iloilo province, from the main part of which it is separated by Iloilo Strait. Area, 228 square miles. Population, 21,306.

Guimarás (gē-mä-räs') Strait. The strait which separates the island of Negros from Guimarás and Panay islands, in the Philippines. In the southern part of the strait are several small islands.

Guinanes (gē-nä'nās), or Guinaanes. A head-hunting Malay people of northern Luzón.

Guiney (gwī'ni), Louise Imogen. Born at Boston, Jan. 7, 1861. An American poet and essayist. Her books of verse are "Songs at the Start" (1884), "The White Sail" (1887), "A Roadside Harp" (1893), "The Martyr's Idyl and Shorter Poems" (1899), and "England and Yesterday" (1898). She has also written "Brownies and Bogles" (1888); essays entitled "Goose Quill Papers" (1885), "A Little English Gallery" (1894), and "Patrins" (1897); and various biographical studies, etc.

Guinicelli (gwē-nē-chel'lē), Guido. Born at Bologna: died in 1276. An Italian poet. In 1274 he was banished from Bologna with others of the Ghibelline party, and died in exile. Dante, in the "Purgatorio," addresses him as the father of Italian poets.

Guiteras (gē'te-räs) y Gener, Juan. Born at Matanzas, Cuba, Jan. 4, 1852. A Cuban physician, professor of general pathology and tropical medicine at Havana from 1900. He is best known for his work in eradicating yellow fever. During the Santiago campaign (1898) he served as yellow-fever expert on the staff of General Shafter. From 1889 to 1899 he was professor of pathology in the University of Pennsylvania.

Gulf of Davao. See ★Davao, Gulf of.

Gulf of Ragay. See ★Ragay, Gulf of.

Gulfport (gulf'pōrt). A city in the southern part of Harrison County, Mississippi, on the Gulf of Mexico. It has manufactures, lumber-mills, etc., and exports lumber, sawed and hewn timber, and naval stores. Population, 6,386, (1910).

Gulf State, The. A name given to Florida because it forms the eastern boundary of the Gulf of Mexico.

Gulick (gū'lik), John Thomas. Born in Kauai, Hawaiian Islands, March 13, 1832. An American missionary and biologist, best known for his important contributions to the theory of evolution. He is the son of a missionary in the Hawaiian Islands; was engaged in mining in California in 1850; was graduated at Williams College in 1859; and was a missionary in China and Japan 1864–99. Among his scientific papers are "The Diversity of Evolution under one Set of External Conditions" (1872), "Divergent Evolution through Cumulative Segregation" (1887), "Intensive Segregation" (1889), "Evolution, Racial and Habitudinal" (1905), etc.

Gumplówiz (gum-plō'wich), Ludwig. Born at Cracow, Austria, March 9, 1838: died at Gratz, Aug. 19, 1909. An Austrian jurist and economist, professor in the University of Gratz 1882–1907. He has published "Philosophisches Staatsrecht" (1877: 2d edition as "Allgemeines Staatsrecht," 1897), "Der Rassenkampf" (1883), "Grundriss der Soziologie" (1885), "Soziologie und Politik" (1892), "Die soziologische Staatsidee" (1892), "Soziologische Essays" (1899), etc.

Gunsaulus (gun-sâ'lus), Frank Wakely. Born at Chesterville, Ohio, Jan. 1, 1856. An American clergyman, educator, author, and poet, president of Armour Institute of Technology since 1892. He was graduated at the Ohio Wesleyan University in 1875; was ordained a Methodist minister, preaching four years; and later was pastor of various Congregational churches. He was divinity lecturer at Yale in 1890 and professorial lecturer at the University of Chicago 1896–1903; and is lecturer at the Chicago Theological Seminary. Among his works are "The Transfiguration of Christ" (1886), "Monk and Knight" (1891), "Phidias and Other Poems" (1891), "Songs of Night and Day" (1895), "Gladstone" (1898), "The Man of Galilee" (1899), and "Paths to Power" (1905).

Guthrie (guth'ri), Sir James. Born June 10, 1859. A Scottish portrait-painter. He was elected to the Royal Scottish Academy in 1892, and became its president in 1902. He was knighted in 1903.

Guttenberg (gut'en-bèrg). A town in Hudson County, New Jersey, on the Hudson River opposite New York and just above Weehawken. It has a brewery, chemical works, etc. Population, 5,647, (1910).

Guy (gī), Seymour Joseph. Born at Greenwich, England, Jan. 16, 1824: died at New York, Dec. 20, 1910. An Anglo-American painter. He studied art in London, and came to the United States in 1854. His principal works are portraits and genre pictures. He was elected a national academician in 1865.

Guyot (gē-ō'), Yves. Born at Dinan, Côtes-du-Nord, France, Sept. 6, 1843. A French publicist, political editor of "Le Siècle" 1892–1903. He was minister of public works 1889–92. Among his publications are "Études sur les doctrines sociales du Christianisme" (1873), "Études de physiologie sociale" (1882–85), "La morale" (1883), "La science économique" (1881), "La tyrannie socialiste" (1893), "L'Évolution politique et sociale de l'Espagne" (1899), "Dictionnaire du commerce, de l'industrie, et de la banque" (1898–1901: with A. Raffalovitch), "La comédie protectioniste" (1905), "La démocratie individualiste" (1907), "Le commerce" (1909), etc. He became editor of the "Journal des économistes" in 1909.

Gwendoline. An opera by Chabrier (words by Catulle Mendès), first produced at Brussels in 1886.

Gyldén (gül-dān'), Johan August Hugo. Born at Helsingfors, Finland, May 29, 1841: died at Stockholm, Nov. 9, 1896. An eminent astronomer, director of the observatory and astronomer of the Academy at Stockholm 1871–96. From 1863 to 1865 he was connected with the observatory at Pulkowa. He published "Traité analytique des orbites absolues des huit planètes principales" (1893), etc.

Haakon (hâ'kŏn), or Hakon, VII. (Christian Frederick Charles (Carl) George Valdemar Axel). Born at Charlottenlund, Denmark, August 3, 1872. King of Norway, second son of Frederick VIII., king of Denmark. He married Maud, third daughter of Edward VII., king of Great Britain and Ireland, July 22, 1896. He was elected king of Norway, November 18, 1905, and crowned June 22, 1906.

Haberl (hä'berl), Franz Xaver. Born at Oberellenbach, Bavaria, April 12, 1840: died at Regensburg, Sept. 7, 1910. A German director, teacher, and editor of music. He took orders in 1862, but turned his attention to church music, in connection with which he held positions at Passau, Rome, and Regensburg successively. In 1874 he founded at Regensburg the celebrated "Church Music School," and in 1879 the "Palestrina Society," for completing an edition of the works of that master. He published numerous works on church music, of which his "Magister Choralis" (1864) passed through twelve editions and was translated into several languages.

Habicht*, Ludwig. His later works include "Das Grafenhaus" (1896), "Die Erbschaft" (1897), "Widersprüche" (1899), "Das Geheimnis des Waldes" (1900), "Besondere Kennzeichen" (1902), "Wahrheit" (1902), etc.

Haddon (had'on), Alfred Cort. Born at London, May 24, 1855. An English anthropologist, lecturer in ethnology at the University of Cambridge from 1900. He was professor of zoology in the Royal College of Science, Dublin, 1880–1901, and lecturer in ethnology at the University of London 1904–09. He has written "Evolution in Art," etc.

Hadley*, Arthur Twining. In 1907 he was appointed Theodore Roosevelt professor of American history and institutions at Berlin. He has also written "An Account of the Relations between Private Property and Public Welfare" (1896), "The Education of the American Citizen" (1901), "Freedom and Responsibility" (1903), "Standards of Public Morality" (1907), etc.

Hadley (had'li), Henry Kimball. Born at Somerville, Mass., Dec. 20, 1871. An American composer and conductor. He studied with Chadwick in Boston and with Mandyczewski and Dvořák in Vienna. His symphony "The Four Seasons" (1902) took the Paderewski and New England Conservatory prizes. He conducted the opera at Mainz in 1908, and was conductor of the Seattle Symphony Orchestra in 1909. He has composed symphonies, overtures, operas, and songs.

Hadow (had'ō), William Henry. Born at Ebrington, England, Dec. 27, 1859. A writer on music and student of philosophy, principal of Armstrong College 1909–. He has written "A Croatian Composer: Notes toward the Study of Joseph Haydn" (1887), "Studies in Modern Music" (1892, 1894), "A Primer of Sonata Form" (1896), and "The Viennese Period" in "The Oxford History of Music," of which he was the editor (1904). He was for many years fellow and tutor of Worcester College, Oxford.

Haeckel*, Ernst Heinrich. His later works include "Der Monismus. Glaubensbekenntniss eines Naturforschers" (1892: 10th ed., 1900), "Systematische Phylogenie" (1894–96), "Die Amphorideen und Cystoideen" (1896), "Über unsere gegenwärtige Kenntniss vom Ursprung des Menschen" (1898), and "Die Welträtsel" (1899–1904). He has also written "Kunstformen der Natur" (1899), "Indischen Reisebriefe" (1883), and "Aus Insulinde" (1901), and contributed many papers to the reports (1881–89) of the Challenger Expedition.

Haffkine (häf'kin), Waldemar Mordecai Wolff. Born at Odessa, Russia, March 15 (N. S.), 1860. A Russian-English physiologist, bacteriologist with the Indian government from 1893. He was assistant professor of physiology in the medical school at Geneva, Switzerland, 1888–89, and an assistant of Pasteur 1889–93. He has published numerous papers on bacteriology.

Hagen (hä'gen). In the "Nibelungenlied," the son of Alberich and the half-brother of Gunther. He is induced by Brunhild to slay Siegfried.

Haggard*, Henry Rider. He has also written "Black Heart and White Heart" (1900), "Lysbeth" (1901), "A Winter Pilgrimage" (1901), "Stella Fregelius" (1903), "The Brethren" (1904), "Ayesha" (1905), "A Gardener's Year" (1905), "The Poor and the Land" (1905), "Fair Margaret" (1907), "The Yellow God" (1909), "Regeneration" (1910), "Rural Denmark" (1911), etc.

Hagonoy (ä-gō-noi'). A municipality of Bulacán province, in the southern part of Luzón, Philippine Islands. Civilized population, 21,304.

Hague Tribunal, The. See ★Peace Conference.

Hai-cheng (hī-cheng'). A town in Manchuria, situated on the Southern Manchurian Railway about twenty miles southeast of Niu-chuang.

Halcón (häl-kōn'). A mountain in north-central Mindoro, Philippine Islands. Height, 8,800 feet.

Haldane (hâl'dān), Richard Burdon, first Viscount Haldane. Born in Scotland, 1856. A British author and Liberal statesman. He was educated in the universities of Edinburgh and Göttingen; was called to the bar in 1879; was appointed queen's counsel in 1890. He sat for Haddingtonshire in the House of Commons 1885–1911, was vice-president of the Liberal Imperialist League in 1901, and was appointed secretary of state for war, Dec., 1905. He was created a viscount in March, 1911. He has published "Essays in Philosophical Criticism" (1883: with Andrew Seth), "Education and Empire" (1902), "The Pathway to Reality" (1903), "Army Reform, and other Addresses" (1907), etc.

Hale*, Edward Everett. He was appointed chaplain of the United States Senate in 1903. His later works include "A New England Boyhood" (1893), "How to Live" (1902), "Memories of a Hundred Years" (1902), "We, the People" (1903), "Foundation of the Republic" (1907), etc.

Hale (hāl), Eugene. Born at Turner, Maine, June 9, 1836. An American statesman, United States senator (Republican) from Maine 1881–1911. He was a member of Congress 1869–79.

Hale (hāl), George Ellery. Born at Chicago, June 29, 1868. An eminent American astrophysicist, director of the Solar Observatory of the Carnegie Institution at Mt. Wilson, California, from 1904. He was associate professor (1892–97) and professor (1897–1905) of astrophysics in the University of Chicago, and director of the Yerkes Observatory from its inception in 1892 until 1905. He has published numerous papers on astrophysical topics, "Study of Stellar Evolution" (1908), etc., and has edited "The Astrophysical Journal" from 1895. He invented the spectroheliograph.

Hale (hāl), Horatio. Born at Newport, N. H., May 3, 1817: died at Clinton, Ont., Dec. 29, 1896. An American ethnologist, son of Sarah J. Hale (1790–1879). He was graduated at Harvard in 1837; accompanied the Wilkes exploring expedition as philologist 1838–42; was admitted to the Chicago bar in 1855; and subsequently settled in Canada, where he practised law and pursued the study of ethnology. He published "Ethnography and Philology" (1846: 7th volume of the Wilkes Expedition Reports), "The Iroquois Book of Rites" (1883), "Indian Migrations as Evidenced by Language" (1883), "Report on the Blackfoot Tribes" (1885), and many monographs, including "The Origin of Language and the Antiquity of Speaking Man."

Hale (hāl), Lucretia Peabody. Born at Boston, Mass., Sept. 2, 1820: died there, June 12, 1900. An American writer and social worker, sister of Edward Everett Hale. Her best known books are "Peterkin Papers" (1880) and "The Last of the Peterkins" (1886).

Hale (hāl), Philip. Born at Norwich, Vt., March 5, 1854. An American musical critic and organist. He was graduated from Yale University in 1876 and was admitted to the New York bar. His musical studies were in Europe (1882–87). He was critic of the Boston "Post" 1890–91, of the Boston "Journal" 1891–1903, and of the Boston "Herald" from 1903. He is the editor of the program books of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Half Moon, The. One of the two ships (the other being the Good Hope) with which Henry Hudson set out from Amsterdam, April 4, 1609 (N. S.), to find a passage through the Waigatz, or Kara Strait, south of Nova Zembla. On reaching Nova Zembla, his crew forced him to turn back; the Good Hope probably returned to Holland; and in the Half Moon he crossed the Atlantic to the coast of Nova Scotia. He coasted as far south as Chesapeake Bay, and then northward, reaching Sandy Hook on Sept. 4. He explored, during September, as far as the site of Albany, the river later named for him, reaching the sea again on Oct. 4. He reached England on Nov. 7.

Hall (hâl), Charles Cuthbert. Born at New York, Sept. 3, 1852: died there, March 25, 1908. An American Presbyterian theologian, president of Union Theological Seminary (New York city) from 1897. He was graduated at Williams College in 1872; studied at Union Theological Seminary and in London and Edinburgh; and held pastorates in Newburg (1875–77) and Brooklyn (1887–97), New York. Among his writings are "Qualifications for Ministerial Power" (1894), "Christian Belief Interpreted by Christian Experience" (1905), "Christ and the Eastern Soul" (1909), "The Silver Cup" (1909), etc. He was twice (1902–03 and 1906–07) appointed Barrows lecturer, of the University of Chicago, to India and the Far East, and was Noble lecturer at Harvard in 1906.

Hall (hâl), Granville Stanley. Born at Ashfield, Mass., Feb. 1, 1846. An American educator and psychologist. He graduated from Williams College in 1867; studied for several years abroad; was professor of psychology at Antioch College 1872–76; lectured on psychology at Harvard and Williams 1880–81; and was lecturer and professor at Johns Hopkins University 1881–88. Since then he has been professor of psychology and education and president in Clark University. He is editor of the "American Journal of Psychology," of the "Pedagogical Seminary," and of the "American Journal of Religious Psychology and Education." His publications include "Aspects of German Culture" (1881), "Hints Toward a Select and Descriptive Bibliography of Education" (1886: with J. M. Mansfield), "Contents of Children's Minds on Entering School" (1894), "The Story of a Sand Pile" (1897), "Adolescence" (1904), "Youth" (1907), "Educational Problems" (1911), etc.

Hall (hâl), John. Born at Market Hill, County Armagh, Ireland, July 31, 1829: died at Bangor, Ireland, Sept. 17, 1898. A noted Presbyterian minister. He was of Scotch parentage, although born and educated in Ireland. In 1852 he became pastor of a Presbyterian church in Armagh, in 1858 was called to Dublin, and in 1867 accepted the pastorate of the First Presbyterian Church, New York city, which he held until his death. He was widely known as a preacher and lecturer, and as a writer on religious subjects.

Hallé (hăl'ā), Lady. See Norman-Neruda.

Hallé (hăl'ā), Sir Charles. Born at Hagen, Westphalia, April 11, 1819: died at Manchester, England, Oct. 25, 1895. A German-English conductor and pianist. In 1836 he went to Paris, where he studied with Kalkbrenner and became the friend of Chopin, Liszt, Berlioz, and Cherubini. He went to England in 1848; founded (1857) the Manchester Orchestra, which he directed; conducted opera and musical festivals; and gave piano recitals. He was knighted in 1888, and in the same year married Wilma Neruda.

Hallgrimsson (hăl'grim-sŏn), Jonas. Born in Iceland in 1807: died in 1844. An Icelandic author. He studied at the University of Copenhagen; traveled through Iceland for scientific purposes 1837–42; wrote on geological subjects; and published tales and miscellaneous articles. He is best known as a poet, the head of a school of Icelandic lyric poetry, and for his efforts to purify the language in literary use.

Hallock (hal'ŏk), Charles. Born at New York, March 13, 1834. An American journalist, author, and naturalist. He was editor of the New Haven "Register" 1855–56, of the New York "Journal of Commerce" 1856–61, and of "Forest and Stream" (which he founded) 1873–80; and was associate editor of "Nature's Realm" 1889–90, and of the "Northwestern Field and Stream" 1896–97. He founded the International Association for the Protection of Game in 1874, and in 1875 formulated uniform game laws, known as the "Hallock Code," used as a basis for legislation in many States. Among his publications are "Fishing Tourist" (1873), "Camp Life in Florida" (1875), "Our New Alaska" (1886), "The Salmon Fisher" (1890), "Luminous Bodies Here and Hereafter" (1906), and "Peerless Alaska" (1908).

Hallock (hal'ŏk), William. Born at Milton, N. Y., Aug. 14, 1857. An American physicist and educator, professor of physics in Columbia University from 1902 and dean of the faculty of pure science 1906–09. He was graduated at Columbia in 1879 and was adjunct professor there 1892–1902. He has published numerous papers upon physical and astrophysical topics.

Hall of Fame. A building on University Heights, New York, erected in 1900 for the purpose of commemorating great Americans. It is a semicircular colonnade, 504 feet long and 20 feet high, connecting two of the buildings of New York University, with a ground floor underneath containing a long hall and six rooms to be used as a museum to contain memorials of those honored. Space is provided within the colonnade for 150 panels, which are to contain bronze tablets bearing the names (with busts or statues of bronze on parapets just above) of such Americans as shall be judged most famous in their respective fields by an electorate of 100 eminent American citizens appointed by the senate of the University. The nominations, received from the general public, are transmitted by the senate, which also is given a right of veto upon the decisions rendered by the electorate. According to the terms of election, persons to be eligible must have been born in what is now United States territory, and must have been dead at least ten years. Fifty names were to be chosen in 1900, representing a majority of the following classes: authors and editors; business men; educators; inventors; missionaries and explorers; philanthropists and reformers; clergymen and theologians; scientists; engineers and architects; lawyers and judges; musicians, painters, and sculptors; physicians and surgeons; rulers and statesmen; soldiers and sailors; and distinguished men and women outside these classes. Thereafter, five more were to be chosen at intervals of five years until the year 2000, when the roll would become complete. In 1900 the following 29 elections were made: John Adams, John James Audubon, Henry Ward Beecher, William Ellery Channing, Henry Clay, Peter Cooper, Jonathan Edwards, Ralph Waldo Emerson, David Glasgow Farragut, Benjamin Franklin, Robert Fulton, Asa Gray, Ulysses Simpson Grant, Nathaniel Hawthorne, Washington Irving, Thomas Jefferson, James Kent, Robert Edward Lee, Abraham Lincoln, Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, Horace Mann, John Marshall, Samuel Finley Breese Morse, George Peabody, Joseph Story, Gilbert Stuart, George Washington, Daniel Webster, and Eli Whitney. Twenty-one vacancies were thus left to be filled. In 1904 the plan was announced of two additional structures to be built in connection with the original hall, one of them to be provided with 25 panels for Americans of foreign birth, the other with 60 panels for American women. In 1905 the following 11 names were added to the list of those already chosen: John Quincy Adams, Louis Agassiz, Alexander Hamilton, John Paul Jones, James Russell Lowell, Mary Lyon, James Madison, Maria Mitchell, William Tecumseh Sherman, Emma Willard, and John Greenleaf Whittier. In 1910 the following 11 names were added: George Bancroft, Phillips Brooks, William Cullen Bryant, James Fenimore Cooper, Oliver Wendell Holmes, Andrew Jackson, John Lothrop Motley, Edgar Allan Poe, Harriet Beecher Stowe, Frances E. Willard, Roger Williams.

Halsbury, Lord. See ★Giffard.

Halstead (hâl'sted), Murat. Born at Ross, Ohio, Sept. 2, 1829: died at Cincinnati, Ohio, July 2, 1908. An American journalist and author. He joined the staff of the Cincinnati "Commercial" in 1853, became chief owner 1865, and, upon its change to the "Commercial Gazette," editor-in-chief.

Halsted (hâl'sted), George Bruce. Born at Newark, N. J., Nov. 25, 1853. An American mathematician, professor of mathematics in the Colorado State Normal School 1906–. He was graduated at Princeton in 1875; was twice fellow of Johns Hopkins University 1876–78; and was professor of mathematics in the University of Texas 1882–1903, and in Kenyon College, Ohio, 1903–06. His publications include a number of works on geometry (elementary, synthetic, metrical, pure projective, non-Euclidean, rational), and many scientific papers; also translations from various languages, making available the original sources in the domain of non-Euclidean geometry.

Hambourg (häm'bŏrg), Mark. Born at Boguchar, South Russia, May 31, 1879. A piano virtuoso. He studied with his father, and with Leschetitzky in Vienna, where he obtained the Liszt scholarship in 1894. He appeared in Moscow in 1888, and afterward in the principal European cities. His first American tour took place in 1899–1900.

Hamilton (ham'il-tŏn). The principal river of Labrador, also called Ashuanipi, or Grand River. It rises in the mountainous part of Labrador, about long. 65°–66° W., lat. 52°–53° N., descends from an elevation of 1,700 feet in a tumultuous course of 600 miles, widening to form Melville Lake, and terminates at the Atlantic Ocean as Hamilton Inlet. The Grand Falls of Labrador are situated about 200 miles from the head of Melville Lake.

Hamilton*, Lord George Francis. He was member of Parliament for the county of Middlesex 1868–85, and for Ealing Division, Middlesex, 1885–1906.

Hamilton (ham'il-tŏn), Sir Ian Standish Monteith. Born in Corfu, Jan. 16, 1853. A British general. He served in the Afghan war 1878–1880, the Boer war in 1881, the Nile expedition 1884–85, the Burmese expedition 1886–87, the Chitral campaign in 1895, the Tirah expedition 1897–98, and the war in South Africa 1899–1901. He was chief of staff to Lord Kitchener 1901–1902. During the Russo-Japanese war he accompanied the army of General Kuroki. He commanded the Southern Military Division 1905–08. In 1909 he was invited by the czar to attend the Russian military manœuvers. In 1910 he was appointed inspector-general of the Mediterranean forces. He is the author of "A Staff Officer's Scrap-book during the Japanese War" (1905), etc.

Hammerstein (ham'ĕr-stīn), Oscar. Born at Berlin, Germany, in 1847. A German-American operatic manager. He came to the United States in 1863, worked in a tobacco-shop, and invented several machines for cigar-making. He became lessee and manager of the Stadt Theater, New York, in 1870; and built the Harlem Opera House, the Olympia, Hackett, Republic, and Victoria theaters, and the first Manhattan Opera House (at 34th street and Broadway), which was opened with the first American performance of Moszkowski's "Boabdil." In 1906 he opened the second Manhattan Opera House (on 34th street, between Eighth and Ninth avenues), where during four seasons many notable works, including "Thais," "Pelléas et Mélisande," "Louise," and "Elektra," had their first New York performance, and many famous singers, including Mary Garden, Luisa Tetrazzini, Maurice Renaud, and Alessandro Bonci, made their first American appearance. During the season of 1908–09 he built and opened the Philadelphia Opera House. In the spring of 1910 he sold his American opera interests to the New York Metropolitan Opera Company. In 1911 he built the London Opera House. He has composed music for several operettas.

Hammond (ham'ŏnd). A manufacturing city in the northwestern part of Lake County, Indiana. Population, 20,925, (1910).

Hammond (ham'ŏnd), John Hays. Born at San Francisco, March 31, 1855. An American mining engineer and financier. He was graduated at Yale University (Sheffield Scientific School) in 1876, and studied at the Royal School of Mines, Freiberg, Saxony. After engaging in engineering work in California and Mexico he went to South Africa, and in 1893 became consulting engineer for Barnato Brothers and later for Cecil Rhodes. He interested himself in the reform movement in the Transvaal 1895–96, and, though not in sympathy with the Jameson raid, was arrested and sentenced to death. He was finally released on the payment of a fine of $125,000. He engaged in mining enterprises in London and the United States, and for five years was manager and consulting engineer of the Guggenheim Exploration Company. In 1911 he was special ambassador of the United States to the coronation of King George V. of England.

Hammonton (ham'ŏn-tŏn). A town in Atlantic County, New Jersey, 42 miles south of Trenton. Its principal industries are fruit- and poultry-raising. It has manufactories of shoes, woolen goods, etc. Population, 5,088, (1910).

Hammurabi*. In December and January, 1901–02, a French archæological expedition under J. de Morgan discovered at Susa his code of laws, the oldest document of its kind ever found. The discovery of this code has already given rise to an extensive literature.

Hampden, Viscount. See ★Brand, Sir Henry Bouverie William.

Hancock (han'kok). A city in Houghton County, Michigan, incorporated in 1903. It is situated on Portage Lake, opposite Houghton, in a rich copper region, and has smelting-furnaces, foundries, etc. It is the seat of a Finnish college. Population, 8,981, (1910).

Handsworth (handz'wĕrth). A manufacturing town in the southern part of Staffordshire, England: a suburb of Birmingham. Population, 52,921.

Handy Andy. A novel by Samuel Lover, published in 1842. It contains humorous sketches of Irish life.

Hang-chau*, or Hangchow. It was opened to foreign trade in 1895.

Hanging Gardens of Babylon. A structure 400 feet square, built at Babylon on the banks of the Euphrates by Nebuchadnezzar (king of Babylon 605–562 B. C.) to please his Median wife Amytis (Amitu). It is said to have been divided into four terraces, each 100 feet wide and about 20 feet high, supported on piers of brick 22 feet thick. Over these piers were placed blocks of stone 16 feet long and 4 feet thick, joined by meshes of reed set in cement, the whole covered by a layer of tiles and that by sheets of lead. The area thus made was covered with loam, and planted as a park and garden, and has been ranked as one of the seven wonders of the world. Tradition has coupled the gardens with the name of the mythical Assyrian queen Semiramis. The location is in the northern mound of ruins, Babil.

Hanks (hangks), Nancy. Born in Virginia, about 1783: died at Pigeon Creek, Ind., Oct. 5, 1818. The mother of Abraham Lincoln. She was married to Thomas Lincoln June 12, 1806.

Hanna (han'ä), Marcus Alonzo. Born at New Lisbon (now Lisbon), Ohio, Sept. 24, 1837:

died at Washington, D. C., Feb. 15, 1904. An American business man and politician. He was a delegate to the National Republican conventions of 1884, 1888, and 1896; was credited with having secured in 1896 the nomination of McKinley for President, and was made chairman of the National Republican Committee. He was first president of the National Civic Federation, and was United States senator 1897–1904.

Hanotaux*, Albert Auguste Gabriel. He was elected a member of the Academy in 1897. His works include "Les villes retrouvées" (1880), "Origines de l'institution des intendants des provinces" (1884), "Henri Martin" (1885), "Études historiques sur le XVI. et le XVII. siècle en France" (1886), "Histoire du cardinal de Richelieu" (1893–1903), "L'Affaire de Madagascar" (1896), "L'Énergie française" (1902), "Histoire de la France contemporaine 1871–1900" (1903), "La paix latine" (1908), "Le partage de l'Afrique" (1909), etc.

Hanover (han'ō-vėr). A borough in York County, Pennsylvania, 18 miles southwest of York. It is an active industrial center, with glove factories, shoe factories, machine shops, furniture factories, etc. Population, 7,057, (1910).

Hänsel und Gretel (hen'zel önt grä'tel). A fairy-tale opera by Engelbert Humperdinck (words by Adelheid Wette), first produced at Weimar, Dec. 23, 1893.

Hansen (hän'sen), Emil Christian. Born at Ribe, Jutland, May 8, 1842: died Aug. 27, 1909. A Danish microbiologist, director of the Carlsberg Laboratory, Copenhagen, distinguished especially for his studies of the Saccharomycetes.

Hansen (hän'sen), Gerhard Henrik Armauer. Born at Bergen, Norway, July 29, 1841. A Norwegian pathologist, president of the Museum at Bergen from 1894. In 1881 he discovered the bacillus of leprosy.

Hanslick (häns'lik), Eduard. Born at Prague, Sept. 11, 1825: died near Vienna, Aug. 6, 1904. An influential Austrian writer and musical critic. He first studied law, but abandoned it for journalism after beginning to write as musical critic of the "Wiener Zeitung" in 1848. In 1855 he joined the staff of the "Presse" and in 1864 that of the "Neue Freie Presse." He was professor of musical history and esthetics in Vienna University 1861–95. He published "Vom Musikalisch-Schönen" (1854), "Geschichte des Konzertwesens in Wien" (1869–70), "Aus dem Tagebuche eines Musikers" (1892: republished as "Aus meinem Leben" in 1894), "Aus neuer und neuester Zeit" (1900), and a long series of volumes of his critical newspaper articles.

Hapgood (hap'gůd), Isabel Florence. Born at Boston, Mass., Nov. 21, 1851. An American author and translator. She has written "Russian Rambles" (1895) and "A Survey of Russian Literature" (1902); compiled and translated "The Epic Songs of Russia" (1886) and "A Service Book of the Holy Orthodox Catholic Apostolic (Greco-Russian) Church" (1906); and translated from the Russian of Tolstoi, Gogol, Gorky, and Turgenieff, from the Spanish of Armando Palacio Valdés, from the Italian of De Amicis, and from the French of Hugo, Joseph Roux, Renan, etc.

Harben (här'ben), William Nathaniel. Born at Dalton, Ga., July 5, 1858. An American author. He was assistant editor of the "Youth's Companion" 1891–93; has contributed short stories to various periodicals; and has published a number of novels, including "Abner Daniel" (1902), "The Substitute" (1903), "Ann Boyd" (1906), "The Redemption of Kenneth Galt" (1909), and "Dixie Hart" (1910).

Harbin (här-bēn'). A city of Manchuria, situated on the southerly bank of the Sungari River at the junction of the Port Arthur and Vladivostok branches of the Siberian Railway. It was founded by the Russians in 1896 and has developed rapidly into a place of great military and commercial importance. In 1907 it was opened to international trade. Population, upward of 30,000.

Harbinger (här'bin-jėr), The. A weekly journal issued by the members of the Brook Farm Association June 14, 1845,–February, 1849. It was devoted to the causes of association and Fourierism and was edited by George Ripley, with John Dwight and William Henry Channing as Boston contributors. C. A. Dana, F. G. Shaw, G. W. Curtis, Lowell, Whittier, and others wrote for it.

Harcourt (här'kōrt), Leveson Francis Vernon-. Born in London, Jan. 25, 1839: died at Swanage, England, Sept. 14, 1907. A British engineer, professor of civil engineering in University College, London, 1882–1905. He published "Rivers and Canals" (1882), "Harbours and Docks" (1885), "Achievements in Engineering" (1891), "Civil Engineering as Applied to Construction" (1902), etc.

Harcourt (här'kōrt), Lewis. Born in 1863. A British politician and cabinet officer, son of Sir William Harcourt. He has represented, as a Liberal, the Rossendale division of Lancashire in the House of Commons since 1904. He was appointed first commissioner of works in 1905, and colonial secretary in Nov., 1910.

Harden (här'den) (Witkowski), Maximilian. Born at Berlin, Oct. 20, 1861. A German journalist. He at first attracted public notice by critical essays on political and other topics of the time, published under the pseudonym "Apostata." In 1892 he founded the "Zukunft," a radical weekly, in which he made unsparing attacks on Bismarck's successor, Caprivi, and other personages, thus becoming involved in many bitter controversies. In 1907 his charges against the personal character of Count Kuno von Moltke, Prince Philip zu Eulenburg, and other members of the court circle and the army, coupled with assertions of the existence of a "round table," or camarilla, surrounding and influencing the emperor, led to a libel suit brought against him by Count von Moltke. A verdict of guilty was rendered against Harden in January, 1908, with a sentence of four months' imprisonment and the payment of costs; but an appeal was taken to the Imperial Court at Leipsic, and in April, 1909, another sentence was rendered, imposing a fine of $150 upon him for libeling Count von Moltke.

Hardenbergh (här'den-bėrg), Henry Janeway. Born at New Brunswick, N. J., Feb. 6, 1847. An American architect. He studied architecture in New York, and since 1870 has been practising his profession in that city. Among the buildings designed by him are the Dakota, Waldorf-Astoria, Manhattan, and Plaza hotels, and the building of the American Fine Arts Society.

Hardie (här'di), James Keir. Born in Scotland, Aug. 15, 1856. A British labor leader and member of Parliament. He worked in the mines from his seventh to his twenty-fourth year, and was editor of the "Cumnock News" 1882–86, and of the "Miner" and "Labour Leader" 1887–1903. He was elected to Parliament by the Labor party in West Ham (South), London, in 1892; was defeated in 1895; and was Labor representative from Merthyr Tydvil 1900–05 and 1906–. He was the founder of the Independent Labor party, and was chairman of the Labor party in the House of Commons, February, 1906–1908. He wrote "India, Impressions and Suggestions" in 1909.

Hardinge (här'ding), Charles, first Baron Hardinge of Penshurst. Born 1858. An English diplomat and statesman. He entered the diplomatic service in 1880; was secretary of legation at Teheran 1896; British ambassador at St. Petersburg 1904–1906; permanent under-secretary of state for foreign affairs 1906–10; and viceroy of India 1910–.

Hardy*, Arthur Sherburne. He has also written "Songs of Two" (1900), "His Daughter First" (1903), etc.

Harkness (härk'nes), Albert. Born at Mendon, Mass., Oct. 6, 1822: died at Providence, R. I., May 27, 1907. An American classical scholar, professor of Greek in Brown University from 1855. He was graduated at Brown University in 1842, and studied at Berlin, Bonn, and Göttingen. His publications comprise a number of Latin text-books, including a Latin grammar (1864, 1869, 1881, 1898), editions of various Latin texts, and numerous philological papers.

Harkness (härk'nes), William. Born at Ecclefechan, Scotland, Dec. 17, 1837: died at Jersey City, N. J., Feb. 28, 1903. A Scotch-American astronomer. He was astronomical director of the United States Naval Observatory 1894–99, and director of the Nautical Almanac 1897–99. He attained the relative rank of rear-admiral in the United States navy in 1899.

Harland (här'land), Henry. Born at New York, March 1, 1861: died at San Remo, Italy, Dec. 20, 1905. An American novelist. He was educated at the College of the City of New York and at Harvard University. In later years he lived principally in London and on the Continent. Under the pseudonym of "Sidney Luska" he wrote "As It Was Written" (1885) and other novels. He then changed his literary style and published, under his own name, "Mademoiselle Miss" (1893), "Grey Roses" (1895), "Comedies and Errors" (1898), "The Cardinal's Snuff-box" (1900), "The Lady Paramount" (1902), "My Friend Prospero" (1904), "The Royal End" (completed by his wife, 1909), etc. He also edited "The Yellow Book."

Harley street (här'li strēt). A fashionable residential street in London, running from Cavendish Square to Marylebone Road. It has long been the abode of men distinguished in medicine.

Harmon (här'mon), Judson. Born at Newtown, Ohio, Feb. 3, 1846. An American jurist, elected governor of Ohio in 1908 and 1910 by the Democratic party. He was graduated from the Cincinnati Law School in 1869, and was elected judge of the Court of Common Pleas, Cincinnati, in 1876; served as a member of the Superior Court, Cincinnati, 1878–88; and was attorney-general of the United States 1895–97 in Cleveland's cabinet. He is one of the most prominent members of the national Democratic party.

Harnack*, Adolf. He became director of the Royal Library in Berlin in 1905. His works include "Zur Quellenkritik der Geschichte des Gnostizismus" (1873), "De Apellis gnosi monarchica" (1874), "Die Zeit des Ignatius und die Chronologie der antiochenischen Bischöfe" (1878), "Das Mönchtum" (6th ed., 1903), "Martin Luther in seiner Bedeutung für die Geschichte der Wissenschaft und der Bildung" (3d ed., 1901), "Grundriss der Dogmengeschichte" (3d ed., 1898), "Augustins Konfessionen" (3d ed., 1903), "Geschichte der altchristlichen Literatur bis Eusebius" (1893–1904), "Geschichte der königlich preussischen Akademie der Wissenschaften zu Berlin" (1900), "Das Wesen des Christentums" (1900), "Die Aufgabe der theologischen Fakultäten und die allgemeine Religionsgeschichte" (1901), "Die Mission und Ausbreitung des Christentums in den ersten drei Jahrhunderten" (1902).

Harraden (har'a-den), Beatrice. Born at Hampstead, England, Jan. 24, 1864. An English novelist. Among her works are "Ships that Pass in the Night" (1893), "In Varying Moods" (1894), "Hilda Strafford" (1897), "The Fowler" (1899), "Katharine Frensham" (1903), "The Scholar's Daughter" (1906), and "Interplay" (1908).

Harriman (har'i-man), Edward Henry. Born at Hempstead, L. I., Feb. 25, 1848: died at Turner, N. Y., Sept. 9, 1909. An American financier and railway president. He was president of the Union Pacific, Central Pacific, Southern Pacific, and allied railroads, and was especially noted for his constructive work in extending and developing the roads under his control.

Harris*, Joel Chandler. His later works include "The Story of Aaron" (1896), "Stories of Georgia" (1896), "Chronicles of Aunt Minervy Ann" (1899), "Tales of the Home Folks in Peace and War" (1898), "Plantation Pageants" (1899), "On the Wing of Occasions" (1900), "The Making of a Statesman" (1902), "Gabriel Tolliver" (1902), "Wally Wanderoon and his Story-telling Machine" (1903), "The Tar-baby and other Rhymes" (1904), "A Little Union Scout" (1904), "Told by Uncle Remus" (1905), "Uncle Remus and Br'er Rabbit" (1907), "The Bishop and the Boogerman" (1909). In 1907 he founded the "Uncle Remus Magazine."

Harris (har'is), Townsend. Born at Sandy Hill, N. Y., 1804: died at New York, 1878. An American diplomatist. He was the first United States consul-general to Japan, having been appointed in 1855 under the provisions of the treaty negotiated by Commodore Perry. In 1858 he became minister resident, resigning in 1861.

Harrisburg (har'is-bėrg). The county-seat of Saline County, Illinois, 62 miles northeast of Cairo. It has iron- and coal-mines, flour-mills, brick-works, etc. Population, 5,309, (1910).

Harrison (har'i-son), Mrs. Burton (Constance Cary). Born in Fairfax County, Va., April 25, 1846. An American novelist. Her works include "Golden Rod" (1880), "Belhaven Tales" (1885), "Bar Harbor Days" (1887), "The Anglomaniacs" (1890), "Flower-de-Hundred" (1890), "Sweet Bells out of Tune" (1892), "A Daughter of the South" (1892), "An Errant Wooing" (1894), "A Merry Maid of Arcady" (1897), "A Son of the Old Dominion" (1897), "A Triple Entanglement" (1899), "The Unwelcome Mrs. Hatch" (a play: 1903), "The Carlyles" (1905), "The Count and the Congressman" (1908), etc.

Harrison (har'i-son), Mary St. Leger: pseudonym Lucas Malet. Born at Eversley rectory, Hampshire, in 1852. A British novelist, youngest daughter of Charles Kingsley, and wife of William Harrison, rector of Clovelly, Devon (died 1897). Under the pseudonym of Lucas Malet she has written "The Wages of Sin" (1891), "History of Sir Richard Calmady" (1901), "The Far Horizon" (1906), "The Wreck of the Golden Galleon" (1910), etc.

Harrison (har'i-son), Ross Granville. Born at Germantown, Pa., Jan. 13, 1870. An American zoölogist, professor of comparative anatomy in Yale University from 1907. He was associate professor of anatomy in Johns Hopkins University 1899–1907.

Hart (härt), Albert Bushnell. Born at Clarksville, Pa., July 1, 1854. An American historian, professor of history in Harvard University. He was graduated at Harvard in 1880, and studied later at Freiburg. He is the author of "Introduction to the Study of Federal Government" (1890), "Guide to the Study of American History" (1897: with E. Channing), "Salmon P. Chase" (1899), "Foundations of American Foreign Policy" (1901), "Handbook of the History, Diplomacy, and Government of the United States" (1903), "Actual Government as Applied under American Conditions" (American Citizen series, 1903), "Essentials of American History" (1905), "Manual of American History, Diplomacy, and Government" (1908), etc. He is the editor of "Epochs of American History" (1891–96), "American History told by Contemporaries" (1898–1901), "Source Readers in American History," etc.

Hart (härt), James Morgan. Born at Princeton, N. J., Nov. 21, 1839. An American philologist, professor of English in Cornell University from 1890 (emeritus 1907). He was graduated at Princeton in 1860 and studied at Göttingen 1861–64. From 1868 to 1872 he was assistant professor of modern languages in Cornell, and from 1876 to 1890 professor of modern languages and English literature in the University of Cincinnati. Among his publications are "German Universities" (1874), "Essentials of Prose Composition" (1902), "Development of Standard English Speech in Outline" (1907), etc.

Hart*, Sir Robert. Died Sept. 20, 1911. He wrote "These from the Land of Sinim" (1901).

Hartford City (härt'fōrd sit'i). The county-seat of Blackford County, Indiana, 45 miles southwest of Fort Wayne. It has manufactories of wagons, glass, nitroglycerin, machinery, etc. It is in an oil and gas region. Population, 6,187, (1910).

Hartley (härt'li), Jonathan Scott. Born at Albany, N. Y., Sept. 23, 1845. An American sculptor. After leaving the Albany Academy he became an assistant and pupil of E. D. Palmer in Albany. Soon after 1864 he went to London and spent three years at the Royal Academy. He visited Germany, Italy, and France, and in 1875 opened a studio in New York. His first important statue was "The Whirlwind," exhibited in 1878. He has designed numerous monuments. His busts show exceptional power of representation and characterization.

Hartmann*, Karl Robert Eduard von. His later works include "Das Christentum des Neuen Testaments" (1905), "Das Problem des Lebens" (1906), "System der Philosophie in Grundriss" (1907–09), etc.

Harvey (här'vi). A city in Cook County, Illinois, a suburb of Chicago, lying south of that city. It has manufactories of automobiles, machinery, railway supplies, etc. Population, 7,227, (1910).

Hasegawa (hä-sä-gä'wä), Viscount Yoshimichi. Born in Suwo, Japan, August, 1850. A Japanese soldier. He commanded a brigade in the Chinese-Japanese war, taking part in the battles of Port Arthur and Wei-hai-wei, and led the Imperial Guards division under General Kuroki in the war with Russia 1904–05. In the latter year he was made commander-in-chief of the Korean garrison. He was promoted general in 1904. He was made baron in 1905, and viscount in 1907.

Haslemere (hā'zl-mēr). A market-town in Surrey, England, in an elevated valley, 39½ miles southwest of London. On account of its scenery and bracing air it is a favorite place of residence. Near here George Eliot lived at Brookbank, and Professor Tyndall at Hindhead; and on Blackdown is Aldworth, Tennyson's home at the time of his death. Population, 2,614.

Hassam (has'am), Childe. Born at Boston, Oct. 17, 1859. An American painter. After a public-school education he studied art in Boston and Paris. He was elected an associate of the National Academy of Design in 1902, and a member in 1906; and belongs also to the American Water Color Society, to the Société Nationale des Beaux-Arts in Paris, and to the Secession in Munich. He has exhibited widely in this country and in Europe, and has taken many important medals and prizes. He follows generally the methods and principles of the French Impressionist school, producing landscapes of great brilliancy.

Hastings (has'tingz), Thomas. Born at New York, March 11, 1860. An American architect. He studied at the École des Beaux-Arts, Paris, and in 1884 became a partner in the firm of Carrère and Hastings, New York (see ★Carrère, John Merven). In 1907 he became a member of the National Academy. He is also a chevalier of the French Legion of Honor.

Hastings-upon-Hudson (has'tingz-u-pon'-hud'son). A village in Westchester County, New York, on the New York Central and Hudson River Railroad, 2 miles from Dobbs Ferry. It has chemical works, marble-yards, etc. Population, 4,552, (1910).

Haswell (haz'wel), William A. Born at Edinburgh, August 5, 1854. A British zoölogist, professor of biology in Sydney University from 1890. He was curator of the Queensland Museum in 1880, and became connected with Sydney University in 1882. With T. Jeffery Parker he published "A Textbook of Zoölogy" in 1897.

Hattiesburg (hat'iz-bėrg). The county-seat of Forrest County, Mississippi, on the Hastehatchee River, 84 miles southeast of Jackson. It is in a farming and lumbering region, and has lumber-mills, machine-shops, cotton-seed oil mills, etc. Population, 11,733, (1910).

Haupt (houpt), Lewis Muhlenberg. Born at Gettysburg, Pa., March 21, 1844. An American civil engineer. He attended the University of Pennsylvania and the Lawrence Scientific School (Harvard), and was graduated at West Point in 1867; was instructor in mathematics and civil engineering (1872–75) and professor of civil engineering (1875–92) in the University of Pennsylvania; and has been occupied as a consulting engineer and in business. In 1897 he was a member of the Nicaragua Canal Commission, and, 1899–1902, of the Isthmian Canal Commission. He has published "Canals and their Economic Relations to Transportation," "Emancipation of Waterways," "The Control of the Mississippi," and many other books and pamphlets.

Hauptmann (houpt'män), Gerhart. Born at Salzbrunn, Silesia, Nov. 15, 1862. A German dramatist and poet. He studied sculpture for a time at Rome, and at this period wrote his first large work, an epic entitled "Promethidenlos" (1885). Next came a group of plays, of the realistic school, "Vor Sonnenaufgang" (1889), "Das Friedensfest" (1890), "Einsame Menschen" (1891), and "Die Weber" (1892), the last of which marks the beginning of a new development, characterized by a broad thematic selection of types and ideas rather than individuals. The culmination of this period is represented by "Hannele" (1893) and "Die versunkene Glocke" (1896). He has written also a number of comedies, "Kollege Crampton" (1892), "Der Biberpelz" (1893), and "Der rote Hahn" (1901), the last two folk-plays; "Florian Geyer" (1895), "Fuhrmann Henschel" (1898), "Schluck und Jau" (1899), "Michael Kramer" (1900), "Der arme Heinrich" (1902), and "Rose Bernd" (1903); and two prose studies, "Der Apostel" and "Bahnwärter Thiel" (1892). He published a novel, "Emanuel Quint," in 1910. "Der Narr in Christo," a novel, was based on "Hannele."

Havana. 2. [Sp. La Habana.] A province of Cuba, bounded on the north by the Florida Strait, on the east by the province of Matanzas, on the south by the Caribbean Sea, and on the west by the province of Pinar del Rio. Capital, Havana. Area, 3,170 square miles. Population, 538,010.

Havard (ä-vär'), Henri. Born at Charolles, Saône-et-Loire, France, Sept. 5, 1838. A French writer and connoisseur. For participation in the events of the Commune in 1871 he was forced into exile. After the amnesty he became art editor of "Le Siècle," a post which he held for fifteen years. He is a prolific writer on many matters relating to the fine and the industrial arts. His chief books are "Amsterdam et Venise" (1876), "L'Art et les artistes hollandais" (1879–1881), "Dictionnaire de l'ameublement et de la décoration depuis le XIIIe siècle jusqu'à nos jours" (1887–90), "Les Boulle" (1893), "L'Œuvre de E. V. Galland" (1895), "Histoire de l'orfévrerie française" (1896), and "Histoire et philosophie des styles" (1899–1900).

Havenstein (hä'fen-stīn), Rudolf. Born at Meseritz, Prussia, March 10, 1857. A German financier, president of the Imperial Bank from 1908.

Hawaiian Islands*. They have a legislature of two houses—a senate of 15 members and a house of representatives of 30 members. The governor and secretary are appointed for four years by the President of the United States. The Territory is divided into five counties. It is represented in Congress by one delegate.

Hawkins*, Anthony Hope. His later works include "A Man of Mark" (1896), "Comedies of Courtship" (1896), "Phroso" (1897), "Simon Dale" (1898), "The King's Mirror" (1899), "Tristram of Blent" (1901), "The Intrusions of Peggy" (1902), "Double Harness" (1904), "A Servant of the Public" (1905), "Sophy of Kravonia" (1906), "Helena's Path" (1907), "The Great Miss Driver" (1908), "Love's Logic" (1908), "Second String" (1910), "Mrs. Maxon Protests" (1911), etc.

Hawkins (hâ'kinz), Sir Henry, first Baron Brampton. Born Sept. 14, 1817: died Oct. 6, 1907. An eminent English jurist. He was called to the bar of the Middle Temple in 1843; was appointed queen's counsel in 1858; was a judge of the High Court 1876–99; and was knighted in 1876 and raised to the peerage in 1899. His "Reminiscences," edited by Richard Harris, were published in 1904.

Hawthorne (hâ'thôrn), Charles Webster. Born in Illinois, Jan. 8, 1872. An American painter, a pupil of William M. Chase and H. Siddons Mowbray. He won the first Hallgarten prize at the National Academy of Design in 1904, the second in 1906, and the Thomas B. Clarke prize in 1911. He has painted the fisherfolk of the Massachusetts coast, etc.

Hayashi (hä-yä'shi), Count Tadasu. Born at Tokio, Feb., 1850. A Japanese diplomatist, minister at the Court of St. James 1900–05 and ambassador in 1906. He was appointed minister to Peking in 1896 and to St. Petersburg in 1897; was a delegate to the peace conference at The Hague in 1899; and was minister for foreign affairs 1906–08. He was created baron in 1895, viscount in 1902, and count in 1907.

Hayes (hāz), Charles Willard. Born at Granville, Ohio, Oct. 8, 1859. An American scientist, chief geologist of the United States Geological Survey from 1902. He was assistant geologist and geologist of the Survey 1887–1902. In 1897–98 he was geologist of the Nicaragua Canal Commission.

Hayes (hāz), Henry. The pseudonym of Mrs. Ellen Olney Kirk.

Hazard (haz'ärd), Caroline. Born at Peacedale, R. I., June 10, 1856. An American educator, president of Wellesley College 1899–1911.

Healy (hē'li), Timothy Michael. Born at Bantry in 1855. An Irish politician. He was admitted to the bar of Ireland in 1884, and to that of England in 1903. He served in the British Parliament 1880–1910 as a member of the Irish Nationalist party, was returned in 1911 as an Independent Nationalist, and has actively advocated the cause of Ireland in speeches and writings.

Hearn (hėrn), Lafcadio. Born in Santa Maura, Ionian Islands, June 27, 1850: died at Okubo, near Tokio, Sept. 26, 1904. A writer on Japan. He was of Irish and Greek parentage, went to America in 1869, and in 1890 to Japan, where he became a lecturer on English literature at the Imperial University in Tokio; married a Japanese woman; and was naturalized as a Japanese subject under the name of Yakumo Koizumi. He published "Stray Leaves from Strange Literature" (1884), "Some Chinese Ghosts" (1887), "Chita" (1889), "Two Years in the French West Indies" (1890), "Youma" (1890), "Glimpses of Unfamiliar Japan" (1894), "Out of the East" (1895), "Kokoro" (1896), "Gleanings in Buddha-Fields" (1897), "Exotics and Retrospectives" (1898), "In Ghostly Japan" (1899), "Shadowings" (1900), "A Japanese Miscellany" (1901), "Kotto" (1902), "Japan: an Attempt at Interpretation" (1904), "Kwaidan" (1904), and "The Romance of the Milky Way" (1905). The "Life and Letters" (1906) and "The Japanese Letters of Lafcadio Hearn" (1910) were edited by Elizabeth Bisland.

Hearts Insurgent. The title under which the novel "Jude the Obscure," by Thomas Hardy, was published in "Harper's Magazine" in 1895.

Heath (hēth), Harold. Born at Vevay, Ind., June 5, 1868. An American naturalist, professor of invertebrate zoölogy in Stanford University from 1909. He was assistant and associate professor there 1898–1909.

Heaton (hē'tọn), John Henniker. Born at Rochester, Kent, in 1848. An English politician. As a Conservative he has sat for Canterbury in the House of Commons since 1885. He promoted the imperial penny postage scheme in 1898, the Anglo-American penny postage in 1907 (in operation 1908), and other postal improvements. He has written an "Australian Dictionary of Dates and Men of the Time," etc.

Hedin (hā'dēn), Sven Anders von. Born at Stockholm, Feb. 19, 1865. A noted Swedish traveler and man of science. He studied at Stockholm, Upsala, Berlin, and Halle, and made a journey through Persia and Mesopotamia 1885–86. In 1890 he was appointed secretary of the Swedish embassy to the Shah; ascended Demavend; and in 1891 visited Kashgar. His most important explorations were made in Central Asia during the years 1893–97, when he went from Orenburg to Peking by way of the Lob-Nor and Tibet; 1899–1902, when he descended the Tarim to the Lob-Nor; and 1905–08, when he explored the high tableland of Tibet, determined the sources of the Brahmaputra and the Sutlej, discovered the true source of the Indus, and established the continuity of the Transhimalayan range, the most massive in the world. He has published accounts of the journeys and scientific observations, and various scientific papers. Among these are "Through Asia" (1898), "Central Asia and Tibet" (1904), and "Overland to India" (1910).

Heilprin (hīl'prin), Angelo. Born in Hungary, March 31, 1853: died at New York, July 17, 1907. An American scientist. He came to the United States in 1856, but was educated in Europe. He was professor of invertebrate paleontology and geology in the Academy of Natural Sciences, Philadelphia, 1880–1900, and executive curator of the museum 1883–92. He led the Peary relief expedition to the arctic regions in 1892; traveled in Florida, the Bermudas, Mexico, Central and South America, Northern Africa, and Alaska for geographical and geological research; and in 1902 studied volcanic phenomena on Mount Pelée, Martinique, during its eruption. He published a number of works on scientific subjects.

Heim (hīm), Albert. Born at Zurich, April 12, 1849. A noted Swiss geologist, professor at the University of Zurich from 1875. He has published numerous geological works and papers.

Heins (hīnz), George Lewis. Born at Philadelphia, May 24, 1860: died at Lake Mohegan, N. Y., Sept. 25, 1907. An American architect. He was educated at the University of Pennsylvania and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and acquired his technical training in architects' offices in Minneapolis and St. Paul. In 1884 he came to New York with C. G. La Farge, and entered the office of John La Farge. In 1886 he entered into partnership with C. G. La Farge. He made a careful study of cathedrals abroad, and was an authority on church architecture. In 1899 he was appointed State architect by Theodore Roosevelt, and he was also consulting architect for the Rapid Transit Commission. The firm of Heins and La Farge has designed the buildings of the New York Zoölogical Gardens, the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, and many other important buildings.

Heir of Redclyffe, The. A story for the young, with a moral purpose, by Charlotte M. Yonge. It was published in 1853.

Hekking (hek'ing), Anton. Born at The Hague, Sept. 7, 1856. A Dutch violoncello virtuoso. After an extensive concert tour with Mme. Essipoff he became solo and orchestral cellist in Berlin. In 1882 he toured in Europe with Ysaye, and in 1888 came to America, remaining some years in Boston and New York. In 1902 he founded the popular "Trio-Abende" in Berlin.

Helheim (hel'hīm). In Old Norse mythology, the abode of the dead, the home of Hel (which see). It is a wide land of shadows, containing gloomy rivers, high palaces, and valleys of venom, all guarded by a dog with blood-stained breast.

Helper (hel'pėr), Hinton Rowland. Born in North Carolina, Dec. 27, 1829: died at Washington, D. C., March 9, 1909. An American author and promoter. He is best known as the author of "The Impending Crisis of the South" (1857), a book which exerted a considerable influence upon affairs immediately preceding the Civil War. He endeavored to secure the building of a railroad (the "Three Americas Railway") to extend, eventually, from Bering Strait to the Strait of Magellan.

Hempl (hempl), George. Born at Whitewater, Wis., June 6, 1859. An American philologist, professor of Germanic philology in Leland Stanford Junior University from 1906. He was connected with Johns Hopkins University as instructor in German 1884–86, and with the University of Michigan as professor of English philology and general linguistics 1889–1906; and was president of the American Dialect Society 1900–05, of the Modern Language Association 1902–03, and of the American Philological Association 1903–04.

Henderson (hen'dėr-sọn), Charles Richmond. Born at Covington, Ind., Dec. 17, 1848. An American sociologist. He was educated at the University of Chicago, and in 1873 entered the Baptist ministry. After holding pastorates at Terre Haute and Detroit he was appointed assistant professor of sociology in the University of Chicago in 1892, and became head of the department of ecclesiastical sociology in 1904. He has served on various charitable commissions, and in 1909 represented the United States on the International Prison Commission. He is associate editor of the "American Journal of Sociology," and has written and edited a number of works, chiefly on sociological subjects.

Henderson (hen'dėr-sọn), David Bremner. Born at Old Deer, Scotland, March 14, 1840: died at Dubuque, Iowa, Feb. 25, 1906. An American lawyer and statesman. He enlisted in the Union army in 1861; was discharged, owing to the loss of a leg, in 1863; reënlisted as colonel of infantry (Forty-sixth Iowa) in 1864; and served till the end of the war. In 1865 he was admitted to the bar. He was a member of Congress from Iowa 1883–1903, and in 1899 was elected speaker of the House of Representatives, succeeding Thomas B. Reed. In this office he was succeeded by Joseph G. Cannon in 1903.

Henderson (hen'dėr-son), William James. Born in Newark, N. J., Dec. 4, 1855. A musical writer and critic. He became critic on the staff of the New York "Times" in 1887, and on that of the "Sun" in 1902. He has published "Preludes and Studies" (1891), "What is Good Music?" (1898), "How Music Developed" (1898), "Modern Musical Drift" (1904), "Pipes and Timbrels" (1905), "Art of the Singer" (1906), "Some Forerunners of Italian Opera" (1911), etc.

Henley*, William Ernest. His later works include "Poems" (1898), "London Types" (1898: with W. Nicholson), "For England's Sake" (1900), "A Song of Speed" (1900), "Hawthorn and Lavender" (1901), etc.

Henley Regatta (hen'li rē-gat'ą), The. An annual aquatic contest which takes place early in July in England, on the river Thames, about midway between London and Oxford. The competing crews usually come from the universities of Oxford, Cambridge, and Dublin, Eton College, and various rowing clubs. Crews from America and other countries often compete. In addition to its importance as an international contest, it is famous as a social occasion.

Henry (ąñ-rē'), Lieutenant-Colonel. Committed suicide, Aug. 31, 1898. An officer of the French army, concerned in the Dreyfus case. In 1896 he was appointed chief of the Intelligence Department at the War Office in place of Colonel Picquart. He acknowledged that he had forged the new proofs of Dreyfus's guilt which Cavaignac, the minister of war, had laid before the Chamber of Deputies; was arrested; and committed suicide.

Henry (hen'ri), O. The pseudonym of William Sydney Porter.

Henshaw (hen'shâ), David. Born in 1791: died in 1862. An American government official, secretary of the navy 1843 (not confirmed).

Hepburn (hep'bėrn), Alonzo Barton. Born at Colton, N. Y., July 24, 1846. An American financier. He first practised law at Colton, New York; served in the New York Assembly 1875–80; and was superintendent of the State banking department 1880–83, United States bank examiner for New York 1888–92, and comptroller of the currency 1892–93. Since 1893 he has occupied executive and directorial positions in various banking and commercial enterprises.

Herbert (hėr'bėrt), Victor. Born at Dublin, Ireland, Feb. 1, 1859. An Irish-American violoncellist, composer, and conductor, grandson of Samuel Lover. He was educated at the Stuttgart Conservatory, and became first cellist of the court orchestra there. In 1886 he came to New York as solo cellist of the Metropolitan Orchestra, later became a member of the Thomas Orchestra, and was conductor 1898–1904 of the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra. He has composed orchestral and chamber music and successful operettas, including "The Wizard of the Nile," "The Serenade," "Babes in Toyland," "Mlle. Modiste," etc. His opera "Natoma" was first produced at the Metropolitan Opera House, Philadelphia, Feb. 25, 1911.

Heredia (ā-rā'dē-ä). The capital of the province of Heredia, Costa Rica. Population, 7,511.

Heredia (ā-rā'dē-ä), José Maria de. Born at Fortuna-Cafeyere, near Santiago, Cuba, Nov. 22, 1842: died at the Château de Bourdonné, Seine-et-Oise, France, Oct. 3, 1905. A French poet, of French and Spanish parentage. He published a collection of his verse under the title of "Trophées" in 1893. This work was crowned by the French Academy and he was elected a member of that body in 1894.

Herford (hėr'fôrd), Oliver Brooke. Born at Sheffield, England, Dec. 12, 1863. An English illustrator and writer. He studied art at the Slade School, London, and at Julian's, Paris, and has lived chiefly in the United States. He has illustrated and written "Artful Antics," "A Child's Primer of Natural History," "The Fairy Godmother-in-Law," "The Rubaiyat of a Persian Kitten," "The Cynic's Calendar" (with Ethel Watts Mumford), "The Kitten's Garden of Verses," etc.

Hering (her'ing), Carl. Born at Philadelphia, Pa., March 29, 1860. An American physicist and electrical engineer. He has discovered several electromagnetic phenomena. He has published "Conversion Tables" (1904), etc.

Hering (hā'ring), Ewald. Born at Altgersdorf, Saxony, Aug. 5, 1834. A German physiologist, professor in the University of Leipsic from 1895, best known for his researches in the physiology of the senses and in psychophysics.

Hermite (er-mēt'), Charles. Born at Dieuze, in Lorraine, Dec. 24, 1822: died at Paris, Jan. 14, 1901. An eminent French mathematician, a member of the Faculty of Sciences of the University of Paris 1869–1901. Among his publications are "Sur la théorie des fonctions elliptiques" (1863), "Sur l'équation du V. degré" (1866), "Sur quelques applications de la théorie des fonctions elliptiques" (1877–82), "Cours d'analyse de l'école polytechnique" (1873), and "Cours à la Faculté des Sciences" (1882).

Herne (her'ne). A town in the province of Westphalia, Germany, 11 miles northwest of Dortmund. Population, 33,266.

Herreshoff (her'e-shof), John Brown. Born at Bristol, R. I., April 24, 1841. An American ship-builder. At the age of fifteen he lost his sight. In 1864 he engaged in yacht-building at Bristol with his father, and later became associated with Dexter E. Stone under the firm name of Herreshoff and Stone. For many years the business was confined to sailing-vessels; but later steam-vessels, steel yachts, torpedo-boats, and naval vessels were undertaken. In 1879 he became president of the Herreshoff Manufacturing Company, which under his management gained the reputation of building the fastest vessels in the world.

Herreshoff (her'e-shof), Nathaniel Greene. Born at Bristol, R. I., March 18, 1848. An American naval architect, brother of J. B. Herreshoff. He studied at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology 1866–69; became a draftsman at the Corliss Engine Works in Providence, Rhode Island; and studied engineering both in America and abroad. In 1879 he joined the Herreshoff Manufacturing Company at Bristol, Rhode Island, of which he later became superintendent. He has designed many high-speed torpedo-boats and racing yachts, including the Vigilant (1893), the Defender (1895), the Columbia (1899), and the Reliance (1903), which successfully defended the America's cup.

Herrick (her'ik), Charles Judson. Born at Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 6, 1868. An American anatomist, professor of neurology in the University of Chicago from 1907. In 1897–1901 he was associate in comparative neurology of the New York State Lunacy Commission. He has been managing editor of the "Journal of Comparative Neurology" since 1894.

Herrin (her'in). A city in Williamson County, Illinois, 56 miles northeast of Cairo. Its chief industry is coal-mining. Population, 6,861, (1910).

Herschel (hėr'shel), Alexander Stewart. Born in 1836: died June 18, 1907. A British astronomer, the second son of Sir John Herschel. His studies related especially to meteors.

Hertz (herts), Heinrich. Born at Hamburg, Feb. 22, 1857: died Jan. 1, 1894. An eminent German physicist, professor of physics at Bonn 1889–94. In 1880 he was an assistant of Helmholtz in Berlin, and in 1885 became professor of physics in the Polytechnic Institute at Karlsruhe. He is noted for his investigations of the relation between electricity and light, and especially for his discovery (1887–88) of the electric waves of large amplitude which have been utilized in wireless telegraphy. Among his publications are "Über die Beziehungen zwischen Licht und Elektricität," "Untersuchungen über die Ausbreitung der elektrischen Kraft," etc. His collected works were published in 1894.

Hertzberg*, Gustav Friedrich. His later works include "Griechische Geschichte" (1884), "Athen, historisch-topographisch dargestellt" (1885), "Geschichte der Stadt Halle" (1889–93), "Die historische Bedeutung des Saaletales" (1894), "A. H. Francke und sein Waisenhaus" (1898), etc.

Hervé (er-vā'), Aimé Marie Édouard. Born at Saint-Denis, Réunion Island, May 28, 1835: died at Paris, Jan. 4, 1899. A French journalist. He founded with J. J. Weiss, in 1867, the "Journal de Paris," and published in it criticisms of the imperial government. In 1873 he established "Le Soleil," and as a supporter of a liberal constitutional monarchy exercised a notable influence on public affairs. He was elected to the French Academy in 1886. He wrote "Une page d'histoire contemporaine" (1869) and "La crise irlandaise depuis la fin du XVIIIe siècle jusqu'à nos jours" (1885). In his articles in "Le Soleil" he made use of the pseudonym "Raoul Valnay."

Hervey (hėr'vi), James. Born at Hardingstone, near Northampton, Feb. 26, 1714: died at Weston Favell, near Northampton, Dec. 25, 1758. An English Episcopal clergyman and devotional writer. He published "Meditations and Contemplations" (in two parts: 1746–47), and "Dialogues between Theron and Aspasio" (1755). The Calvinistic doctrines taught in the "Dialogues" involved the writer in a controversy with John Wesley, and his "Eleven Letters," written in reply to Wesley's "Remarks," were published posthumously in 1766. His collected works (six volumes) were published in 1769.

Hervieu (er-vyė'), Paul Ernest: pseudonym Eliacin. Born at Neuilly-sur-Seine, France, Sept. 2, 1857. A French author, dramatist, and journalist. Among his novels are "Les yeux verts et les yeux bleus" (1886), "L'Inconnu" (1887), "Flirt" (1890), "L'Exorcisée" (1891), "Peints par eux-mêmes" (1893), and "L'Armateur" (1895). His plays include "Les paroles restent" (1892), "Les tenailles" (1895), "La loi de l'homme" (1897), "La course de flambeau" (1901), "Point de lendemain" (1901), "L'Énigme" (1901), "Théroigne de Méricourt" (1902), "Le dédale" (1903), "Le reveil" (1905), and "Connais-toi" (1909). In 1900 he was elected to the French Academy, succeeding Pailleron.

Herz (herts), Alfred. Born at Frankfort, July 15, 1852. A German musical conductor. He was musical director in theaters at Halle, Altenburg, Elberfeld, and Breslau. Since 1902 he has been orchestral conductor of the Metropolitan Opera, New York, where, after Mottl's withdrawal, he directed "Parsifal" (1903–04).

Herzegovina*. With Bosnia it was annexed by Austria-Hungary in October, 1908.

Herzl (hertsl), Theodor. Born at Budapest, May 2, 1860: died July 3, 1904. The founder of the movement among the Jews known as Zionism. He was a journalist and author, and succeeded in arousing great interest in Europe for the project of restoring Palestine to the Jews.

Hess (hes), Willy. Born at Mannheim, July 14, 1859. A German violinist. He came to America in 1865, and at the age of nine toured with the Thomas Orchestra. He studied with Joachim 1876–78, became concert-master of several European orchestras, and 1904–1907, 1908–10 of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. He accepted a professorship at the Royal Academy of Music, London, in 1903, and at the Berlin Hochschule in 1910.

Hewitt (hū'it), Peter Cooper. Born at New York, March 5, 1861. An American electrician and inventor, son of Abram Stevens Hewitt and grandson of Peter Cooper. He is best known for his work with vapor conductors of electricity. Among the more important of his inventions are the mercury-vapor lamp, static converter, interrupter, and circuit-breaker.

Hewlett (hū'let), Maurice Henry. Born at London, Jan. 22, 1861. An English writer of historical romances and sketches. His works include "Earthwork out of Tuscany" (1895), "A Masque of Dead Florentines" (1895), "Songs and Meditations" (1896), "The Forest Lovers" (1898), "Pan and the Young Shepherd" (1898), "Little Novels of Italy" (1899), "Life and Death of Richard Yea-and-Nay" (1900), "New Canterbury Tales" (1901), "The Queen's Quair" (1904), "The Road in Tuscany" (1904), "Fond Adventures" (1905), "The Fool Errant" (1905), "The Stooping Lady" (1907), "Half-way House" (1908), "Spanish Jade" (1908), "Artemizion" (1909), "Rest Harrow" (1910), "The Agonists" (1911), "Brazenhead the Great" (1911), etc.

Hibbing (hib'ing). A village in St. Louis County, northeastern Minnesota. Its chief industries are iron-mining and lumbering. Population, 8,832, (1910).

Hichborn (hich'born), Philip. Born at Charlestown, Mass., in 1839: died at Washington, D. C., May 1, 1910. An American naval officer, retired in 1901 with the rank of rear-admiral. After practical experience in ship construction in the Boston and Mare Island navy-yards, he entered the navy in 1869 as assistant naval constructor, becoming constructor in 1875, and holding the position of chief constructor 1893–1901. He invented the Franklin life-buoy and the Hichborn balanced turret, and was the author of several works on naval construction.

Hichens (hich'enz), Robert Smythe. Born at Speldhurst, Kent, Nov. 14, 1864. An English novelist. His works include "The Green Carnation" (1894), "New Love" (1895), "An Imaginative Man" (1895), "The Folly of Eustace" (1896), "Flames" (1897), "Byways" (1898), "The Londoners" (1898), "The Slave" (1899), "Tongues of Conscience" (1900), "The Prophet of Berkeley Square" (1901), "Felix" (1902), "The Woman with the Fan" (1904), "The Garden of Allah" (1904), "The Call of the Blood" (1906), "The Daughters of Babylon" (with Wilson Barrett), "A Spirit in Prison" (1908), "Egypt and its Monuments" (1908), "The Holy Land" (1910), "The Dweller on the Threshold" (1911), etc. He has collaborated in two plays, "The Medicine Man" and "Becky Sharp."

High Point (hī point). A city in Guilford County, North Carolina, 67 miles northeast of Charlotte. It is a manufacturing city, the products being bricks, cotton, furniture, shuttles, etc. Population, 9,525, (1910).

Hilbert (hil'bert), David. Born at Königsberg, Jan. 23, 1863. A German mathematician, professor in the University of Göttingen from 1895. He was professor of mathematics at Königsberg 1893–95. He has studied especially invariants and the theory of numbers, and has published "Grundlagen der Geometrie."

Hilgard (hil'gärd), Eugene Woldemar. Born at Zweibrücken, Bavaria, Jan. 5, 1833. A German-American geologist and chemist, professor of agriculture in the University of California from 1875 (emeritus, 1903). He was director of the California Agricultural Experiment Station 1888–1904.

Hill (hil), Adams Sherman. Born at Boston, Jan. 30, 1833: died there, Dec. 25, 1910. An American educator, professor of rhetoric in Harvard University from 1876. He became assistant professor there in 1872. His works include "Principles of Rhetoric" (1878), "Our English" (1889), "Foundations of Rhetoric" (1892), etc.

Hill (hil), David Jayne. Born in Plainfield, N. J., June 10, 1850. An American educator and diplomatist. He was president of Bucknell University 1879–88, and of Rochester University 1888–96; assistant secretary of state 1898–1903; minister to Switzerland 1903–05; minister to the Netherlands 1905–07; and ambassador to Germany 1908–11. In 1907 he was a delegate to the second Peace Conference.

Hill (hil), George Birkbeck Norman. Born at Tottenham, Middlesex, England, June 7, 1835: died Feb. 24, 1903. An English author, best known as a Johnsonian scholar and editor. He was graduated at Pembroke College, Oxford, in 1858, and in the following year succeeded his father as head-master of Bruce Castle School at Tottenham, resigning in 1876. Among his publications are "Dr. Johnson, his Friends and his Critics" (1878), an edition of Boswell's "Life of Johnson" (1887), "Boswell's Correspondence" (1879), "Footsteps of Dr. Johnson in Scotland" (1890), "Harvard College, by an Oxonian" (1895), "Talks about Autographs" (1896), "Johnsonian Miscellanies" (1897), "Memoirs of Edward Gibbon" (1900), etc.

Hill (hil), George William. Born at New York, March 3, 1838. An American astronomer, noted for researches in the lunar theory. He was awarded the gold medal of the Royal Astronomical Society, London, in 1887, and the Copley medal of the Royal Society in 1909. His publications include "The Theory of Jupiter and Saturn" (1890), "Collected Mathematical Works" (1905–07), etc.

Hill (hil), James Jerome. Born near Guelph, Ontario, Sept. 16, 1838. An American business man, president of the Great Northern system of railways 1893–1907. He went to St. Paul, Minnesota, in 1856, and early connected himself with the business of transportation. He secured control, through a syndicate, of the St. Paul and Pacific Railroad; reorganized it as the St. Paul, Minneapolis, and Manitoba Railroad; and was its general manager 1879–82, vice-president 1882–83, and president from 1883. In the year 1889 the Great Northern Railway Company was formed and it leased the St. Paul, Minneapolis, and Manitoba Railway and other lines (about 3,750 miles). Since that time the Great Northern Railway has been extended by purchase of other lines and construction to about 7,300 miles.

Hillis (hil'is), Newell Dwight. Born at Magnolia, Iowa, Sept. 2, 1858. An American clergyman and author. He was graduated at Lake Forest University in 1884, and at McCormick Theological Seminary in 1887; was pastor at Peoria, Illinois, 1887–90, at Evanston, Illinois, 1890–94, and of the Central Church in Chicago 1894–98, succeeding Professor David Swing; and in 1899 became pastor of Plymouth Church, Brooklyn, succeeding Dr. Lyman Abbott. Among his works are "A Man's Value to Society" (1896), "The Investment of Influence" (1896), "Foretokens of Immortality" (1897), "How the Inner Light Failed" (1898), "The Influence of Christ in Modern Life" (1900), "The Quest of Happiness" (1902), "Success Through Self-help" (1903), "Building a Working Faith" (1903), "The Quest of John Chapman" (1904), "Great Men as Life Teachers" (1906), "Fortune of the Republic, and other Addresses" (1906), etc.

Hillquit (hil'kwit), Morris. Born at Riga, Russia, Aug. 1, 1869. A Russian-American socialist. He came to the United States in 1886, and has practised law in New York since 1893. He has been a member of the Socialist party since 1888, and of its national executive committee since 1907. He was a delegate from the party to the International Socialist Congress at Amsterdam in 1904, to that at Stuttgart in 1907, and to that at Copenhagen in 1910, and has been its representative in the International Socialist Bureau at Brussels since 1904. He has published a "History of Socialism in the United States" (1903) and "Socialism in Theory and Practice" (1909).

Hillsboro (hilz'bur-ō). The county-seat of Hill County, Texas, 57 miles southwest of Dallas. It has agricultural interests, and cotton compresses, flour-mills, and manufactories of clothing, hay-presses, etc. Population, 6,115, (1910).

Hilprecht (hil'preĉht), Hermann Vollrath. Born at Hohenerxleben, Anhalt, Germany, July 28, 1859. A German Assyriologist, professor of comparative Semitic philology in the University of Pennsylvania 1886–1910, and curator of the Semitic section of its museum until 1910. He accompanied an expedition sent by this university to explore Nippur in Babylonia in 1888, and in 1900 took charge of it (after a year's absence); and has made numerous explorations in Asia Minor and Syria. He has also had charge of the Babylonian department of the Imperial Museum in Constantinople. Among his publications are "Recent Researches in Bible Lands," "Ausgrabungen in Assyrien und Babylonien," etc.

Hiroshige (hē-rō-shē'ge). Born 1793: died 1859. A Japanese painter, a pupil of Toyohiro. He was one of the leading masters of the Okioye, or later naturalistic school of Japan. His work is based on a key of color rather than on line and mass. His tones are flat, producing effects in a simple way. He was especially clever in the representation of atmospheric effects.

Hiroshima (hē-rō'shē-mä). A city of Japan, situated on the island of Hondu, near its southwestern extremity, on the inland sea. It is the capital of the province of Aki, and has an important trade in lacquered ware, bronzes, and other art objects. Population, 121,196.

Hirst (hėrst), Francis W. Born at Huddersfield, Yorkshire, in 1873. An English editor and author. He was educated at Clifton and at Wadham College, Oxford; became president of the Oxford Union Society; and in 1899 won the Cobden prize. In 1899 he became a barrister-at-law of the Inner Temple, and secured the Russell studentship at the London School of Economics. In 1907 he became editor of the London "Economist." Among his published works are "Adam Smith" (1904), "Trusts and Cartels" (1905), "The Arbiter in Council" (1906), and "The Stock Exchange" (1911).

His (hēs), Wilhelm. Born at Basel, July 9, 1831: died at Leipsic, May 1, 1904. An eminent German histologist and physiologist, professor of anatomy in the University of Leipsic 1872–1904, especially noted for his researches in the development of the nervous system.

Hiss (his), Philip Hanson. Born at Baltimore, Md., Sept. 17, 1868. An American bacteriologist and pathologist, professor of bacteriology in Columbia University from 1906. He was adjunct professor there 1903–06.

Hitchcock (hich'kok), Charles Henry. Born at Amherst, Mass., Aug. 23, 1836. An American geologist, son of Edward Hitchcock. He was graduated at Amherst College in 1856; was assistant geologist of the State of Vermont 1857–61; was geologist of the State of Maine 1861–62, and of the State of New Hampshire 1868–78; and was professor of geology in Dartmouth College 1868–1908. He has published numerous geological reports and papers.

Hitchcock (hich'kok), Edward. Born at Amherst, Mass., May 23, 1828: died Feb. 15, 1911. An American physician, son of President Edward Hitchcock, and professor of physical education and hygiene in Amherst College from 1861. From 1879 he was a member of the Massachusetts State Board of Health, Lunacy, and Charity.

Hitchcock (hich'kok), Ethan Allen. Born at Mobile, Ala., Sept. 19, 1835: died at Washington, D. C., April 9, 1909. An American diplomat and cabinet officer. He was minister (1897–98) and ambassador (1898) to Russia, and was secretary of the interior 1898–1907. His diary, "Fifty Years in Camp and Field," edited by W. A. Croffut, was published in 1910.

Hitchcock (hich'kok), Frank Harris. Born at Amherst, Ohio, Oct. 5, 1867. An American lawyer and government official. He was graduated at Harvard in 1891, was admitted to the bar in 1894, and was in the service of the government in the departments of agriculture, commerce and labor, etc. He was first assistant postmaster-general 1905–08, and in 1909 was appointed postmaster-general. He was chairman of the Republican National Committee in 1908 and conducted the presidential campaign of that year.

Hoder (hō'der), or Hödur (hē'dör). [ON. Hödhr.] In Old Norse mythology, a blind god who, at the instigation of Loki, slays Baldur by means of a twig of mistletoe. He is in turn slain by Vale, the son of Odin. The story of the death of Baldur has been said to personify the victory of darkness over light, the killing of summer by winter, the slaying of innocence by physical strength guided by sin, etc.

Hodge (hoj), Frederick Webb. Born at Plymouth, England, Oct. 28, 1864. An American anthropologist, ethnologist of the Bureau of American Ethnology 1889–1901 and 1905–10, and appointed chief in 1910. He is editor of "The American Anthropologist."

Hodges (hoj'ez), George. Born at Rome, N. Y., Oct. 6, 1856. An American theologian, dean of the Episcopal Theological School at Cambridge, Mass., from 1894. He was rector of Calvary Church, Pittsburgh, 1889–94. He is the author of "The Episcopal Church" (1889), "Faith and Social Service" (1896), "William Penn" (1900), "Three Hundred Years of the Episcopal Church in America" (1906), "The Apprenticeship of Washington" (1909), etc.

Hodgson (hoj'son), Shadworth Hollway. Born at Boston, Lincolnshire, Dec. 25, 1832. An English philosophical writer. He has written "Time and Space" (1885), "The Theory of Practice" (1870), "The Philosophy of Reflection" (1878), "The Metaphysics of Experience" (1898), etc.

Hoe (hō), Robert. Born at New York, March 10, 1839: died at London, Sept. 22, 1909. An American mechanical engineer, inventor and manufacturer of printing machinery. In 1886 he succeeded to the management of the printing-press manufactory founded by his grandfather, Robert Hoe. He developed the printing-press from the earliest form of rotary web perfecting-machine, printing from stereotype plates, to the double octuple press of 1906, and was a pioneer in the development of rotary color-printing machines and of rotary machines for high-grade magazine and periodical printing. He was also a bibliophile and an art connoisseur, was actively interested in all matters relating to the promotion of literature and the fine arts, and was one of the founders of the Metropolitan Museum of Art and of the industrial arts schools connected with that institution. His library of rare books and manuscripts, one of the finest and most valuable private collections of its kind in existence, was dispersed in 1911.

Hoff (hōf), Jacobus Hendrikus van't. Born at Rotterdam, Aug. 30, 1852: died March 2, 1911. An eminent Dutch chemist, professor in the University of Berlin from 1896. In 1878 he was appointed professor of chemistry, mineralogy, and geology at Amsterdam. He was especially noted for his researches in physical chemistry and as the founder of stereochemistry. In 1901 he received the Nobel prize for research in chemistry.

Hofmann (hof'män), Josef. Born at Cracow, Austria, Jan. 20, 1877. A Polish pianist and composer. As a child he attracted great attention in his concerts from 1883 to 1888. He was then withdrawn from public notice for study under Rubinstein, and made his début as an artist in 1894, winning high rank. He has composed a number of works for the pianoforte.

Hohensalza (hō-en-zält'sä). The name adopted in 1904 by the town of Inowrazlaw, Prussia.

Hokusai (hō'kō-sä-i). Born in Yedo, Japan, 1760: died 1849. A noted Japanese artist. He was at first apprenticed to an engraver, but after a few years abandoned engraving and studied designing with Shunsho, a noted artist of the period. Later he devoted himself to book illustration, and finally became an artist and teacher of great repute. His works are very numerous, amounting to over thirty thousand drawings.

Holden (hōl'den), Edward Singleton. Born at St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 5, 1846. An American astronomer, librarian of the United States Military Academy from 1901. He was graduated from this academy in 1870; was astronomer in the United States Naval Observatory 1873–81; was director of the Washburn Observatory 1881–85; was president of the University of California 1885–88; and was director of the Lick Observatory 1888–98. The Lick Observatory was built according to plans prepared by Newcomb and Holden 1874–85. He is the author of numerous astronomical and other papers.

Holder (hōl'dėr), Charles Frederick. Born at Lynn, Mass., Aug. 5, 1851. An American author, a lineal descendant of Christopher Holder. He was assistant curator of zoölogy in the American Museum of Natural History, New York, 1871–75. Among his publications are "The Ivory King" (1887), "Living Lights" (1889), "Louis Agassiz" (1892), "Charles Darwin" (1893), "Big Game Fishes of the United States" (1903), "The Pioneer Quakers" (1905), "Life in the Open in Southern California" (1906), "The Log of a Sea Angler" (1906), "Big Game at Sea" (1908), "Fish Stories" (1909; with D. S. Jordan), "The Channel Islands" (1910), etc.

Holder (hōl'dėr), Christopher. Born at Winterbourne, England, in 1631. One of the founders, in 1656, of the first society of Friends in New England. He was repeatedly banished from Boston and persecuted for his faith. He wrote in the Boston jail, in 1657, the first declaration of faith of the Quakers.

Holland (hol'and), William Jacob. Born at Bethany, Jamaica, Aug. 16, 1848, of American parentage. An American naturalist, director of the Carnegie Museum at Pittsburgh from 1898. He was graduated at Amherst College in 1869; was naturalist of the United States eclipse expeditions to Japan in 1887 and to Africa in 1889; and was chancellor of the Western University of Pennsylvania 1891–1901. He has published "The Butterfly Book" (1898), "The Moth Book" (1903), and numerous scientific memoirs on entomology and paleontology. He has been editor of the "Annals" and "Memoirs" of the Carnegie Museum from 1900.

Holmès (ōl-mās'), Augusta Mary Anne: pseudonym Hermann Zeuta. Born at Paris, Dec. 16, 1847: died there, Jan. 28, 1903. A French composer, of Irish parentage. Among her several teachers she was most influenced by César Franck. Her works include the operas "Héro et Léandre" and "La montagne noire" (Paris Opéra, 1895), symphonic poems, symphonies and other orchestral works, and numerous songs.

Holmes (hōmz), Mrs. (Mary Jane Hawes). Born at Brookfield, Mass.: died at Brockport, N. Y., Oct. 7, 1907. An American novelist, whose stories for young people have attained wide popularity. Among the best known of her earlier works are "Tempest and Sunshine" (1854) and "Lena Rivers" (1856). Among her later works are "Gretchen" (1887), "Dr. Hathern's Daughters" (1895), "The Comptons" (1902), and "The Abandoned Farm" (1905).

Holmes (hōmz), Oliver Wendell. Born at Boston, Mass., March 8, 1841. An American jurist, son of Oliver Wendell Holmes. He was graduated at Harvard in 1861, and at the Harvard Law School in 1866. He served with the 20th Massachusetts volunteer regiment in the Civil War 1861–64; was associate justice (1882–99) and chief justice (1899–1902) of the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts, and has been associate justice of the United States Supreme Court from 1902. He edited Kent's "Commentaries" (1873), and has published "The Common Law" (1881) and a volume of speeches.

Holmes, Sherlock. See ★Sherlock Holmes.

Holmes (hōmz), William Henry. Born in Harrison County, Ohio, Dec. 1, 1846. An American anthropologist, chief of the Bureau of American Ethnology 1902–10, and honorary curator of the division of prehistoric archæology in the United States National Museum from 1903, and of the National Gallery of Art from 1907.

Holst, Hermann Eduard von. He wrote also "John Brown" (1888) and "The French Revolution Tested by Mirabeau's Career" (1894).

Holt (hōlt), Henry. Born at Baltimore, Md., Jan. 3, 1840. An American author and publisher. He has been prominent in university settlement and municipal reform work. His works include "Talks on Civics" (1901), "On the Civic Relations" (1907), and two novels dealing with religious and social questions, "Calmire" (1892) and "Sturmsee" (1905).

Holt (hōlt), Joseph. Born in Breckinridge County, Ky., Jan. 6, 1807: died at Washington, D. C., Aug. 1, 1894. An American jurist. In 1857 Buchanan appointed him commissioner of patents, in 1859 postmaster-general, and in 1860 secretary of war. In September, 1862, Lincoln appointed him judge-advocate-general, and upon the establishment of the Bureau of Military Justice in 1864 he was kept at its head with the same title. He was brevetted major-general in 1865 and was retired in 1875. He was judge-advocate and recorder of the military commission which tried the assassins of Lincoln, May–June, 1865.

Holt (hōlt), Luther Emmett. Born at Webster, N. Y., March 4, 1855. An American physician. He was graduated at the University of Rochester in 1875 and at the College of Physicians and Surgeons (Columbia) in 1880. He is a specialist in diseases of children, and since 1905 has been professor of diseases of children in the College of Physicians and Surgeons. He has published "Care and Feeding of Children" (1894), "Diseases of Infancy and Childhood" (1896), etc.

Holub*, Emil. He wrote also "Die Kolonisation Afrikas" (1881–82) and "Von der Kapstadt ins Land der Maschukulumbe" (1888–1890).

Holyoake*, George Jacob. He wrote also "Life of Joseph Rayner Stephens" (1881), "The Co-operative Movement of To-day" (1891), "Sixty Years of an Agitator's Life" (1892), "Public Speaking and Debate" (1894), "Nature and Origin of Secularism" (1896), "Bygones Worth Remembering" (1905), etc.

Homer (hō'mẽr), Mrs. (Louise Dillworth Beatty). Born at Pittsburg about 1871. An American contralto singer. She studied singing at Boston and at Paris, and made her début in opera at Vichy, as Leonora, in "La Favorita." She afterward sang at Angers, at Brussels, and at Covent Garden, London. During the season of 1900–01 she became a member of the Metropolitan Opera Company, New York. She has a repertoire of the standard contralto rôles in Italian, French, German, and English, and is also well known as a concert singer.

Hondu, or Hondo (hon'dō, -dō). The chief island of Japan. See Nippon.

Honduras*. The republic is divided into 16 departments, Atlantida, Choluteca, Colon, Comayagua, Copan, Cortes, El Paraiso, Gracias, Intibuca, Islas de la Bahia, La Paz, Olancho, Santa Barbara, Tegucigalpa, Valle, and Yoro, and one territory, Mosquitia. In December, 1907, a treaty was signed by the five Central American States agreeing to the establishing of a court of arbitration for the settlement of disputes. See ★Central American Arbitration Treaty.

Honshu, or Honshiu (hon'shō). Same as ★Hondu.

Hooker (hůk'ẽr), Mrs. (Isabella Beecher). Born at Litchfield, Conn., Feb. 22, 1822: died Jan. 25, 1907. An American philanthropist and reformer, daughter of Lyman Beecher (1775–1863). She was an active worker in the cause of woman suffrage and in various reform movements. She was the author of "Womanhood: its Sanctities and Fidelities," "The Constitutional Rights of the Women of the United States," and pamphlets relating to the participation of women in government.

Hooker*, Sir Joseph Dalton. He was surgeon and naturalist of the Ross Expedition to the antarctic (1839–43); explored as a naturalist the Himalayas, Eastern Bengal, Khasia Hills, etc., 1847–51; Syria and Palestine, 1860; Morocco and the Greater Atlas 1871; and the Rocky Mountains and California 1877. He was assistant director of the Royal Gardens at Kew 1855–65 and director 1865–85, and was president of the Royal Society 1872–77. He has written also a monumental work on the collections at Kew, and "The Flora of British India," on the completion of which last in 1897 he was created G. C. S. I.

Hooper (hŏp'ẽr), Franklin William. Born at Walpole, N. H., Feb. 11, 1851. An American zoölogist and geologist, director of the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences from 1889.

Hoosick Falls (hō'sik fâlz). A village in Rensselaer County, New York, on the Hoosick River, 22 miles northeast of Troy. It has manufactories of farming implements, woolen goods, etc. Population, 5,532, (1910).

Hoosier State, The. A popular name of the State of Indiana.

Hope diamond. An oblong and slightly shallow brilliant diamond, of dark blue color with a steely tint, weighing 44½ carats. It was twice sold at auction for approximately £18,000, and was believed to be part of the blue diamond of irregular shape and weighing 68½ carats that was originally brought to France by Tavernier for Louis XIV. and which disappeared with the French crown jewels during the French Revolution. It was later purchased by H. T. Hope, the Amsterdam and London banker; and was sold to a London jeweler. It was for sale on consignment in New York, and became the property of a Turkish jeweler in Paris, who sold it to some French dealers. It has been the cause of considerable litigation.

Hopi (hō'pi). An Indian people speaking a language belonging to the Shoshonean linguistic family, occupying six pueblos in northeastern Arizona. See Tusayan.

Hopkins (hop'kinz), Henry. Born at Williamstown, Mass., Nov. 30, 1837: died at Rotterdam, Holland, Aug. 13, 1908. An American educator, son of Mark Hopkins, and president of Williams College 1902–08.

Hopkins (hop'kinz), Johns. Born in Anne Arundel County, Md., May 19, 1795: died at Baltimore, Md., Dec. 24, 1873. An American merchant and philanthropist, founder of the university in Baltimore which bears his name. At the age of seventeen he removed to Baltimore, and rose to be one of the leading business men of that city. On his death he left $7,000,000 for the founding of a university and a hospital.

Hopkinson (hop'kin-sŏn), Charles Sydney. Born at Cambridge, Mass., July 27, 1869. An American marine painter. He received medals at the expositions at Buffalo (1901) and St. Louis (1904).

Hoquiam (hō'kwi-am). A city in Chehalis County, Washington, situated on Gray's Harbor, 47 miles west of Olympia. It is important for its shipyard, and as a shipping-point for fish, furs, and lumber. Population, 8,171, (1910).

Hornaday (hôr'na-dā), William Temple. Born at Plainfield, Ind., Dec. 1, 1854. An American zoölogist, director of the New York Zoölogical Park from 1896. He traveled in the West Indies, South America, India, Ceylon, the Malay Peninsula, and Borneo, 1875–79, as a collecting naturalist, and was chief taxidermist of the United States National Museum, Washington, 1882–90. He was chiefly instrumental in the creation of the National Zoölogical Park, the Wichita National Bison Range, the Montana National Bison Range, and the Snow Creek (Montana) Game Preserve. He has published "Two Years in the Jungle" (1885), "The Extermination of the American Bison" (1887), "The American Natural History" (1904), "Camp-Fires in the Canadian Rockies" (1906), "Camp-Fires on Desert and Lava" (1908), etc.

Hornbostel (hôrn'bos-tel), Henry. Born at Brooklyn, N. Y., Aug. 15, 1867. An American architect. He studied at Columbia University and at the École des Beaux-Arts, Paris. He is a member of the firm of Palmer and Hornbostel, of New York, which built the Carnegie Technical School, Pittsburgh, the University of Pittsburgh Memorial Building, etc. He taught architecture in Columbia University 1897–1903, and later became professor of architecture in the Carnegie Technical School.

Horne (hôrn), C. Silvester. Born at Cuckfield, Sussex, April 15, 1865. An English Congregational minister. He was educated at Glasgow University and at Mansfield College, Oxford. He was minister of Kensington Chapel 1889–1903, and is now minister of Whitefield's Church, Tottenham Court Road, London. He was chairman of the London Congregational Union in 1902. He has published "A Modern Heretic," "Story of the L. M. S. [London Missionary Society]," "Popular History of the Free Churches," etc.

Hornet Islands. See ★Liancourt Rocks.

Hornsey (hôrn'zi). A northern suburb of London, situated in Middlesex on New River. Population, 72,056.

Houghton (hō'tọn). A village in Houghton County, Michigan, on the south bank of Portage Lake opposite Hancock. It is important for its copper-mines, and is the seat of the Michigan College of Mines. Population, 5,113, (1910).

Houlton (hōl'tọn). The county-seat of Aroostook County, Maine, in a lumbering and agricultural region, 100 miles northeast of Bangor. It has machine-shops, lumber-mills, starch-factories, etc. Population, 5,845, (1910).

Houma (hō'mä). The capital of Terrebonne Parish, Louisiana, in a rice and sugar-cane region, 47 miles southwest of New Orleans. Its products include moss, molasses, and sugar. Population, 5,024, (1910).

Housman (hous'man), Alfred Edward. Born March 26, 1859. An English poet, essayist, and scholar. He was graduated at Oxford, and in 1892 was appointed professor of Latin at University College, London. He is the author of "A Shropshire Lad" (1896), by which he is best known.

Housman (hous'man), Laurence. Born July 18, 1867. An English illustrator and author. His publications include "Gods and their Makers" (1897), "Spikenard" (1898), "Rue" (1899), "An Englishwoman's Love Letters" (1901), "A Modern Antæus" (1901), "Bethlehem," a nativity play (1902), "Sabrina Wareham" (1904), "The Blue Moon" (1904), "The Cloak of Friendship" (1905), "The Chinese Lantern" (1908), etc.

Houston (hūs'tọn), Edwin James. Born at Alexandria, Va., July 9, 1847. An American electrician, emeritus professor of physics at the Franklin Institute, Philadelphia, and consulting electrical engineer. He is one of the inventors of the Thomson-Houston system of electric lighting. His publications include a "Dictionary of Electrical Words, Terms, and Phrases," and many books on electrical subjects, general and applied physics, etc.

Houston Heights (hūs'tọn hīts). A town in Harris County, Texas, about 5 miles northwest of Houston. It has cotton-seed oil mills and furniture-factories. Population, 6,984, (1910).

Hovenden (hō'vẽn-dẽn), Thomas. Born at Dunmanway, County Cork, Ireland, Dec. 28, 1840: died near Norristown, Pa., Aug. 14, 1895. An American artist. He came to New York in 1863, entered the School of the National Academy of Design, and in 1874 went to Paris and studied under Cabanel for six years. His earliest successes were made with scenes from negro life, and were followed by subjects taken from the common life of the people. His well-known picture "Last Moments of John Brown" is in the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York. He was killed at a railway station while attempting to save a child from being run over by a train.

Hovey (huv'i), Edmund Otis. Born at New Haven, Conn., Sept. 15, 1862. An American geologist, curator of the department of geology and invertebrate paleontology in the American Museum of Natural History from 1910. He was assistant and associate curator there 1894–1909. He has published "Martinique and St. Vincent" (1902), and papers on the eruptions of Mount Pelée and the Soufrière, the structure of the Western Sierra Madre of Mexico, and other topics in geology.

Howard (hou'ärd), Blanche Willis (Mrs. von Teuffel). Born at Bangor, Maine, July 21, 1847: died at Munich, Germany, Oct. 7, 1898. An American novelist. She wrote "One Summer" (1875), "One Year Abroad" (1877), "Aunt Serena" (1881), "Guenn: a Wave on the Breton Coast" (1883), "The Open Door" (1889), "A Fellowe and his Wife" (1892: with William Sharp), "Seven on the Highway" (1897), "Garden of Eden" (1900), etc.

Howard (hou'ärd), Bronson. Born at Detroit, Mich., Oct. 7, 1842: died at Avon, N. J., Aug. 4, 1908. An American playwright. He was engaged in journalistic work in New York on the "Evening Mail," "Tribune," and "Evening Post" 1868–72. In 1880 he married Alice Wyndham, sister of the English actor Sir Charles Wyndham. His plays include "Saratoga" (1870), "Moorcroft" (1874), "The Banker's Daughter" (1878), "Hurricanes" (1878), "Young Mrs. Winthrop" (1882), "The Henrietta" (1887), "Shenandoah" (1889), "Aristocracy" (1892), "Peter Stuyvesant" (1899: in collaboration with Brander Matthews), etc.

Howard (hou'ärd), John Galen. Born at Chelmsford, Mass., May 8, 1864. An American architect. He went to Paris in 1891 and entered the École des Beaux-Arts, in the atelier of Victor Laloux. Returning to New York, he designed an addition to the Hotel Renaissance which was one of the first designs to bring modern French architectural methods into prominence. He was appointed architect of the University of California, and later professor in charge of its architectural department. In 1900 he was one of the board of architects of the Pan-American Exposition in Buffalo, and in 1906 served on the board of advisers of the reconstruction committee for the city of San Francisco.

Howard (hou'ärd), Leland Ossian. Born at Rockford, Ill., June 11, 1857. An American entomologist, chief of the Bureau of Entomology of the United States Department of Agriculture from 1894. He has been honorary curator of the department of insects in the United States National Museum from 1895, and consulting entomologist of the United States Public Health and Marine Hospital Service. In 1897 he became permanent secretary of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. He has published "Mosquitoes" (1901), "The Insect Book" (1902), "The House Fly, Disease Carrier" (1911), and many government bulletins, reports, etc.

Howe (hou), Frederick Clemson. Born at Meadville, Pa., Nov. 21, 1867. An American lawyer. He was admitted to the bar in 1894, engaged in practice at Cleveland, Ohio, and became professor in the Cleveland College of Law. He was president of the Sinking Fund Commission 1904–05, special United States commissioner in 1905 to investigate municipal ownership in Great Britain, and a member of the Ohio Senate 1906–09. He has published "Taxation and Taxes in the United States under the Internal Revenue System, 1791–1895" (1896), "The City, the Hope of Democracy" (1905), "The British City, the Beginnings of Democracy" (1907), etc.

Howe (hou), Henry Marion. Born at Boston, Mass., March 2, 1848. An American metallurgist, son of Samuel G. and Julia Ward Howe: professor of metallurgy in Columbia University from 1897. He was graduated at Harvard University in 1869, and at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 1871. He has published "Metallurgy of Steel" (1891), "Metallurgical Laboratory Notes" (1902), "Iron, Steel, and Other Alloys" (1903), etc. In 1901 he was made a chevalier of the Legion of Honor.

Howell (hou'el), John Adams. Born at New York, March 16, 1840. An American naval officer, promoted rear-admiral in 1898. He was graduated from the United States Naval Academy in 1858; served in the Civil War (Mobile Bay); was promoted captain in 1884 and commodore in 1895; commanded the patrol squadron during the Spanish war (1898), and the blockading squadron before Havana; and was retired in 1902. He is the inventor of an automobile torpedo and of the gyroscopic steering-gear for torpedoes.

Howells*, William Dean. His later works include "Stops of Various Quills" (1895), "A Parting and a Meeting" (1896), "The Day of Their Wedding" (1896), "Impressions and Experiences" (1896), "The Landlord at Lion's Head" (1897), "An Open-eyed Conspiracy" (1897), "The Story of a Play" (1898), "Their Silver Wedding Journey" (1899), "Heroines of Fiction" (1901), "A Pair of Patient Lovers" (1901), "Literature and Life" (1902), "The Flight of Pony Baker" (1902), "The Kentons" (1902), "Questionable Shapes" (1903), "The Son of Royal Langbrith" (1904), "London Films" (1905), "Certain Delightful English Towns" (1906), "Through the Eye of the Needle" (1907), "Between the Dark and the Daylight" (1907), "Roman Holidays, and Others" (1908), "Fennel and Rue" (1908), "Christmas Every Day" (1908), "Mother and Father" (1909), and "Imaginary Interviews" (1910).

Howison (hou'i-sọn), George Holmes. Born in Montgomery County, Md., Nov. 29, 1834. An American philosophical writer and educator, professor of philosophy in the University of California from 1884 (emeritus 1909). He has published a "Treatise on Analytic Geometry" (1869), "The Conception of God" (1897: with Royce, Le Conte, and Mezes), "Limits of Evolution" (1901), etc.

Howitt (hou'it), Alfred William. Born in 1830: died at Melbourne, Australia, March 8, 1908. An English anthropologist and explorer, distinguished especially for his travels and investigations in southern and southeastern Australia. He published "The Native Tribes of South-East Australia" (1904), and other writings on anthropological subjects.

Hoxey (hok'si), Archibald. Born at Staunton, Ill., Oct. 27, 1884: died at Los Angeles, Dec. 31, 1910. An American aviator. He became a machinist and chauffeur, and in the spring of 1910 entered the employ of the Wright Company. He was an entrant in the international races at Belmont Park, Long Island, in 1910, reaching altitudes of over a mile, and on one occasion flew in a wind which blew at about 80 miles an hour. On Oct. 8, 1910, he made an American record for cross-country flying of 89¾ miles (Springfield–St. Louis), and a duration record of 3 hrs., 16 min., 50 sec. At Los Angeles he made a world's altitude record of approximately 11,474 feet on Dec. 26, 1910; but the barograph was not officially calibrated. On Dec. 30 he circled Mt. Wilson, near Los Angeles, at a height of 10,000 feet and officially recorded 10,575 feet. Coming down from an altitude flight on Dec. 31, he appeared to lose control of his aëroplane, which turned over twice and struck the ground at an acute angle, instantly killing him. Legagneux, a French aviator, had previously attained an altitude of 10,499 feet.

Hozumi (hō-zō'mi), Yatsuka. Born Feb., 1860. A Japanese scholar, professor of constitutional and administrative law in the Imperial University of Tokio from 1889, and director of the College of Law.

Huascarán (öäs-kä-rän'). A mountain in Peru, in the department of Ancachs. Height, about 24,000 feet (Peck). Ascended by Miss Annie S. Peck in 1908.

Hubbard Glacier (hub'ärd glā'shiėr). An ice-mass in Yakutat Bay, Alaska, lat. about 60° N., long. about 139° W. It has an estimated length of 28 miles, and extends to the sea, where it presents a tidal cliff almost five miles long and from 250 to 300 feet in height. The glacier was discovered in 1890. Only its lower portion has been explored.

Hudleston (hud'l-stọn), Wilfred Hudleston. Born at York, June 2, 1828: died near Wareham, Dorset, Jan. 29, 1909. A distinguished British geologist. He was the son of Dr. John Simpson, of Knaresborough, and assumed the name of Hudleston in 1867. He published a "Monograph on the Gasteropoda of the Inferior Oölite" (1887–96), and many papers on geological subjects.

Hudson (hud'sọn). A town in Middlesex County, Massachusetts, 26½ miles northwest of Boston. It has manufactories of shoes, leather, rubber and woolen goods, boxes, etc. Population, 5,189, (1910).

Hudson (hud'sọn), William Henry. Born at London, May 2, 1862. An English author, critic, and educator. Among his works are "Introduction to the Philosophy of Herbert Spencer" (1894), "Studies in Interpretation" (1896), "The Study of English Literature" (1898), "Rousseau and Naturalism in Life and Thought" (1903), etc.

Hudson Falls (hud'sọn fâlz). A village in Washington County, New York. Population, 5,189, (1910).

Hudson-Fulton Celebration. A celebration held in New York from Sept. 25 to Oct. 9, 1909, to commemorate the three-hundredth anniversary of the exploration of the Hudson River by Henry Hudson in the Half Moon in 1609, and the one-hundredth anniversary of the successful application of steam to navigation on the same river by Robert Fulton in the Clermont in 1807.

Hudson River School. A coterie of American painters who were active during the middle period of the nineteenth century, and who were especially interested in topographical painting—that is, in the representation of interesting views. Among those usually associated with the school are Asher B. Durand, John F. Kensett, T. Addison Richards, Sanford R. Gifford, F. E. Church, and Albert Bierstadt.

Hueffer (hü'fer), Franz. Born at Münster, Germany, May 23, 1845: died at Dresden, Jan. 19, 1889. A German critic and writer on music. In 1878 he was appointed musical critic of the London "Times." He was an ardent advocate of Wagner, and wrote "Richard Wagner and the Music of the Future" (1874) and a "Life of Wagner" (1881), and translated the "Correspondence of Wagner and Liszt" (1888). He also wrote "The Troubadours" (1878), "Musical Studies" (1880), "Italian and Other Studies" (1884), and "Half a Century of Music in England" (1889).

Hughes (hūz), Ball. Born at London, England, Jan. 19, 1806: died at Boston, Mass., March 5, 1868. An Anglo-American sculptor. His most important works were a statue of Alexander Hamilton in New York, which was destroyed soon after it was made, the effigy of Bishop Hobart in the vestry of Trinity Church, New York, and the bronze statue of Dr. Bowditch, the astronomer, in Mount Auburn Cemetery.

Hughes (hūz), Charles Evans. Born in Glens Falls, N. Y., April 11, 1862. An American jurist and statesman, governor of New York 1907–10. He was graduated at Brown University (1881), and at the Columbia University Law School (1884); and was counsel of the gas commission of the New York legislature 1905, and of the commission (Armstrong) which investigated the insurance companies of the State 1905–06. He was appointed associate justice of the Supreme Court in 1910.

Hull House (hul hous). A social settlement in Chicago, founded in 1889 by Miss Jane Addams (see supplement) and Miss Ellen Gates Starr. It occupies the former residence of Charles J. Hull on South Halsted street, and has added some ten other buildings, including a gymnasium, coffee-house, boys' club, theater, etc. Its influence is far-reaching in both social and civic matters.

Humacao (ö-mä-kä'ō). 1. The most easterly department of Porto Rico. It is bounded by the Atlantic Ocean on the north and east; the Caribbean Sea and Guayama on the south; and Guayama and San Juan on the west. Capital, Humacao. Area, 413 square miles. 2. A city, the capital of Humacao, situated in the eastern part of the department. Population, 5,159, (1910).

Hun (hön). A river in southern Manchuria which rises northeast of Mukden, flows south of that city in a southwesterly direction, and empties into the Liao not far from Niuchuang. It played an important part in the battles between Liao-yang and Mukden during the Russo-Japanese war.

Hundred Guilder Print. The popular name for an important etching by Rembrandt which represents Christ healing the sick. He was supposed to have sold a proof of this plate for one hundred guilders; but in fact he exchanged this proof, still in existence, with his friend Jan Zoomer for a proof of "The Pest" by Marcantonio Raimondi. The date of the plate is not definitely known, but is conjecturally given as 1649 or 1650.

Huneker (hün'e-kėr), James Gibbons. Born at Philadelphia, Jan. 31, 1860. An American musical and dramatic critic. He was dramatic editor of the "Morning Advertiser" 1895–97, and musical and dramatic editor of the New York "Sun" 1900–04. He has published "Mezzotints in Modern Music" (1899), "Chopin" (1900), "Melomaniacs" (1902), "Overtones" (1904), "Iconoclasts" (1905), "Visionaries" (1905), "Egoists" (1909), "Promenades of an Impressionist" (1910), etc.

Hunt (hunt), Richard Howland. Born at Paris, March 14, 1862. An American architect. He was educated at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and the École des Beaux-Arts, Paris, and is practising his profession in New York city. He built the façade of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, after a plan suggested in a sketch left by his father; designed buildings for the University of the South and Vanderbilt University; and has been especially successful with large private houses.

Hunt (hunt), William Henry. Born at Charleston, S. C., 1824: died at St. Petersburg, Feb. 27, 1884. An American lawyer and Republican politician. He studied at Yale; was admitted to the bar in 1844; and was appointed attorney-general of Louisiana in 1876, judge of the United States Court of Claims in 1878, and secretary of the navy in 1881. When President Arthur reorganized President Garfield's cabinet he retired from office and was appointed minister to Russia (1882). During the Civil War he supported the Union cause.

Hunter (hun'tėr), Sir Archibald. Born Sept. 6, 1856. A British general, commander of the western army corps of the Indian army 1904–1907, and of the southern army 1907–08. He commanded the tenth division in South Africa in the Boer war, 1900–01.

Hunter (hun'tėr), Wiles Robert. Born at Terre Haute, Ind., April 10, 1874. An American social worker. He was organizing secretary of the Chicago Bureau of Charities 1896–1902; chairman of the investigating committee of the City Homes Association, Chicago; head worker of the University Settlement, New York, 1902–03; and chairman of the New York Child Labor Commission 1902–06. In 1910 he was a candidate for the governorship of Connecticut on the Socialist ticket. He has written "Tenement Conditions in Chicago" (1901), "Poverty" (1904), "Socialists at Work" (1908), "The Crisis" (1909), etc.

Huntingdon (hun'ting-dọn). The county-seat of Huntingdon County, Pennsylvania. It is the largest town on the Juniata River, and occupies the site of the "Standing Stone," where the Indians held their grand councils. Besides important agricultural and mining interests, it has flour-mills, iron-foundries, etc. Juniata College and a State industrial reformatory are located here. Population, 6,861, (1910).

Huntington (hun'ting-tọn). The county-seat of Huntington County, Indiana, on the Little River, 20 miles southwest of Fort Wayne. It has railroad and machine shops, and manufactories of shoes, pianos, etc. Population, 10,272, (1901).

Huntington (hun'ting-tọn). A city, the capital of Cabell County, West Virginia. It is situated on the Ohio River, southwest of the junction of the Guyandotte and the Ohio. It is the seat of Marshall College and the West Virginia Asylum for the Incurable Insane, has car-, steel-, glass-, and machine-works, etc., and is a shipping-point for coal, lumber, salt, etc. Population, 31,161, (1910).

Huntington (hun'ting-tọn), Ellsworth. Born at Galesburg, Ill., Sept. 16, 1876. An American explorer. He explored the cañons of the Euphrates in 1901; was a member of an expedition to Russian Turkestan 1903–04, and later of one to Chinese Turkestan; and has traveled extensively in India, China, Siberia, and Asia Minor. He has written "Explorations in Turkestan" (1905), "The Pulse of Asia" (1907), etc.

Huntington (hun'ting-tọn), William Reed. Born at Lowell, Mass., Sept. 20, 1838: died at Nahant, Mass., July 26, 1909. An American Episcopal clergyman. He was ordained priest in 1862; was rector of All Saints' Church, Worcester, Massachusetts, 1862–83; and from 1883 until his death was rector of Grace Church, New York. Among his published works are "The Church Idea" (1870), "Conditional Immortality" (1878), "Popular Misconceptions of the Episcopal Church" (1891), "Short History of the Book of Common Prayer" (1893), "A National Church" (1898), "Sonnets and a Dream" (1899), etc.

Hurlingham (hėr'ling-am), Club, The. A London club established in 1868 for the purposes of sport and social intercourse. Its premises at Fulham, S. W., have grounds for polo, lawn-tennis, pigeon-shooting, etc. The club is the recognized law-making authority for British polo.

Huron (hū'rọn). The county-seat of Beadle County, South Dakota, 98 miles northwest of Sioux Falls. It is an important shipping-point, with grain-elevators, breweries, flour-mills, machine-shops, etc. Pop., 5,791, (1910).

Hutten (höt'ten), Baroness von (Bettina Riddle). Born at Erie, Pa., Feb. 14, 1874. An American-German author. She has published "Our Lady of the Beeches" (1902), "Pam" (1905), "He and Hecuba" (1905), "What became of Pam" (Amer. ed. "Pam Decides"; 1906), "One Way Out" (1906), "The Halo" (1907), "Kingsmead" (1909), "The Green Patch" (1910), etc.

Hutton (hut'n), Frederick Remsen. Born at New York, May 28, 1853. An American engineer, professor of mechanical engineering in Columbia University 1891–1907, and secretary of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers 1883–1906 and president 1906–07. He has published "Mechanical Engineering of Power Plants" (1897), "Heat and Heat Engines" (1899), "The Gas Engine" (1904), etc.

Hutton (hut'n), Laurence. Born at New York, Aug. 8, 1843: died at Princeton, N. J., June 10, 1904. An American author and editor, literary editor of "Harper's Magazine" 1886–98. He published "Literary Landmarks" of "London" (1885), "Edinburgh" (1891), "Jerusalem" (1895), "Venice" (1896), "Florence" (1897), and "Rome" (1897), "A Boy I Knew" (1898), etc.

Huysmans (üs-mäṅ'), Joris Karl. Born at Paris, Feb. 5, 1848: died at Paris, May 13, 1907. A French writer of Flemish extraction. His work was at first naturalistic, as in "Marthe" (1876), "Les sœurs Vatard" (1879), "En ménage" (1881), and "À vau-l'eau" (1882); but later exhibited a reaction from materialism as in "À rebours" (1884), "Là-bas" (1891), "En route" (1895), "La cathédrale" (1898), and "L'Oblat" (1903), of which the last three were written as a result of the author's retreat to a Trappist monastery and a Benedictine community. His last book was "Les foules de Lourdes" (1906).

Hyatt (hī'at), Alpheus. Born at Washington, D. C., April 5, 1838: died at Cambridge, Mass., Jan. 15, 1902. An American naturalist, professor of zoölogy and paleontology in the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and of zoölogy and biology in Boston University. His investigations were devoted chiefly to invertebrate animals: they are of importance for general biology and especially to the theory of evolution. He belonged to the neo-Lamarckian group of evolutionists.

Hyde (hīd), William De Witt. Born at Winchendon, Mass., Sept. 23, 1858. An American educator and writer, president of Bowdoin College from 1885. He was graduated at Harvard in 1879. Among his publications are "Practical Ethics" (1892), "Practical Idealism" (1897), "The Art of Optimism" (1900), "From Epicurus to Christ" (1904), "The College Man and the College Woman" (1906), etc.

Hyndman (hīnd'man), Henry Mayers. Born at London, March 7, 1842. An English socialistic writer and agitator. He has taken an active part in the promotion of social reform since 1881, when he founded the Social Democratic Federation. Among his publications are "Historical Basis of Socialism" (1883), "A Commune for London" (1888), "Commercial Crises of the Nineteenth Century" (1892), "Economics of Socialism" (1896), etc.

Hyslop (his'lop), James Hervey. Born at Xenia, Ohio, Aug. 18, 1854. An American philosopher, psychologist, and educator. For some years he was professor of logic and ethics at Columbia University, but resigned in 1902. Among his publications are "Logic and Argument" (1899), "Syllabus of Psychology" (1899), "Report on the Piper Case" (1901), "Problems of Philosophy" (1905), "Science and a Future Life" (1905), "Enigmas of Psychical Science" (1906), "Borderland of Psychical Research" (1906), "Psychical Research and the Resurrection" (1908), etc.

Iba (ē'bä). 1. A mountain of the Zambales range, in western Luzón, Philippine Islands. Height, 5,262 feet. —2. A town, the capital of Zambales province, Luzón. It is situated near the western coast, in lat. 15° 21′ N., long. 119° 58′ 30″ E. Civilized population of municipality, 4,482.

Iceland*. In May, 1908, a commission appointed in 1907 to report on the relations with Denmark presented a bill declaring Iceland a free, autonomous, and independent country, united to Denmark by a common king and ministries of foreign affairs and defense, but no action was taken on it.

Iddings (id'ingz), Joseph Paxson. Born at Baltimore, Md., Jan. 21, 1857. An American geologist, professor of petrology in the University of Chicago 1895–1908. He was associate professor of petrology 1892–95, and has been a geologist of the United States Geological Survey since 1888. He has published a work on "The Rock Minerals" (1906), "Igneous Rocks" (1909–), and various technical papers; and with Cross, Pirrson, and Washington is author of "The Quantitative Classification of Igneous Rocks" (1903).

Ide (id), Henry Clay. Born at Barnet, Vt., Sept. 18, 1844. An American diplomatist and jurist. He was United States commissioner to Samoa in 1891, and chief justice of Samoa 1893–97. In 1900 he was a member of the Taft commission for establishing civil government in the Philippines, and subsequently became secretary of finance and justice (1901), vice-governor (1904–05), acting governor (1905–06), and governor-general (1906) of the islands. He was appointed minister to Spain in 1909. He has published a "Code of Procedure in Civil Actions and Special Proceedings in the Philippine Islands" (1901), "The Land Registration Act" (1903), etc.

Ilagan (ē-lä'gän). A town, the capital of Isabela province in Luzón, Philippine Islands. It is situated between the Rio Grande de Cagayán and the Pinacanán, one of its tributaries, approximately in lat. 17° 8′ 5″ N., long. 120° 50′ E. Civilized population of municipality, 16,008.

Iligan (ē-lē'gän) Bay. An arm of the Mindanao Sea indenting the northern coast of Mindanao, in the Philippine Islands. It separates the western from the eastern part of Misamis province, and washes the northern coast of Lanao district.

Ilion (il'i-ən). A village in Herkimer County, New York, 11 miles southeast of Utica. It has manufactories of pistols, rifles, type-writers, type-setting machines, bicycles, etc. Population, 6,588, (1910).

Illana (ēl-yä'nä) Bay. An arm of the sea indenting the coast of Cotabato province, southern Mindanao, Philippine Islands.

Ilm (ilm). A small river in Germany which rises in the mountains southwest of Ilmenau, flows in a northeasterly direction past Weimar, and empties into the Saale near Sulza.

Ilocanos (ē-lō-kä'nōs). [Philippine Sp., < Ilocos, name of two provinces, prop. 'river men' (Tagalog ilog, river).] A Malay tribe of the Philippine Islands, inhabiting the extreme northwestern part of Luzón.

Ilocos Norte (ē-lō'kōs nōr'tā). The most northwesterly province of Luzón, Philippine Islands. It is bounded by the China Sea on the north; Cagayán (separated by the Cordillera Norte range) on the east; Abra (separated by a spur of the Cordillera Norte) on the southeast; Abra and Ilocos Sur on the south; and Ilocos Sur and the China Sea on the west. Capital, Laoag. The northern and eastern parts of the province are mountainous, with several peaks upward of 3,000 feet in altitude. The highest is Semeneblén (4,800 feet), on the boundary between Ilocos Norte and Abra. The valleys are very fertile, being watered by numerous rivers and producing rice, cotton, corn, sugar-cane, pineapples, betel-nuts, coffee, and tobacco. The largest river is the Laoag, which flows northwest to the China Sea. Most of the native inhabitants are Ilocanos. The census of 1903 gave also 2,148 Igorrotes. Area of province, including dependent islands, 1,330 square miles. Population, 178,995.

Ilocos Sur (ē-lō'kōs sör). A very narrow province in northwestern Luzón, Philippine Islands. It is bounded by Ilocos Norte on the north; Ilocos Norte, Abra, and Lepanto-Bontoc (all separated from it by mountains) on the east; La Unión on the south; and the China Sea on the west. Capital, Vigan. The highest peaks of the province are Estilete, 4,446 feet, and Nagapu, 4,154 feet high. The Abra flows through the province from east to west to the China Sea. The other rivers are small. Of the bays, Port Salomague, on the coast toward the north, is safe for large vessels in the northeast monsoon. The chief products are hemp, sugar-cane, and rice. Large numbers of cattle are raised. The inhabitants are mainly Ilocanos. The census of 1903 gave also 11,151 Igorrotes. Area of province, 471 square miles. Population (1903), 187,411.

Iloilo* (ē-lō-ē'lō). 1. It was devastated by fire in April, 1907.—2. A river in Panay, Philippine Islands. It flows from its sources in the central mountain-range southeast to Iloilo Strait, and is navigable for 8 miles by small native craft.

3. A province of the Philippines, occupying the eastern and southeastern parts of Panay and including numerous islands, the largest of which is Guimarás. It is bounded by Capiz (separated by mountains) and the Visayan Sea on the north; the Visayan Sea and Negros Island (separated by Guimarás Strait) on the east; the Strait of Iloilo and the Visayan Sea on the south; and Antique (separated by mountains) on the west. Capital, Iloilo, situated on Iloilo Strait, in lat. 10° 42′ N., long. 122° 35′ E. As a commercial center it is second to Manila. The most important rivers are the Jaro, the Jalaur, and the Iloilo. Among the products are tobacco, corn, pineapples, mangos, copra, rice, and sugar-cane. The native race is Visayan. Area, including islands, 2,027 square miles. Population, about 410,300.

Iloilo (ē-lō-ē'lō) Strait. A strait separating Panay, Philippine Islands, from Guimarás, and connecting the Sulu Sea with Guimarás Strait.

Inaya (ē-nä'yä). See ★Bicol.

Inchcape Rock, The. A ballad by Robert Southey. The story is that of the shipwreck of Sir Ralph the Rover upon the Inchcape or Bell Rock (which see), from which he had maliciously cut the warning bell placed there for the safety of mariners by the abbot of Aberbrothock (Arbroath).

In Darkest Africa. A work by Henry M. Stanley, published in 1890.

In Darkest England, and the Way Out. A book by William Booth, of the Salvation Army, published in 1890.

Independence (in-dē-pen'dens). The county-seat of Montgomery County, Kansas, on the Verdigris River, 70 miles southwest of Fort Scott. It is the commercial center of a farming region, and has flour-mills, brick-yards, ice-plants, cotton-mills, etc. Population, 10,480, (1910).

Independence Bay. An inlet on the northeastern coast of Greenland, in lat. 82° N., separating it in part from Melville Land: discovered by Peary and Astrup, July 4, 1892.

Indiana (in-di-an'ä). The county-seat of Indiana County, Pennsylvania, 45 miles northeast of Pittsburgh. It has various manufactures, and is the seat of a State normal school. Population, 5,749, (1910).

Indiana University. A coeducational, nonsectarian State institution of learning situated at Bloomington, Indiana. It was founded in 1820; was opened in 1824; and became a university in 1838. It offers courses leading to the degrees of bachelor of arts and of law, master of arts, and doctor of philosophy. The students number over 2,000.

Indy (an-dē'), Paul Marie Théodore Vincent d': known as Vincent d'. Born at Paris, March 27, 1851. A French composer, pupil of César Franck and leader of the radical modern French school. He was one of the founders of the Schola Cantorum in Paris, and is its director and professor of composition. His most important works are the operas "Fervaal" (1897) and "L'Étranger" (1903), for both of which he wrote the librettos; the orchestral trilogy "Wallenstein"; symphonies; symphonic ballads; a string quartet; a trio for piano, clarinet, and violoncello; a sonata for piano and violin; and other chamber music and piano pieces.

Ingalls (ing'galz), John James. Born at Middleton, Mass., Dec. 29, 1833: died at Las Vegas, N. Mex., Aug. 16, 1900. An American Republican politician. He was graduated from Williams College in 1855, and was admitted to the bar in 1857. He removed to Kansas; was a member of the Wyandotte Convention in 1859; was secretary of the Territorial Council in 1860, and of the State Senate in 1861; was a member of the Kansas Senate in 1862; and was United States senator from Kansas 1873–91.

Ingram (in'gram), Arthur Foley Winnington. Born in Worcestershire, England, Jan. 26, 1858. Bishop of London from 1901. He was educated at Oxford; was ordained in 1884; and was canon of St. Paul's Cathedral and bishop suffragan of Stepney 1897–1901. In 1888 he founded the Oxford House in the East End of London, and he is the leader of the Oxford settlement movement. His works include "Work in Great Cities" (1896), "Under the Dome" (1902), "The Gospel in Action" (1906), "Early English Colonies in America" (1908), "Joy in God" (1909), etc.

In His Name. A romance of the Waldenses in the 17th century, written by Edward Everett Hale in 1874.

Inness (in'es), George. Born at Paris, France, Jan. 5, 1854. An American artist, son of George Inness. He was a pupil of his father at Rome 1870–74, and studied at Paris in 1875. His work is signed "Inness, Jr." In 1895 he was elected an associate member and in 1899 a member of the National Academy of Design, and was made an officer of the Académie des Beaux-Arts in 1902. He received honorable mention in the Paris Salon of 1896, and a gold medal in 1900.

Inouye (ē'nō-ō-yā), Marquis Kaoru. Born in Chosu, Nov. 28, 1835. One of the "elder statesmen" of Japan. With Hirobumi Ito he secretly visited England in 1864, and their appreciation of the advantages of Western civilization subjected them on their return to attacks from which Inouye barely escaped with his life. Soon after the Restoration he was appointed vice-minister of finance, and remained in the government service in important positions until 1898, when he retired.

Institute of International Law. A society established in 1873 to promote international law. It consists of 60 members and 60 associates, elected from the international jurists of various nations. Its meetings take place annually at some city previously designated, the first being held at Ghent. In 1904 it received the Nobel peace prize, the first awarded to an association.

Iola (ī'ō-lä). The county-seat of Allen County, Kansas, on the Neosho River, 92 miles southwest of Kansas City. It is in a natural gas district, and has a sulphuric acid plant, zinc-smelters, machine-shops, cement-works, etc. Population, 9,032, (1910).

Ionia (ī-ō'ni-ä). The county-seat of Ionia County, Michigan, 32 miles east of Grand Rapids. It has manufactories of wagons, furniture, and clothing, and is the seat of the State House of Correction and the Asylum for Insane Criminals. Population, 5,030, (1910).

Ireland*. Later events of Irish history are the Land Act, 1896; Agricultural and Technical Instruction Act, 1899; Land Purchase Act, 1903; Irish Universities Act, 1908; and the establishment of the United Irish League (under William O'Brien), 1898. In 1908 an act of Parliament was passed providing for the dissolution of the Royal University of Ireland and for the establishment of two new universities, the National University of Ireland, at Dublin, and the Queen's University, at Belfast, both to be non-sectarian. University College, Dublin; University College, Cork; and University College, Galway, are constituent colleges of the National University. The University of Dublin (see Trinity College) is a separate organization.

Iriga (ē-rē'gä). 1. An extinct volcano in Ambos Camarines province, Luzón, Philippine Islands. Height, 4,092 feet.—2. A municipality of Ambos Camarines province, southeastern Luzón. Civilized population, 19,297.

Iron Mountain (ī'ėrn moun'tān). The county-seat of Dickinson County, Michigan, 55 miles northwest of Menominee. It has important iron-mines, and is an active shipping-point for ore. Population, 9,216, (1910).

Ironwood (ī'ėrn-wûd). A city in Gogebic County, Michigan, in the extreme west of the northern peninsula. Its principal interests are iron-mining and lumbering. Population, 12,821, (1910).

Irving (ėr'ving), Henry Brodribb. Born at London, Aug. 5, 1870. An English actor, son of Sir Henry Irving. He was educated at New College, Oxford, and was called to the bar in 1894. In 1891 he joined Sir John Hare's company at the Garrick Theatre, London, and subsequently appeared in London in various dramatic parts, including that of Hamlet, at the Adelphi, in 1905, and Iago, at the Lyric, in 1906. In the season of 1906–07 he appeared in America with his wife, Dorothea Baird, in Stephen Phillips's "Paolo and Francesca." He is the author of a "Life of Judge Jeffreys" (1898) and "French Criminals of the Nineteenth Century" (1901).

Irvington (ėr'ving-tọn). A town in Essex County, New Jersey, 3 miles southwest of Newark. It has wall-paper factories, smelting-works, rope-factories, etc. Population, 11,877, (1910).

Isabela (ē-sä-bā'lä). A province of eastern Luzón, Philippine Islands. It is bounded by Cagayán on the north; the Pacific Ocean and Príncipe on the east; Príncipe on the south; and Nueva Ecija, Nueva Vizcaya, and Lepanto-Bontoc (separated by mountains) on the west. Capital, Ilagan. The Sierra Madre range extends north and south not far from the coast, and sends spurs westward. The Rio Grande de Cagayán rises among the mountains in the south and, uniting near the central part of the province with the Magat, which rises in Nueva Vizcaya, flows north into Cagayán. There are extensive forests. The soil is easily cultivated, and produces large crops of corn and tobacco. The inhabitants are of several races, as Igorrotes, Ilocanos, and Tagalogs. Area, 5,018 square miles. Population, about 76,500.

Isarog (ē-sä-rōg'). A large extinct volcano of perfect conical form, situated in the southeastern part of Luzón, Philippine Islands, in about lat. 13° 41′ N., long. 123° 21′ E. Height, 6,634 feet.

Isham (ī'sham), Samuel. Born at New York, May 12, 1855. An American painter. He was graduated at Yale University in 1875, and studied in Paris under Jacquesson de la Chevreuse, Boulanger, and Lefebvre. He won a silver medal at the St. Louis Exposition in 1904 and was elected an academician of the National Academy of Design in 1906. He has published a "History of American Painting" (1905).

Isthmian Canal Zone. A strip of territory ten miles wide, extending five miles in each direction from the central line of the canal route across the Isthmus of Panama. It begins in the Caribbean Sea "three marine miles from mean low-water mark," and extends "to and across the Isthmus of Panama into the Pacific Ocean to a distance of three marine miles from mean low-water mark." The cities of Panama and Colón, with their harbors, are excluded from the territory. The use, occupation, and control of this zone were ceded in perpetuity by the Republic of Panama to the United States by a treaty ratified by the United States Senate, February 23, 1904. The Republic of Panama granted to the United States "the use, occupation, and control of all islands within the limits of the zone above described, and in addition thereto the group of small islands in the Bay of Panama named Perico, Naos, Culebra, and Flamingo."

Italones (ē-tä-lō'nās). A head-hunting people living in the wilds of Nueva Vizcaya, Luzón.

Ito (ē'tō), Viscount Sukenori. Born in Satsuma, May, 1842. A Japanese admiral, admiral of the fleet since 1905. He was promoted vice-admiral and commanded with great success the united Japanese squadron in the Chinese-Japanese war 1894–95.

Ives (īvz), Frederic Eugene. Born at Litchfield, Conn., Feb. 17, 1856. An American inventor, especially noted for his work in photography. He has invented processes in half-tone photo-engraving, orthochromatic photography, and color photography.

Ivory Black. A pseudonym of Thomas Allibone Janvier.

---

ack. A novel by Alphonse Daudet, published in 1876.

Jackson (jak'son). The county-seat of Jackson County, Ohio, 66 miles southeast of Columbus. Its principal industries are coal and iron-mining and the manufacture of glass, woolens, flour, etc. Population, 5,468, (1910).

Jackson (jak'son), John Brinckerhoff. Born at Newark, N. J., Aug. 19, 1862. An American diplomatist. He was educated at the United States Naval Academy, and served in the navy until 1886. He was appointed second secretary of the United States legation at Berlin in 1890, becoming secretary of the embassy in 1894, and was made minister to Greece, Rumania, and Servia in 1902, to Greece and Montenegro in 1905, and to Persia in 1907. In 1909 he was appointed minister to Cuba.

Jackson (jak'son), Samuel Macauley. Born at New York, June 19, 1851. An American clergyman, author, editor, and educator, professor of church history in New York University from 1895. He was graduated at the College of the City of New York in 1870, and at Union Theological Seminary in 1873. He has been engaged in editorial work on various encyclopedias and other works of reference, and is the author of "Huldreich Zwingli" (1901) and editor of the series of "Heroes of the Reformation" and of "Handbooks for Workers in Church and Philanthropy."

Jackson Park. A park in Chicago, situated on the lake front in the southern part of the city: the site of the World's Columbian Exposition in 1893. It is connected with Washington Park by the Midway Plaisance. Area, 523 acres.

Jacoby (ja-kō'bi), Harold. Born at New York, March 4, 1865. An American astronomer, head of the department of astronomy in Columbia University from 1905. He graduated at Columbia University in 1885, was adjunct professor of astronomy there 1894–1904, and became professor in 1904. He has published various papers on stellar photography, stellar parallax, star-clusters, etc.

Jacque (zhäk), Charles Émile. Born at Paris, May 23, 1813: died there, May 7, 1894. A French painter and etcher. At the age of thirteen he began work with a map-engraver; served with the army for a number of years; and was later engaged as a draftsman for illustrated publications. He is best known for his etchings and dry-points, and excelled in pictures of rural life. Among the best of his etchings are "Paysage: troupeau de porcs," "Le matin," "La rentrée," "La labourage," and "Paysage et animaux"; and among his dry-points may be mentioned "Le tueur de cochons." He exhibited for many years at the Salon, and was awarded a number of medals. In 1867 he received the cross of the Legion of Honor. He was interested in the breeding of fowls, and published an illustrated handbook on the subject, "Le poulailler" (1858).

Jadassohn (yä'däs-sōn), Salomon. Born at Breslau, Aug. 13, 1831: died at Leipsic, Feb. 1, 1902. A teacher and composer of music. He studied at the Leipsic Conservatory, and with Liszt at Weimar. He settled in Leipsic as a conductor and teacher, and was called to the conservatory there in 1871. His compositions are numerous, but he is best known by his works on theory and composition.

Jamaica*. The island was visited by an earthquake Jan. 14, 1907, which caused great damage in the city of Kingston.

James (jāmz), Edmund Janes. Born at Jacksonville, Ill., May 21, 1855. An American educator, president of the University of Illinois from 1904. He studied in Northwestern and Harvard universities and in the University of Halle; was professor of finance in the Wharton School of the University of Pennsylvania 1883–95, and of political and social science in that university 1884–95; was professor of public administration in the University of Chicago 1896–1901; and was president of Northwestern University 1902–04. He was first president of the American Academy of Political and Social Science; also founder and first president of the American Society for the Extension of University Teaching.

James (jāmz), William. Born at New York, Jan. 11, 1842: died at Chocorua, N. H., Aug. 26, 1910. An American philosopher, professor in Harvard University from 1885. He became an instructor in Harvard in 1872; was assistant professor of philosophy 1880–85; was professor of philosophy 1885–89; and was professor of psychology from 1889. During 1900–02 he was Gifford lecturer at the University of Edinburgh. He wrote "Principles of Psychology" (1890), "The Will to Believe, and Other Essays" (1897), "Talks to Teachers" (1899), "Human Immortality" (1898), "The Varieties of Religious Experience" (1902), "Pragmatism" (1907), "A Pluralistic Universe" (1909), "The Meaning of Truth: a Sequel to Pragmatism" (1909), "Some Problems in Philosophy: being an Uncompleted Introduction to Philosophy" (1911), etc.

Jameson (jā'me-sọn), John Franklin. Born at Boston, Mass., Sept. 19, 1859. An American historical writer and educator, director of the bureau of historical research in the Carnegie Institution in Washington, D. C., and managing editor of the "American Historical Review" from 1905. He was graduated at Amherst College in 1879; studied at Johns Hopkins University; and was professor of history in Brown University 1888–1901, and in the University of Chicago 1901–05. He has published "A History of Historical Writing in America" (1891), "A Dictionary of United States History" (1894), etc.

Jameson*, Sir Leander Starr. He returned to South Africa; was elected a member of the Cape legislative assembly for Kimberley in 1900; was appointed a director of the De Beers Consolidated Company in 1900, and of the British South Africa Company in 1902; and was premier of Cape Colony 1904–08. Created a baronet 1911.

Jamestown (jāmz'toun). The county-seat of Stutsman County, North Dakota, 90 miles west of Fargo. It is the center of an agricultural and stock-raising region, and has grain-elevators, flour-mills, etc. It is the seat of the State asylum for the insane. Population, 4,358, (1910).

Jamestown Tercentennial Exposition. An exposition held at Sewell's Point, near Norfolk, Va., from April 26 to Nov. 30, 1907, to commemorate the three-hundredth anniversary of the first permanent settlement of English-speaking people in America, and the birth of the American nation. The grounds fronted on Hampton Roads, opposite Old Point Comfort, and covered an area of between three and four hundred acres. The principal buildings were grouped about a square called Raleigh Court. The style of architecture was of the colonial period and most of the buildings were permanent structures. Many of those erected by the different States were reproductions of places famous historically. The exhibits were chiefly historical and industrial in character, and were planned to represent all the great events and every phase of development pertaining to the growth of the American nation. They were divided into the following eight groups: historic art; education and social economy; manufactures and liberal arts (including graphic arts); machinery and transportation (including electricity); agriculture and horticulture; food products and accessories; forestry, fish, and game; and mines and metallurgy. The amusement features were grouped about the so-called "War Path." It was here that the representations of historical events took place. A feature of the exposition was the great naval and military display, in which most of the nations of the world were invited to participate.

Janinay (Hä-nē-nī'). A municipality of Iloilo province, eastern Panay, Philippine Islands. Civilized population, 20,738.

Janvier (zhäṅ'vi-ā), Thomas Allibone. Born at Philadelphia, Pa., July 16, 1849. An American author. He is a member of the Folk Lore Society (London), and an honorary member of the Provençal Félibrige. Among his works are "Color Studies" (1885), "The Mexican Guide" (1887), "The Aztec Treasure House" (1890), "Stories of Old New Spain" (1891), "The Uncle of an Angel, and Other Stories" (1891), "An Embassy to Provence" (1893), "In Old New York" (1894), "In the Sargasso Sea" (1898), "The Passing of Thomas, and Other Stories" (1900), "In Great Waters" (1901), "The Christmas Kalends of Provence, and Other Provençal Festivals" (1902), "The Dutch Founding of New York" (1903), "Santa Fé's Partner" (1907), "Henry Hudson" (1909), etc.

Japan*. By the treaty of Portsmouth, Sept. 5, 1905, Russia transferred to Japan, with the consent of China, the lease of the Kwantung province, including Port Arthur, Ta-lien-wan, Dalny, and also the railway between Chan-Chun and Port Arthur, with all its branches, and the coal-mines connected therewith; and ceded the southern half of the island of Sakhalin. By agreement of Nov. 17, 1905, between Japan and Korea, Japan assumed control of the foreign relations of Korea and provision was made for the establishment of a Japanese resident-general; and on July 31, 1907, a further agreement was concluded by which all administrative measures and high official appointments were to be subject to the approval of the resident-general, and Japanese subjects were eligible for official posts in the government departments. The formal annexation of Korea by Japan was announced in August, 1910.

Jarves (järvis), James Jackson. Born at Boston, Mass., Aug. 20, 1820: died at Tarasp, Switzerland, June 28, 1888. An American writer and connoisseur. He traveled in South America and the Pacific islands, and settled in Honolulu in 1838, where he established in 1840 the "Polynesian," the first Hawaiian newspaper. About 1849 he was appointed special commissioner of the Hawaiian government to negotiate treaties with the United States, France, and Great Britain. After 1851 he lived in Florence, Italy, where from 1879 to 1882 he was United States vice-consul and acting consul. Of his collections, the best of his pictures now form the Jarves Collection at Yale University; other pictures and pieces of sculpture belong to the Hollenden Gallery in Cleveland; and his antique and modern Venetian glass is in the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York city. On matters relating to the fine arts he published "Art Studies: the Old Masters of Italy" (1861), "The Art Idea: including an Account of American Architecture, Sculpture, and Painting" (1866), "Art Thoughts: the Experience and Observations of an American Amateur in Europe" (1869), "Glimpses at the Art of Japan" (1876), and "Italian Rambles" (1884).

Jastrow (jas'trō), Joseph. Born at Warsaw, Poland, Jan. 30, 1863. An American psychologist, professor in the University of Wisconsin from 1888. He has published "Time-relations of Mental Phenomena" (1890), "Fact and Fable in Psychology" (1900), "The Subconscious" (1906), "The Qualities of Men" (1910), and numerous articles in scientific and popular magazines.

Jastrow (jas'trō), Marcus (Mordecai). Born at Rogasen, Prussian Poland, June 5, 1829: died at Germantown, Pa., Oct. 13, 1903. A Hebrew rabbi and scholar. In 1858 he was elected rabbi of Warsaw. He sympathized with the Polish revolution and was imprisoned from Nov. 10, 1861, to Feb. 12, 1862. In 1866 he became rabbi at Philadelphia. He made many contributions to Jewish literature, and completed in 1903 "A Dictionary of the Targumim, the Talmud Babli and Yerushalmi, and the Midrashic Literature."

Jastrow (jas'trō), Morris, Jr. Born at Warsaw, Poland, Aug. 13, 1861. An American Orientalist, professor of Semitic languages and librarian in the University of Pennsylvania. He came to America in 1866; was graduated at the University of Pennsylvania in 1881; and studied later in Germany and France. His publications include "The Grammatical Works of Hayyug" (1897), "Religion of the Babylonians and Assyrians" (1898: rewritten and enlarged edition in German in course of publication since 1903), "The Study of Religion" (1902), etc.

Jaurès (zhō-rās'), Jean Léon. Born at Castres, Tarn, France, Sept. 3, 1859. A French socialist and politician. He entered politics in 1885 as member of the Chamber of Deputies from Tarn, and is noted for his defense of Captain Dreyfus, and for his efforts to unite the factions of French Socialists. He is editor of "La Petite République" and is one of the founders of "L'Humanité." His publications include "Les preuves" (1898), "Action socialiste" (1900), "Études socialistes" (1902), "Discours parlementaires" (1904–), etc.

Jeannette (je-net'). A borough in Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania, 23 miles southeast of Pittsburgh. It has manufactories of glass, lamps, rubber goods, electrical supplies, etc. Population, 8,077, (1910).

Jenks (jengks), Albert Ernest. Born at Ionia, Mich., Nov. 28, 1869. An American ethnologist, professor of anthropology in the University of Minnesota from 1907. He was assistant professor of sociology there 1906–07. He has published "The Bontoc Igorot" (1905), etc.

Jenks (jengks), Jeremiah Whipple. Born at St. Clair, Mich., Sept. 2, 1856. An American political economist, professor of political economy and politics in Cornell University from 1891. He has on various occasions acted for the United States government as an expert or investigator in matters connected with trusts, labor, taxation, currency, immigration, etc. He has published "The Trust Problem" (1900), and many reports and articles on economic subjects.

Jensen (yen'sen), Adolf. Born at Königsberg, Prussia, Jan. 12, 1837: died at Baden-Baden, Jan. 26, 1879. A German composer, best known for his songs and piano pieces, especially several sets for piano (four hands).

Jerome (je-rōm′), Jerome Klapka. Born at Walsall, England, May 2, 1859. An English humorist, writer, and lecturer. He has been at various times clerk, teacher, actor, and journalist. His stage experiences are embodied in "On the Stage—and Off" (1885) and "Stage Land" (1889); and he has written a number of plays, among them "Barbara" (1886), "When Greek meets Greek" (1888), "Sunset" (1888), "New Lamps for Old" (1890), "MacHaggis" (1897), "Miss Hobbs" (1900), "Susan in Search of a Husband" (1906), "Passing of the Third Floor Back" (1908), "The Master of Mrs. Chilvers" (1911). In 1892 he founded the "Idler" with Robert Barr, retiring in 1897, and was editor of "To-day" 1893–97. His publications include also "Idle Thoughts of an Idle Fellow" (1886), "Three Men in a Boat" (1889), "Novel Notes" (1893), "Sketches in Lavender, Blue, and Green" (1897), "Three Men on Wheels" (1900), "Tea Table Talk" (1903), "Tommy & Co." (1904), "American Wives and Others" (1904), "Idle Ideas in 1905" (1905), etc.

Jerome (je-rōm′), William Travers. Born at New York, April 18, 1859. An American lawyer. He was educated at Amherst College and the Law School of Columbia University; was admitted to the bar in 1884; was a justice of special sessions 1895–1902; and was district attorney for New York County 1901–09.

Jersey Shore (jėr′zi shōr). A borough in Lycoming County, Pennsylvania, 15 miles southwest of Williamsport. It has railroad shops, electrical works, cigar factories, etc. Population, 5,381, (1910).

Jesup (jes′up), Morris Ketchum. Born at Westport, Conn., June 21, 1830: died at New York, Jan. 22, 1908. An American philanthropist. He had a successful career as a banker 1852–1884, and was president of the New York Chamber of Commerce 1899–1907. He was an officer and benefactor of many charitable, religious, and scientific institutions and organizations, being at the time of his death president of the Five Points House of Industry (from 1872), the Sailors' Snug Harbor (from 1899), the American Sunday School Union (from 1896), and the American Museum of Natural History (from 1881). He also took an active interest in geographical research, and provided for expeditions to the arctic regions, the Pacific, Siberia, Alaska, and British Columbia.

Jeune (jön), Sir Francis Henry, first Lord St. Helier. Born March 17, 1843: died April 9, 1905. An English judge. He was knighted in 1891; was raised to the peerage in 1905; and was president of the probate, divorce, and admiralty division of the High Court of Justice and judge-advocate-general 1892–1905.

Jeune (jön), Lady (Susan Mary Elizabeth Stewart-Mackenzie). A contemporary English philanthropist and writer, wife of Sir Francis Henry Jeune, first Lord St. Helier. She has contributed to the reviews many articles on social subjects, a number of which have been collected in book form under the title "Lesser Questions" (1894).

Jewett (jū′et), Sarah Orne. Born at South Berwick, Me., Sept. 3, 1849: died there, June 24, 1909. An American author, known for her studies of New England life. Her publications include "Deephaven" (1877), "Play Days" (1878), "Tales of New England" (1879), "Old Friends and New" (1879), "Country Byways" (1881), "The Mate of the Daylight and Friends Ashore" (1883), "A Country Doctor" (1884), "A Marsh Island" (1885), "A White Heron, and Other Stories" (1886), "The Story of the Normans" (1886), "The King of Folly Island and Other People" (1888), "Betty Leicester" (1889), "Strangers and Wayfarers" (1890), "A Native of Winby, and Other Tales" (1893), "Betty Leicester's Christmas" (1894), "The Life of Nancy" (1895), "The Country of the Pointed Firs" (1896), "The Queen's Twin" (1899), and "The Tory Lover" (1901).

Jex-Blake (jeks′blāk′), Sophia. Born 1840. An English physician, lecturer, and writer, a pioneer in medical education for women. She was tutor in mathematics at Queen's College, London, 1858–1861, and began to study medicine at Boston, Massachusetts. In 1869 she matriculated in the medical faculty of the University of Edinburgh, but was not allowed to take a degree, and the action which she brought, with others, against the university was defeated. In 1874 she founded the London School of Medicine for Women, and in 1878 went to Edinburgh, where she opened a dispensary for women and children in 1878, and the Cottage Hospital in 1885. In 1886 she founded the Edinburgh School of Medicine for Women, which was recognized for graduation by the University of Edinburgh in 1894. She is the author of "American Schools and Colleges" (1867), "Medicine as a Profession for Women" (1869), etc.

John Halifax, Gentleman. A story by Dinah Mulock Craik, published in 1857.

Johnson (jon′sọn), Robert Underwood. Born at Washington, D. C., Jan. 12, 1853. An American journalist and poet, associate editor of the "Century Magazine" from 1881, and editor from November, 1909. He originated the movement which resulted in the establishment of the Yosemite National Park, and was made a chevalier of the Legion of Honor in 1891 and of the Order of the Crown of Italy in 1895 for his services in the cause of international copyright. He is the author of "The Winter Hour, and Other Poems" (1892), "Songs of Liberty, and Other Poems" (1897), and "Collected Poems" (1902).

Johnson (jon′sọn), Thomas George. Born at London, England, 1844: died at New York, Oct. 29, 1904. An Anglo-American wood-engraver. He came to New York in 1872. He was especially noted for his engraved portraits, and won a medal at the World's Columbian Exposition in 1893, and exhibited at the Paris Exposition in 1900.

Johnson City (jon′sọn sit′i). A town in Washington County, in northeastern Tennessee. It has machine-shops, brick-plants, furniture factories, etc., and a national Soldiers' Home. Population, 8,502, (1910).

Johnston (jon′stọn). A town in Providence County, Rhode Island. Population, 5,935, (1910).

Johnston (jon′stọn), Sir Harry Hamilton. Born at Kennington, London, June 12, 1858. An English explorer and official in Africa. He was educated at King's College, London; made various journeys in Africa 1879–84 (Portuguese West Africa, Kongo River, Mt. Kilimanjaro); occupied consular positions in various parts of Africa 1885–89; led the expedition which founded the British Central Africa Protectorate in 1889; was commissioner and consul-general 1891; was consul-general at Tunis 1897–99; and was consul-general and commander-in-chief for the Uganda Protectorate 1899–1901. He has published a number of works on Africa, including "Kilimanjaro" (1885), "British Central Africa" (1897), "A History of the Colonization of Africa by Alien Races" (1899), "The Uganda Protectorate" (1902), "The Nile Quest" (1903), "Liberia" (1906), "George Grenfell and the Congo" (1908), "British Empire in Africa" (1910), etc.

Johnston (jon′stọn), Mary. Born at Buchanan, Va., Nov. 21, 1870. An American novelist. She is the author of "Prisoners of Hope" (1898), "To Have and to Hold" (1900), "Audrey" (1902), "Sir Mortimer" (1904), "The Goddess of Reason" (1907), "Lewis Rand" (1908), and "The Long Roll" (1911).

Johnston (jon′stọn), Richard Malcolm. Born in Hancock County, Ga., March 8, 1822: died at Baltimore, Md., Sept. 23, 1898. An American novelist. He was graduated at Mercer University, Macon, Georgia, in 1841; was admitted to the bar; was professor of literature in the University of Georgia, 1857–61; served in the Confederate army; and for several years after 1867 conducted a school near Baltimore. He wrote stories of Southern life, particularly life among the Georgia "crackers." Among his works are "Georgia Sketches" (1864), "Dukesborough Tales, by Philemon Perch" (1871), "Historical Sketch of English Literature" (1872; with W. H. Browne), "Life of Alexander H. Stephens" (1878; with W. H. Browne), "Two Gray Tourists" (1885), "Widow Guthrie" (1890), "The Primes and their Neighbors" (1891), and "Old Times in Middle Georgia" (1897).

Jolly Beggars, The. A humorous cantata by Robert Burns, written about 1785.

Joló (hō-lō′). 1. The largest island of the Joló group in the Sulu (Joló) Archipelago. It belongs to the Joló district of Moro province, and is situated in lat. 6° N. Its surface is hilly. The most important elevations are Bahú, 2,810 feet; Butpula, 2,739 feet; Dajó, 2,100 feet; and Tumatanguis, 2,940 feet in height. The island is inhabited by Moros. The chief town is Joló, the capital of Joló province. Area, 326 square miles. Population, 44,718. Also called Sulu. See ★Dajó. 2. A district of Moro province in the Philippine Islands. It includes the Joló (Sulu), Tawi Tawi, Pangutaran, and other groups of the Sulu (Joló) Archipelago, together with Sibutu, Cagayán de Joló, and adjacent islands. The inhabitants are Moros. The capital, Joló, is situated on the northwestern coast of Joló (Sulu) Island, in lat. 6° 3′ N., long. 121° E. Area of district, 1,042 square miles. Population, 90,589.

Joló (hō-lō′) Group. A group of 28 named and 4 unnamed islands of the Sulu (Joló) Archipelago. It forms a part of the Joló district of Moro province, Philippines. The largest island is Joló (Sulu). Area of the group, 377.3 square miles. See Sulu Islands.

Joló (hō-lō′) Sea. The body of ocean waters inclosed by the Philippine Islands, the Joló (Sulu) Archipelago, and Borneo. It is connected on the east by the Mindanao Sea, the Surigao Sea, and Surigao Strait with the Pacific Ocean, and on the west by Balabac Strait with the China Sea. The northern reach of the waters is known as the Visayan Sea. Also called Sulu Sea.

Jones (jōnz), Harry Clary. Born at New London, Md., Nov. 11, 1865. An American chemist, professor of physical chemistry in Johns Hopkins University from 1904. He was instructor, associate, and associate professor there 1895–1904.

Jones (jōnz), Henry Arthur. Born at Grandborough, Buckinghamshire, England, Sept. 28, 1851. An English dramatist. Among his plays are "Saints and Sinners" (1884), "The Middleman" (1889), "Judah" (1890), "The Crusaders" (1891), "The Case of Rebellious Susan" (1894), "Michael and his Lost Angel" (1896), "The Liars" (1897), "Mrs. Dane's Defence" (1900), "Joseph Entangled" (1904), "The Chevaleer" (1904), "The Heroic Stubbs" (1906), "The Hypocrites" (1906), "The Evangelist" (1907), "We Can't be as Bad as All That" (1910), etc. He has also published a volume of essays on "The Renascence of the English Drama" (1895).

Jonesboro (jōnz′bur-ō). The county-seat of Craighead County, Arkansas, 60 miles northwest of Memphis. It is in a lumber region and has lumber-mills, wagon- and box-factories, etc. Population, 7,123, (1910).

Jongleur de Notre-Dame (zhôṅ-glėr′ dė nō′tr-däm′), Le. An opera by Massenet (words by Léna), first produced at Monte Carlo in 1902.

Jordan*, David Starr. His later works include "Fishes of North and Middle America" (with B. W. Evermann: 1896–1900), "Factors in Organic Evolution" (1894), "Care and Culture of Men" (1896), "Foot-notes to Evolution" (1898), "Imperial Democracy" (1899), "American Food and Game Fishes" (1902: with B. W. Evermann), "The Voice of the Scholar" (1903), "The Call of the Twentieth Century" (1903), "Guide to the Study of Fishes" (1905), "Life's Enthusiasms" (1906), "The Human Harvest" (1907), "The College and the Man" (1907), "Fossil Fishes of California" (1907), "Evolution and Animal Life" (1907: with V. L. Kellogg), "Fishes" (1908), "Scientific Aspects of Luther Burbank's Work" (1909: with V. L. Kellogg), etc.

Joubert (jö′bert or zhö-bâr′), Petrus Jacobus. Born in Cape Colony, Jan. 20, 1831: died at Pretoria, March 27, 1900. An eminent Boer general and statesman. He settled in the South African Republic as a farmer and ranchman; became a member of the Volksraad; was made attorney-general in 1870; and in 1874 was acting president. When hostilities began with England (1880–81) he was appointed commandant-general, and gained the victories of Laing's Neck, Ingogo, and Majuba Hill. He was again acting president 1883–84, and in 1899 assumed command of the Boer forces in the last war with England. He conducted the Natal campaign and the siege of Ladysmith, but was forced to retire on account of ill health.

Jowett (jou′et), John Henry. Born at Halifax, Yorkshire, Aug. 25, 1864. An English Congregational minister. He was educated at Airedale College, Bradford, and at Edinburgh and Oxford universities; became minister of St. James's Congregational Church, Newcastle-on-Tyne, in 1889, and of Carr's Lane Congregational Church, Birmingham, in 1896; and was chosen pastor of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church, New York, in 1911. He has published "Apostolic Optimism," "From Strength to Strength," "The Passion for Souls," "Silver Lining," "The Transfigured Church," etc.

Judd (jud), Charles Hubbard. Born at Bareilly, British India, Feb. 20, 1873. A British-American psychologist, professor of education in the University of Chicago from 1909. He was assistant professor and professor in Yale University 1904–09. He has published "Genetic Psychology for Teachers" (1903), "Psychology Laboratory Course" (1907), etc.

Jude the Obscure. A novel by Thomas Hardy, published in 1896 (serially in "Harper's Magazine" as "Hearts Insurgent," 1895).

Judson (jud′sọn), Harry Pratt. Born at Jamestown, N. Y., Dec. 20, 1849. An American educator, president of the University of Chicago from 1907. He was graduated at Williams College in 1870; and was professor of history and political science in the University of Minnesota 1885–1907.

Juniata (jö-ni-at′ạ). A borough in Blair County, Pennsylvania, 2 miles northeast of Altoona. Population, 5,285, (1910).

Junior Carlton, The. A London club established in 1864 for the purpose of relieving the waiting-list of the Carlton. It is a political club, strictly Conservative, and has a membership of over 2,000. Its house is on Pall Mall.

Junior Constitutional Club. A London political club (Unionist), founded in 1887. It has a membership of 5,000. Its house is at 101 Piccadilly.

Junípero. See Serra.

Jusserand (zhüs-räṅ′), Jean Adrien Antoine Jules. Born at Lyons, France, Feb. 18, 1855. A French diplomatist and author. He was educated for the law at Lyons, and in 1876 entered the Foreign Office. He was councilor of the embassy at London 1887–1890; was minister at Copenhagen in 1898; and has been ambassador at Washington since 1902. In 1892 he was made an officer of the Legion of Honor. He is the author of "Les Anglais au moyen âge; la vie nomade et les routes d'Angleterre au XIVe siècle" (1884: crowned by the French Academy), "A French Ambassador at the Court of Charles II." (1892), "Histoire littéraire du peuple anglais" (1894), "English Essays from a French Pen" (1895), "Shakespeare en France sous l'ancien régime" (1898), "Les sports et jeux d'exercice dans l'ancienne France" (1901), "Literary History of the English People," etc.

Kai-ping (kī-ping′). A town in southern Manchuria, situated on the railroad near the western coast of the Liao-tung Peninsula, about thirty miles below the mouth of the Liao River.

Kalispell, or Kalispel (kal′-is-pel). The county-seat of Flathead County, Montana, 175 miles northwest of Butte. It has flour-mills, lumber-mills, and a brewery, and is now an important trade center. Population, 5,549, (1910).

Kamimura (kä-mi-mö′rä), Baron Hikonojo. Born in Satsuma, May 5, 1850. A Japanese naval officer, promoted vice-admiral in 1903. He fought, as captain, in the Chinese-Japanese war (1894–95), and during the Russo-Japanese war commanded the second Japanese squadron. On August 14, 1904, he fought with the Russian cruiser squadron from Vladivostok, sinking the Rurik and damaging the Gromoboi and Rossia. In 1905 he was appointed commander-in-chief of the Yokosuka admiralty.

Kamphausen (kämp′hou-zen), Adolf. Born in Solingen, Prussia, Sept. 10, 1829: died Aug. 18, 1909. A German Protestant theologian, professor in the University of Bonn from 1863. He has written "Das lied Moses" (1862), "Das Gebet des Herrn" (1866), "Das Buch Daniel und die neuere Geschichtsforschung" (1893), "Das Verhältniss des Menschenopfers zur israelitischen Religion" (1896), etc.

Kam-ranh (käm′rän) Bay. A bay on the southeastern coast of French Indo-China, situated in about lat. 12° N.

Kane (kān). A borough in McKean County, Pennsylvania, 72 miles southeast of Erie. It is frequented for fishing and deer-shooting. It has glass-works, lumber-mills, chemical works, etc., and has deposits of oil and gas in the vicinity. Population, 6,626, (1910).

Kaneko (kä-nā′kō), Viscount Kentaro. Born at Fukuoka, Feb., 1853. A Japanese statesman and diplomatist, a member of the House of Peers. He was graduated at Harvard University in 1878; was private secretary to Marquis Ito 1885–90; and was minister of agriculture and commerce from April to June, 1898, and of justice from Oct., 1900, to May, 1901. In 1894 he was sent to the United States as a diplomatic agent of Japan. He was made a member of the privy council in 1906. He was created baron 1895, and viscount 1907.

Kanem*. It was recognized as coming within the French sphere of influence by the Anglo-French agreement of 1899, and since 1903 has ceased to be a state, and is now a district of the Shari territory. Capital, Maô.

Kankakee (kang-ka-kē′) Peninsula. A peninsula which is supposed by geologists to have existed in the sea of Middle Devonian time, in the United States, west of the Indiana basin.

Kansas, University of. See ★University of Kansas.

Karsten*, Hermann. His later works include "Chemismus der Pflanzenzelle" (1869), "Zur Geschichte der Botanik" (1870), "Deutsche Flora, pharmazeutisch-medizinische Botanik" (1883), "Geologie de l'ancienne Colombie" (1886), etc. He also edited "Botanischen Untersuchungen aus dem physiologischen Laboratorium in Berlin" (1865–67).

Kathleen Mavourneen. A song by Louise Macartney Crawford, an American writer of the 19th century. The music was written by Frederick N. Crouch (1808–96), and the words have been attributed also to Mrs. Anne (Barry) Crawford.

Kato (kä′tō), Taka-akira. Born at Nagoya in 1859. A Japanese diplomat, ambassador to Great Britain 1908–. He was graduated from the Imperial University at Tokio in 1881; entered the foreign office in 1887; represented Japan in England 1894–99; was minister for foreign affairs 1900–01 and for a few months under Saionji in 1906; and succeeded Count Komura at London in 1908.

Katsura (kät-sö′rä), Marquis Taro. Born in Choshu, November, 1847. A Japanese statesman and general, premier 1901–Jan. 6, 1906, and 1908–11. He fought in the civil war for the restoration; studied military science in Germany; was military attaché in Berlin 1875–78; was vice-minister of war 1886–91; commanded the Nagoya division during the Chinese war; and was minister of war 1898–1900. In 1902 he concluded the Anglo-Japanese treaty which insured to Japan freedom of action in the subsequent war with Russia. He was created viscount 1895, count 1902, and marquis 1907.

Kaulbach (koul′bäċh), Hermann. Born at Munich, July 26, 1846: died there, Dec. 8, 1909. A German painter, son of Wilhelm von Kaulbach. He was a pupil of Karl von Piloty. He painted historical and genre scenes, and was particularly known for his pictures of childhood. Among his paintings are "Hänsel and Gretel with the Witch," "Mozart's Last Days," "Lucrezia Borgia Dances before her Father," "The Coronation of St. Elizabeth," and "The End of the Song."

Kaulbars (koul′bärz), Alexander von. Born at St. Petersburg, 1844. A Russian traveler and general. He explored the Tian-Shan Mountains 1869–72; and was a member of the Amu Daria expedition under Gluchowski in 1873. After the Russo-Turkish war of 1877–78 he was one of the commission for the demarcation of Servia, and was minister of war in Bulgaria July, 1882,–Sept., 1883. He became chief of the second Siberian army corps in China in 1900, and commander-in-chief of the Odessa military district in 1904; and commanded the third and later the second Manchurian army in the Russo-Japanese war in 1905. He is the author of various geographical and military publications.

Kawamura (kä-wä-mö′rä), Viscount Kagêaki. Born in Satsuma, February, 1859. A Japanese general. He led a brigade in the Chinese-Japanese war (1894–95), and in the war with Russia (1905) commanded an army which formed the extreme Japanese right in the battles about Mukden.

Keane (kēn), Augustus Henry. Born at Cork, Ireland, June 1, 1833. A British ethnologist and geographer, professor emeritus of Hindustani in University College, London. He has published works on Asia, Africa, and Central and South America, "Ethnology" (1895), "Man, Past and Present" (1899), "The Boer States, Land, and People" (1900), "Gold of Ophir: Whence Brought and by Whom?", "The World's Peoples" (1908).

Kearney (kär′ni). The county-seat of Buffalo County, Nebraska, 127 miles west of Lincoln. It has machine-shops, flour-mills, etc., and is a shipping-point for grain. It is the seat of a State industrial school and the Western State Normal School. Population, 6,202, (1910).

Kearny (kär′ni). A town in Hudson County, New Jersey, situated on the east bank of the Passaic River, and connected by bridge with Newark. It has a soldiers' home and other institutions, and manufactures of chemicals, linoleum, wire, metal goods, etc. Population, 18,659, (1910).

Keen (kēn), William Williams. Born at Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 19, 1837. An American surgeon, professor in Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, 1889–1907. Among his various publications are an "American Textbook of Surgery" (1899), "Keen's System of Surgery" (1905), etc.

Kekule von Stradonitz (kek′ö-le fon strä′dō-nits), Friedrich August. Born at Darmstadt, Germany, Sept. 7, 1829: died at Bonn, July 13, 1896. A distinguished German chemist, professor at Bonn from 1869, especially noted as the founder of the theory of valency. His works are fundamental in the history of organic chemistry.

Keller (kel′ėr), Helen Adams. Born at Tuscumbia, Alabama, June 27, 1880. An American writer, deaf and blind from the age of nineteen months. She was graduated at Radcliffe College in 1904, and has written various contributions to magazines, poems, "The Story of My Life" (1902), "Optimism" (1903), "The World I live in" (1908), "The Song of the Stone Wall" (1910), etc. Her education was conducted from 1887 by Miss A. M. Sullivan (Mrs. J. A. Macy).

Kelley (kel′i), Florence. Born at Philadelphia, Sept. 12, 1859. An American social worker. She was graduated at Cornell University in 1882, held the position of State inspector of factories for Illinois 1893–97, and in 1899 became secretary of the National Consumers' League. She is the author of "Some Ethical Gains through Legislation."

Kellogg (kel′ȯg), Vernon Lyman. Born at Emporia, Kansas, Dec. 1, 1867. An American entomologist, professor in Stanford University from 1896. He was assistant and associate professor there 1894–96. He has published "Elements of Insect Anatomy" (1889: with J. H. Comstock), "Elementary Zoölogy" (1901), "American Insects" (1904), etc.

Kelly, Myra. See ★Macnaughtan, Mrs. Allan.

Keltie (kel′ti), John Scott. Born at Dundee, Scotland, March 29, 1840. A Scotch geographer and statistician, editor (from 1880) of the "Statesman's Year-book" and editor of the "Geographical Journal" of the Royal Geographical Society, of which he is secretary.

Kemeys (kem′ēs), Edward. Born at Savannah, Ga., Jan. 31, 1843: died May 11, 1907. An American sculptor. He was educated in New York, and enlisted in the Federal army in the Civil War, rising to the rank of captain of artillery. In art he was self-taught. In 1878 he exhibited in the Paris Salon a group of "Bison and Wolves"; in 1887 modeled a colossal bison's head for the Omaha bridge of the Union Pacific Railroad; and designed several colossal groups for the Chicago Exposition of 1893, where he was awarded two medals. He was one of the earliest American sculptors to treat animals successfully.

Kemp (kemp), James Furman. Born at New York, Aug. 14, 1859. An American geologist, professor of geology at Columbia University from 1892. He was graduated at Amherst College in 1881 and at the School of Mines, Columbia University, in 1884; studied abroad; was assistant professor of geology at Cornell University 1888–91; and was adjunct professor at Columbia 1891–92. He has been connected, as geologist, with the United States Geological Survey and the Geological Survey of the State of New York. His publications include "Ore Deposits of the United States and Canada" (1893–1900), "Handbook of Rocks" (1896–1901), and various technical papers.

Kendall (ken′dal), William Mitchell. Born at Jamaica Plain, Mass., Feb. 13, 1856. An American architect. He was graduated at Harvard University in 1872, and also studied at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and in France and Italy. He is a member of the firm of McKim, Mead, and White.

Kennedy (ken′e-di), Charles Rann. Born at Derby, England, Feb. 14, 1871. An English dramatist, theatrical manager, and actor. He joined Ben Greet and appeared in Shaksperian parts, coming to New York in 1903. He married the actress Edith Wynne Matthison. He has written "What Men Dare," "The Servant in the House," and "The Winterfeast."

Kennington Oval (ken′ing-ton ō′val). A famous English cricket-ground on the Surrey side of South London.

Kenton (ken′ton). The county-seat of Hardin County, Ohio, 56 miles northwest of Columbus. It has manufactories of hardware, tools, etc. Population, 7,185, (1910).

Kentucky University. A coeducational institution of learning situated at Lexington, Kentucky. It is the outgrowth of Bacon College, established at Georgetown, Kentucky, by the Disciples of Christ in 1836. The institution was chartered as Kentucky University in 1858; was united with the Transylvania University (founded in 1799) in 1865; and held its first session in Lexington in that year. The university comprises 6 colleges (liberal arts, Junior College for Women in Hamilton College, the Bible, law, medical, and commercial) and the Academy. The students number about 1,200. In 1908 the name was changed back to Transylvania University.

Keppel (kep′l), Sir Henry. Born at Kensington, June 14, 1809: died at London, Jan. 17, 1904. A British naval officer, appointed admiral of the fleet in 1875. He commanded the naval brigade at Sebastopol July–September, 1855; served in the Chinese war in 1857; and was promoted rear-admiral in 1857, and admiral in 1869. He wrote "Reminiscences" (1898), "A Sailor's Life under Four Sovereigns" (1899), etc.

Kerens (ke′renz), Richard C. Born at Killberry, County Meath, Ireland, in 1842. An American diplomatist, appointed ambassador to Austria in 1909. He was a member of the United States Intercontinental Railway Commission 1892–1900.

Kerr (ker or kėr), John. Born at Ardrossan, Ayrshire, Dec. 7, 1824: died at Glasgow, Aug. 18, 1907. A Scotch physicist, mathematical lecturer in the Free Church Normal Training College in Glasgow 1857–1901. He is best known from his work on electricity and light and for his discovery of the "Kerr effect" (a magnetic effect upon the plane of polarization of a plane-polarized ray of light).

Ketchikan (kech-i-kän′). A town on the island of Revillagigedo, Alaska. It is the port of entry for southeastern Alaska, and has important mining, fishing, and canning interests. It has a wireless telegraph station. Population, about 1,000.

Kewanee (kē-wä′nē). A city in Henry County, Illinois, 120 miles northeast of Quincy. It is in a coal-mining region, and has boiler-works and manufactories of pumps, wagons, farming implements, etc. Population, 9,307, (1910).

Khartum*, or Khartoum. It is the capital of the province of Khartum, one of the thirteen provinces into which the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan is divided. It is also the capital and seat of government of the provinces. The Gordon Memorial College, established through the efforts of Viscount Kitchener, was opened in 1902.

Khilkof (kil′kof), Prince Michael Ivanovitch. Died at St. Petersburg, March 21, 1909. A Russian official. In the early seventies he went to America, where he studied railroad engineering for a number of years. He then accepted a position in Caracas as chief engineer of a Venezuelan railway in process of construction, and after two years returned to Russia, where he finally became minister of ways and communications (1895–1905) and a member of the council of the empire. It was due to his administrative ability and energy that the service of the Trans-Siberian Railway was made effective for the transportation of troops and supplies in the Russo-Japanese war.

Kidd (kid), Benjamin. Born Sept. 9, 1858. An English sociologist. He has written "Social Evolution" (1894), "The Control of the Tropics" (1898), "The Principles of Western Civilization" (1902), and "Individualism and After" (1908), etc.

Kidder (kid′ėr), Frank Eugene. Born at Bangor, Maine, Nov. 3, 1859: died at Denver, Col., Oct. 27, 1905. An American engineer and architect. He produced a series of valuable books on construction, including "The Architect's and Builder's Pocket-book" (1884: rewritten 1905), "Churches and Chapels" (1895), and "Building Construction and Superintendence" (1896–1906), etc.

Kimberley Gold-field. A gold-mining district in the northeastern part of Western Australia.

Kin-chau (kin-chou'). 1. A city of Manchuria, situated in the province of Sheng-king, near the extreme northwestern coast of Liao-tung Gulf, on the Eastern Chinese Railway.—2. A town in southern Manchuria, situated on Kin-chau Bay near the isthmus which joins the Kwang-tung peninsula to the mainland. It was captured from the Russians by the Japanese in May, 1904.

King (king), Charles. Born at Albany, N. Y., Oct. 12, 1844. An American soldier and novelist. He was graduated at West Point in 1866; became captain in 1879, inspector and instructor of the Wisconsin National Guard 1882–89, colonel in 1890, adjutant-general in 1895, and brigadier-general of United States Volunteers in the war against Spain in May, 1898; and served under General Lawton in the Philippine Islands. In 1902 he was commandant of the Michigan Military Academy. His works include many army stories, among them "The Colonel's Daughter" (1883), "Marion's Faith" (1885), "Between the Lines" (1889), "Captain Blake" (1892), "Cadet Days" (1893), "The Iron Brigade" (1902), "Medal of Honor" (1905), "Tonio, Son of the Sierras" (1906), "Rock of Chickamauga" (1907), "To the Front" (1908), and "Lanier of the Cavalry" (1909); also "Famous and Decisive Battles of the World" (1885), "Campaigning with Crook" (1890), etc.

King (king), Clarence. Born at Newport, R. I., Jan. 6, 1842: died at Phœnix, Ariz., Dec. 24, 1901. An American geologist and mining engineer. He conducted, 1867–72, for the United States government, the geological survey of a belt extending across the Rocky Mountains along the 40th parallel of latitude, and was the first director of the United States Geological Survey (1879–81).

King (king), Hamilton. Born at St. John's, Newfoundland, June 4, 1852. An American diplomatist. He was minister resident and consul-general to Siam 1898–1903, and envoy extraordinary and minister 1903–.

King (king), Henry Churchill. Born at Hillsdale, Mich., Sept. 18, 1858. An American educator and author, president of Oberlin College from 1902. He was educated at Oberlin College and Harvard and Berlin universities, and became professor of philosophy at Oberlin in 1891, and professor of theology in 1897. He has published an "Outline of Erdmann's History of Philosophy" (1892), "Outline of the Microcosmus of Hermann Lotze" (1895), "Reconstruction in Theology" (1901), "Rational Living" (1905), "The Ethics of Jesus" (1909), etc.

King Oscar II. Land. A land within the antarctic regions, about lat. 65° S., long. 62° W., discovered by Larsen in December, 1893.

King's Daughters and Sons, International Order of The. An interdenominational religious and philanthropic society, with headquarters in New York, founded by Mrs. Bottome and nine other women in 1886. It works locally in circles, county and city unions, chapters, and State and national organizations. Membership, over 50,000.

Kingsley (kingz'li), John Sterling. Born at Cincinnatus, N. Y., April 7, 1854. An American naturalist, professor of zoölogy at Tufts College from 1892. He has published "Elements of Comparative Zoölogy" (1897), "Text-book of Vertebrate Zoölogy" (1899), "A Popular Natural History" (1899), etc., and edited the "Standard Natural History" (1886) and the "American Naturalist" (1886–96). He has also translated and edited Hertwig's "Manual of Zoölogy" (1902).

Kingsley (kingz'li), Mary Henrietta. Born at Islington, London, Oct., 1862: died at Simon's Town, Cape Colony, June 5, 1900. An English traveler and author, niece of Charles Kingsley. She went to Saint Paul de Loanda, Portuguese West Africa, in 1893, and in 1895 explored the Niger Coast Protectorate, Kamerun, and Gabun. In 1900 she went to South Africa and devoted herself to nursing the wounded in the Simon's Town military hospital. She wrote accounts of her travels in "Travels in West Africa" (1897), "West African Studies" (1899), "The Story of West Africa" (1899), etc.

King's Norton (kingz nôr'ton). A manufacturing town in Worcestershire, England. It has paper-mills, rolling-mills, a screw-factory, chocolate-factory, etc. Here the Birmingham and Worcester Canal flows through a tunnel nearly two miles long. Population, 35,790.

Kingston (king'ston). A borough in Luzerne County, Pennsylvania, on the Susquehanna River, opposite Wilkes-Barre, with which it is connected by two bridges. It has coal-mines and motor-car works, and is the seat of Wyoming Seminary. Population, 6,449, (1910).

Kinston (kin'ston). The county-seat of Lenoir County, North Carolina, 73 miles northeast of Wilmington. It is the shipping-point for the surrounding tobacco and cotton region, and has lumber-mills and various manufactories. Population, 6,995, (1910).

Kipling (kip'ling), John Lockwood. Born at Pickering, Yorkshire, in 1837: died at Tisbury, Wiltshire, Jan. 29, 1911. An English artist. He was by profession an architectural sculptor, and was director of the Bombay (India) School of Art 1865–75, and principal of the Mayo School of Art and curator of the Central Museum at Lahore 1875–93. He published "Beast and Man in India" (1891), and also illustrated the works of his son, Rudyard Kipling.

Kipling*, Rudyard. He was awarded the Nobel prize for literature in 1907. His later works include "Captains Courageous" (1897), "The Day's Work" (1898), "Stalky and Co." (1899), "From Sea to Sea" (1899), "Kim" (1901), "Just So Stories for Little Children" (1902), "The Five Nations" (1903), "Traffics and Discoveries" (1904), "They" (1906), "Puck of Pook's Hill" (1906), "Actions and Reactions" (1909), "Rewards and Fairies" (1910), "A History of England" (1911: with C. R. L. Fletcher), etc.

Kirchwey (kêrsh'wā), George Washington. Born at Detroit, Mich., July 3, 1855. An American lawyer, author, and educator, dean of the School of Law and Kent professor of law in Columbia University from 1901. He was graduated at Yale in 1879, and was admitted to the bar in 1881. He was editor of historical manuscripts for the State of New York 1887–89; professor of law at Union University and dean of the Albany Law School 1889–91; and professor of law at Columbia 1891–. He has edited and compiled "Readings in the Law of Real Property" (1900) and "Select Cases and Other Authorities on the Law of Mortgage" (1901).

Kirk (kêrk), Mrs. (Ellen Warner Olney): pseudonym Henry Hayes. Born at Southington, Conn., Nov. 6, 1842. An American novelist, wife of John Foster Kirk. Among her publications are "Love in Idleness" (1877), "Through Winding Ways" (1879), "A Midsummer Madness" (1884), "The Story of Margaret Kent" (1886), "Sons and Daughters" (1887), "Queen Money" (1888), "Walford" (1890), "The Revolt of a Daughter" (1897), "Dorothy Deane" (1898), "Good-bye, Proud World" (1903), "The Apology of Ayliffe" (1904), "Marcia" (1907), etc.

Kirksville (kêrks'vil). The county-seat of Adair County, Missouri, 65 miles northwest of Quincy, Illinois. It contains the original American School of Osteopathy and a State normal school. Population, 6,347, (1910).

Kirunga (ki-rön'gä). An active volcano in the Belgian Kongo, on the shore of Lake Kivu, north of Lake Tanganyika. It was discovered by Count von Götzen. Height, over 12,000 feet.

Kishinef*. A massacre of the Jews occurred here, Sept. 6, 1906.

Kitasato (kē-tä-sä'tō), Shibasaburo. Born at Kumamoto, Japan, Dec., 1856. A Japanese bacteriologist and pathologist, discoverer (1894) of the plague bacillus and (1898) of the bacillus of dysentery. He studied in Berlin, under Koch, 1886–91; became assistant (1891) in the Institute for Infectious Diseases; and was appointed professor in 1892. In 1893 he returned to Japan to take charge of the Bacteriological Institute connected with the University of Tokio, and in 1896 became director of the Institute for Infectious Diseases established at Shiteta in the province of Yechigo. He produced the first pure culture of the tetanus bacillus.

Kjerulf (kyär'ölf), Theodor. Born at Christiania, March 30, 1825: died there, Oct. 25, 1888. A Norwegian geologist, professor of mineralogy and geology in the University of Christiania from 1858.

Klein (klīn), Charles. Born at London, Jan. 7, 1867. An Anglo-American playwright. He was for some time reader of plays for Charles Frohman. Among his best-known plays are "By Proxy," "The Charlatan," "The Music Master," "The Lion and the Mouse," "The Daughters of Men," and "The Third Degree." He has also written several comic operas, including "El Capitan" and "Mr. Pickwick."

Kneisel (knī'zel), Franz. Born at Bukharest, Jan. 26, 1865. A Rumanian violin virtuoso. He studied at the conservatories at Bukharest and Vienna, winning first prizes. He was solo violinist and concert-master of the Boston Symphony Orchestra 1888–1903, and is now (1911) leader of the quartet that bears his name. Since 1905 he has been head of the string department in the Institute of Musical Art, New York.

Knight (nīt), Joseph. Born in 1829: died at London, June 23, 1907. An English journalist, editor of "Notes and Queries" 1883–1907. He was called to the bar in 1863, but became a dramatic critic, writing for many years for the London "Athenæum," "Globe," and other periodicals. He published a "Life of Dante Gabriel Rossetti" (1887), "Life of David Garrick" (1894), etc., and contributed articles to the "Dictionary of National Biography."

Knight Case, The. A case decided by the United States Supreme Court in 1895, in which the E. C. Knight and other companies subsidiary to the American Sugar Refining Company were allowed to continue in combination, on the ground that they were manufacturers and not engaged in trade or commerce, and were therefore outside the Anti-trust Act of July 2, 1890.

Knight's Key (nīts kē). One of the "keys," or small islands, which extend southwest from the southern coast of Florida. It has a wireless telegraph station. Steamers of different lines land at Knight's Key dock.

Knollys (nōlz), Francis, first Viscount Knollys. Born July 16, 1837. An English court official. He was appointed private secretary in 1870 to the Prince of Wales, afterward King Edward VII., and in 1910 to King George V. In 1902 he was made a baron, and in 1911 a viscount.

Knowles (nōlz), Horace Greeley. Born at Seaford, Del., Oct. 20, 1863. An American diplomatist. He was consul at Bordeaux, France, 1889–93, minister to Rumania and Servia 1907–09, and minister to Nicaragua in 1909, and became minister resident and consul-general to the Dominican Republic in December, 1909. He was appointed minister to Bolivia in 1911.

Knowlton (nōl'ton), Frank Hall. Born at Brandon, Vt., Sept. 2, 1860. An American paleobotanist, geologist of the United States Geological Survey from 1907. He was assistant paleontologist and paleontologist of the survey 1894–1907, and professor of botany in George Washington University 1887–96.

Knox (noks), Philander Chase. Born at Brownsville, Pa., May 6, 1853. An American lawyer and cabinet officer. He was graduated at Mount Union College, Alliance, Ohio, in 1872; was admitted to the bar in 1875; was assistant United States district attorney for the Western District of Pennsylvania 1876–77; was attorney-general in the cabinet of President McKinley 1901–04; was United States senator (Republican) from Pennsylvania 1904–09; and was secretary of state 1909–.

Knox College. A non-sectarian coeducational college situated at Galesburg, Illinois. It was chartered in 1837 under the name of the Knox Manual Labor College and its name was changed to Knox College in 1857. The plan of the college, originated at Whitesboro, New York, included the purchasing of lands in the Mississippi Valley by the colony which founded Galesburg as a body. Half the present township of Galesburg was purchased under this plan. The institution now comprises the college, an academy, and a conservatory of music, and has a student body of about 700 and an endowment of over $400,000.

Knoxville (noks'vil). A borough in Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, about 2 miles southwest of Pittsburgh. Population, 5,651, (1910).

Koch*, Robert. In 1905 he was awarded the Nobel prize in medicine.

Kocher (koch'er), Emil Theodor. Born at Bern, Aug. 25, 1841. A Swiss surgeon, professor of surgery in the University of Bern from 1872. He has made important investigations with reference to the thyroid gland, and has published many works on surgical and pathological subjects. In 1909 he received the Nobel prize for medicine.

Kodama (kō-dä'mä), Viscount Gentaro. Born on the island of Sikoku, Tokuyama, Feb. 5, 1852: died at Tokio, July 23, 1906. A noted Japanese general and strategist, chief of staff of the Manchurian army during the war with Russia (1904–05). He studied military science in Germany; was governor-general of Formosa and minister of war 1900–02; and was minister of home affairs in 1903. To his skill is attributed, in large measure, the success of the Japanese arms in Manchuria.

Kohlrausch (kōl'roush), Friedrich. Born at Rinteln, Prussia, Oct. 14, 1840: died at Marburg, Jan. 17, 1910. A German physicist. He was professor of physics at Göttingen, Zurich, Darmstadt, Würzburg, and Strasburg successively, and was president of the Imperial Physical-Technical Institute at Charlottenburg 1895–1905. He was especially noted for his investigations in electricity and magnetism.

Kohut (kō'hŏt), Alexander. Born at Félegyháza, Hungary, April 22, 1842: died at New York, May 25, 1894. A Jewish rabbi and Orientalist. His best known work is a critical edition of the classical dictionary of the Talmud, the "Aruch" of Nathan ben Jechiel. Kohut called his work the "Aruch Completum." It consists of eight volumes, and is a monumental contribution to Hebrew learning.

Koldewey (kōl'de-vā), Karl. Born in Bücken, Hannover, Oct. 26, 1837: died at Hamburg, May 18, 1908. A German arctic explorer. He undertook in 1868 the first German polar expedition to Spitzbergen, and 1869–70 an expedition to eastern Greenland. He discovered the large Franz Joseph's Fiord. During his later years he was one of the superintendents of the Seewarte of Hamburg. He published accounts of his voyages.

Kölliker*, Rudolf Albert von. He was professor of anatomy, microscopy, and the history of development 1866–1902. His later works include "Icones histologicæ" (1863–65), "Anatomisch-systematische Beschreibung der Alcyonarien" (1870–72), "Morphologie und Entwickelungsgeschichte des Pennatulidenstammes" (1872), "Die normale Resorption des Knochengewebes" (1873), "Grundriss der Entwickelungsgeschichte des Menschen und der höhern Tiere" (1880), "Die Medulla oblongata und die Vierhügelgegend von Ornithorhynchus und Echidna" (1901), "Erinnerungen aus meinem Leben" (1899), etc. From 1849 he was one of the editors of the "Zeitschrift für wissenschaftliche Zoologie."

Komura (kō-mō'rä), Count Jutaro. Born in Hyuga, September, 1855. A Japanese statesman and diplomatist, senior Japanese plenipotentiary for the negotiation of peace with Russia at Portsmouth in 1905. He was graduated at Harvard in 1877; entered the diplomatic service on his return; was chargé d'affaires at Peking 1894–95; was appointed minister to the United States in 1898 and to Russia 1900; was foreign minister 1901–06 and 1908–; and ambassador to Great Britain 1906–08. He was created baron in 1903 and count in 1907.

Kongo*, French. By decree of Feb. 15, 1906, it was divided into three colonies: the Gabun Colony, the Middle Kongo Colony, and the Ubangi-Shari-Chad Colony, the Chad region being administered as a territory. Statesman's Year-book.

Kongo Free State*. It was annexed to Belgium in October, 1908. The territory is divided for administrative purposes into 14 districts: Aruwimi, Banana, Bangala, Boma, the Cataracts, Equator, Kwango Oriental, Lake Leopold II., Lualaba-Kasai, Matadi, Stanley Falls, Stanley Pool, Ubangi, and Welle. Government is in the hands of a governor-general, representing the king.

Königskinder (kė'nigs-kin-der), Die. [G., 'The King's Children.'] An opera by Engelbert Humperdinck (words by Frau Elsa Bernstein), first produced at New York, Dec. 28, 1910.

Koninck (kō'ningk), Philip de. Born at Amsterdam, Nov. 5, 1619: died there, Oct. 4, 1688. A Dutch painter. His work is entirely confined to landscape, usually extensive views over the flat Dutch country in the manner of Rembrandt. His pictures show an attractive truth to nature and sense of distance. The color is usually pure and fine. His works are rare.

Korea*. The government was a monarchy, and the emperor was advised by a cabinet of ten ministers. It passed under Japanese control in 1904. In 1905 a treaty was signed with Japan giving to that country the control of the foreign relations of Korea and providing for a Japanese resident-general, and in 1907 a further agreement was reached by which administrative and other state matters were to be subject to the approval of the resident-general and Japanese subjects were to be eligible for government positions. In August, 1910, Japan formally annexed Korea as the province of Cho-sen. The country is divided for administrative purposes into 13 provinces.

Korngold (korn'gōlt), Erich Wolfgang. Born at Brünn, Moravia, in 1897. An Austrian composer and pianist. At the age of five he began playing piano duets with his father, and at eight had written his first musical composition. "Der Schneemann," a pantomime ballet which he wrote at the age of eleven, was orchestrated by his teacher, Alexander von Zemlinsky, and produced in October, 1910, at the Vienna Opera. He has also written a sonata in D minor for piano, a trio, and six character pieces for piano, entitled "Don Quixote." He has appeared in concert, playing his own compositions.

Kossel (kos'sel), Albrecht. Born at Rostock, Mecklenburg-Schwerin, Sept. 16, 1853. A German physiologist, professor in Heidelberg University. He is especially noted for his work in physiological chemistry. In 1910 he was awarded the Nobel prize for medicine.

Kossuth (kosh'öt), Franz. Born at Budapest, Nov. 16, 1841. A Hungarian statesman, son of Louis Kossuth. He suffered exile with his father; was educated at Paris and in University College, London; went to Italy in 1861 as a civil engineer; and in 1894, on the death of his father, returned to Hungary and took the oath of allegiance as a Hungarian subject. He soon became the leader of the Independence party in the Hungarian Parliament. In 1904 he united his forces with those of Count Apponyi and became the leader of the coalesced parties. In April, 1906, he became minister of commerce in the cabinet of Alexander Wekerle.

Krafft-Ebing (kräft'ā'bing), Richard, Baron von. Born at Mannheim, Aug. 14, 1840: died at Mariagrün, near Gratz, Dec. 22, 1902. A noted German physician and neurologist. He was professor of psychiatry at Strasburg 1872–73, at Gratz 1873–89, and at Vienna 1889–1902. He published numerous works on criminal psychology, nervous diseases, hypnotism, etc.

Krehbiel (krā'bēl), Henry Edward. Born at Ann Arbor, Mich., March 10, 1854. An American critic and musical historian. He was reporter and then critic on the Cincinnati "Gazette," and later became musical critic of the New York "Tribune." He has written "Review of the New York Musical Season" (five volumes, 1885–90), "Studies in the Wagnerian Drama" (1891), "How to Listen to Music" (1897), "Music and Manners in the Classical Period" (1898), "Chapters of Opera" (1908), "The Pianoforte and its Music" (1910), etc. He received the cross of the Legion of Honor in 1901.

Kreisler (krīs'ler), Fritz. Born at Vienna, Feb. 2, 1875. An Austrian violinist. He entered the Vienna Conservatory at seven years of age, winning the first prize three years later, and that at the Paris Conservatory in 1887. He toured in America with Rosenthal 1888–89, and on returning to Europe studied medicine and art, and entered the army. Resuming his musical studies, he appeared in Berlin in 1899 with success, played with Hofmann and Gerardy in America 1900–01, and has since revisited this country.

Kremnitz (krem'nits), Frau (Marie von Bardeleben): pen-names, Mite Kremnitz and George Allan. Born at Greifswald, Germany, Jan. 4, 1852. A German author, daughter of the surgeon Heinrich Adolf von Bardeleben (1819–95). She has published a number of translations from the Rumanian, and has written with Queen Elizabeth of Rumania (Carmen Sylva), under the pseudonym "Dito und Idem," "Anna Boleyn," a tragedy (1886), "Aus zwei Welten" (1884), "Astra" (1886), "In der Irre" (1888), and "Rache, und andere Novellen" (1889). She is the author also of "Fluch der Liebe" (1880), "Ein Fürstenkind" (1883), "Ausgewanderte" (1890), "Mann und Weib" (1902), "Fatum" (1903), etc.

Kubelik (kö'be-lēk), Jan. Born at Michle, near Prague, July 5, 1880. A Bohemian violin virtuoso. He began his studies at the age of five, and in 1888 made his first appearance at Prague, playing a Vieuxtemps concerto. He was a pupil at the Prague Conservatory 1892–98, made a successful début at Vienna in 1898, and has since been heard in concert throughout Europe and America.

Kuhnau (kö'nou), Johann. Born at Neugeising, Saxony, April, 1660: died at Leipsic, June 25, 1722. A German composer and organist, remarkable for his clavier music, in which he made important contributions toward developing the sonata form and interesting experiments in program music. For the last twenty years of his life he was cantor of the Thomaskirche in Leipsic, being the predecessor of Bach.

Kühne (kü'ne), Wilhelm. Born at Hamburg, March 28, 1837: died at Heidelberg, June 10, 1900. A noted German physiologist, professor and director of the Physiological Institute at Heidelberg from 1871. He published "Lehrbuch der physiologischen Chemie" (1866–68), etc.

Külpe (kül'pe), Oswald. Born at Kandau, Courland, Aug. 3, 1862. A German psychologist, professor of philosophy and esthetics in the University of Würzburg from 1894. He has published "Grundriss der Psychologie" (1893), "Einleitung in die Philosophie" (1895), etc.

Kumassi*, or Coomassie. In 1901 Ashanti was annexed to Great Britain. It is administered by a chief commissioner. The governor of the Gold Coast was appointed governor of Ashanti.

Kunz (könz), George Frederick. Born at New York, Sept. 29, 1856. An American mineralogist and expert in gems (with Tiffany and Company), special agent in charge of precious stones with the United States Geological Survey from 1883. He has written "Gems and Precious Stones of North America," "Precious Natal Stones," "Book of the Pearl" (with C. H. Stevenson, 1908), etc.

Kure (kö're). A city in the province of Hiroshima, Japan. It is a naval port, with dockyards and armor-plating factories. Population, 100,679.

Kurino (kö-rē'nō), Baron Shinichiro. Born at Fukuoka, 1852. A Japanese diplomatist, ambassador to France 1906–. He was appointed minister at Washington in 1894, at Rome in 1896, at Paris in 1897, and at St. Petersburg in 1901.

Kuroki (kö-rō'ki), Count Tamemoto. Born at Saga, March 16, 1844. A noted Japanese general, commander of the first army in the war with Russia (1904–05). He defeated the Russians in the battle of the Yalu River, May 1, 1904, and in many subsequent engagements. In the battles of the Liao-yang, the Shaho, and Mukden he commanded the right wing. In the Chinese-Japanese war (1894–95) he led the Kumamoto division, and was promoted general in 1903. He was created baron in 1895 and count in 1907. He is a member of the supreme council of war.

Kuropatkin (kö-rō-pät'kin), Alexei Nikolaievitch. Born March 29 (N. S.), 1848. A distinguished Russian general, unsuccessful commander of the Russian forces in the first part of the Russo-Japanese war. He has been connected with the general staff of the Russian army from 1874; performed various diplomatic and military services in Turkestan and elsewhere in Asia; served through the Russo-Turkish war (1877–78) as chief of staff to Skobelef; fought against the Tekke-Turkomans 1880–81; was minister of war in 1898; and became adjutant-general in 1902. In 1901 he was made general of infantry, and in 1902 aide-de-camp to the emperor. On the outbreak of the Russo-Japanese war (1904), he was made commander of the Russian forces in Manchuria, but was repeatedly defeated, most decisively in the battles of Liao-yang, the Shaho, and Mukden. After the last defeat he was superseded by Linievitch. His military memoirs, "The Russian Army and the Japanese War," appeared in 1909.

Kwang-su (kwäng-sö'): personal name, Tsai-tien. Born at Peking, Aug. 2, 1872: died there, Nov. 14, 1908. The title of the Emperor of China, son of Prince Chun, who was seventh son of the emperor Tao-kwang and brother of the emperor Hsien-fêng. He succeeded to the throne on the death of his cousin, the emperor Tung-chih, January, 1875, and nominally assumed the government in March, 1887; but until his marriage in February, 1889, was under the regency of his mother's sister, the empress dowager Tsu-hsi. In 1898 he issued several edicts in favor of reform, and as a consequence the empress dowager resumed the regency in September of that year. The emperor was childless and was succeeded by Pu-yi, great-grandson of the emperor Tao-kwang.

Labó (lä-bō'). A mountain in Ambos Camarines province, southeastern Luzón, Philippine Islands. Height, 5,000 feet.

Labori (lä-bō-rē'), Fernand. Born at Rheims, France, April 18, 1860. A French advocate, noted especially for his defense of Dreyfus in 1899. He has published "Répertoire encyclopédique du droit français" (with others), etc.

Labuan*. In 1906 it was proclaimed a part of the Straits Settlements. It is administered by the government of Singapore. Extensive coal-mines have been developed on the island.

Lacedæmon. 2. A nomarchy of modern Greece. Capital, Sparta. Population, 87,106.

Lackawanna (lak-a-won'ä). A city in Erie County, New York, incorporated in 1909. Population, 14,549, (1910).

Laconia (lä-kō'ni-ä). The county-seat of Belknap County, New Hampshire, 23 miles northeast of Concord. It is one of the summer resorts of this region, a few miles from Mount Belknap. It has lumber-mills, and manufactories of woolen goods, paper, yarn, etc. Population, 10,183, (1910).

Ladd*, George Trumbull. He resigned his professorship in Yale University in 1905. His later works include "Introduction to Philosophy" (1890), "Outlines of Physiological Psychology" (1891), "Psychology, Descriptive and Explanatory" (1894), "Philosophy of Mind" (1895), "Philosophy of Knowledge" (1897), "Outlines of Descriptive Psychology" (1898), "Essays on the Higher Education" (1899), "Theory of Reality" (1899), "Philosophy of Conduct" (1902), "Philosophy of Religion" (1905), "In Korea with Marquis Ito" (1908), etc.

Lady of the Aroostook, The. A New England love story by William Dean Howells, published in 1875.

La Farge (la färj'), Christopher Grant. Born at Newport, R. I., Jan. 5, 1862. An American architect. He was trained at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and in the office of H. H. Richardson. In 1883 he came to New York with G. L. Heins and took charge of the architectural work of his father, John La Farge. In 1886 the firm of Heins and La Farge was formed by the two younger men. They have designed the Cathedral of St. John the Divine and the interior of the Church of St. Paul the Apostle in New York, St. Matthew's Church in Washington, Houghton Memorial Chapel at Wellesley College, the chapel at West Point, the Lorillard, Matthiesen, and Bliss mausoleums in Woodlawn Cemetery (New York), the Roman Catholic Cathedral in Seattle, and the Packard Memorial Library in Salt Lake City.

La Farge*, John. He was distinguished for his work in stained glass, in which he obtained remarkable color effects as the result of much experimentation. His writings include "An Artist's Letters from Japan" (1887), "Lectures on Art" (1895), "Considerations on Painting" (1901), "Great Masters" (1903), "Higher Life in Art" (1908), etc.

La Fayette (lä fā-et'). The parish-seat of La Fayette Parish, Louisiana, 116 miles northwest of New Orleans. It has cotton-seed oil mills, a sugar-refinery, etc. Population, 6,392, (1910).

La Follette (lä fol-let'), Robert Marion. Born at Primrose, Wis., June 14, 1855. An American lawyer and politician. He was graduated at the University of Wisconsin in 1879; was a Republican member of Congress 1885–91; was governor of Wisconsin 1901–06; and was elected United States senator in 1905.

Lagerlöf (lä'ger-lėf), Selma. Born at Mårbacka, Värmland, Nov. 20, 1858. A Swedish writer. Her works include novels, poems, etc. In 1907 she was crowned with a laurel wreath at Upsala as the most popular of living Swedish writers, and she was awarded the Nobel prize in literature in 1909.

Lagonoy (lä-gō-noi') Gulf. A large gulf on the eastern coast of southern Luzón, Philippine Islands, indenting the shores of Ambos Camarines and Albay. On the east it communicates directly with the Pacific Ocean. On the north it is connected with the Pacific by Maqueda Channel. Four islands on the south separate it from the Gulf of Albay.

Lagos*. 2. In May, 1906, the Colony and Protectorate of Lagos and the old Protectorate of Southern Nigeria were amalgamated under the name of the Colony and Protectorate of Southern Nigeria. Lagos now forms one of the three provinces, and the seat of government of the colony is at Lagos town.

La Grange (lä grānj'). The county-seat of Troup County, Georgia, 63 miles southwest of Atlanta. It is a trade center, with cotton-mills, etc., and is the seat of the Southern Female College and the La Grange Female College. Population, 5,587, (1910).

La Grange (lä grānj'). A village in Cook County, Illinois, 13 miles southwest of Chicago. It is chiefly residential. Population, 5,282, (1910).

Laguna de Bay (lä-gö'nä dā bī'). A lake in the southern part of Luzón, Philippine Islands, lying within the provinces of Cavite, Rizal, and La Laguna. Its greatest depth, ascertained by soundings, is 20 feet. It contains several small islands, the largest being Talim. Its outlet is the Pasig River, which connects it with Manila Bay.

Lake Charles (lāk chārlz). The parish-seat of Calcasieu Parish, Louisiana, situated on Lake Charles, in the southwestern part of the State. It has lumber-mills, rice-mills, and manufactories of threshing-machines, etc., and is the seat of Acadia College. Population, 11,449, (1910).

Lake City (lāk sit'i). The county-seat of Columbia County, Florida. It is in a cotton-growing region, and is visited as a health resort. It has a trade in fruit, lumber, turpentine, etc. Population, 5,032, (1910).

Lake Leopold II. 1. A large lake in the western part of the Belgian Kongo. It discharges by the Mfini into the Kassai, a tributary of the Kongo.—2. One of the administrative districts of the Belgian Kongo.

Lakewood (lāk'wůd). A village in Cuyahoga County, Ohio, 6 miles southwest of Cleveland. Population, 15,181, (1910).

Lakmé (läk-mā'). An opera by Delibes (words by Goudinet and Gille), first produced at Paris in 1883.

La Laguna (lä lä-gö'nä). A province of southeastern Luzón, Philippine Islands. It is bounded by Laguna de Bay and Rizal on the north, Infanta and Tayabas on the east, Tayabas and Batangas on the south, and Batangas and Cavite on the west. It encircles the southern half of Laguna de Bay, and occupies the eastern part of the mountainous peninsula projecting from the north into that lake. Capital, Santa Cruz. The highest mountains of the province are the extinct volcanoes Banajao and San Cristobal in the southeast, and Maquiling in the south. There are numerous rivers. The soil is very fertile, and more than half of it is adapted to agriculture. Among the productions are sugar-cane, abaca or hemp, rice, copra, betel-nuts, and coffee. The native race is Tagalog. Area, 629 square miles. Population, 148,606.

Lalanne (lä-län'), Maxime. Born at Bordeaux, France, Nov. 27, 1827: died at Nogent-sur-Marne, July 29, 1886. A noted French etcher and illustrator. He was a pupil of Gigoux and made his début at the Salon of 1852 with a notable series of drawings. His work consists of numerous illustrations to books and periodicals, especially "L'Artiste" and "L'Illustration Nouvelle," the organ of a society of etchers which Lalanne helped to establish in 1862, and many independent etchings and plates from the old masters.

Lamar (la-mär'), Joseph Rucker. Born at Ruckersville, Ga., Oct. 14, 1857. An American jurist, appointed associate justice of the United States Supreme Court in 1910. He was admitted to the bar in 1879, and engaged in legal practice at Augusta, Georgia. He was a member of the Georgia House of Representatives 1886–89. In 1895 he was appointed a member of a commission for codifying the laws of Georgia, and in 1903 became an associate justice of the Supreme Court of that State.

Lamberton (lam'bėr-ton), Benjamin Peffer. Born in Pennsylvania, March 10, 1843. An American naval officer, promoted rear-admiral in 1903. He served as chief of staff to Commodore (Admiral) Dewey on the Olympia in the battle of Manila Bay, May 1, 1898, and was promoted captain May 17. He retired in 1906.

Lamón (lä-mōn') Bay. A large bay on the eastern coast of Luzón, Philippine Islands, indenting Tayabas province on the north. It is protected by islands.

Lamorinière (lä-mō-rē-nē-ār'), François. Born at Antwerp, April 28, 1828: died there, Jan. 4, 1911. A Belgian landscape-painter. He was a pupil at the Antwerp Academy, where he became a professor in 1885. Of his paintings the "Isle of Walcheren" is in the Antwerp Museum, and the "View near Spaa" and the "View near Edeghem" belong to the Brussels Museum.

Lamoureux (lä-mö-rė'), Charles. Born at Bordeaux, Sept. 21, 1834: died at Paris, Dec. 21, 1899. A noted French conductor. In 1877 he became conductor of the Opéra, resigning in 1879. From 1872–77 he was assistant conductor of the Conservatoire concerts. In 1881 he established the Nouveaux Concerts (Concerts Lamoureux), where he did important work in introducing the music of Wagner and other modern composers.

Lamperti (läm-pär'tē), Francesco. Born at Savona, Italy, March 11, 1813: died at Como, May 1, 1892. A famous teacher of singing. He was a pupil of the Milan Conservatory, and a teacher there 1850–75. He was an exponent of the old Italian method of singing, and published a treatise on his art, and various vocal studies. He numbered among his pupils Albani, Sembrich, Campanini, Cruvelli, and La Grange.

Lamsdorf (lämz'dōrf), Count Vladimir Nikolaievitch. Born at St. Petersburg, December, 1844: died at San Remo, Italy, March 19, 1907. A Russian statesman. He entered the Foreign Office in 1866; rose to be assistant foreign minister in 1897; was foreign minister 1901–06; and was appointed a member of the Council of the Empire, May 11, 1906.

Lanao (lä-nä'ō). A district of Moro province, Philippine Islands. It occupies that part of Mindanao which lies between Iligan Bay on the north and Illana Bay on the south; and is bounded by Misamis and Cotabato on the east and Zamboanga on the west. Capital, Iligan. The native race is Moro. Area, 2,460 square miles. Population, 101,293.

Lanao (lä-nä'ō) Lake. A lake in Mindanao, Philippine Islands, 2,200 feet above sea-level. It is drained on the north by the river Agus or Iligan, which flows into Iligan Bay. On the southwest it is connected with Lake Tapao by a short river.

Landreth (lan'dreth), Olin Henry. Born at Addison, N. Y., July 21, 1852. An American civil engineer, professor of engineering in Union University, Schenectady, N. Y., from 1894. He was assistant astronomer at the Dudley Observatory, Albany, 1877–79; was professor of engineering at Vanderbilt University 1879–94, and dean of the engineering department 1886–94; and has been consulting engineer of the New York State Board of Health and of numerous municipalities and corporations. He was a member of the New York State Water Storage Commission of 1902–03 and of the State New York Bay Pollution Commission 1904–06.

Lane (lān), Mrs. (Anna Eichberg King). Born at Geneva, Switzerland, in 1856. An American author, daughter of Julius Eichberg, the musician. In 1898 she married John Lane, the publisher. She has written "Kitwyk," "American Wives and English Housekeeping," "According to Maria," "The Talk of the Town," etc.

Lang*, Andrew. He was made a fellow of the British Academy in 1906. He has also written "Essays in Little" (1891), "Green Fairy Book" (1892), "Homer and the Epic" (1893), "St. Andrews" (1893), "Yellow Fairy Book" (1894), "Cock Lane and Common Sense" (1894), "The Book of Dreams and Ghosts" (1897), "Pink Fairy Book" (1897), "The Making of Religion" (1898), "The Homeric Hymns" (1899), "A History of Scotland from the Roman Occupation" (Vol. I., 1900), "Prince Charles Edward" (1900), "Magic and Religion (1901), "Alfred Tennyson" (1901), "The Mystery of Mary Stuart" (1901), "John Knox and the Reformation" (1905), "Homer and his Age" (1906), "Olive Fairy Book" (1907), "The Maid of France" (1908), "Sir George Mackenzie" (1909), "The World of Homer" (1910), etc.

Langley*, Samuel Pierpont. He was the first to build a flying-machine (aërodrome), heavier than air, which, supported and propelled by its own engine, made an independent flight for a considerable distance, this being accomplished for the first time on May 6, 1896.

Lankester*, Sir Edwin Ray. He was Fullerian professor of physiology and comparative anatomy in the Royal Institution of London 1898–1900. He was knighted in 1907. Since 1869 he has been the editor of the "Quarterly Journal of Microscopical Science." He has written "Comparative Longevity" (1871), "Degeneration" (1880), "Spolia Maris" (1889), "The Advancement of Science" (1889), "A Treatise on Zoology" (1900–05), "Extinct Animals" (1905), "The Kingdom of Man" (1907), and many special monographs; and he has edited, with M. Foster, the "Scientific Memoirs of Th. H. Huxley" (1898–1902).

Lansford (lanz'fōrd). A borough in Carbon County, Pennsylvania, 27 miles northwest of Allentown. Coal-mining is its principal industry. Population, 8,321, (1910).

Laoag (lä-ō-äg'). 1. A river in northwestern Luzón, Philippine Islands, flowing westward to the China Sea.—2. A municipality of Ilocos Norte province, northwestern Luzón. Civilized population, 34,454.—3. A port and the capital of Ilocos Norte province, Luzón. It is situated on the Laoag River, in lat. 18° 13′ 5″ N., long. 120° 36′ E. Population, 19,699.

Laparra (lä-pär-rä'), Raoul. Born at Bordeaux about 1877. A French composer. He studied at the Paris Conservatory, winning the Prix de Rome in 1903, in which year he completed his lyric drama, "La Habanera," produced at the Paris Opéra Comique in 1907, and afterward in Germany, London, and Boston. He has also written orchestral, chamber, and piano music, and another opera, "La Jota" (1911). His operas and many of his other works show the influence of his extended travels in Spain.

Lapidoth Swarth (läp'i-dōt svärt'), Frau (Hélène Swarth). Born at Amsterdam, Oct. 25, 1859. A noted Dutch lyric poet. Among her works are "Blauwe Bloemen" (1884), "Beelden en Stemmen" (1887), "Sneeuwvlokken" (1888), "Rouwviolen" (1889), "Passiebloemen" (1891), a volume of collected poems (1892), "Poezij" (1896), "Diepe Wateren" (1897), and "Blanke Duiven" (1902). Her prose includes "Kleine Schetsen" (1893), "Ironisch en Tragisch" (1895), "Van Vrouwenleed" (1896), "Van Vrouwenlot" (1896), "Ernst" (1902), etc.

Lapparent (la-pä-raṅ'), Albert de. Born at Bourges, Dec. 30, 1839: died at Paris, May 5, 1908. A noted French geologist, professor of geology and mineralogy in the Institut Catholique in Paris from 1875. He was appointed assistant custodian of the École des Mines in 1864. In 1897 he became a member of the Académie des Sciences and was the successor of Berthelot as perpetual secretary of that body. Among his works are "Traité de géologie" (1882, 4th ed. 1899), "Cours de minéralogie" (3d ed. 1899), etc.

Laredo (lä-rā'dō). A city, the capital of Webb County, Texas. It is situated in the western part of the county, on the Rio Grande; is the seat of Laredo Seminary and of an Ursuline convent; and has car-, machine-, concentrating-, and sampling-works, brickyards, etc. Cattle, iron, wool, etc., are exported. Population, 14,855, (1910).

Larkin (lär'kin), Edgar Lucien. Born at Freedom, Ill., April 5, 1847. An American astronomer, director of the Lowe Observatory from 1900. He was director of the Knox College Observatory 1888–95. He is the author of "Radiant Energy," "Within the Mind Maze," etc.

Larksville (lärks'vil). A borough in Luzerne County, Pennsylvania, incorporated from part of Plymouth township in 1909. Population, 9,288, (1910).

Larmor (lär'mor), Sir Joseph. Born at Magheragall, County Antrim, Ireland, July 11, 1857. A British mathematician and physicist, professor of mathematics in the University of Cambridge from 1903. He is especially noted for his contributions to the theory of the ultimate constitution of matter. Knighted in 1909.

Larsson (lär'sŏn), Karl. Born at Stockholm, Sweden, May 28, 1853. A Swedish painter and etcher. In 1876 he won the royal medal at the Academy of Arts, Stockholm, and went to France, where for several years he was a member of a Swedish painter-colony at Grez near the forest of Fontainebleau. He has been especially successful in water-colors, and in mural painting in tempera. His most important performance in this manner is the decoration of the staircase of the National Museum at Stockholm.

La Salle College. A Roman Catholic institution of learning at Philadelphia for boys and young men. It is conducted by the Brothers of the Christian Schools and is named for their founder, Jean Baptiste de La Salle. It was incorporated and received power to confer degrees in 1863.

Las Cruces (läs krö'ses). The county-seat of Dona Ana County, New Mexico, incorporated as a town in 1907. It has mining interests, and is the seat of a State agricultural college. Population, 3,836, (1910).

Latham (lä-tăm'), Hubert. Born at Paris, Jan. 10, 1883. A French aviator, identified with the development of the Antoinette monoplane from its inception. He first attracted attention by two attempts to fly across the English Channel in July, 1909, in both of which he fell into the sea because of the failure of his motor. He was one of the first to ascend to considerable altitudes in an aëroplane, and reached 3,444 feet on Jan. 7, 1910, at Châlons, France. He was one of the French team at the international races at Belmont Park, Long Island, finishing fourth in the cup race in October, 1910. Later he flew over the city of Baltimore and exhibited in cities as far as the Pacific coast.

Latrobe (la-trōb'). A borough in Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania, 34 miles southeast of Pittsburgh. Its industries include coal-mining and the manufacturing of glass, woolen goods, paper, steel, etc. Population, 8,777, (1910).

Latrobe (lä-trōb'), Benjamin Henry. Born in Yorkshire, England, May 1, 1764 (1767 ?): died at New Orleans, La., Sept. 3, 1820. An American architect. He was educated at a Moravian school in Saxony and at the University of Leipsic; in 1785 served in the Prussian army; returned to England in 1786; went to Norfolk, Virginia, in 1796; and to Philadelphia in 1798. He designed many important engineering works and buildings in Richmond, Philadelphia, and Baltimore. In 1803 Jefferson appointed him architect of the Capitol at Washington, to succeed Dr. William Thornton, whose designs he modified greatly. He rebuilt the Capitol after its partial destruction by the British in 1814, introducing in the north wing the six columns of the vestibule designed to represent bundles of corn-stalks, and similar tobacco-stalk columns in the circular colonnade. He had a large practice as an engineer, and in 1812 was interested with Fulton in introducing steam navigation.

Laughlin (laf'lin), James Laurence. Born at Deerfield, Ohio, April 2, 1850. An American economist, professor of political economy in the University of Chicago from 1892. He was graduated at Harvard University in 1873; was assistant professor of political economy there 1883–87; was president of the Manufacturers' Mutual Fire Insurance Company of Philadelphia 1887–90; and was professor of political economy in Cornell University 1890–92. He was exchange professor at Berlin in 1906. He has published "A History of Bimetallism in the United States" (1886), "Elements of Political Economy" (1887), "Gold and Prices since 1873" (1887), "Facts about Money" (1895), "Report of the Monetary Commission" (1898), "Principles of Money" (1902), "Reciprocity" (1903), "Industrial America" (1907), "Latter-day Problems" (1909), etc. He is editor of the "Journal of Political Economy."

La Unión (lä ö-ni-ōn'). A coast province of western Luzón, Philippine Islands. It is bounded by Ilocos Sur on the north, Lepanto-Bontoc and Benguet (separated by a spur of the Cordillera Central) on the east, Pangasinán on the south, and the Gulf of Lingayén and the China Sea on the west. Capital, San Fernando. The best ports are San Fernando, safe for large vessels in the monsoons, and Santo Tomás, safe in the northeast monsoon for vessels not exceeding 15 feet draft. The highest peak is Santo Tomás (7,298 feet). Tobacco, coffee, pineapples, mangos, corn, rice, betel-nuts, and sugar-cane are produced. The inhabitants are chiefly Ilocanos. The census of 1903 gave also 9,820 Igorrotes. Area, 634 square miles. Population, 137,839.

Laurel (lâ'rel). A city in Jones County, Mississippi. It has lumber-mills, cotton-mills, etc. Population, 8,465, (1910).

Laurens (lō-raṅ'), Jean Paul. Born at Fourquevaux, Haute-Garonne, France, March 29, 1838. A French painter, especially of historical subjects. He studied at the art school of Toulouse, and with Léon Cogniet and Bida in Paris, making his début in the Salon of 1863 with his picture "The Death of Cato." His dignified and vigorous style reached its maturity about 1872. He has painted numerous portraits and a large number of powerful historical compositions and mural pictures. Among the latter may be noted "The Death of Ste. Geneviève" in the Panthéon, and the ceiling of the Odéon, both in Paris. He won a medal of honor at the Salon of 1877, and was elected to the Institute in 1891.

Laurium (lâ'ri-um). A village in Houghton County, in the northwestern part of Michigan. It is in one of the richest copper regions in the United States. Population, 8,537, (1910).

Lavengro. A story by George Borrow, published in 1851.

Laveran (läv-räṅ'), Charles Louis Alphonse. Born at Paris, June 18, 1845. A French pathologist, especially noted as the discoverer of the plasmodium of malaria. He was appointed as agrégé on the faculty of the École du Val-de-Grâce in Paris in 1874; studied malaria in Algeria 1878–83; was professor of military hygiene and clinical medicine at Val-de-Grâce 1884–94; and was medical director of the Eleventh Army Corps 1894–97. In 1907 he was awarded the Nobel prize for medicine. He has written "Traité des fièvres palustres" (1884), "Nouveaux éléments de pathologie médicale" (1880: with Teissier), "Du paludisme et de son hématozoaire" (1891), "Les hématozoaires de l'homme et des animaux" (1895: with Blanchard), "Traité du paludisme" (1897), "Traité d'hygiène militaire" (1896), "Prophylaxie du paludisme" (1903), and "Trypanosome et trypanosomiases" (1904).

Lavery (lav'ėr-i), John. Born at Belfast. A contemporary British portrait-painter. He studied in Glasgow, London, and Paris; was elected to the Royal Scottish Academy in 1896; and was made an associate of the Royal Academy in 1911.

Lavignac (lä-vēn-yäk'), Alexandre Jean Albert. Born at Paris, Jan. 22, 1846. A French musician. He was appointed professor of solfège at the Conservatoire in 1882, and professor of harmony in 1891. He has published "Solfèges," "Cours complet théorique de dictée musicale," "Cinquante leçons d'harmonie," "La musique et les musiciens" (1895), and "Le voyage artistique à Bayreuth" (1897).

Lavisse (lä-vēs'), Ernest. Born at Nouvion-en-Thiérache, Aisne, France, Dec. 17, 1842. A French historian and educator, professor of modern history at the University of Paris from 1888. He was elected a member of the French Academy in 1892, succeeding Admiral de la Gravière. Since 1894 he has been editor of the "Revue de Paris." Among his works are "Études sur l'histoire de Prusse" (1879), "Questions d'enseignement national" (1885), "Essais sur l'Allemagne impériale" (1887), "Trois empereurs d'Allemagne" (1888), "Vue générale de l'histoire politique de l'Europe" (1890), "La jeunesse du Grand Frédéric" (1891), "Le Grand Frédéric avant l'avénement" (1893), "Un ministre: Victor Duruy" (1895), etc. He edited, with Rambaud, "Histoire générale du IV. siècle à nos jours" (1893–1901).

Lawton (lâ'ton). A city in Comanche County, Oklahoma, incorporated in 1901. It has lumbering and milling industries. Population, 7,788, (1910).

Lay Down Your Arms! The title of the English translation by T. Holmes of "Die Waffen nieder" (1889), by the Baroness von Suttner. The author was awarded the Nobel pence prize in 1905. The book is known also as "Ground Arms!"

Lea*, Henry Charles. His later works include "Chapters from the Religious History of Spain connected with the Inquisition" (1890), "History of Auricular Confession and Indulgences in the Latin Church" (1896), "The Moriscos of Spain" (1901), "History of the Inquisition of the Middle Ages" (1906), "History of the Inquisition of Spain" (1906), "The Inquisition in the Spanish Dependencies" (1908).

Lead (lēd). A city in Lawrence County, South Dakota. It has one of the largest gold-mines in the world. Its manufactures include gold jewelry, mining-tools, etc. Population, 8,392, (1910).

League Island. An island in the Delaware, below Philadelphia, at the mouth of the Schuylkill. On it is situated a United States navy-yard.

Lebanon (leb'a-non). The county-seat of Boone County, Indiana, 26 miles northwest of Indianapolis. It has flour-mills, grain-elevators, manufactories of washing-machines, etc. Population, 5,474, (1910).

Lebaudy (lė-bō-dē'), Paul. Born at Enghien, Seine-et-Oise, in 1855. A French promoter of aviation. He is a man of wealth, the owner of a sugar-refinery, and was elected to the Chamber of Deputies. He financed the making of a number of dirigible balloons adopted by the French government.

Lederle (led'ėr-li), Ernst Joseph. Born on Staten Island, N. Y., June 30, 1865. An American sanitary engineer, appointed commissioner of health of New York city in 1910. He was chemist of the Department of Health of the city 1890–1902; commissioner 1902–04; and commissioner of the New York State Water Supply 1905–10.

Lee (lē), Algernon. Born at Dubuque, Iowa, Sept. 15, 1873. An American journalist and socialist. He has been identified with the Socialist movement since 1895. He was editor of the Minneapolis "Tocsin" 1898–99, of the "Worker" 1899–1908, of the "Call" 1908–09; and has been president of the Rand School of Social Science since 1909.

Lee (lē), Mrs. (Jennette Barbour Perry). Born at Bristol, Conn., Nov. 10, 1860. An American author. She was graduated at Smith College in 1880. She was teacher of English in Vassar College 1890–93, head of the department of English in the college for women of Western Reserve University 1893–96, and has been professor of the English language and literature in Smith College since 1904. She married Gerald Stanley Lee in 1896. She has published "Kate Wetherell" (1900), "Uncle William" (1906), "The Ibsen Secret" (1907), "Simeon Tetlow's Shadow" (1909), and "Happy Island" (1910).

Lee (lē), Sir Sidney. Born at London, Dec. 5, 1859. An eminent English scholar and editor. He was assistant editor of the "Dictionary of National Biography" 1883–90; was joint editor with (Sir) Leslie Stephen 1890–91; and upon the retirement of the latter in 1891 became editor-in-chief. He was Clark lecturer in English literature at Trinity College, Cambridge, 1901–02, and in 1903 was lecturer before the Lowell Institute at Boston, Johns Hopkins University, and Princeton University. He was knighted in 1911. Among his publications are "Stratford-on-Avon from the Earliest Times to the Death of Shakespeare" (1884), "Life of William Shakespeare" (1898), a biography of Queen Victoria (1902), "Shakespeare First Folio Facsimile" (1902), "Elizabethan Sonnets" (1904), "Great Englishmen of the Sixteenth Century" (1904), "Shakespeare and the Modern Stage" (1906), "The French Renaissance in England" (1910), etc.

Lee (lē), Stephen Dill. Born at Charleston, South Carolina, Sept. 22, 1833: died at Vicksburg, Miss., May 28, 1908. An American soldier, lieutenant-general in the Confederate army. He was graduated at West Point in 1854; entered the Confederate service as captain; and took part in numerous battles (including the Vicksburg campaign) during the Civil War. From 1899 he was commander of the Vicksburg National Military Park.

Leeds University. A university at Leeds, Yorkshire, chartered April 25, 1904. It is the outgrowth of Yorkshire College (founded in 1874), which formed part of Victoria University 1887–1903. It provides teaching and grants degrees to both men and women in arts, science, medicine, dental surgery, law, and commerce. It is attended by more than 900 registered students and in addition by over 200 evening students.

Leeser (lē'ser), Isaac. Born at Neuenkirchen, Prussia, Dec. 12, 1806: died at Philadelphia, Feb. 1, 1868. A Jewish rabbi and author. He translated the Hebrew Scriptures into English (1853); edited a monthly magazine, the "Occident," from 1843 until his death; and published numerous other works.

Leeward Group. The western group or section of the Society Islands, in Oceanica, belonging to France.

Lefebvre (lė-fāvr'), Jules. Born at Tournan, Seine-et-Marne, France, March 10, 1836. A noted French painter, a pupil of Cogniet.

Le Gallienne (lė gal'i-en), Richard. Born at Liverpool, England, Jan. 20, 1866. An English journalist and author. Since 1898 he has resided in the United States. Among his works are "The Book-bills of Narcissus" (1891), "The Religion of a Literary Man" (1893), "Prose Fancies" (1894, 1896), "The Quest of the Golden Girl" (1896), "Painted Shadows" (1904), "Romances of Old France" (1905), "The Worshiper of the Images" (1906), "Attitudes and Avowals" (1910), "October Vagabonds" (1910), "Loves of the Poets" (1911), etc.

Lehár (lā-här'), Franz. Born at Komorn, April 30, 1870. A Hungarian composer. His first work, "Kukuska" (afterward known as "Tatjana"), a serious composition, was produced at Leipsic in 1896. He has since devoted himself to light music and the operetta form. His works, most of which were first produced at Vienna, include "Wiener Frauen" (1902), "Der Rastelbinder" (1902), "Die Juxheirat" (1904), "Die lustige Witwe" (1905), which, as "The Merry Widow," "La veuve joyeuse," and "La Vedova Allegra," has brought him wide recognition, "Mitislav der Moderne" (1907), "Edelweiss und Rosenstock" (1907), "Peter und Paul reisen ins Schlaraffenland" (1906), "Der Mann mit den drei Frauen" (1908), "Der Graf von Luxemburg," and "Zigeuner Liebe." He has been director of several orchestras, including the Tonkünstler Orchestra at Vienna.

Lehighton (lē-hī'ton). A borough in Carbon County, Pennsylvania, on the Lehigh River. It has silk-mills, car-shops, and manufactories of wagons, stoves, shirts, etc. Population, 5,316, (1910).

Lehmann (lā'mān), Elizabetta Nina Mary Frederika, known as Liza Lehmann. Born at London, July 11, 1862. An English soprano concert-singer and composer. She has written "In a Persian Garden" (1896: a song-cycle), "The Daisy-chain" (1901), "Sergeant Brue" (1904: a musical farce), etc. In 1894 she gave her farewell concert and married Herbert Bedford, the composer.

Leishman (lish'man), John G. A. Born at Pittsburgh, Pa., March 28, 1857. An American diplomatist. He was president of the Carnegie Steel Company 1886–1897; was minister to Switzerland 1897–1900; minister to Turkey 1900–06; ambassador to Turkey 1906–09; ambassador to Italy 1909–11; and ambassador to Germany 1911–.

Leland*, Charles Godfrey. Among his later works are "Algonquin Legends of New England" (1884), "Gypsy Sorcery and Fortune-telling" (1890), "Memoirs" (1893), "Hans Breitmann in Germany" (1895), "Songs of the Sea and Lays of the Land" (1895), "Aradia; or, Gospel of the Witches" (1899), and, with J. D. Prince, "Kuloscap the Master, and Other Algonkin Poems" (1902). He wrote also a series of books on various arts and crafts.

Lemaître (lė-mātr'), François Elie Jules: known as Jules. Born at Vennecy, Loiret, France, April 27, 1853. A French critic, poet, novelist, and dramatist. He was a teacher 1875–1884; became reviewer for the "Revue Bleue" in 1884; and joined the staff of the "Journal des Débats" in 1888 and that of the "Revue des Deux Mondes" in 1895. In 1888 he was made a chevalier of the Legion of Honor, and was admitted to the French Academy in 1895, succeeding Duruy. His critical work has been collected under the titles "Les contemporains" (1885–95) and "Impressions du théâtre" (1888–98). He is the author also of several volumes of fiction, "Sérénus" (1886), "Dix contes" (1889), "Les bois" (1893), and "Myrrha" (1894); two books of verse, "Les médaillons" (1880) and "Petites orientales" (1882); a number of plays, "La révoltée" (1889), "Le député Leveau" (1890), "Le mariage blanc" (1891), "Flipote" (1893), "Les rois" (1893), "L'Âge difficile" (1895), and "Le pardon" (1895); "Théories et impressions" (1904), and "En marge des vieux livres" (1905).

Lemoinne (lė-mwän'), John Émile. Born at London, Oct. 17, 1815: died at Paris, Dec. 14, 1892. A French journalist. He was on the staff of the "Journal des Débats" for 52 years; was elected to the French Academy in 1875; and was appointed a life senator in 1880. He also wrote for the "Revue des Deux Mondes" and "Le Matin," and published a collection of his articles under the title "Études critiques et biographiques" (1862), etc.

Lenard (le-närd'), Philipp von. Born at Presburg, June 7, 1862. A German physicist, professor in the University of Kiel 1898–1907 and in the University of Heidelberg 1907–. From 1896 to 1898 he was instructor in the University of Heidelberg. He is best known for his researches in the cathode rays and electricity. In 1905 he received the Nobel prize for physics.

L'Enfant (loṅ-foṅ'), Pierre Charles. Born in 1755: died in 1825. A French officer and engineer. He came to America in 1777 with Lafayette, joined the American army, and was commissioned brevet major in 1783. He planned the city of Washington, D. C.

Lens*. In March, 1906, a disaster occurred in the Courrières mine in which over 1,000 persons lost their lives.

León (lā-ōn'). An inland province of Ecuador, just south of the equator. Its capital is Latacunga. Population, 109,600.

Leoncavallo (lā-ōn-kä-väl'ō), Ruggiero. Born at Naples, March 8, 1858. An Italian operatic composer. His first opera, "Chatterton," was composed at the age of eighteen. After some years of wandering he returned to Italy with the plan of an operatic trilogy, the first part of which, "I Medici" (the only part published), he could not bring out till he had made his first success with "Pagliacci," which was produced at Milan in 1892 and has been one of the most popular of modern Italian operas. His "La Bohème" appeared in 1897, "Zaza" in 1900, "Der Roland," written at the command of the German emperor, in 1904, and "The Youth of Figaro" in 1906. He has written the librettos of all his operas.

Leonhard (lā'on-härt), Rudolph. Born at Breslau, Dec. 26, 1851. A German jurist. He studied at the universities of Heidelberg, Berlin, and Giessen, and was in the service of the Prussian government 1872–80. He became professor extraordinary at Göttingen in 1880, and professor at Halle in 1884, at Marburg in 1885, and at Breslau in 1895. In 1907 he was sent as Kaiser Wilhelm professor to Columbia University, New York. He has published many works on legal and historical subjects.

Lepanto-Bontoc (lā-pän'tō-bōn-tōk'). An irregularly shaped inland province in the western part of Luzón, Philippine Islands. It is bounded by Abra and Cagayán (separated by a spur of the Cordillera Central) on the north; Cagayán, Isabela, and Nueva Vizcaya (separated by a collateral range of the Cordillera Sur) on the east; Nueva Vizcaya and Benguet (separated by spurs of the Cordillera Sur) on the south; and La Unión and Abra (separated by the western range of Luzón) on the west. Capital, Cervantes. Mountains occupy a large part of the province. A branch of the Cordillera Sur runs from northeast to southwest, separating the western part (Lepanto) from the eastern part (Bontoc). Monserrat, Mitra, Cuirayán, Tantagúan, and Data range from 5,617 to 7,364 feet in height. Tributaries of the Rio Grande de Cagayán are fed by streams in the eastern part of Lepanto-Bontoc. Other streams flow west to the Abra. Mineral lands have been prospected in the southern part of the province. Gold and copper have long been mined by the Igorrotes, the native race. The chief productions are coffee, rice, and tobacco. Area, 2,005 square miles. Population, 72,750.

Le Play (lē plī'), Pierre Guillaume Frédéric. Born at Honfleur, France, April 11, 1806: died April 5, 1882. A French engineer, economist, and sociologist, the founder of the modern school of social economy in France. He was educated at the École Polytechnique; was professor at the School of Mines; was actively connected with the administration of various expositions; and for several years occupied a seat in the Senate. He founded the International Society of Social Economy, and various associations of workmen. Among the more important of his works are "Les ouvriers européens" (1855), "La réforme sociale en France" (1864), "L'Organisation du travail" (1870), "Programme de gouvernement et d'organisation sociale" (1880), "La constitution essentielle de l'humanité" (1881), and "L'École de la paix sociale" (1882).

Leroux (lē-rō'), Xavier Henri Napoléon. Born at Velletri, Italy, Oct. 11, 1863. A French composer. He studied at the Paris Conservatory, winning first prizes in harmony and counterpoint, and in 1885 the Prix de Rome with a cantata, "Endymion." Among his works are operas, including "La reine Fiamette" (1903), "Théodora" (1906), and "Le chemineau" (1907), a mass, orchestral pieces, and many songs.

Leroy-Beaulieu*, Pierre Paul. In 1880 he became professor of political economy at the Collège de France. Among his later works are "De la colonisation chez les peuples modernes" (1873), "Essai sur la répartition des richesses" (1880), "La collectivisme" (1884), "l'Algérie et la Tunisie" (1887), "Précis d'économie politique" (1888), "L'État moderne et ses fonctions" (1889), "Traité théorique et pratique d'économie politique" (1895), "Le Sahara, le Soudan et les chemins de fer transsahariens" (1904), "L'Art de placer et gérer sa fortune" (1906), etc.

Leschetitzky (lesh-e-tits'ki), Theodor. Born at Lancut, Poland, June 22, 1830. A distinguished teacher of the piano and composer. He was for some time professor in the Conservatory at St. Petersburg, but retired in 1878 and has since lived in Vienna. Among his pupils have been Mme. Essipoff (whom he married in 1880: divorced 1892), Paderewski, Mark Hambourg, and Gabrilovitch.

Lettres à une inconnue. [F., 'Letters to an unknown (woman).'] A collection of letters by Prosper Mérimée, published posthumously in 1873.

Lewis and Clark Centennial Exposition. An international exposition held in Portland, Oregon, in 1905, to celebrate the centennial of the exploration of the Oregon country by Meriwether Lewis and William Clark. It was opened May 28.

Lewisham (lū'ish-am). A metropolitan and parliamentary borough of London. It returns one member to Parliament. Population (metropolitan borough), 160,843, (1911).

Lewiston (lū'is-ton). The county-seat of Nez Perce County, Idaho, near the junction of the Snake and Clearwater rivers. Its principal industries are mining and wheat-raising. It has flour-mills, machine-shops, etc. Population, 6,043, (1910).

Lewistown (lū'is-toun). The county-seat of Mifflin County, Pennsylvania. It is on the Juniata River, in a fertile agricultural region, and has steel-works, lumber-mills, foundries, flour-mills, etc. Population, 8,166, (1910).

Leyte. 2. A province of the Philippines. It consists of Leyte, Bilirán, Panaón, and numerous small islands southwest of Samar, from which Leyte is separated by the narrow and winding strait of San Juanico and by Daram Channel. Capital, Tacloban. The chief bays are Carigara on the north, San Pedro and San Pablo on the east, Sógod on the south, and Ormoc on the west of Leyte. Maasin, at the southeastern point, has good anchorage. Mountain-ranges traverse the larger islands from northwest to southeast. Volcanic cones exceeding 3,000 feet in height are Cabalian and Sacripante in the southern part of Leyte and Mabui in the northern part of Bilirán. Among the rivers are the Leyte and the Cabayong in the north. In the south is the Maasin, which flows to the Surigao Sea. The Binahaan, flowing east to San Pedro and San Pablo bay, is navigable by cascos to Dagami, 15 miles from its mouth. Leyte has three small mountain lakes, the largest of which has an area of about 8 square miles. Coal is found in northeastern Leyte and in Bilirán, and gold in Bilirán and Panaón. Agriculture flourishes. The products include copra, rice, bananas, sweet potatoes, sugar-cane, and a very large yield of hemp. The race is Visayan. Area, 3,008 square miles. Population, 388,922.

3. A river of Leyte flowing north to an inlet on the northern coast.

Lhermitte (lăr-mēt'), Léon Augustin. Born at Mont-Saint-Père, Aisne, France, Jan. 31, 1844. A French genre-painter. He is a member of the Institut de France and vice-president of the Société Nationale des Beaux-Arts. Among his pictures are "Harvesters' Wages" (1882: Luxembourg), "The Vintage" (1884: Metropolitan Museum of Art), "Sainte-Claire-Deville" (1889: Sorbonne), etc.

Lhevinne (lā-vēn'), Josef. Born at Moscow, Dec. 3, 1874. A Russian pianist. At the age of eight he played in public, and three years later entered the Moscow Conservatory, graduating in 1892 with the gold medal, and returning there to teach for four years. In 1895 he won the Rubinstein prize at Berlin. He has toured extensively in Europe, and in America since 1905.

Liadov (lyä'dof), Anatol Constantinovitch. Born at St. Petersburg, May 12, 1855. A Russian composer. He early showed unusual musical ability, and made a brilliant record as a student at the St. Petersburg Conservatory, which he left in 1877, returning there the following year as professor of composition. He has written for the orchestra, but most of his compositions are for the piano. While he belongs to the New Russian school, he has been influenced by Chopin and Schumann.

Liancourt (lē-oṅ-kōr') Rocks. A group of small islands in the Japan Sea, situated about lat. 37° N., long. 132° E. Near them a part of the Russian fleet surrendered to the Japanese in the battle of the Sea of Japan. Also called Hornet Islands.

Liao (lyou). A river which rises in the northern part of the province of Chi-li, China, and flows northeastwardly nearly to the Mongolian border, then eastwardly into Manchuria (near Chang-tu), and then southwestwardly into the Gulf of Liao-tung.

Liao-tung (lyou-töng'). A peninsular region in southern Manchuria, lying between the Gulf of Liao-tung and Korea Bay. It came under the control of the Japanese as a result of the Russo-Japanese war (1904–05).

Liao-tung (lyou-töng'), Gulf of. An extension northward into southern Manchuria of the Gulf of Pe-chi-li.

Liapounof (lyä'pö-nof), Sergius Mikhailovitch. Born at Yaroslaf, Nov. 30, 1859. A Russian composer. He was a pupil at the Moscow Conservatory. His works include, for the orchestra, a ballade, an overture, and a symphony in B minor; for the piano, a concerto, études, preludes, mazurkas, etc. He has also edited and published a collection of Russian songs.

Libás (lē-bās'), Port. A bay and harbor on the eastern coast of Samar Island, in the Philippines: safe for large vessels in all weather.

Liberia*. By the Franco-Liberian agreement of 1907 as to the boundary with the French Ivory Coast, Liberia has lost about 2,000 square miles of territory.

Liberia (lē-bā'rē-ä), or Guanacaste (gwä-näkäs'tä). The capital of the province of Guanacaste, Costa Rica, 95 miles northwest of San José. Population, 2,449.

Libmanan (lēb-mä'nän). A municipality of Ambos Camarines province, in the southeastern part of Luzón, Philippine Islands. Civilized population, 17,416.

Library of Congress. The national library, situated in Washington, D. C. It was established in 1800, originally for the use of the members of the Senate and House of Representatives, but is freely open to the public. In 1814 the collection of books was destroyed by the British troops, but a new one was begun with the purchase by Congress of a large portion of the library of Thomas Jefferson. On June 30, 1911, the library contained 1,891,729 printed books and pamphlets; 123,568 maps and charts; 557,010 pieces of music; and 336,966 engravings, etchings, photographs, and other prints. It also contains a valuable collection of historical manuscripts. Work on the present building, situated southeast of the Capitol, was begun in 1889 and was completed in 1897 at a cost of $6,345,000. It is in the form of a quadrangle inclosing four courts and a central rotunda surmounted by a dome. The length of the building (which faces west) is 470 feet from north to south, and its depth from west to east, 340 feet. The interior is lavishly decorated with the work of American artists.

Lick (lik), James. Born at Fredericksburg, Pa., Aug. 25, 1796: died at San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 1, 1876. An American business man and philanthropist. He went to California in 1847 and amassed a large fortune there. In 1874 he set apart $3,000,000 for public and charitable uses, including $700,000 for an astronomical observatory for the University of California.

Lidderdale (lid'ėr-dāl), William. Born in 1834: died June 26, 1902. An English financier. He became a director of the Bank of England in 1870, deputy governor in 1887, and was governor 1889–92.

Liechtenstein (lēch'ten-stīn) Gallery. An art gallery in Vienna, Austria, the most important private collection of paintings in the city. It is especially strong in the works of Rubens and Vandyke. It is situated in the old summer palace of the princes of Liechtenstein and contains about 800 notable pictures, besides many of less importance.

Life for the Czar, A. An opera by Glinka (words by Rosen), first produced at St. Petersburg in 1836.

Ligao (lē-gä'ō). A municipality of Albay province, southeastern Luzón, in the Philippine Islands. Civilized population, 17,687.

Lij Yasu (lēj yä'sö). Born in 1896. Emperor of Abyssinia. He is the son of a daughter of Menelek II., and was proclaimed heir to the throne in 1908, and emperor May 15, 1911.

Lilley (lil'i), Robert. Born at Greenock, Scotland, Aug. 24, 1839. A Scotch-American Orientalist and editor. During 1867–75 he traveled extensively in China and Manchuria; resided in Japan 1875–81, occupied with the publication of Christian and other works in Japanese; introduced the system of printing for the blind now in use in Japan; and came to the United States in 1881. He was on the editorial staff of the "Century Dictionary"; was managing editor of the "Universal Cyclopædia"; was editor of "Investigations and Studies in Jade, based on the Heber R. Bishop Collection of Jades," and of the descriptive catalogue of the collection; etc.

Lincoln (ling'kon). A town in Providence County, Rhode Island. Population, 9,825, (1910).

Lincoln Memorial University. A non-sectarian institution, comprising normal, industrial, and academic departments, founded in 1895 by General Oliver Otis Howard, at Cumberland Gap, Tennessee, for the education especially of the people of the surrounding mountains.

Lincoln Park. A park in Chicago, situated on the lake front in the northern part of the city. Area, 300 acres.

Lindsey (lin'zi), Benjamin Barr. Born at Jackson, Tenn., Nov. 25, 1869. An American jurist. He was admitted to the bar in 1894, and became judge of the County Court and Juvenile Court at Denver, Colorado, in 1901. He has introduced important reforms in the juvenile court system, and is a leading authority on the treatment of juvenile delinquents. He has published "Problems of the Children," "The Beast and the Jungle," and "The Rule of Plutocracy in Colorado."

Lingayén (lēn-gä-yān'). A town, the capital of Pangasinán province, in the western part of Luzón, Philippine Islands. It is situated on the delta at the mouth of the Agno, on Lingayén Gulf, in lat. 16° 4′ N., long. 120° 14′ E. Civilized population of municipality, 21,529.

Lingayén (lēn-gä-yān') Gulf. An arm of the China Sea, indenting the provinces of La Unión and Pangasinán on the western coast of Luzón, Philippine Islands. The river Agno enters it by several mouths.

Linievitch (lin'ie-vich), Nikolai Petrovitch. Born in the government of Tchernigoff, Russia, Dec. 24, 1838: died at St. Petersburg, April 23, 1908. A Russian lieutenant-general. He served in the Russo-Turkish war, attaining the rank of colonel; in 1900, as commander of the first Siberian army corps in Manchuria, conducted the Russian campaign in China; and until March, 1904 (when he was superseded by Kuropatkin), remained in command of the Manchurian army. He commanded the Russian left at the battle of Mukden, and upon the dismissal of Kuropatkin, March, 1905, was appointed his successor as commander-in-chief in the Far East.

Linton (lin'ton). A city in Greene County, Indiana, 33 miles southeast of Terre Haute. Coal-mining is its principal industry. Population, 5,906, (1910).

Lipa (lē-pä'). A municipality of Batangas province, in southwestern Luzón, Philippine Islands. It is east of the southern part of Lake Bombón or Taal. Civilized population, 37,934.

Lippmann (lip'män), Friedrich. Born at Prague, Bohemia, Oct. 6, 1838: died at Berlin, Oct. 2, 1903. A German connoisseur, curator of the cabinet of engravings at Berlin from 1876. The present great importance of the Berlin collection is due largely to his efforts. He published much, especially in periodical literature. His important independent works are "Der italienische Holzschnitt im XV. Jahrhundert" (1884), "Zeichnungen alter Meister im königlichen Kupferstichkabinet zu Berlin" (1882), "Atlas" (1879–82), "Zeichnungen von Sandro Botticelli zu Dantes göttlicher Komödie" (1884–87).

Lippmann (lēp-män'), Gabriel. Born at Hallerich, Luxemburg, Aug. 16, 1845. A distinguished French physicist. He studied at Paris and in Germany, and in 1883 became professor at the Sorbonne. He invented a capillary electrometer, a galvanometer, and other instruments; enunciated the doctrine of the conservation of electricity; and in 1891 invented a method of photographing in colors. He has published a "Cours de thermodynamique" (1886), "Cours d'acoustique et d'optique" (1888), etc., and in 1908 received the Nobel prize for physics.

Lipton (lip'ton), Sir Thomas Johnstone. Born at Glasgow, Scotland, 1850. A British merchant and sportsman. He began his business career with a single provision-shop in Glasgow, and extended his operations until he controlled large interests in Great Britain, with branches in Germany, the United States, India, etc. He has contributed largely to charitable enterprises, and is well known as a yachtsman, having competed unsuccessfully in 1899, 1901, and 1903 for the America's cup. He was knighted in 1898 and created a baronet in 1902.

Lister*, Joseph, first Baron Lister. He was professor of surgery at Glasgow University 1860–69, professor of clinical surgery at Edinburgh University 1869–77, and at King's College, London, 1877–93, and was president of the Royal Society 1895–1900.

Litchfield (lich'fēld). A city in Montgomery County, Illinois. It is in a region containing oil, coal, and natural gas, and has flour-mills, foundries, and manufactories of glass, radiators, mine-engines, etc. Population, 5,971, (1910).

Little (lit'l), Frances: pseudonym of Mrs. Fannie Caldwell Macauley. Born at Shelbyville, Ky., Nov., 1863. An American author. She taught for five years in the kindergarten of the girls' school at Hiroshima, Japan. She has published "The Lady of the Decoration" (1906) and "Little Sister Snow" (1909).

Little Falls (lit'l fâlz). The county-seat of Morrison County, Minnesota, 88 miles northwest of Minneapolis. It is in a lumbering and farming region, and has lumber-mills, flour-mills, machine-shops, iron-works, etc. Population, 6,078, (1910).

Livermore (liv'ėr-môr), Mrs. (Mary Ashton Rice). Born at Boston, Dec. 19, 1821: died at Melrose, Mass., May 23, 1905. An American abolitionist, lecturer, and woman suffragist. During the Civil War she was a leader in the work of the United States Sanitary Commission. She founded and edited "The Agitator," a woman-suffrage paper, in 1869; merged it in "The Woman's Journal" in 1870; was first president of the Illinois Woman Suffrage Association and later president of the Massachusetts Woman Suffrage Association; and lectured much on temperance, etc. She published "What Shall we Do with our Daughters?" (1883), "My Story of the War" (1888), etc.

Livingston (liv'ing-stọn). The county-seat of Park County, Montana, on the Yellowstone River, 96 miles southeast of Helena. It has lumber-mills, railroad shops, and mining interests, and is frequented for shooting and fishing. Population, 5,359, (1910).

Lloyd-George (loid'jôrj'), David. Born at Manchester, 1863. A British Liberal member of Parliament, chancellor of the exchequer 1908–. He became a solicitor in 1884; has sat for Carnarvon district in the House of Commons since 1890; and was president of the Board of Trade, with a seat in the cabinet, December, 1905–08. He led the Welsh educational agitation and attracted attention by his effective speeches in behalf of the Boers. He has been identified with the old age pensions act, national insurance, etc.

Loango. 2. A seaport in French Kongo, situated in lat. 4° 39′ S.

Lobachevsky (lō-bä-chefs'ki), Nikolaus Ivanovitch. Born at Makarief, government of Nijni-Novgorod, Russia, Nov. 2 (N. S.), 1793: died at Kazan, Feb. 24 (N. S.), 1856. A famous Russian mathematician, the founder of the non-Euclidean geometry. He was professor at Kazan from 1814.

Locke (lok), William John. Born March 20, 1863. An English novelist. He was educated at Queen's Royal College, Trinidad, and at Cambridge University. He has written "The Morals of Marcus Ordeyne" (1905), "The Beloved Vagabond" (1906), "Septimus" (1909), "A Christmas Mystery" (1910), "Simon the Jester" (1910), "The Glory of Clementina" (1911), etc.

Lockroy*, Édouard Étienne Antoine. He was vice-president of the Chamber of Deputies 1902–05. He has written "Les aigles du capitole" (1868), "À bas le progrès" (1870), "La Commune et l'Assemblée" (1871), "L'Île révoltée" (1877), "Ahmed le Boucher: la Syrie et l'Égypte au XVIII. siècle" (1888), "M. de Moltke" (1891), "La marine de guerre" (2d ed. 1897), "La défense navale" (1899), "Du Weser à la Vistule" (1901), "Les marines française et allemande" (1904), "Le programme naval" (1906), etc.

Lockwood (lok'wûd), James Booth. Born at Annapolis, Md., Oct. 9, 1852: died at Cape Sabine, Ellesmere Land, April 9, 1884. An American arctic explorer. He was educated at St. John's College, Annapolis, and joined the army as second lieutenant in 1873. In 1881 he joined, as second in command, Greely's expedition to Lady Franklin Bay, and in May, 1882, with D. L. Brainard, attained lat. 83° 24′ N., the highest then reached. He crossed Grinnell Land with Brainard in 1883.

Lockyer*, Sir (Joseph) Norman. His later works are "The Sun's Place in Nature" (1897), "Recent and Coming Eclipses" (1897), "Inorganic Evolution" (1900), "Stonehenge and other British Stone Monuments Astronomically Considered" (1907), etc. Knighted 1897.

Lodge (loj), Sir Oliver Joseph. Born in Staffordshire, June 12, 1851. An English physicist, principal of the University of Birmingham from 1900: especially noted for his investigations in electricity. He was professor of physics in University College, Liverpool, 1881–1900. The coherer employed in wireless telegraphy is his invention. He has published "Elementary Mechanics" (1877), "Modern Views of Electricity" (1889), "Pioneers of Science" (1893), "Electrons" (1907), "Science and Mortality" (1908), "The Ether of Space" (1909), "Reason and Belief" (1910), etc. He was president of the Society for Psychical Research 1901–04. He was knighted in 1902.

Loeb (lēb), Jacques. Born in Germany, April 7, 1859. A German-American physiologist, professor in the University of California 1902–1910, and head of the department of experimental biology in the Rockefeller Institute, New York, 1910–. His works include "The Heliotropism of Animals" (1890), "Physiological Morphology" (1891–92), "Comparative Physiology of the Brain" (1900), "Studies in General Physiology" (1905), "Dynamics of Living Matter" (1906), etc., and numerous papers on experimental biology.

Loeb (lēb), Leo. Born at Mayen, Prussia, Sept. 21, 1869. A German-American pathologist, director of the pathological department of the St. Louis Skin and Cancer Hospital from 1910. He taught in the University of Pennsylvania 1903–10.

Loeb (lōb), Louis. Born at Cleveland, O., Nov. 7, 1866: died at Canterbury, N. H., July 12, 1909. An American artist and illustrator. He was a painter of imaginative and poetic quality, and also did much work in black and white for the magazines. In 1906 he was elected a member of the National Academy of Design.

Loeb (lēb), William. Born at Albany, N. Y., Oct. 9, 1866. An American government official. He was stenographer of the New York Assembly in 1888, and after holding the position of private secretary to various public officials (including Governor Roosevelt, 1899–1900), was assistant secretary and afterward secretary to President Roosevelt 1901–09. In 1909 he was appointed collector of the port of New York.

Loeffler (lef'lėr), Charles Martin. Born at Mülhausen, Alsace-Lorraine, Jan. 30, 1861. A composer and violinist. He is a strongly imaginative composer of the most modern tendencies. Among his works are the symphonic poems "La mort de Tintagiles" (1897: after Maeterlinck), "Avant que tu ne t'en ailles," and "Villanelle du diable"; a suite for violin and orchestra, "Les veillées d'Ukraine" (1891: after Gogol); chamber music; and songs.

Loewy (lė-vē'), Maurice. Born at Vienna, April 15, 1833: died at Paris, Oct. 15, 1907. A distinguished French astronomer, director of the Paris Observatory 1896–1907.

Logan (lō'gan). The county-seat of Cache County, Utah, 67 miles north of Salt Lake City. It has sugar-factories, lumber-mills, etc., and is the seat of Brigham Young College and the State Agricultural College. Population, 7,522, (1910).

Logroscino (lō-grō-shē'nō), Niccola. Born at Naples, about 1700: died there, 1763. An operatic composer of the eighteenth century, noted in the history of the opera buffa: erroneously said to have been the first to devise extended ensembles as the finales for acts.

London (lun'dọn), Jack. Born at San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 12, 1876. An American author. He has been at various times a sailor, miner, salmon-fisher, longshoreman, fish-patrolman, etc., and has traveled in search of adventure over much of the United States and Canada, in the East End of London, etc. In 1904 he acted as war correspondent in Japan, Korea, and Manchuria. His works include "The Son of the Wolf" (1900), "The God of his Fathers" (1901), "A Daughter of the Snows" (1902), "The Cruise of the Dazzler" (1902), "Children of the Frost" (1902), "The Call of the Wild" (1903), "The Kempton-Wace Letters" (1903: with Anna Strunsky), "The People of the Abyss" (1903), "The Faith of Men" (1904), "The Sea-Wolf" (1904), "The Game" (1905), "War of the Classes" (1905), "Tales of the Fish-Patrol" (1905), "Moon-Face" (1906), "Iron Heel" (1908), "Martin Eden" (1909), "Burning Daylight" (1910), "Theft," a play (1910), "When God Laughs" (1911), "Adventure" (1911), etc.

London*, University of. Since 1900 the university has provided also courses of instruction. The faculties are those of theology, arts, laws, music, medicine, science, engineering, and economics. There is also an academic department for the control of its various schools and institutions. The students number over 4,000.

Lone Star, The. A secret society formed in 1848 for the annexation of Cuba and other islands to the United States. It flourished chiefly in the Southern States and was denounced by the United States government. Three filibustering expeditions were organized and ended in failure. See Lopez, Narciso.

Lone-star State. A name given to the State of Texas, from the single star on the flag adopted during its struggle for freedom from Mexico. The device is now used in the State seal.

Long (lông), John Luther. Born in 1861. An American author. He engaged in the practice of law at Philadelphia. He has published a number of stories, including "Madam Butterfly" (1898), which served as the foundation of Puccini's opera of that name; "The Fox-Woman" (1900); "Billy Boy" (1906); and "Felice" (1908). He has also collaborated in the plays "The Darling of the Gods" (1902); "Adrea" (1905: both with David Belasco), and "The Dragon Fly" (1905: with E. C. Carpenter).

Long Beach (lông bēch). A city in Los Angeles County, California, on the Pacific coast, 20 miles south of Los Angeles. It is a well-known summer resort. Pop., 17,809, (1910).

Longview (lông'vū). The county-seat of Gregg County, Texas. It has cotton-seed oil mills, lumber-mills, and manufactories of plows, bottles, etc. It is an active trade center for cotton, lumber, and live stock. Population, 5,155, (1910).

Loomis (lō'mis), Charles Battell. Born at Brooklyn, N. Y., Sept. 16, 1861: died at Hartford, Conn., Sept. 23, 1911. An American author. Besides many contributions in prose and verse to various periodicals, he has written "The Four-Masted Catboat" (1899), "Cheerful Americans" (1903), "More Cheerful Americans" (1904: afterward called "Poe's 'Raven' in an Elevator"), "I 've Been Thinking" (1905), "A Bath in an English Tub" (1907), "The Knack of It" (1908), "A Holiday Touch" (1908), and "Little Maude and her Mamma" (1909).

Loón (lō-ōn'). A municipality of Bohol province in the Philippine Islands. It is on the western coast of Bohol Island. Civilized population, 18,114.

Lorain (lō-rān'). A city in Lorain County, Ohio, situated on Lake Erie at the mouth of the Black River. It has an excellent harbor and is a shipping-point for iron, coal, lumber, and grain. It has stove-, brick-, and steel-works, a large ship-building establishment, etc. Population, 28,883, (1910).

Lord (lôrd), Austin Willard. Born at Rolling Stone, Minn., June 27, 1860. An American architect. He studied at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology 1884–85, and also abroad, on the Rotch scholarship, 1888–90. From 1894 to 1896 he was director of the American School at Rome. He is a member of the firm of Lord, Hewlett, and Tallant at New York. Among the buildings which this firm has designed are the Masonic Hall at Brooklyn and the McKinley monument at Columbus, Ohio.

Lord's Cricket Ground. The most famous cricket ground in England. In addition to being the home ground of the Marylebone Club, in the north of London, it is also the contesting field for the most important British and international matches. In 1787 Thomas Lord, a then famous English cricketer, desired to secure a suitable ground for a metropolitan cricket club. He succeeded in obtaining a field now known as Dorset Square, the ground being called "Lord's" and the club the "Marylebone Club." Owing to the expansion of London and the consequent increase of rent, a new ground had to be sought, and the present site, on St. John's Wood Road, a little north of the old field, was purchased. The first recorded match on the original field was played in 1788, and the first contest on the present ground took place June 22, 1814.

Loreburn, Lord. See ★Reid, Robert Threshie.

Lorentz (lō'rents), Hendrik Antoon. Born at Arnheim, Netherlands, July 18, 1853. A Dutch physicist, professor in the University of Leyden from 1878. He is best known as the founder of the theory of electrons, by means of which he explained Zeeman's effect. With Zeeman he received the Nobel prize in physics in 1902.

Lorenz (lō'rents), Adolf. Born in Silesia, April 21, 1854. An Austrian surgeon, chief of the orthopedic department of the Imperial Royal General Hospital in Vienna. He is especially noted for his method of reducing congenital dislocation of the hip-joint without recourse to the knife. In 1902 he visited the United States.

Lorne*, Marquis of (John Douglas Sutherland Campbell), ninth Duke of Argyll. From 1895 to 1900 he was (Unionist) member of Parliament for South Manchester.

Lotta (lot'ä). See ★Crabtree.

Lou Dillon (lō dil'ọn). An American trotting mare, foaled in 1898 by Lou Milton, sire Sidney Dillon. On October 24, 1903, she won the world's championship at Memphis, Tennessee, by trotting a mile in one minute and fifty-eight and a half seconds.

Louis Alexander, Prince of Battenberg. Born at Gratz, Austria, May 24, 1854. An English vice-admiral, the eldest son of Prince Alexander of Hesse, and the brother of Alexander I., Prince of Bulgaria, and Prince Henry of Battenberg. In 1868 he was naturalized a British subject and entered the royal navy as naval cadet. He served in the Egyptian campaign of 1882. In 1884 he married Princess Victoria of Hesse, granddaughter of Queen Victoria. He was director of naval intelligence 1902–05, and was appointed second in command of the Mediterranean fleet in 1907, and to the command of the Atlantic fleet in 1908.

Louise. An opera by Gustave Charpentier, first produced at Paris in 1900.

Louisiana Purchase Exposition. A universal exposition at St. Louis, Missouri, opened April 30, 1904, in commemoration of the purchase of Louisiana. Forty-two States and fifty-three foreign governments exhibited. Among the principal features of the exposition were the departments of education, social economy, and physical culture, the international press parliament, the international congress of jurists, and the world congress of arts and sciences.

Lounsbury (lounz'be-ri), Thomas Raynesford. Born at Ovid, N. Y., Jan. 1, 1838. An American scholar and critic. He was on the editorial staff of the "New American Cyclopædia" 1860–62; was instructor at Yale 1870–71; and has been professor of English there since 1871. Among his works are "A History of the English Language" (1879), "Life of James Fenimore Cooper" (1882), "Studies in Chaucer" (1891), "Shakespearean Wars" (1901), "Shakespeare and Voltaire" (1902), "The Standard of Pronunciation in English" (1904), and "English Spelling and Spelling Reform" (1909).

Low (lō), Will H. (Hicok). Born at Albany, N. Y., May 31, 1853. An American artist. He was a pupil of Gérôme and of Carolus-Duran at the École des Beaux-Arts, Paris, 1873–77. He is best known as a figure-painter and for his mural decorations. He was elected N. A. in 1890. He has published "A Painter's Progress" (Scammon lectures at the Art Institute of Chicago: 1910).

Lowell (lō'el), Abbott Lawrence. Born at Boston, Mass., Dec. 13, 1856. An American educator, president of Harvard University from 1909. He was graduated at Harvard in 1877; practised law in Boston; and became professor of the science of government in Harvard University in 1900. He has published "Essays on Government" (1889), "Governments and Parties in Continental Europe" (1896), "The Influence of Party upon Legislation in England and America" (1902), "The Government of England" (1908), etc.

Lowell (lō'el), Mrs. (Josephine Shaw). Born at West Roxbury, Mass., Dec. 16, 1843: died at New York, Oct. 12, 1905. An American philanthropist. She was the sister of Robert Gould Shaw, and the wife (married 1863) of Charles Russell Lowell, who was killed at the battle of Cedar Creek, Oct., 1864. After her husband's death she devoted her life to charitable work; was a member of the New York State Board of Charities 1876–89; and was largely instrumental in founding the Charity Organization Society and the New York State Charities Aid Association. She also aided in prison reform, etc. She published "Public Relief and Private Charity" (1884), "Industrial Arbitration and Conciliation" (1893), etc.

Lowell (lō'el), Percival. Born at Boston, March 13, 1855. An American astronomer, best known for his studies of the planet Mars. He established the Lowell Observatory at Flagstaff, Arizona, in 1894, and is its director. He has been non-resident professor of astronomy at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Boston, since 1902. He has written "Chosön" (1885), "The Soul of the Far East" (1886), "Occult Japan" (1894), "Mars" (1895), "Annals of the Lowell Observatory" (Vol. I., 1898; Vol. II., 1900; Vol. III., 1905), "The Solar System" (1903), "Mars and its Canals" (1906), "Mars as the Abode of Life" (1909), "The Evolution of Worlds" (1909), etc.

Lowell Institute. An educational institution in Boston, Massachusetts. John Lowell (1799–1836) provided in his will that one half his property (amounting to about $250,000) should go "to the maintenance and support of public lectures . . . in Boston . . . for the promotion of the moral and intellectual and physical instruction and education of the inhabitants." The management of the fund was left to one trustee, preferably a male descendant of John Lowell (grandfather of the testator). The free lectures were begun, December 31, 1839, by a memorial address on John Lowell by Edward Everett. The trustee of the Lowell Institute also established, under the auspices of the Natural History Society, a Teachers' School of Science; under those of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, a School of Practical Design (1872)—now transferred to the Boston Museum of Fine Arts—and a School for Industrial Foremen; and under those of the Wells Memorial Institute, free courses for workingmen. Other courses of a special nature have been established from time to time.

Lualaba-Kasai. An administrative district of the Belgian Kongo.

Lubang (lö-bäng') Islands. A group of islands in the Philippines, belonging to Mindoro province, and lying northwest of Mindoro and west of the southern part of Luzón. It contains 11 named and 48 unnamed islands and rocks. The largest of the group is Lubang. Population, 6,370. Area of group, 87.6 square miles.

Lubao (lö-bä'ō). A municipality of Pampanga province, in the southern part of Luzón, Philippine Islands. Civilized population, 19,063.

Lubbock*, Sir John, Baron Avebury. His later works include "The Beauties of Nature and the Wonders of the World We Live In" (1892), "Seedlings" (1893), "The Scenery of Switzerland" (1896), "On Buds and Stipules" (1899), "Short History of Coins and Currency" (1902), "Essays and Addresses" (1903), "Notes on the Life History of the British Flowering Plants" (1905), "On Marriage, Totemism, and Religion" (1911), etc.

Lucas (lū'kas), Edward Verrall. Born June 12, 1868. An English author and critic. He was connected with the London "Globe" 1893–1900, and with the "Academy" 1896–1901, and is (1911) on the staff of "Punch." He is the compiler of "The Open Road" (1899), and the author of "Wisdom While You Wait" (1903; with O. L. Graves), "Highways and Byways in Sussex" (1904), "A Wanderer in Holland" (1905), "The Life of Charles Lamb" (1905), "A Wanderer in London" (1906), "Listener's Lure" (1906), "The Hambledon Men" (1907), "The Gentlest Art" (1907), "Her Infinite Variety" (1908), "Over Bemerton's" (1908), "A Wanderer in Paris" (1909), "The Slowcoach" (1910), "Mr. Ingleside" (1910), etc.

Lucas (lū'kas), Frederic Augustus. Born at Plymouth, Mass., March 25, 1852. An American naturalist, curator-in-chief of the museums of the Brooklyn Institute 1904–11, and director of the American Museum of Natural History, New York city, 1911–. He was curator of anatomy in the United States National Museum 1893–1904, and acting curator of vertebrate fossils 1901–04. He has published papers upon osteological topics, besides books and articles in a popular style on paleontological subjects.

Luce (lūs), Stephen Bleecker. Born at Albany, N. Y., March 25, 1827. An American naval officer, promoted rear-admiral in 1885. He was appointed midshipman in 1841; served in the Union navy during the Civil War (commanding the monitor Nantucket and other vessels); and retired in 1889. From 1884–86 he was president of the Naval War College, of which he was the founder. He is the author of "Seamanship" (1866), "Naval Songs" (1902), etc.

Lucena (lö-thā'nä). 1. A river in Tayabas province, southeastern Luzón, Philippine Islands, flowing south to Tayabas Bay: navigable for 3 miles to Lucena.—2. A town, the capital of Tayabas province, situated on the Lucena River near Tayabas Bay in lat. 13° 55′ N., long. 121° 26′ 30″ E. Civilized population of municipality, 9,375.

Luchaire (lü-shâr'), Denis Jean Achille. Born at Paris, Oct. 24, 1846: died Nov. 13, 1908. A distinguished French historian. He was professor at the Sorbonne 1885–1908. Among his published works, which deal chiefly with medieval history, the most important are the "Histoire des institutions monarchiques de la France sous les premiers Capétiens" (1883) and four volumes (1904–07) upon Innocent III.

Lucin (lū-sin') Cut-off. A line of railroad on the Union Pacific route in Utah, extending from Ogden to Lucin, and shortening the original distance by rail between those points by 43 miles. It crosses Great Salt Lake on a trestle nearly 12 miles long and on 20 miles of "fill" (an embankment of earth or rock used as a road-bed), and over the desert flats, a distance of 102 miles in all. It was completed in 1904.

Lumber State, The. A popular name of the State of Maine.

Lumholtz (lum'hōlts), Carl Sopheus. Born near Lillehammer, Norway, April 23, 1851. A Norwegian explorer and author. He was zoölogical collector in Australia for the University of Christiania 1880–84; explored northwestern Mexico 1890–98 and 1909–1910; and was assistant in the department of anthropology in the American Museum of Natural History, New York city, 1897–99. He has received the gold medal of the Norwegian Geographical Society. He has written "Among Cannibals," "Unknown Mexico," etc.

Lumière (lü-myâr'), Antoine. Born near Besançon, France, 1840: died at Paris, April, 1911. A French photographer and landscape-painter, noted as the inventor of a successful process of color-photography.

Lummis (lum'is), Charles Fletcher. Born at Lynn, Mass., March 1, 1859. An American author and editor. He was graduated at Harvard in 1881; was the city editor of the Los Angeles "Daily Times" 1885–88; and has been the editor of "Out West" (until 1902 "The Land of Sunshine") from 1893. He was librarian of the Los Angeles public library 1905–1910. Among his works are "Birch Bark Poems" (1878), "A New Mexico David" (1891), "A Tramp Across the Continent" (1892), "Some Strange Corners of Our Country" (1892), "The Land of Poco Tiempo" (1893), "The Spanish Pioneers" (1893), "The Man who Married the Moon, and Other Pueblo Folk Stories" (1896), "The Gold Fish of Gran Chimu" (1896), "The King of the Broncos, and Other New Mexico Stories" (1897), "The Enchanted Burro" (1897), "The Awakening of a Nation: Mexico To-day" (1898), etc.

Lunn (lun), Louisa Kirkby. Born at Manchester, Nov. 8, 1873. An English contralto singer. In 1893 she appeared in London in Schumann's "Genoveva," and on March 2, 1896, created the rôle of Nora in Villiers Stanford's "Shamus O'Brien." Since 1901 she has been a member of the Covent Garden Opera Company. She toured in America 1904–05 as Kundry, in a production of "Parsifal," and has frequently appeared in concert. In 1899 she married W. J. K. Pearson of London.

Luristan*. An earthquake occurred here on Jan. 23, 1909, in which, it is reported, over five thousand people were killed.

Lurton (lėr'tọn), Horace Harmon. Born at Newport, Ky., Feb. 26, 1844. An American jurist. He was admitted to the bar in 1867. He was chancellor of the 6th judicial division, Tennessee, 1875–78; justice of the Supreme Court of Tennessee 1886–93, and chief justice in 1893; and judge for the 6th United States judicial circuit 1893–1910. In 1910 he was appointed associate justice of the United States Supreme Court.

Luska (lus'kä), Sidney. A pseudonym used by Henry Harland in his earlier work.

Luxemburg* (grand duchy). Adolf of Nassau was succeeded in 1905 by his son William.

Luzerne (lū-zėrn'). A borough in Luzerne County, Pennsylvania, five miles northwest of Wilkes-Barre. It has flour-mills, drill-factories, etc. Population, 5,426, (1910).

Lyceum Club. A London club for women, founded in 1904 for the benefit of those interested in the arts. It has a membership of about 2,500. It has branches in various European countries. Its house is at 128 Piccadilly, W.

Lydekker (li-dek'ėr), Richard. Born 1849. A British geologist, connected with the Geological Survey of India 1874–82. He has published "A Manual of Palæontology" (with H. A. Nicholson), etc.

Maasin (mä-ä'sēn). 1. A river in the southern part of Leyte Island, in the Philippines, flowing south to the Surigao Sea.—2. A municipality of Leyte province, Leyte Island. Civilized population, 16,805.

Mabie (mā'bi), Hamilton Wright. Born at Coldspring, N. Y., Dec. 13, 1846. An American author, critic, editor, and lecturer. He was on the editorial staff of the "Christian Union" (later the "Outlook") from 1879, and became its associate editor in 1884. His works include "My Study Fire" (1890; second series 1894), "Short Studies in Literature" (1891), "Under the Trees and Elsewhere" (1891), "In the Forest of Arden" (1891), "Memorial Story of America" (1892; with M. H. Bright), "Essays in Literary Interpretation" (1892), "Old English Ballads" (1896), "Essays on Nature and Culture" (1896), "Essays on Books and Culture" (1896), "Old English Love Songs" (1897), "Essays on Work and Culture" (1898), "The Life of the Spirit" (1898), "Shakespeare, Poet, Dramatist, and Man" (1900), "A Child of Nature" (1901), "Works and Days" (1902), "Parables of Life" (1902), "In Arcady" (1903), "Backgrounds of Literature" (1903), "The Great Word" (1905), "Introductions to Notable Poems" (1910), etc.

McAlester (mą-kal'ęs-tėr). A city in Pittsburg County, Oklahoma, situated in a coal-mining region. It has cotton-compresses, flour-mills, etc. Population, 12,954, (1910).

Macalister (mą-kal'is-tėr), Robert Alexander Stewart. Born at Dublin, July 8, 1870. An Irish archæologist, professor of Celtic archæology in University College, Dublin. He was director of excavations for the Palestine Excavation Fund 1900–09. Among his published works are "Studies in Irish Epigraphy" (1897–1907), "Bible Side-Lights from the Mound of Gezer" (1906), "Two Irish Arthurian Romances" (1908), "The Crosses of Clonmacnois" (1909), and many papers on archæological subjects.

MacArthur (mak-är'thėr), Arthur. Born at Springfield, Mass., June 2, 1845. An American soldier, lieutenant-general in the United States army from 1906. He served in the Union army in the Civil War, rising to the (volunteer) rank of lieutenant-colonel in 1865; entered the regular army in 1866 as lieutenant; served in the Philippines 1898–1901; and was military governor of the Philippines May, 1900,–July, 1901. He was promoted brigadier-general in 1900 and major-general in 1901. Retired in 1909.

McCalla (mą-kal'ą), Bowman H. Born at Camden, N. J., June 18, 1844: died at Santa Barbara, Cal., May 6, 1910. An American naval officer, promoted rear-admiral in 1903. He was graduated at the United States Naval Academy in 1864; was promoted captain in 1898, and commanded the cruiser Marblehead during the war with Spain; served in the Philippines in 1899; and in 1900 took part in the Seymour expedition for the relief of the legations in Peking. He was appointed commandant of the Mare Island Navy Yard (California) in 1903. He retired in June, 1906.

M'Carthy*, Justin. His later works include "Pope Leo XIII." (1896), "Story of Gladstone's Life" (1897), "Story of the People of England in the 19th Century" (1899), "Reminiscences" (1899), "Mononia" (1901), "Reign of Queen Anne" (1902), "Portraits of the Sixties" (1903), "An Irishman's Story" (1904), and "History of Our Own Times" (Vols. IV. and V., 1905).

McClellan (mą-klel'an), George Brinton. Born at Dresden, Saxony, Nov. 23, 1865. An American Democratic politician, son of General George B. McClellan. He was* graduated at Princeton in 1886; was admitted to the bar in 1892; was president of the New York board of alderman 1893-94; served as representative in Congress 1895-1903; and was elected mayor of New York in 1903 and again in 1905. He was Stafford Little lecturer in Princeton University 1908-11, and was appointed lecturer on public affairs there in 1911. He has published "The Oligarchy of Venice" (1904).

McComb (ma-kōm'). A city in Pike County, Mississippi, 61 miles southeast of Natchez. It has cotton-mills and railroad shops. Population, 6,237, (1910).

MacCracken (ma-krak'en), Henry Mitchell. Born at Oxford, Ohio, Sept. 28, 1840. An American clergyman, author, and educator, vice-chancellor and chancellor of New York University 1885-1910. He was graduated at Miami University in 1857, and at Princeton Theological Seminary in 1863; was chancellor and professor of philosophy in the Western University of Pennsylvania 1881-84; and professor of philosophy in New York University 1884-1910. Among his publications are "A Tercentenary of Presbyterianism" (1870), "Leaders of the Church Universal" (1879), "Kant and Lotze" (1885), "A Metropolitan University" (1892), "Hall of Fame" (1901), etc.

McCreery (ma-krē'ri), Fenton Reuben. Born at Flint, Mich., April 21, 1866. An American diplomatist. He was secretary of the United States legation at Santiago, Chile, 1891-93; secretary of the legation and embassy, Mexico City, 1897-1906; and minister resident and consul-general to the Dominican Republic 1907-09. In 1909 he was appointed minister to Honduras.

McCullough (ma-kul'ō), Mrs. (Myrtle Reed). Born at Chicago, Sept. 27, 1874: died there, Aug. 17, 1911. An American author. She published "Love Letters of a Musician" (1899), "Lavender and Old Lace" (1902), "The Master's Violin" (1904), "A Spinner in the Sun" (1906), "Love Affairs of Literary Men" (1907), "Flower of the Dusk" (1908), "Old Rose and Silver" (1909), "A Weaver of Dreams" (1911), etc.

McCutcheon (ma-kuch'on), George Barr. Born in Tippecanoe County, Ind., July 26, 1866. An American novelist. Among his works are "Graustark" (1901), "The Sherrods" (1903), "Brewster's Millions" (1903), "Beverly of Graustark" (1904), "Jane Cable" (1906), "The Flyers" (1907), "The Man from Brodney's" (1908), "Truxton King" (1909), "The Rose in the Ring" (1910), and "What's-His-Name" (1911).

MacDonald (mak-don'ald), Carlos Frederick. Born at Niles, Ohio, Aug. 29, 1845. An American alienist, professor of mental diseases in Bellevue Hospital Medical College from 1887. He was president of the New York Lunacy Commission 1889-96. He has been instrumental in improving the system of caring for the dependent insane, and in establishing separate hospitals for insane criminals. He has also served in many cases as court or State commissioner to inquire into the mental condition of persons charged with crime.

Macdonald (mak-don'ald), Sir Claude Maxwell. Born June 12, 1852. A British soldier and diplomatist, ambassador to Japan from 1905 (minister 1900-05). He served in the Egyptian campaign (1882) and in the Suakim expedition (1884-85); held various diplomatic positions 1887-96; and was minister at Peking 1896-1900. During the siege of the foreign legations in Peking, June-August, 1900, he was in command, and was promoted colonel for his services.

MacDougal (mak-dō'gal), Daniel Trembly. Born at Liberty, Ind., March 16, 1865. An American botanist, director of the department of botanical research of the Carnegie Institution from 1905. He was connected with the desert botanical laboratory of the Carnegie Institution 1902-05. His studies relate especially to plant physiology, heredity, and organic evolution.

MacDowell (mak-dou'el), Edward Alexander. Born at New York, Dec. 18, 1861: died there, Jan. 24, 1908. An American pianist and composer. His studies were carried on in New York and Paris, and in Frankfort, where he was much influenced by Raff. In 1888 he returned to America, and in 1896 was appointed professor of music in Columbia University, a post which he resigned in 1904. His compositions show imagination and originality. The most important are the orchestral tone-poems "Hamlet and Ophelia," "Lancelot and Elaine," "Lamia," "The Saracens," and "The Fair Aldâ"; two suites, of which the second, Op. 48, is based largely on Indian melodies; choruses; and many songs and piano pieces, among which are the sonatas "Eroica," "Tragica," and "Keltic," two suites, and two concertos with orchestra.

Maceo (mä-thā'ō), Antonio. Born at Santiago de Cuba, July 14, 1848: died near Mariel, Dec. 2, 1896. A Cuban military leader, distinguished in the ten years' war against Spain. He defeated Martinez Campos at Demajagua and La Galleta, and Santocildes at San Ulpiano. At the peace of Zanjón, in 1878, he refused to lay down his arms, and continued fighting for two months. He lived successively in Jamaica, the United States, South America, and Costa Rica, returning to Cuba in 1895 to support the rebellion of that year. Until his death in the following year he conducted a brilliant campaign in the province of Pinar del Rio.

Maceo (mä-thā'ō), José. Born at Santiago de Cuba, 1846: died at La Lama del Gato, July 5, 1896. A Cuban patriot, of mulatto parentage, brother of Antonio Maceo. He fought in the ten years' war (1868-78); was one of the leaders of the insurrection of 1879; and was deported to Spain, but escaped from the Balearic Isles, where he was imprisoned, and went to Costa Rica in 1885. In 1895 he went to Cuba, raised a large force, and, with his brother, defeated the Spaniards at Jobito in May, and at São del Indio in September, 1895. He bore the rank of colonel.

McEwen (mak-ū'en), Walter. Born at Chicago, 1860. An American painter. He was trained in Munich, at the Academy of Art and under Frank Duveneck, and in Paris under Robert-Fleury. He has painted portraits and many landscapes and genre subjects, notably a series done in Holland, and he assisted in the decoration of the buildings of the Columbian Exposition in Chicago in 1893. He was created a chevalier of the Legion of Honor in 1896, and was elected a member of the National Academy of Design in 1903.

McFall (mak-fâl'), Mrs. (Frances Elizabeth Clarke): pseudonym Sarah Grand. Born at Donaghadee, County Down, Ireland. A British novelist. She is actively interested in woman suffrage and social work. Among her books are "Ideala" (1888), "The Heavenly Twins" (1893), "The Beth Book" (1897), "The Modern Man and Maid" (1898), "Babs the Impossible" (1900), "Emotional Moments" (1908), etc.

McGee (ma-gē'), W J Born in Dubuque County, Iowa, April 17, 1853. An American geologist and anthropologist, director of the St. Louis Public Museum 1905-07. He was geologist of the United States Geological Survey 1883-93, and ethnologist in charge of the Bureau of American Ethnology 1893-1903. He has published numerous monographs and papers on geological, ethnological, and archæological topics. In 1907 he was appointed a member of the Inland Waterways Commission.

McGiffert (mak-gif'ert), Arthur Cushman. Born at Sauquoit, N. Y., March 4, 1861. An American theologian, professor of ecclesiastical history in Union Theological Seminary (New York) from 1893. He was graduated at Western Reserve College in 1882, and at Union Theological Seminary in 1885, and studied in Germany, France, and Italy 1885-88. From 1888 to 1890 he was an instructor, and from 1890 to 1893 a professor, in Lane Theological Seminary (Cincinnati). He is the author of "A Dialogue between a Christian and a Jew" (1889), "The Church History of Eusebius" (1890), "A History of Christianity in the Apostolic Age" (1897), "The Apostles' Creed" (1902), "Martin Luther, the Man, and his Work" (1911), etc.

McGill University. An institution of learning founded at Montreal, Canada, by the will of James McGill (1744-1813), chartered in 1821, and opened in 1829. The faculties are five in number: arts, applied science, law, medicine, and agriculture; there is also a conservatory of music. Educational work is carried on in McGill College, the Royal Victoria College for Women (founded by Lord Strathcona and opened in 1900), and other university buildings in Montreal; and also in the affiliated colleges, Vancouver College (Vancouver, B. C.), Victoria College (Victoria, B. C.), and the four theological colleges, etc. The student enrolment in the undergraduate courses at Montreal is over 1,600.

MacGrath (ma-grath'), Harold. Born at Syracuse, N. Y., Sept. 4, 1871. An American novelist. Among his works are "Arms and the Woman" (1899), "The Puppet Crown" (1901), "The Grey Cloak" (1903), "The Man on the Box" (1904), "The Lure of the Mask" (1908), "The Goose Girl" (1909), "A Splendid Hazard" (1910), and "The Carpet from Bagdad" (1911).

Mach (mäch), Ernst. Born at Turas, Feb. 18, 1838. An Austrian physicist, professor in the University of Vienna 1895-1901. In 1901 he retired and became a member of the upper house of the Reichsrat. Among his works are "Optischakustische Versuche" (1873-1908), "Die Mechanik in ihrer Entwickelung" (1883), "Beiträge zur Analyse der Empfindungen" (1886: republished in 1903 as "Die Analyse der Empfindungen und das Verhältnis des Physischen zum Psychischen"), "Die Prinzipien der Wärmelehre" (1900), and "Erkenntnis und Irrtum: Skizzen zur Psychologie der Forschung" (1905).

Mackail (ma-kāl'), John William. Born at Ascog, Bute, Aug. 26, 1859. A British scholar, professor of poetry in the University of Oxford 1906-11. He has published "Select Epigrams from the Greek Anthology" (1890), "Biblia Innocentium" (1891-93), "Latin Literature" (1895), a "Life of William Morris" (1899), a translation of the Odyssey (1903-10), "The Springs of Helicon" (1909), and "Lectures on Greek Poetry" (1910).

MacKay (ma-kī'), Alexander Howard. Born at Mount Dalhousie, Nova Scotia, May 19, 1848. A Canadian biologist, superintendent of education in Nova Scotia from 1891. He has published works upon the flora of Nova Scotia, the phenology of Canada, etc.

MacKaye (ma-kī'), James Steele. Born at Buffalo, N. Y., June 6, 1842: died at Timpas, Colo., Feb. 25, 1894. An American actor and playwright. He studied in Paris under Delsarte. In 1872 he appeared on the stage in London, and later built and managed the Madison Square Theater (1880) and the Lyceum Theater (1885) at New York, and the Spectatorium at the World's Fair, Chicago (1893). He also founded the first school of acting in America (1885). Among his plays, in some of which he acted the chief rôle, are "Marriage" (1872), "Won at Last" (1877), "Hazel Kirke" (1880), "Paul Kauvar" (1887), "Money Mad" (1889), "An Arrant Knave" (1890), and "The World-Finder" (1893).

MacKaye (ma-kī'), Percy Wallace. Born at New York, March 16, 1875. An American dramatist and poet, son of James Steele MacKaye. He was graduated at Harvard University in 1897, and studied at the University of Leipsic 1899-1900. He has written "The Canterbury Pilgrims" (1903), "A Modern Rendering into Prose of Chaucer's Tales" (1904), "Prologue to the Saint-Gaudens Masque" (1905), "Fenris the Wolf," (1905), "Jeanne d'Arc" (1906), "Sappho and Phaon" (1907), "The Playhouse and the Play" (1909), "Steele MacKaye" (1911), "The Civic Theatre" (1911), etc.

McKees Rocks (ma-kēz' roks). A borough in Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, 3 miles northwest of Pittsburgh. It has railroad shops and iron- and steel-works, and is a shipping-point for coal and lumber. Population, 14,702, (1910).

McKelway (ma-kel'wā), St. Clair. Born at Columbia, Mo., March 15, 1845. An American journalist, a regent of the University of the State of New York from 1883, and the vice-chancellor from 1899. He was admitted to the bar in 1866, but did not practise. In 1870 he became assistant editor of the Brooklyn "Eagle," and in 1878 editor of the Albany "Argus," which he left in 1885 to become the editor-in-chief of the "Eagle," a position which he now (1911) holds. He is a writer and speaker on educational, civic, and historical questions.

McKendree (ma-ken'drē), William. Born in King William County, Va., July 6, 1757: died near Nashville, Tenn., March 5, 1835. The first American-born bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church. He became presiding elder in 1796, and bishop in 1808.

McKenna (ma-ken'ä), Joseph. Born at Philadelphia, Aug. 10, 1843. An American jurist. He was admitted to the bar in 1865; was a member of the California legislature 1875-76, and a member of Congress 1885-93; was United States circuit judge 1893-97; was attorney-general 1897-98; and was associate justice of the United States Supreme Court 1898-.

M'Kenna (ma-ken'ä), Reginald. Born in London, July 6, 1863. A British statesman, first lord of the admiralty 1908-. He was appointed financial secretary of the treasury in 1905, and was president of the Board of Education 1907-08.

McKenney (ma-ken'i), Randolph Evans Bender. Born at Philadelphia, June 7, 1878. An American botanist and bacteriologist, expert pathologist and physiologist of the United States Department of Agriculture from 1909. He was assistant professor of botany in George Washington University 1902-04.

Mackenzie (ma-ken'zi). A district of the Northwestern Territories of Canada. It is bounded by Beaufort Sea and other arctic waters on the north; Keewatin on the east; Saskatchewan, Alberta, and British Columbia on the south; and Yukon (separated by the Rocky Mountains) on the west. It has many lakes, the Great Slave and the Great Bear being the largest. The Great Slave River flows northwest from northern Alberta (formerly Athabasca) into Great Slave Lake, and the Mackenzie northwest from Great Slave Lake into Mackenzie Bay. Other rivers are the Liard or Mountain (an affluent of the Mackenzie), the Coppermine, the upper waters of the Great Fish or Back, the Telzos, the Rocky, and the Kazan. The western part of the district is densely forested. The climate is severe. Area, 562,182 square miles. Population, 5,216.

Mackenzie (ma-ken'zi), Sir Alexander Campbell. Born at Edinburgh, Aug. 22, 1847. A British composer, since 1888 principal of the Royal Academy of Music in London. He has composed three operas, oratorios, and cantatas, orchestral overtures, a "pibroch" for violin and orchestra, songs, and piano pieces. He was knighted in 1895.

McKim (ma-kim'), Charles Follen. Born in Chester County, Pa., Aug. 24, 1847: died at St. James, L. I., Sept. 14, 1909. An American architect. From 1867 until 1870 he studied in Paris. Returning to America in 1870, he entered the office of H. H. Richardson in New York, and in 1872 commenced practice on his own account. He was joined by W. R. Mead in 1877, and by Stanford White in 1879, thus forming the firm of McKim, Mead, and White, of New York. In 1897 he organized the American Academy in Rome, of which he was chosen the first president. In 1901 he was appointed to the commission intrusted with the rearrangement of the city of Washington. Among the buildings erected by this firm are the Century Club, Madison Square Garden, and the Metropolitan Club in New York; Battle Monument, West Point; the Boston Public Library; the Agricultural Building, World's Fair, Chicago, 1893; the group of buildings of Columbia University, New York, and of the New York University; the reconstruction of the White House in Washington; etc. He became a member of the National Academy of Design in 1907.

McKinley (ma-kin'li), Mount. A mountain in south-central Alaska, about lat. 63° 30′ N., long. 151° W., the highest summit in the United States. In 1906 Dr. Frederick A. Cook reported that he had ascended the mountain on Sept. 15 of that year, but this report has been discredited. Height, 20,300 feet (U. S. C. G. S.).

M'Laren (ma-klar'en), Alexander. Born Feb. 11, 1826: died May 5, 1910. A Scottish Baptist minister and pulpit orator. He was educated at Glasgow University and at Stepney (now Regent's Park) College. He was minister of Portland Chapel, Southampton, 1846-58, and of Union Chapel, Manchester, 1858-1910. He published "Secrets of Power," "The Life of David," etc.

McLaughlin (mak-laf'lin), Andrew Cunningham. Born at Beardstown, Ill., Feb. 14, 1861.

An American educator, professor of history in the University of Chicago from 1906. He was assistant professor and professor of history in the University of Michigan 1888–1906. His works include "Lewis Cass" (1891), "A History of the American Nation" (1899), "The Confederation and the Constitution" (1905), etc. From 1901 to 1905 he was managing editor of the "American Historical Review," and from 1903 to 1904 director of the bureau of historical research in the Carnegie Institution at Washington.

McLellan (mą-klel'ąn), Charles M. S. Born at Bath, Maine, in 1865. An American playwright. He began life as a journalist in New York, and for a time was editor of "Town Topics." He has written the librettos for a number of musical pieces, including "The Belle of New York." Among his plays the most notable is "Leah Kleschna," produced at New York in 1905.

Macleod (mąk-loud'), Fiona. The name under which William Sharp published many of his tales and poems relating to the Scottish Highlands. After the publication of "Pharais," in 1894, there was much conjecture as to the personality of Fiona Macleod, until the illusion was finally established (by means of a carefully conducted correspondence) that she was a young Highland woman writing under her maiden name. The secret of her identity with William Sharp was not disclosed until after his death in 1905. Under her name he published "Pharais" (1894), "The Mountain Lovers" (1895), "The Sin-eater" (1895), "The Washer of the Ford" (1896), "Green Fire" (1896), "From the Hills of Dream" (1896), "The Laughter of Peterkin" (1897), "The Dominion of Dreams" (1899), "The Divine Adventure" (1900), and "The Winged Destiny" (1904), and was preparing at the time of his death "The Immortal Hour" and "The Magic Kingdoms." The best poetic-prose tales were collected and reissued, under the titles "Spiritual Tales," "Barbaric Tales," and "Tragic Romances," in 1897.

McLoughlin (mąk-loch'lin), John. Born in La Ravière du Loup Parish, Canada, Oct. 19, 1784: died at Oregon City, Ore., Sept. 3, 1857. One of the pioneers of Oregon. He went to the Oregon country as chief factor of the Hudson Bay Company in 1824, remaining in its employ until 1846.

MacManus (mąk-man'us), Seumas: pseudonym Mac. Born at Donegal. A contemporary Irish writer of prose and verse. He is the author of "Through the Turf Smoke" (1899), "In Chimney Corners" (1899), "Donegal Fairy Stories" (1900), "The Bewitched Fiddle, and Other Tales" (1900), "A Lad of the O'Friels" (1903), "The Red Poocher" (1903), and many shorter stories.

McMaster*, John Bach. His later works include "With the Fathers" (1896), "Origin, Meaning, and Application of the Monroe Doctrine" (1896), "School History of the United States" (1897), "Daniel Webster" (1902), "The Acquisition of Political, Social, and Industrial Rights of Man in America" (1903), "Brief History of the United States" (1907), etc.

Macnaughtan (mąk-nâ'tąn), Mrs. (Myra Kelly). Born at Dublin, Ireland: died at Torquay, England, March 31, 1910. An American educator and author. She was educated in the New York city public schools and at the Teachers College, Columbia University, and taught in a New York public school 1899–1901, and in the Teachers College 1902–03. She first became known as a writer by her stories of children in the primary schools of New York. Her published volumes include "Little Citizens" (1904), "Wards of Liberty" (1907), "Rosnah" (1908), "Little Aliens" (1910), "New Faces" (1910), "Her Little Young Ladyship" (1911), etc.

MacNeil (mąk-nēl'), Hermon Atkins. Born at Chelsea, Mass., Feb. 27, 1866. An American sculptor. He was trained in Paris and in Rome. He assisted in the decoration of the buildings of the Columbian Exposition in Chicago in 1893, and has executed many monumental works, the most important being the McKinley memorial at Columbus, Ohio. His most interesting statues have been of Indian subjects, as "The Moqui Runner," "The Sun Vow," "Coming of the White Man," etc. He was elected a member of the National Academy of Design in 1906.

Macomb (mą-kōm'). The county-seat of McDonough County, Illinois, 54 miles northeast of Quincy. It is in a farming district, and has manufactories of earthenware, sewer-pipes, etc. The Western Illinois State Normal School is located here. Population, 5,774, (1910).

Mactán (mäk-tän'). An island of the Philippines, east of Cebú, belonging to Cebú province. Here Magalhães, the discoverer of the Philippines, was killed in an attack on the natives on April 27, 1521. Area, 25 square miles. Population, 17,540.

MacVeagh (mąk-vä'), Franklin. Born in Chester County, Pa. An American cabinet officer, brother of Wayne MacVeagh. He was graduated at Yale in 1862, was admitted to the bar in 1864, and began practice in New York. In 1866 he removed to Chicago, and engaged in the wholesale grocery business till 1909, when he became secretary of the treasury in the cabinet of President Taft. He has been interested in various manufacturing and banking enterprises, and is prominent in civic reform movements.

MacVeagh*, Wayne. He was chief counsel for the United States in the Venezuelan arbitration before the Hague tribunal in 1903.

MacWhirter (mąk-hwėr'tėr), John. Born near Edinburgh in 1837: died at London, Jan. 28, 1911. A Scottish painter, best known for his representations of Highland scenes. Among his works are "Lady of the Woods," "Lord of the Glen," and "Dark Loch Coruisk."

Madagascar*. Government is administered by a governor-general, assisted by a council of administration. Diégo-Suarez and the islands of Nossi Bé and Sainte Marie are dependencies of the colony.

Madame Butterfly. An opera by Puccini (words, by Illica and Giacosa, founded on a book by John Luther Long and a drama by David Belasco), first produced at Milan in 1904.

Madero (mä-dā'rō), Francisco I. Born near Parras, Coahuila, Oct. 18, 1873. A Mexican political leader. He is the grandson of a former governor of the state of Coahuila, and was educated principally at a Jesuit college in Mexico and at the University of California. In 1889 he visited Europe, and spent six years in France. On his return to Mexico he became a cotton-planter, and made a fortune, which he spent freely in furthering the revolutionary cause. He took an active part in politics, and wrote articles against Díaz, also a book entitled "The Presidential Succession" (1898). In November, 1910, revolution broke out openly, and after a prolonged struggle the rebels, with Madero at their head, compelled Díaz to resign in May, 1911. Madero became the leader of the Constitutional Progressive party.

Madison (mad'i-sọn). A village in Madison County, Illinois, 4 miles northeast of East St. Louis. Population, 5,046, (1910).

Madison University. See ★Colgate University.

Madisonville (mad'i-sọn-vil). A village in Hamilton County, Ohio, 9 miles northeast of Cincinnati. It has lumber-mills, manufactories of plaster relief, etc. Near by is a prehistoric cemetery, owned by Harvard University. Population, 5,193, (1910).

Maeterlinck*, Maurice (Mooris). He has written also "La mort de Tintagiles" (1894), "Aglavaine et Sélysette" (1896), "Le trésor des humbles" (1896), "La sagesse et la destinée" (1898), "Sœur Béatrice" (1899), "La vie des abeilles" (1901), "MonnaVanna" (1902), "Le temple enseveli" (1902), "Joyzelle" (1903), "Le double jardin" (1904), "Le miracle de saint Antoine" (1905), "L'Intelligence des fleurs" (1907), "L'Oiseau bleu" ("The Blue Bird"): 1909), "Mary Magdalene" (1910), etc.

Mafeking*. It is the seat of government of the Bechuanaland Protectorate.

Mafeking (maf'e-king), Siege of. The siege of Mafeking, in Bechuanaland, during the Boer war, begun by the Boers October 15, 1899, and abandoned May 18, 1900. The defense was conducted by Colonel (later Major-General) Sir R. S. S. Baden-Powell.

Magda. The name of the English version of "Heimat," a drama by Hermann Sudermann, published in 1893. A translation by Charles Edward Amory Winslow was published in 1895.

Magersfontein (mä-gėrz-fon'tān). A locality in Orange Free State, South Africa, near the western boundary and north of the Modder River. Here, on Dec. 11, 1899, the British under Lord Methuen were disastrously defeated by the Boers under General Cronje.

Magnard (män-yär'), Francis. Born at Brussels, Feb. 11, 1837: died at Neuilly-sur-Seine, Nov. 18, 1894. A French journalist. He entered the office of "Le Figaro" in 1863, became managing editor of that journal in 1876, and was editor-in-chief from 1879 until his death. Besides contributing to other journals, he wrote a novel, "L'Abbé Jérôme" (1869), "Vie et aventures d'un positiviste, histoire paradoxale" (1876), etc.

Magoon (ma-gön'), Charles E. Born in Minnesota, Dec. 5, 1861. An American administrator, provisional governor of Cuba, Oct., 1906,–Jan., 1909. He was general counsel of the Isthmian Canal Commission, 1904–05, and governor of the Canal Zone, May, 1905–Oct., 1906.

Magruder (ma-grö'dėr), Julia. Born at Charlottesville, Va., Sept. 14, 1854: died at Richmond, Va., June 9, 1907. An American novelist. Her works include "Across the Chasm" (1885), "Princess Sonia" (1895), "The Violet" (1896), "A Realized Ideal" (1898), "Dead Selves" (1898), "Struan" (1899), "A Beautiful Alien" (1900), "A Manifest Destiny" (1900), "A Sunny Southerner" (1901), etc.

Mahaffy*, John Pentland. He wrote also "Greek Antiquities" (1876), "The Story of Alexander's Empire" (1890), "Problems in Greek History" (1892), "The Petrie Papyri Deciphered and Explained" (1891–1905), "Empire of the Ptolemies" (1896), "An Epoch in Irish History" (1904), "The Silver Age of the Greek World" (1906), etc.

Mahamaya (mä-hä-mä'yä). The mother of Buddha. She was the daughter of the Raja of Koli, and she and her younger sister were the principal wives of Suddhodana, raja of the Sakhyas. Many legendary stories are told of the immaculate conception, the miracles performed, etc.

Mahan*, Alfred Thayer. In 1906 he attained the rank of rear-admiral. Among his later works are "Interest of America in Sea Power" (1897), "Lessons of the War with Spain" (1899), "Problem of Asia" (1900), "The War in South Africa" (1901), "Retrospect and Prospect" (1902), "Sea Power in its Relations to the War of 1812" (1905), "From Sail to Steam" (1907), "Some Neglected Aspects of War" (1907), "Naval Administration and Warfare" (1908), "The Interest of America in International Conditions" (1910), "Naval Strategy" (1911), etc.

Mahler (mä'lėr), Gustav. Born at Kalischt, Bohemia, July 7, 1860: died at Vienna, May 18, 1911. A noted conductor and composer. He conducted the opera in various German cities from 1883 to 1897. From 1897 to 1907 he was the chief conductor at the Imperial Opera in Vienna. He composed eight symphonies, which have aroused controversy over their unconventional methods and structure, and several songs with orchestra. In 1888 he brought out the opera "Die drei Pintos," which he finished after Weber's sketches. Among his most important works are a set of "Humoresken" for orchestra, and a cantata, "Das klagende Lied." He was conductor at the Metropolitan Opera House in New York in 1908, and of the Philharmonic Society, New York, 1909–1911.

Maitland (māt'land), Frederic William. Born May 28, 1850: died Dec. 21, 1906. An eminent English jurist, professor of English law at Cambridge from 1888. His works include "Gloucester Pleas" (1884), "Justice and Police" (1885), "Bracton's Note-book" (1887), "History of English Law" (with Sir F. Pollock, 1895), "Domesday Book and Beyond" (1897), "Township and Borough" (1898), "Canon Law in England" (1898), "Political Theories of the Middle Ages" (trans., 1900), "English Law and the Renaissance" (1901), "Life and Letters of Leslie Stephen" (1907), "Constitutional History of England" (1908), etc.

Maitland (māt'land), John Alexander Fuller: known as Fuller-Maitland. Born at London, April 7, 1856. An English critic and historian of music. He succeeded Francis Hueffer as musical critic of the London "Times" in 1890, and was himself succeeded by H. C. Colles in 1911. He has written a biography of Schumann (1884), "Masters of German Music" (1894), "English Music in the Nineteenth Century" (1902), and "The Age of Bach and Handel" in Volume IV. of the "Oxford History of Music" (1902); and has edited the revision of "Grove's Dictionary of Music" (1904–09).

Majaijai (mä-hī-hī'). See ★Banajao.

Major (mā'jọr), Charles: pseudonym Edwin Caskoden. Born at Indianapolis, Ind., July 25, 1856. An American novelist. Among his works are "When Knighthood was in Flower" (1898), "Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall" (1902), "Yolanda, Maid of Burgundy" (1905), and "A Gentle Knight of Old Brandenburg" (1909).

Makarof (mä'kä-rof), Stephen Ossipovitch. Born at Kief, Dec. 29, 1848: died off Port Arthur, April 12, 1904. A noted Russian admiral. He entered the Russian navy in 1864; was in command of a cruiser in the Russo-Turkish war of 1877–1878; and in 1890 was made inspector-general of artillery. He introduced a number of inventions and improvements in guns and projectiles, and was the inventor of the ice-breaker Ermak. For a time he was military governor of Kronstadt; commanded the division in the Far East 1894–95; and in 1896 was made vice-admiral and afterward commander-in-chief of the Baltic. He took command of the Russian fleet at Port Arthur in 1904, and was killed in the destruction of the battle-ship Petropavlovsk by a mine off the mouth of the harbor.

Malakand, or Malakhand (mal'ą-kand), Pass. A pass in the Northwest Frontier Province of India, north of Peshawar.

Malaspina Glacier*. It is the largest piedmont glacier in the world, being about 20 miles long and 65 or 70 wide. It lies between the St. Elias range and the Pacific, being separated from the latter by a fringe of forested moraines five or six miles wide, except at Icy Cape, where the ice cliffs are washed by the waves.

Malay Peninsula*. A treaty between Great Britain and Siam, signed March 10, 1909, provided for the transfer to British protection of Kelantan, Trengganu, and Keda.

Malaysia, or Malasia (mą-lā'ʒią). Same as Malay Archipelago.

Malay States, Federated. The states of Perak, Selangor, Negri Sembilan, Pahang, and Trengganu, in the Malay Peninsula.

Malinao (mä-lē'nä-ō). An extinct volcano in Albay province, southeastern Luzón, Philippine Islands, approximately in lat. 13° 26′ N., long. 123° 34′ E. Height, 3,066 feet.

Malindang (mä-lēn-däng'). A volcano in northern Mindanao, Philippine Islands. Height, 9,364 feet.

Mall (mâl), Franklin Paine. Born at Belle Plaine, Iowa, Sept. 28, 1862. An American anatomist, professor of anatomy at Johns Hopkins University from 1893. He was adjunct professor of vertebrate anatomy at Clark University 1889–1892 and professor of anatomy at the University of Chicago 1892–93. He has published numerous papers on anatomical and embryological topics.

Mallarmé (mä-lär-mą'), Stéphane. Born at Paris, March 18, 1842: died at Fontainebleau, Sept. 8, 1898. A French poet, one of the most prominent of the group known as decadents, and the leader of the symbolist movement. He wrote much for "Le Décadent" and "Le Parnasse Contemporain." Among his works are "L'Après-midi d'un faune" (1876), "Les dieux antiques" (1880), "Poésies" (1887), "Pages" (1890), "Vers et prose" (1892), "Les divagations" (1897), and a translation of the poems of Poe.

Mallee (mal'ē) Country, or The Mallee. [Name of a species of eucalyptus.] A region in southern Australia, including parts of Victoria, New South Wales, and South Australia, characterized by the growth of mallee scrub.

Mallet (mal'et), John William. Born at Dublin, Ireland, Oct. 10, 1832. A British chemist, long resident in the United States, professor of chemistry in the University of Virginia 1868–83 and 1885–1908. He served in the Confederate army in the Civil War, rising to the rank of lieutenant-colonel of artillery and superintendent of ordnance laboratories. After the war he was successively professor in the universities of Louisiana, Virginia, and Texas, and in Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia. He has published numerous scientific papers.

Mallet (mal'et), Sir Louis. Born at London, March 14, 1823: died at Bath, Feb. 16, 1890. An English economist. In 1860 he was appointed an assistant commissioner, under Cobden, to draw up a tariff in accordance with the provisions of the treaty of commerce with France; and he was connected with the Board of Trade until 1872. In 1874 he became permanent under-secretary of state for India, retiring in 1883. He was knighted in 1868. His occasional writings were collected, under the title "Free Exchange," in 1891.

Mallock*, William Hurrell. His later works include "Labour and the Popular Welfare" (1893), "Classes and Masses" (1896), "Aristocracy and Evolution" (1898), "Tristram Lacy" (1899), "Doctrine and Doctrinal Disruption" (1900), "Religion as a Credible Doctrine" (1902), "The Veil of the Temple" (1904), "The Reconstruction of Belief" (1905), "Critical Examination of Socialism" (1907), "An Immortal Soul" (1908), "The Nation as a Business Firm" (1910), etc.

Malolos (mä-lō'lōs). A town, the capital of Bulacán province, Luzón, Philippine Islands. It is situated at the head of the Pampanga delta, in lat. 14° 51' N., long. 120° 48' E. Civilized population of municipality, 12,575.

Malot (mä-lō'), Hector Henri. Born at La Bouille, May 20, 1830: died at Fontenay-sous-Bois, July 19, 1907. A French novelist. His works include "La vie moderne en Angleterre" (1862), a trilogy entitled "Les victimes de l'amour" (1859), "Souvenirs d'un blessé" (1872), "Sans famille" (1878: crowned by the French Academy), "Mondaine" (1888), "Justice" (1889), "Mère" (1890), "Le prince" (1894), "Amours de jeune" (1895), "Amours de vieux" (1895), "Le roman de mes romans" (an autobiography, 1896), "La beauté" (1897), etc.

Mamanuas (mä-mä-nō'äs). A Negrito people living in the interior of Surigao Peninsula, northeastern Mindanao.

Mamaroneck (ma-mar'o-nek). A village in Westchester County, New York. It is situated on Long Island Sound, and on the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad, about 20 miles from New York city. Population, 5,699, (1910).

Mamertine Prison. A name given to the Carcer Tullianum, the oldest prison in Rome, situated on the eastern slope of the Capitoline Hill. Its erection was attributed to Ancus Marcius (fourth king of Rome, 640–616 B. C.), and it was originally built over a well. The name "Mamertinus" was given to it in medieval times. According to a tradition, St. Peter and St. Paul were imprisoned here. The Tullianum consists of a large oblong upper and a small underground circular chamber, built at different periods. Jugurtha, Lentulus, and others met death in this prison.

Manaoag (mä-nä'ō-äg). A municipality of Pangasinán province, western Luzón, Philippine Islands. Civilized population, 16,793.

Manati (mä-nä-tē'). A city in the northern part of Arecibo department, Porto Rico, situated on Manati River. Population, municipality, 17,240; urban, 4,439, (1910).

Manchester University. See Victoria University of Manchester.*

Manchuria*. By the treaty of Dec. 22, 1905, between China and Japan, the lease of the southern part of the Liao-tung peninsula was transferred from Russia to Japan. The treaty also provided for various railway concessions and the opening of a number of Manchurian ports and cities to foreign trade. Population, about 16,000,000.

Mandayas (män-dä'yäs). A pagan, or but slightly Christianized, people of eastern Mindanao, Philippine Islands, by some regarded as Indonesian.

Mangaldán (mäng-gäl-dän'). A municipality of Pangasinán province, in the western part of Luzón, Philippine Islands. Civilized population, 15,841.

Manhattan (man-hat'an). The county-seat of Riley County, Kansas, at the junction of the Kansas and Big Blue rivers. It is the seat of the Kansas State Agricultural College. Population, 5,722, (1910).

Manhattan (man-hat'an). One of the boroughs of the city of New York (see New York, Greater). It consists of Manhattan Island (which see) and several small islands adjacent. Population, 2,331,542, (1910).

Manila (mä-nē'lä) Bay. A large bay, an arm of the China Sea, indenting the southwestern coast of Luzón, Philippine Islands, and bordered by Bataán, Pampanga, Bulacán, Rizal, and Cavite provinces. It is about 120 miles in circumference, and is a fine harbor. It receives the waters of many rivers, including the Rio Grande de Cagayán and the Pasig, which drains Laguna de Bay. On May 1, 1898, the Spanish fleet under Admiral Montojo was destroyed here by the Asiatic squadron of the United States navy, under Commodore Dewey.

Manitoba*. It sends to the Dominion parliament 4 senators and 10 representatives.

Manoel II. Born at Lisbon, Nov. 15, 1889. King of Portugal from February 1, 1908, when his father, Carlos I., and his elder brother were assassinated. He was deposed by the republican party in October, 1910.

Manon (mä-nôn'). An opera by Massenet (words by Meilhac and Gille), first produced at Paris in 1884. The story is based on the romance "Manon Lescaut," written by the Abbé Prévost.

Mansfield (manz'fēld). A town in Bristol County, Massachusetts, 25 miles southwest of Boston. It has manufactories of electrical supplies, straw goods, cutlery, etc. Population, 5,183, (1910).

Man without a Country, The. A story designed to promote patriotism, written by Edward Everett Hale, and first published in the "Atlantic Monthly," December, 1863.

Man with the Muck-rake. A character in the second part of "The Pilgrim's Progress" shown by the Interpreter to Christiana and her company. Bunyan describes him as follows: "a man that could look no way but downwards, with a muck-rake in his hand. There stood also one over his head with a celestial crown in his hand, and proffered him that crown for his muck-rake; but the man did neither look up nor regard, but raked to himself the straws, the small sticks, and dust of the floor." The explanation given is that he is a man of the world who prefers things carnal to things celestial.

Maoriland (mä'ō-ri-land). The land of the Maoris; New Zealand.

Maqueda (mä-kā'dä) Channel. A strait between Catanduanes and Luzón islands, in the Philippines. It is the northern connection between Lagonoy Gulf and the Pacific Ocean.

Maquiling (mä-kē'ling). A volcano in La Laguna province, southern Luzón, Philippine Islands. It is south of Laguna de Bay and a few miles northeast of Taal volcano, and is approximately in lat. 14° 8' N., long. 121° 10' E. There are signs of activity in pools of boiling mud at a height of about 900 feet on the eastern side and in thermal medicinal springs on the slopes and at the foot of the volcano. Height, 3,724 feet.

March*, Francis Andrew. In 1906 he became professor emeritus. He was a pioneer in the philological study of the English classics and the historical study of the English language, and ranks among the most eminent of philologists.

Marchand (mär-shäṅ'), Jean Baptiste. Born at Thoissey, Aisne, France, Nov. 22, 1863. A French officer and explorer. He entered the army in 1883, and attended the military school of Saint-Maixent until 1887. In 1889 he went to Africa and took part in expeditions to the sources of the Niger and elsewhere. He returned to France in 1892, with the rank of captain, and went again to Africa in 1893 and explored from the Ivory Coast to Tengrela. In 1897 he was placed in command of an expedition which was to start from the coast of French Kongo, cross the continent, and gain the reaches of the upper Nile. He left Brazzaville, March 21, 1897, and reached Fashoda, July 10, 1898, after establishing a chain of posts in the Bahr-el-Ghazal province. His occupation of Fashoda was disputed by General Kitchener, who arrived at the head of an Anglo-Egyptian force Sept. 19, and demanded its evacuation. The affair was referred to the respective governments for settlement, and a declaration was signed by which France agreed to withdraw from the Nile valley, and the frontiers of French and British possessions in Central Africa were defined. Marchand, promoted major, returned to Fashoda, leaving there with his men Dec. 11, 1898, and, marching through Abyssinia, reached Jibuti in May, and by the end of the month arrived in Paris. In 1899 he was made a commander of the Legion of Honor, and was awarded by the Academy of Moral and Political Sciences the Audiffret prize of 15,000 francs, given annually for the greatest act of devotion.

Marchesi de Castrone (mär-kā'sē dā käs-trō'-nā), Mme. (Mathilde Graumann), Marquesa della Rajata. Born at Frankfort-on-the-Main, Germany, March 26, 1826. A German singer and teacher. She was a pupil of Nicolai in Vienna and of Manuel Garcia in Paris. She became well known as a concert singer; taught singing at the Vienna Conservatory 1854–61 and then at Paris; was professor at the Cologne Conservatorium 1865–68 and again at Vienna 1869–1881; and finally settled in Paris, where she established the École Marchesi. Among her pupils have been Antoinetta Fricci, Gabriele Krauss, Tremelli, Caroline Sulla, Schuch-Proska, Antoinette Sterling, Etelka Gerster, Ilma de Murska, Melba, Calvé, Emma Eames, Blanche Marchesi, and others. She is the author of "L'Art du chant," "Marchesi and Music," and has published a large number of vocal exercises.

Mariage de Loti, Le. [F., 'The Marriage of Loti.'] A novel by L. M. J. Viaud (Pierre Loti), published in 1880.

Marie-Claire (mä-rē-klār'). A semi-autobiographical story written by Marguerite Audoux, a Paris seamstress. In it she describes life in a convent school and on a farm. It was published, through the efforts of Octave Mirbeau, at first serially and later in book form in 1910, and received the 5,000-franc prize of "La Vie Heureuse," awarded by a jury of 20 women of letters for the best work of the season in either prose or verse.

Marietta (mā-ri-et'ä). The county-seat of Cobb County, Georgia, in an agricultural region, 16 miles northwest of Atlanta. It has marble-works and various manufactories. A national cemetery is located here. Population, 5,949, (1910).

Marignac (mä-rēn-yäk'), Jean Charles Gallissard de. Born at Geneva, April 24, 1817: died there, April 16, 1894. A distinguished Swiss chemist, professor in the Academy of Geneva 1841–78. He was particularly notable for his determination of atomic weights and for his study of the rarer earths.

Marinduque (mä-rēn-dō'kä). 1. A hilly island of the Philippines, south of Luzón and west of northern Mindoro. Area, 352 square miles. Population, 50,601.—2. A subprovince of Tayabas, southern Luzón, consisting of Marinduque and smaller adjacent islands. Capital, Boac. It has two good ports, Santa Cruz on the northeastern and Banacalan on the northwestern coast. Both are safe harbors in all weather, Santa Cruz for large vessels, Banacalan for those of not more than 15 feet draft. The hills are well wooded. Over 17 per cent. of the land is agricultural and produces hemp in large quantities, and abundance of rice and of fruit. The inhabitants are Tagalogs. Area of subprovince, 361 square miles. Population, 51,674.

Marinette (mar-i-net'). A city, the capital of Marinette County, Wisconsin. It is situated in the southeastern part of the county, on Green Bay, at the mouth of the Menominee River, and opposite Menominee, Michigan, with which it is connected by bridges. Among its industries are sawmills, paper- and flour-mills, iron- and machine-works, manufactures of boxes, doors, etc. It has large lumber interests, good water-power, and a fine harbor. Population, 14,610, (1910).

Marion (mar'i-on). The county-seat of Williamson County, Illinois, 52 miles northeast of Cairo. It is in a coal-mining region, and is a trade center for grain, tobacco, live stock, etc. Population, 7,093, (1910).

Marion (mar'i-on). A city, the capital of Grant County, Indiana. It is situated in the north-central part of the county, on the Mississineva River. It is the seat of a normal college, and has a large public library. A soldiers' home is near it. It has glass- and iron-works, paper- and flour-mills, etc., and various other manufactures. It is in a natural-gas region. Population, 19,359, (1910).

Mariveles (mä-rē-vā'lās). 1. A group of peaks in Bataán province, southwestern Luzón, Philippine Islands.—2. An extinct truncated volcano, the highest of the Mariveles group. Height, 4,615 feet.

Mariveles (mä-rē-vā'lās) Bay. A bay and port on the southern coast of Bataán province, southwestern Luzón, Philippine Islands. It is a safe harbor in all weather.

Marjoribanks (märch'bangks), Edward, second Baron Tweedmouth. Born July 8, 1849: died Sept. 15, 1909. An English Liberal statesman. He was educated at Harrow and at Christ Church, Oxford, and was admitted to the bar of the Inner Temple in 1874. He sat for Berwick in the House of Commons 1880–94, and was second Liberal whip 1886–92, parliamentary secretary to the treasury and chief Liberal whip 1892–94, lord privy seal and chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster 1894–95, first lord of the admiralty Dec., 1905,–08, and lord president of the council in 1908.

Marjorie Daw. A story with an imaginary heroine by Thomas Bailey Aldrich, published in 1873 in the collection "Marjorie Daw and Other People."

Markham (märk'am), Edwin. Born at Oregon City, Ore., April 23, 1852. An American poet, writer, and lecturer. He is best known as the author of "The Man with the Hoe" (published, with other poems, in 1899), referring to a celebrated picture by Millet. His other works include "Lincoln, and Other Poems" (1901) and "Field Folk: Interpretations of Millet" (1906). Among his chief single poems contributed to various magazines are "The End of the Century" (1899), "The Muse of Brotherhood" (1899), "The Mighty Hundred Years" (1900), "The Chant of the Vultures" (1905), "Virgilia" (1905), "The Homing Heart" (1906), etc.

Marlatt (mär'lat), Charles Lester. Born at Atchison, Kansas, Sept. 26, 1863. An American entomologist, first assistant and assistant chief entomologist of the United States Department of Agriculture from 1894. He has published numerous entomological papers.

Marlborough (märl'bur-ō) Club. A London club founded in 1869 for social purposes. It has a membership of 600. Its house is at 52 Pall Mall, S. W.

Marlowe (mär'lō), Julia (real name Sarah Frances Frost). Born at Caldbeck, Cumberland, England, Aug. 17, 1870. An American actress. She was brought to the United States at five years of age by her parents, played at twelve years in a juvenile opera company, and won her first success as Parthenia in "Ingomar" at Boston in 1888. She has played in romantic plays and has won success in Shaksperian rôles. In 1894 she married the actor Robert Taber (died 1904), and in 1911 she married E. H. Sothern.

Marmorek (mär'mō-rek), Alexander. Born Feb. 19, 1865. An Austrian bacteriologist, discoverer of an antistreptococcic serum employed in erysipelas and puerperal fever, and also of a serum thought to be efficacious as a remedy in tuberculosis. He was connected with the Pasteur Institute of Paris 1894–1903.

Marr*, Carl. Since 1893 he has been professor at the Academy of Fine Arts in Munich.

Marshall (mär'shal), Alfred. Born at London, July 26, 1842. An English economist, professor of political economy in the University of Cambridge 1885–1908. He has published "Economics of Industry" (1879: with Mary Paley), "Principles of Economics" (Vol. I., 1890), "Elements of Economics of Industry" (Vol. I., 1891), "The New Cambridge Curriculum in Economics" (1903), etc. He was elected fellow of the British Academy in 1902.

Marshall (mär'shal), Henry Rutgers. Born at New York, July 22, 1852. An American architect and philosophical writer. His publications include "Pain, Pleasure, and Esthetics" (1894), "Esthetic Principles" (1895), "Instinct and Reason" (1898), etc.

Marshall (mär'shal), Thomas Riley. Born at North Manchester, Ind., March 14, 1854. An American lawyer, elected governor of Indiana in 1908 by the Democratic party. He was graduated at Wabash College in 1873, was admitted to the bar in 1875, and engaged in the practice of the law at Columbia City, Indiana.

Marshfield (märsh'fēld). A town in Coos County, Oregon, on Coos Bay. It has a wireless telegraph station. Pop., 2,980, (1910).

Marshfield (märsh'fēld). A city in Wood County, Wisconsin, 25 miles northwest of Grand Rapids. It has furniture factories, woodveneer factories, etc. Population, 5,783, (1910).

Marteau (mär-tō'), Henri. Born at Rheims, March 31, 1874. A noted French violinist. When ten years of age he played in concerts in Vienna, Germany, and Switzerland. In 1892 the Paris Conservatory awarded him a first prize, and Massenet wrote a concerto for him. He toured in America 1892–94. He became teacher of his instrument at the Geneva Conservatory in 1900, and succeeded Joachim as head of the musical school at Berlin in 1908.

Martens (mär'tenz), Frederic de. Born at Pernau, Russia, Aug. 27, 1845: died at St. Petersburg, June 20, 1909. A Russian diplomatist and authority on international law. He was educated at the University of St. Petersburg, in which he was professor of international law 1873–1907. In 1868 he entered the office of the ministry of foreign affairs and later became legal adviser of the Russian foreign office. He represented his government at many international conferences; was arbitrator between England and France in the New Zealand dispute in 1891; was a delegate to the peace conference held at The Hague in 1899; and was legal adviser of the Russian negotiators of the treaty of Portsmouth in 1905. In 1902 he was awarded a Nobel prize for his services in the cause of peace. Among his published works are "Recueil de traités et conventions conclus par la Russie avec les puissances étrangères" (1874–1905), and "Völkerrecht: das internationale Recht der civilisierten Nationen" (1883–84).

Marti (mär'tē), José Julian. Born at Havana, Cuba, 1853: died at Dos Rios, May 22, 1895. A Cuban patriot. He studied law in Spain; was professor of literature and philosophy in the University of Guatemala for several years; and represented the Argentine Republic, Uruguay, and Paraguay as consul in New York, where he also published "La Patria," a journal devoted to Cuban interests. In 1894 he attempted the transport of three armed vessels from the United States to Cuba, but was captured at Fernandina, Florida. In 1895 he succeeded in landing at Cabonico, and marched inland. He was shot during an attack by the Spanish at Dos Rios.

Martin (mär-taṅ'), Henri Jean Guillaume. Born at Toulouse, Aug. 5, 1860. A French painter. He was a student of J. P. Laurens, and exhibited in the Salon in 1880. Among his works are "Les Titans escaladant le ciel" (1885), "Apollon et les Muses" (1895: decorations for the Hôtel de Ville, Paris), "Sérénité" (1899: in the Luxembourg Museum), "Scène champêtre" (1907), etc.

Martin (mär'tin), Riccardo (Hugh). Born at Hopkinsville, Ky., Nov. 18, 1878. An American tenor singer. He studied composition with Edward MacDowell, and published a number of songs. He later studied with Sbriglia in Paris, and made his operatic début at Nantes as Faust. After singing in Italy he appeared at the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, 1907–08, becoming a regular member of the company, and singing at Covent Garden, London, during the summer. His repertoire includes many of the robust tenor rôles in the Italian and French operas.

Martin*, Sir Theodore. He also wrote "Queen Victoria as I Knew Her" (1908). He was knighted in 1880.

Martin (mär'tin), William Alexander Parsons. Born at Livonia, Ind., April 10, 1827. An American clergyman, missionary, and educator. In 1850 he went to China as a missionary; founded the Presbyterian mission at Peking in 1863; was appointed professor of international law at Tung Wen College in Peking in 1868; and became its president in 1869, resigning in 1898. In 1900 he became head of the New Imperial University of China, which was broken up during the Boxer uprising, and he was president of the University of Wu-chang 1902–05. He has been adviser to the Chinese government in matters of international dispute, and was made a mandarin of the third class in 1885, and of the second class in 1898. He edited, in Chinese, the Peking "Scientific Magazine" 1875–78, and the "Science Monthly" 1897–98. Among his publications are "The Chinese" (1881), "A Cycle of Cathay" (1896), "The Siege in Peking" (1900), "The Lore of Cathay" (1901), and works in Chinese on Christianity, science, international law, etc.

Martinique*. It is represented in the parliament at Paris by 1 senator and 2 deputies.

Martins Ferry (mär'tinz fer'i). A city in Belmont County, Ohio, on the Ohio River 2 miles above Wheeling, West Virginia. It is in a coal region, and has iron- and steel-works, blast-furnaces, box-factories, etc. Population, 9,133, (1910).

Martucci (mär-töt'chē), Giuseppe. Born at Capua, Jan. 6, 1856: died at Naples, June 1, 1909. An Italian pianist, conductor, and composer. He first studied with his father, and at the age of eleven entered the Royal Conservatory at Naples. He toured successfully for several seasons as a pianist, then directed the Neapolitan Quartet, and conducted orchestral concerts and, in 1888, at Bologna, the first Italian performance of "Tristan und Isolde." He was director of the Naples Conservatory 1902–09. His works include two symphonies, two piano concertos (on one of which, in B flat minor, his fame as a composer principally rests), two trios, an oratorio, and many compositions for the pianoforte.

Mary (mā'ri), Victoria. Born at Kensington Palace, London, May 26, 1867. Daughter of Francis, Prince and Duke of Teck (1837–1900), and wife of George V., King of Great Britain, whom she married July 6, 1893. She had previously been affianced to Albert Victor, Duke of Clarence (1864–92), the eldest son of Edward VII., and was popularly known as "Princess May." Her mother was Princess Mary, daughter of the first Duke of Cambridge and granddaughter of George III.

Masaraga (mä-sä-rä'gä). An extinct volcano in Albay, southeastern Luzón, Philippine Islands, in lat. 13° 18′ N., long. 123° 35′ E. Height, 5,244 feet.

Masaya (mä-sī'ä). One of the 13 departments of Nicaragua. The capital is Masaya.

Masbate (mäs-bä'tā). 1. A mountainous island of the Philippines, situated in the Visayan Sea west of Samar. The southern coast is deeply indented by the Bay of Asid. Other bays are Barrera on the north, and Cataingán, Masbate or Palanog, and Usón on the east. There are evidences of a seismic center near Masbate, or between this island and the coast of Luzón. Area, 1,236 square miles. Population, 29,451.

2. A province of the Philippines, consisting of Masbate, Burias, Ticao, and adjacent islands in the Visayan Sea. The islands have excellent harbors, Barrera, Cataingán, and Palanog of Masbate, and Boca Engaño, Busin, and Busuanga of Burias, being safe in all weather. San Jacinto and San Miguel of Ticao are safe in the monsoons. Coal, copper, and gold are found in various parts of the province. The chief products are hemp, copra, corn, and sweet potatoes. Large herds of domestic animals are raised. The inhabitants are chiefly Tagalogs. Area, 1,569 square miles. Population, 43,675.

3. A town, the capital of Masbate province, situated on Palanog Bay, Masbate Island, in lat. 12° 33′ N., long. 123° 37′ E. Civilized population of municipality, 4,018.

Mascagni*, Pietro. He was director of the conservatory at Pesaro 1895–1903, and in the latter year made a tour of the United States. He has written also "Guglielmo Ratcliff" (1895), "Zanetto" (1896), "Iris" (1898), "Le maschere" (1901), "Amica" (1905), and "Ysobel" (1910).

Mascari (mäs-kä'ri), Antonino. Born Dec. 4, 1862: died Oct. 18, 1906. An Italian astronomer, best known from his work in solar physics. His observations were made chiefly at the observatory of Catania.

Mascart (mäs-kär'), Eleuthère Elie Nicolas. Born at Quarouble, Nord, France, Feb. 20, 1837: died at Paris, Aug. 26, 1908. A French scientist, best known for his work in electricity, magnetism, and radioactivity. He was appointed professor of physics at the Collège de France in 1872 and director of the Central Meteorological Bureau 1878–1907. Among his publications are "Traité d'électricité statique" (1876), "La météorologie appliquée à la prévision du temps" (1881), "Leçons sur l'électricité et le magnétisme" (1882–86: with Joubert), "Traité d'optique" (1889–93), and "Traité du magnétisme terrestre" (1900).

Mason (mā'son), Alfred Edward Woodley. Born at Dulwich, May 7, 1865. An English novelist. He was educated at Dulwich College and at Trinity College, Oxford, and served in Parliament 1906–10 as a member of the Liberal party. Among his works are "The Courtship of Morrice Buckler" (1896), "The Philanderers" (1897), "Parson Kelly" (1899: with Andrew Lang), "Miranda of the Balcony" (1899), "The Four Feathers" (1902), "Running Water" (1907), "The Broken Road" (1907), and "At the Villa Rose" (1910).

Mason (mā'son), Otis Tufton. Born at Eastport, Maine, April 10, 1838: died at Washington, D. C., Nov. 5, 1908. An American ethnologist, head curator of the department of anthropology of the United States National Museum from 1903. He was curator of the division of ethnology in the museum 1884–1903. He published "Woman's Share in Primitive Culture" (1894), "Origin of Inventions" (1895), and many scientific papers.

Mason*, William. He was a son of Lowell Mason. In 1901 he published "Memories of a Musical Life."

Mason City (mā'son sit'i). The county-seat of Cerro Gordo County, Iowa, 139 miles northwest of Dubuque. The principal industries are agriculture, quarrying, and manufacturing. The National Memorial University is located here. Population, 11,230, (1910).

Massachusetts Institute of Technology. A body incorporated in 1861 "for the purpose of instituting and maintaining a society of arts, a museum of arts, and a school of industrial science." The society held its first meeting Dec. 17, 1862. Its School of Industrial Science was opened in Boston in 1865, and has a student body of about 1,500. It provides instruction in various branches of science and engineering, the curriculum embracing also such general studies as are essential to a liberal education. It has an endowment of about $2,000,000 and an annual income of about $500,000.

Massena (ma-sē'nä). A village situated on La Grasse River in the northern part of Saint Lawrence County, New York. It is the seat of a power-plant generating electric energy of 35,000 horsepower. Population, 2,951, (1910).

Massenet*, Jules Émile Frédéric. He was professor of advanced composition at the Conservatoire 1878–96. He was the youngest member ever elected to the Académie des Beaux-Arts. His later works include "Esclarmonde" (1889), "Le mage" (1891), "Werther" (1892), "Le carillon" (1892), "Thaïs" (1894), "Le portrait de Manon" (1894), "La Navarraise" (1894), "Sapho" (1897), "Cendrillon" (1899), "Griséldis" (1901), music to "Phèdre" (1901), "Le jongleur de Notre-Dame" (1902), "Chérubin" (1905), "Ariane" (1906), and "Bacchus" (1909).

Massive, Mount. A peak of the Saguache range in Colorado. Height, 14,424 feet.

Masson (mä-sôṅ'), Frédéric. Born at Paris, March 8, 1847. A French historian and writer. He was elected a member of the French Academy in 1903, succeeding Gaston Paris. He is best known as the author of a series of works dealing intimately with the life of Napoleon and his family, based on papers given to him by Prince Napoleon, of whom he was the secretary and friend. They are as follows: "Napoléon et les femmes" (1894), "Napoléon chez lui" (1894), "En campagne" (1894), "Aventure de guerre" (1894), "Les cavaliers de Napoléon" (1895), "Napoléon inconnu" (1895), "Marie Valewska" (1898), "Joséphine, impératrice et reine" (1899), "Joséphine de Beauharnais" (1899), "Napoléon et sa famille" (1897–1906), "Joséphine répudiée" (1901), "L'Impératrice Marie Louise" (1902), "Napoléon et son fils" (1904), "Le sacre et le couronnement de Napoléon" (1908), etc. He has written also "Le Marquis de Grignan" (1881: crowned by the French Academy), "Les diplomates de la révolution" (1883), "Le Cardinal de Bernis depuis son ministère" (1884), etc.

Mastriani (mäs-trē-ä'nē), Francesco. Born at Naples, Nov. 13, 1819: died there, Jan. 15, 1891. An Italian dramatist and novelist. He produced forty plays and over a hundred novels, besides many short stories, etc. His work was very popular, particularly among socialists. Among his novels are "I vermi" (1864), "I lazzari" (1865), "I figli del lusso" (1866), "L'Ombre" (1868), and "I misteri di Napoli" (1870).

Matanzas. 2. A province of Cuba. It is bounded on the north by the Florida Strait, on the south and east by the province of Santa Clara, and on the west by the province of Havana. Capital, Matanzas. Area, 3,256 square miles. Population, 239,812.

Mathews (math'ūz), Shailer. Born at Portland, Maine, May 26, 1863. An American theologian. He was educated at Colby College, Newton Theological Institution, and the University of Berlin. He was professor of New Testament history and interpretation at the University of Chicago 1897–1905, of systematic theology 1905–06, and of historical and comparative theology from 1906, becoming dean of the Divinity School in 1908. He was editor of "The World To-Day" 1903–11. In 1911 he became president of the Western Economic Society. His published works include "The Social Teaching of Jesus" (1897), "The Messianic Hope in the New Testament" (1905), "The Church and the Changing Order" (1907), "The Social Gospel" (1909), and "The Gospel and the Modern Man" (1910).

Matsukata (mät-sō-kä'tä), Marquis Masayoshi. Born at Bagoshima, 1840. One of the Japanese "elder statesmen," especially noted as a financier. He has been connected with the treasury from about the time of the accession of the present emperor, and became minister of finance in 1881, retaining this office for more than ten years. He was premier 1891–1892 and 1896–97, and during the latter term placed Japan upon a gold basis. From 1898 to 1900 he continued as minister of finance under Yamagata. In 1903 he was appointed a privy councilor. He was created count in 1884 and marquis in 1907.

Matteawan (mat″ē-ä-wän′). A village in Dutchess County, New York, on Fishkill Creek, about 1 mile east of the Hudson River, nearly opposite Newburg. It is the seat of the State Hospital for the Criminal Insane. Population, 6,727, (1910).

Matteucci (mät-tä-ō′chē), Vittorio Raffaello. Born at Sinigaglia, Ancona, in 1866: died July 16, 1909. An Italian geologist, instructor in geology in the University of Naples and physical and meteorological director of the Royal Observatory on Mount Vesuvius. He remained at his post in the observatory during the eruption of the volcano in April, 1906.

Matthews, James Brander. His works include "French Dramatists of the 19th Century" (1881), "Pen and Ink" (1888), "Americanisms and Briticisms" (1892), "Studies of the Stage" (1894), "Vignettes of Manhattan" (1894), "Bookbindings Old and New" (1895), "Introduction to the Study of American Literature" (1896), "Aspects of Fiction" (1896), "Action and the Word" (1900), "Parts of Speech" (1901), "The Historical Novel and Other Essays" (1901), "Development of the Drama" (1903), "Recreations of an Anthologist" (1904), "Inquiries and Opinions" (1907), "The Short Story" (1908), "Molière" (1910), etc., besides comedies and stories.

Matthews (math′ūz), William. Born at Aberdeen, Scotland, March 29, 1822: died at Brooklyn, N. Y., April 15, 1896. An American bookbinder. He came to New York in 1843, established a bindery of his own in 1846, and was connected with the bindery of D. Appleton and Company 1854–90. He was the author of "Modern Bookbinding Practically Considered" (1889) and "A Short Historical Sketch of the Art of Bookbinding" (1895: with W. L. Andrews).

Matthison (math′i-son), Edith Wynne. Born at Birmingham, England. A contemporary English actress. In 1897 she joined Ben Greet's company. She has since appeared in many Shaksperian rôles and old English comedy parts, and in the morality play "Everyman," in both England and America. She has also appeared in New York in Charles Rann Kennedy's "The Servant in the House" and "The Winterfeast," and (as a member of the New Theatre repertory company) in Maeterlinck's "Sister Beatrice" and "The Blue Bird," Josephine Preston Peabody's "The Piper," etc. She is the wife of Charles Rann Kennedy.

Maude (mâd), Aylmer. Born March 28, 1858. An English author. He was educated at Christ's Hospital, London, and at the Lyceum in Moscow, Russia, where he lived until 1897, being occupied chiefly with business interests. In 1898 he aided in arranging the Doukhobor emigration to Canada. He has published "Tolstoy and his Problems" (1901), "A Peculiar People: the Doukhobors" (1905), "Life of Tolstoy" (1908–10), etc.

Maurel (mō-rel′), Victor. Born at Marseilles, June 17, 1848. A French dramatic barytone. He made his début at the Opéra in Paris in 1868; rejoined it in 1879; and remained a member of it till 1894, except 1885–86, when he was at the Opéra Comique. He created Iago in Verdi's "Otello" in 1887, and Falstaff in 1893.

Mauritania (mâ-rē-tā′ni-ä), or Mauritanie. A civil territory of French West Africa, formed in 1903–04. It comprises the regions on the right bank of the Senegal, and includes the districts of Trarga, Brakna, Gorgol, and Guidimaka. Government is administered by a commissioner. In Jan., 1909, it was formed into a French protectorate. Area, 344,967 square miles. Population, 223,000.

Maxim (mak′sim), Hudson. Born at Orneville, Maine, Feb. 3, 1853. An American mechanical engineer, distinguished especially for his inventions in the field of ordnance and explosives. Among the more important of these are several varieties of smokeless powder, maximite (a high explosive), an automobile torpedo, and a torpedo ram. Besides various technical writings, he has published "The Science of Poetry" (1910).

May (mā), Mrs. (Georgiana Marian Craik). See Craik.

Mayáguez. 2. A department in the southeastern part of Porto Rico. It is bounded by Aguadilla on the north and northeast, Ponce on the east, the Caribbean Sea on the south, and the Atlantic Ocean on the west. Capital, Mayáguez. Area, 407 square miles.

Mayfield (mā′fēld). The county-seat of Graves County, Kentucky. It has tobacco and grain interests and woolen-mills, planing-mills, etc. Population, 5,916, (1910).

Maynard (mā′närd). A town in Middlesex County, Massachusetts, 21½ miles northwest of Boston. It has powder-mills, woolen-mills, etc. Population, 6,390, (1910).

Maynard (mā′närd), George Willoughby. Born at Washington, D. C., March 5, 1843. An American painter, son of Edward Maynard, the inventor of the Maynard rifle. He was elected a member of the National Academy in 1885 and is also a member of the American Society of Water-Color Painters.

Maywood (mā′wůd). A village in Cook County, Illinois, about 10 miles west of Chicago. Population, 8,033, (1910).

Mead (mēd), Edwin Doak. Born at Chesterfield, N. H., Sept. 29, 1849. An American editor and author. He studied at English and German universities 1875–79, and has since been engaged in literary work. He edited the "New England Magazine" 1889–1901, and has also edited the "Old South Leaflets" and other publications. As delegate of the American Peace Society he has attended several European peace congresses. His writings include "Martin Luther," "The Philosophy of Carlyle," "Organize the World," "The Influence of Emerson," and "The Principles of the Founders."

Mead (mēd), William Rutherford. Born at Brattleboro, Vt., Aug. 20, 1846. An American architect. He was educated at Amherst College and studied two years abroad, receiving his early technical training under Russell Sturgis at New York. In 1879 he became a member of the firm of McKim, Mead, and White.

Mechanicsville (mē-kan′iks-vil). A village in Saratoga County, New York, on the Hudson River 16 miles north of Albany. It has manufactories of boxes, paper, sashes and blinds, etc. Population, 6,634, (1910).

Medford (med′fôrd). A city in Jackson County, in the southwestern part of Oregon. Its principal industries are refining and distilling. Population, 8,840, (1910).

Medina (me-dī′nä). A village in Orleans County, New York, 40 miles west of Rochester. It has sandstone quarries, pickling-works, flour-mills, and manufactories of hardware, furniture, etc. Medina Falls are in the neighborhood. Population, 5,683, (1910).

Mehmed (me′med) V., or Mohammed V. Born at Constantinople, Nov. 3, 1844. Sultan of Turkey. He succeeded his brother Abdul Hamid II. when the latter was dethroned April 27, 1909.

Melba, Mme. (Nellie Porter Mitchell Armstrong). Her greatest successes have been in "Lucia," as Juliette in "Romeo and Juliette," Elsa in "Lohengrin," Esmeralda, Violetta in "La Traviata," Michaela in "Carmen," Rosina in "Il Barbiere," the Queen in "Les Huguenots," Nedda in "Pagliacci," and Hélène. She has made tours in many countries. In 1882 she was married to Captain Charles Armstrong.

Melchior (mel′ki-ôr). The legendary name of one of the three Magi who came from the East to welcome the infant Jesus. See Cologne, Three Kings of, and Magi.

Melilla (me-lēl′yä). A seaport on the Mediterranean coast of Morocco, lat. 35° 20′ N., long. 3° W., belonging to Spain. Severe fighting between the Spanish troops and the Moors occurred here in August, 1909. Population, 8,956.

Melville (mel′vil), George Wallace. Born at New York, Jan. 10, 1841. An American naval officer and arctic explorer, promoted rear-admiral in 1899. He entered the navy as assistant engineer in 1861; served in the Civil War; and became engineer-in-chief of the navy in 1887. He joined the Jeannette Expedition to the arctic regions in 1879; commanded the boat's crew which escaped from the ship to the Lena delta; and later led a relief expedition which recovered the records of the Jeannette and the bodies of its commander, De Long, and others. He retired in 1903.

Melville (mel′vil) Land. An island in the arctic regions lying immediately north of Greenland, from which it is separated by Peary Channel and Independence Bay. It was discovered and named by R. E. Peary.

Ménard (mā-när′), Auguste Émile René. Born at Paris, April 15, 1862. A French painter. His works include landscapes, portraits, etc. Of his pictures, "L'Automne" (1896) and "Le troupeau" (1901) are in the Luxembourg Museum. Others are "Le jugement de Paris" (1898), "Orage sur la forêt" (1900), "Aigues-Mortes" (1902), "Paysage corse" (1902), "Chaine du Mont-Blanc" (1905), "Terre antique, le temple" (1906), and "Le marais" (1907).

Menasha (me-nash′ä). A city in Winnebago County, Wisconsin, 14 miles northeast of Oshkosh. It has flour-mills, brick-yards, machine-shops, and manufactories of doors, blinds, etc. Population, 6,081, (1910).

Mendel (men′del), Johann Gregor. Born at Heinzendorf, near Odrau, Austrian Silesia, July 22, 1822: died at Brünn, Jan. 6, 1884. An Austrian botanist, noted for his experimental study of the problem of heredity, the results of which he formulated in a law of ancestral inheritance which bears his name. He entered the order of Augustinians at Brünn in 1843, and later became abbot. He published "Versuche über Pflanzenhybriden" (1865) and "Über einige aus künstlicher Befruchtung gewonnene Hieracium-Bastarde" (1869). The scientific importance of these essays was not recognized until about 1900.

Mendès (moń-dās′), Catulle. Born at Bordeaux, May 22, 1841: died at Saint-Germain, Feb. 7, 1909. A French poet, novelist, and dramatist, one of the founders of the Parnassian school of poetry. From 1893 he was dramatic critic of the Paris "Journal." Among his works are "Poésies" (1872); the romances "Le roi vierge" (1880), "Méphistophéla" (1890), "La maison de la vieille" (1894), and "Gog" (1896); the dramas "Les mères ennemies" (1882), "La femme de Tabarin" (1887), "La reine Fiammette" (1889), "Médée" (1898), and "Scarron" (1904); the librettos "Gwendoline" (1886: music by Chabrier), "Isoline" (1888: music by Messager), "La Carmélite" (1902: music by Hahn), "Le fils de l'étoile" (1904: music by Erlanger), and "Ariane" (1906: music by Massenet); and "Le mouvement poétique 1867–1900" (1903).

Menelek (men′e-lek), or Menilek, II. Born at Ankober, Aug. 17, 1844. Emperor of Abyssinia, son of Haëli Melikoth, king of Shoa. He succeeded Johannes II. as emperor of Ethiopia in 1889. In 1889 he signed the treaty of Uccialli (Uchali), which placed the empire of Abyssinia under Italian domination. He abrogated this treaty in 1893 and, after the defeat of the Italians at Adowa, March 1, 1896, established the independence of Abyssinia. He concluded a commercial treaty with France in 1897, and in the same year accorded the "most-favored-nation" treatment to Great Britain and her colonies. He signed an agreement establishing the boundary between Abyssinia and the British Sudan in 1902, and one with Italy defining the limits of Italian Somaliland in 1908. He was succeeded by his grandson Lij Yasu in 1911.

Mengelberg (meng′el-berg), Josef Willem. Born at Utrecht, March 28, 1871. A Dutch musical conductor. After studying at the Cologne Conservatory he became successively city music director of Lucerne (1891), conductor of the Concertgebouw Orchestra (1895) and the Choral Society (1898) at Amsterdam, and conductor of the Museum Concerts (1907) and the Cecilia Society (1908) at Frankfort. He conducted the concerts of the Philharmonic Society, New York, Nov. 10–11, 1905.

Menominee (me-nom′i-nē). A city, the capital of Menominee County, Michigan. It is situated in the southern part of the county, on Green Bay, at the mouth of the Menominee River opposite Marinette, Wisconsin. It has a large lumber-shipping business, sawmills, and manufactures of glass, machinery, etc. Population, 10,507, (1910).

Menominee (me-nom′i-nē). The county-seat of Dunn County, Wisconsin, 22 miles northwest of Eau Claire. It has lumber-mills, foundries, wagon-works, etc., and is the seat of the Stout Manual Training School. Population, 5,036, (1910).

Menpes (men′pes), Mortimer. Born in Australia. A British artist. He studied at the schools in South Kensington and afterward in Paris, but was influenced chiefly by Whistler. He is a technician of great versatility, using every medium freely—oil, water-color, ivory, etching in black and color, dry-point, lithography, pastel, pen, pencil, and stump. He has worked in France, Italy, Spain, Morocco, Japan, Burma, Kashmir, Mexico, and Africa, where he was war correspondent for "Black and White" in 1900. His publications include "War Impressions" (1901), "Japan" (1901), "Whistler as I Knew Him" (1904), "India" (1906: with Flora Annie Steel), "Rembrandt" (1905), etc.

Meredith, George. His later works include "Essay on the Comedy and the Uses of the Comic Spirit" (1897), "Reading of Life, with Other Poems" (1901), "Celt and Saxon" (1910).

Mergenthaler (mer′gen-tä-lėr), Ottmar. Born in Würtemberg, Germany, May 10, 1854: died at Baltimore, Oct. 28, 1899. A German-American inventor. He came to the United States in 1872, and a few years later began experiments with type-setting machines which resulted in the linotype. This machine was virtually completed in 1885, though it was subsequently improved.

Merriam (mer′i-am), Augustus Chapman. Born at Locust Grove, N. Y., May 30, 1843: died at Athens, Greece, Jan. 19, 1895. An American classical scholar and archæologist, professor in Columbia University. He was director of the American School of Classical Studies at Athens 1887–88.

Merriam (mer′i-am), Clinton Hart. Born at New York, Dec. 5, 1855. An American zoölogist, botanist, and ethnologist. He was naturalist of the Hayden Survey, in Idaho, Wyoming, and Utah, in 1872; assistant of the United States Fish Commission in 1875; and chief of the United States Biological Survey 1885–1910. In 1891 he was commissioner in charge of the fur-seals in Bering Sea. He is the author of numerous works on zoölogy, biology, and North American ethnology.

Merrill (mer′il). The county-seat of Lincoln County, Wisconsin, on the Wisconsin River. It has lumber-mills, paper-mills, etc. Population, 8,689, (1910).

Merry (mer′i), William Lawrence. Born at New York, Dec. 27, 1842. An American diplomatist. He was minister to Nicaragua, San Salvador, and Costa Rica 1897–1907, and to Nicaragua and Costa Rica 1907–08, and has been minister to Costa Rica since 1908. He was an advocate of the proposed Nicaragua Canal, and is the author of "The Nicaragua Canal the Gateway between the Oceans," and other writings on this subject.

Merry del Val (mer′i del väl′), Raphael. Born at London, Oct. 10, 1865. A cardinal of the Roman Catholic Church, and pontifical secretary of state.

Merry Widow, The. An operetta by Franz Lehár. See ★Lehár.

Merton (mėr′ton) Abbey. The factory and community of art workers established by William Morris at Merton, Surrey, England, in 1881, under the best attainable artistic conditions.

Mesaba (me-sä'bä) Range. A range of metalliferous hills in northeastern Minnesota, northwest of Lake Superior, in one of the most important iron-producing regions of the world. The output exceeds 50,800,000 tons. Height, 2,400 feet. Also Masaba Heights, Mesabi Range.

Meshach (mē'shak). One of the three Hebrews cast by Nebuchadnezzar into the fiery furnace. His Hebrew name was Mishael, Meshach being substituted for it by the prince of the eunuchs of the King of Babylon.

Messager (mes-sä-zhā'), André Charles Prosper. Born at Montluçon, Dec. 30, 1853. A French composer, conductor, and impresario. He was a pupil of Saint-Saëns. Although he has written serious music, he is best known as a composer of light operas. His works include "François les bas bleus" (1883), "La fauvette du Temple" (1885), "La Béarnaise" (1885), "Les bourgeois de Calais" (1887), "Isoline" (1888), "Le mari de la reine" (1889), "La Basoche" (1890), "Madame Chrysanthème" (1893), "Miss Dollar" (1893), "Mirette" (1894), "Le Chevalier d'Harmental" (1896), "Les p'tites Michu" (1897), "Véronique" (1898), "Les dragons de l'impératrice" (1905), and "Fortunio" (1907). For several years Messager was a conductor at the Paris Opéra Comique, and since 1907 has been a director of the Paris Opéra.

Metcalf (met'käf), Victor Howard. Born at Utica, N. Y., Oct. 10, 1853. An American lawyer and cabinet officer. He was graduated at the Yale Law School in 1876; was admitted to the Connecticut bar in 1876, and to the New York bar in 1877; practised law for many years; was Republican member of Congress for California 1899–1904; was secretary of the Department of Commerce and Labor 1904–06; and was secretary of the navy 1906–08.

Metchnikof (mech'ni-kof), Iliya. Born at Livanovka, province of Kharkof, Russia, May 15, 1845. A noted Russian physiologist and cytologist, the discoverer of phagocytes and phagocytosis. He has been connected with the Pasteur Institute in Paris from 1892, succeeding Pasteur as director in 1895. In 1908 he received, with Dr. Paul Ehrlich, the Nobel prize in medicine. He is the author of "The Nature of Man" (1903), "Immunity in Infective Diseases" (1905), "The Prolongation of Human Life" (1908), etc.

Methuen (meth'ū-en), Paul Sanford, third Baron Methuen. Born Sept. 1, 1845. A British general, commander of the first division of the first army corps in the Boer war 1899–1902. He was opposed by General Cronje at the Modder River and was disastrously defeated by him at Magersfontein. In March, 1902, he was captured by De la Rey but was soon released. In May, 1907, he was appointed commander-in-chief in South Africa. He was gazetted field-marshal, June, 1911.

Metropolitan Club. A New York club organized Feb. 20, 1891, for social purposes. It has 1,250 members. Its house is at Fifth Avenue and 60th street.

Meunier (mė-nyā'), Constantin. Born at Etterbeck, a suburb of Brussels, Belgium, April 12, 1831: died at Brussels, April 4, 1905. A Belgian sculptor and painter. In 1882 he visited Spain and made many interesting studies of Spanish painting. He preferred to model subjects from the working-classes—miners, founders, and the like—and produced a series of powerful statues including the "Puddleur" and the "Marteleur." His last work is a monumental group, "Le Travail," showing a central figure, "Le Semeur," surrounded by four others, "La Mine," "Le Moisson," "Le Port," and "L'Industrie." It has been acquired by the Belgian government.

Meurice (mė-rēs'), François Paul. Born at Paris, in February, 1820: died there, Dec. 10, 1905. A French author and dramatist. His first drama, "Falstaff," written with Théophile Gautier and Vacquerie, appeared in 1842. After this followed "Le Capitaine Paroles" (1843), and "Antigone," from Sophocles (1844), both in collaboration with Vacquerie, and a metrical version of Shakspere's "Hamlet," written with Dumas and Maquet (1847). In 1848 he became editor of Victor Hugo's paper "L'Événement"; assisted in founding the new journal of the Hugo family, "Le Rappel," in 1869; and was one of the executors of Hugo, having charge of the definitive edition of the latter's works (1880–85). He has written, besides the works mentioned, "Benvenuto Cellini" (1852), "Schamyl" (1855), "Struensee" (1898), and other dramas; the romances "La famille Aubry" (1854), "Le songe de l'amour" (1869), etc.

Mexico (mek'si-kō). The county-seat of Audrain County, Missouri, 97 miles northwest of St. Louis. It has flour-mills, wagon-works, cigar-factories, etc., and is the seat of the Missouri Military Academy and the Hardin College for Women. Population, 5,939, (1910).

Meyer (mī'ėr), George von Lengerke. Born at Boston, June 24, 1858. An American diplomatist. He was graduated at Harvard in 1879; was a member of the Massachusetts legislature 1892–96; and speaker of the house 1894–96; was United States ambassador to Italy 1900–05; was United States ambassador to Russia, March 6, 1905–07; was postmaster-general 1907–1909; and was secretary of the navy 1909–.

Meyer (mī'er), Lothar Julius. Born at Varel, Aug. 19, 1830: died at Tübingen, April 11, 1895. A noted German chemist, professor in the University of Tübingen from 1876.

Meyer (mī'er), Victor. Born at Berlin, Sept. 8, 1848: died at Heidelberg, Aug. 8, 1897. An eminent German chemist, professor of chemistry in the University of Heidelberg from 1889.

Meyer-Helmund (mī'er-hel'mönt), Erik. Born at St. Petersburg, April 25, 1861. A Russian singer and composer. He studied at Berlin with Stockhausen and Kiel. He is best known as a song-writer, although he has written several operas, including "Margitta" (1889), "Der Liebeskampf" (1892), "Trischka" (1894), and "Heines Traumbilder" (1908), and ballet music.

Meynell (men'el), Mrs. (Alice Christiana Thompson). Born at London, 1853. An English poet and essayist. Her works include "Preludes" (1875: later published as "Poems," 1893), "The Rhythm of Life, and Other Essays" (1893), "The Colour of Life, and Other Essays on Things Seen and Heard" (1896), "The Children" (1896), "London Impressions" (1898), "The Spirit of Place, and Other Essays" (1898), "John Ruskin" (1900), "Later Poems" (1901), "The Children of the Old Masters" (1903), "A Seventeenth Century Anthology" (1904), "Ceres' Runaway" (1910).

Miagao (mē-ä-gä'ō). A municipality of Iloilo province, Panay, Philippine Islands. Civilized population, 20,656.

Miami (mī-am'ē). The county-seat of Dade County, Florida, on the coast about 65 miles south of Palm Beach. It is one of the oldest towns in the State, and is much visited by tourists. Population, 5,471, (1910).

Miami (mī-am'ē) University. A non-sectarian coeducational institution of learning situated at Oxford, Ohio. It was established under its present name in 1809. Since 1896 it has received annual appropriations from the State. There are about 800 students in attendance, of whom more than 100 are in the Academy and Normal School.

Michelson (mik'el-son), Albert Abraham. Born at Strelmo, Germany, Dec. 19, 1852. An American physicist, professor of physics in the University of Chicago from 1892, best known for his work in optics. He was graduated at the United States Naval Academy in 1873; studied in Germany and France; was instructor in the Naval Academy 1875–79; and was professor of physics in the Case Scientific School 1883–89 and Clark University 1889–92. He has published "Light Waves and their Uses" (1902), besides numerous scientific papers. In 1907 he was awarded the Nobel prize for physics.

Middlesboro (mid'lz-bur-ō). A city in Bell County, Kentucky, near the Tennessee boundary line. Its chief industries are mining and manufacturing, coal and iron being among the products. Population, 7,305, (1910).

Middletown (mid'l-toun). A city in Butler County, Ohio, 20 miles southwest of Dayton. It has manufactories of tobacco, bicycles, farming implements, etc. Population, 13,152, (1910).

Middletown (mid'l-toun). A borough in Dauphin County, Pennsylvania, 8 miles southeast of Harrisburg. It has iron-works, flour-mills, stone-quarries, etc. Population, 5,374, (1910).

Midlothian, Earl of. The title conferred in June, 1911 (coronation honors), upon the Earl of Rosebery. See Primrose, A. P.

Milanesi (mē-lä-nā'zē), Gaetano. Born at Siena, Italy, Sept. 9, 1813: died at Florence, March 12, 1895. An Italian critic and historian of art. In 1856 he was made resident academician of the Accademia della Crusca in Florence, and in 1858 second director of the Tuscan Archives, becoming superintendent in 1889. He devoted himself to the study of the history, chiefly artistic, of Italy, and published frequently in the "Archivio Storico Italiano," "Archivio Storico dell' Arte," and other periodicals. Among his works are "Documenti per la storia dell' arte senese" (1854–56), "Lettere di Michelangelo Buonarroti" (1875), and the standard edition of Vasari's "Lives."

Miller (mil'ėr), Mrs. (Harriet Mann): pen-name Olive Thorne Miller. Born at Auburn, N. Y., June 25, 1831. An American writer and lecturer on birds. Among her works are "Little People of Asia" (1882), "Bird Ways" (1885), "Four-handed Folk" (1890), "Our Home Pets" (1894), "The First Book of Birds" (1899), "The Second Book of Birds" (1901), "With the Birds in Maine" (1904), "Kristy's Surprise Party" (1905), "The Bird our Brother" (1908), etc.

Mills (milz), Walter Thomas. Born at Duane, N. Y., May 11, 1856. An American lecturer and writer. He was one of the editors of the New York "Voice," 1885–87, and 1887–90 editor of the "Statesman" magazine, Chicago. He has been prominent in labor congresses and socialist organizations, and was the author of the more radical provisions of the constitution of Oklahoma. He has published "Science of Politics" (1887) and "The Struggle for Existence" (1904).

Millvale (mil'vāl). A borough in Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, on the Allegheny River, opposite Pittsburgh, with which it is connected by a bridge. It has iron-works, lumber-mills, breweries, etc. Population, 7,861, (1910).

Milne (miln), John. Born at Liverpool, England, 1850. An English seismologist, for many years employed by the Japanese government as geologist and mining engineer. He has traveled widely in Asia, Australasia, the United States, etc. His most notable work was the establishment of the seismic survey of Japan, with nearly a thousand stations, and the projecting of a similar survey of the world. He has published "Earthquakes" (1883), "Seismology" (1898), and numerous scientific papers.

Milner (mil'nėr), Sir Alfred, first Viscount Milner. Born March 23, 1854. A British administrator. He was educated at King's College, London, and at Balliol College, Oxford, and was called to the bar of the Inner Temple in 1881. He was under-secretary for finance, Egypt, 1889–92; was governor of Cape Colony 1897–1901; was administrator (1901–02) and governor (1902–05) of the Transvaal and Orange River colonies; and was high commissioner for South Africa 1897–1905. He was knighted in 1895, raised to the peerage as Baron Milner in 1901, and created a viscount in 1902. The last two honors were bestowed upon him in recognition of his services in South Africa, particularly in the peace settlement. He has written "England in Egypt" (1892).

Milton (mil'ton). A town in Norfolk County, Massachusetts, on the Neponset River, 7 miles southwest of Boston, of which it is a residential suburb. It has granite-quarries, paper-mills, chocolate-factories, etc. Population, 7,924, (1910).

Milton (mil'ton). A borough in Northumberland County, Pennsylvania, on the Susquehanna River. It has car-factories, iron- and steel-works, nail- and box-factories, etc. Population, 7,460, (1910).

Mindanao (mēn-dä-nä'ō) Sea. A sea in the Philippine Islands, lying north of Mindanao and south of Bohol, and connected on the east with the Surigao Sea and on the west with the Joló (Sulu) Sea.

Mindoro. 2. A province of the Philippines, consisting of Mindoro and adjacent islands lying south of the western part of Luzón (separated by Verde Island Passage). Capital, Puerto Galera. Mount Halcón, the culminating peak, is 8,800 feet high. The mountains are covered with valuable forests. Rivers are numerous but small. The best harbors are Puerto Galera on the north, and Mangarín on the southwest coast, both safe for large craft in all weather. Varadero Bay, on the north, is good in the southwest monsoon, and Palúan Bay, on the west, in the northeast monsoon. Coal is found in the south, and gold in various parts of the province. Rice and hemp are the chief products. The natives are Mangyans. Area of province, 4,024 square miles. Population, 39,582, of which the census gave 7,264 as uncivilized.

Mindoro (mēn-dō'rō) Sea. Same as ★Visayan Sea.

Mindoro (mēn-dō'rō) Strait. A strait in the Philippines, separating Mindoro from the Calamianes Islands. Apo Reef and Island divide it into two channels.

Mines (mīnz), John Flavel: pseudonym Felix Oldboy. Born at Paris, Jan. 27, 1835: died at New York, Nov. 5, 1891. An American writer. He was graduated at Trinity College in 1854 and at Berkeley Divinity School in 1857, and in 1861 entered the army as chaplain. Later he left the ministry, received a commission, and became lieutenant-colonel. He wrote "Heroes of the Last Lustre" (1859), "A Tour around New York" (1892), and "Walks in Our Churchyards" (1893).

Minot (mī'not). The county-seat of Ward County, North Dakota, on the Mouse River. Population, 6,188, (1910).

Minot (mī'not), Charles Sedgwick. Born at Boston, Mass., Dec. 23, 1852. An American biologist, professor of comparative anatomy in the Harvard Medical School. He was instructor 1883–87, and assistant professor 1887–92. Among his works are "Human Embryology" (1892), "A Laboratory Text-book of Embryology" (1903), and numerous scientific papers. He is the inventor of the rotary automatic microtome.

Minto (min'tō), fourth Earl of (Gilbert John Elliot-Murray-Kynynmound). Born July 9, 1845. A British soldier and administrator. He served with the Turkish army in 1877, in the Afghan war in 1879, in the Egyptian campaign in 1882, and as chief of staff in the rebellion in northwest Canada in 1885. He succeeded to the title in 1891; was governor-general of Canada 1898–1904; and was viceroy and governor-general of India 1905–10.

Mirbeau (mēr-bō'), Octave Henri. Born at Trévières, France, Feb. 16, 1848. A French journalist, critic, and author. He went to Paris; became a contributor to various periodicals; founded the "Paris-Midi"; and, with others, founded "Les Grimaces," a satirical journal. Among his works are "Lettres de la chaumière" (1886), "Le Calvaire" (1886), "Sébastien Roch" (1890), "Le jardin des supplices" (1899), "Les mémoires d'une femme de chambre" (1901), "Les vingt-et-un jours d'un neurasthénique" (1902); and several plays, "Les mauvais bergers" (1898), "Le portefeuille" (1902), "Les affaires sont les affaires" (1903), and "Farces et moralités" (1904).

Misamis (mē-sä'mēs). A province of the Philippines, in northern Mindanao. It is bounded by the Mindanao and Surigao seas on the north, Surigao province (separated by mountains) on the east, Cotabato on the south, and Lanao and Dapitan on the west. Capital, Cagayán. Iligan Bay separates the eastern from the western part of the province. Port Misamis, or Panguil Bay, is a deep inlet from the southwestern part of this bay. Macajalar Bay indents the northern coast. The province is mountainous, the highest peaks being the Gran Malindang, 8,580 feet, and Camiguin Island, 5,383 feet in height. Coal and gold are found. Cocoa, coffee, hemp, corn, copra, rice, and sugar-cane are among the products. Large numbers of domestic animals are raised. The native race is Visayan. The census of 1903 gave also 3,418 Subanos. Area of province, including Camiguin and other adjacent islands, 3,017 square miles. Population, 153,707.

Misamis (mē-sä'mēs), Port. A deep inlet from the southwestern part of Iligan Bay, northern Mindanao: a good harbor in all weather.

Mischianza (mis-ki-an'zä), The. A farewell banquet and festival given in Philadelphia, May 18, 1778, in honor of Sir William Howe, then commander-in-chief of the British armies in America. It consisted of a regatta on the Delaware river, to which four hundred persons were invited. They landed at the country-seat of Thomas Wharton and there took part in a mock tournament, a banquet, and a ball. Major André took a prominent part in the festival and wrote two accounts of it.

Mishawaka (mish-ä-wä'kä). A city in St. Joseph County, Indiana, 5 miles east of South Bend. It has manufactories of windmills, gasoline engines, automobiles, furniture, wagons, farming implements, etc. Population, 11,886, (1910).

Mission Range. A range of mountains east and southeast of Flathead Lake, Montana.

Missoula (mi-zō'lä). The county-seat of Missoula County, Montana, on the Missoula River, near its junction with the Bitter Root River. It is the trade center for the surrounding region, in which the chief industries are mining, agriculture, and fruit-raising. It has bottling-works, railroad shops, etc., and is the seat of the University of Montana. Population, 12,-869, (1910).

Mistí (mēs-tē'), El. The mountain of Arequipa (which see). Near its summit was established a meteorological station (discontinued) conducted by the Arequipa branch of the Harvard Observatory.

Mistral*, Frédéric. In 1904 he received, with Echegaray, the Nobel prize for literature. His later works include "La Reino-Jano" (1890), "Lou pouèmo dou Rose" (1897), and a volume of memoirs (1906).

Mitchell (mich'el). The county-seat of Davison County, South Dakota, 70 miles northwest of Sioux Falls. It has grain-elevators, railroad shops, lumber-yards, etc., and is the seat of Dakota University. Population, 6,515, (1910).

Mitchell (mich'el), John. Born at Braidwood, Ill., Feb. 4, 1870. An American labor leader. He worked for several years in the coal-mines; joined the Knights of Labor in 1885; and was president of the United Mine-Workers of America from 1898 to 1908. He directed the strikes of the anthracite coal-miners in 1900 and 1902, and the negotiations with the operators in 1906. He has written "Organized Labor" (1903).

Mitchell*, Silas Weir. His later works include "Autobiography of a Quack" (1900), "Dr. North and his Friends" (1900), "The Wager, and Other Poems" (1900), "Circumstance" (1901), "Comedy of Conscience" (1903), "Little Stories" (1903), "Mr. Kris Kringle" (1904), "New Samaria" (1904), "Youth of Washington" (1904), "Constance Trescot" (1905), "A Diplomatic Adventure" (1906), "The Red City" (1908), "Venture in 1777" (1908), "The Comfort of the Hills" (1909), "John Sherwood, Ironmaster" (1911), etc.

Mitra (mē'trä). A peak near the western boundary of Lepanto-Bontoc province, Luzón, Philippine Islands. Height, 5,699 feet.

Möbius (mē'bi-ŏs), Karl. Born in Eilenburg, Germany, Feb. 7, 1825: died in Berlin, April 26, 1908. A German zoölogist, director of the Museum of Natural History in Berlin 1887–1905.

Modder (mod'ėr). A river in the Orange Free State, South Africa, which empties into the Riet, a tributary of the Vaal. The passage of the Modder was forced by Lord Methuen against the Boers under Cronje, with great loss, on Nov. 28, 1899, in his unsuccessful attempt to relieve Kimberley.

Mogollon (mō-gō-yōn') Mesa. An extensive mesa or plateau in east-central Arizona, north of the Salt River and east of the Rio Verde. Elevation, about 8,000 feet above the sea and 5,000 feet above the Rio Verde.

Mohler (mō'lėr), John Robbins. Born at Philadelphia, May 9, 1875. An American bacteriologist, chief of the pathological division of the United States Bureau of Animal Industry from 1902.

Moisant (moi'sant), John B. Born at Chicago, April 25, 1870: died near New Orleans, Dec. 31, 1910. An American architect and aviator. He took part in the revolution in Salvador in 1907. While traveling in France he became interested in aviation, bought a Blériot monoplane, and after a very little practice flew from Paris to London in August, 1910, carrying a passenger. Returning to America, he entered the international races at Belmont Park, Long Island, in October, 1910, finishing second in the Gordon-Bennett cup race, covering the 100 kilometers in 1 hr. 57 min. 44.85 sec., in spite of 38 minutes stop for repairs. He made the fastest time in a cross-country flight from Belmont Park to and around the Statue of Liberty in New York Harbor, about 35 miles in 34 min. 38.84 sec. He was thrown out of his monoplane in making a landing and killed.

Moissan (mwä-säń'), Henri. Born at Paris, Sept. 28, 1852: died there, Feb. 20, 1907. A noted French chemist, professor of chemistry in the Sorbonne: best known for the artificial production of diamonds. He wrote "Reproduction du diamant" (1893), etc. In 1906 he received the Nobel prize for chemistry.

Molesworth (mōlz'wėrth), Mrs. (Mary Louisa Stewart): pseudonym Ennis Graham. Born at Rotterdam, Holland, May 29, 1839. An English author, best known as a writer of children's stories. Among her works are "Tell me a Story" (1875), "Carrots" (1876), "The Cuckoo Clock" (1877), "The Grim House" (1899), "The Wood-pigeons and Mary" (1901), and "The Wrong Envelope" (1906).

Molo (mō'lō). A town in the southern part of Iloilo province, Panay, Philippine Islands. Population, 8,551.

Molokai*. A noted leper settlement is maintained here.

Mond (mond), Ludwig. Born at Cassel, Germany, March 7, 1839: died Dec. 11, 1909. A distinguished German-English chemist. He studied at Marburg and Heidelberg universities. In 1862 he went to England and engaged in chemical manufacturing, in which he introduced or invented many valuable processes, as in the production of soda, chlorin, pure nickel, and a gas for power and heating. He was a fellow of the Royal Society, vice-president of the Royal Institution and of the Chemical Society, member of the Accademia dei Lincei, Rome, and other learned bodies, and in 1896 founded and endowed the Faraday Research Laboratory of the Royal Institution. He owned a notable collection of works of art, a large part of which he bequeathed to the British nation.

Monessen (mō'nes-ęn). A borough in Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania, 20 miles southeast of Pittsburgh. It has foundries, steel-works, etc. Population, 11,775, (1910).

Moneta (mō-nā'tä), Ernesto Teodoro. Born at Milan, Sept. 20, 1833. An Italian journalist, editor of the "Secolo." He is president of the Lombardy Union, International Peace Society, and in 1907 was awarded the Nobel peace prize.

Monis (mō-nē'), Antoine Emmanuel Ernest. Born at Châteauneuf, Charente, May 23, 1846. A French minister of state. He was elected to the Chamber of Deputies in 1885, and in 1901 to the Senate, of which he later became vice-president. He served as minister of justice in the Waldeck-Rousseau cabinet 1899–1902. On the fall of the Briand cabinet, in March, 1911, he became premier, and held office until June, when he gave place to Caillaux.

Monongahela (mō-non-gä-hē'lä). A city in Washington County, Pennsylvania, on the Monongahela River. Coal-mining is its principal industry, and it has glass-factories, machine-shops, paper-mills, etc. Population, 7,598, (1910).

Monroe (mun-rō'). The parish-seat of Ouachita Parish, Louisiana, on the Washita River. It is an important trading center for cotton, and has cotton-compresses, machine-shops, cotton-seed oil mills, etc. Population, 10,209, (1910).

Monsieur Lecocq. A detective story by Émile Gaboriau, published in 1869.

Monson (mun'sŏn), Sir Edmund John. Born at Chart Lodge, Kent, Oct. 6, 1834: died at London, Oct. 29, 1909. An English diplomatist. He was educated at Eton and at Balliol College, Oxford, and entered the diplomatic service in 1856. He was private secretary to Lord Lyons, English minister at Washington, during the Civil War, and subsequently held posts in the Azores (1869), Hungary (1871), Uruguay (1879), and Argentina and Paraguay (1884). In 1884 he became minister to Denmark, and during his stay at Copenhagen was selected as arbitrator of the Butterfield claim, between Denmark and the United States. He was appointed minister to Greece in 1888, and to Belgium in 1892, and ambassador to Austria in 1893, and was ambassador to France from 1896 until his retirement in 1904.

Montagna (mōn-tän'yä), Bartolommeo. Born at Orzinovi, near Brescia, about 1450: died at Vicenza in 1523. An Italian painter. He is said to have studied under Andrea Mantegna at Padua, and also under Giovanni Bellini and Carpaccio. Among his works are "The Presentation of Jesus Christ in the Temple," at Vicenza; "Madonna and Two Saints," at Venice; and "Ecce Homo," in the Louvre.

Montague (mon'ta-gū). A town in Franklin County, Massachusetts, 15 miles northeast of Northampton. It has manufactories of paper, hardware, cotton goods, etc. Population, 6,866, (1910).

Montenegro*. According to the terms of the constitution granted Dec. 19, 1905, the form of government has been changed. It is now a hereditary constitutional monarchy with popular representation. The legislative authority is vested in a council of state and a national assembly (skupshtina) of 74 members.

Montgomery (mont-gum'ę-ri), Henry. Born at Cartwright, Ontario, Nov. 11, 1848. A Canadian geologist and anthropologist, curator of the museum of Toronto University from 1904. He was professor of natural science and museum curator in the University of North Dakota 1883–89; professor of natural science in the State Normal School, Cortland, New York, 1889–90; professor of geology and mineralogy and curator of the museum in the University of Utah 1890–94; and professor of natural science and curator of the museum in Trinity College, Toronto, 1894–1906. He has published "The Remains of Prehistoric Man in the Dakotas," "Prehistoric Man in Utah," etc.

Montgomery (mont-gum'ę-ri), Thomas Harrison. Born at New York, March 5, 1873. An American zoölogist, professor in the University of Pennsylvania from 1908. He was assistant professor in that university 1898–1903, and professor in the University of Texas 1903–08.

Monticelli (mon-ti-chel'i), Adolphe Joseph Thomas. Born at Marseilles, France, Oct. 14, 1824: died there, May 26, 1886. A French painter, of Italian descent. He studied in the art school at Marseilles, and at Paris, where he was especially influenced by the Impressionist school. In 1870 he returned to Marseilles and remained there the rest of his life. He produced a large number of easel pictures exhibiting great brilliancy and harmony of color. He painted with a palette-knife and also directly from the tubes without the assistance of brushes.

Montt (mōnt), Pedro. Born June 29, 1848: died Aug. 16, 1910. President of Chile, son of Manuel Montt, a former president. He was elected to the Congress of Chile in 1876, and became a leader of the Liberal party, holding at various times ministerial offices. In 1891 he was sent as minister to the United States. On Sept. 18, 1906, he was inaugurated president, and continued in office until his death.

Monvel, Louis Maurice Boutet de. See ★Boutet de Monvel.

Monypenny (mun'i-pen-i), William Flavelle. Born Aug. 7, 1866. An English journalist and author. He was assistant editor of the London "Times" 1894–99, and in 1899 became editor of the Johannesburg "Star." He served in the army during the South African war, 1899–1900, and on the staff of the military governor of Johannesburg, as director of civil supplies, 1900–01, subsequently resuming the editorship of the Johannesburg "Star." In 1903 he became a director of the Times Publishing Company. The first volume of his "Life of Benjamin Disraeli, Earl of Beaconsfield," appeared in 1910.

Moody (mō'di), William Henry. Born at Newbury, Mass., Dec. 23, 1853. An American lawyer, attorney-general of the United States 1904–06. He was graduated at Phillips Academy, Andover, in 1872, and at Harvard University in 1876. He was district attorney for the Massachusetts Eastern District 1890–95, a Republican member of Congress 1895–1902, and secretary of the navy 1902–04. He was associate justice of the Supreme Court Dec., 1906–Nov., 1910.

Moody (mō'di), William Vaughn. Born at Spencer, Ind., July 8, 1869: died at Colorado Springs, Oct. 17, 1910. An American poet and critic. From 1895 to 1903 he served as instructor in the department of English in the University of Chicago. Among his works are "Poems" (1901), including the "Ode in Time of Hesitation" (1900); "The Fire-Bringer" (1904), "The Masque of Judgment" (1900), the first and second parts respectively of a dramatic trilogy; "The Sabine Woman," a play (1906); with Robert Morss Lovett, "A History of English Literature" (1902), "First View of English Literature" (1905); "The Great Divide," a play (1906), and "The Faith Healer" (1909).

Moor (mōr), Emanuel. Born about 1862. A Hungarian composer. He was educated at Budapest and Vienna. In 1885 he came to America with a concert company which included Lilli Lehmann and Ovide Musin. He lived for a time in New York, and then in England, later making his home in Switzerland. His works include three operas, "Die Pompadour" (1902), "Andreas Hofer" (1902), and "Hochzeitsglocken" (1908), also symphonies, concertos, chamber music, and about five hundred songs.

Moore (mōr), George. Born at Moore Hall, County Mayo, Ireland, 1853. A British novelist, poet, dramatist, and art critic. He has published two volumes of verse, "Flowers of Passion" (1877) and "Pagan Poems" (1881). As a critic he was one of the first in England to champion the Impressionist school of painters and the naturalistic school in literature. He was associated with Edward Martyn and William Butler Yeats in founding the Irish Literary Theater in Dublin, and has written two plays, "The Strike at Arlingford" (1893) and "The Bending of the Bough" (1900). His other works include "A Modern Lover" (1883), "A Mummer's Wife" (1884), "Literature at Nurse" (1885), "A Drama in Muslin" (1886), "Parnell and his Ireland" (1887), "Confessions of a Young Man" (1888), "Mike Fletcher" (1889), "Vain Fortune" (1891), "Modern Painting" (1893), "Esther Waters" (1894), "Impressions and Opinions" (1895), "Celibates" (1895), "Evelyn Innes," a musical novel (1898), "Sister Teresa" (1901: a continuation of "Evelyn Innes"), "The Untilled Field" (1903), "The Lake" (1905), "Memoirs of my Dead Life" (1906), etc.

Moore (mōr), George Foot. Born at West Chester, Pa., Oct. 15, 1851. An American Orientalist and biblical scholar, professor of the history of religions in Harvard University from 1902. He was professor of Hebrew in Andover (Massachusetts) Theological Seminary 1883–1902. His works include a commentary on the Book of Judges (1895), numerous scientific papers, etc. He was appointed visiting professor at the University of Berlin 1909–10.

Moore (mör), George Thomas. Born at Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 23, 1871. An American cryptogamic botanist. He was graduated at Wabash College in 1894 (Harvard A. B. 1895); was physiologist and algologist of the Bureau of Plant Industry of the United States Department of Agriculture 1901–02; and was head of the laboratory of plant physiology 1902–05. He is best known for his work in perfecting methods of destroying algæ and certain bacteria in water supplies (by means of sulphate of copper), and of cultivating the root-tubercle organisms which, in certain plants, aid the appropriation of nitrogen.

Moore (mör), John Bassett. Born at Smyrna, Del., Dec. 3, 1860. An American publicist, professor of international law and diplomacy in Columbia University from 1891. He was third assistant secretary of state 1886–91; was assistant secretary April–Sept., 1898, during the Spanish war; and was secretary and counsel of the American peace commissioners in Paris. His works include "Extradition and Interstate Rendition" (1891), "History and Digest of International Arbitrations" (1898), "American Diplomacy" (1905), "Digest of International Law" (1906), etc. He collected and edited the "Works of James Buchanan" (12 volumes, 1908–11).

Moqui (mō'kē). The Navajo name for a Hopi Indian. Until recently these Indians were known as Moqui, the name Hopi being a late introduction into literature.

Morais (mō-rä'ēs), Sabato. Born at Leghorn, Italy, April 13, 1823: died at Philadelphia, Nov. 11, 1897. A Jewish rabbi, founder and first president of the Jewish Theological Seminary of America, at New York.

Moran (mō-ran'), Patrick Francis. Born at Leighlinbridge, County Carlow, Ireland, Sept. 16, 1830: died at Sydney, N. S. W., Aug. 16, 1911. A British Roman Catholic prelate, archbishop of Sydney, Australia, from 1884, and cardinal from 1885. He was bishop of Ossory 1872–84. Among his publications are "History of the Catholic Archbishops of Dublin" (1864), "Irish Saints in Great Britain" (1879), "History of the Catholic Church in Australia" (1894), "The Priests and People of Ireland" (1905), etc.

Mordkin (mörd'kin), Mikail. Born about 1882. A Russian dancer. He appeared for a number of years at Moscow. He made his American début in "Coppélia," with Anna Pavlova, at the Metropolitan Opera House 1909–10, and has since appeared in other American cities and in London.

Morelli (mō-rel'i), Giovanni. Born at Verona, Italy, Feb. 25, 1816: died at Milan, Feb. 28, 1891. An Italian art critic. Beginning in 1860, he represented Bergamo in four successive Italian parliaments, and used this opportunity to secure a law, which bears his name, to regulate the preservation of Italian art. In 1861 he was associated with Cavalcaselle on a commission appointed to register all works of art in public institutions in Umbria and the Marches. In his works he established certain facts which have revolutionized Italian art criticism, among them the fact that the old masters frequently dropped into uniform conventional ways of representing details (as hair, ears, fingers, etc.), which are useful in identification.

Morgan (môr'gan), Conwy Lloyd. Born at London, Feb. 6, 1852. An English biologist, principal of University College, Bristol, from 1887. He was appointed professor of zoölogy and geology there in 1884, and of psychology in 1901. Among his publications are "Animal Biology" (1887), "Animal Life and Intelligence" (1890), "Introduction to Comparative Psychology" (1895), "Habit and Instinct" (1896), "Animal Behaviour" (1900), "The Interpretation of Nature" (1905), etc.

Morgan (môr'gan), Edwin Vernon. Born at Aurora, N. Y., Feb. 22, 1865. An American diplomatist. He was secretary to the Samoan High Commission in 1899. He became secretary of legation and deputy consul-general at Seul, Korea, in 1900; second secretary of the embassy at St. Petersburg in 1901; consul at Dalny, Manchuria, in 1904; and minister to Korea in 1905. He was minister to Cuba 1905–10, and was appointed minister to Uruguay and Paraguay in 1910.

Morgan (môr'gan), George Campbell. Born at Tetbury, Gloucestershire, Dec. 9, 1863. An English Congregational minister. He was a master in the Jewish Collegiate School, Birmingham, 1883–86; a mission preacher 1886–88; was ordained in 1889; and held various pastorates from that date. He was Northfield Bible Conference extension lecturer 1901–04, and is the founder and director of the Westminster Bible Conference. In 1904 he became minister of the Westminster Congregational Chapel, Buckingham Gate, London. He is the editor of the "Westminster Bible Record" and the "Westminster Pulpit." He has published "The Spirit of God," "The Crises of the Christ" (1903), "The Analyzed Bible" (1907–), etc.

Morgan (môr'gan), John Pierpont. Born at Hartford, Conn., April 17, 1837. An American banker and financier. He was educated at the English High School, Boston, and at the University of Göttingen. As a financier he has been particularly connected with the reorganization of railways, the floating of the United States bond issue in the administration of President Cleveland, the Atlantic shipping combination, etc. He is known also as a collector of works of art, and has contributed largely to the founding and support of hospitals and other charities.

Morgan (môr'gan), John Tyler. Born at Athens, Tenn., June 20, 1824: died June 11, 1907. An American lawyer and statesman, United States senator (Democratic) from Alabama from 1877. He entered the Confederate army in 1861 and rose to the rank of brigadier-general, and after the war resumed the practice of law. In 1892 he was appointed one of the arbitrators of the Bering Sea fisheries dispute.

Morgan City (môr'gan sit'i). A city in St. Mary Parish, Louisiana, near the mouth of Grand Lake. It exports fish, oysters, sugar, etc. Population, 5,477, (1910).

Morgantown (môr'gan-toun). The county-seat of Monongalia County, West Virginia, on the Monongahela River. It has furniture-factories, cigar-factories, glass-works, etc., and iron, coal, and other minerals are found in the vicinity. It is the seat of West Virginia University. Population, 9,150, (1910).

Morley (môr'li), Edward Williams. Born at Newark, N. J., Jan. 29, 1838. An American chemist and educator, professor of chemistry in Western Reserve University 1869–1906. He was graduated at Williams College in 1860. He has published papers upon chemical and physical topics, especially upon the atomic weight of oxygen.

Morley*, John, first Viscount Morley of Blackburn. He was raised to the peerage in 1908. His later works include "Studies in Literature" (1891), "Oliver Cromwell" (1900), "Life of Gladstone" (1903), "Life of Richard Cobden" (1908), "Critical Miscellanies" (1908), etc.

Moro (mō'rō). A province of the Philippines, created by an act of the Philippine Commission, June 1, 1903. By this act Misamis and Cotabato were reduced and Zamboanga was increased in area, and a new district, Lanao, was created. The province as now constituted consists of the island of Mindanao, except Misamis and Surigao provinces with their adjacent islands; of all other islands adjacent to Mindanao; of Basilan, Cagayán de Joló, and Sibutu; and of the groups included in the Sulu (Joló) Archipelago. The province thus contains all of the Moro territory except that in the southern part of Palawan (Paragua) Island. Each of its five districts—Cotabato, Davao, Joló, Lanao, and Zamboanga—is under a district governor appointed by the governor of the province. Capital, Zamboanga. Area, 28,886 square miles. Population, 402,014.

Moros (mō'rōz). One of the Mohammedan Malay tribes which inhabit the southern islands of the Philippine Archipelago, especially Mindanao and the Joló Archipelago. They are a seafaring and warlike people, and were formerly much given to piracy.

Morris (mor'is), Lewis. Born on Manhattan Island, New York, 1671: died at Trenton, N. J., May 21, 1746. An American statesman, first governor of New Jersey. He was appointed to the bench of the superior court of New Jersey 1692, and was active in effecting the separation of that colony from New York. He served as chief justice of both New York and New Jersey 1715–33, and was governor of the colony from 1738 until his death.

Morris*, Sir Lewis. His later works include "Songs without Notes" (1894), "Idylls and Lyrics" (1896), "Harvest Tide" (1901), and "The New Rambler from Desk to Platform" (1905).

Morrison (mor'i-sŏn), George Ernest. Born at Geelong, Victoria, Australia, Feb. 4, 1862. An English journalist and traveler. He was educated at Melbourne and Edinburgh universities, and has been special correspondent of the London "Times" in China and various parts of Asia. He is the author of "An Australian in China" (1895), etc.

Morrow (mor'ō), William W. Born near Milton, Ind., July 15, 1843. An American jurist, judge of the ninth United States judicial circuit from 1897. He was assistant United States attorney for California 1870–74; served as special counsel for the United States before the French and American claims commissions (1881–83) and the Alabama claims commission (1882–85); was a member of the House of Representatives 1885–91; and was United States judge of the Northern California district 1891–97. He is a trustee of the Carnegie Institution of Washington, D. C., and one of the incorporators of the American National Red Cross Society.

Morse (môrs), Harmon Northrop. Born at Cambridge, Vt., Oct. 15, 1848. An American chemist, professor of analytical and inorganic chemistry in Johns Hopkins University from 1908. He was associate professor there 1876–1891, and professor of analytical chemistry 1891–1908.

Morton (môr'tŏn), Julius Sterling. Born at Adams, N. Y., April 22, 1832: died at Lake Forest, Ill., April 27, 1902. An American cabinet officer. He was graduated at Union College, Schenectady, New York, in 1854; was a member of the territorial legislature of Nebraska in 1856 and 1857; was secretary and acting governor of Nebraska in 1858; and was secretary of the United States Department of Agriculture 1893–97. He instituted Arbor Day in Nebraska in 1872. In politics he was a Democrat, affiliated later with the gold-standard wing of the party.

Morton (môr'tŏn), Paul. Born at Detroit, Mich., May 22, 1857: died at New York, Jan. 19, 1911. An American railroad man, administrator, and financier, son of Julius Sterling Morton. He was connected with the Burlington railway system 1872–90, and was third vice-president 1896–98 and second vice-president 1898–1904 of the Atchison, Topeka, and Santa Fé Railroad. He was secretary of the navy July 1, 1904,–July 1, 1905, and chairman of the board of directors and later president of the Equitable Life Assurance Society 1905–11.

Mosby (mōz'bi), John Singleton. Born in Powhatan County, Va., Dec. 6, 1833. A noted American soldier. He was graduated at the University of Virginia in 1852; practised law in Bristol, Virginia, 1855–61; joined the Confederate army in 1861; and became famous (1862–65) as colonel of independent cavalry ("Mosby's Rangers"), inflicting serious damage upon the Union army by cutting its communications. After the close of the war he resumed the practice of law, and was United States consul at Hong-Kong 1878–85.

Moses (mō'zez), George Higgins. Born at Lubec, Maine, Feb. 9, 1869. An American diplomatist, appointed minister to Greece and Montenegro in 1909.

Mosso (mŏs'sō), Angelo. Born at Turin, May 31, 1846: died there, Nov. 23, 1910. An Italian physiologist, professor in the University of Turin from 1879, especially noted for his investigations in psychophysiology. He has published "The Dawn of Mediterranean Civilization" (1910), etc.

Moszkowski (mŏs-kof'ski), Moritz. Born at Breslau, Aug. 23, 1854. A pianist and composer, chiefly of piano-music. His opera "Boabdil" was produced in 1892.

Motien (mō'ti-en) Pass. A mountain pass in southern Manchuria, southeast of Mukden. It was of great strategic importance in the Russo-Japanese war (1904–05), and a number of sanguinary engagements were fought in its vicinity. It was in the line of the advance of General Kuroki's army upon Liao-yang.

Mott (mot), John R. Born at Livingston Manor, N. Y., May 25, 1865. An American religious worker. He has been chairman of the executive committee of the Student Volunteer Movement since 1888; general secretary of the World's Student Christian Federation since 1895; and foreign secretary of the international committee of the Young Men's Christian Association since 1898. He has published "Strategic Points in the World's Conquest" (1897), "Evangelization of the World in This Generation" (1900), "Christians of Reality" (1902), "The Future Leadership of the Church" (1908), etc.

Mottl (mōtl), Felix. Born near Vienna, Aug. 29, 1856: died at Munich, July 2, 1911. A noted Austrian orchestral conductor and composer. He succeeded Dessoff as court conductor at Karlsruhe, frequently conducting in Bayreuth, and had a high reputation as a Wagnerian. In 1903 he came to New York. In 1904 he was made a director of the Berlin Royal Academy of Music, and was later director of the Royal Opera House, Munich. He composed the operas "Agnes Bernauer," "Ramin," "Fürst und Sänger," etc.

Moulton*, Mrs. (Ellen Louise Chandler). Her later works include "Random Rambles" (1881), "Firelight Stories" (1883), "Ourselves and our Neighbors" (1887), "Miss Eyre from Boston, and Other Stories" (1889), "In the Garden of Dreams" (1889), "Stories Told at Twilight" (1890), "In Childhood's Country" (1896), "At the Wind's Will" (1899), "Poems and Sonnets" (1909), etc.

Moulton (mōl'tŏn), Richard Green. Born at Preston, England, May 5, 1849. An English author, critic, and educator, professor in the University of Chicago from 1892. He was engaged as a lecturer in university extension work in England and America 1874–92. Among his works are "Shakespeare as a Dramatic Artist" (1885), "Ancient Classical Drama" (1890), "The Literary Study of the Bible" (1896), "A Short Introduction to the Literature of the Bible" (1901), "The Moral System of Shakespeare" (1903), and "World Literature" (1911). He has edited "The Modern Reader's Bible" (1895–98).

Mount Carmel (mount kär'mel). A borough in the southeastern part of Northumberland County, Pennsylvania. It has coal-mines and manufactures of coal-mining machinery, etc. Population, 17,532, (1910).

Mount Clemens (mount klem'enz). The county-seat of Macomb County, Michigan, 21 miles northeast of Detroit. Its products include wagons and sleighs, beet-sugar, and agricultural implements. Sulpho-saline springs make it popular as a health resort. Population, 7,707, (1910).

Mount McKinley. See ★McKinley, Mount.

Mount Pleasant (mount plez'ant). A borough in Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania. Its principal products are coke, iron and steel, glass, lumber, flour, etc. Pop., 5,812, (1910).

Mount Vernon (mount vèr'nŏn). The county-seat of Jefferson County, Illinois. Its chief industries are coal-mining, agriculture, and manufacturing. Population, 8,007, (1910).

Muck (mök), Karl. Born at Darmstadt, Oct. 22, 1859. A German musical conductor. He studied at the Conservatory of Leipsic, and made his début as a pianist at the Gewandhaus in 1880. He first conducted at Zurich (1880–81), then at Salzburg (1881–82), Brünn (1882–84), Gratz (1884–86), and Prague (1886–92). In 1892 he became one of the conductors of the Berlin Opera, but resigned in 1906 to come to America to direct the concerts of the Boston Symphony Society. He remained in Boston until 1908, when he again returned to the Berlin Opera. He has conducted for several seasons at Bayreuth, and during one season at Covent Garden, London.

Mudcat State. A popular nickname of the State of Mississippi, from the number of catfish taken from the Mississippi River.

Munger (mung'gėr), Theodore Thornton. Born March 5, 1830: died Jan. 11, 1910. An American Congregational clergyman and writer, pastor in New Haven, Connecticut, from 1885. He had pastorates in Dorchester, Haverhill, Lawrence, and North Adams, Massachusetts, and San José, California. He published "On the Threshold" (1880), "The Freedom of Faith" (1883), "Lamps and Paths" (1883), "The Appeal to Life" (1887), "Horace Bushnell" (1899), "Essays for the Day" (1904), etc.

Munhall (mun'hâl). A borough in Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, on the Allegheny River, 7 miles southeast of Pittsburgh. It was incorporated in 1901. Population, 5,185, (1910).

Munroe (mun-rō'), Henry Smith. Born at Brooklyn, N. Y., March 25, 1850. An American geologist and mining engineer, professor of mining in the School of Mines of Columbia University from 1891. He was assistant geologist of the geological survey of the State of Ohio 1870–71, and of the geological survey of Yezo, Japan, 1872–75; was professor of geology and mining in the University of Tokio 1875–76; and was adjunct professor in the School of Mines 1877–91.

Münsterberg (mün'ster-berg), Hugo. Born at Dantzic, Germany, June 1, 1863. A German psychologist, professor in Harvard University from 1892. He was educated at Dantzic, Leipsic, and Heidelberg, and was professor in the University of Freiburg. Among his publications are "Psychology and Life" (1899), "Grundzüge der Psychologie" (1900), "American Traits" (1902), "The Americans" (1904), "Eternal Life" (1905), "Principles of Art Education" (1905), "Science and Idealism" (1906), "On the Witness Stand" (1908), "Psychotherapy" (1909), "The Eternal Values" (1909), etc. In 1910 he was appointed director of the America Institut, established by the German government at Berlin.

Murchison (mėr'chi-sọn) Goldfield. A gold-mining region in the western part of Western Australia.

Murfree*, Mary Noailles: pseudonym Charles Egbert Craddock. Her later works include "The Despot of Broomsedge Cove" (1888), "In the Stranger People's Country" (1891), "His Vanished Star" (1894), "The Young Mountaineers" (1897), "The Champion" (1902), "The Spectre of Power" (1903), "Storm Centre" (1905), "The Amulet" (1906), "The Windfall" (1907), "A Fair Mississippian" (1908), etc.

Murphysboro (mėr'fiz-bur-ō). The county-seat of Jackson County, Illinois, on the Big Muddy River, 54 miles northwest of Cairo. It has flour-mills, machine-shops, etc. There are coal- and lead-mines in the vicinity. Population, 7,485, (1910).

Murray (mur'ā), David Christie. Born at West Bromwich, Staffordshire, April 13, 1847: died at Hampstead, Aug. 1, 1907. A British novelist. His works include "A Life's Atonement" (1880), "Joseph's Coat" (1881), "Aunt Rachel" (1886), "One Traveller Returns" (with Henry Herman, 1887), "Old Blazer's Hero" (1887), "A Dangerous Catspaw" (1888) and "He Fell among Thieves" (1891: with Henry Herman), "The Martyred Fool" (1895), "A Capful of Nails" (1897), "A Race for Millions" (1898), "The Church of Humanity" (1901), "Despair's Last Journey" (1901), a volume of memoirs entitled "Recollections of a Lifetime" (1907), etc.

Murray (mur'ā), George Gilbert Aimé. Born at Sydney, Australia, Jan. 2, 1866. A British classical scholar. He was educated in London and at St. John's College, Oxford; was professor of Greek at Glasgow University 1889–99; and has been regius professor of Greek at Oxford since 1908. He has published a "History of Ancient Greek Literature" (1897); two plays, "Carlyon Sahib" (1899) and "Andromache" (1900); "The Rise of the Greek Epic" (1907); and other works, including translations.

Murray (mur'ā), John, fourth Earl of Dunmore. Born 1732: died at Ramsgate, England, May, 1809. An English colonial governor. He was appointed governor of the colony of New York in 1770, and of Virginia in 1771. He prorogued the House of Assembly at Williamsburg, Virginia, in 1772; convened it in March, 1773, but immediately dissolved it because of its recommendation of concerted action on the part of the colonies against the mother country; and again dissolved it in 1774 upon its action after the passing of the Boston Port Act. In the autumn of 1774 he commanded a division of Virginia troops in the war against the Ohio Indians, called "Dunmore's War." In 1775 he removed part of the powder stores at Williamsburg to the war-ship Magdalen, thereby provoking armed resistance by the colonists under the leadership of Patrick Henry; but peace was restored temporarily by payment for the powder. Later in the same year, during a riot in the House of Assembly, he transferred the seat of government to the man-of-war Fowey, an act which the burgesses declared to be an abdication. Thereupon he equipped a flotilla, made an unsuccessful attack upon Hampton, reduced Norfolk to ashes, and was finally defeated at Gwynn's Island in the Chesapeake, July 8, 1776. He then disbanded his troops and returned to England. He sat in the House of Lords until 1787, and was governor of the Bahamas 1787–96.

Murray (mur'ā), Sir John. Born at Coburg, Ontario, March 3, 1841. An eminent British zoölogist, one of the naturalists of the Challenger expedition 1872–76. In 1882 he became editor of the reports of the scientific results of this expedition; later published a summary of its results; and (with others) wrote a narrative of the cruise. He also published "Reports on a Bathymetrical Survey of the Fresh-water Lochs of Scotland" (6 vols.).

Musée Cernuschi (mö-zā' cher-nös'ki). The hotel and collection of H. Cernuschi in the Avenue Velasquez, Paris, which he left to the city, at his death in 1896, as a museum devoted to the art of China and Japan.

Musée des Thermes et de Cluny (mö-zā' dā termz ā dė klü-nē'). A museum in the Boulevard St. Michel, Paris. The oldest part of the building consists of the remnant of the baths attached to the imperial palace, probably built by the emperor Constantius Chlorus about 300 A. D. In this portion are collected remains of Roman Paris. In addition was built, in the 15th century, by the abbots of Cluny, the beautiful late-Gothic Hôtel de Cluny. Alexandre du Sommerard (1779–1842) installed in this hotel his notable collections of medieval and Renaissance works of art. In 1843 the building and collections were purchased by the state, and the hotel was consolidated with the Musée des Thermes, the latter being presented to the state by the municipality of Paris.

Museum of Fine Arts. An institution at Boston, Massachusetts, incorporated in 1870 for the purpose of maintaining art collections and of providing instruction in the arts of design. In 1909 the collections were removed from the building in Copley Square to the new museum in the Back Bay Fens.

Musin (mü-zań'), Ovide. Born near Liège, Sept. 22, 1854. A Belgian violinist. He studied at the Liège and Paris conservatories, and made his début in France. Later he visited Holland, and in 1877 went to London, afterward making a tour of the world. He has made several visits to America. In 1898 he succeeded César Thomson as professor of the violin at the Liège Conservatory.

Muskogee (mus-kō'gē). The county-seat of Muskogee County, Oklahoma. It is an important trading center, and has cotton-compresses, flour-mills, an oil-refinery, etc. Near it is Indian University, a Baptist institution opened in 1884. Population, 25,278, (1910).

Mussorgsky (mös-sōrg'ski), Modest Petrovitch. Born in the government of Pskof, March 28, 1835: died at St. Petersburg, March 28, 1881. A Russian composer. He entered the army, but resigned in 1857 and became a pupil of Balakiref. His greatest work, the opera "Boris Godunof," produced in 1874, was later revised by Rimsky-Korsakof, and has since been given in the latter's version. He left another opera and fragments of three more, also a number of songs (in which he is at his best), piano compositions, and orchestral works. Much of his music has been edited since his death by Rimsky-Korsakof.

Myers (mī'ėrz), Frederic William Henry. Born at Keswick, Cumberland, Feb. 6, 1843: died at Rome, Jan. 17, 1901. An English man of letters and philosophical writer. He studied at Trinity College, Cambridge, taking his degree in 1864, and became a fellow of Trinity in 1865. When the Society for Psychical Research was established in 1882 he was one of its founders, and he remained until his death one of the most important of the workers in this field. With Podmore and Gurney he published, in 1886, "Phantasms of the Living." "Science and a Future Life" appeared in 1893 and "Human Personality and its Survival of Bodily Death" in 1901. He also published poems of considerable merit (collected 1870 and 1882).

Mylius-Erichsen (mē'lē-ōs-er'iċh-sen), L. Born at Viborg, Jutland, 1872: died in Greenland, Nov. 25, 1907. A Danish arctic explorer. In 1902–04 he took part in an expedition to western Greenland for the purpose of studying the manners, language, and traditions of the natives. In June, 1906, he set out from Copenhagen in charge of an expedition to eastern Greenland, intending to outline the coast from Cape Bismarck northward and complete the mapping of Greenland. In this he was successful, but perished from the hardships of the return journey southward.

Myres (mīrz), John Linton. Born at Preston, Lancashire, July 3, 1869. An English archæologist. He was educated at Winchester and at New College, Oxford; was lecturer in classical archæology at Oxford in 1903, and Gladstone professor of Greek and lecturer in ancient geography in the University of Liverpool 1907–10; and has been Wykeham professor of ancient history at Oxford since 1910. In 1893 he traveled in Greece, Asia Minor, and Crete, and in 1894 took part in excavations in Cyprus, and assisted in preparing a catalogue (published 1899) of the collections of antiquities in the Cyprus Museum at Nicosia. He has also published a "History of Rome" (1902), and various papers on archæological subjects.

Nabua (nä'bö-ä). 1. A municipality of Ambos Camarines province, in the southeastern part of Luzón, Philippine Islands. Civilized population, 18,893.—2. A town in Ambos Camarines. Population, 5,387.

Nadaillac*, Jean François Albert du Pouget, Marquis de. He wrote also "Les problèmes de la vie" (1892) and "Unité de l'espèce humaine" (1899).

Naga (nä'gä). A municipality of Cebú province, near the eastern coast of Cebú, Philippine Islands. Civilized population, 16,884.

Nagel (nā'gl), Charles. Born in Colorado County, Texas, Aug. 9, 1849. An American lawyer and politician. He was a member of the Missouri legislature 1881–83; a member of the faculty of the St. Louis Law School 1885–1909; president of the St. Louis city council 1893–97; and was appointed secretary of commerce and labor by President Taft in 1909.

Nairobi (nī-rō'bē). The capital of the province of Ukamba, and the capital and administrative center (since 1907) of the British East Africa Protectorate, about 275 miles northwest of Mombasa. It is connected with the coast and with Uganda by the Mombasa-Victoria (Uganda) Railway. Population, 14,161, (1911).

Namaland (nä'mä-land), German. A name given by the German Colonial Society for Southwest Africa to the southern part of the region controlled by it.

Nansen*, Fridtjof. He has been professor of oceanography at the University of Christiania since 1908. He has written also "The Norwegian North Polar Expedition 1893–96: Scientific Results" (with others, 1900–04), "Norway and the Union with Sweden" (1905), etc.

Nan-shan (nän-shän'). A hill on the isthmus which connects the Kwang-tung peninsula in southern Manchuria with the mainland south of Kin-chau. It was fortified by the Russians and was assaulted by the Japanese, May 27, 1904, and captured after a sanguinary conflict.

Nanticoke (nan'ti-kōk). A borough in Luzerne County, Pennsylvania, situated on the Susquehanna river. Its chief industry is the mining of anthracite coal and its preparation for market. It has manufactures of hosiery, etc. Pop., 18,877, (1910).

Narvacán (när-vä-kän'). A municipality of Ilocos Sur province, northwestern Luzón, Philippine Islands. Civilized population, 19,575.

National Academy of Sciences. An American institution incorporated by act of Congress, March 3, 1863, for the purpose of investigating and reporting upon any matter of science or art that may be referred to it by the national government. Its membership, at first restricted to 50, is now limited to 150 resident members, with not more than 50 foreign associates. It is divided into committees on mathematics and astronomy, chemistry, geology and paleontology, anthropology, etc. Its headquarters are at Washington, D. C.

National Civic Federation. An American organization composed of representatives of labor, capital, and the general public. It was formed for the purpose of studying questions of national import which have to do with social, political, and industrial progress, and, when desirable, of promoting legislation in accordance with enlightened public opinion. Its educational work is carried on through national conferences and through the organization of six separate departments, namely, public ownership, immigration, industrial conciliation, industrial economics, welfare work, and primary election and ballot reform. The "National Civic Federation Review," published monthly, is its official organ.

National Conservation Association. An organization formed at Washington in February, 1909, as a result of inquiries made by the National Conservation Commission, instituted in May, 1908, by President Roosevelt and the various State governors, with the object of obtaining an inventory of the natural resources of the United States. The aim of the association is to secure the speedy and wise development of the country's natural resources. Dr. Charles W. Eliot, president emeritus of Harvard University, was chosen president, but soon gave place to Gifford Pinchot.

National Consumers' League. A society incorporated Jan. 22, 1902, for the purpose of securing adequate investigation of the conditions under which goods are made, and of educating public opinion and promoting legislation, when expedient, in behalf of the workers, while at the same time securing for the consumers exemption from the dangers attaching to goods produced under unwholesome conditions. The headquarters of the league are at New York.

National Forests. The name given to the United States forest reserves by Congress in 1907. These forests comprise about 195,000,000 acres, including about 27,000,000 acres in Alaska and Porto Rico.

National Gallery, Berlin. See Berlin.

National Institute of Arts and Letters. A society organized in 1898 by men nominated and elected by the American Social Science Association. Its aim is the advancement of art, music, and literature. Its qualification for membership (limited to 250) is notable achievement in art, music, or literature. See ★Academy of Arts and Letters, American.

National Liberal Club. A London political club (Liberal), at Whitehall Place, S. W., established in 1882. It has a membership of 6,000.

National University of Ireland. See ★Ireland.

Naval and Military Club. A London club, at 94 Piccadilly (formerly the house of Lord Palmerston), established in 1862. Its membership is confined to officers in the army, navy, and marines. It has a membership of 2,000.

Naval War College. A United States government institution established at Newport, Rhode Island, in 1884, for the study, by officers, of naval strategy, tactics, and international law. Commodore S. B. Luce, U. S. N., was the first president, and under his direction Captain Mahan, U. S. N., who was subsequently president, took up the historical studies which led to his works on sea-power. The navy regulations of 1905 coördinated the college with the General Board of the navy for general staff work, besides pursuing its original purpose.

Nazimova (nä-zē'mō-vä), Mme. Alla. Born at Jalta, Crimea, Russia, June 4, 1879. A Russian actress. She was educated in Zurich, Switzerland, and studied dramatic art in Moscow, Russia. She played for three years in Russian provincial cities, and in 1903 appeared at St. Petersburg. In 1904 she left with Paul Orleneff to produce "The Chosen People," a play prohibited by the Russian censor. It was played with success in Berlin, London, and New York. In November, 1906, she made her début as an English-speaking actress at New York in Ibsen's "Hedda Gabler," and later appeared in "A Doll's House," "The Master Builder," and "Little Eyolf." Among the dramas in which she also won success are Bracco's "Comtesse Coquette," Schnitzler's "The Fairy Tale," etc.

Neale (nēl), Edward Vansittart. Born at Bath, England, April 2, 1810: died Sept. 16, 1892. An English Christian Socialist. He was graduated at Oriel College, Oxford, in 1831; entered at Lincoln's Inn in 1837; and was called to the bar. He founded the first coöperative stores in London and assisted in the establishment of various industrial enterprises on a coöperative basis. He wrote "The Characteristic Features of Some of the Principal Systems of Socialism" (1851), "The Analogy of Thought and Nature Investigated" (1863), "A Manual for Coöperators" (1879), etc. In 1890 a scholarship at Oriel College for the sons of co-operators was founded in his honor.

Nebraska, University of. See ★University of Nebraska.

Needles (nē'dlz). A township in San Bernardino County, in the southeastern part of California. Its name is derived from the pinnacles of granite and porphyry in the vicinity. Population, 3,067, (1910).

Negri Sembilan (nä'grē sem-bē-län'). A confederation of small native states under British protection, situated on the western side of the Malay Peninsula. Area, about 2,600 square miles. Population, about 120,000.

Negros Occidental (nä'grōs ok-thi-dän-täl'). A province of the Philippines, occupying all of the northern and most of the western part of Negros Island. Capital, Bacolod. It is bounded by the Visayan Sea on the north, the Strait of Tañón (separating it from Cebú) and Negros Oriental (separated by mountains) on the east and the southeast, the Joló (Sulu) Sea on the southwest, and the Visayan Sea and Guimarás Strait (separating it from Guimarás and Panay) on the west. There are many rivers, most of them unimportant for navigation. Coal, gold, and iron are found. The mountains are covered with forests. The valleys and coasts are fertile and produce hemp, pineapples, bananas, betel-nuts, corn, rice, sweet potatoes, and a large yield of sugar-cane. The inhabitants are Visayans and Negritos. Area, 3,130 square miles. Population, 308,272.

Negros Oriental (nä'grōs ō-ri-än-täl'). A province of the Philippines, occupying the southern and most of the eastern part of Negros and including Siquijor and several other small islands. It is bounded by the Strait of Tañón (separating it from Cebú) on the east, the Joló (Sulu) Sea on the south, and Negros Occidental (separated by mountains) on the west. The highest mountains of the island—Canlaón, Tepasi or Aug, and Cuernos de Negro—are within Negros Oriental. The best harbors are Port Bombonón on the southern and South Bais Bay on the eastern coast, both well sheltered and safe in all weather. There are many small rivers. The mountains are densely wooded, and the broad strip of coast is adapted to the raising of sugar-cane. Other productions are bananas, mangos, copra, corn, sweet potatoes, and hemp, of which last the yield is very large. Deposits of coal are found. The native race is Visayan. Area, 1,864 square miles. Population, 201,494.

Nelidof (nel'i-dof), Count Alexander Ivanovitch. Died Sept. 18, 1910. A Russian diplomatist. He took part in the Berlin Congress, and became ambassador to Turkey in 1883, to Italy in 1897, and to France in 1903. In 1907 he was a delegate to the second peace conference.

Nelson (nel'son). A town in the southern part of British Columbia, situated on the Kootenay river in the Kootenay silver-mining district. It has smelting-works, machine-shops, etc. Pop., 5,273.

Nelsonville (nel'son-vil). A city in Athens County, Ohio. Coal-mining is its principal industry, and it has machine-shops, brick-works, etc. Population, 6,082, (1910).

Nernst (nernst), Walther. Born at Briesen, West Prussia, June 25, 1864. A German physical chemist, director of the Physical-Chemical Institute of the University of Berlin: best known as the inventor of an incandescent electric lamp which employs a bar of magnesia.

Nero Deep. An oceanic depression near the island of Guam, in the Pacific Ocean, which has afforded the deepest sounding yet made (31,614 feet).

Nesbit, Edith. See ★Bland.

Nevada (nē-vä'dä). A city, the capital of Vernon County, Missouri. It has sawmills, flour- and lumber-mills, zinc-smelting works, iron-works, etc., and is the seat of a college for women, a convent school, and a State lunatic asylum. Population, 7,176, (1910).

Nevin (nev'in), Arthur Finley. Born at Edgeworth, Pa., April 27, 1871. An American composer, brother of Ethelbert Nevin. His works consist of songs, piano and orchestral works, and the operas "Poia" (produced in Berlin in 1910) and "The Twilight" (1911).

Nevin (nev'in), Ethelbert. Born at Edgeworth, Pa., Nov. 25, 1862: died at New Haven, Conn., Feb. 17, 1901. An American composer and pianist. His works are chiefly songs and piano pieces, some of which have had great popularity. Among them are "Narcissus," "Water Sketches," "The Rosary," etc.

Newark (nū'ärk). A village in Wayne County, New York, 28 miles southeast of Rochester. It is in a farming region, and has nurseries, canneries, cut-glass factories, etc. It is the seat of an asylum for feeble-minded women. Population, 6,227, (1910).

Newberry (nū'ber-i). The county-seat of Newberry County, South Carolina, 40 miles northwest of Columbia. It is a trade center for the surrounding cotton-growing region, and has cotton-seed oil mills, etc. It is the seat of Newberry College. Population, 5,028, (1910).

Newberry (nū'ber-i) Library. A library situated on Walton Place, on the north side of Chicago, Illinois. It was endowed by Mr. Walter Loomis Newberry with $3,000,000 and contains a reference library of 250,000 volumes.

Newbolt (nū'bōlt), Henry John. Born at Bilston, Staffordshire, June 6, 1862. An English editor, author, and poet. He was admitted to the bar in 1887, and practised law until 1899. In 1900 he founded the "Monthly Review," of which he was editor until 1904. Among his publications are "Mordred, a Tragedy" (1895), "Admirals All" (1897), "The Island Race" (1898), "The Sailing of the Long-ships" (1902), "Songs of the Sea," with music by Sir Charles Villiers Stanford (1904), "The Year of Trafalgar" (1905), "The New June" (1909), "Songs of Memory and Hope" (1910), etc.

Newburgh (nū'bėrg). A city in Cuyahoga County, Ohio, incorporated in 1903. It is 5 miles southeast of Cleveland, of which it is a residential suburb. Woodland Hills Park, much frequented for athletic sports, is located here. Population, 5,813, (1910).

New Castle (nū kas'l). The county-seat of Henry County, Indiana, 18 miles south of Muncie. It is in an agricultural region, and has furniture-factories, lumber-mills, brick-yards, brass- and iron-works, etc. Population, 9,446, (1910).

Newcomb*, Simon. He was director of the Nautical Almanac Office 1877–97, resigning in the latter year. His later works include "Elements of Astronomy" (1900), "His Wisdom the Defender" (1900), "The Stars" (1901), "Astronomy for Everybody" (1902), "Reminiscences of an Astronomer" (1903), "Compendium of Spherical Astronomy" (1906), "Side Lights on Astronomy" (1906), and many shorter scientific papers.

New Decatur (nū de-kā'tėr). A city in Morgan County, Alabama, about 1 mile south of Decatur. It has wagon-works, cotton-compresses, and important iron-manufacturing interests. Population, 6,118, (1910).

Newell (nū'el), Frederick Haynes. Born at Bradford, Pa., March 5, 1862. An American hydrographer and civil engineer, director of the United States Reclamation Service 1907–1911.

New England of the West. A popular title of the State of Minnesota.

New English Art Club. A society founded in London in 1885 by a group of artists who wished opportunities for exhibition not granted by the established galleries. The work of the British impressionists has been largely shown under its direction, and among its supporters are Mark Fisher, Henry Tonks, Sir James Guthrie, John Lavery, Charles Shannon, P. Wilson Steer, William Orpen, etc. Its influence on British art has been marked. Its exhibitions are held at the galleries of the Royal Society of British Artists, etc.

New Guinea* British Guinea is administered by the government of the Commonwealth of Australia, and by proclamation of Sept. 1, 1906, the name has been changed to the Territory of Papua. It includes also the islands of the D'Entrecasteaux and Louisiade groups, and all those between 8° and 12° S. lat. and 141° and 155° E. long. The province is under a lieutenant-governor. The administration of Kaiser Wilhelm Land was transferred in 1899 to the imperial government.

New Hebrides*. They are administered by a joint French and English commission, and subjects of the two powers enjoy equal rights. Vila, in Efate, is the seat of government.

New Iberia (nū ī-bē'ri-ą). The parish-seat of Iberia Parish, Louisiana, in the southern part of the State, about 15 miles from Vermilion Bay. It is the trade center of a region producing cotton, rice, sugar, corn, etc., and has foundries, machine-shops, wagon-works, and manufactories of doors, sashes, blinds, etc. Population, 7,499, (1910).

New Kensington (nū ken'sing-ton). A borough in Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania, on the Allegheny River, 14 miles northeast of Pittsburgh. It has coal-mines, iron-works, breweries, etc. Population, 7,707, (1910).

Newnan (nū'nan). The county-seat of Coweta County, Georgia. It is in an agricultural region, and has canneries, cotton-seed oil mills, phosphate- and fertilizer-factories, etc. It is a shipping-point for cotton and fruit. Population, 5,548, (1910).

New Philadelphia (nū fil-ą-del'fi-ą). The county-seat of Tuscarawas County, Ohio. It has iron- and coal-mines, steel-works, canneries, etc. Population, 8,542, (1910).

New South Wales*. The legislative power is vested in a parliament of two houses, called the Legislative Council (consisting of not less than 21 members, appointed by the crown for life) and the Legislative Assembly (elected). It is represented in the federal parliament by 6 senators and 27 representatives.

New Theatre, The. A theater in New York city, opened in November, 1909. It was designed as the permanent home of a stock company acting the best classic and modern plays. The project has had the financial support of a body of New York gentlemen, called the "founders," who desired to establish a theatrical organization which should be conducted, largely, like the Comédie Française. Winthrop Ames was the first director. The first building dedicated to this purpose, designed by Carrère and Hastings, is situated at Sixty-second and Sixty-third streets and Central Park West. It was finished in 1909 and was occupied by the New Theatre Company for two seasons. It is notable in architectural design and decoration, and the revolving stage and equipment of electric lighting made rare scenic effects possible; but the auditorium was found to be too large. The building was accordingly leased, at the close of the season in 1911, to other managers who renamed it "The Century." A new "New Theatre" has been planned for erection on Forty-fourth street, west of Broadway, to continue the same aims and ideals.

Newton (nū'ton). The county-seat of Harvey County, Kansas, 24 miles north of Wichita. It has flour-mills, machine-shops, etc. It is the center of the settlements made by the Mennonites (which see), and is the seat of Bethel College. Population, 7,862, (1910).

New Ulm (nū ulm). The county-seat of Brown County, Minnesota, on the Minnesota River. It is in a farming and stock-raising country, and has flour-mills, breweries, machine-shops, woolen-mills, manufactories of brick, pottery, etc. It is the seat of Doctor Martin Luther College. Population, 5,648, (1910).

New Whatcom (nū hwot'kŏm). A former city and the capital of Whatcom County, Washington. Since 1903 it has been united with Fairhaven to form the city of Bellingham.

New York Yacht Club. A New York club, incorporated Feb. 16, 1865, "for the purpose of encouraging yacht-building and naval architecture and the cultivation of naval science." It has 2,350 members. Its house is at 37–41 West 44th street.

Nicaragua*. The country is divided administratively into 13 departments: Carazo, Chinandega, Estell, Granada, Jerez, Jinotega, León, Managua, Masaya, Matagalpa, Nueva Segovia, Rivas, and Zelaya (formerly the Mosquitia reservation); 3 districts, Rio Grande, Prinzapolka, and Siquia; and 2 territories, San Juan del Norte and Cape Gracias á Dios. See also ★Central American Arbitration Treaty.

Nichols (nik'ŏlz), Edward Leamington. Born at Leamington, England, Sept. 14, 1854. An American physicist, professor of physics in Cornell University from 1887. He was graduated at Cornell in 1875 and studied at Leipsic, Berlin, and Göttingen. He has published "The Galvanometer" (1894), "A Laboratory Manual of Physics and Applied Electricity" (1895: with others), "The Elements of Physics" (1896: with W. S. Franklin), "Outlines of Physics" (1897), etc.; and is the founder and editor of the "Physical Review."

Nichols (nik'ŏlz), Ernest Fox. Born at Leavenworth, Kan., June 1, 1869. An American physicist. He was professor of physics at Colgate University 1892–98, and at Dartmouth College 1898–1903; was professor of experimental physics at Columbia University 1903–09; and was chosen president of Dartmouth College in 1909. He received the Rumford medal in 1904. He is especially known for his work in measuring planetary light and heat.

Nicholson (nik'ŏl-sŏn), Sir William Gustavus. Born March 2, 1845. An English soldier. He entered the Royal Engineers in 1865, saw active service in Afghanistan (1878–80), Egypt (1882), and Burma (1886–87), and on the Tirah expedition (1897–98), and served in South Africa as military secretary to the commander-in-chief (1899–1900). He was chief British military attaché with the Japanese army 1904–05, and in 1908 became chief of the general staff and first military member of the Army Council. He was promoted colonel in 1891, and major-general in 1900, and in 1911 was made field-marshal. He was knighted in 1898.

Nicholson's (nik'ŏl-sŏnz) Neck. A locality in Natal, a few miles north of Ladysmith. Here, on Oct. 30, 1899, about one thousand British soldiers were surrounded and captured by the Boers.

Nicodé (nē-kō-dā'), Jean Louis. Born near Posen, Aug. 12, 1853. A pianist and composer. From 1878 to 1885 he was a teacher in the Dresden Conservatory. His best known works are a set of symphonic variations for the orchestra; "Das Meer," a symphonic ode for solo, male chorus, orchestra, and organ; and "Maria Stuart," a symphonic poem.

Nicoll (nik'ŏl), Sir William Robertson: pseudonym Claudius Clear. Born at Lumsden, Scotland, Oct. 10, 1851. A British clergyman, author, and editor. He has been editor (and was also the founder) of the "British Weekly" and the "Bookman" since 1886, and of the "British Monthly" since 1900. Among his works are "Literary Anecdotes of the Nineteenth Century" (1895–96: with T. J. Wise), "James Macdonell" (1890), "Letters on Life" (1901), "A Garden of Nuts" (1905), "The Key of the Blue Closet" (1906), "Life of Ian Maclaren" (1908), etc. He was knighted in November, 1909.

Niehaus (nē'hous), Charles Henry. Born at Cincinnati, Ohio, Jan. 24, 1855. An American sculptor. He studied at the Royal Academy of Art in Munich, and in Rome. Among his works are the statue of President Garfield in Cincinnati; the Hahnemann statue and monument in Washington; statues of Garfield, Oliver Perry Morton, and Ingalls in the Capitol; statues of Moses and Gibbon in the Congressional Library, Washington; the equestrian statue of St. Louis for the Louisiana Purchase Exposition at St. Louis, 1904; etc. He was elected a member of the National Academy of Design in 1906.

Nietzsche* (nētz'she), Friedrich Wilhelm. He has also written "Die Geburt der Tragödie aus dem Geiste der Musik" (1872), "Unzeitgemässen Betrachtungen" (1873–76), "Menschliches, Allzumenschliches: ein Buch für freie Geister" (1878–80), "Zur Genealogie der Moral" (1887), "Der Fall Wagner" (1888), "Götzendämmerung oder wie man mit dem Hammer philosophiert" (1889), etc.

Niger Territories*. It is bounded on the east by the German Kamerun, and on the west and north by Dahomey and French West Africa. It is divided for administrative purposes into Northern Nigeria and Southern Nigeria. The boundary between the two protectorates extends from the Ogpese River, through Egpeni, Iduani, Ogpe, and Shete, to the Niger a little north of Ida, thence westward to a point near Ashaku. Northern Nigeria is divided into provinces. Zungeru is the seat of government. Area, 256,400 square miles; population, 7,164,751. The Colony and Protectorate of Southern Nigeria since 1906 includes the old Colony and Protectorate of Lagos. It is divided into 3 provinces. The seat of government is at Lagos. Area, about 77,260 square miles; population, about 6,500,000.

Nigeria (nī-jē'ri-ă). The official name of the Niger Territories (which see).

Nightingale (nī'tin-gāl), Lady Elizabeth. Died in 1731. The wife of J. Gascoigne Nightingale (died in 1752). Their tomb, by Roubillac, is in Westminster Abbey.

Nigra*, Count Costantino. In 1890 he became a member of the Senate. He was also known as a student of Italian dialects and popular poetry ("Canti popolari del Piemonte").

Niki, or Nikki (nē'ki). A town in Dahomey, Africa, about 200 miles north of Abomey.

Niles (nīlz). A city in Trumbull County, Ohio, 55 miles southeast of Cleveland. It has car-factories, blast-furnaces, boiler-works, tin-mills, etc., and is in an iron- and coal-mining region. Population, 8,361, (1910).

Nissel (nis'el), Franz. Born at Vienna, March 14, 1831: died at Gleichenberg, July 20, 1893. An Austrian dramatist. Among his works are "Heinrich der Löwe" (1858), "Perseus von Macedonien" (1862), "Die Zauberin am Stein" (1864), "Rudolf von Erlach" (1874), etc.

Nitobe (nē'tō-bā), Inazo. Born at Iwateken, 1863. A Japanese scholar, professor at the College of Agriculture, Tokio University, from 1906. He studied at the Sapporo Agricultural College, at John Hopkins University, Baltimore, and at Bonn; was professor in the Sapporo Agricultural College; was later an official in Formosa; and was professor of economy at the University of Kioto 1904–06. He has written "Bushido" (1898: published in America as "Bushido, the Soul of Japan," 1900), etc.

Niu-chuang. See New-Chwang.

Nobel (nō'bel), Alfred Bernhard. Born at Stockholm, Sweden, Oct. 21, 1833: died at San Remo, Italy, Dec. 10, 1896. A Swedish chemist and engineer. He was educated at St. Petersburg, and studied engineering for a number of years. Among his many inventions are those of dynamite, explosive gelatin, ballistite, and artificial gutta-percha. He acquired large wealth through the manufacture of dynamite and other explosives, and the exploitation of the Baku oil-fields. By the terms of his will, the bulk of his fortune was devoted to the establishment of a prize fund, known as the "Nobel gift," the interest of which is to be divided annually into five parts and awarded to the persons who have rendered to humanity the greatest services during the preceding year (or, in exceptional cases, earlier), as follows: (1) by the most important discovery or invention in the physical sciences; (2) by the most important discovery or the greatest improvement in chemistry; (3) by the most important discovery in physiology or medicine; (4) by the most remarkable literary work of an idealistic tendency; and (5) to the person who has done most, or labored best, for the cause of fraternity among different peoples, for the suppression or reduction of standing armies, or for the formation and promotion of peace congresses. The first two prizes are awarded by the Swedish Academy of Sciences, the third by the Caroline Institute of Stockholm, the fourth by the Stockholm Academy, and the fifth by a commission of five members elected by the Norwegian Storthing. The terms of the will have not been strictly observed. Statutes have been drawn up providing that only 60 per cent. of the income need be used for the prizes, and that they need be awarded only once in five years. Provision has also been made for the establishment of Nobel institutes for research work, etc.

Noble (nō'bl), Alfred. Born at Livonia, Mich., Aug. 7, 1844. An American civil engineer. He served in the Army of the Potomac during the Civil War; was graduated at the University of Michigan in 1870; was a member of the Nicaragua Canal Board in 1895, and of the United States board of engineers on deep waterways 1897–1900; served on the Isthmian Canal Commission 1899–1903; was on the board of engineers to decide upon the type of canal to be dug at Panama 1905–06; and has been engaged in important engineering work in New York city and elsewhere.

Noblesville (nō'blz-vil). The county-seat of Hamilton County, Indiana, 21 miles northeast of Indianapolis. It has foundries, flour-mills, carriage-factories, etc. Population, 5,073, (1910).

Nocquet (nō-kā'), Paul Ange. Born at Brussels, Belgium, April 1, 1877: died (of exposure after a balloon ascension) near Jones's Beach, Long Island, N. Y., April 3, 1906. A Belgian sculptor. He was a pupil of Lambeaux, Antonin Mercié, and Gérôme in Paris, and won the Belgian Grand Prix de Rome. He was a member of the Société Nationale des Beaux-Arts in Paris.

Nodzu (nō̤d'zō̤), Marquis Michitsura. Born in Satsuma, Nov. 30, 1840: died at Tokio, Oct. 16, 1908. A Japanese field-marshal, commander of the fourth army in the war with Russia. He fought in the Chinese war (1894–95), winning, at the head of the Hiroshima division, the battle of Pieng-an, and succeeding Yamagata in the command of the first army.

Nogi (nō'gi), Count Kiten. Born in Choshu, November, 1849. A noted Japanese general, commander of the third army in the war with Russia (1904–05). He fought in the civil war (1877), and, as brigade commander, in the war with China (1894–1895). In 1904 he was promoted general; was placed in command of the troops investing Port Arthur; and effected the capture of that fortress January 1, 1905. Later he played an important part in the battle of Mukden, outflanking the Russian right. He has been a member of the supreme military council 1905–.

Nordau*, Max. His later works include "Gefühlskomödie" (1891), "Das Recht zu lieben" (1892), "Die Kugel" (1895), "Doktor Kohn" (1898), "Drohnenschlacht" (1898), "Zeitgenössische Franzosen" (1901), "Morganatisch" (1904), "Von Kunst und Künstlern" (1905), "Mahâ-Rôg" (1906), "Der Sinn der Geschichte" (1909).

Norfolk (nôr'fŏk). A city in Madison County, Nebraska, on the north branch of the Elkhorn River, 95 miles northwest of Omaha. It is in an agricultural region, and has threshing-machine factories, cereal-mills, etc. It is the seat of a State hospital for the insane. Population, 6,025, (1910).

Norfolk Island*. It is administered as a dependency of New South Wales. The chief village is Kingston.

Norman (nôr'man), Sir Henry. Born at Leicester, England, Sept. 19, 1858. An English journalist, author, and traveler. He was graduated at Harvard University, and studied at Leipsic; was on the editorial staff of the "Pall Mall Gazette" and on that of the London "Daily Chronicle"; and was assistant editor of the latter 1895–99. In 1902 he founded the "World's Work." He was Liberal member of Parliament for South Wolverhampton 1900–10, and was assistant postmaster-general 1910–. Among his publications are "The Real Japan" (1892), "The Peoples and Politics of the Far East" (1895), "All the Russias" (1902), "Motors and Men" (1905), etc. He was knighted in 1906.

Norris (nor'is), Frank. Born at Chicago in 1870: died in 1902. An American journalist and novelist. He was a newspaper correspondent in South Africa during Jameson's raid (1895); edited the "San Francisco Wave," 1896–97; and was war correspondent in Cuba in 1898. He published a number of novels, including "McTeague" (1899), and "The Octopus" (1901) and "The Pit" (1903), two parts of an unfinished trilogy dealing with the traffic in wheat.

Norris*, William Edward. His later works include "The Dancer in Yellow" (1896), "Clarissa Furiosa" (1897), "The Fight for the Crown" (1898), "Giles Ingilby" (1899), "An Octave" (1900), "The Flower of the Flock" (1900), "His Own Father" (1901), "The Credit of the County" (1902), "Lord Leonard the Luckless" (1903), "Nature's Comedian" (1904), "Barham of Beltana" (1905), "Pauline" (1908), "The Perjurer" (1909), "Not Guilty" (1910), etc.

Northampton (nôrth-amp'tŏn). A borough in Northampton County, Pennsylvania, incorporated in 1903. It has flour-mills, cement-works, etc. Population, 8,729, (1910).

North Andover (nôrth an'dō̤-vẽr). A town in Essex County, Massachusetts, 3 miles southeast of Lawrence. It has cotton- and woolen-mills. Anne Bradstreet, the poet, died here in 1672. Population, 5,529, (1910).

North Attleboro (nôrth at'l-bur-ō̤). A town in Bristol County, Massachusetts, 30 miles southwest of Boston. Its manufactures include jewelry, jewelers' supplies, silverware, etc. Population, 9,562, (1910).

North Braddock (nôrth brad'ŏk). A borough in Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, 8 miles southeast of Pittsburgh. It has important steel interests. Population, 11,824, (1910).

Northbridge (nôrth'brij). A town in Worcester County, Massachusetts, 10 miles southeast of Worcester. Its manufactures include cotton and woolen goods, cotton-mill machinery, etc. Population, 8,807, (1910).

North Carolina, University of. See ★University of North Carolina.

Northcote (nôrth'kōt), Sir Henry Stafford, first Lord Northcote. Born November 18, 1846. A British colonial governor, second son of Sir Stafford Northcote (first Earl of Iddesleigh). He was Conservative member of the House of Commons for Exeter 1880–99; was created a baronet in 1887; was raised to the peerage in 1900; was governor of Bombay 1899–1903; and was governor-general of the Commonwealth of Australia 1903–08.

Northcott (nôrth'kŏt), Elliott. Born at Clarksburg, W. Va., April 26, 1869. An American diplomatist. He was admitted to the bar in 1891, and was assistant United States attorney 1898–1905, and United States attorney for the southern district of West Virginia 1905–09. He was appointed minister to Colombia in 1909.

Northern Securities Case. See ★Northern Securities Company.

Northern Securities Company. A company formed in November, 1901, under the laws of New Jersey, with a capitalization of $400,000,000. Its purpose was to acquire the controlling interest in the Great Northern and Northern Pacific Railway companies, which were already virtually consolidated, and the Chicago, Burlington, and Quincy Railway Company. This it did, thereby suppressing competition between these systems and creating a monopoly of the vast interstate and foreign commerce carried on by them. A suit under the Antitrust Law of 1890, seeking to dissolve this combination, was brought in March, 1902, by the United States. The decision, first by the Circuit Court and then (March 14, 1904), on appeal, by the United States Supreme Court, enjoined the Northern Securities Company from holding in any way, voting, or drawing dividends on, any of the stock of the railroads named.

Northfield (nôrth′fēld). A town in the northern part of Franklin County, Massachusetts. It is the birthplace of Dwight L. Moody, and the seat of the Northfield Seminary for Young Ladies and the Northfield Training School, to the building up of which Mr. Moody devoted much of his later life. With the Northfield work is associated the Mount Hermon School for Boys, situated in the adjoining town of Gill. The religious and educational work of Northfield has made the town a summer resort. Population, 1,642, (1910).

Northfield (nôrth′fēld). A town in Washington County, Vermont, 9 miles southwest of Montpelier. It has granite-works, furniture-factories, woolen-mills, etc., and is the seat of Norwich University. Population, 3,226, (1910).

North Plainfield (nôrth plān′fēld). A borough in Somerset County, New Jersey. It was formerly in North Plainfield township. Population, 6,117, (1910).

North Platte (nôrth plat). The county-seat of Lincoln County, Nebraska, at the junction of the North Platte and South Platte rivers. It has flour-mills, railroad shops, etc., and is an active trade center. Population, 4,793, (1910).

Northport (nôrth′pōrt). A village in Suffolk County, New York, on Long Island Sound, about 35 miles northeast of Brooklyn. Population, 2,096, (1910).

North Providence (nôrth prov′i-dens). A town in Providence County, Rhode Island. Population, 5,407, (1910).

Northrop (nôr′throp), Cyrus. Born at Ridgefield, Conn., Sept. 30, 1834. An American educator, president of the University of Minnesota 1884–1910. He was graduated at Yale in 1857; studied law; and was professor of rhetoric and English literature in Yale 1863–84.

North Sea Incident. The attack, on the night of October 21, 1904, of the Russian Baltic fleet under command of Rear-Admiral Rozhestvensky, while on its way to the Far East, upon a Hull fishing fleet which was trawling on the Doggerbank. The steam trawler Crane was sunk, other boats were injured, two men were killed, and a number were seriously wounded. The affair was submitted, on the proposition of the czar, to an international committee of inquiry. The Russian admiral had submitted that his officers had seen two Japanese torpedo-boats among the trawlers. This was disproved by the commission sitting at Paris, January–February, 1905, and Russia paid Great Britain an indemnity of £65,000, the amount of compensation due the Hull fishermen as assessed by the Board of Trade Commission.

North Tarrytown (nôrth tar′i-toun). A village in Westchester County, New York, adjoining Tarrytown. It has silk-mills, automobile-factories, etc. Population, 5,421, (1910).

Northwest Frontier Province. A province of British India, created in November, 1901, and comprising the four trans-Indus districts of Peshawar, Kohat, Bannu, and Dera Ismail Khan, portions of the district of Hazara, and the political agencies Kurram, Malakand (Dir, Swat, and Chitral), Khaibar, Tochi, Gomal, and Shirani. The chief city is Peshawar. It is administered by a chief commissioner. Area, 16,466 square miles. Population, 2,125,480.

Northwest Passage*. Between 1903 and 1907 the whole of the Northwest Passage was navigated by Roald Amundsen in the Gjöa.

Northwest Provinces*. In 1902 the Northwest Provinces and Oudh became the United Provinces of Agra and Oudh. The term Agra is now applied to the territories formerly known as the Northwest Provinces.

Northwest Territories*. It now comprises all of the unorganized portion of British North America north of the provinces of Quebec, Ontario, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and Alberta. It is administered by the officers of the Royal North-West Mounted Police, the comptroller of the force being also commissioner of the Territories.

North Yakima (nôrth yak′i-mā). The county-seat of Yakima County, Washington, in the southern part of the State. Its principal interests are lumbering and agriculture. Population, 14,082, (1910).

Norway*. Prince Carl of Denmark was elected king and ascended the throne Nov. 18, 1905, as Haakon VII.

Norwood (nôr′wûd). A town in Norfolk County, Massachusetts, 14 miles southwest of Boston. It has tanneries, railroad shops, etc., and important printing and bookbinding interests. Population, 8,014, (1910).

Norwood (nôr′wûd). A city in Hamilton County, Ohio, incorporated in 1903. It is 6 miles northeast of Cincinnati, and is a residential suburb of that city. It has manufactories of pianos, playing-cards, hardware, electrical supplies, etc. Population, 16,185, (1910).

Nottebohm (nōt′e-bōm), Martin Gustav. Born at Lüdenscheid, Westphalia, Nov. 12, 1817: died at Gratz, Oct. 29, 1882. A German musical scholar and historian. He established himself in Vienna, where he made a special study of Beethoven. His works include "Ein Skizzenbuch von Beethoven" (1865), "Thematisches Verzeichniss der im Druck erschienenen Werke von Ludwig van Beethoven" (1868), "Beethoveniana" (1872), "Beethovens Studien" (1873), "Thematisches Verzeichniss der im Druck erschienenen Werke Franz Schuberts" (1874), "Mozartiana" (1880), and "Zweite Beethoveniana" (1887).

Noyes (noiz), Alfred. Born Sept. 16, 1880. An English poet. His works include "The Loom of Years" (1902), "The Flower of Old Japan" (1903), "Poems" (1904), "The Forest of Wild Thyme" (1905), "Drake, an English Epic" (1906), "Forty Singing Seamen" (1907), "William Morris" (1907), "The Magic Casement" (1908), "The 'Golden Hynde'" (1908), "Collected Poems" (1910), etc.

Noyes (noiz), Arthur Amos. Born at Newburyport, Mass., Sept. 13, 1866. An American chemist and educator, professor of theoretical chemistry in the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and director of its research laboratory of physical chemistry. He was graduated at this institution in 1886, and has since then been a member of its instructing staff, and since 1894 one of its faculty. He was acting president of the Institute 1907–09. He has published chemical text-books and numerous scientific and educational papers.

Noyes (noiz), William Albert. Born at Independence, Iowa, Nov. 6, 1857. An American chemist, professor of chemistry in the University of Illinois from 1907. He was professor of chemistry in the University of Tennessee 1883–86, and in Rose Polytechnic Institute, Terre Haute, Indiana, 1886–1903, and was chemist of the United States Bureau of Standards 1903–07. He has published "Qualitative Analysis" (1887), "Organic Chemistry for the Laboratory" (1897), "Organic Chemistry" (1903), and numerous scientific papers; and has been editor of the journal of the American Chemical Society from 1902.

Nueva Cáceres (nō-ā′vä kä′thā-rās). 1. A municipality of Ambos Camarines province, Luzón, Philippine Islands. Civilized population, 17,943.—2. A town, the capital of Ambos Camarines province. It is situated in the southern part of the province, on the Bicol or Naga River, in lat. 13° 35′ N., long. 122° 11′ E. Population, 10,201.

Nueva Écija (nō-ā′vä ā′thē-hä). A province in south-central Luzón, Philippine Islands. It is bounded by Pangasinán and Nueva Vizcaya (separated by the Caraballos Sur) on the north, Isabela and Principe (separated by the Sierra Madre) on the east, Bulacán and Pampanga on the south, and Pampanga, Tarlac, and Pangasinán on the west. Capital, San Isidro. Most of the province lies in the valley of south-central Luzón, and is fertilized by many rivers. Tobacco, coffee, sugar-cane, rice, and mangos are among the products. Gold, copper, and gypsum are found, the first two in the southern and central, the last in various, parts of the province. The inhabitants are Tagalogs, Ilocanos, Pampangans, Pangasinanes, and a few Igorrotes. Area, 2,169 square miles. Population, 134,147.

Nueva Vizcaya (nō-ā′vä vēth-kī′ä). An inland, almost central, province of Luzón, in the Philippine Islands. It is bounded by Lepanto-Bontoc (separated by a spur of the Cordillera Sur) on the north, Isabela (separated by a branch of the Sierra Madre) on the northeast, east, and southeast, Nueva Écija (separated by the Caraballos Sur) on the south, and Benguet (separated by the Cordillera Sur) and Lepanto-Bontoc (separated by a spur of the Cordillera Sur) on the west. Capital, Bayombong. The central valley, watered by the Magat and other rivers, is very fertile, and produces large crops of coffee. The native races are chiefly Igorrotes and Ilongots. Area, 1,950 square miles. Population, about 62,600.

Nutley (nut′li). A town in Essex County, New Jersey, 5 miles northeast of Newark. It has manufactories of cutlery, paper, leather goods, etc. Population, 6,009, (1910).

Nyasaland Protectorate. The present name (since July 6, 1907) of the region formerly known as the British Central Africa Protectorate. It comprises British Nyasaland, the Shiré Highlands, and the greater part of the basin of the Shiré. It is divided into 13 districts, and is administered by a governor, with an executive and a legislative council. The seat of government is at Zomba. Area, 39,801 square miles. Population, over 923,000 (about 600 are Europeans).

Oak Park (ōk pärk). A village in Cook County, Illinois, incorporated in 1902. It is 8½ miles west of Chicago, of which it is a residential suburb. Pop., 19,444, (1910).

O'Brien (ō-bri′en), James: later James Bronterre O'Brien. Born in 1805: died Dec. 23, 1864. An Irish Chartist. He was graduated at Dublin University in 1829; became the editor of the "Poor Man's Guardian" in 1831; and was a writer for the "Poor Man's Conservative." He signed his articles "Bronterre" and later adopted this name. He edited various journals; was a prominent member of the Chartist party from its beginning in 1838; was imprisoned for seditious speaking 1840–41; but later became a personal enemy and opponent of Feargus O'Connor. In 1885 a series of his articles was published under the title "The Rise, Progress, and Phases of Human Slavery."

O'Brien (ō-bri′en), Thomas James. Born at Jackson, Mich., July 30, 1842. An American diplomatist. He practised law in Grand Rapids, Michigan, 1871–1905. He was minister to Denmark 1905–07 and ambassador to Japan 1907–11, and was appointed ambassador to Italy in 1911.

Ochtman (ŏcht′man), Leonard. Born at Zonnemaire, Holland, Oct. 21, 1854. A Dutch-American painter, resident in the United States from 1866. He has devoted himself to American landscapes, and his work shows well-balanced composition and quiet, harmonious color. He has won numerous medals. He became a member of the National Academy of Design in 1904.

O'Connor*, Thomas Power. Since 1885 he has represented the Scotland Division of Liverpool. He established and edited the "Star," "Sun," "Sunday Sun," "M. A. P.," and "T. P.'s Weekly," and is the author of "The Parnell Movement," "Gladstone's House of Commons," "Napoleon," etc.

O'Connor (ō-kon′ŏr), William Douglas. Born at Boston, Mass., Jan. 2, 1832: died at Washington, D. C., May 9, 1889. An American journalist and writer. He was assistant editor of the Philadelphia "Saturday Evening Post" 1854–60, and in 1878 was appointed assistant general superintendent of the United States life-saving service. He was a personal friend of Walt Whitman, and in 1866 published "The Good Gray Poet," a vindication of Whitman's poetry. He wrote in 1886 "Hamlet's Note-book," a reply to Richard Grant White on the main points of the Bacon-Shakspere controversy, and also many stories and poems.

Oelwein (ōl′wīn). A city in Fayette County, Iowa, 65 miles northwest of Dubuque. It is a railroad center, with railroad repair-shops, etc. Population, 6,028, (1910).

Ohligs (ō′ligz). A town in Rhenish Prussia, near the Rhine, about 15 miles north of Cologne. It has manufactories of hardware, cutlery, silk, cloth, etc. It was formerly called Merscheid (which see). Population, 24,257, (1910).

Okakura (ō-kä′kō-rä), Kakuzo. Born in Fukui, 1863. A Japanese connoisseur, an authority on the art of Japan. In 1886 he was sent with the Imperial Art Commission to study art history and movements in Europe and the United States. Returning to Japan, he was made director of the new art school at Ueno (Veno), Tokio, but resigned in 1898. He then opened, with other young artists, the Nippon Fine Art Institute near Tokio, an establishment similar to that of William Morris at Merton Abbey in England; it later fell into financial difficulties and was removed to a village in Ibaraki ken. He is the author of "The Ideals of the East" (1904), "The Awakening of Japan" (1905), "The Book of Tea" (1906), etc. He is adviser to the department of Chinese and Japanese art in the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston.

Oklahoma*. It has 77 counties, sends 2 senators and 5 representatives to Congress, and has 7 electoral votes.

Oku (ō′kō), Count Yasukato. Born in Fukuoka ken, November, 1844. A Japanese general, commander of the second army in the Russo-Japanese war. He won distinction in the civil war of 1877; commanded the fifth division in the war with China 1894–95; and was promoted general in 1903. He was appointed chief of staff in July, 1906. He is a member of the supreme council of war. He was created baron in 1895, and count in 1907.

Okuma*, Count Shigenobu. He was minister of foreign affairs 1889–91 and 1896–97; minister of agriculture and commerce 1897; and premier June–Nov., 1898. He resigned the leadership of the Progressive party in February, 1907.

Old Forge (ōld fōrj). A borough in Lackawanna County, Pennsylvania, 5 miles southwest of Scranton. Coal-mining is its most important industry. Its manufactures include glass, silk, chemicals, fertilizers, etc. Population, 11,324, (1910).

Old-Line State. The State of Maryland: so called with reference to Mason and Dixon's line.

Old Museum, Berlin. See Berlin.

Old Rowley. A nickname of Charles II. He is said to have been so named from a good-humored goat which used to live in the Privy Garden. The name is also said to have been that of the king's favorite race-horse, and is preserved in the name of the race-course — the Rowley Mile — at Newmarket.

Oldtown Folks. A story by Harriet Beecher Stowe, published in 1869.

Olean (ō-lē-an′). A city in the southeastern part of Cattaraugus County, New York, at the junction of Olean Creek and the Allegheny river. It has large interests in oil, lumber, and leather, storage for petroleum, refineries, marble-, glass-, and iron-works, flour- and planing-mills, tanneries, etc. Population, 14,743, (1910).

Olney (ol′ni). The county-seat of Richland County, Illinois. It is a shipping-point for the products of the farming region surrounding it, and has flour-mills, brick-works, etc. Population, 5,011, (1910).

Olney (ol′ni), Louis Atwell. Born at Providence, R. I., April 21, 1874. An American chemist, professor of chemistry and head of the department of textile chemistry and dyeing in the Lowell (Massachusetts) Textile School from 1897. He was graduated from Lehigh University in 1896. He has published "Textile Chemistry and Dyeing," etc.

Olsen (ōl′sen), Ole. Born at Hammerfest, July 5, 1850. A Norwegian composer and conductor. He studied at Drontheim and (1870–74) at Leipsic. Since 1900 he has been military musical director to the Swedish government. He has written operas (words and music), orchestral works, an oratorio, cantatas, piano pieces, and songs.

Olympic Games, The. 2. A series of athletic games inaugurated in 1896 at Athens by the International Olympic Committee as a modern revival of the old Olympic Games. It was decided in 1896 that these games should be known as the "local cycle," to be held quadrennially at Athens, and that there should also be others known as the "international" or "official cycle," to be held every four years in cities of the various competing countries. The games at Athens since 1896 have been held in the Stadium of white marble, the gift of M. Averoff of Alexandria, on the ancient Stadium. The games of the "international" or "official cycle" have taken place at Athens in 1896, at Paris in 1900, at St. Louis in 1904, and at London in 1908. At the last there were 2,647 entries. The Olympic Games are exclusively for amateurs, and the number of entries for each country is limited according to the different events. The competitive events are confined to games of general interest, and include athletics, archery, boxing, cycling, fencing, foot-ball, gymnastics, hockey, lacrosse, lawn tennis, motor-boats, polo, rackets, rowing, shooting, skating, swimming, wrestling, and yacht-racing.

Olyphant (ol′i-fant). A borough in Lackawanna County, Pennsylvania, 5 miles northeast of Scranton. Coal-mining and manufacturing are its chief industries. Population, 8,505, (1910).

Oneida (ō-nī′dä). A city in Madison County, New York, 26 miles east of Syracuse. It has manufactories of wagons, steam-engines, boilers, pulleys, furniture, etc. It was formerly the seat of the Oneida Community (which see). Population, 8,317, (1910).

O'Neill, Mrs. (Olive Logan). See Sykes.

Oneonta (ō-nē-on′tä). A city in Otsego County, New York, 50 miles northeast of Binghamton. It has railroad shops, foundries, cigar-factories, a silk-mill, etc. The Oneonta State Normal School is located there. Population, 9,491, (1910).

Oppenheim (op′en-hīm), Edward Phillips. Born in 1866. An English novelist. Among his books are "A Prince of Sinners" (1903), "Anna the Adventuress" (1904), "The Master Mummer" (1905), "A Maker of History" (1906), "The Long Arm of Mannister" (1908), "The Missioner" (1909), "The Illustrious Prince" (1910), "Berenice" (1911), and "The Moving Finger" (1911).

Orange (or′anj). A town in New Haven County, Connecticut, near Long Island Sound, 7 miles southwest of New Haven. It includes West Haven borough. Population, 11,272, (1910).

Orange (or′anj). A town in Franklin County, Massachusetts, on Millers River. It has manufactories of clothing, sewing-machines, furniture, automobiles, etc. Population, 5,282, (1910).

Orange (or′anj). The county-seat of Orange County, Texas, on the Sabine River, about 25 miles from the coast. It is a shipping-point for cotton, fruit, sugar, and rice, and has lumber-mills, cotton-mills, etc. Pop., 5,527, (1910).

Orangeburg (or′anj-bėrg). The county-seat of Orangeburg County, South Carolina, on the north branch of the Edisto River. Its principal interests are lumbering and cotton- and rice-growing. It is the seat of the State Normal, Industrial, Agricultural, and Mechanical College and of Claflin University, both institutions for negroes. Population, 5,906, (1910).

Orange Free State. Self-government was established June 5, 1907. Under the South Africa Act, 1909, it entered the Union of South Africa as the Orange Free State. It is administered under a governor, with a provincial council and an executive committee. The seat of government is at Bloemfontein.

Orbilius Pupillus (ôr-bil′i-us pū-pil′us). A Roman grammarian and schoolmaster, the teacher of Horace. The epithet "plagosus" was given to him by Horace on account of the floggings which his pupils received from him, and the name "Orbilius" is often used in literature for a teacher of this type.

Order of Merit, The. A British order instituted by letters patent, June 26, 1902. It consists of the British sovereign and of not more than twenty-four subjects of the crown (in ordinary membership) who may have rendered exceptionally meritorious service in the army or navy, or in art, literature, or science. The honorary membership is conferred upon foreigners and is unlimited. The badge of the order is an eight-pointed cross of red and blue enamel bearing the motto "For Merit" within a laurel wreath, the whole surmounted by an imperial crown and suspended by a party-colored blue and crimson ribbon.

Oregon City (or′e-gon sit′i). The county-seat of Clackamas County, Oregon, on the Willamette River, 13 miles southeast of Portland. It has lumber-mills, flour-mills, woolen-mills, etc. Population, 4,287, (1910).

O'Reilly (ō-rī′li), Miles. The pseudonym of Charles G. Halpine.

Oriente (ō-rē-ān′tā). A province of Cuba, comprising the easterly end of the island. Population, 455,086.

Ormoc (or-mok′). 1. A municipality of Leyte province, Leyte, Philippines. Civilized population, 16,126.—2. A town on the northeastern shore of Ormoc Bay. Population, 5,419.

Oroquieta (ō-rō-kē-ā′tä). A municipality of Misamis province, Mindanao, Philippine Islands. Civilized population, 15,156.

Orpen (ôr′pen), William. Born in Dublin County, Ireland, Nov. 27, 1878. An Irish painter. He was educated at the Metropolitan School of Art, Dublin, and the Slade School, London. Among his pictures, which include especially portraits and genre-scenes, are "A Bloomsbury Family," "Young Ireland," "A Young Man from the West," and "The Dead Ptarmigan." In 1910 he became an associate of the Royal Academy.

Orton (ôr′ton), Edward. Born at Deposit, N. Y., March 9, 1829: died at Columbus, Ohio, Oct. 16, 1899. An American educator and geologist. He was graduated at Hamilton College in 1848; was president of Antioch College 1872–73, and of the Ohio State Agricultural and Mechanical College (now Ohio State University) 1873–81; and was professor of geology at the latter from 1873 to 1899. He was assistant State geologist of Ohio 1869–75, and had entire charge of the survey 1881–99.

Osborn (oz′bėrn), Henry Fairfield. Born at Fairfield, Conn., Aug. 8, 1857. An American biologist and paleontologist, professor of zoology in Columbia University from 1890, and president of the American Museum of Natural History from 1908. He was graduated at Princeton in 1877; studied in England (under Huxley and Balfour); was professor of comparative anatomy at Princeton 1882–1890; and has been curator of vertebrate paleontology in the American Museum of Natural History (New York) from 1890, geologist and paleontologist of the United States Geological Survey from 1900, and honorary paleontologist of the Canadian Geological Survey from 1900. He has published "From the Greeks to Darwin" (1894, 1897), "The Age of Mammals" (1910), etc.

Osbourne (oz′bėrn), Lloyd. Born at San Francisco, Cal., April 7, 1868. An American writer, stepson of Robert Louis Stevenson. His works include three books written in collaboration with his stepfather, "The Wrong Box" (1889), "The Wrecker" (1892), and "The Ebb Tide" (1894); "Memories of Vailima" (1902: with his sister, Isobel Strong), "The Queen versus Billy" (1900), "Love, the Fiddler" (1903), "Baby Bullet" (1905), "The Motormaniacs" (1905), "Wild Justice" (1906), "Harm's Way" (1909), "Infatuation" (1909); and two plays written with Austin Strong, "The Exile" and "The Little Father of the Wilderness."

Oscar II.* (King of Sweden). On Dec. 14, 1906, he relinquished the government, appointing Prince Gustav (crown prince) as regent; but resumed power in June, 1907.

Osler (ōs′lėr), Sir William. Born at Bond Head, Ontario, July 12, 1849. A British physician, regius professor of medicine in the University of Oxford from 1905. He was educated at Toronto University; McGill University, Montreal; and University College, London; and in Berlin and Vienna. He was professor at the Institute of Medicine in McGill University 1874–84, of clinical medicine in the University of Pennsylvania 1884–89, and of medicine in Johns Hopkins University 1889–1905. He was created a baronet in June, 1911. He has published "The Principles and Practice of Medicine" (1892: 6th ed. 1905), numerous monographs and papers, "Science and Immortality" (1904), "Æquanimitas and Other Addresses" (1904), "Counsels and Ideals" (1905), "Alabama Student, and Other Biographical Essays" (1908), "Thomas Linacre" (1908), etc., and with T. McCrae has edited "Modern Medicine, its Theory and Practice" (1907–09).

Ostwald (ōst′vält), Wilhelm. Born at Riga, Russia, Sept. 2 (N. S.), 1853. A noted German chemist, professor of physical chemistry in the University of Leipsic 1887–1906. He is regarded as one of the founders of that science. With van't Hoff he founded in 1887 the "Zeitschrift für physikalische Chemie" and in 1901 the "Annalen der Naturphilosophie." He was first exchange professor at Harvard University in 1905. He has published "Lehrbuch der allgemeinen Chemie" (1885–87), "Elektrochemie" (1894–95), "Grundlinien der anorganischen Chemie" (1900), "Vorlesungen über Naturphilosophie" (1902), "Die Schule der Chemie" (1904), "Malerbriefe" (1904), "Elemente und Verbindungen" (1904), "R. W. Bunsen" (1905), "Kunst und Wissenschaft" (1905), "Ikonoskopische Studien" (1905), "Individuality and Immortality" (1906), "Prinzipien der Chemie" (1907), "Die Energie" (1908), "Grosse Männer" (1909), etc. He was awarded the Nobel prize for chemistry in 1909.

Owatonna (ō-wä-ton′ä). The county-seat of Steele County, Minnesota, 63 miles southwest of St. Paul. It is the trade center of an agricultural region, and has foundries, flour-mills, and manufactories of gasoline-engines, automobiles, farming implements, etc. Population, 5,658, (1910).

Oxford and Cambridge Boat-race. An annual contest between picked crews of the universities of Oxford and Cambridge, England, usually rowed on the second Saturday before Easter. The course is on the Thames, from Putney, near London, to Mortlake, a distance of over 4¼ miles, the time occupied varying from less than 20 minutes to 23 minutes, according to wind and tide.

Oxford and Cambridge Musical Club. A London club, at 47 Leicester Square, established in 1899 for the cultivation of chamber music.

Oxyrhynchus (ok-si-ring′kus). [Named from a species of fish which was venerated there.] An ancient town of Upper Egypt, situated between the western bank of the Nile and the Bahr Yûsuf in lat. 28° 6′ N. The modern village of Behnesa occupies its site. Excavations there have brought to light a number of important papyri, including fragments of the "Logia" or "Sayings" of Jesus.

Oyster (ois′tėr) Bay. A town in Nassau County, New York. It is situated on a bay on the northern shore of Long Island, and is a summer resort. The town includes the villages of Sea Cliff and Farmingdale. Population of town, including Sea Cliff and Farmingdale, 21,802, (1910); of Sea Cliff, 1,094; of Farmingdale, 1,567.

Ozark Plateau. A plateau in northwestern Arkansas and southern Missouri. U. S. Geog. Board, Feb. 6, 1907.

Paardeberg (pär'de-berg). An elevation in the western part of Orange Free State, north of the Modder river. Near here, in the bed of the Modder, at Koodoosrand Drift, the Boers under Cronje defended themselves against the English under Lord Roberts, but were forced to surrender, Feb. 27, 1900.

Page*, Thomas Nelson. His later works include "Social Life in Old Virginia before the War" (1897), "A Captured Santa Claus" (1902), "Gordon Keith" (1903), "Bred in the Bone" (1904), "The Negro, the Southerner's Problem" (1904), "The Coast of Bohemia" (1906), "Under the Crust" (1907), "The Old Dominion" (1908), "Robert E. Lee" (1908), "John Marvel, Assistant" (1909), etc.

Paget (paj'et), Francis. Born March 20, 1851: died at London, Aug. 2, 1911. Bishop of Oxford 1901–11. He was vicar of Bromsgrove 1882–85; regius professor of pastoral theology and canon of Christ Church, Oxford, 1885–92; chaplain to the Bishop of Oxford 1889–1901; and dean of Christ Church 1892–1901.

Pagliacci (päl-yä'chē). An opera by Leoncavallo, first produced at Milan in 1892.

Pagsán (päg-sän'). A mountain in Cagayán province, northern Luzón, Philippine Islands. It is near the western boundary line of Cagayán, at the northeastern extremity of Abra province. Height, 7,261 feet.

Painted Chamber, The. A chamber in the old Westminster Palace, originally called the "Chamber of St. Edward." It was the kernel of the palace, which grew around it, and later received the name of the Painted Chamber from the decorations placed there by Henry III.

Palace of Peace. See ★Peace, Palace of.

Palacio Valdés (pä-lä'thē-ō väl-dās'), Armando. Born at Entralgo, Spain, Oct. 4, 1853. A Spanish novelist and critic. Among his novels are "El Señor Octavio" (1881), "Marta y María" (1883), "El idilio de un enfermo" (1884), "José" (1885), "Riverita" (1886), "Maximina" (1887), "La hermana de San Sulpicio" (1889), "El cuarto poder" (1888), "La espuna" (1892), "La fé" (1892), "Los majos de Cadiz" (1896), "La Alegría del Capitán Ribot" (1899), and "Tristán o el pesimismo" (1906).

Palanán (pä-lä-nän'). A town in Isabela province, eastern Luzón, in the Philippine Islands, situated on a river flowing into Palanán Bay. Here Aguinaldo was captured by General Funston on March 23, 1901. Civilized population of municipality, 1,080.

Palestine Exploration Fund. A fund established June 22, 1865, at London, for the scientific exploration of the Holy Land. Since 1865 many expeditions and excavations have been made under its auspices, by Clermont-Ganneau, Flinders Petrie, F. J. Bliss, R. A. S. Macalister, and others. The results have been presented in maps, journals, and other publications, and in the Palestinian Museum of the fund at London.

Palisades Interstate Park. A public park created by acts of the legislatures of New York and New Jersey in 1910. It originally comprised the land along the Palisades of the Hudson River, between the top of the cliff and the water, from Fort Lee, in New Jersey, to the termination of the Palisades in New York. By subsequent legislation the park was extended to include mountain lands along the west side of the Hudson to Newburgh, and from the river west into the Ramapo Mountains. In the latter extension are included 10,000 acres given to the State by Mrs. E. H. Harriman. The commission in charge of the park has received other gifts of land and large gifts of money.

Pallain (päl-lañ'), Georges. Born at Liancourt, Oise, March 20, 1847. A French financier and author, governor of the Bank of France from 1898. From 1871 he held various government appointments, especially in connection with the finances, being director of Gambetta's cabinet in 1881, and director-general of customs in 1885. Besides several collections of the political and diplomatic correspondence of Talleyrand, he has published "La statue de Mirabeau" (1880), "Traité de la législation spéciale du trésor public en matière contentieuse" (1881), "Ambassade de Talleyrand à Londres, 1830-1834" (1891), "Les douanes françaises" (1896), etc.

Palm (pälm), Johann Philipp. Born in Schorndorf, Germany, Nov. 17, 1768: died Aug. 26, 1806. A bookseller of Nuremberg. He was executed by a military tribunal, under the orders of Napoleon, for the publishing of a pamphlet ("Deutschland in seiner tiefen Erniedrigung"), by another hand, in which the French emperor and the conduct of the French troops in Germany were attacked.

Palma (päl'mä), Tomas Estrada. Born near Bayamo, Cuba, July 9, 1835: died at Santiago, Nov. 4, 1908. A Cuban statesman, first president of the Cuban republic. He studied law at the University of Seville; fought in the insurgent army in the ten years' war between Spain and Cuba (1868–78); gained the rank of general; and was made president of the provisional republic, but was captured and imprisoned in Spain. After his release he went to Honduras and became postmaster-general. Later he settled in Central Valley, New York, and established a school for Latin-Americans. He was elected president of Cuba, Feb. 24, 1902; was reëlected March 19, 1906; and resigned in Sept., 1906.

Palmer (päm'ėr). A town in Hampden County, Massachusetts, on the Chicopee River, 14 miles northeast of Springfield. It has manufactories of cotton, woolen, and straw goods, carpets, carriages, etc. Population, 8,610, (1910).

Palmer (päm'ėr), Mrs. (Alice Freeman). Born at Colesville, N. Y., Feb. 21, 1855: died at Paris, Dec. 6, 1902. An American educator. She was graduated from the University of Michigan in 1876; was professor of history at Wellesley College 1879–1881; was acting president of Wellesley in 1881, and president 1882–87; and was dean of the woman's department (non-resident) of the University of Chicago 1892–95. In 1887 she married George Herbert Palmer, professor of philosophy in Harvard University.

Palmer (päm'ėr), John Williamson. Born at Baltimore, Md., April 4, 1825: died there, Feb. 26, 1906. An American journalist and author. He was graduated from the University of Maryland in 1847; was first city physician in San Francisco in 1849; traveled in the Far East; was Confederate correspondent of the New York "Tribune" during the Civil War; and later was engaged in general editorial work. He wrote "The Golden Dagon; or, Up and Down the Irrawaddi" (1856), "The New and the Old" (1859), "After his Kind. By John Coventry" (1886), "For Charlie's Sake, and Other Lyrics and Ballads" (1901), etc. His ballad "Stonewall Jackson's Way" was popular in the South.

Palo Alto (pä'lō äl'tō). A post-town of Santa Clara County, California, on San Francisco Bay near Redwood City: the seat of Leland Stanford Junior University. Population, 4,486, (1910).

Pampanga (päm-pän'gä). A southern province of Luzón, Philippine Islands. It is bounded by Tarlac (partly separated by the Paruao River) on the north; Nueva Ecija (partly separated by the Rio Chico de la Pampanga) on the northeast; Bulacán on the east and southeast; Manila Bay on the south; and Bataán (partly separated by the Aba) and Zambales (separated by the Aba River and the Zambales Mountains) on the west. Capital, Bacolor. The southern part bordering Manila Bay is a broad delta extending beyond the original coastline. In the west are the Mabanga Mountains, parallel with the Zambales range; in the northeast is Mount Arayat and in the northwest Mount Pinatubo, extinct volcanoes 3,564 feet and 6,040 feet in height. The Rio Grande de la Pampanga flows through the eastern part of the province. Bananas, mangos, sweet potatoes, sugar-cane, corn, and rice are among the products. The native tribes are Pampangans. Area, 868 square miles. Population, 223,754.

Pana (pā'nä). A city in Christian County, Illinois, 42 miles southeast of Springfield. Coal-mining is its principal industry. Population, 6,055, (1910).

Panama*. Panama proclaimed its independence on Nov. 3, 1903, and its government was recognized by the United States on Nov. 13, and later by other powers. It is governed by a president, elected for four years (and ineligible for the succeeding term), and a chamber of deputies consisting of 32 members. There are also two vice-presidents and a cabinet of five ministers. The country is divided into seven provinces. By a treaty signed Nov. 18, 1903 (ratified Feb. 23, 1904), Panama ceded to the United States for $10,000,000 the perpetual control of a strip ten miles wide (the Canal Zone), upon which the interoceanic canal is being constructed. The cities of Panama and Colón (lying within the zone) were placed under the control of the United States as regards sanitation and quarantine only; but the coast-line of the zone and the outlying islands were ceded to the United States for purposes of defense. Area, 32,380 square miles. Population, 361,000.

Panama Canal*. The amount paid by the United States for the property and rights of the French company was $40,000,000. The control of a strip of land ten miles wide, constituting the Canal Zone, was obtained from the Republic of Panama for $10,000,000. Work was organized in 1904 for the construction of a canal of the lock type, and this type, which had been accepted by Congress in 1901, was adopted by it in 1906. The plan includes a channel from deep water on the Caribbean to Gatún, where an ascent to the 85-foot level is to be made by means of three (twin) locks, each lock being 110 feet wide and 1,000 feet long; a dam at Gatún about 7,700 feet long, one half mile wide at the base, 100 feet wide at the top, and 135 feet above mean tide; a lock at Pedro Miguel; and two locks at Miraflores. The lake formed by the Gatún dam is about 171 square miles in extent. The deepest part of the cut is at Culebra (4½ miles long and 300 feet wide at bottom). Total length of canal, 49.72 miles.

Panama Canal Zone. See ★ Isthmian Canal Zone.

Pan-American Conference. A conference (originally entitled "The Pan-American Congress") which sat in Washington, D. C., 1889–90. It was convened by virtue of an act passed by the United States Congress on May 10, 1888, requesting the President to invite the Latin-American governments to join the United States in a conference to be held in Washington, in 1889, "for the purpose of discussing and recommending for adoption to their respective governments some plan of arbitration for the settlement of disagreements and disputes that may hereafter arise between them, and for considering questions relating to the improvement of business intercourse and means of direct communication between the said countries, and to encourage such reciprocal commercial relations as will be beneficial to all, and secure more extensive markets for the products of each of the said countries."

Pan-American Railway. A railway system, in process of construction, intended to connect North America, Central America, and South America by through railway communication (with branch lines) between New York and Buenos Aires and between Alaska and Hudson Bay and Patagonia. Of the 10,400 miles between New York and Buenos Aires along the line of the proposed Pan-American railway, there are to-day not more than 3,500 miles of intercontinental railway sections not specifically provided for. The whole system is estimated to cost $200,000,000.

Panamint Mountains. A range of mountains in Inyo County, California, bounding Death Valley on the west.

Panaón (pä-nä-ōn'). An island lying south of Leyte Island in the Philippines, and belonging to Leyte province. Area, 71 square miles. Population, 8,610.

Pangasinán (pän-gä-sē-nän'). A province in the western part of Luzón, Philippine Islands. It is bounded by the China Sea, Lingayén Gulf, La Unión, and Benguet on the north; Nueva Vizcaya and Nueva Ecija (partly separated by the Agno) on the east; Nueva Ecija, Tarlac (partly separated by the Agno), and Zambales on the south; and the China Sea on the west. Capital, Lingayén. The northern part of the Zambales range, formerly the boundary between Zambales and Pangasinán, now lies wholly within the latter province. In the northeast the land is mountainous, sloping to the center and to the low flat coast of Lingayén Gulf, which deeply indents the province. The Agno traverses Pangasinán, flowing into Lingayén Gulf. The soil is very fertile. Among the products are pineapples, bananas, mangos, sweet potatoes, betel-nuts, corn, sugar-cane, and rice, the last two being especially important. Gold, copper, and salt are found. The native races are mainly Pangasinanes and Ilocanos. The census of 1903 gives also 3,386 Igorrotes. Area of province, 1,193 square miles. Population, 397,902.

Panglao (pän-glä'ō). An island southwest of Bohol, Philippine Islands. Area, 31 square miles. Population, 14,437.

Pango-Pango*. It was ceded to the United States as a naval and coaling station in 1872, was occupied in 1887, and in Jan., 1900 (with the island of Tutuila), was annexed. This annexation by the United States was in accordance with the Anglo-German agreement of Nov. 14, 1899.

Paolo and Francesca (pä'ō-lō and fränches'kä). A drama by Stephen Phillips, published in 1899. The theme, the love of Paolo for his elder brother's wife, Francesca, is a favorite one in literature and has been used by many writers from Dante onward. See Francesca da Rimini.

Papua (pap'ö-ä or pa-pö'ä), Territory of. The official title, since Sept. 1, 1906, of British New Guinea.

Paragould (par'a-göld). The county-seat of Greene County, Arkansas, in the northeastern part of the State. It is a shipping-point for lumber, and has wood-working establishments, cotton-gins, and foundries. Formerly called Parmly. Population, 5,248, (1910).

Paragua (pä-rä'gwä). 2. A province of the Philippine Islands. It is bounded by Mindoro (separated by Mindoro Strait) on the north; the Visayan Sea and the Sulu (Joló) Sea on the east; Balabac Strait (separating it from islands north of Borneo) on the south; and the China Sea on the west. Capital, Puerto Princesa. It includes Paragua (Palawan) and more than 500 other islands, the most important of which are the Calamianes on the north, the Cagayanes and Cuyos groups and Dumarán on the east, and Balábac and adjacent islands on the south. The southern part of the province was formerly a military district, Paragua Sur. The principal harbors are Puerto Princesa (Port Royalist) on the eastern, Malampaya and Port Barton on the northwestern, and Ulugan on the western coast of Paragua (Palawan), all safe for large vessels in all weather. A mountain-range of considerable altitude, except near lat. 10° N., extends through the island from northeast to southwest. The loftiest peaks are Cleopatra's Needle, 5,200 feet, Landargun, 5,397 feet, Victoria, 5,680 feet, Mantalingajan, 6,843 feet, and Cautarag, 5,868 feet in height. The mountains are covered with forests of valuable woods. The rivers are short. Pineapples, sweet potatoes, nutmegs, rice, and tobacco are produced. Cattle, goats, and fowls are raised. The inhabitants are chiefly Tagbanuas, Bataks, and Moros. Area of Paragua (Palawan) Island, 4,027 square miles; population, 10,918; area of province, 5,238 square miles; population, 35,696.

Paris (par'is). The county-seat of Lamar County, Texas, 92 miles northeast of Dallas. It is the trade center of a cotton-growing region, and has cotton-gins, cotton-seed oil mills, etc. Population, 11,269, (1910).

Park City (pärk sit'i). A town in Knox County, Tennessee, incorporated in 1907. Population, 5,126, (1910).

Parker (pär'kėr), Alton Brooks. Born at Cortland, N. Y., May 14, 1852. An American jurist. He was graduated from the Albany Law School; was surrogate of Ulster County, New York, 1877–85; was chairman of the New York State Democratic committee in 1885; was elected justice of the Supreme Court of New York in 1886; was a member of the Court of Appeals, second division, 1889–92, of the general term 1893–96, and of the appellate division 1896–97; and was chief justice of the Court of Appeals, New York, from Jan. 1, 1898, until August 5, 1904, when he resigned to accept the Democratic nomination for the presidency. He polled a popular vote of 5,082,754 against the 7,624,489 cast for President Roosevelt, and resumed (in New York city) the practice of law.

Parker (pär'kėr), Sir Horatio Gilbert

George: known as Gilbert. Born at Camden East, Ontario, Nov. 23, 1862. A Canadian author. He established a residence in England and has been Conservative member of Parliament for Gravesend since 1900. He was knighted in 1902. His works include "Pierre and his People" (1893), "The Translation of a Savage" (1893), "A Lover's Diary: Songs in Sequence" (1894), "When Valmond Came to Pontiac" (1895), "The Seats of the Mighty" (1896), "The Pomp of the Lavilettes" (1897), "The Battle of the Strong" (1897), "The Lane that Had no Turning" (1900), "The Right of Way" (1901), "Donovan Pasha" (1902), "Old Quebec" (1903: with Claude G. Bryan), "A Ladder of Swords" (1904), "The Weavers" (1907), "Northern Lights" (1909), "Cumner's Son" (1910), etc.

Parker (pär'kẽr), Horatio William. Born at Auburndale, Mass., Sept. 15, 1863. An American composer, organist, and teacher. His first work was a cantata, "King Trojan," brought out in Munich in 1885. He has been organist in a number of churches in New York city. In 1894 he was made professor of music in Yale University. Among his most important works are "Hora Novissima," an oratorio (1893), "St. Christopher" (1898), and a concerto for organ and orchestra. "Mona," an opera, with libretto by Brian Hooker, received in 1911 the $10,000 prize offered by the directors of the Metropolitan Opera Company, New York, for the best opera by an American composer.

Parker (pär'kẽr), Joseph. Born at Hexham-on-Tyne, Northumberland, April 9, 1830: died at London, November 28, 1902. An English Congregational minister and pulpit orator. He was minister of the Cavendish Chapel, Manchester, 1858–69, and of the City Temple, London, 1869–1902. He published several books on religious subjects and his autobiography, "A Preacher's Life" (1899).

Parkes (pärks), Sir Henry. Born in Warwickshire, May 27, 1815: died at Sydney, April 27, 1896. An Australian statesman. He emigrated to Sydney, Australia, in 1839; founded and edited (1850–57) the "Empire" newspaper as the organ of Liberalism in New South Wales; and was colonial secretary 1866–68 and premier of New South Wales 1872–75, 1878–82, and 1887–89. He was knighted in 1877. In 1891 he presided over the Federation Conference. He published volumes of poems, political speeches, "Fifty Years in the Making of Australian History" (1892), etc.

Parks, Mrs. See ★Robins, Elizabeth.

Parliament*. The House of Lords comprises peers who hold their seats by hereditary right, or by creation of the sovereign, or by election for life (Irish peers), or by election for a given parliament (Scottish peers), or by virtue of their office (English bishops). The number in 1911 was 640. Of the elected peers 16 are Scottish and 28 are Irish. The House of Commons consists of representatives of county, borough, and university constituencies in England, Scotland, and Ireland. In 1911 the total number was 670, of which 377 represented counties, 284 boroughs, and 9 universities. There were 465 English, 30 Welsh, 72 Scottish, and 103 Irish members.

Parliament Act. See ★Veto Bill.

Parloa (pär-lō'ä), Maria. Born in Massachusetts in 1843: died at Bethel, Conn., Aug. 21, 1909. An American writer and lecturer on cookery and home economics. She gave courses of instruction in several New England schools, lectured in various cities of the United States, and in 1882 opened a cooking-school in New York city. Besides contributing articles on domestic topics to various periodicals, she published "First Principles of Household Management and Cookery," "Kitchen Companion," "New Cook Book and Marketing Guide," etc.

Parlow (pär'lō), Kathleen. Born at Calgary, Alberta, in 1890. A Canadian violinist. She made her first public appearance at San Francisco, at the age of six. In 1905 she went to London, and later to St. Petersburg, where she studied with Leopold Auer, and subsequently appeared as a virtuoso in many of the large European cities. She made her début at New York, Dec. 1, 1910, playing the Tschaikovsky concerto with the Russian Symphony Orchestra.

Parrish (par'ish), Maxfield. Born at Philadelphia, July 25, 1870. An American painter and illustrator, son of Stephen Parrish. He studied art at the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts and under Howard Pyle; was elected associate of the National Academy of Design in New York in 1905 and member in 1906; and is also a fellow of the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts. He has developed a style of dignity and power in color and design which is best shown in his colored illustrations.

Parrish (par'ish), Stephen. Born at Philadelphia, July 9, 1846. An American landscape-painter and etcher. He first exhibited pictures at the Pennsylvania Academy in 1878 and at the National Academy in New York in 1879. His first plate was etched in December, 1879. He belongs to the New York Etching Club, and to the Royal Society of Painter-Etchers, London.

Parry*, Sir Charles Hubert Hastings. In 1894 he was appointed director of the Royal College of Music, succeeding Sir George Grove. He was professor of music at Oxford University 1899–1908, succeeding Sir John Stainer.

Parsons (pär'sonz), William Barclay. Born at New York, April 15, 1859. An American civil engineer. He was chief engineer of the Rapid Transit Commission of New York city 1894–1905; advisory engineer of the Royal Commission on Traffic in London in 1904; member of the Isthmian Canal Commission 1904–05, and of the board of consulting engineers of the Panama Canal 1905–06; and chief engineer of the Cape Cod Canal 1909–. He has written "An American Engineer in China" (1900), etc.

Partridge (pär'trij), William Ordway. Born at Paris, France, April 11, 1861. An American sculptor and author. He studied art in Rome, Florence, and Paris; was professor of fine arts in Columbian University, Washington; and has executed an equestrian statue of General Grant and a statue of Hamilton for Brooklyn, a statue of Shakspere for Chicago, and a large number of other statues and busts. His published works include "Art for America" (1895), "The Song of Life of a Sculptor" (1895), "Technique of Sculpture" (1895), "The Angel of Clay" (1900), "Nathan Hale" (1902), and "The Czar's Gift" (1906).

Pasig (pä'sig). 1. A river in Luzón, Philippine Islands, connecting Laguna de Bay with Manila Bay. The city of Manila is situated at its mouth. It is navigable, even at low water, by cascos and by launches of 5 or 6 feet draft.

2. A town, the capital of Rizal province, Luzón, Philippine Islands, situated in lat. 14° 33′ N., long. 121° 5′ E. Civilized population of municipality, 11,278.

Passy (pä-sē'), Frédéric. Born at Paris, May 20, 1822. A French economist and author. Between 1860 and 1902 he taught political economy in various schools near and at Paris, and was a member of the Chamber of Deputies 1881–89. He was one of the founders of the International Peace League in 1867, and of the Interparliamentary Peace Union in 1888, and a member of the committee of the International Peace Bureau at Bern in 1892. In 1901 he received the Nobel peace prize. He has published "Mélanges économiques" (1857), "Leçons d'économie politique" (1860–61), "Les machines et leur influence sur le progrès social" (1866), "L'Histoire du travail" (1873), "La solidarité du travail et du capital" (1875), "Vérités et paradoxes" (1894), etc.

Passy (pä-sē'), Paul Édouard. Born at Versailles in 1859. A French philologist. He is an advocate of phonetic spelling and founded the Phonetic Association. Since 1894 he has held the adjunct directorship of universal and comparative phonetics in the École Pratique des Hautes Études of the Sorbonne, Paris. He has published "Le Français parlé" (1886), "Les sons du fransais, leur formacion, leur combinaizon, etc." (1887), "Étude sur les changements phonétiques" (1890), "Elementarbuch des gesprochenen ranzæsisch" (1893: with F. Beyer).

Pasteur Institute (päs-tẽr' in'sti-tūt). An institution founded at Paris in 1886, by international public subscription, for the treatment of hydrophobia by Pasteur's method. It was enabled by later subscriptions to undertake also the treatment of other diseases, the production of serums, and the advancement of biological chemistry. Other Pasteur institutes have been established at Lille, Tunis, Constantinople, New York, Chicago, St. Louis, Buenos Aires, Montevideo, and elsewhere.

Patin (pä-tañ'), Henri Joseph Guillaume. Born at Paris, Aug. 21, 1793: died there, Feb. 19, 1876. A French writer. He was elected a member of the French Academy in 1843 and became its perpetual secretary in 1871. His most noted work is "Études sur les tragiques grecs ou examen critique d'Eschyle, etc." (1841–43).

Patmore*, Coventry Kersey Dighton. His later works include "The Unknown Eros, and Other Odes" (1877), "Amelia" (1878), collected poems (1886), "Principle in Art" (1889), "Religio Poetæ" (1893), and "Rod, Root, and Flower" (1895).

Pattison (pat'i-son), Dorothy Wyndlow: known as Sister Dora. Born at Haukswell, Yorkshire, Jan. 16, 1832: died at Walsall, Staffordshire, Dec. 24, 1878. An English philanthropist, sister of Mark Pattison. She joined the sisterhood of the Good Samaritan at Coatham, Yorkshire, in 1864; was connected with its cottage hospital at Walsall; and became an excellent surgical nurse and devoted herself to the care of the poor. In 1877 she took charge of the Municipal Epidemic Hospital in Walsall.

Paul (pál), Herbert Woodfield. Born 1853. An English essayist and historian. He was educated at Eton and at Corpus Christi College, Oxford; was admitted to the bar of Lincoln's Inn in 1878; and was Liberal member of Parliament for South Edinburgh 1892–95 and for Northampton 1906–. He has published "Men and Letters" (1901), "Life of Rt. Hon. W. E. Gladstone" (1901), "Matthew Arnold" (1902), "History of Modern England" (Vols. I., II., 1904; III., 1905; IV., V., 1906), "Lord Acton" (1904), "Life of Froude" (1905), "Stray Leaves" (1906), "Queen Anne" (1906), etc.

Paulhan (poul-hăn'), Louis. Born at Pézenas, Hérault, July 19, 1883. A French aviator. On August 25, 1909, he made a record, at Rheims, by a flight of 81.35 miles in 2 hours, 43 minutes, 44 seconds; and April 27–28, 1910, he won a prize of $50,000 by a flight from London to Manchester (185 miles) in 12 hours. At the Los Angeles meet in January, 1910, he reached an altitude of 4,165 feet, the world's record at that time.

Paulsen (poul'sen), Friedrich. Born at Langenhorn, North Friesland, July 16, 1846: died at Steglitz, near Berlin, Aug. 14, 1908. A German scholar, professor of philosophy and pedagogics in the University of Berlin from 1878. His works include "Gründung, Organisation, und Lebensordnungen der deutschen Universitäten im Mittelalter" (1881), "Geschichte des gelehrten Unterrichts auf den deutschen Schulen und Universitäten" (1885), "Einleitung in die Philosophie" (1891), "Immanuel Kant" (1898), etc.

Pauncefote (pâns'fût), Sir Julian, Lord Pauncefote. Born Sept. 13, 1828: died at Washington, D. C., May 24, 1902. An English diplomatist. He was knighted in 1874 and raised to the peerage as Baron Pauncefote in 1899; was British minister to the United States 1889–93, and ambassador 1893–1902; conducted the negotiations at Washington which led to the settlement of the Bering Sea controversy, the Anglo-Venezuelan boundary arbitration, etc.; and was senior British delegate at The Hague Peace Conference in 1899. Throughout his life he did much for the cause of international arbitration.

Paur (pour), Emil. Born at Czernowitz, Bukowina, Aug. 29, 1855. An Austrian musical conductor. He studied with his father, and later at the Vienna Conservatory, making his début as a pianist and violinist at the age of eight, and seven years later becoming a first violin in the Vienna court orchestra. He began his career as a conductor at Cassel in 1876. In 1893 he became conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, in 1898 of the New York Philharmonic Society, and in 1904 of the Pittsburgh Orchestra.

Pavlof (päv'lōf), Ivan Petrovitch. Born at Ryazan, Sept. 26, 1849. A Russian physiologist, professor of physiology and director of the physiological laboratory in the Imperial Academy of Sciences and head of the department of physiology in the Imperial Institute of Experimental Medicine at St. Petersburg. In 1904 he was awarded the Nobel prize for medicine.

Pavlova (päv'lō-fä), Anna. Born about 1880. A Russian dancer. She was trained in the ballet school of St. Petersburg, and became a member of the imperial ballet at the opera-house. She has appeared in Berlin, Paris, London, and America. Her New York début was made at the Metropolitan Opera House (season of 1909–10), in "Coppélia." She also dances divertisements, usually appearing with Mikail Mordkin.

Payne (pān), Henry Clay. Born at Ashfield, Mass., Nov. 23, 1843: died at Washington, D. C., Oct. 4, 1904. An American business man and politician. He was a member of the Republican National Committee from 1880; and was postmaster of Milwaukee 1876–86, and postmaster-general 1902–04.

Peabody (pē'bod-i), Francis Greenwood. Born at Boston, Mass., Dec. 4, 1847. An American theologian. He was graduated at Harvard University in 1869, and was pastor of the First Parish Church of Cambridge, Massachusetts, 1874–80. He was Parkman professor of theology in Harvard University 1881–1886, Plummer professor of Christian morals 1886–, and dean of the Divinity School 1901–05. He has written "Mornings in the College Chapel" (1896, 1908), "Afternoons in the College Chapel" (1898), "Jesus Christ and the Social Question" (1900), "Religion of an Educated Man" (1903), "Jesus Christ and the Christian Character" (1906), "The Approach to the Social Question" (1909), etc.

Peabody (pē'bod-i), Josephine Preston. Born at New York. An American author. She was educated at Radcliffe College 1894–96, and was instructor in literature in Wellesley College 1901–03. She has written "The Wayfarers," verse (1898), "The Singing Leaves" (1903), "The Piper," a drama, which won the Stratford prize (1909), "The Singing Man," poems (1911), etc. She married Mr. Lionel Simeon Marks in 1906.

Peabody (pē'bod-i), Robert Swain. Born at New Bedford, Mass., Feb. 22, 1845. An American architect. He was graduated at Harvard University in 1866, and later studied at the École des Beaux-Arts, Paris. Since 1870 he has practised architecture in Boston. He is chairman of the Boston Park Commission. He was president of the American Institute of Architects 1900–01, and of the Boston Society of Architects 1902–05, 1907–09.

Peace, Palace of. A building at The Hague, to be occupied by the International Arbitration Court. The money for its erection was given by Andrew Carnegie. The foundation stone was laid July 30, 1907.

Peace Conference. 1. A conference of nations, called by the Czar of Russia, which met at The Hague May 18–July 29, 1899. It was held in the palace known as the "House in the Wood." Twenty-six nations sent delegates. The objects proposed by the czar were (1) the prevention of an increase (and if possible the reduction) of the armaments of the world and of the budgets caused by them; (2) the mitigation of the horrors and cruelties of war by discarding submarine torpedo-boats, certain explosives and missiles, and bomb-balloons, the neutralization of relief parties, and the revision of the laws and customs of war; and (3) the establishment of a permanent court of arbitration. The first object met with unanimous approval, but power to secure it was not granted; the second was substantially advanced by conventions and declarations respecting the laws and customs of war by land and of maritime war; and by a convention for the pacific settlement of international disputes the permanent court of arbitration was established. This court, sometimes called The Hague Court or The Hague Tribunal, consists of not more than four arbitrators named by each of the signatory powers. (They numbered forty-one in 1910.) An international bureau, resident at The Hague, is the medium of arrangement. Each of the two powers which are parties to a dispute selects two arbitrators from the many constituting the permanent court, and these four (or a third power) selects a fifth or umpire who acts as president of that particular tribunal. Sessions are held in accordance with the agreement and convenience of the parties in dispute.

2. An international conference, proposed by the President of the United States in 1904, which sat at The Hague June 15–Oct. 18, 1907: the invitation was given by the Czar of Russia. Conventions relating to the following subjects were agreed upon: the pacific settlement of international disputes; an international prize court; the rights and duties of neutrals on land and at sea; the laying of submarine mines; the discharge of projectiles and explosives from balloons; the bombardment of towns from the sea; the forcible collection of debts; the use of merchantmen as war-ships; the extension of the Geneva Convention and the Red Cross to warfare at sea; and the regulation of land warfare. It strongly urged on the nations the necessity of limiting armaments, compulsory arbitration, and the need for a judicial international court, offering a draft for its organization, and recommended a third peace conference.

Pearl Harbor (pėrl här'bor). A harbor in the Pearl River, on the southern coast of Oahu, Hawaiian Islands, about 7 miles west of Honolulu. In 1909 the United States government began the construction of a naval station here, with extensive military works.

Pearson (pēr'sŏn), Karl. Born 1857. An English mathematician, professor of applied mathematics and mechanics in University College, London, from 1885. He has written "The Ethic of Free Thought" (1888), "Grammar of Science" (1892: enlarged 1899), "The Chances of Death and Other Studies in Evolution" (1897), "National Life from the Standpoint of Science" (1901), "Scope and Importance to the State of the Science of National Eugenics" (1907), etc. He was one of the editors of "Biometrika" 1902-04.

Peary*, Robert Edwin. In July, 1905, he again set out for the pole in the Roosevelt. He wintered on the northeast coast of Grant Land and in February, 1906, started north. He reached lat. 87° 6′ N. on April 21. He was obliged to return owing to lack of supplies. During this expedition he traced the north coast of Grant Land and discovered new land at about long. 100° W. He planned another attempt to reach the pole in 1907, but was obliged to postpone it until 1908. On July 17 he set sail in the Roosevelt from Sydney, Cape Breton, intending to winter in the north of Grant Land. On his return he announced, by wireless message from Indian Harbor, Labrador, on Sept. 6, 1909, that he had reached the pole April 6, 1909. He arrived in the Roosevelt at Cape Sheridan, Grant Land, where he wintered, on Sept. 1, 1908. The sledge expedition (including 7 members of the exploring party and 59 Eskimos) was begun Feb. 15–22, Peary himself starting on the latter date, and arrived at Cape Columbia. On March 1 the dash from Cape Columbia for the pole was begun. The pole was reached by Peary, Henson, and four Eskimos on April 6 and was left on April 7, and Cape Columbia was reached on April 23. He has written "Northward Over the Great Ice" (1898), "Nearest the Pole" (1907), and "The North Pole" (1910). He received the thanks of Congress and was retired with the rank of rear-admiral in 1911.

Peary (pē'ri) Channel. The channel which separates Markham Island and Melville Land from northern Greenland: named for the arctic explorer R. E. Peary.

Peary Land (pē'ri land). The northern and northwestern section of Greenland, about lat. 76°–82° 30′ N., long. 30°–75° W. It was traversed by Robert Edwin Peary and his party in 1892.

Peck (pek), Annie Smith. Born at Providence, Rhode Island. An American explorer, especially noted as a mountain-climber. She was graduated at the State Normal School, University of Michigan, in 1878, and studied in the American School of Classical Studies at Athens. She climbed the Matterhorn in 1895, and Popocatepetl and Orizaba in 1897, and in 1908 made the first ascent of Huascarán in Peru (height, 24,000 feet?). She had previously (1904) climbed the last-named mountain to the height of 19,000 feet. In this year she also attained an altitude of about 20,500 feet on Sorata, in Bolivia.

Peckham (pek'ham), Rufus Wheeler. Born Nov. 8, 1838: died Oct. 24, 1909. An American jurist. He was admitted to the bar in 1859; was justice of the Supreme Court of New York 1883–86; was associate judge of the Court of Appeals, New York, 1886–95; and was associate justice of the United States Supreme Court 1896–1909. He was a delegate to the Democratic national conventions of 1876 and 1880.

Peer Gynt (pār gŭnt). A dramatic poem written in 1867 by Henrik Ibsen, and presented on the stage in New York in 1907 by Richard Mansfield. Grieg has composed a suite, in two series, based upon the poem.

Peg Woffington (wof'ing-tŏn). A story by Charles Reade, published in 1852. See Woffington, Margaret.

Peirce (pėrs), Benjamin Osgood. Born at Beverly, Mass., Feb. 11, 1854. An American physicist and mathematician, professor of mathematics and natural philosophy in Harvard University from 1888. He was assistant professor of mathematics and physics there 1884–88.

Peirce (pėrs), Herbert Henry Davis. Born at Cambridge, Mass., April 11, 1849. An American diplomatist. He was appointed secretary of the United States legation at St. Petersburg in 1894; was first secretary of the embassy there 1898–1901; was appointed third assistant secretary of state in 1901; and became minister to Norway in 1906.

Pelasgicon (pe-las'ji-kon). A kind of terraced outwork at the western end of the Acropolis at Athens: also called Enneapylon, from its nine gates.

Pelléas et Mélisande (pāl-lā-ăs' ā mā-lē-sănd'). An opera by Claude Debussy (words by Maurice Maeterlinck), first produced at Paris in 1902.

Pelletier (pe-le-tyā'), Sir Charles Alphonse Pantaléon. Born at Rivière Ouelle, Quebec, Jan. 22, 1837: died at Quebec, April 29, 1911. A Canadian Liberal statesman, lieutenant-governor of the province of Quebec 1908–11. He was graduated at Laval University in 1858; was called to the bar in 1860; was appointed queen's counsel in 1879; and was made a companion of the Order of St. Michael and St. George in 1898. He sat for Kamouraska in the House of Commons 1869–77, and for Quebec, East, in the Quebec Legislative Assembly 1873–74; was minister of agriculture in the Mackenzie administration 1877–78; was called to the Senate in 1877, and was its speaker 1896–1901; and resigned his seat in 1905. He was judge of the Superior Court of the province of Quebec 1905–08.

Peloubet (pe-lō'bet), Francis Nathan. Born at New York, Dec. 2, 1831. An American clergyman and author of works on the Bible for Sunday-school teachers and scholars. He was graduated at Williams College in 1853, and at the Bangor Theological Seminary in 1857; and was pastor of various Congregational churches from 1857 to 1883. He is best known for his "Select Notes on the International Sunday School Lessons" (1875–). His other works include "The Teacher's Commentary on Matthew and on Acts," "The Book of Job, a Drama," etc.

Pemberton (pem'bėr-tŏn), Max. Born at Birmingham, June 19, 1863. An English author. He was educated at Caius College, Cambridge, and was editor of "Cassell's Magazine" 1896–1906. He has written many novels and short stories. Among his published volumes are "The Impregnable City" (1895), "Queen of the Jesters" (1897), "The Garden of Swords" (1899), "Beatrice of Venice" (1904), "The Hundred Days" (1905), "Sir Richard Escombe" (1908), "The Show Girl" (1909), "White Motley" (1911), "Captain Black" (1911), etc.

Pembroke (pem'brŭk). 3. A town, the capital of Renfrew County, Ontario, Canada. It is in the northeastern part of the county, on the Ottawa river. The Muskrat river flows through the town and supplies power for sawmills, flour-mills, etc. Population, 5,156.

Penck (pengk), Albrecht. Born at Reudnitz, a suburb of Leipsic, Sept. 25, 1858. A noted German geographer, professor of geography in the University of Vienna 1885–1906, and in the University of Berlin 1906–. He has written "Morphologie der Erdoberfläche" (1894), etc., and numerous scientific papers.

Pender (pen'dėr), Sir John. Born Sept. 10, 1816: died at Footscray Place, Kent, July 7, 1896. An English merchant, one of the earliest promoters of submarine telegraphy. He was one of the contributors to the formation of the first Atlantic Cable Company in 1856, and was a liberal supporter of the enterprise through the difficulties which for many years beset it. Its final success was largely due to his efforts.

Penfield (pen'fēld), Samuel Lewis. Born at Catskill, N. Y., Jan. 16, 1856: died Aug. 12, 1906. An American mineralogist, professor of mineralogy in Yale University 1893–1906. He was instructor and assistant professor 1880–93. He published "Determinative Mineralogy and Blowpipe Analysis" (1898: with Brush), and numerous scientific papers.

Pennell*, Joseph. He was elected N. A. in 1909. He has written (in several instances with his wife, Elizabeth Robins Pennell) "A Canterbury Pilgrimage" (1885), "An Italian Pilgrimage" (1886), "Two Pilgrims' Progress" (1887), "Our Sentimental Journey through France and Italy" (1888), "Pen Drawing and Pen Draughtsmen" (1889), "Our Journey to the Hebrides" (1889), "The Stream of Pleasure" (1891), "The Jew at Home" (1892), "Play in Provence" (1892), "To Gypsyland" (1893), "Modern Illustration" (1895), "The Illustration of Books" (1896), "The Alhambra" (1896), "The Work of Charles Keene" (1897), "Lithography and Lithographists" (1900), and "Life of James McNeill Whistler" (1908).

Pennsylvania Academy of the Fine Arts. An institution, founded in 1805, consisting of a museum of paintings, sculptures, and engravings, and an art school. Its building stands on Cherry and North Broad streets, Philadelphia. Annual exhibitions of the works of living artists are held here in winter.

Perch, Philemon. A pseudonym of Richard Malcolm Johnston.

Pereda (pā-rā'ᵺä), José María de. Born at Polanco, near Santander, Spain, Feb. 7, 1834: died at Madrid, March 2, 1906. A Spanish novelist. Among his works are "Escenas montañesas" (1864), "El buey suelto" (1877), "Don Gonzalo Gonzalez de la Gonzalera" (1878), "De tal palo, tal astilla" (1879), "Pedro Sanchez" (1883), "Sotileza" (1885), "La Puchera" (1889), "La Montalvez" (1891), "Peñas arriba" (1895), etc.

Perkin (pėr'kin), Sir William Henry. Born at London, March 12, 1838: died at Sudbury, July 14, 1907. An English chemist. He founded the coal-tar color industry by the discovery of the mauve dye in 1856. He was knighted in 1906.

Perosi (pā-rō'si), Lorenzo. Born at Tortona, Italy, Dec. 23, 1872. A priest and musical composer. From 1897 to 1903 he was musical director at St. Mark's, Venice, and was then taken to St. Peter's by Pope Pius X. His most important works are "The Passion of Christ," "The Transfiguration," "The Resurrection of Lazarus," and "The Birth of the Redeemer."

Perraud (pe-rō'), Adolphe Louis Albert. Born at Lyons, Feb. 7, 1828: died Feb. 11, 1906. A French prelate and ecclesiastical writer, bishop of Autun, Châlons, and Mâcon. In 1865 he was appointed professor of ecclesiastical history at the Sorbonne, from which he retired in 1874 to become bishop of Autun. He was elected to the French Academy in 1882, succeeding Auguste Barbier. In 1884 he became superior-general of the Oratory, and was created cardinal by Pope Leo XIII. in 1893. Among his works are "Études sur l'Irlande contemporaine" (1862), "L'Oratoire de France aux XVIIe et XIXe siècles" (1865), "Les paroles de l'heure présente" (1872), "Le Cardinal de Richelieu" (1882), "Œuvres pastorales et oratoires" (1883–1886), "Le Cardinal Lavigerie" (1893), "Le Père Gratry" (1900), etc.

Perrine (pe-rīn'), Charles Dillon. Born at Steubenville, Ohio, July 28, 1867. An American astronomer, director of the Argentine National Observatory from 1909. He was assistant astronomer and astronomer at the Lick Observatory 1895–1909. He received the Lalande prize of the Paris Academy of Sciences in 1897.

Perry (per'i), Bliss. Born at Williamstown, Mass., Nov. 25, 1860. An American editor, author, and critic, son of Arthur Latham Perry. He was professor of English in Williams College 1886–93, and in Princeton University 1893–1900. In 1906 he was appointed professor of English literature at Harvard University, a chair which replaced the one held by Ticknor, Longfellow, and Lowell. He was editor of the "Atlantic Monthly" 1899–1909. He was appointed Harvard lecturer at the University of Paris for the year 1909–10. Among his works are "The Broughton House" (1890), "Salem Kittredge, and Other Stories" (1894), "The Plated City" (1895), "The Powers at Play" (1899), a chapter on poetry in "Counsel upon the Reading of Books" (1900), "A Study of Prose Fiction" (1902), "The Amateur Spirit" (1904), "Walt Whitman" (1906), and "Park Street Papers" (1908).

Persia*. Until 1906 the government was an absolute monarchy, the shah, who is generally regarded as the vicegerent of the Prophet, being subject only to the rules of the Mohammedan faith. In that year a national council was established, consisting of 156 (elected) members, 60 for Teheran and 96 for the provinces. Provision was made later for a senate of 60 members, 30 to be appointed by the shah and 30 to be elected by the National Council. The constitution as finally adjusted was signed by the shah on Oct. 8, 1907. Conflict between the council and the shah (Mohammed Ali) resulted in the dissolution of the parliament on June 23, 1908, the parliament-house being attacked and destroyed by the military. A council of state was then established in the place of the National Council. In 1909 a proclamation was issued by the shah establishing a representative assembly and appointing the date of a general election. On July 16, 1909, the shah was dethroned by the constitutionalists and the crown prince, Ahmed Mirza, was chosen as his successor. An agreement between Great Britain and Russia, with regard to their respective spheres of influence in Persia, was reached in May, 1907, each country limiting its sphere in the provinces adjoining its frontier.

Peru*. Tacna and Arica are still occupied by Chile. A boundary dispute with Bolivia which was referred to the president of the Argentine Republic was decided by him in favor of Peru in 1909.

Peruvian Corporation*. (See Grace Contract, The.) On April 2, 1907, an agreement was signed (annulling the terms previously in force) by which the lease of the corporation was extended for 17 years, the government to pay annually, for 30 years, £80,000 and to receive one half the net receipts. Provision was made for the continuation of the work on the Oroya-Huancayo and Secani-Cuzco lines, and the construction of the Jonan-Chilete line. The works at Mollendo, the Chiro Canal, the silver-mines at Cerro de Pasco, and a debt of £200,000 to Chile were reserved.

Pescadores*. 1. They were ceded by China to Japan by the treaty of Shimonoseki in 1895.

Petaluma (pet-ă-lō'mă). A city in Sonoma County, California, 34 miles northwest of San Francisco. It has foundries, flour-mills, carriage-shops, silk-mills, etc., and is a shipping-point for fruit, leather, etc. Population, 5,880, (1910).

Peter (pē'tėr) I. Born at Belgrad, June 29 (O. S.), 1844. King of Servia 1903–. He is the son of Alexander Karageorgevitch, and was proclaimed king by the army after the murder of King Alexander I. and Queen Draga, June 10, 1903. He married Princess Zorka of Montenegro in 1883.

Petrie*, William Matthews Flinders. His excavations in Egypt, 1880–1906, covered the exploration of the Greek city at Naukratis and the towns of Am and Daphnæ; the discovery of prehistoric Egyptians at Nagada; the discovery at Medum of the earliest temple; excavations of the temples at Tanis, Koptos, and Thebes; records of kings of the earliest dynasties at Abydos; etc. He has been Edwards professor of Egyptology at University College, London, since 1893. In 1894 he founded the Egyptian Research Account (developed in 1905 into the British School of Archæology in Egypt). His later works include "History of Egypt" (1894–1905), "Egyptian Tales" (1895), "Religion and Conscience in Ancient Egypt" (1898), "Methods and Aims in Archæology" (1904), "Religion of Ancient Egypt" (1906), "Janus in Modern Life" (1907), "Personal Religion in Egypt before Christianity" (1909), "The Growth of the Gospels" (1910), "Meydum and Memphis" (1910), "Egypt and Israel" (1911), and many volumes of special reports.

Pettus (pet'us), Edmund Winston. Born in Limestone County, Ala., July 6, 1821: died July 27, 1907. An American lawyer and statesman, United States senator (Democratic) from Alabama 1897–1907.

Pfleiderer (pflī'der-er), Otto. Born at Stettin, Germany, Sept. 1, 1839: died at Grosslichterfelde, near Berlin, July 18, 1908. A German liberal theologian, professor of practical theology in the University of Berlin from 1875. He published "Moral und Religion" (1872), "Geschichte der Religionsphilosophie von Spinoza bis auf die Gegenwart" (third edition 1893), "Der Paulinismus" (1873), "Das Urchristentum" (1887), "The Development of Theology since Kant" (1890), "Philosophy and Development of Religion" (1894), "Das Christusbild des urchristlichen Glaubens in religionsgeschichtlicher Beleuchtung" (1903), "Die Vorbereitung des Christentums in der griechischen Philosophie" (1904), "Die Entstehung des Christentums" (1905), etc.

Pflüger (pflü'ger), Eduard Friedrich Wilhelm. Born June 7, 1829: died March 16, 1910. A physiologist, professor in the University at Bonn from 1859. He founded and edited from 1868 the "Archiv für die gesammte Physiologie."

Phelps (felps), William Lyon. Born at New Haven, Conn., Jan. 2, 1865. An American educator and essayist, professor of English literature at Yale University 1901–. He has written "The Beginnings of the English Romantic Movement" (1893), "Essays on Modern Novelists" (1910), "Essays on Russian Novelists" (1911), etc.

Philippine Islands*. Civil government was established in July, 1902. A Philippine Assembly was elected in July and opened on Oct. 16, 1907. The government consists of a governor-general, appointed by the President of the United States, and a legislative assembly. The assembly comprises an upper house consisting of the Philippine Commission (nine members, including the governor, three of them Filipinos), and a lower house of 79 representatives. There are four executive departments. The islands are divided into 39 provinces.

Phillips (fil'ips), Sir Claude. A contemporary English critic and author. He was called to the bar of the Inner Temple in 1883, and subsequently became art critic of the "Daily Telegraph" and a contributor to various periodicals in Europe and America. He has published a "Life of Sir Joshua Reynolds," "Life of Antoine Watteau," "The Earlier Work of Titian," "The Later Work of Titian," etc. He was knighted in 1911.

Phillips (fil'ips), David Graham. Born at Madison, Ind., Oct. 31, 1867: died at New York, Jan. 24, 1911. An American novelist. Among his works are "Her Serene Highness" (1902), "The Cost" (1904), "The Social Secretary" (1905), "The Fortune Hunter" (1906), "The Second Generation" (1907), "Old Wives for New" (1908), "The Fashionable Adventures of Joshua Craig" (1909), "The Hungry Heart" (1909), "White Magic" (1910), "The Husband's Story" (1910), and "The Grain of Dust" (1911).

Phillpotts (fil'pots), Eden. Born at Mount Abu, India, Nov. 4, 1862. An English novelist. He is the author of "Down Dartmoor Way" (1895), "Lying Prophets" (1897), "Children of the Mist" (1898), "Sons of the Morning" (1900), "The Good Red Earth" (1901), "The Striking Hours" (1901), "The River" (1902), "My Devon Year" (1903), "The Golden Fetich" (1903), "The American Prisoner" (1904), "The Farm of the Dagger" (1904), "The Secret Woman (1905), "Knock at a Venture" (1905), "The Portreeve" (1906), "The Sinews of War" (1906: with Arnold Bennett), "The Mother of the Man" (1908), "The Virgin in Judgment" (1908), "The Statue" (1908: with Arnold Bennett), "The Three Brothers" (1909), "Tales of the Tenements" (1910), "Wild Fruit," poems (1910), "Demeter's Daughter" (1911), "The Beacon" (1911), etc.

Piatti (pē-ät'tē), Alfredo Carlo. Born at Bergamo, Jan. 8, 1822: died near there, July 18, 1901. A famous Italian violoncellist. He was a pupil of his great-uncle Zanetti, and (1832–37) of the Milan Conservatory. He gave many concerts, playing in Munich with Liszt in 1843, and in the following year appearing in Paris, Germany, and England. He played for many seasons at the London Popular Concerts (1859–98). He wrote concerted pieces and solos for his instrument, and also made many arrangements from the old masters.

Piazza del Campidoglio (pē-ät'sä del käm-pi-dōl'yō). [It., 'oil market.'] The open square on the Capitoline Hill in Rome, the Area Capitolina of the old city. Until 1477 it was the general market of the city and remained the center of civic life after the market was removed to the Piazza Navona. The Senatorial Palace or city hall is mentioned as early as 1150. In 1538 the equestrian statue of Marcus Aurelius was placed in its present position, and in 1559 a plan was made, under the direction of Michelangelo, according to which the present arrangement of the buildings has been carried out—the Senatorial Palace in the center, the Palace of the Conservatori on the right, and the Museum of the Capitol on the left.

Picciola (pēt-chē-ō'lä). The story of the love of a prisoner for a flower, written by Saintine (J. Xavier Boniface) and published about 1836. The sketch won for its author the Montyon prize and the cross of the Legion of Honor. It has been translated into many languages.

Pickering (pik'ėr-ing), William Henry. Born at Boston, Mass., Feb. 15, 1858. An American astronomer, assistant professor of astronomy at the Harvard Observatory from 1887. He established the Arequipa station of the Harvard Observatory in 1891 and a station in Jamaica in 1900, and led eclipse expeditions in 1878 (Colorado), 1886 (West Indies), 1889 (California), 1893 (Chile), and 1900 (Georgia). The Lalande prize of the French Academy was awarded to him in 1905 for the discovery of the ninth and tenth satellites of the planet Saturn.

Picquart (pē-kär'), Marie George. Born at Strasburg, Sept. 6, 1854. A French general and statesman, minister of war under Clemenceau 1906–09. He was prominent in the defense of Dreyfus, in connection with which he was retired from the army in 1898 and later imprisoned. He was restored to active service in 1905, with the rank of brigadier-general.

Pierné (pyär-nā'), Henri Constant Gabriel. Born at Metz, Aug. 16, 1863. A French composer. He studied at the Paris Conservatory, and in 1882 won the Prix de Rome with a cantata, "Edith." In 1890 he succeeded César Franck as organist of Ste. Clotilde. He has written incidental music for several plays in which Sarah Bernhardt has appeared, including "Izeyl," "La princesse lointaine," and "La Samaritaine"; several operas, including "La coupe enchantée" (1895), "La Vendée" (1897), and "La fille de Tabarin" (1900); two choral works, "Le croisade des enfants" and "Les enfants de Bethléhem" (1907); also songs, piano pieces, and a number of orchestral compositions. For several years he was assistant conductor of the Colonne concerts in Paris, and after Colonne's death, in 1910, was chosen as his successor.

Pilar (pē-lär') Islands. A group of 24 islands in the Sulu (Joló) Archipelago. The largest of them is only 8.2 square miles in area. They belong to the Zamboanga district of Moro province. Area of group, 17.1 square miles.

Pilbarra Goldfield. A gold-mining region in the northwestern part of Western Australia.

Pilot, The. A nautical romance by James Fenimore Cooper, published in 1823.

Pinar del Río. 2. The westernmost province of Cuba. It is bounded on the north by the Gulf of Mexico, on the east by the province of Havana, on the south by the Caribbean Sea, and on the west by the Yucatan Channel. Capital, Pinar del Río. Area, 5,206 square miles. Population, 240,372.

Pinatubo (pē-nä-tō'bō), or Pinalubo. A volcano in the northwestern part of Pampanga province, southern Luzón, Philippine Islands. Height, 6,040 feet.

Pinchot (pin'chō), Gifford. Born at Simsbury, Conn., Aug. 11, 1865. An American naturalist, forester of the United States Department of Agriculture 1898–1910, and chief of the Forest Service until 1910. He was graduated at Yale University in 1889; began the first systematic forest work in the United States at Biltmore, North Carolina, 1892–94; was a member of the national forest commission 1895–96; and was appointed by the President a member of the committee on organization of government scientific work in 1903, of the commission on the public lands in the same year, and of the committee on department methods in 1905. He was appointed a member of the Inland Waterways Commission in 1907. He became president of the National Conservation Association in 1910. He has published "The White Pine" (1896: with H. S. Graves), "The Adirondack Spruce" (1898), "The Fight for Conservation" (1910), etc.

Pinero (pin'ē-rō), Sir Arthur Wing. Born at London, May 24, 1855. An English dramatist. He was an actor 1874–81. His plays include "The Squire" (1881), "The Magistrate" (1885), "Sweet Lavender" (1888), "The Profligate" (1892), "The Cabinet Minister" (1890), "Lady Bountiful" (1891), "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray" (1893), "The Notorious Mrs. Ebbsmith" (1895), "The Benefit of the Doubt" (1895), "The Princess and the Butterfly" (1897), "Trelawney of the 'Wells'" (1898), "The Gay Lord Quex" (1899), "Iris" (1901), "Letty" (1903), "His House in Order" (1906), "The Thunderbolt" (1908), "Mid-Channel" (1909), and others.

Pines*, Isle of. In April, 1907, the United States Supreme Court decided that the Isle of Pines (Cuba) is not United States territory. It is now a municipality of the province of Havana.

Pique-Dame (pēk-däm'). [F., 'Queen of Spades.'] An opera by Peter Tschaikovsky (text adapted from Pushkin), first produced at St. Petersburg, Dec. 19, 1890.

Pirsson (pėr'son), Louis Valentine. Born at New York, Nov. 3, 1860. An American geologist, professor of geology in the Sheffield Scientific School of Yale University from 1897. He was graduated from Yale in 1882; studied in Heidelberg and Paris; and has been connected with the faculty of the Sheffield School since 1885. He is assistant editor of the "American Journal of Science," and is connected with the United States Geological Survey. His publications include "Rocks and Rock Minerals" (1908), and numerous geological and mineralogical papers.

Pitlochry (pit-loch'ri). A village and health-resort in the County of Perth, Scotland, near the Pass of Killiecrankie.

Pitman (pit'man), Benn. Born at Trowbridge, Wiltshire, July 24, 1822: died at Cincinnati, Dec. 28, 1910. An Anglo-American stenographer, brother of Sir Isaac Pitman. After lecturing on shorthand in England, he came to America in 1853 and settled in Cincinnati, where he founded the Phonographic Institute. He was official reporter of some of the state trials at the close of the Civil War. In 1856 he invented an electro-process of relief-engraving, and from 1873 to 1892 lectured on art and taught wood-carving in the Cincinnati Art Academy. He published "The Reporter's Companion" (1854), "Manual of Phonography" (1854), "History of Shorthand" (1858), "Life of Sir Isaac Pitman" (1902), etc.

Pittsburg. 2. A city in the southeastern part of Crawford County, Kansas. It is situated in a coal-mining district and has zinc-works, iron-works, mills, machine-shops, etc. Population, 14,755, (1910).

Pivot City. A nickname of Geelong, in Victoria, Australia: so named from its supposed importance in the future of the colony.

Plainfield (plān'fēld). A town in Windham County, Connecticut, 14 miles northeast of Norwich. It has manufactories of cotton and woolen goods, etc. Population, 6,719, (1910).

Plancus (plang'kus). A Roman soldier, orator, and consul (42 B. C.). He served under Julius Cæsar in the Gallic and civil wars; attached himself successively to Brutus, Antony, and Octavius; and proposed in the senate that the title of Augustus should be bestowed on the last named. Horace addressed to him Ode vii., Book I.

Platt (plat), Orville Hitchcock. Born at Washington, Conn., July 19, 1827: died there, April 21, 1905. An American lawyer and statesman, United States senator (Republican) from Connecticut 1879–1905.

Plehve (plā've), Vjacheslaf Konstantinovitch. Born about 1846: died at Warsaw, July 28, 1904. A Russian official. He was educated at Warsaw and at St. Petersburg, and held various positions in the ministry of justice, becoming prosecutor at St. Petersburg. In 1881 he was appointed director of the state police, in 1883 assistant to the minister of the interior, and in 1894 secretary of state for Finland and a member of the council of the empire. As governor of Finland he was hostile to the Finnish nationalists and inaugurated a policy of repression. In 1902 he became minister of the interior. His administration was marked by the massacre of the Jews at Kishinef, the spoliation of the Armenian Church, the exile of Russian noblemen holding liberal opinions, and a policy of ruthless severity towards the peasantry and the working-classes. He was killed by a bomb thrown under his carriage as he was leaving Warsaw to make his weekly report to the Czar.

Plummer (plum'ėr), William Edward. Born at Deptford, England, March 26, 1849. An English astronomer, director of the Liverpool Observatory. In 1895 he became examiner in astronomy to the University of Edinburgh.

Plunkett (plung'ket), Sir Horace Curzon. Born Oct. 24, 1854. An Irish politician. He was educated at Eton and Oxford. He was engaged in ranching in the United States 1879–80, and on his return to Ireland devoted himself to the advancement of agriculture. In 1894 he founded the Irish Agricultural Organization Society. He was a Unionist member of Parliament 1892–1900, and vice-president of the Department of Agriculture and Technical Instruction for Ireland 1899–1907. He has published "Ireland in the New Century" (1904), "Noblesse Oblige: an Irish Rendering" (1908), and "Rural Life Problems in the United States" (1910).

Pobiedonostsef (pō-bē-dō-nōst'sef), Constantini Petrovitch. Born at Moscow, 1827: died at St. Petersburg, March 23, 1907. A Russian jurist and statesman, procurator of the Holy Synod of Russia 1880–1905. He studied at the Imperial School of Law at St. Petersburg; became an official of the senate in Moscow; was professor of civil law in the University of Moscow 1860–65; was instructor in the theory of law and administration to the sons of Alexander II.; and became a senator in St. Petersburg in 1868, and a member of the Council of the Empire in 1872. He was always an active and uncompromising advocate of absolutism in government and an opposer of all liberal reform, and he did much to strengthen the influence of the Orthodox Greek Church on Russian policy. He was the author of "Kursus des Civilrechts" (1868) and "Gerichtsleitfaden" (1872).

Pocatello (pō-kā-tel'ō). The county-seat of Bannock County, Idaho, on the Port Neuf River. Its main interests are mining, agriculture, and stock-raising. It is the seat of the Academy of Idaho. Population, 9,110, (1910).

Podmore (pod'mōr), Frank. Born Feb. 5, 1856: died Aug. 15, 1910. An English author. He was educated at Pembroke College, Oxford. He was especially interested in spiritualism and psychical phenomena, and was an active member of the Society for Psychical Research. Among his published works are "Apparitions and Thought-Transference" (1894), "Studies in Psychical Research" (1897), "Modern Spiritualism" (1902), "Robert Owen" (1906), and "The Newer Spiritualism" (1911).

Poincaré (pwäṅ-kä-rā'), Jules Henri. Born at Nancy, April 29, 1854. An eminent French mathematician, professor in the Faculty of Sciences at Paris from 1881. He has written "Cours de physique mathématique" (1890), "Électricité et optique" (1890-91), "Thermodynamique" (1892), "Les méthodes nouvelles de la mécanique céleste" (1892-99), "Théorie des tourbillons" (1893), "Les oscillations électriques" (1894), "Capillarité" (1895), "Calcul des probabilités" (1896), "La science et l'hypothèse" (1902), etc. He was elected a member of the French Academy in 1908, succeeding Sully-Prudhomme.

Pointelin (pwaṅt-laṅ'), Auguste Emmanuel. Born at Arbois, Jura, June 23, 1839. A French landscape-painter. Among his pictures, which represent chiefly scenes in his native province, are "Soir de septembre" (1880), "Côtes du Jura" (1893), and "Fond de vallon" (1901), all in the Luxembourg Museum.

Point Loma (lō'mä). A promontory on the southern coast of California, projecting into the Pacific in a southerly direction: it forms a part of the northern boundary of the bay of San Diego and covers its entrance on the west.

Poiré (pwo-rā'), Emmanuel. A French illustrator, known under his pseudonym of Caran d'Ache (which see).

Pollard (pol'ärd), Charles Louis. Born at New York, March 29, 1872. An American botanist, curator-in-chief of the public museum of the Staten Island Association of Arts and Sciences from 1907. He has been an editor of "The Plant World" from 1899.

Pollock (pol'ok), Sir Frederick. Born at London, Dec. 10, 1845. An eminent English jurist and philosophical writer. He was professor of jurisprudence in University College, London, 1882–83; of common law in the Inns of Court 1884–90; and of jurisprudence in the University of Oxford 1883–1903. He was elected a fellow of the British Academy in 1902. He is the author of "Principles of Contract" (1876), "Digest of the Law of Partnership" (1877), "Spinoza" (1880), "The Land Laws" (1882), "Introduction to the History of the Science of Politics" (1890), etc.

Pomeroy (pom'e-roi), Seth. Born at Northampton, Mass., May 20, 1706: died at Peekskill, N.Y., in February, 1777. A noted American soldier. He was by trade a gunsmith, and entered the military service of the colony early in life. He was a major in the Massachusetts forces at the capture of Louisburg in 1745, and in 1755 was a lieutenant-colonel under Ephraim Williams, at whose death he succeeded to the command of the regiment and gained a victory over Baron Dieskau in the battle of Lake George. From 1774 to 1775 he served as a delegate to the Massachusetts provincial congress, by which he was elected a general officer in 1774 and a brigadier-general in 1775. He served as a volunteer private in the battle of Bunker Hill in 1775, and a few days later was named by Congress senior brigadier-general, but declined the appointment. In 1776 he led a force of militia to the relief of the army under Washington, and marched to the Hudson river.

Pomona (pō-mō'nä). A city in Los Angeles County, California, about 30 miles east of Los Angeles. It has important fruit-growing interests. Claremont, near by, is the seat of Pomona College. Population, 10,207, (1910).

Ponce. 2. A department in the south-central part of Porto Rico. It is bounded by Arecibo, San Juan, and Guayama on the north; Guayama on the east; the Caribbean Sea on the south; and Mayaguez and Aguadilla on the west. Capital, Ponce. Area, 822 square miles.

Pond (pond), Irving Kane. Born at Ann Arbor, Mich., May 1, 1857. An American architect. He was educated at the University of Michigan and abroad. Since 1886 he has practised architecture in Chicago, in partnership with his brother, Allen B. Pond. Their work includes the Federal Building at Kankakee, Illinois; the City Club and Hull House, Chicago; and numerous institutional buildings, public and private. He was president of the American Institute of Architects 1910–11.

Pond (pond), Raymond Haines. Born at Topeka, Kansas, March 3, 1875: died at College Station, Texas, July 26, 1911. An American botanist. He was professor of botany and director of the microscopical laboratory in Northwestern University 1903–07, biologist of the Metropolitan Sewerage Commission 1908–1909, and plant pathologist of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station 1909–11. His studies related especially to enzyms, fermentation, and the fixation of nitrogen.

Pontiac (pon'ti-ak). The county-seat of Livingston County, Illinois, on the Vermilion River. It is in an agricultural and stock-raising region, and has manufactories of shoes, boxes, machinery, etc. Pop., 6,090, (1910).

Pooh-Bah (pō'bä'). A character in the comic opera "The Mikado," by Gilbert and Sullivan, who fills a large number of offices.

Poole (pōl), Reginald Lane. Born at London, March 29, 1857. An English historian and educator. He was assistant in the department of manuscripts in the British Museum in 1880–81; has been assistant editor, later joint editor with S. R. Gardiner, and finally sole editor of the "English Historical Review" from 1885; and has been lecturer on modern history at Jesus College, Oxford, from 1886. In 1904 he was made a fellow of the British Academy. Among his publications are "A History of the Huguenots of the Dispersion at the Recall of the Edict of Nantes" (1880), "Sebastian Bach" (1882), "Illustrations of the History of Mediæval Thought" (1884), and "Wycliffe and Movements for Reform" (1889). He has edited a "Historical Atlas of Modern Europe" (1897–1902), and was one of the editors of "The Political History of England" (1906–07).

Pope (pōp), Franklin Leonard. Born at Great Barrington, Mass., Dec. 2, 1840: died there, Oct. 13, 1895. An American electrician. He became assistant engineer of the American Telegraph Company in 1862, and of the Russo-American Telegraph Company in 1864, and while in the latter service made the first exploration of the country between British Columbia and Alaska in surveying a route for an overland telegraph. He was one of the inventors of the "ticker" used in stock-exchanges, and was the inventor of the rail circuit for automatically controlling electric block-signals on railroads. In 1884 he became editor of the "Electrical Engineer."

Poplar Bluff (pop'lär bluf). The county-seat of Butler County, Missouri, on the Black River. It is in a lumbering and stock-raising region, and is a shipping-point for lumber. Population, 6,916, (1910).

Popper (pop'per), David. Born at Prague, Dec. 9, 1843. A Bohemian violoncellist. He studied under Goltermann at the Prague Conservatory, and played in concert throughout Europe from his sixteenth year until 1868, when he became first cellist at the Court Opera, Vienna, remaining there until 1873. In 1872 he married Sophie Menter. He became professor at the Budapest Conservatory in 1896. His compositions include the "Saraband and Gavotte" and other popular pieces for his instrument, and he has also published a "Violoncello School" in four volumes.

Portalá. See ★Portolá.

Port Arthur (pōrt är'thėr). A city in Jefferson County, Texas, on Sabine Lake, near the Gulf of Mexico. It is an important shipping-point, and has a wireless telegraph station. Population, 7,663, (1910).

Porter*, Horace. He was a delegate from the United States to the Peace Conference at The Hague in 1907.

Porter (pōr'tėr), William Sydney. Born at Greensboro, North Carolina, in 1867: died at New York, June 5, 1910. An American journalist and short-story writer. His work was published under the pseudonym "O. Henry." He wrote "Cabbages and Kings" (1905), "The Four Million" (1906), "The Trimmed Lamp" (1907), "The Heart of the West" (1907), "The Voice of the City" (1908), "Roads of Destiny" (1909), etc.

Port Gabo. See ★Gabo, Port.

Port Gubat. See ★Gubat, Port.

Portland (pōrt'land). The county-seat of Jay County, Indiana, on the Salamanie River, 46 miles southeast of Fort Wayne. It is in a farming region, and has flour-mills, lumber-mills, manufactories of woodenware, etc. Population, 5,130, (1910).

Portland Club. A London club founded in 1816 under the name of the Stratford Club, and reorganized in 1825 under its present name. It has 300 members. Its house is at 9 St. James's Square, S. W.

Port Libás. See ★Libás, Port.

Portolá (pōr-tō-lä'), Don Gaspar de. A Spanish captain serving in Mexico and California: sometimes called "first governor" of the latter. By government order he transferred the Baja California missions, 1767–68, from the expelled Jesuits to the Franciscans, and went with Father Junipero Serra, Franciscan president, from Loreto overland to San Diego when the latter place was founded in 1769. Thence he led a party to Monterey, but arrived at the bay of San Francisco by mistake. He returned to San Diego by Monterey, and in 1770 reached Monterey again. San Carlos Mission being then organized, he departed for Mexico by ship in July of that year, having been in Alta California little more than a twelvemonth assisting Junipero. Since no government existed and the settlements were barely started, the title "governor" is hardly appropriate. Also Portalá.

Porto Rico*. A constitution was granted to it by Congress in 1900. The government consists of a governor and executive council (6 heads of departments and 5 natives) appointed for 4 years by the President of the United States, and a house of delegates of 35 members elected for 2 years. The Council and the House of Delegates form the Assembly.

Port Royalist. See ★Puerto Princesa, 1.

Portrush (pōrt-rush'). A seaport in County Antrim, on the northern coast of Ireland, 7 miles southwest of the Giant's Causeway, with which it is connected by an electric railway. It is a seaside resort, and a shipping-point for salmon. Population, 1,941.

Portsmouth, Treaty of. A treaty of peace between Japan and Russia, signed at Portsmouth, New Hampshire, September 5, 1905. The czar and the mikado signed duplicate copies October 14, 1905. The conference was held in the United States in response to an invitation issued by President Roosevelt. Russia sent as peace commissioners Count Witte and Baron Rosen; Japan sent Barons Komura and Kogoro Takahira. The treaty contains 15 articles and 2 additional articles in conformity with provisions of articles III. and IX. Article I. established peace between Japan and Russia; II. established Japanese supremacy in Korea; III. (with addition I.) engaged Japan and Russia to have evacuated Manchuria (except the Liao-tung peninsula) 18 months after the signing of the treaty and to restore to the administration of China all portions under occupation; IV. engaged Japan and Russia not to obstruct any general measures, common to all countries, which China might take for the development of the commerce and industry of Manchuria; V. transferred from Russia to Japan, with the consent of China, the lease of Port Arthur, Ta-lien, and adjacent territory; VI. transferred, with the consent of the Chinese government, from Russia to Japan the railway and its branches between Chang-chun (Kwang-cheng-tsze) and Port Arthur; VII. engaged both powers to exploit their railways in Manchuria for commercial and industrial purposes only; VIII. provided for the regulation of the connecting railway services of Japan and Russia in Manchuria; IX. ceded from Russia to Japan the island of Saghalin and adjacent islands south of lat. 50° N. on condition that neither power shall erect fortifications on the island; X. established the status of Russian subjects in the ceded territory; XI. arranged for Japanese fishing rights along the coasts of the Russian possessions in the Japan, Okhotsk, and Bering seas; XII. provided for temporary commercial and navigation relations between the two powers; XIII. arranged for the restoration of prisoners of war and for expenses connected with them; XIV. arranged for the ratification of the treaty; and XV. provided that the treaty should be signed in duplicate in French and in English, and that in cases of discrepancy of interpretation the French text should prevail.

Port Subic. See ★Subic, Port.

Portugal*. Continental Portugal is divided into 6 provinces and 17 districts; the Azores have 3 districts and Madeira has one. Carlos I. and his elder son, Luiz Philip, were assassinated Feb. 1, 1908, and the younger son succeeded to the throne as Manoel II. Manoel II. was deposed and a republic proclaimed, October, 1910.

Portuguese Guinea. A dependency of Portugal, on the coast of Senegambia, in the western part of Africa. It is bounded on the north by Sénégal, on the east and south by French Guinea, and on the west by the Atlantic Ocean, the boundaries being decided by a convention with France in May, 1886. It includes also the adjacent Bissagos Islands. Its most important products are rice, wax, ivory, rubber, and hides. Bulama is the capital, and Bissao the chief port. Area, 13,940 square miles. Population, 820,000.

Portuguese Hymn. See ★Adeste fideles.

Portuguese West Africa. See Angola, 4.

Post (pōst), George Browne. Born at New York, Dec. 15, 1837. An American architect. He was graduated at the Scientific School of New York University in 1858; studied architecture with Richard M. Hunt 1858–59; and in 1860 engaged in the practice of architecture. During the Civil War he served in the field 1861–62, becoming colonel of the 22d New York Regiment, and afterward resumed architectural practice at New York. Among the buildings designed by him are the New York Produce, Cotton, and Stock exchanges, the College of the City of New York, the New York World Building, the Wisconsin State Capitol, and the Montreal Stock Exchange. He was appointed a collaborator of the United States Forest Service and a member of the National Advisory Board of Fuels and Structural Materials in 1906, and a member of the Bureau of Fine Arts in 1909. He was president of the New York Architectural League 1893–98, and of the American Institute of Architects 1896–99, and became an associate of the National Academy of Design in 1907, and an academician in 1908.

Potocka (pō-tots'kä), Sophie. Born at Constantinople about 1766: died at Berlin in 1822. The wife of the Polish count Stanislas Felix Potocki. She was the child of Greek (Fanariot) parents. Her mother sold her at the age of twelve for 1,500 piasters ($375) to the French ambassador at Constantinople, who adopted her as his ward. She married Count de Witt, the commandant of Kemenets, Podolia, who some three years later divorced her at the request of Potocki and on the receipt of two million gulden. She then (1790) married Potocki and became noted throughout Russia and Germany for her beauty and cleverness.

Pototan (pō-tō'tän). 1. A municipality in the eastern part of Iloilo province, Panay, Philippine Islands. Civilized population, 20,964. —2. A town of Iloilo province, situated on the Jalaur River. Population, 5,062.

Potter*, Henry Codman. His later works include "Sermons of the City" (1881), "Waymarks" (1892), "The Scholar and the State" (1897), "The East of To-day and To-morrow" (1902), "The Citizen in his Relation to the Industrial Situation" (1902), "Law and Loyalty" (1903), "Modern Man and his Fellow Man" (1903), "The Drink Problem in Modern Life" (1905), "Reminiscences of Bishops and Archbishops" (1906), "Man, Men, and their Master" (1907).

Poughkeepsie Regatta. An annual rowing contest which takes place usually the last week in June, on the Hudson River, at Poughkeepsie, New York. It is managed by the Intercollegiate Association, organized in 1895 by the universities of Cornell, Columbia, and Pennsylvania for the purpose of informal rowing matches. Three stewards represent the above-named universities, and yearly invite competitors representing other universities and colleges to enter. There are three events, viz., varsity eights, varsity fours, and freshmen eights: the first at four miles and the others at two miles each.

Pound (pound), Roscoe. Born at Lincoln, Neb., Oct. 27, 1870. An American botanist and jurist, professor of law in Harvard University from 1910. He was director of the Botanical Survey of Nebraska 1892–1901; judge of the Supreme Court of Nebraska 1901–03; dean of the college of law in the University of Nebraska 1903–07; and professor of law in Northwestern University 1907–09, and in the University of Chicago 1909–10. He has published "Phytogeography of Nebraska" (1898; with F. E. Clements), etc.

Powell*, John Wesley. His later works include "Studies in Sociology" (1887), "Canyons of the Colorado" (1895), "Truth and Error" (1898), and many special scientific reports.

Powell (pou'el), Maud. Born at Peru, Ill., Aug. 22, 1868. An American violinist. She studied in Chicago, Leipsic, and Paris, and also, after appearing in London and the provinces, with Joachim in Berlin. She made her début at a New York Philharmonic concert in 1885, and has since made extensive tours in Europe and America. She has introduced many new violin works to the American public, including the concertos by Tschaikovsky and Sibelius.

Poynting (poin'ting), John Henry. Born at Monton, near Manchester, England, Sept. 9, 1852. An English physicist, professor of physics in the University of Birmingham (formerly Mason University College) from 1880, and dean of the faculty of science. He has published "A Text-book of Physics" (with J. J. Thomson), etc.

Prairie City. A popular name of Chicago, as the chief city of the Prairie State.

Premier Diamond. A white diamond, weighing in the rough 3,024¾ carats, found by the superintendent of the Premier Mine, Johannesburg, January, 1905.

Presque Isle (presk īl). A town in Aroostook County, Maine, in the northeastern part of the State. It has lumber-mills, starch-factories, etc. Population, 5,179, (1910).

Prévost (prā-vō'), Eugène Marcel. Born at Paris, May 1, 1862. A French novelist. He was educated by the Jesuits; studied at the École Polytechnique in Paris; and followed the profession of civil engineer until 1890. In 1909 he was chosen a member of the French Academy, succeeding Victorien Sardou. Among his works are "Le scorpion" (1887), "Mademoiselle Jauffre" (1889), "Lettres des femmes" (1892), "Les demi-vierges" (1894), "Les vierges fortes" (1900), "L'Heureux ménage" (1901), "Lettres à Françoise" (1902), "Le pas révélé" (1903), "La plus faible" (1904), "La princesse d'Erminge" (1904), "L'Accordeur aveugle" (1905), "Monsieur et Madame Moloch" (1906), "Femmes" (1907), "Lettres à Françoise mariée" (1908), etc.

Pribylof, or Pribilof (prib'i-lof), Gerassim. A Russian navigator who in 1786 discovered the group of islands in Bering Sea which bears his name.

Price (prīs), Bruce. Born at Cumberland, Md., Dec. 12, 1845: died at Paris, May 29, 1903. An American architect. Among his more important works are Georgian Court at Lakewood, New Jersey; several dormitories of Yale University; the Château Frontenac hotel in Quebec; and the Royal Victoria College in Montreal. He laid out Tuxedo Park, New York, 1885–86, and erected many of the residences within it.

Primrose*, Archibald Philip. He has written "William Pitt" (1891), "Appreciations and Addresses" (1899), "Sir Robert Peel" (1899), "Napoleon: the Last Phase" (1900), "Oliver Cromwell" (1900), "Lord Randolph Churchill" (1906), "Lord Chatham" (1910), etc. He was created Earl of Midlothian in 1911.

Princeton (prins'ton). The county-seat of Gibson County, Indiana, situated in a region containing deposits of coal, oil, and natural gas. It is a market for cattle and grain, and has flour-mills, railroad shops, etc. Population, 6,448, (1910).

Pringle Pattison. See ★Seth, Andrew.

Prinsep (prin'sep), Valentine Cameron. Born at Calcutta, Feb. 14, 1838: died at London, Nov. 11, 1904. An English painter. He abandoned the Indian civil service for art at the suggestion of G. F. Watts, and was elected associate of the Royal Academy in 1879 and academician in 1894. In 1877 he was commissioned to paint "The Declaration of Victoria as Empress of India" in commemoration of the Durbar at Delhi. He was also professor of painting at the Royal Academy. His work is distinctly English and academic in style. He published several plays.

Pritchett (prich'et), Henry Smith. Born at Fayette, Mo., April 16, 1857. An American astronomer and geodesist, superintendent of the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey 1897–1900. He was assistant astronomer in the United States Naval Observatory 1878–80; was astronomer of the Morrison Observatory, Glasgow, Missouri, 1880–81; was professor of astronomy in Washington University, St. Louis, 1881–97; was president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Boston, 1900–06; and has been president of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching from 1906.

Prix de Rome. See Grand Prix de Rome.

Prjevalsky (przhā-väl'ski), Nikolai Mikhailovitch. Born in the government of Smolensk, March 31, 1839: died at Karakol, Central Asia, Nov. 1, 1888. A distinguished Russian explorer. He entered the military academy at St. Petersburg in 1860, taught history and geography in the military school at Warsaw 1864–66; and in 1867 was transferred to Irkutsk. From here he explored the region of the Usuri River 1867–69, collecting botanical and ethnological information concerning southeastern Siberia and northern Manchuria. He traveled in Mongolia and China 1870–73, in East Turkestan and Tibet 1876–77 and 1879–80, and in Mongolia and Tibet 1883–85. Besides geographical knowledge of regions hitherto unexplored, he secured large and valuable collections of plants and animals. In September, 1888, he set out on another expedition to Tibet, but died beside the lake Issyk-kul, at a town, Karakol, whose name was afterward (1889) changed by the Russian government to Prjevalsk (Prshevalsk) in honor of the explorer. He published the results of his travels in several works in the Russian language, two of which have appeared in English under the titles "Mongolia, the Tangut Country, and the Solitudes of Northern Tibet" (1876) and "From Kulja across the Tian-Shan to Lob-nor" (1879).

Proctor (prok'tor), Alexander Phimister. Born at Bosanquit, Ontario, Canada, Sept. 27, 1862. An American animal-sculptor and landscape-painter. He executed the quadriga for the United States pavilion in the Paris Exposition, 1900, the lions for the McKinley monument in Buffalo, the tigers for the entrance to Nassau Hall, Princeton University, etc. His work is to be found in the public parks of Brooklyn, Denver, Pittsburgh, etc., and in the St. Louis Art Gallery, the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York, the buildings of the New York Zoological Society, the Toronto Museum, etc. He was elected a member of the National Academy in 1904.

Proctor (prok'tor), Edna Dean. Born at Henniker, N. H., Oct. 10, 1838. An American author and poet. During the Civil War she did much to arouse public sentiment in the North by her patriotic prose and verse. Among her works are "Poems" (1867), "A Russian Journey" (1872), "The Song of the Ancient People" (1893), "A Mountain Maid, and Other Poems of New Hampshire" (1900), "Songs of America" (1906), etc.

Proctor (prok'tor), Redfield. Born at Proctorsville, Vt., June 1, 1831: died at Washington, D. C., March 4, 1908. An American statesman. He was graduated at Dartmouth College in 1851 and at the Albany Law School in 1859; was appointed a lieutenant in the Union army in 1861, and rose to the rank of colonel; was several times a member of the Vermont legislature; was lieutenant-governor of Vermont 1876–78 and governor 1878–80; was secretary of war 1889–1891; and was United States senator (Republican) from Vermont from 1891. He visited Cuba in 1898 and his speech on the condition of affairs in the island strongly influenced the policy of the United States government.

Produce Exchange, New York. An institution chartered in 1862 under the name of the New York Commercial Association, but from 1868 known as the New York Produce Exchange. Its object is to facilitate and regulate trade among its members, nominally dealers in such commodities as grain and flour, seeds, hops, oil, butter and cheese, meat and meat products, etc., although steamship owners and agents are now admitted to membership and privileged to transact their business in conjunction with the ordinary business of the exchange. It is governed by a board of managers, consisting of a president, vice-president, treasurer, and 12 other members, with the aid of various committees, and has special rules for the several departments of trade. Its building, on Whitehall street, opposite Bowling Green, at the southern end of the city, has been occupied since 1884. It is of brick and terra-cotta, and has a clock-tower 225 feet in height. The exchange "floor," to which only members have access, measures 144 by 220 feet, and is said to be the largest single floor for trading purposes in existence.

Prohibition Party. A political party in the United States, founded upon the demand for the prohibition by the Federal Constitution, as well as by the laws of the several States, of the "manufacture, sale, importation, exportation, or transportation of alcoholic liquors for beverage purposes." Organization was begun in 1868 and the first national convention was held in 1872.

Prothero (proTH'e-rō), George Walter. Born in Wiltshire, England, Oct. 14, 1848. An English historian, writer, and editor. He was university lecturer in history and tutor at King's College, Cambridge, 1876–94; was professor of history at the University of Edinburgh 1894–99; and was Rede lecturer at Cambridge in 1903. In 1899 he succeeded his brother, Rowland Edmund Prothero, as editor of the "Quarterly Review," retiring in 1907. He was made a fellow of the British Academy in 1903. Among his publications are "Life and Times of Simon de Montfort" (1877), "Memoir of Henry Bradshaw" (1889), and "British History Reader" (1898).

Prothero (proTH'e-rō), Rowland Edmund. Born at Clifton on Teme, Worcestershire, England, Sept. 6, 1852. An English writer. He was editor of the "Quarterly Review" 1894–99. Among his works are "Life and Correspondence of Dean Stanley" (1893; with G. G. Bradley), "Letters and Journals of Lord Byron" (1898–1901), "The Psalms in Human Life" (1903), "Letters of Richard Ford" (1905), "The Pleasant Land of France" (1908), etc.

Prout (prout), Ebenezer. Born at Oundle, Northamptonshire, March 1, 1835: died Dec. 5, 1909. An English musician. He was organist at Union Chapel, Islington, 1861–73, and professor of pianoforte and of harmony and composition at several institutions, Eugène d'Albert being among his pupils at the Royal Academy of Music. In 1894 he was elected professor of music in the University of Dublin. His compositions include orchestral, piano, church, and chamber music, but his theoretical works are the most widely known. He was also highly regarded as a critic and writer on musical subjects.

Prudden (prō'den), Theophil Mitchell. Born at Middlebury, Conn., July 7, 1849. An American pathologist and bacteriologist, professor of pathology in the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Columbia University from 1891. He has published "A Manual of Normal Histology" (1881), "A Handbook of Pathology" (seventh edition, 1904), "Story of Bacteria" (1889), "Dust and its Dangers" (1890), and results of researches (in technical journals) and popular articles on science and travel.

Prudhomme*, René François Armand Sully-. He was elected a member of the French Academy in 1881, and in 1901 received the Nobel prize for literature. His later works include "L'Expression dans les beaux arts" (1884), "Le bonheur" (1888), "Réflexions sur l'art des vers" (1892), "Que sais-je? Examen de conscience. Sur l'origine de la vie terrestre" (1895), and "Psychologie du libre arbitre" (1907).

Pryor (prī'or), Roger Atkinson. Born near Petersburg, Va., July 19, 1828. An American jurist. He was graduated from Hampden-Sidney College in 1845; was special minister to Greece under President Pierce in 1855; sat in Congress 1857–59; and was again elected in 1860, but did not take his seat on account of the secession of Virginia. He entered the Confederate service as colonel in 1861 and was brevetted brigadier-general in 1863, but resigned his commission and entered the service as a private soldier. He was a member of the Confederate congress in 1862. In 1865 he began the practice of law in the city of New York, and in 1890 was appointed judge of the Court of Common Pleas, to which office he was elected in 1891 for fourteen years. By the revised constitution of 1894 the Court of Common Pleas was abolished, and for the remainder of his term after Jan. 1, 1896, he was a justice of the Supreme Court of New York.

Puccini (pōt-chē'nē), Giacomo. Born at Lucca, June 22, 1858. An Italian operatic composer, a pupil of Ponchielli at the Milan Conservatory. His most important operas are "Manon Lescaut" (1893), "La Bohème" (1896), "Tosca" (1900), and "Madame Butterfly" (1904; revised 1906). "La Fanciulla del West" ("The Girl of the Golden West") was produced in 1910. He is considered one of the most talented and original of the younger school of Italian composers.

Puerto Galera (pō-ãr'tō gä-lā'rä). 1. A small bay on the northern coast of Mindoro Island, Philippines: safe for large craft in all weather.—2. A town, the capital of Mindoro province, situated on the bay of the same name.

Puerto Princesa (pō-ãr'tō prēn-thā'sä). 1. A bay and harbor on the eastern coast of Paragua (Palawan) Island: safe for large vessels in all weather. Also called Port Royalist.—2. A town, the capital of Paragua province, situated on the eastern coast of Paragua (Palawan) Island, Philippines, at the entrance of Puerto Princesa Bay, approximately in lat. 9° 41′ 30″ N., long. 118° 45′ E. It was the capital of Paragua Sur before the union of that district with Paragua province. Civilized population of municipality, 1,208.

Pugno (pün-yō'), Stéphane Raoul. Born at Paris, June 23, 1852. A French pianist and composer. He studied at the Paris Conservatory, where he won prizes for piano (1866), harmony and solfeggio (1867), and organ (1869). He was organist at the Church of Saint Eugène 1872–92, and professor of harmony and piano in the Paris Conservatory 1892–1901. His compositions include ballets, many light operas, songs, and piano pieces, but these are little known outside of Paris. As a pianist, however, he has a wide reputation. He has appeared in America.

Pulitzer (pū'lit-zėr), Joseph. Born at Budapest, Hungary, April 10, 1847. An American journalist, proprietor of the New York "World" from 1883. He came to the United States in 1864; served in the Union army during the last year of the Civil War; and after its close devoted himself to journalism in St. Louis. In 1903 he endowed a school of journalism in Columbia University.

Pumpelly (pum-pel'i), Raphael. Born at Owego, N. Y., Sept. 8, 1837. An American geologist. He was geologist to the Japanese government 1860–63; professor of mining geology in Harvard University 1866–75; chief of division of the United States Geological Survey 1879–81 and 1884–90; and conductor of explorations in Central Asia for the Carnegie Institution 1903–04. He was also State geologist of Michigan 1870–71, and director of the Geological Survey of Missouri 1871–73.

Pupin (pū'pin), Michael Idvorsky. Born at Idvor, Hungary, Oct. 4, 1858. An American physicist, professor of electromechanics in Columbia University from 1901: especially known for his work in electricity. He was graduated at Columbia in 1883; studied in Berlin; and became instructor at Columbia in 1889. He has published numerous technical papers. By an invention involving the use of non-uniform conductors he has greatly increased the distance over which telephonic and telegraphic messages can be transmitted.

Putnam (put'nam), Mrs. (Emily James Smith). Born at Canandaigua, N. Y., April 15, 1865. An American educator and author. She was graduated at Bryn Mawr College in 1889, and studied at Girton College, England, 1889–90, and at Chicago University (fellow in Greek) 1893–94. She taught Greek at Packer Collegiate Institute, Brooklyn, 1891–93, and was dean of Barnard College, New York, 1894–1900. She married George Haven Putnam, the publisher, in 1899. She has published "Selections from Lucian" (1891) and "The Lady" (1911).

Putnam (put'nam), Frederic Ward. Born at Salem, Mass., April 16, 1839. An American anthropologist, professor of American archæology and ethnology in Harvard University 1886–1909, and professor of anthropology in the University of California 1903–1909. He has been curator of the Peabody Museum (Harvard) from 1875, and was curator of the department of anthropology in the American Museum of Natural History (New York) 1894–1903. He has published numerous papers on anthropology in the reports of the Peabody Museum and in various scientific journals.

Putnam (put'nam), George Haven. Born at London, England, April 2, 1844. An American publisher and writer. He studied in the universities of Paris and Göttingen 1860–62; served in the United States army, from private to major, 1862–65; and was a prisoner in Libby prison and at Danville, Virginia, during the winter of 1864–65. He was a leader in the reorganization of the American Copyright League, and was largely instrumental in securing the passage of the international copyright bill of March, 1891. In 1891 he received the cross of the Legion of Honor. He is the author of "Authors and Publishers" (1883), "Question of Copyright" (1891–1896), "Authors and Their Public in Ancient Times" (1893), "The Artificial Mother" (1894), "Books and their Makers During the Middle Ages" (1896), "The Censorship of the Church and its Influence on the Production and Distribution of Literature" (1906), "Abraham Lincoln" (1909), etc.

Putnam (put'nam), Herbert. Born at New York, Sept. 20, 1861. An American librarian. He was librarian of the Minneapolis Athenæum 1884–89; of the Minneapolis Public Library 1889–91, and of the Boston Public Library 1895–99. He was admitted to the bar in 1885 and practised law in Boston 1892–95. Since 1899 he has been librarian of Congress.

Putnam (put'nam), Rufus. Born at Sutton, Mass., April 9, 1738: died at Marietta, Ohio, May 1, 1824. A noted American soldier and military engineer. He served as a private through the campaign of 1757–60, and in 1775 entered the Continental army as a lieutenant-colonel. He was appointed chief engineer of the army, with the rank of colonel, in 1776; had charge of the defense of New York by fortifications, and with his cousin Israel Putnam superintended the construction of the fortifications at West Point; was placed in command of the 5th Massachusetts regiment, serving with distinction in the campaign against Burgoyne; and in 1783 was appointed brigadier-general. He was for several terms a member of the Massachusetts legislature; was aide to General Benjamin Lincoln during Shays's Rebellion in 1787; formed the Ohio Land Company and in 1788 founded the town of Marietta, Ohio, the first permanent settlement in the eastern part of the Northwest Territory; became judge of the supreme court of that territory in 1789; was appointed a brigadier-general under General Wayne to act against the Indians, and as United States commissioner concluded an important treaty with eight tribes at Port Vincent (now Vincennes) in 1792; was surveyor-general of the United States 1793–1803; and in 1803 was a member of the Ohio constitutional convention. To him was due the credit of the ordinance of 1787 which excluded slavery from the settlement of Ohio, and he has been called "the founder and father of Ohio."

Pu-yi (pö'yē'): reign title Hsüan-t'ung. Born Feb. 11, 1906. Emperor of China. He succeeded to the throne upon the death of his uncle, Nov. 14, 1908. His father, Prince Ch'un, is regent of the empire.

Pyeshkof (pyesh'kof), Aleksyei Maksimovitch: pseudonym Maxim Gorky. Born at Nijni-Novgorod, March 14, 1868. A Russian writer. He led a vagabond life for many years, working and tramping with the poorest classes in Russia, and his writings record the tragedy of poverty and crime as he found it. Among the best known of his works are "Makar Chudra" (1890), "Emilian Pibgai," "Chelkash," "Oshybka" (1895), "Tyenovya Kartinki" (1895), "Toska," "Konovalov" (1896), "Malva" (1896), "Foma Gordyeev" (1901), "Mujiki" (1901), three volumes of short stories (1898–99), "Miestchanye" (1902), "Comrades" (1907), "The Spy" (1908), and "In the Depths," a play.

Pyle (pīl), Howard. Born at Wilmington, Del., March 5, 1853. An American painter, illustrator, and writer. He was educated in private schools, and studied at the Art Students' League in New York city. The greater part of his work has been done for magazines, the subjects usually being chosen from the Colonial and Revolutionary periods, which he treats with sympathy and knowledge. He has written and illustrated many stories. He has been singularly successful as an instructor in the art of illustration.

The pseudonym of Sir Arthur Thomas Quiller-Couch.

Queechy (kwē'chi). A story by Susan Warner, published in 1852.

Queens (kwēnz). A borough of the city of New York (see New York, Greater). It is composed of part of Queens County, L. I., and includes Long Island City, the towns of Flushing, Jamaica, and Newtown, and part of Hempstead. Pop., 284,041, (1910).

Queen's Club. A London athletic club at West Kensington, founded in 1886. It has 1,200 members.

Queensland*. It sends 6 senators and 9 representatives to the federal parliament.

Queiroz*, José Maria Eça de. His later works include "O primo Basilio" (1877), "A reliquia" (1886), "Os Maias" (1889), "A correspondencia de Fradique Mendes" (1891), "A illustre casa Ramires" (1900), "Cidades e serras" (1903), etc.

Quiller-Couch (kwil'ėr-köch), Sir Arthur Thomas: pseudonym Q. Born in Cornwall, Nov. 21, 1863. An English author. He was lecturer in classics at Trinity College, Oxford, 1886–87; was on the editorial staff of the "Speaker" from its start until 1899; and since 1891 has lived in Cornwall. Among his publications are "The Splendid Spur" (1889), "The Blue Pavilions" (1891), "The Warwickshire Avon" (1892), "The Delectable Duchy" (1893), "Wandering Heath" (1895), "Poems and Ballads" (1896), "Fairy Tales from Far and Near" (1896), "Adventures in Criticism" (1896), "The Ship of Stars" (1899), "Old Fires and Profitable Ghosts" (1900), "Hetty Wesley" (1903), "Shining Ferry" (1905), "George Eliot" (1906), "The Mayor of Troy" (1906), "Major Vigoureux" (1907), "Lady Good-for-Nothing" (1910), "Brother Copas" (1911), etc. In 1897 he was selected to finish Robert Louis Stevenson's uncompleted novel "St. Ives." He compiled and edited the "Oxford Book of English Verse" and the "Oxford Book of Ballads." He was knighted in 1910.

Quo Vadis (kwō vā'dis). [L., 'whither goest thou?'] A story of life at Rome in the time of Nero, by Henryk Sienkiewicz. The licentiousness of paganism and the spiritual beauty of Christianity are drawn in strong contrast. An English translation was published in 1896.

Rachmaninof (räk-män'ē-nof), Sergei Vassilievitch. Born in the government of Novgorod, April 2, 1873. A Russian pianist and composer. He studied at the St. Petersburg and Moscow conservatories, winning the gold medal for composition at Moscow in 1891. He made a concert tour in Russia in 1892, and appeared as conductor and pianist in London in 1899 and in America 1909–10. He has written concertos and pianoforte pieces, the best known being the Prelude in C sharp minor; symphonies and other orchestral compositions, including "The Cliff" and "The Isle of Death" (after Böcklin's picture); and several operas. A scene from "The Miser Knight" was performed in Boston, March 11, 1910.

Radisson (rä-dē-soṅ'), Sieur Pierre Esprit: known as Pierre d'Esprit. Born at Saint-Malo, France: died, probably in England, after 1687. An early Canadian explorer. He was the brother-in-law of Medard Chouart (Sieur des Groseilliers), with whom he discovered the upper Mississippi and explored the Hudson Bay region. He wrote an account of his travels and experiences among the North American Indians, which was published from the manuscript by the Prince Society in 1885.

Raffaelli (rä-fä-el'li), Jean François. Born at Paris, April 20, 1850. A French painter, of Italian parentage. He began as a singer at a lyric theater; studied at the atelier Gérôme in leisure hours; and made his début at the Salon in 1870. He has been especially attracted by the effects found in the streets and suburbs of Paris. He has also produced many lithographs and etchings.

Raffalovitch (räf-fä-lō'vich), Arthur. Born at Odessa, June 23, 1853. A Russian economist and author. He has held various high government offices in connection with commerce and finance, and is commercial attaché to the Russian embassy at Paris. He is the author of "Les finances de la Russie" (1883), "Le monopole de l'alcool en Allemagne" (1886), "L'État et les renseignements commerciaux" (1898), "Les trusts, cartels, syndicats" (1903), "Les primes et subventions à la marine marchande" (1903), etc.

Raffet (rä-fā'), Denis Auguste Marie. Born at Paris, March 2, 1804: died at Genoa, Italy, Feb. 16, 1860. A French painter and lithographer. His first collection of lithographs appeared in 1827. He illustrated many of the popular books of the period. His reputation rests mainly upon his lithographs of military scenes and battle-pieces. He was also an excellent caricaturist.

Ragay (rä-gī'), Gulf of. A gulf which indents the southern coast of Luzón, Philippine Islands, and partly separates Ambos Camarines from Tayabas province.

Ragozin (rä-gō'zēn), Zénaïde Alexéievna. Born in Russia, 1835. A Russian-American author, historian, and Orientalist. She came to the United States in 1874 and became an American citizen. Among her works are "Chaldea," "Assyria," "Vedic India," "History of the World," "Siegfried," "Beowulf," "Frithjof," "Rowland," "Salammbô," etc.

Raimond, C. E. A pseudonym of Elizabeth Robins.

Raine, Allen. The pseudonym of Mrs. Beynon Puddicombe (died 1907), a writer of Welsh stories.

Raleigh (rā'li), Sir Walter. A contemporary English essayist and biographer. He was educated at University College, London, and at King's College, Cambridge; and has been professor of modern literature at University College, Liverpool; of the English language and literature at Glasgow University; and since 1904 of English literature at Oxford. He was knighted in 1911. He has published "The English Novel" (1894), "Robert Louis Stevenson" (1895), "Style" (1897), "Milton" (1900), "Wordsworth" (1903), "English Voyages of the Sixteenth Century" (1905), "Shakespeare" (1907), "Six Essays on Johnson" (1910), etc.

Raleigh Club. A London club founded in 1858 for social purposes. It has a membership of 800. Its house is at 16 Regent street, S. W.

Ralph (ralf), Julian. Born at New York, May 27, 1853: died there, Jan. 20, 1903. An American journalist and author. He was with the Turkish army as correspondent in the war of 1897, and in 1899 went to South Africa as war correspondent. He wrote "On Canada's Frontier" (1892), "Chicago and the World's Fair" (1892), "Our Great West" (1893), "People we Pass" (1895), "Towards Pretoria" (1900), "An American with Lord Roberts" (1901), "War's Brighter Side" (1901), "The Millionairess" (1902), etc.

Rambaud (räm-bō'), Alfred Nicolas. Born at Besançon, France, July 2, 1842: died at Paris, Nov. 10, 1905. A French historian and author. He was minister of public instruction in the Jules Ferry cabinet 1879–80, and in the Méline cabinet 1896–98. In 1883 he was appointed professor of contemporary history in the University of Paris. He was elected a member of the Academy of Moral and Political Sciences in 1897, succeeding the Duc d'Aumale. Among his works are "La domination française en Allemagne 1792–1804" (1873), "Histoire de la Russie" (1878), "Histoire de la révolution française 1789–1799" (1883), "Histoire de la civilisation française" (1885–87), "La France coloniale" (1886), "Histoire de la civilisation contemporaine en France" (1888), "L'Anneau de César" (1893), "Russes et Prussiens" (1895), "Jules Ferry 1832–1893" (1903), etc. With Lavisse he edited the "Histoire générale du IV. siècle jusqu'à nos jours" (1893–1901).

Ramée, Louise de la. See De la Ramée.

Ramón y Cajal (rä-mōn' ē kä-häl'), Santiago. Born at Petilla, Navarra, May 1, 1852. A Spanish physician, professor of histology in the University of Madrid from 1892. He studied at the University of Saragossa, and became professor of histology at Barcelona in 1886. In 1906 he received the Nobel prize for medicine.

Rampolla (räm-pōl'lä), Mariano, Marchese del Tindaro. Born at Polizzi, Sicily, Aug. 17, 1843. An Italian prelate, archpriest of the Vatican Basilica and cardinal. He entered the service of the Pope in 1870 and was appointed councilor of the papal embassy at Madrid in 1875, secretary of the Propaganda (Oriental rite) in 1877, secretary of ecclesiastical affairs in 1880, nuncio at Madrid in 1882, and secretary of state in 1887. He retired in 1903.

Ramsay (ram'zi), Sir William. Born at Glasgow, Scotland, Oct. 2, 1852. A British chemist, professor of chemistry in University College, London, from 1887. He is especially noted for the discovery (with Lord Rayleigh) of argon, and of helium, neon, krypton, and xenon (atmospheric gases). Among his publications are text-books of chemistry and numerous scientific papers. He wrote also "Essays Biographical and Chemical" (1909).

Ranelagh Club. A London athletic club, at Barnes, S. W., established in 1894 for polo, golf, and other sports.

Ranger (rān′jėr), Henry Ward. Born in western New York, January, 1858. An American landscape-painter. He received his technical training during several years of study in France, England, and Holland. His work is marked by richness of effect and depth of tone. In 1901 he was elected associate of the National Academy of Design in New York, and member in 1906.

Ranke (rän′ke), Johannes. Born at Thurnau, Bavaria, Aug. 23, 1836. A German physiologist and anthropologist, nephew of Leopold von Ranke. He studied at Munich, Berlin, and Paris. In 1863 he became lecturer in physiology in the University of Munich, and in 1886 professor of anthropology in the same institution. Among his published works are "Tetanus" (1865), "Grundzüge der Physiologie" (1868), "Die Ernährung des Menschen" (1876), "Das Blut" (1878), "Der Mensch" (1886), etc.

Rankin (rang′kin). A borough in Allegheny County, Pennsylvania. It has important steel manufactures. Population, 6,042, (1910).

Raoult (rä-ōl′), François Marie. Born at Fournès, Nord, France, May 10, 1830: died at Grenoble, April 1, 1901. An eminent French chemist, professor at the University of Grenoble from 1870. He is best known for his work in physical chemistry, and especially for his researches on the freezing-point and the boiling-point of solutions.

Raphael of Pigs, The. A name given to the French painter and etcher Charles Émile Jacque.

Rarey (rār′i), John S. Born in Franklin County, Ohio, 1828: died at Cleveland, Ohio, Oct. 4, 1866. A noted American horse-tamer. He had great success in managing horses after a training system of his own, and gave many exhibitions both in America and in Europe. In 1863 he was employed by the government to inspect the horses of the Army of the Potomac. He was the author of a "Treatise on Horse-taming" (1858).

Rasle (räl), Sébastien. Born at Dôle, France, 1658: died at Norridgewock, Maine, Aug. 12, 1724. A French missionary. After completing his studies at Dijon, he joined the Order of the Jesuits; taught Greek for a time in the college of that society at Nîmes; became attached to the missions of Canada in 1689; and was placed in charge of the station at Norridgewock in 1689. Here he studied the Abenaki language, of which he compiled a valuable dictionary in three volumes (now preserved in the library of Harvard). He had much influence with the Indians, which he exerted to secure their allegiance to the French against the English. Public opinion in New England was aroused against him, and a price was placed upon his head. He was attacked a number of times and escaped, but finally was surprised in 1724 by a party from Fort Richmond and shot. A monument to his memory was raised by the citizens of Norridgewock in 1833.

Rathbun (rath′bun), Richard. Born at Buffalo, N. Y., Jan. 25, 1852. An American zoölogist, assistant secretary of the Smithsonian Institution from 1897, and in charge of the United States National Museum from 1899. He was geologist on the Imperial Geological Commission of Brazil 1875–78, and scientific assistant of the United States Fish Commission 1878–96. He has written various scientific papers on paleontology, marine invertebrates, and fisheries.

Raton (rä-tōn′). The county-seat of Colfax County, New Mexico, in an agricultural and stock-raising region which contains rich deposits of coal. Population, 4,539, (1910).

Rauschenbusch (rou′shen-bûsh), Walter. Born at Rochester, N. Y., Oct. 4, 1861. An American theologian. He was ordained a Baptist minister in 1886, and was engaged in religious work among the Germans in New York 1886–97. In 1897 he became professor of New Testament exegesis in Rochester Theological Seminary, and since 1902 has been professor of church history. He has published "Christianity and the Social Crisis" (1907) and "For God and the People: Prayers of the Social Awakening" (1910).

Ravel (rä-vel′), Maurice. Born at Ciboure, Basses-Pyrénées, March 7, 1875. A French composer. His works include compositions for the pianoforte, songs, a string quartet, an overture, "Rhapsodie espagnole," and an opera, "L'Heure espagnole," produced at the Paris Opéra Comique, May 19, 1911.

Ravenshoe (rā′venz-hō). A romance by Henry Kingsley, published in 1862.

Rawlins (rā′linz). The county-seat of Carbon County, Wyoming. It has railroad repair-shops and limestone quarries, and is in a stock-raising and mining region. Population, 4,256, (1910).

Rawnsley (rânz′li), Hardwicke Drummond. Born at Henley-on-Thames, Sept. 28, 1850. An English clergyman, author, and poet, grandnephew of Sir John Franklin, the arctic explorer. He was educated at Balliol College, Oxford; took orders in 1875; was curate in charge of Clifton College Mission; was vicar of Wray, Windermere, 1878–83; has been vicar of Crosthwaite, Keswick, and rural dean since 1883; and is honorary canon of Carlisle. Among his works are "Valete Tennyson, and Other Poems" (1893), "Literary Associations of the English Lakes" (1894), "Life and Nature at the English Lakes" (1899), "Memories of the Tennysons" (1900), "A Rambler's Note-book at the English Lakes" (1902), "Sermons on the Sayings of Jesus" (1905), "Months at the Lakes" (1906), "A Sonnet Chronicle" (1906), "Round the Lake Country" (1909), etc.

Raymond (rā′mond), Andrew Van Vranken. Born at Vischer Ferry, Saratoga County, N. Y., Aug. 8, 1854. An American educator, president of Union College 1894–1907. He was graduated from Union College in 1875, and from New Brunswick Theological Seminary in 1878, and held pastorates in Paterson and Plainfield, New Jersey, and Albany, New York.

Raymond (rā′mond), Mrs. (Annie Louise Cary). Born at Wayne, Maine, Oct. 22, 1842. A noted American contralto. She made her début at Copenhagen, and in 1868 was engaged in Hamburg at the opera. After that she sang in theaters at Brussels and London, from 1870 in New York, and in 1875 in St. Petersburg. After her marriage with C. M. Raymond of New York she retired.

Raymond (rā′mond), Bradford Paul. Born at Stamford, Conn., April 22, 1846. An American educator and Methodist clergyman, president of Wesleyan University 1889–1908. He has held pastorates in New Bedford, Massachusetts, Providence, Rhode Island, and Nashua, New Hampshire, and was president of Lawrence University, Appleton, Wisconsin, 1883–89.

Raymond (rā′mond), Rossiter Worthington. Born at Cincinnati, Ohio, April 27, 1840. An American mining engineer. He was United States commissioner of mining statistics 1868–76; editor of the New York "American Journal of Mining" (later called the "Engineering and Mining Journal") 1867–93; president of the American Institute of Mining Engineers 1872–1875, and vice-president in 1871, 1876, and 1877; and secretary and editor of its "Transactions" since 1884. Among his works, besides official reports and numerous essays on the United States mining laws, are "A Glossary of Mining and Metallurgical Terms" (1881) and "Life of Peter Cooper" (1901).

Reading (red′ing). A town in Middlesex County, Massachusetts, 12 miles northwest of Boston. Its manufactures include shoes, rubber goods, wire brushes, etc. Population, 5,818, (1910).

Reay (rā), Donald James Mackay, eleventh Baron. Born at The Hague, Dec. 22, 1839. A British statesman and scholar. He was governor of Bombay 1885–90; president of the Royal Asiatic Society; first president of the British Academy (1902); and delegate to the second Peace Conference 1907.

Recklinghausen (rek′ling-hou-zen), Friedrich von. Born at Gütersloh, Westphalia, Dec. 2, 1833: died at Strasburg, Aug. 26, 1910. A distinguished German pathologist. He was educated at Bonn, Würzburg, and Berlin, and in 1858 became assistant to Virchow at Berlin. He became professor of pathological anatomy at Königsberg in 1864, at Würzburg in 1865, and at Strasburg in 1872, retiring in 1906. His investigations, especially with relation to diseases of the circulatory system and the bones and to certain forms of tumor, made important additions to science. He also published various books and articles on pathological subjects.

Red Bank (red bangk). A borough in Monmouth County, New Jersey, on the Shrewsbury River, 25 miles south of New York city. It has carriage-shops, boiler-works, a canning-factory, etc., and is visited as a summer resort. Population, 7,398, (1910).

Redfield (red′fēld), Edward Willis. Born at Bridgeville, Del., in 1868. An American landscape-painter. He studied at the Pennsylvania Academy of the Fine Arts, Philadelphia, and under Bouguereau and Fleury at Paris. In 1906 he became a member of the National Academy of Design. Examples of his work are in many American galleries. "The Canal in Winter" was purchased by the French government in 1900 for the Luxembourg Museum.

Redlands (red′landz). A city in San Bernardino County, California, 7 miles southeast of San Bernardino. Its principal interest is orange-growing, and it is an active shipping-point for oranges, grain, etc. Population, 10,449, (1910).

Redmond (red′mund), John Edward. Born in 1851. An Irish Nationalist politician, leader of the Irish Parliamentary party since 1900. He was educated at Trinity College, Dublin, was called to the bar, Gray's Inn, in 1886, and to the Irish bar in 1887. He has been a member of Parliament since 1881. He visited the United States in the cause of Home Rule 1904–1905, and again in 1910. He has written "Home Rule" (1910), etc.

Redonda (re-don′dă). A small island of the Leeward group, lying between Montserrat and Nevis. It belongs to Great Britain.

Red Pope, The. The cardinal prefect at the head of the Congregation of the Propaganda at Rome.

Reds of the Midi, The. An English translation, by Mrs. Thomas A. Janvier, of the Provençal tale "Li Rouge dóu Miejour," written by Félix Gras in 1896. It was published in 1898, before the appearance of the original or of its author's French translation, "Les Rouges du Midi." The scene is laid in the south of France, and the time is that of the French Revolution.

Red Sunday. January 22, 1905. On this date the workmen of St. Petersburg, disappointed by the czar's manifesto of December 26, 1904, and led by Father Gapon, attempted to hold a mass-meeting before the Winter Palace in order that they might petition the czar for liberty of assembly, speech, self-government, etc. The military refused admission to the square, and fired on the people, causing considerable loss of life.

Reed, Myrtle. See ★McCullough, Mrs.

Reed (rēd), Walter. Born in Gloucester County, Va., Sept. 13, 1851: died in Washington, D. C., Nov. 23, 1902. An American physician, surgeon in the United States army with the rank of major (1893). During the Spanish-American war he was the head of a board appointed to study the causation and spread of typhoid fever in the camps of the volunteer troops in the United States. In June, 1900, he was sent to Cuba at the head of a commission to study yellow fever. As a result of decisive experiments instituted by him it was proved that the germs of the disease are transmitted by a mosquito, Stegomyia fasciata.

Rees (rēs), John Krom. Born at New York, Oct. 27, 1851: died there, March 9, 1907. An American astronomer, instructor, adjunct professor, and professor of astronomy in Columbia University from 1881. He was graduated at Columbia in 1872, and was professor of mathematics in Washington University, St. Louis, 1876–81. In 1902 he was made a chevalier of the Legion of Honor.

Reger (rā′ger), Max. Born at Brand, Bavaria, March 19, 1873. A German composer. From 1901 to 1906 he was professor of counterpoint in the Munich conservatory. He has composed many organ pieces, chamber-works, songs, and a sinfonietta. His music is marked by extreme complication in counterpoint, and by the avoidance of the prevailing tendency toward the use of imposing mass effects and instrumental color.

Régnier (rā-nyā′), Henri de. Born at Honfleur, France, Dec. 28, 1864. A noted French poet, one of the leaders of the modern Symbolists. His verse includes "Lendemains" (1886), "Sites" (1887), "Episodes" (1888), "Poèmes anciens et romanesques" (1900), "Tel qu'en songe" (1892), "Aréthuse" (1895), "Les médailles d'argile" (1900), "La cité des eaux" (1902), "La sandale ailée" (1906), etc. He is also known as a critic, and has published several books of fiction, "La canne de jaspe" (1896), "Le trèfle blanc" (1899), "La double maîtresse" (1900), "Les amants singuliers" (1901), "Le bon plaisir" (1902), "Les vacances d'un jeune homme sage" (1903), "Le passé vivant" (1905), "La peur de l'amour" (1907), etc. Elected to the French Academy 1911.

Reich (rīch), Emil. Born at Eperies, Hungary, March 24, 1854: died at London, Dec. 11, 1910. A Hungarian author and lecturer. He was educated at Prague, Budapest, and Vienna, and devoted himself to reading and study until his thirtieth year, when he set out to travel. He spent five years in the United States, four in France, and about thirteen in England, where he lectured at Oxford, Cambridge, and London universities, and was employed by the British government to aid in preparing its case in the Venezuela boundary controversy. Among his many published works are a "History of Civilization," "Foundations of Modern Europe," "Atlas of Modern History," "Fundamental Principles of Evidence," "General History of Western Nations," and "Woman through the Ages."

Reichsbank (rīchs′bänk), The German Imperial or National Bank, at Berlin, the leading bank in Germany, established by an act passed in 1875. It is governed by a bank directorate appointed by the chancellor of the empire, aided by a committee of shareholders.

Reichsrath (G. pron. rīchs′rät). [G., 'parliament of the empire.'] The chief deliberative body in the Cisleithan division of Austria-Hungary. It is composed of an upper house (Herrenhaus) of princes, certain nobles and prelates, and life members nominated by the emperor, and of a lower house of 516 deputies. Under the electoral law of January 26, 1907, the lower house (Abgeordnetenhaus) is elected on the basis of universal, equal, and direct suffrage. All Austrian male citizens over 24 years of age who have resided for at least a year in the place of election are entitled to vote for a deputy. S. Y. B.

Reid (rēd), George Houstoun. Born at Johnstone, Scotland, Feb. 25, 1845. An Australian Liberal statesman. He went to Melbourne in 1852; was called to the bar of New South Wales in 1879; was a member of the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales 1880–99 (except 1884–85); was elected to the Commonwealth Parliament in 1901; and was prime minister and colonial treasurer of New South Wales 1894–99, and premier of the Commonwealth 1904–05. He has published "Five Free Trade Essays," "New South Wales," etc.

Reid (rēd), Robert Threshie, first Baron Loreburn. Born April 3, 1846. A British jurist. He was educated at Cheltenham College and at Balliol College, Oxford; was called to the bar of the Inner Temple in 1871; was appointed queen's counsel in 1882; and was knighted in 1894. He was Liberal member of the House of Commons for Hereford 1880–85 and for Dumfries 1886–1905. He was solicitor-general in 1894; attorney-general 1894–95; lord high chancellor Dec., 1905– ; and was one of the British counsel before the Venezuelan Commission. He was created Baron Loreburn, Dec. 30, 1905, and an earl in 1911.

Reid*, Whitelaw. He has written "Ohio in the War" (1868), "Schools of Journalism" (1870), "Our New Duties," "Later Aspects of our New Duties" (1899), "A Continental Union" (1900), "Problems of Expansion" (1900), "Greatest Fact in Modern History" (1907), etc.

Reinach (rī'näċh), Joseph. Born at Paris, Nov. 30, 1856. A French publicist. A lawyer by profession, he was Gambetta's secretary during his ministry of 1881–82, and was a member of the Chamber of Deputies 1889–98 and 1906–. He is especially known as a champion of Dreyfus, whose case he presented in his "Histoire de l'affaire Dreyfus" (1901–08). He has also published other works on various political and historical subjects.

Reinach (rī'näċh), Salomon. Born at St.-Germain-en-Laye, Aug. 29, 1858. A French archæologist, keeper of the National Museum of St. Germain from 1902. He is the brother of Joseph Reinach. He has published a "Manuel de philologie classique," "Traité d'epigraphie grecque," "Répertoire de la statuaire grecque et romaine," "Répertoire des vases grecs et étrangers," "Répertoire de reliefs grecs et romains," etc.

Reinecke (rī'nek-e), Karl. Born June 23, 1824: died March 10, 1910. A German pianist, composer, conductor, and teacher of music. After filling various posts in smaller cities, he became conductor of the Gewandhaus concerts in Leipsic in 1860, and at the same time was made professor of the piano and of composition at the Conservatory. In 1895 he was succeeded as conductor by Nikisch and in 1902 retired from his post at the Conservatory.

Réjane*, Gabrielle Charlotte Réju, called. She founded in 1905 the Théâtre Réjane, of which she is the directrix.

Reliance. An American racing yacht, the successful defender, in 1903, of the America's cup against Shamrock III. She was built by the Herreshoffs, sailed by Captain Barr, and owned by a syndicate represented by C. Oliver Iselin.

Remenyi (rā-men'yi), Eduard. Born at Heves, Hungary, in 1830: died at San Francisco, Cal., May 15, 1898. A Hungarian violinist. He traveled in many parts of the world.

Remsen*, Ira. His later works include "Inorganic Chemistry" (1889), "Chemical Experiments" (1895), "College Text-book of Chemistry" (1901), etc.

Renaud (rē-nō'), Maurice Arnold. Born at Bordeaux in 1865. A French barytone singer. He studied at the Paris and Brussels conservatories. He appeared in Paris at the Opéra Comique in 1890 and at the Opéra in 1891, and in 1906 came to the United States, where he has sung in opera in various cities.

Renault (rē-nō'), Jean Louis. Born at Autun, May 21, 1843. A French jurist, professor in the University of Paris. He is jurisconsult for the ministry of foreign affairs and a member of the International Court of Arbitration at The Hague. In 1907 he was awarded the Nobel peace prize. He has published "Introduction à l'étude du droit international" and "Traité de droit commercial" (with C. Lyon-Caen).

Rendall (ren'dal), Gerald Henry. Born at Harrow, Middlesex, 1851. An English classical scholar, head-master of the Charterhouse School from 1897. He was graduated at the University of Cambridge in 1874; was vice-chancellor of Victoria University 1890–94; and was the first principal of University College, Liverpool. His writings include "The Cradle of the Aryans" (1889), a translation of the "Meditations" of Marcus Aurelius (1897), etc.

Rensselaer (ren'se-lēr). A city in Rensselaer County, New York. It is situated on the Hudson opposite Albany, with which it is connected by bridges. It has large freight-yards and roundhouses, and manufactures of leather, felt, coal-elevators, colors, etc. Population, 10,711, (1910).

Rensselaer (ren'se-lēr) Polytechnic Institute. A school at Troy, N. Y., founded in 1824 by the Hon. Stephen Van Rensselaer. It was reorganized upon the basis of a general polytechnic institute in 1849. It offers courses of four years each, leading to the degrees of civil engineer, mechanical engineer, electrical engineer, and bachelor of science, and is attended by about 700 students.

Repplier (rep'li-ēr), Agnes. Born at Philadelphia, Pa., April 1, 1858. An American essayist. She has written "Books and Men" (1888), "Points of View" (1891), "Essays in Miniature" (1892), "Essays in Idleness" (1893), "In the Dozy Hours" (1895), "Varia" (1897), "Philadelphia: the Place and the People" (1898), "The Fireside Sphinx" (1901), "Compromises" (1904), "In Our Convent Days" (1905), "Philadelphia" (1907), "Happy Half-century" (1908), etc.

Return of the Native, The. A story by Thomas Hardy, published in 1878.

Reveries of a Bachelor. A book by Ik Marvel (Donald Grant Mitchell), published in 1850.

Revolution of February. The French revolution of 1848, which overthrew the government of Louis Philippe.

Reyer (rā-yār'). Louis Étienne Ernest. (Originally Rey.) Born at Marseilles, Dec. 1, 1823: died Jan. 15, 1909. A French composer. His most important works are the operas "Sigurd" (1884) and "Salammbô" (1890). For some years he was musical critic of the "Journal des Débats," and in 1875 published "Notes de musique." He was made a member of the French Academy in 1876.

Reyes (rā'yās), Rafael. A South American explorer, soldier, and statesman. He explored the Amazon and its tributaries with his brothers, Henry and Nestor; became commander-in-chief of the Colombian army; was sent to Washington to represent Colombian interests in connection with the new Republic of Panama; and was officially proclaimed president of Colombia, July 4, 1904, and inaugurated August 7, 1904. By a resolution of the General Assembly in March, 1905, his term of office was extended until December 31, 1914. He resigned July 28, 1909.

Rheinberger (rīn'ber-ger), Joseph Gabriel. Born at Vaduz, Liechtenstein, March 17, 1839: died at Munich, Nov. 25, 1901. A German composer and teacher. From 1859 to the time of his death he was professor of the theory of music in the Munich Conservatory, where he trained many well-known musicians, including a number of Americans. Among his chief works are the symphonic tone-poem "Wallenstein," several chamber compositions, and organ pieces, among which are twenty sonatas and two concertos.

Rhinelander (rīn'land-ėr). The county-seat of Oneida County, Wisconsin, in the northern part of the State. It has lumber-mills, a refrigerator factory, etc. Population, 5,637, (1910).

Rhodes (rōdz), James Ford. Born at Cleveland, Ohio, May 1, 1848. A noted American historian. He was educated at the universities of New York and Chicago, and pursued special studies in France and Germany. From 1870 to 1885 he was engaged in business in Cleveland. In 1901 he was awarded the Loubat prize by the Berlin Academy of Sciences. He is known as the author of a "History of the United States from the Compromise of 1850 to the Final Restoration of Home Rule at the South in 1877" (1892–1906).

Rhodes Scholarships. Scholarships established at Oxford University by the will of Cecil J. Rhodes (died 1902), to be held by students from the most important British colonies (78 in all); from each of the states and territories of the United States (2 each); and from Germany (5). They are held for 3 consecutive years. The value of the Colonial and American scholarships is £300 a year; that of the German, £250.

Rhodesia*. It extends from the Belgian Kongo and German East Africa on the north to the Transvaal on the south, and is bounded on the east by Portuguese East Africa, Nyasaland, and German East Africa, and on the west by the Belgian Kongo, Portuguese West Africa, and Bechuanaland. The portion north of the Zambesi is divided into Northwestern Rhodesia (Barotseland) and Northeastern Rhodesia; that south of the Zambesi is Southern Rhodesia. Since 1889 it has been administered by the British South Africa Company.

Rhondda (ron'thä). A district and municipality in Glamorganshire, Wales. It is situated in an important iron-mining center, and has large iron interests. Population, 113,733.

Ribbeck*, Johann Karl Otto. His later works include "Friedrich Wilhelm Ritschl" (1879–81), "Kolax" (1883), "Agroikos" (1885), and "Reden und Vorträge" (1899).

Ribot (rē-bō'), Théodule Armand. Born at Guingamp, Côtes-du-Nord, France, Dec. 18, 1839. A noted French psychologist, professor in the Collège de France from 1888, and founder (1876) and editor of the "Revue Philosophique." He has published "La psychologie anglaise contemporaine" (1870), "L'Hérédité" (1873), "La philosophie de Schopenhauer" (1874), "La psychologie allemande contemporaine" (1879), "Les maladies de la volonté" (1883), "Les maladies de la personalité" (1885), "La psychologie de l'attention" (1889), "La psychologie des sentiments" (1896), "L'Évolution des idées générales" (1897), "Essai sur l'imagination créatrice" (1900), "La logique des sentiments" (1904), "Essai sur les passions" (1906), etc.

Ricci (rēt'chē), Corrado. Born at Ravenna, Italy, April 18, 1858. An Italian connoisseur and critic. He was for many years director of the Brera Gallery in Milan, and in 1903 was appointed director of the museums of Florence. Among his many publications on the history and art of Italy are "Ravenna e suoi dintorni" (1878), "Cronache e documenti per la storia Ravennate del secolo XVI." (1882), and "Antonio Allegri da Correggio" (English translation by Florence Simmonds, 1896).

Rice (rīs), Mrs. (Alice Caldwell Hegan). Born at Shelbyville, Ky., Jan. 11, 1870. An American novelist. She has published "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch" (1901), "Lovey Mary" (1903), "Sandy" (1905), "Captain June" (1907), "Mr. Opp" (1909), etc.

Richards (rich'ärdz), Ellen Henrietta. Born at Dunstable, Mass., Dec. 3, 1842: died at Boston, March 30, 1911. An American sanitary chemist, head of the department of social economics in the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. She published "The Chemistry of Cooking and Cleaning" (1882), "Food Materials and Their Adulterations" (1886), "The Cost of Living" (1899), "The Cost of Food" (1900), "The Cost of Shelter" (1905), "The Cost of Cleanness" (1908), "Industrial Water Analysis" (1909), etc.

Richards (rich'ärdz), Sir Frederick William. Born Nov. 30, 1833. A British naval officer, promoted admiral in 1893. He served in the Zulu and Boer wars 1879–81, and in the Burmese war 1885–86; was commander-in-chief on the East India station 1885–88, and on the China station 1890–92; and was admiral of the fleet 1898–1903.

Richards (rich'ärdz), Joseph William. Born at Oldbury, England, July 28, 1864. An English scientist, professor of metallurgy and mineralogy in Lehigh University from 1903. He was assistant and acting professor 1897–1903. He has published "Aluminum" (1887), "Metallurgical Calculations" (1906–08), etc.

Richards (rich'ärdz), Theodore William. Born at Germantown, Pa., Jan. 31, 1868. An American chemist, son of William T. Richards (artist). He was assistant professor of chemistry at Harvard University 1894–1901, and has been professor since 1901 and chairman of the chemistry department since 1903. In 1907 he was exchange professor at Berlin. In 1910 he was awarded the Davy gold medal of the Royal Society for his researches in the determination of atomic weights. He has published many scientific papers.

Richardson (rich'ärd-sŏn), Sir Benjamin Ward. Born at Somerby, Leicestershire, Oct. 31, 1828: died at London, Nov. 21, 1896. A noted English physician, practising in London from 1853. He was a prolific writer and made many important contributions to the science of medicine.

Richardson (rich'ärd-sŏn), Rufus Byam. Born at Westford, Mass., April 18, 1845. An American classical archæologist and educator, director of the American School of Classical Studies at Athens 1893–1903. He was graduated at Yale University in 1869; studied in Berlin; served in the Union army 1862–63; and was professor of Greek in the University of Indiana 1880–82, and in Dartmouth College 1882–93. He has conducted explorations at Eretria and on the site of ancient Corinth. His publications include "Vacation Days in Greece" (1903), "Greece Through the Stereoscope" (1907), and numerous archæological papers.

Richmond (rich'mond). A city in Contra Costa County, California, incorporated in 1905. Population, 6,802, (1910).

Richmond (rich'mond). The county-seat of Madison County, Kentucky, 24 miles southeast of Lexington. Tobacco-growing and horse-breeding are among its industries. It is the seat of the Eastern Kentucky State Normal School. Population, 5,340, (1910).

Richmond (rich'mond). A borough of the city of New York (see New York, Greater). It is conterminous with Staten Island (which see). Population, 85,969, (1910).

Richmond (rich'mond), Sir William Blake. Born at London, Nov. 29, 1842. An English painter. He was trained in the schools of the Royal Academy; was Slade professor of art at Oxford 1879–82; and became an associate of the Royal Academy in 1888, and a member in 1895. Among his works are many compositions of classic and poetical subjects in an academic style and several notable portraits. He also designed the mosaic decorations of the choir of St. Paul's Cathedral. Knighted 1897.

Richthofen (riċht'hō-fen), Baron Ferdinand von. Born at Karlsruhe, Silesia, May 5, 1833: died at Berlin, Oct. 6, 1905. A noted German geologist and traveler. He accompanied, as geologist, the Prussian expedition to Japan, China, and Siam, and visited Java, the Philippines, India, California, Nevada, and again China and Japan, returning to Europe in 1872. In 1875 he became professor of geography at Bonn, in 1883 at Leipsic, and in 1886 at Berlin. He wrote "China, Ergebnisse eigener Reisen und darauf gegründeter Studien" (1877–83), etc.

Riddell*, Mrs. (Charlotte Eliza Lawson Cowan). Her later works include "The Head of the Firm" (1892), "A Silent Tragedy" (1893), "A Rich Man's Daughter" (1897), "Footfall of Fate" (1900), "Poor Fellow" (1902), etc.

Riddle (rid'l), Oscar. Born at Cincinnati, Ind., Sept. 27, 1877. An American naturalist, professor of zoölogy in the University of Chicago from 1909. He made an expedition up the Orinoco River in 1901.

Ridgefield (rij'fēld). A town in Fairfield County, Connecticut, including Ridgefield borough, 9 miles southwest of Danbury, in a farming region. It was the birthplace of Samuel Griswold Goodrich ("Peter Parley"). Population, town, 3,118; borough, 1,114, (1910).

Ridgeway (rij'wā), William. Born in Ireland, 1853. A British archæologist, professor of archæology in the University of Cambridge from 1892. He has written "The Origin and Influence of Metallic Currency and Weight Standards" (1892), "The Early Age of Greece" (1901), "The Origin and Influence of the Thoroughbred Horse" (1905), etc.

Ridgewood (rij'wŭd). A village in Bergen County, New Jersey, 5 miles northeast of Paterson. Population, 5,416, (1910).

Ridgway (rij'wā). The county-seat of Elk County, Pennsylvania. It has lumber-mills, engine- and dynamo-factories, etc. Population, 5,408, (1910).

Ridgway (rij'wā), Robert. Born at Mount Carmel, Ill., July 2, 1850. An American naturalist, curator of the division of birds of the United States National Museum from 1876. He was zoölogist of the United States geological exploration of the 40th parallel 1867–69. Among his publications are "A History of North American Birds" and "Water Birds of North America" (3 vols., 1874, and 2 vols., 1884; with Baird and Brewer), "Nomenclature of Colors" (1886), "A Manual of North American Birds" (1887), "The Ornithology of Illinois" (1889), "The Birds of North and Middle America" (1901–04), etc.

Ridpath (rid′pȧth), John Clark. Born in Putnam County, Ind., April 26, 1841: died at New York, July 31, 1900. An American educator and historian. He was graduated from Asbury (now DePauw) University, and in 1869 was appointed to a professorship in that institution and later became its vice-president. He was one of the editors of the "People's Cyclopædia" (1881), and published "Academic History of the United States" (1874–75), "A Popular History of the United States" (1877), "Cyclopedia of Universal History" (1880–84), "Great Races of Mankind" (1893), "History of the World" (1898), "History of the United States" (1900), etc.

Riemann (rē′män), Hugo. Born at Grossmehlra, near Sondershausen, Germany, July 18, 1849. A German musical historian and critic. In 1878 he became university lecturer on music at Leipsic, and after teaching elsewhere returned to Leipsic in 1895. Among his many works are "Studien zur Geschichte der Notenschrift" (1878), "Musikalische Dynamik und Agogik" (1884), "Geschichte der Musiktheorie vom ix.-xix. Jahrhundert" (1898), "Geschichte der Musik seit Beethoven" (1901), "Grosse Kompositionslehre" (1902–03), and a "Musiklexikon" that has been published (1882–1904) in six revisions.

Riggs (rigz), Mrs. (Kate Douglas Smith): pen-name Kate Douglas Wiggin (from her first marriage). Born at Philadelphia, Pa. A contemporary American author. She organized the first free kindergarten on the Pacific coast. Among her publications are "The Birds' Christmas Carol" (1886), "Timothy's Quest" (1890), "A Cathedral Courtship" (1893), "Penelope's English Experiences" (1893), "Penelope's Progress" (1898), "Penelope's Irish Experiences" (1901), "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm" (1903: dramatized 1910), "Rose o' the River" (1905), "New Chronicles of Rebecca" (1907), "The Old Peabody Pew" (1907), and "Mother Carey's Chickens" (1911).

Riis*, Jacob. His later works include "A Ten Years' War" (1900: rewritten as "The Battle with the Slum," 1902), "The Making of an American" (1901), "Children of the Tenements" (1903), "The Peril and the Preservation of the Home" (1903), "Is There a Santa Claus?" (1904), "Theodore Roosevelt the Citizen" (1904), and "The Old Town" (1909).

Riley*, James Whitcomb. Among his later works are "Child-World" (1897), "Rubáiyát of Doc Sifers" (1897), "Child-rhymes" (1899), "Love Lyrics" (1899), "Farm-rhymes" (1901), "Book of Joyous Children" (1902), "An Old Sweetheart of Mine" (1902), "A Defective Santa Claus" (1904), "Out to Old Aunt Mary's" (1904), "His Pa's Romance" (1904), "Songs o' Cheer" (1905), "While the Heart Beats Young" (1906), "Morning" (1907), "The Raggedy Man" (1907), "Boys of the Old Glee Club" (1908), "Home Again With Me" (1908), "Orphant Annie Book" (1908), "Songs of Summer" (1908), etc.

Rimsky-Korsakof (rimz′ki-kôr-sä-kōf′), Nikolas Andrejevitch. Born at Tikhvin, Russia, March 18 (N. S.), 1844: died at St. Petersburg, June 22, 1908. A Russian composer, professor of instrumentation at the St. Petersburg Conservatory from 1871, and inspector of naval bands 1873–84. Among his compositions are several operas, including "La nuit de mai" (1880), "Snegorotchka" (1882), "Mlada" (1893), "La nuit de Noël" (1895), "La fiancée du tsar" (1898), "Le conte du roi Sabtan" (1900), "Servilia" (1902); three symphonies; symphonic poems, including "Sadko" and "Scheherazade"; and songs. He also wrote a treatise on harmony, and was noted as a conductor.

Río Grande de Cagayán (rē′ō grän′dā dā kägä-yän′). The largest river in Luzón, Philippine Islands. It rises in the southern mountains of Isabela province and flows first northeast and then north by west to Aparri on the northern coast of Cagayán province. It has a drainage of about 10,000 square miles, and is the medium of transportation to the coast of all the products of both provinces. Length, about 220 miles. It is navigable by vessels of 3 feet draft as far as Tuguegarao, the capital of Cagayán; by native boats about 160 miles; and by rafts 40 miles further.

Río Grande de la Pampanga (rē′ō grän′dā dā lä pämp-pän′gä). A river, the second in size in Luzón, Philippine Islands.

Río Grande de Mindanao (rē′ō grän′dā dā mēn-dä-nä′ō), or Pulangui (pö-län′gē). A river, the largest in Mindanao and the second in size in the Philippines.

Río Negro. 4. A territory of the Argentine Republic. Capital, Viedma. Area, 75,924 square miles. Population, 28,166.—5. A department of Uruguay. Capital, Fray Bentos (or Independencia). Area, 3,269 square miles. Population, 39,667.

Ripley (rip′li), William Zebina. Born at Medford, Mass., Oct. 13, 1867. An American economist and ethnologist, professor of political economy in Harvard University from 1902. He was graduated at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 1890, and was a member of its faculty 1893–1902. In 1900 he served as expert on railroads for the United States Industrial Commission, drafting its final report on that subject. His works include a "Financial History of Virginia" (1893), "The Races of Europe" (1900), "Trusts, Pools, and Corporations" (1905), "Railway Problems" (1907), etc.

Risler (ris′ler), Joseph Eduard. Born at Baden, Feb. 23, 1873. A German pianist. He studied at the Paris Conservatory, and later with Dimmler, Stavenhagen, D'Albert, and Klindworth. He has appeared in concert in most of the larger continental cities and in England, playing many of Beethoven's compositions. Since 1906 he has been a member of the Conseil Supérieur of the Paris Conservatory.

Risley (riz′li), Sir Herbert Hope. Born 1851. An English anthropologist, home secretary of the government of India 1902–09, director of ethnography for India from 1901, and secretary of the judicial and public department of the India Office from 1910. His works include "Primitive Marriage in Bengal," "Widow and Infant Marriage," "Tribes and Castes of Bengal," etc. He was knighted in 1907.

Ristori*, Adelaide. In 1847 she married the Marchese Capranica del Grillo. Her autobiography ("Ricordi e studi artistici") was published in 1887.

Ritchey (rich′i), George Willis. Born at Tupper's Plains, Ohio, Dec. 31, 1864. An American astronomer, superintendent of instrument construction and astronomer of the Solar Observatory of the Carnegie Institution from 1905. He was optician of the Yerkes Observatory 1896–99, superintendent of instrument construction 1899–1904, instructor in practical astronomy 1901–04, and assistant professor 1904–05.

Riverside (riv′ėr-sīd). The county-seat of Riverside County, California, 10 miles southwest of San Bernardino. It is frequented by tourists, and is important for its extensive production of oranges, lemons, raisins, and figs. Population, 15,212, (1910).

Rives (rēvz), Amélie. See ★Troubetzkoy.

Rizal (rē-thäl′). A province in southern Luzón, Philippine Islands. It is bounded by Bulacán on the north, Infanta and La Laguna (partly separated by mountains) on the east, Laguna de Bay and Cavite on the south, and Manila Bay and Bulacán on the west. It includes Talim and other small islands in Laguna de Bay. Capital, Pasig. The surface is diversified by short mountain-ranges and fertile plains. The highest mountain is Talim, an extinct volcano, 1,519 feet in height. The chief river, the Pasig, drains Laguna de Bay, and empties by several mouths into Manila Bay. It has numerous tributaries, and is an important means of communication with the interior of the island. Coal is found in the southern, and gold in the northern, part of Rizal. Among the products are mangos, corn, and sugar-cane. The inhabitants are Tagalos. Area, 733 square miles. Population, 150,923.

Rizal (rē-thäl′), José. Born at Calamba, La Laguna, Luzón, Philippine Islands: died at Manila, Dec. 30, 1896. A Filipino patriot and author. He received degrees in medicine and philosophy from the University of Madrid and was elected a member of the Berlin Anthropological Society. He returned to the Philippines and published a political story, "Noli me tangere," on account of which he was forced by the party in power to emigrate. When abroad he wrote another political novel, "El Filibusterismo." He subsequently practised medicine in Hong-Kong, and obtained permission to visit the Philippines, but on his arrival there was arrested. A native insurrection against Spain having broken out, he was accused of being its instigator, and was condemned and shot.

Robben Island. A small island in the Sea of Okhotsk, in lat. 48° N., long. 144° E., near Saghalin Island. It has a length of 1,900 feet and a width of about 120 feet. It contains a fur-seal rookery.

Roberts (rob′ėrts), Charles George Douglas. Born at Fredericton, New Brunswick, Jan. 10, 1860. A Canadian poet and prose-writer. He was professor of the English and French literatures at King's College, Nova Scotia, 1885–87, and of English and economics 1887–95; and was associate editor of the New York "Illustrated American" 1897–98. His verse includes "Orion, and Other Poems" (1880), "In Divers Tones" (1887), "Ave: an Ode for the Shelley Centenary" (1892), "Songs of the Common Day" (1893), "The Book of the Native" (1896), "New York Nocturnes" (1898), "Collected Poems" (1900), and "The Book of the Rose" (1903). Among his prose works are "Earth's Enigmas" (1896), "A History of Canada" (1897), "The Forge in the Forest" (1897), "By the Marshes of Minas" (1900), "The Heart of the Ancient Wood" (1900), "The Kindred of the Wild" (1902), "Red Fox" (1905), "The Cruise of the Yacht Dido" (1906), "Haunters of the Silences" (1907), "The House in the Water" (1908), "The Backwoodsmen" (1909), "Kings in Exile" (1910), "Neighbors Unknown" (1911), etc.

Roberts (rob′ėrts), Morley. Born at London, Dec. 29, 1857. An English novelist and journalist. For many years he led an adventurous life as a cattleman and railroad-man in Australia, the United States, Canada, and South Africa, and as a sailor in various parts of the world. His works include "The Western Avernus" (1887), "Songs of Energy" (1891), "Red Earth" (1894), "A Son of Empire" (1899), "The Colossus" (1899), "The Plunderers" (1900), "The Way of a Man" (1902), "The Promotion of the Admiral" (1903), "Rachel Marr" (1903), "A Tramp's Notebook" (1904), "The Idlers" (1905), "The Prey of the Strongest" (1906), "The Blue Peter" (1907), "The Flying Cloud" (1907), "Lady Anne" (1907), "Captain Spink" (1908), "David Bran" (1908), "Midsummer Madness" (1909), "Sea Dogs" (1910), "The Wonderful Bishop" (1910), "Thorpe's Way" (1911).

Robertson (rob′ėrt-son), Robert Henderson. Born at Philadelphia, April 29, 1849. An American architect. He has practised his profession at New York, where he has built the St. James Episcopal Church, the Church of the Holy Spirit, the Park Row Building, the Corn Exchange Bank, the Academy of Medicine, the American Tract Society Building, etc.

Robins (rob′inz), Elizabeth (Mrs. George Richmond Parks): pseudonym C. E. Raimond. A contemporary American actress and author. She has played principally in dramas written by Ibsen. Her works include "Below the Salt" (1896), "The Open Question" (1898), "The Magnetic North" (1904), "A Dark Lantern" (1905), "Come and Find Me" (1908), "The Mills of the Gods" (1908), etc.

Robinson (rob′in-son), Edward. Born at Boston, Nov. 1, 1858. An American archæologist, director of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York, 1910–. He was graduated at Harvard in 1879; studied in Greece, Berlin, etc.; was curator of classical antiquities 1885–1902, and director 1902–05, of the Boston Museum of Fine Arts; and was assistant director of the Metropolitan Museum 1906–1910.

Robinson (rob′in-son), Hercules George Robert, first Baron Rosmead. Born Dec. 19, 1824: died at London, Oct. 28, 1897. A British colonial administrator. He was educated at Sandhurst, and entered the army, but in 1846 was appointed to a civil post in Ireland. He was president of the island of Montserrat in 1854; lieutenant-governor of St. Christopher 1855–59; and governor successively of Hong-Kong in 1859, of Ceylon in 1865, of New South Wales 1872–79, and of New Zealand in 1879, acting also as commissioner for the cession of the Fiji Islands to England in 1874. He was high commissioner for South Africa 1880–89. During his administration (1885) Bechuanaland was annexed to the British empire. In 1889 he retired, but in 1895 returned to South Africa and served as governor and commander-in-chief of Cape Colony until April, 1897, when failing health compelled his return to England. He was knighted in 1859, and created a baronet in 1891, and a baron in 1896.

Robinson Crusoe's Island. An (imaginary) uninhabited island on the northern coast of South America, off the mouth of the Orinoco, described in Defoe's tale of "The Life and Strange Surprising Adventures of Robinson Crusoe, of York, Mariner." Often erroneously identified with Juan Fernandez. See Selkirk, Alexander.

Robson (rob′son), Mount. The highest peak of the Canadian Rocky Mountains. Height, 13,700 feet.

Roche (rōsh), Sir Boyle. Born 1743: died at Dublin, June 5, 1807. An Irish politician. He entered the army and served in the American war; was a member of the Irish Parliament from 1777 until the Union in 1801; and was created a baronet in 1782 for his services to the government, which later were particularly valuable in connection with the volunteer convention of 1783. He is known chiefly as a perpetrator of "bulls."

Roche (rōsh), James Jeffrey. Born at Mountmellick, Queen's County, Ireland, May 31, 1847: died April 3, 1908. An American journalist and author. He was editor of "The Pilot" (Boston) 1890–95; United States consul at Genoa 1904–07; and consul at Bern, Switzerland, 1907–08. His works include "Songs and Satires" (1886), "Life of John Boyle O'Reilly" (1891), "The Story of the Filibusters" (1891), "Ballads of Blue Water" (1895), "Her Majesty the King" (1898), "Byways of War" (1904), etc.

Roche (rōsh), Mrs. (Regina Maria Dalton). Born in the south of Ireland, about 1764: died at Waterford, May 17, 1845. An Irish novelist. She published many romances, the best known of which is "The Children of the Abbey" (1798).

Rochefort*, Henri (Victor Henri, Comte de Rochefort-Luçay). He was editor of "L'Intransigeant" from its founding in 1880 to 1907, and of "La Patrie" 1907–. His memoirs, "Les aventures de ma vie," appeared 1895–96.

Rochester (roch′es-tėr). A borough in Beaver County, Pennsylvania, 23 miles northwest of Pittsburgh. It is in a region containing deposits of oil and natural gas, and has glass-factories, brick-works, etc. Population, 5,903, (1910).

Rockefeller (rok′e-fel-ėr), John Davison. Born at Richford, N. Y., July 8, 1839. An American merchant and philanthropist, founder and president of the Standard Oil Company. He went to Cleveland, Ohio, in 1853, and later established himself in the oil business there. The Standard Oil Company was formed in 1870 and in 1882 was transformed into a trust (dissolved in 1892). It was reorganized as a "holding" company, the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, with subsidiary companies. See ★Standard Oil Company. Among his gifts to public institutions are upward of $35,000,000 to the University of Chicago and about $32,000,000 to the General Education Board. He has also endowed the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research in New York city.

Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research. An institution at New York city, founded in 1901 by John D. Rockefeller for the advancement of medical research by laboratory investigation, clinical observation, and grants of money to persons engaged in medical research. In its hospital department, which is under the direction of Dr. Rufus Cole, only specified diseases are treated. Since 1903 its laboratories have been under the direction of Dr. Simon Flexner.

Rockefeller Sanitary Commission. A commission, founded in 1909 by John D. Rockefeller, for the suppression of the hook-worm disease. Its headquarters are at Washington, D. C. It coöperates with State boards of health in such localities as may require its action.

Rock Hill (rok hil). A city in York County, South Carolina, in the northern part of the State. It is in an agricultural region, and has cotton-mills, wood-working establishments, carriage-works, etc. It is the seat of Winthrop College, a State normal and industrial institution for women. Population, 7,216, (1910).

Rock Springs (rok springz). A city in Sweetwater County, Wyoming, on Bitter Creek. Coal-mining is its principal industry. Population, 5,778, (1910).

Rockville (rok'vil). A city in Vernon township, Tolland County, Connecticut, 15 miles northeast of Hartford. It has cotton- and silk-mills, manufactories of envelops, etc. Population, 7,977, (1910).

Rocky Mount (rok'i mount). A town in Edgecombe and Nash counties, North Carolina, near the Tar River. Its manufactures include fertilizers, cotton-seed oil, machinery, etc. Population, 8,051, (1910).

Rod (rōd), Édouard. Born May 31, 1857: died at Grasse, Jan. 29, 1910. A French critic and author. He studied at Berlin; became editor of the Paris "Revue Contemporaine" in 1884; and was professor of comparative literature in the University of Geneva 1887–93. Among his critical works are "Études sur le XIXe siècle" (1888–) and "Les idées morales du temps présent" (1891); and his novels include "La course à la mort" (1885), "Le sens de la vie" (1889), "La vie privée de Michel Tessier" (1893), "La seconde vie de Michel Tessier" (1894), "Le ménage du pasteur Naudié" (1898), "Au milieu du chemin" (1900), "Mlle. Annette" (1901), "L'Eau courante" (1902), "Inutile effort" (1903), "Un vainqueur" (1905), "L'Incendie" (1906), "Les unis" (1909), etc.

Rogers (roj'ėrz) William Barton. Born at Philadelphia, Dec. 7, 1804: died at Boston, May 30, 1882. An American educator and geologist. He was professor of natural philosophy in William and Mary College 1828–35; in 1835 was appointed head of the Virginia State geological survey; was professor of natural philosophy in the University of Virginia 1835–53; in 1853 went to Boston, where he was instrumental in founding the Massachusetts Institute of Technology; and was the president of this institution 1865–68 and 1878–81, holding the chair of physics and geology. He wrote "Strength of Materials" (1838), "Elements of Mechanical Philosophy" (1852), and many scientific papers.

Rohlfs (rolfs), Mrs. (Anna Katherine Green). Born at Brooklyn, N. Y., Nov. 11, 1846. An American novelist, known chiefly as a writer of stories of crime. Among her works are "The Leavenworth Case" (1878), "Hand and Ring" (1883), "The Forsaken Inn" (1890), "The Filigree Ball" (1903), "The Millionaire Baby" (1905), "The Woman in the Alcove" (1906), "The Circular Study" (1906), "The Mayor's Wife" (1907), "Three Thousand Dollars" (1909), "The House of the Whispering Pines" (1910), and others, including a volume of poems, "The Defense of the Bride" (1882).

Rojestvensky. See ★Rozhestvensky.

Rolfe (rolf), William James. Born at Newburyport, Mass., Dec. 10, 1827: died at Tisbury, N. H., July 7, 1910. An American Shaksperian scholar, editor, author, and educator. His editorial work includes "Handbook of Latin Poetry" (1865: with J. H. Hanson), Craik's "English of Shakespeare" (1867); select poems of Goldsmith (1875), Gray (1876), Robert Browning (1886), and Wordsworth (1889); the complete works of Shakspere (1870–83: revised ed. 1902–06), poems of Scott (1887), and of Tennyson (1895–98); a series of English classics for school reading (1887–91), a students' series of standard poetry (1882–87), and various English classics. He was the author of "A Satchel Guide to Europe" (1872–1906), "The Elementary Study of English" (1896), "Shakespeare the Boy" (1896), and "Life of Shakespeare" (1902).

Roll (rōl), Alfred Philippe. Born at Paris, March 10, 1847. A French painter and sculptor. He was trained in the atelier of Léon Bonnat, and first exhibited in the Salon of 1870. Some of his most important paintings are "Don Juan and Haydée," in the Musée d'Avignon; "Halte-là!" a souvenir of the Franco-Prussian war, in the Musée de Laval; the "Fête de Silène," in the Musée de Gano; the "Grève des mineurs," in the Musée de Valenciennes; and the "Joies de la vie," a decoration of the Hôtel de Ville in Paris. He is a pleinairiste and brilliant technician.

Rolland (rōl-läń'), Romain. Born at Clamecy, Nièvre, Jan. 29, 1866. A French man of letters, lecturer on the history of art in the faculty of letters of the University of Paris. He studied at the École Normale Supérieure and at the École de Rome, and took the doctor's degree in letters with a thesis, "Les origines du théâtre lyrique moderne" (1895), which was crowned by the French Academy. He has written a number of plays, including "Aërt" (1898), "Les loups" (1898), "Le triomphe de la raison" (1899), "Danton" (1900), and "Le temps viendra" (1903); historical and critical works, including "Histoire de l'opéra en Europe avant Lulli et Scarlatti" (1895), "Des causes de la décadence de la peinture italienne" (1895), "François Millet" (1902), "Le théâtre du peuple" (1903), "Beethoven" (1903), "Musiciens d'aujourd'hui" (1908), and "Musiciens d'autrefois" (1908); and a novel, "Jean-Christophe," in many parts, the first of which appeared in France in 1904, and in America, in translation, in 1910.

Romany Rye, The. A story by George Borrow, published in 1857. It is a sequel to "Lavengro."

Romblón (rōm-blōn'). 1. An island of the Philippines, the third in size in the province to which it gives the name. It lies between Sibuyán and Tablas of the same group. Area, 37 square miles. Population, 9,347.—2. A province of the Philippines. It is situated in the Visayan Sea, and is bounded by Marinduque and Luzón on the north, Masbate on the east, Panay on the south, and Mindoro on the west. It consists of Tablas, Sibuyán, Romblón, and other islands. Capital, Romblón. The best harbors are Romblón Bay, on the western coast of Romblón Island, and Port Loog, on the western coast of Tablas Island. The surface of the province as a whole is elevated. The highest peak is Guitiguitin, in Sibuyán Island. Gold is found in the province. Among the products are tobacco, hemp, copra, corn, and sweet potatoes. The inhabitants are Visayans. Area, 573 square miles. Population, 52,848.

3. A town, the capital of Romblón province, situated on Romblón Bay in lat. 12° 35′ N., long. 122° 17′ E. Civilized population of municipality, 10,095.

Ronner (ron'ėr), Mme. Henriette. Born at Amsterdam, May 31, 1821: died March 3, 1909. A painter of animals, especially of cats, the daughter and pupil of Josephus Augustus Knip, the animal and landscape painter.

Rood (rōd), Ogden Nicholas. Born at Danbury, Conn., Feb. 3, 1831: died at New York, Nov. 12, 1902. An American physicist, professor of physics in Columbia University from 1863, best known for his work in optics. His chief work is "Modern Chromatics" (1881).

Roof of the World. See Pamir.

Roosevelt (rō'zę-velt). A borough in Middlesex County, New Jersey, incorporated in 1906. Population, 5,786, (1910).

Roosevelt (rō'zę-velt). A steam-vessel, with auxiliary sails, specially constructed to meet the requirements of arctic work in the search for the north pole conducted by Commander Robert E. Peary. She is 184 feet long, 35.5 feet wide, and 16.2 feet deep, with a maximum load displacement of 1,500 tons. She was built by Captain Charles B. Dix at Bucksport, Maine, and was launched March 23, 1905. In 1910 she was purchased to be used as a wrecking vessel.

Roosevelt*, Theodore. His later works include "Hunting Trips of a Ranchman" (1885), "Ranch Life and the Hunting Trail" (1888), "Essays on Practical Politics" (1888), "The Winning of the West" (1889–96), "The Wilderness Hunter" (1893), "American Ideals, and Other Essays" (1897), "Rough Riders" (1899), "Oliver Cromwell" (1900), "The Strenuous Life" (1900), "Addresses and Presidential Messages" (1904), "Outdoor Pastimes of an American Hunter" (1905), "Good Hunting" (1907), "African Game Trails" (1910), "The New Nationalism" (1911), etc.

Root (rōt), Elihu. Born at Clinton, N. Y., Feb. 15, 1845. An American lawyer and statesman. He was graduated at Hamilton College in 1864 and at the New York University Law School in 1867. He was United States district attorney in New York city 1883–85; was chairman of the judiciary committee in the New York constitutional convention 1894; was a member of the Alaska Boundary Tribunal which sat in London in 1903; was secretary of war 1899–1904; was president of the New York Bar Association 1904–05; was secretary of state 1905–09; and was United States senator from New York 1909–.

Root (rōt), John Wellborn. Born at Lumpkin, Ga., Jan. 10, 1850: died at Chicago, Jan. 15, 1891. An American architect. In 1873 he went to Chicago and associated himself with Daniel Hudson Burnham. He was appointed consulting architect of the World's Fair Commission, but died while the work was in progress.

Ropes (rōps), John Codman. Born at St. Petersburg, Russia, April 28, 1836: died at Boston, Mass., Oct. 28, 1899. An American military historian. He was graduated at Harvard in 1857 and was admitted to the bar in 1861. His works include "The Army under Pope: Campaigns of the Civil War Series" (1881), "The First Napoleon" (1885), "The Campaign of Waterloo" (1892–93), "The Story of the Civil War" (parts 1 and 2, 1894, 1898), etc.

Rosedale (rōz'dāl). A city in Wyandotte County, Kansas, 5 miles southwest of Kansas City, near the Kansas River. It has iron manufactures. Population, 5,960, (1910).

Rosen (rō'zen), Baron Roman Romanovitch de. A contemporary Russian diplomatist. He was secretary of the Russian legation, and later minister, at Tokio; was consul-general in New York; was first secretary of the Russian embassy at Washington during President Cleveland's administration; and was Russian ambassador to Washington June 13, 1905–11. He was associated with Count Witte in the peace negotiations between Japan and Russia which resulted in the treaty of Portsmouth, Sept. 5, 1905.

Rosenkavalier (rō'zen-käv-ä-lēr'). An opera by Richard Strauss, first produced at Dresden, Jan. 26, 1911.

Rosmead (roz'mēd), Baron. See ★Robinson, Hercules George Robert.

Rosmer (rōs'mer), Ernst. See ★Bernstein, Frau.

Ross (ros), Edward Alsworth. Born at Virden, Ill., Dec. 12, 1866. An American sociologist, professor of sociology in the University of Wisconsin. He has been professor in the universities of Indiana, Cornell, Stanford, and Nebraska, and lecturer at Chicago and Harvard. He was professor of sociology in Stanford University, California, 1893–1900, and his resignation of this position was reported to be due to an attempt on the part of the university to restrict the freedom of academic discussion of economic and sociological questions. He has published "Social Control" (1901), "The Foundations of Sociology" (1905), "Sin and Society" (1907), "Social Psychology," (1908), etc.

Ross (ros), Major Sir Ronald. Born May 13, 1857. A British pathologist, professor of tropical medicine in the University of Liverpool and the Liverpool School of Tropical Medicine. He is best known for his investigations in malaria, and especially for his discoveries with regard to the development of the malarial parasites in mosquitos (1897–98). He received the Nobel prize for medicine in 1902. He was made a K. C. B. in 1911.

Rostand*, Edmond. Among his later works are "Un soir à Hernani" (1902), "Les mots" (1905), "Chantecler" (1907–09), "Le bois sacré" (1909), etc. He became a member of the French Academy in 1903.

Roswell (roz'wel). The county-seat of Chaves County, New Mexico, in the southeastern part of the State, on the Rio Hondo. It has flour-mills, and is the seat of the New Mexico Military Institute. Population, 6,172, (1910).

Rotch (rōch), Abbott Lawrence. Born at Boston, Mass., Jan. 6, 1851. An American meteorologist, founder and director of the Blue Hill Meteorological Observatory from 1885 and professor of meteorology in Harvard University from 1906. He has published reports of meteorological work at Blue Hill and elsewhere since 1887, "Sounding the Ocean of Air" (1900), "The Conquest of the Air" (1909), etc.

Roty (rō-tē'), Louis Oscar. Born at Paris, June 12, 1846: died there, March 23, 1911. A French engraver of medals and plaquettes. In 1875 he won the Prix de Rome, and in 1888 became a member of the Institute of France. He was especially distinguished for portraits and commemorative pieces. His best-known design is the figure of the woman sowing (La Semeuse) on French coins and postage-stamps.

Roundabout Papers, The. A work by Thackeray, published in 1862.

Rousse (rös), Aimé Joseph Edmond. Born at Paris, May 17, 1817: died Aug. 1, 1906. A French barrister and author. In 1881 he was admitted to the French Academy, succeeding Jules Favre. Among his works are "Consultations sur les décrets du 29 Mars 1880" (1880), "Discours, plaidoyers, et œuvres diverses" (1884), "Discours académiques" (1881–89), "Avocats et magistrats" (1903), etc.

Roux (rō), Prince Paul Émile. Born at Confolens, Charente, Dec. 17, 1853. A French bacteriologist. He studied medicine at Clermont-Ferrand and Paris; was attached to the Faculty of Medicine, Paris, 1874–78; entered the laboratory of Pasteur in 1878; and joined the staff of the Pasteur Institute in 1888, becoming director in 1904. He collaborated with Pasteur in the study of hydrophobia and other infectious diseases, and has conducted researches leading, in particular, to the serum treatment of diphtheria and the discovery of important facts with respect to tetanus, pneumonia, and other diseases.

Rowley (rō'li) Mile. A famous race-course (1 mile 11 yards) at Newmarket, England, said to be named for a favorite race-horse of Charles II. The majority of the races finish at the Rowley Mile post.

Rowson (rou'sǫn), Mrs. (Susanna Haswell). Born at Portsmouth, England, 1762: died at Boston, Mass., March 2, 1824. An English author, actress, and educator, best known for her story of "Charlotte Temple" (which see). Her husband becoming bankrupt, she went on the stage, appeared in Edinburgh 1792–93, and toured in America 1793–97. She superintended a school for girls in Boston, Mass., 1797–1822. Among her publications are "The Inquisitor" (1788), "Charlotte Temple" (1790), "Reuben and Rachel" (1798), etc.

Royalist, Port. See ★Puerto Princesa, 1.

Royal Scottish Museum, The. The name given in 1904 to the Edinburgh Museum of Science and Art. The museum stands on Chambers street, behind the university, and contains collections of natural history, industrial art, and technology. It was founded in 1861.

Royal Victorian Order. A British order instituted by Queen Victoria, April 21, 1896. It consists of the sovereign, honorary members, and ordinary members. The members are divided into five classes: knights grand cross, knights commanders, commanders, members of the fourth class, and members of the fifth class. The ordinary members (numbering over 700) are appointed from subjects of the British crown who have rendered extraordinary or important or personal services to his majesty, his heirs and successors. The abbreviations are G.C.V.O., K.C.V.O., C.V.O., and M.V.O.

Roybet (rwä-bā'), Ferdinand Victor Léon. Born at Uzès, France, April 20, 1840. A French painter and engraver. He studed at the École des Beaux-Arts in Lyons; settled in Paris, where he first exhibited at the Salon in 1865; and became professor of engraving at Lyons. In 1866 his "Un fou sous Henri III." took a medal at the Salon. His subjects are chiefly historical.

Royce (rois), Josiah. Born at Grass Valley, Cal., Nov. 20, 1855. An American philosophical writer and psychologist, professor of the history of philosophy in Harvard University from 1892. He was graduated at the University of California in 1875; studied at Leipsic and Göttingen; was fellow of Johns Hopkins University 1876–78; and was assistant professor of philosophy at Harvard 1882–92. He has written "The Spirit of Modern Philosophy" (1892), "The Conception of God" (1897: with others), "Studies of Good and Evil" (1898), "The World and the Individual" (1899: second series, 1901), "The Conception of Immortality" (1900), "Outlines of Psychology" (1903), "Herbert Spencer" (1904), "Philosophy of Loyalty" (1908), "Race Questions" (1908), etc.

Royle (roil), Edwin Milton. Born at Lexington, Mo., March 2, 1862. An American playwright and actor. He has starred in his own plays, which include "Friends" (1892), "Captain Impudence" (1895), "The Squaw Man" (1905), "The Struggle Everlasting" (1907), and "These Are My People" (1909).

Rozhestvensky (rō-zhest'ven-ski). A Russian rear-admiral. In 1904 he was placed in command of the Baltic fleet ordered for service in the Far East, and became involved in the North Sea incident (which see). He was defeated, seriously wounded, and captured by the Japanese under Admiral Togo in the battle of the Sea of Japan, May 27–28, 1905, and was tried by court martial, July 4–10, 1906, for his surrender and acquitted.

Ruckstuhl (ruk'stöl), Frederic Wellington. Born at Breitenbach, Alsace, May 22, 1853. An American sculptor. He came to the United States when young; attended the public schools of St. Louis; and later studied art in Paris. Among his best works are "Evening," a nude female statue in the Metropolitan Museum, New York; "Solon," a bronze figure in the Congressional Library, Washington; equestrian statues of General Hartranft in Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, and of General Wade Hampton in Columbia, South Carolina; several figures on the appellate court building in New York; the Confederate monument at Baltimore, etc.

Rudder Grange. A humorous story by F. R. Stockton, published in 1879.

Rumford Falls (rum'fȯrd fâlz). A village in Rumford town, Oxford County, Maine, on the Androscoggin River. It has lumber-mills, paper-mills, manufactories of chemicals, etc. Population, 5,427, (1910).

Runciman (run'si-man), Walter. Born at South Shields, Durham, in 1870. An English politician and cabinet officer. He was graduated from Cambridge University (Trinity College) in 1892; was member of Parliament (Radical) from Oldham 1899–1900, and from Dewsbury (Liberal) 1902–; was parliamentary secretary to the local government board 1905–07; financial secretary to the treasury 1907–08; and president of the board of education 1908–.

Ruskin College. A college at Oxford, England, founded in 1899, for working-men who wish to fit themselves for social and public work. It is governed by a council of representatives from various trade-unions. The subjects taught are political economy, industrial and social history, sociology, local government, citizenship, logic, etc. Instruction is also given by correspondence.

Russell (rus'el), Charles Edward. Born at Davenport, Iowa, Sept. 25, 1860. An American journalist and author. He published the Chicago "American" till 1902, and later was an editorial writer for the New York "American," and has contributed many articles to various magazines. He has published "Such Stuff as Dreams" (1902), "The Twin Immortalities" (1904), "The Greatest Trust in the World" (1905), "The Uprising of the Many" (1907), "Thomas Chatterton: the Marvellous Boy" (1908), "Lawless Wealth" (1908), "Why I am a Socialist" (1910), "Business: the Heart of the Nation" (1911), etc.

Russell (rus'el), Charles Wells. Born at Wheeling, (W.) Va., May 16, 1856. An American lawyer and diplomatist. In 1886 he entered the Department of Justice at Washington, and was special assistant attorney-general for insular and territorial affairs 1902–05, and assistant attorney-general of the United States 1905–09. He has acted in a legal capacity for the government in many special cases, both at home and abroad, notably on the Porto Rico evacuation commission in 1898, at Paris in connection with the transfer of the Panama Canal to the United States in 1902, and at Panama as legal adviser in the Canal Zone in 1904. In December, 1909, he was appointed minister to Persia.

Russell (rus'el), Israel Cook. Born at Garrattsville, N. Y., Dec. 10, 1852: died at Ann Arbor, Mich., May 1, 1906. An American geologist, professor of geology in the University of Michigan 1892–1906. He was geologist of the United States Geological Survey 1880–1906. Among his works are "Geological History of Lake Lahontan" (1885), "Lakes of North America" (1894), "Glaciers of North America" (1897), "Volcanoes of North America" (1897), "Rivers of North America" (1898), "North America" (1900), etc.

Russell Sage Foundation. An institution founded in 1907 by Mrs. Russell Sage, with an endowment of $10,000,000, "for the improvement of social and living conditions in the United States." Its aim is to remove causes of distress rather than to relieve individual cases. Among its agencies it includes a charity organization department, for extending the work and increasing the efficiency of charitable bodies; a child-helping department, for promoting improved methods of dealing with dependent, neglected, delinquent, and defective children; a department of child hygiene, for promoting the physical and mental progress of children by means of suitable playgrounds, sports, etc.; a committee on the prevention of blindness; a remedial loans department, for introducing improved forms of loan association; and the Sage Foundation Homes Company, which is establishing at Forest Hills Gardens, Long Island, a collection of model buildings designed to show the possibility of attractive homes among healthful surroundings, at moderate cost, and even with a measure of financial profit. The headquarters of the foundation are at New York city.

Russo-Japanese War. A war between Russia and Japan, waged in Manchuria 1904–05. The chief cause of the war was the occupation (continued notwithstanding repeated promises of withdrawal by the Russian government) of Manchuria by Russia after the Boxer uprising of 1899–1900, with the consequent endangerment of the Japanese preponderance in Korea, which was regarded by Japan as essential to her safety. An earlier cause of irritation was the action of Russia, Germany, and France in preventing the retention by Japan of Port Arthur and the Liao-tung peninsula after the Chinese-Japanese war of 1894–95, and the subsequent leasing of this territory from China by Russia. The principal events of the war were the following: rupture of diplomatic relations with Russia by Japan, Feb. 6, 1904; attack by torpedo-boats of the Japanese fleet under Admiral Togo upon the Russian squadron under Admiral Stark at Port Arthur, Feb. 8, 1904; general attack by the Japanese fleet, Feb. 9, 1904: these two attacks resulting in great injury to the Russians; naval fight off Chemulpo, resulting in the destruction of the Russian cruiser Variag and the gunboat Korietz, Feb. 9, 1904; war declared by Japan, Feb. 10, 1904; Admiral Makaroff succeeded Admiral Stark, Feb. 17, 1904; General Kuropatkin appointed Russian commander-in-chief in Manchuria, Feb. 21, 1904; agreement between Japan and Korea signed at Seul, Feb. 23, 1904; Vladivostok bombarded by Admiral Kamimura, March 6, 1904; Port Arthur bombarded March 21–22, 1904; Wiju occupied by the Japanese, April 6–7, 1904; destruction of the Russian battle-ship Petropavlovsk by a mine and death of Admiral Makaroff, April 13, 1904; Russian Vladivostok squadron appeared off Yuen-san, April 25, 1904; defeat of the Russians under Sassulitch by the Japanese first army under Kuroki, May 1, 1904; the entrance to Port Arthur blocked for battle-ships and cruisers, May 3, 1904; Japanese battle-ship Hatsuse sunk by a mine, May 15, 1904; Japanese victory at Kin-chau (capture of Nan-shan Hill), May 27–28, 1904; occupation of Dalny by the Japanese, May 29–30, 1904: Russians defeated at Telissu and Wafangkau, June 14–15, 1904; unsuccessful sortie of Russian fleet from Port Arthur, June 23, 1904; investment of Port Arthur (after severe preliminary fighting), July 31, 1904,–Jan. 1, 1905; sortie of the Port Arthur fleet, resulting in a sea battle in which most of the Russian vessels were driven back to Port Arthur and the rest dispersed (with the death of Admiral Withöft), Aug. 10, 1904; Vladivostok squadron defeated by Admiral Kamimura (Rurik sunk), Aug. 14, 1904; battle of Liao-yang, resulting in the success of the Japanese under Oyama, the Russians retiring upon Mukden, Aug. 27–Sept. 4, 1904; battle of the Shaho, in which the Russian attack was repulsed, Oct. 9–14, 1904; the Baltic fleet under Rozhestvensky sailed for the Far East, October, 1904, and attacked the Hull fishing fleet on the Doggerbank on the night of Oct. 21–22, 1904; Port Arthur surrendered, Jan. 1, 1905; Russians crossed the Hun river and attacked the Japanese at Haikautai, but were repulsed, Jan. 25–29, 1905; battle of Mukden, resulting in the complete defeat of Kuropatkin and the capture of the city, Feb. 19–March 10, 1905; Kuropatkin relieved of his command and succeeded by Linievitch, March 16, 1905; the Baltic fleet reached Kam-ranh Bay, April 12, 1905; battle of the Sea of Japan and the annihilation of the Baltic fleet by Admiral Togo, May 27–28, 1905; President Roosevelt urged the Russian and Japanese governments to negotiate for peace, June 8, 1905; plenipotentiaries met at Portsmouth, New Hampshire, Aug. 9, 1905; treaty of peace signed, Sept. 5, 1905.

Rutherford (ruth'ėr-fȯrd). A borough in Bergen County, New Jersey, 9 miles northwest of Jersey City. Population, 7,045, (1910).

Rutherford (ruᵺ'ėr-fȯrd), Ernest. Born at Nelson, New Zealand, Aug. 30, 1871. A British physicist, professor of physics in McGill University, Montreal, 1898–1907, and Langworthy professor and director of the physical laboratories at the University of Manchester 1907–. In 1908 he received the Nobel prize for chemistry. He is especially noted for his studies in radioactivity and the ionization of gases by the Röntgen and Becquerel rays. He received the Rumford medal of the Royal Society in 1904. He has written "Radio-activity" (1904), etc.

Ryan (rī'an), Abram Joseph: better known as Father Ryan. Born at Norfolk, Va., Aug. 15, 1839: died at Louisville, Ky., April 22, 1886. An American poet and Roman Catholic priest. Shortly after his ordination he entered the Confederate army and served through most of the Civil War as a chaplain and sometimes in the ranks. In Augusta, Georgia, he founded and edited "The Banner of the South" (1868). In 1880 he published his "Poems, Patriotic, Religious, and Miscellaneous," among the most popular of which are "The Conquered Banner," "The Sword of Robert E. Lee," "Gather the Sacred Dust," "The Lost Cause," and "The Flag of Erin."

Ryan (rī'an), Patrick John. Born at Thurles, County Tipperary, Ireland, Feb. 20, 1831: died at Philadelphia, Feb. 11, 1911. A Roman Catholic prelate, archbishop of Philadelphia 1884–1911. He was consecrated in 1872 titular bishop of Tricomia, Palestine, and coadjutor bishop and later (1883) archbishop of St. Louis. He published "What Catholics do not Believe" (1877), "Some of the Causes of Modern Religious Skepticism" (1883), etc.

Rydberg (rėd'berg), Abraham Viktor: known as Viktor. Born at Jönköping, Sweden, Dec. 18, 1828: died at Stockholm, Sept. 21, 1895. A Swedish author and critic, professor of the history of civilization at Stockholm from 1884. He was elected a member of the Swedish Academy in 1877. Among his works are "Fribytaren pa Östersjön" (1857), "Den siste Athenaren" (1859), "Bibelns lära om Kristus" (1862), "Romerska Dagar" (1877), "Undersökningar i germansk Mythologi" (1886–89), "Wapensmeden" (1891), "Varia: Tankar och bilder" (1894), and "Singoalla" (1895).

Saar (zär), Ferdinand von. Born at Vienna, Sept. 30, 1833: died at Döbling, near Vienna, July 24, 1906. A noted Austrian poet and dramatist. His works include the tragedies "Hildebrand" (1865) and "Heinrich's Tod" (1867), combined as "Kaiser Heinrich IV." (1872); "Die beiden de Witt" (1875), "Tempesta" (1881), "Novellen aus Österreich" (1877), "Gedichte" (1882), "Schicksale" (1888), "Frauenbilder" (1892) "Nachklänge" (1899), "Ginevra" (1904), "Tragik des Lebens" (1906). He committed suicide.

Sabatier (sä-bä-tyā'), Paul. Born at Saint Michel-de-Chabrillonoux, France, Aug. 3, 1858. A noted French theologian and historian. He became vicar of the Church of St. Nicolas at Strasburg in 1885, and pastor at Saint Cierge in 1889, retiring from active pastoral work four years later. His best-known work is the "Vie de Saint François d'Assise" (1893), based on long lost documents discovered by him. In 1899 he was elected a member of the Royal Academy of Rome, and in 1902 founded the Société Internationale des Études Franciscaines. Among his other publications are "La Didaché" (1885), "Collection d'études et de documents sur l'histoire religieuse et littéraire du moyen-âge" (1900–), "Disestablishment in France" (English translation, 1906), "Les modernistes" (1909), etc.

Sachs (säċhs), Julius von. Born at Breslau, Oct. 2, 1832: died at Würzburg, May 29, 1897. A noted German botanist, professor in the University of Würzburg from 1868: the founder of experimental vegetable physiology. He wrote "Handbuch der Experimentalphysiologie der Pflanzen" (1865), "Lehrbuch der Botanik" (1868), "Vorlesungen über Pflanzenphysiologie" (1882), "Geschichte der Botanik" (1875), "Gesammelten Abhandlungen über Pflanzenphysiologie" (1892–93), etc.

Safford (saf'ȯrd), William Edwin. Born at Chillicothe, Ohio, Dec. 14, 1859. An American botanist and ethnologist, assistant botanist of the United States Department of Agriculture from 1902. He was graduated at the United States Naval Academy in 1880, and was vice-governor of Guam 1889–1900.

Safonof (sä-fon'of), Vasili Ilitch. Born in the government of Caucasus, Feb. 6, 1852. A Russian pianist and conductor. He was first a pupil of Leschetitzky, and in 1878 entered the St. Petersburg Conservatory. In 1880 he toured as a pianist, and subsequently taught at the St. Petersburg and Moscow conservatories, becoming director of the latter in 1889. He conducted the concerts of the New York Philharmonic Society 1906–09. Among his piano pupils were Lhevinne and Scriabin.

Sage (sāj), Russell. Born in Verona township, N. Y., Aug. 4, 1816: died at New York, July 22, 1906. An American financier. He carried on a wholesale grocery business 1839–57 at Troy, New York, and served as a Whig member of Congress 1853–57. In 1863 he removed to New York city, where as an associate of Jay Gould in developing and selling western railways, and afterward as a speculator in stocks and a money-lender, he accumulated a large fortune, estimated at from $60,000,000 upward. In 1869 he married Margaret Olivia Slocum. She inherited the bulk of his fortune, and has given large sums for religious, philanthropic, and educational purposes. See ★Russell Sage Foundation.

St. Aldwyn, Viscount. See ★Hicks-Beach.

St. Andrew, Brotherhood of. An organization of men in the Protestant Episcopal Church, formed in 1883 in Chicago. It works under two rules, known as the the "Rule of Prayer" and the "Rule of Service." In the United States there are 1,500 chapters, with a membership of 15,000. There is also a junior department, with a membership of about 6,000. Allied organizations exist in Canada, Great Britain, Japan, New Zealand, the West Indies, etc.

Saint Andrews*. University College at Dundee has been affiliated with it since 1897.

St. Andrew's Night. The 29th of November. It is celebrated in some parts of Germany by forms of divination very similar to those which are practised in Scotland on Hallowe'en. Taylor, Notes to Faust.

St. Bernard (sānt bėr-närd'). A village in Hamilton County, Ohio, 5 miles northeast of Cincinnati. Population, 5,002, (1910).

St. Clair (sānt klār). A borough in Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, incorporated in 1904. Population, 5,640, (1910).

St. Clair (sānt klār). A borough in Schuylkill County, Pennsylvania, 38 miles northwest of Allentown. It has important coal-mining interests and manufactories of miners' supplies. Population, 6,455, (1910).

Sainte Cunégonde (sant kön-nā-gond'). A city in Hochelaga County, Quebec, Canada, adjoining Montreal. Population, 10,912.

St. Francis Xavier, College of. See ★College of St. Francis Xavier.

St. George (sānt jôrj). The second island in importance of the Pribylof group in Bering Sea. It is famous for its fur-seal rookeries, which are about one third as populous as those of St. Paul. The village of St. George numbers about 100 Aleuts, the sealers and their families. It has a Greek-Russian church, a company store, and an English school. Length, 12 miles. Breadth, 4½ miles. Area, about 39 square miles.

St. Helier. See ★Jeune.

St. James's Club. A London diplomatic club, at 106 Piccadilly, founded in 1857. It has 800 members.

St. John's College. A Roman Catholic institution of learning situated in Fordham, New York city. It was opened in 1841, and in 1846 was raised to the rank of a university and passed under the control of the fathers of the Society of Jesus. It offers classical and non-classical courses and has about 110 collegiate and 440 academic and grammar students. In 1907 its corporate name was changed to Fordham University (which see in supplement).

St. Joseph (sānt jō'zef). The county-seat of Berrien County, Michigan, on Lake Michigan, at the mouth of the St. Joseph River. It is the shipping-point for the surrounding fruit-growing region, and has manufactories of boats, paper, motor-cycles, flour, etc. Population, 5,936, (1910).

St. Lawrence*. The great bridge under construction across the river below Quebec collapsed on Aug. 29, 1907, killing a number of workmen. The Dominion government has undertaken its reconstruction. The new design calls for a cantilever bridge with a total length of 2,930 feet.

St. Louis University. An institution of learning controlled and directed by the fathers of the Society of Jesus, situated at St. Louis, Missouri. It was founded in 1818 as St. Louis Academy and incorporated as a university in 1832. It comprises a college of arts and sciences; schools of commerce and finance, dentistry (St. Louis College of Dentistry, affiliated 1908), divinity, medicine, and philosophy and science; and an institute of law. It is attended by about 900 students.

St. Marys (sānt mā'riz). A city in Auglaize County, Ohio, on the St. Marys River, 21 miles southwest of Lima. It has machine-shops, woolen-mills, and manufactories of paper, plate-glass, wheels, chains, etc. Population, 5,732, (1910).

St. Marys (sānt mā'riz). A borough in Elk County, Pennsylvania, in a lumbering and coal-mining region. It has lumber-mills, electrical supply factories, etc. A German Benedictine convent is located here. Population, 6,346, (1910).

St. Paul (sānt pâl). The principal island of the Pribylof group in Bering Sea. It is famous for its fur-seal rookeries, which occupy about seven miles of its coast-line. The village of St. Paul numbers about 200 inhabitants, natives of the Aleutian Islands brought over to carry on the fur-seal industry. It has a church of the Greek-Russian faith, an English school, and a company store. Extreme length, 13½ miles. Breadth, about 7½ miles. Area, about 43 square miles.

St. Paul's School. An English public school founded by John Colet (1466–1519), dean of St. Paul's Cathedral. The design of the founder was to establish a school where 153 boys of good capacity, without restriction as to nationality, should receive a sound Christian education and a knowledge of Greek as well as of Latin. The first head-master, William Lily (1468–1522), was appointed in 1512. The school was removed from its original site in St. Paul's Churchyard, London, to Hammersmith Road, West Kensington, in 1884. Capitation scholars (paying a tuition fee) have been added to the foundation scholars, and the number of pupils is now about 580.

Saintsbury*, George Edward Bateman. His later works include "Miscellaneous Essays" (1892), "Corrected Impressions" (1895), "Nineteenth Century Literature" (1896), "The Flourishing of Romance and the Rise of Allegory" (1897), "Sir Walter Scott" (1897), "A Short History of English Literature" (1898), "Matthew Arnold" (1899), "A History of Criticism" (3 vols., 1900–04), "The Earlier Renaissance" (1901), "Loci Critici" (1903), "Minor Caroline Poets" (2 vols., 1905–06), "History of Elizabethan Literature" (1906), "A History of English Prosody" (Vol. I., 1906; Vol. II., 1908; Vol. III., 1910; condensed into "Historical Manual of English Prosody," 1911), "History of XIX. Century Literature" (1906), "The Later Nineteenth Century" (1907), etc.

Saionji (sī'ōn-ji), Marquis Kin-mochi. Born at Kioto, October, 1849. A Japanese statesman, premier 1906–08 and 1911–. He studied in Paris 1870–80; was appointed minister to Austria in 1885 and to Germany in 1887; was minister of education 1894–96, and again in the third administration of Marquis Ito; and has several times been prime minister ad interim.

Sakhalin. See Saghalin.

Sala*, George Augustus Henry. He wrote also "Things I Have Seen and People I Have Known" (1894) and "Life and Adventures of George Augustus Sala" (1895).

Salamanca (sal-ą-mang'kā). A village in Cattaraugus County, New York, on the Allegheny River, 28 miles northeast of Jamestown. Its chief industries are lumbering and manufacturing. Population, 5,792, (1910).

Salem (sā'lem). A town in Forsyth County, North Carolina, 91 miles northwest of Raleigh. It has manufacturing interests, and is the seat of the Salem Female Academy and College (Moravian). Population, 5,533, (1910).

Salisbury (sâlz'bu-ri). The county-seat of Wicomico County, Maryland, on the Wicomico River. It has railroad repair-shops, canning-factories, lumber- and flour-mills, etc. Population, 6,690, (1910).

Salisbury (sâlz'bu-ri). The county-seat of Rowan County, North Carolina, 36 miles northeast of Charlotte. It is in an agricultural region, and has foundries, wagon-works, cotton-factories, etc. It is the seat of a State normal school and of Livingstone College, both for the colored race. It has also a national cemetery, in which are the graves of those who died in a Confederate prison situated here during the Civil War. Population, 7,153, (1910).

Salisbury (sâlz'bu-ri). The capital of Southern Rhodesia, in South Africa, situated about lat. 18° S., long. 31° E. It is on the railway from the Cape, and is also connected with Beira on the coast of Lorenzo Marques. Formerly Fort Salisbury.

Salisbury (sâlz'bu-ri), Rollin D. Born at Spring Prairie, Wis., Aug. 17, 1858. An American geologist, professor of geographic geology in the University of Chicago from 1892, dean of the Ogden School of Science from 1897, and head of the department of geography from 1903. He was professor in Beloit College 1884–91, and in the University of Wisconsin 1891–92. He has published a treatise on geology (with Chamberlin), several volumes on the geology of New Jersey, "Elementary Physiography" (1910), etc.

Salome. 3. An opera ("drama") in one act, music by Richard Strauss, founded on a play by Oscar Wilde. The leading characters are Salome (the daughter of Herodias) and John the Baptist. It was first produced in Dresden, Dec. 9, 1905, and in New York in 1907.

Salomon (säl'ō-mon), Haym. Born at Lissa, Poland, in 1740: died at Philadelphia, Jan. 6, 1785. A Jewish financier. He settled in New York about 1772, and identified himself with the American cause. He was imprisoned by the British shortly after their occupation of New York, but escaped to Philadelphia in 1778, where he dealt in bills of exchange. He negotiated many such for Robert Morris, the superintendent of finance, and was formally recognized as the official broker. He held similar relations with the French army and consul, and aided Madison, James Wilson, and other Revolutionary patriots.

Salton Sea*. The valley in which the Salton Sea lies is, at its lowest point, about three hundred feet below sea-level, and the waters of the Colorado have often found their way into it. A notable incursion occurred in 1891, forming a lake about 30 miles long, 10 miles wide, and very shallow, which rapidly diminished. In the spring of 1905 the river, in flood, enlarged a passage which had been cut, for purposes of irrigation, four miles below the Mexican border, and by August was discharging the greater part of its waters into the Salton Sea, which enlarged until it attained an area of over 400 square miles and a depth of about 90 feet. After several unsuccessful attempts and the expenditure of vast sums of money (required for the protecting of agricultural property and that of the Southern Pacific Railroad), the inflow of water was stopped in July, 1907.

Saltus* (sâl'tus), Edgar Evertson. His later works include "The Pace that Kills" (1888), "A Transaction in Hearts" (1889), "Imperial Purple" (1893), "Purple and Fine Women" (1903), "The Pomps of Satan" (1904), "The Perfume of Eros" (1905), "Historia Amoris" (1906), "Daughters of the Rich" (1909), etc.

Salvador*. The republic is divided into 14 departments: Ahuachapan, Cabañas, Chalatenango, Cuscatlan, La Libertad, La Paz, La Union, Morazan, San Miguel, San Salvador, San Vincente, Santa Ana, Sonsonate, and Usulutan. The capital is San Salvador. See also ★Central American Arbitration Treaty.

Salvini (säl-vē'nē), Alessandro. Born at Rome, Dec. 21, 1861: died at Florence, Dec. 15, 1896. An actor, son of Tommaso Salvini. He was educated in Switzerland and at Florence as a civil engineer; came to America in 1881, and made his first appearance on the stage in New York at the Union Square Theater in 1882. His best known rôles were those of the Count in "Monte Cristo," D'Artagnan in "The Three Guardsmen," and Hamlet.

Samal (sä'mäl). An island in the Gulf of Davao, southern Mindanao, Philippine Islands. Area, 147 square miles. Population, 1,096.

Sámar. 2. A province of the Philippines consisting of Sámar and numerous small islands, of which Daram is the largest. It is bounded by the Strait of San Bernardino (separating it from Luzón) on the northwest; the Pacific Ocean on the north and east; the Pacific Ocean and San Pedro and San Pablo Bay (separating it from Leyte) on the south; and San Pedro and San Pablo Bay, the Strait of San Juanico (separating it from Leyte), Daram Channel (separating it from Bilirán island), and the Visayan Sea (separating it from Masbate) on the west. Capital, Catbalogan. The coast of Sámar island is indented by many bays. The principal harbors are Boroñgán Bay and Pambujan Bay on the eastern coast and safe for large vessels in all weather. The surface is mountainous, but without great elevations. Few of the rivers are navigable even for native boats. Iron, lead, and gold are found. Cocoa, hemp, bananas, copra, corn, sugar-cane, and sweet potatoes are the chief products. The inhabitants are Visayans. Area of the province, 5,276 square miles. Population, 266,237.

Sammarco (säm-mär'kō), Mario. Born at Palermo in 1873. An Italian barytone singer. He studied with Antonio Cantelli, and made his début in Milan in "Le Villi." He made his first appearance in London in 1904, in "La Tosca," and in America in 1906, at the Manhattan Opera House, in "Pagliacci." He has also sung in Russia, Spain, and South America. His repertoire includes Don Giovanni, Iago, Amonasro, Rigoletto, Tonio, Scarpia, and Falstaff. He created one of the leading barytone rôles in Victor Herbert's "Natoma."

Sampaloc (säm-pä'lōk). A suburb of the city of Manila, Luzón, Philippine Islands. Civilized population, 18,772.

Samson et Dalila (soṅ-sôṅ' ā dä-lē-lä'). An opera by Charles Camille St.-Saëns (words by Ferdinand Lemaire), first produced at Weimar in 1877.

San Angelo (san an'je-lō). The county-seat of Tom Green County, Texas, incorporated as a city in 1903. It is on the Concho River, and is important as a shipping-point for cattle, wool, nuts, etc. Population, 10,321, (1910).

San Antonio (sän än-tō'ni-ō) de Padua, Mission of. A Franciscan mission (the third) in California, founded by Father Junípero Serra in July, 1771, near the site of the present town of Jolon, in Monterey County.

San Bernardino (san bėr-när-dē'nō). The county-seat of San Bernardino County, California, 53 miles east of Los Angeles. It is a noted health resort, and has extensive fruit-growing interests, also railroad shops, lumber-mills, etc. Population, 12,779, (1910).

San Bernardino (sän ber-när-dē'nō), Strait of. A strait in the Philippines, separating Luzón and Samar islands and connecting the Visayan Sea with the Pacific Ocean.

Sanborn (san'born), Franklin Benjamin. Born at Hampton Falls, N. H., Dec. 15, 1831. An American journalist, author, and social reformer. He was graduated at Harvard in 1855; was a member of the Free Soil party in New Hampshire and Massachusetts; became secretary to the Massachusetts State Kansas Committee in 1856; and was one of the founders of the American Social Science Association, of the National Prison Association, and of the National Conference of Charities. He was an editor of the Boston "Commonwealth" 1863–67, of the Springfield "Republican" 1868–1906, and of the "Journal of Social Science" 1876–97. In 1879 he founded, with Bronson Alcott and W. T. Harris, the Concord School of Philosophy (closed in 1888). Among his works are biographies of Emerson, Thoreau, Alcott, Dr. S. G. Howe, and Dr. Pliny Earle, "Life and Letters of John Brown" (1885), "The Personality of Thoreau" (1901), "The Personality of Emerson" (1903), a "History of New Hampshire" (1904), "Life and Earliest Writings of Thoreau" (1906), "Bronson Alcott at Alcott House, England, and Fruitlands, New England" (1908), "Hawthorne and his Friends" (1908), and "Recollections of Seventy Years" (1909).

San Carlos (sän kär'lōs). A municipality of Pangasinán province, in the western part of Luzón, Philippine Islands. Civilized population, 27,166.

San Carlos Borromeo (sän kär'lōs bor-rōmā'ō) de Monterey, Mission of. A Franciscan mission (the second) in California, founded by Father Junípero Serra in 1770, on the site of the present town of Monterey, and removed in 1771 to Carmelo valley: from that time called the Carmelo or Carmel Mission.

Sanday (san'dā), William. Borne at Holme Pierrepont, Nottinghamshire, Aug. 1, 1843. An English theologian and historian, professor of divinity and canon of Christ Church, Oxford, from 1895. His works include "Authorship and Historical Character of the Fourth Gospel" (1872), "The Gospels in the Second Century" (1876), "The Oracles of God" (1891), "Commentary on the Epistle to the Romans" (1895), etc.

Sandham (sand'am), Henry. Born at Montreal in 1842: died at London, June 21, 1910. A Canadian painter and illustrator. As an illustrator he was connected with many publishing houses in America and Europe. His paintings consist chiefly of portraits and historical scenes. He was a charter member of the Royal Canadian Academy of Art (1880).

San Diego (sän di-ā'gō) de Alcalá, Mission of. A mission founded by Father Junípero Serra in southern California in 1769: the oldest of the missions in that State. There are remains of the buildings about 6½ miles north of San Diego.

Sands (sandz), William Franklin. Born at Washington, July 29, 1874. An American diplomatist. He was second secretary of the American legation at Tokio 1896–97; first secretary at Seul, Korea, 1897–99; adviser to the Emperor of Korea 1900–05; secretary of the legation at Panama 1905–07, and at Guatemala 1907–08; and secretary of the embassy to Mexico 1908–09. In 1909 he was appointed minister to Guatemala.

San Fernando (sän fẽr-nän'dō). 1. A port and the capital of La Unión province, in the western part of Luzón, Philippine Islands. It is situated on San Fernando Bay in lat. 16° 39′ N., long. 120° 19′ 30″ E. Civilized population of municipality, 16,095.

2. A municipality of Cebú province, in the Philippine Islands. It is situated in the eastern part of Cebú Island. Population, 15,451.

Sanford (san'fȯrd). A town in York County, Maine, 31 miles southwest of Portland. It has manufactories of cloth, carriages, shoes, blankets, yarn, etc. Population, 9,049, (1910).

Sanford (san'fȯrd), Edmund Clark. Born at Oakland, Cal., Nov. 10, 1859. An American psychologist. He was assistant professor 1892–1901, and professor 1901–09, of experimental and comparative psychology in Clark University, and was elected president of Clark College in 1909. He has published "A Course in Experimental Psychology" (1898), etc.

San Francisco de la Espada (sän frän-thēs'kō dā lä äs-pä'dä), Mission of. A Franciscan mission founded in 1731, on the San Antonio River, about 9 miles south of San Antonio, Texas.

San Gabriel (san gā'bri-el). A township in Los Angeles County, California, 10 miles east of Los Angeles. Population, including Alhambra city, 8,550, (1910).

San Gabriel Arcangel (sän gä'brē-el ärkän'hel), Mission of. A Franciscan mission (the fourth) in California, founded by Father Junípero Serra in September, 1771, on the site of the present township of San Gabriel.

Sangre de Cristo Range*. According to the United States Geographic Board the range extends from Poncha Pass, Colorado, to the neighborhood of Santa Fé, New Mexico, thus including the southern portion, locally known as the Culebra Range. Blanca Peak, in this range, is 14,390 feet high, and is surpassed by Mount Massive (14,424).

Sangster (sang'stėr), Mrs. (Margaret Elizabeth Munson). Born at New Rochelle, N. Y., Feb. 22, 1838. An American journalist, poet, and writer of juveniles. She was associate editor of "Hearth and Home" 1871–73, of "The Christian at Work" 1873–79, and of "The Christian Intelligencer" 1879–; "Postmistress" of "Harper's Young People" 1882–89; and editor of "Harper's Bazaar" 1889–99. She has been on the staff of the "Christian Herald" since 1894, of the "Ladies' Home Journal" 1899–1904, and of the "Woman's Home Companion" 1904–. Among her works are "Poems of the Household" (1882), "Winsome Womanhood" (1900), "Lyrics of Love" (1901), "Good Manners for all Occasions" (1905), "The Story Bible" (1905), "Happy School Days" (1909), etc.

San Isidro (sän ē-sē'drō). A town, the capital of Nueva Écija province, Luzón, Philippine Islands. It is situated on the Rio Grande de la Pampanga, in lat. 15° 18′ 30″ N., long. 120° 51′ 30″ E. Civilized population of municipality, 9,800.

San José de Buenavista (sän hō-sā' dā bwänä-vēs'tä). A town, the capital of Antique province, Panay Island, in the Philippines. It is in lat. 10° 44′ N., long. 121° 54′ E. Civilized population of municipality, 6,768.

San Juan (sän hō-än'). A department in the northern part of Porto Rico, bounded by the Atlantic Ocean on the north, Humacao on the east, Guayama and Ponce on the south, and Arecibo on the west. Area, 542 square miles. Population, 160,046. Formerly Bayamón.

San Juan Capistrano (sän hō-än' kä-pisträ'nō), Mission of. A Franciscan mission founded by Father Junípero Serra in November, 1776, near the site of the present San Juan, in Orange County, California. The ruins of the mission have been in part restored.

San Juan Range*. It includes all the mountains of southwest Colorado south of Gunnison River, west of San Luis Valley, and east of the Rio Grande Southern Railroad. U. S. Geographic Board.

San Luis Obispo (sän lō'is ō-bis'pō). The county-seat of San Luis Obispo County, California, 8 miles from the Pacific Ocean. It has a wireless telegraph station. Population, 5,157, (1910).

San Luis Obispo (sän lō'is ō-bis'pō) de Tolosa, Mission of. A Franciscan mission (the fifth) in California, founded by Father Junípero Serra in September, 1772, on the site of the present city of San Luis Obispo. The original buildings have been reconstructed.

San Marino*. The ancient Arringo, a general council of heads of families, was revived as a part of the constitution in 1906.

San Miguel (sän mi-gel'), Mission of. A Franciscan mission established in July, 1797, on the site of the present San Miguel, on the Salinas River, about 33 miles north of San Luis Obispo, California.

San-mun Bay (sän-mön' bā). A bay on the coast of Che-kiang, China, containing several islands, among them Niu-tau. On February 28, 1899, Italy presented to China a demand for its lease as a coaling-station and naval base, with the adjacent territory as a sphere of influence. The demand was supported by the British minister, Sir Claude Macdonald, but was not granted by the Chinese government.

San Nicolas (sän nē'kō-läs). 1. A division of the city of Manila, Luzón, Philippine Islands. Civilized population, 29,055.—2. A town in the western part of Ilocos Norte province, Luzón, Philippine Islands. Population, 8,527.

San Pablo (sän päb'lō). A municipality in the southern part of La Laguna province, Luzón, Philippine Islands. Civilized population, 22,612.

San Pedro (san pē'drō). A seaport in Los Angeles County, California, on the Pacific coast. It has a wireless telegraph station. Population, about 2,000.

Sansovino (sän-sō-vē'nō), or Sansavino, Jacopo or Giacomo (Jacopo Tatti). Born near Florence, 1479: died at Venice, Nov. 27, 1570. An Italian sculptor and architect. His first master was Andrea Sansovino, whose name he assumed. About 1507 he went to Rome and entered the service of Pope Julius II. and Bramante. On the sack of Rome in 1527 he went to Venice, where he spent the remainder of his life, and designed a large number of splendid buildings. He had charge of the Piazza di San Marco with the church, campanile, and adjacent public buildings, except the Doge's Palace.

Santa Ana (san'tä an'ä). The county-seat of Orange County, California, 31 miles southeast of Los Angeles. Its principal interests are dairying and fruit-growing. Pop., 8,429, (1910).

Santa Barbara (sän'tä bär'bä-rä). A municipality in the southeastern part of Iloilo province, Panay, Philippine Islands. Civilized population, 15,149.

Santa Barbara (sän'tä bär'bä-rä), Mission of. A Franciscan mission founded in 1786 by Father Junípero Serra near the site of the present town of Santa Barbara, California. It has been in operation without intermission since its establishment, and is still conducted by the Franciscans.

Santa Clara (sän'tä klä'rä). A province of Cuba, situated between the provinces of Matanzas and Camagüey. Capital, Santa Clara. Area, 8,257 square miles. Population, 457,431.

Santa Clara (sän'tä klä'rä), Mission of. A Franciscan mission in California, founded in January, 1777, by Father Junípero Serra near the present town of Santa Clara, and in 1781 removed to its present location in that place. A church built 1781–84 was damaged by earthquakes in 1812, and a new one was erected 1825–26.

Santa Cruz (sän'tä kröth). 1. A district of the city of Manila, Luzón, Philippine Islands. Civilized population, 35,030.—2. A town, the capital of La Laguna province, Luzón. It is situated on the eastern shore of Laguna de Bay in lat. 14° 18′ N., long. 121° 24′ 30″ E. Civilized population of municipality, 12,747.

3. A municipality of Marinduque subprovince in the Philippine Islands. It is situated on Port Santa Cruz, in the northern part of Marinduque Island. Civilized population, 16,350.

Santa Fé (san'tä fā') Trail. A route of travel in the southwestern United States, of great importance before the construction of the transcontinental railways, extending from Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, to Santa Fé, New Mexico. It passed south of Topeka and after reaching the Arkansas river near Great Bend followed approximately the course later taken by the Atchison, Topeka, and Santa Fé Railroad. From Cimarron Crossing, near Fort Dodge, a branch trail followed a more southerly and direct route to Santa Fé.

Santa Monica (san'tä mon'i-kä). A city in Los Angeles County, California, on Monica Bay, 15 miles west of Los Angeles. Population, 7,847, (1910).

Santayana (sän-tä-yä'nä), George. Born at Madrid, Spain, Dec. 16, 1863, of Spanish parentage. An American poet, essayist, educator, and philosopher, assistant professor of philosophy in Harvard University from 1889 and professor 1907–. He was Hyde lecturer at the Sorbonne, Paris, 1905–06. Among his works are "Sonnets and Other Verses" (1894), "The Sense of Beauty: Outlines of Æsthetic Theory" (1896), "Lucifer: a Theological Tragedy" (1899), "Interpretations of Poetry and Religion" (1900), "The Hermit of Carmel, and Other Poems" (1901), "The Life of Reason," a work in five volumes: "Reason in Common Sense" (1905), "Reason in Society" (1905), "Reason in Religion" (1905), "Reason in Art" (1905), and "Reason in Science" (1906), and "Three Philosophical Poets: Lucretius, Dante, and Goethe" (1910).

Santee (san-tē'). [Dakota I-san-a-ti.] A division of the Dakota Indians.

Santiago de Cuba. 2. The former name of the province of Oriente, Cuba.

Santos-Dumont (sän'tōs-dü-môn'), Alberto. Born at São Paulo, Brazil, July 20, 1873. A Brazilian aëronaut. He made his first ascent at Paris in 1897, and in 1898 began the construction of his first dirigible air-ship, consisting of a cylindrical balloon propelled by a motor. Since then he has invented many improvements in steering devices, propelling mechanism, etc. In 1900 he received the prize of 4,000 francs from the Paris Aëro Club, and in 1901 was awarded the Deutsch prize of 100,000 francs for the first dirigible balloon or flying-machine to make a prescribed circuit between Saint-Cloud and the Eiffel Tower in a maximum time of thirty minutes, receiving at the same time 125,000 francs and a gold medal from the government of Brazil. Later he turned his attention to the construction and use of aëroplanes, and on Sept. 13, 1909, in a monoplane, flew about five miles in seven minutes. He has written "My Air-ships" (1904).

Santo Tomás (sän'tō tō-mäs'). 1. A bay on the coast of La Unión province, western Luzón, Philippine Islands: safe in the northeast monsoon for vessels not exceeding 15 feet draft.—2. A peak in the eastern part of La Unión province, Luzón. Height, 7,298 feet.

Sapulpa (sa-pul'pä). A city in Creek County, Oklahoma, on a small branch of the Arkansas River. It has cotton-gins, cotton-compresses, etc. Population, 8,283, (1910).

Saranac Lake (sar'a-nak lāk). A village in Essex and Franklin counties, New York, in the Adirondack Mountains. It is a well-known health resort. In its vicinity are the State Hospital for Incipient Tuberculosis and a sanatorium for consumptives. Population, 4,983, (1910).

Sarangani (sä-räu-gä'nē) Islands. A group of small islands in the Philippines, lying southsoutheast of the most southern point of Mindanao, from which they are separated by Sarangani Channel. They belong to Davao district, Moro province. Balut, the largest, contains Sarangani volcano, 3,100 feet in height. Area of group, about 65 square miles.

Sardou*, Victorien. His later works include "Gismonda" (1894), "Marcelle" (1895), "Spiritisme" (1897), "Pamela" (1898), "Robespierre" (1899), "Le Dante" (1903), "La sorcière" (1903), "La Piste" (1906), "Le drame des poisons" (1907).

Sargent (sär'gent), Dudley Allen. Born at Belfast, Maine, Sept. 28, 1849. An American physician, director of the gymnasium of Harvard University from 1880. He was professor of physical training in Yale University 1872–79. His works include "Health, Strength, and Power" (1904), "Physical Education" (1906), etc.

Sarrien (sä-riaṅ'), Jean Marie Ferdinand. Born at Bourbon-Lancy, France, Oct. 13, 1840. A French statesman. He was minister of posts and telegraphs April 6–Dec. 28, 1885, in the ministry of Brisson; minister of the interior Jan. 7–Dec. 11, 1886, in the cabinet of Freycinet, and again Dec. 12, 1887,–April 3, 1888, in that of Tirard, and again under Bourgeois in 1896; was minister of justice under Brisson in 1898; and was premier and minister of justice, March–October, 1906.

Satolli (sä-tōl'lē), Francesco. Born at Maiscieno, near Perugia, July 21, 1839: died at Rome, Jan. 8, 1910. An Italian prelate. In 1880 he was appointed professor of theology in the College of the Propaganda at Rome; was appointed titular archbishop of Lepanto in 1883; and was papal representative at the centenary of the establishment of the see of Baltimore in 1889. He returned to the United States in 1892 as appellate judge with extraordinary discretion; and in the same year was made apostolic delegate to the United States. In 1895 he was elevated to the cardinalate.

Satow (sat'ō), Sir Ernest Mason. Born June 30, 1843. A British diplomatist, minister at Peking 1900–06. He was envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to Morocco in 1893, and was transferred to Tokio, Japan, in 1895. In 1907 he was a delegate to the second Peace Conference. He has written a handbook of Japan (with A. G. S. Hawes), an English-Japanese dictionary (with M. Ishibashi), "Jesuit Mission Press in Japan, 1591–1610," etc.

Satterlee (sat'ėr-lē), Henry Yates. Born at New York, Jan. 11, 1843: died at Washington, Feb. 22, 1908. An American Protestant Episcopal bishop. He was graduated at Columbia University in 1863, and ordained priest in 1867. He was rector of Zion Church, Wappingers Falls, N. Y., 1875–82, and of Calvary Church, New York city, 1882–96. In 1896 he became bishop of the diocese of Washington, D. C. He published "Christ and His Church" (1878), "A Creedless Gospel and the Gospel Creed" (1894), "New Testament Churchmanship" (1899), etc.

Satterlee (sat'ėr-lē), Walter. Born at Brooklyn, N. Y., Jan. 18, 1844: died there, May 28, 1908. An American painter. He studied at the National Academy of Design, and under Léon Bonnat at Paris, and became an associate of the National Academy in 1879. He was chiefly known for his figure-painting and genre-work. Among his pictures are "A Coquette of the Olden Time," "His Eminence the Cardinal," "An Arab Sheik," "The Old Garden," and "The Balsam Cathedral."

Sauer (zou'er), Emil. Born at Hamburg, Oct. 8, 1862. A German pianist. He studied with Nicholas Rubinstein at the Moscow Conservatory 1876–81, and later with Liszt. Since 1882 he has appeared as a concert pianist, making tours in Europe and America. From 1901 to 1907 he taught in the Vienna Conservatory. He has published a concerto and other works for the piano, also a book of reminiscences called "Meine Welt."

Saugus (sâ'gus). A town in Essex County, Massachusetts, 8 miles northeast of Boston. It has manufactories of leather, flannel, etc. Population, 8,047, (1910).

Sauk. Same as Sac.

Sault Sainte Marie (sō sānt mā'ri; F. pron. sō saṅt mā-rē') Canals. Two canals, situated in Michigan and Ontario near the falls in the Saint Mary's River. They connect Lake Superior and Lake Huron and lower or raise vessels from one level to another (16½–20½ feet). One (in Michigan) was begun in 1853 and opened in 1855. It was enlarged by the United States government 1870–81. The improvements included the Weitzel lock (515 feet long). The State of Michigan relinquished control in 1881 and in 1887 the State locks were torn down and replaced by a single lock (the Poe lock, 800 feet long, 100 feet wide, and 22 feet deep on the sills), opened in 1896. The American canal is 1¾ miles in length, has a minimum width of 216 feet, and is 25 feet in depth. The other (Canadian) canal was built 1888–95. It is 1½ miles long, 150 feet wide, and 22 feet deep, with a lock 900 feet long, 60 feet wide, and 22 feet deep on the sills. In 1910 the number of passages through both canals was: 17,674 steamers, 1,890 sailing vessels, 1,335 unregistered; total, 20,899.

Sauret (sō-rā'), Emile. Born at Dun-le-Roi, Cher, May 22, 1852. A French violinist. He first appeared in concert about 1862. He has made several tours in America, the first in 1872, and has played throughout Europe and in London. His first wife was Teresa Carreño. He has taught much since 1880, in institutions in Berlin, London, and Chicago, and privately at Geneva. He has published several compositions, including a concerto.

Savage (sav'āj), Minot Judson. Born at Norridgewock, Maine, June 10, 1841. An American minister and author. He was graduated at the Bangor Theological Seminary in 1864, and entered the Congregational ministry, later becoming a Unitarian. He was pastor of the Third Unitarian Church, Chicago, 1873–1874, and of the Church of the Unity, Boston, 1874–96, and associate minister (with Robert Collyer) at the Church of the Messiah, New York city, 1896–1906. He has published "The Religion of Evolution" (1876), "The Morals of Evolution" (1880), "Religious Reconstruction" (1888), "The Evolution of Christianity" (1892), "Jesus and Modern Life" (1893), "Life beyond Death" (1901), "Men and Women" (1902), "Poems" (1905), etc.

Savage (sav'āj), Richard Henry. Born at Utica, N. Y., June 12, 1846: died at New York, Oct. 11, 1903. An American author and military engineer. He was graduated at West Point in 1868; served in the corps of engineers; was in the Egyptian army 1871–74; and later became a railway engineer. In 1898 he was appointed senior major of the Second United States Volunteer Engineers and served through the Spanish-American war. He published a large number of stories.

Savage Club. A London club, on Adelphi Terrace, W. C., founded in 1857 for the purpose of promoting intercourse among those interested in literature, art, music, the drama, and science.

Savile Club. A London club, at 107 Piccadilly, founded in 1868 for social purposes. It has about 675 members.

Saville (sav'il), Marshall Howard. Born at Rockport, Mass., June 24, 1867. An American scientist, professor of American archæology in Columbia University from 1903. He was assistant curator of anthropology in the American Museum of Natural History 1894–1902; curator of Mexican and Central American archæology 1902–07; and honorary curator 1907–10. His researches and publications relate chiefly to the antiquities of Mexico, Central America, and northwestern South America.

Sayre (sār). A borough in Bradford County, Pennsylvania, on the north branch of the Susquehanna River. It has iron-works, railroad shops, etc. Population, 6,426, (1910).

Scalchi (skäl'kē), Sofia. Born at Turin, Nov. 29, 1850. An Italian contralto singer. She made her début as Ulrica, in "Un Ballo in Maschera," at Mantua in 1866. She sang in many Italian cities, also in England (1868–90), and first came to America in 1883. Her rôles included Leonora (in "La Favorita"), Meala (in "Paul et Virginie"), Mrs. Page (in "Falstaff"), Fidès (in "Le Prophète"), Arsaces (in "Semiramide"), Amneris (in "Aïda"), and Siebel (in "Faust").

Scarfoglio, Signora Eduardo. See ★Serao, Matilde.

Schiaparelli*, Giovanni Virginio. His later works include "De la rotation de la terre sous l'influence des actions géologiques" (1889), "Rubra canicola" (1896–1897), "Origine del sistema planetario eliocentrico presso i Greci" (1898), "L'Astronomia nell' Antico Testamento" (1903).

Schiff (shif), Jacob Henry. Born at Frankfort-on-the-Main, Jan. 10, 1847. A German-American financier and philanthropist. He came to the United States in 1865, engaged in business, and became senior partner of the firm of Kuhn, Loeb, and Company, New York city. Among other enterprises, he placed three large Japanese war loans in 1904 and 1905, in recognition of which the Second Order of the Sacred Treasure of Japan was conferred upon him by the Mikado. He built and endowed the Semitic Museum of Harvard University; built the Jewish Theological Seminary of America, and contributed largely to its endowment; and has given to charitable and educational institutions.

Schilling (shil'ing), Alexander. Born at Chicago. A contemporary American landscape-painter and etcher. He was awarded the gold medal of the Art Club of Philadelphia in 1901 and the silver medal of the St. Louis Exposition in 1904. Among his pictures are "Midnight" (1895), "Upland Fields" (1901), "Moonlight after Rain" (1905), and "The Blue Pool" (1907).

Schinkel (shing'kel), Karl Friedrich. Born at Neuruppin, Germany, March 13, 1781: died at Berlin, Oct. 9, 1841. A noted German architect and painter. He was a pupil of David and Friedrich Gilly in Berlin, and also studied in Italy and Paris. In 1820 he was created professor in the Architectural Academy at Berlin. He was especially interested in the introduction of Greek forms and details in modern buildings. Among the buildings which he designed are the old Museum, the Royal Theater, the Schlossbrücke, the School of Artillery and Engineering, etc., in Berlin; the St. Nicolai-Kirche in Potsdam; and various buildings in Dresden and other German cities. He built many churches in a revised Gothic style.

Schlotterbeck (shlot'ėr-bek), Julius Otto. Born at Ann Arbor, Mich., Sept. 1, 1865. An American pharmacist, chemist, and educator, professor of pharmacognosy and botany in the University of Michigan from 1896. Since 1905 he has been dean of the School of Pharmacy there. He has published various technical papers upon the chemistry of plant alkaloids.

Schomburgk Line*. Arbitration was agreed to by England in 1896, and a decision was reached in 1899 which established the Schomburgk Line as the boundary, with the exception of Barima Point, at the mouth of the Orinoco, and a strip of land between the Wenamu and Cuyuni rivers, which went to Venezuela.

Schreiner*, Olive (Mrs. S. C. Cronwright Schreiner). Her later works include "The Political Situation" (1895: written jointly with her husband), "Trooper Peter Halket of Mashonaland" (1897), "An English South African's View of the Situation" (1896), "Woman and Labor" (1911), etc.

Schuch (shōch), Ernst von. Born at Gratz, Nov. 23, 1847. An Austrian conductor. He studied with Eduard Stolz at Gratz and with Dessoff at Vienna; played the violin and piano in concerts before he was eleven; and became a conductor at Breslau at the age of twenty. Since 1872 he has conducted at the Royal Opera, Dresden. He conducted the first performances of Richard Strauss's music-dramas "Salome," "Elektra," and "Rosenkavalier," all of which had their first presentation at Dresden. He also conducted on several occasions at the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, 1899–1900.

Schuchert (shuk'ėrt), Charles. Born at Cincinnati, Ohio, July 3, 1858. An American naturalist, professor of paleontology in Yale University and curator of the geological collections at the Peabody Museum from 1904. He was assistant paleontologist of the United States Geological Survey 1893–94, and assistant curator of the United States National Museum 1894–1904.

Schumann-Heink (shö'män-hingk'), Frau (Ernestine Rössler). Born at Lieben, near Prague, June 15, 1861. A famous contralto singer. Her début was made at Dresden, Oct. 13, 1878, as Azucena, in "Il Trovatore," after which she sang in Hamburg and London. She first appeared in America

Jan. 9, 1899, at the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, as Ortrud, in "Lohengrin," and has sung here for many seasons in opera and concert. She has made frequent appearances at Bayreuth, and created the rôle of Klytemnestra, in Richard Strauss's "Elektra," at Dresden. Other parts in which she has been heard are Erda, Fricka, Waltrauta, the Witch (in "Hänsel und Gretel"), Fidès (in "Le Prophète"), and Carmen. By her first marriage, in 1883, she became Frau Heink, and upon the second, in 1893, to Paul Schumann, she took the name of Schumann-Heink. In 1906 she married William Rapp, and became a resident of the United States.

Schurman (shûr'man), Jacob Gould. Born at Freetown, Prince Edward Island, May 22, 1854. An American scholar, author, and educator. He was professor of English literature, political economy, and psychology at Acadia College 1880–82; was professor of metaphysics and English literature at Dalhousie College 1882–86; and since 1886 has been connected with Cornell University (as Sage professor of philosophy 1886–92, as dean of the Sage School of Philosophy 1891, and as president since 1892). In 1899 he was appointed chairman of the United States Philippine Commission. Among his published works are "Kantian Ethics and the Ethics of Evolution" (1881), "The Ethical Import of Darwinism" (1888), "Belief in God" (1890), "Agnosticism and Religion" (1896), "Report of the Philippine Commission," of which he was joint author (1900), and "Philippine Affairs —A Retrospect and Outlook" (1900).

Schütz (shütz), Heinrich. Born at Köstritz, Oct. 8, 1585: died at Dresden, Nov. 6, 1672. A German musician. He was the most influential composer of the 17th century in the development of church music, and was also the composer of the first German opera, "Dafne" (1627). In 1615 he was kapellmeister of the court orchestra at Dresden, and later was conductor at Copenhagen.

Schwab (shwäb), Charles M. Born at Williamsburg, Pa., April 18, 1862. An American capitalist. He passed his early years at Loretto, Pennsylvania. Entering the service of the Edgar Thomson Steel Works, in Pittsburgh, as stake-driver, he was chief engineer and assistant manager 1881–87 and general superintendent 1889–97. He was president of the Carnegie Steel Company 1897–1901, and of the United States Steel Corporation 1901–03. He is now president of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, and a director of many other large industrial organizations. He has built a Catholic church at Loretto, Pennsylvania, and has founded an industrial school at Homestead.

Scidmore (sid'mōr), Eliza Ruhamah. Born at Madison, Wis., Oct. 14, 1856. An American traveler and author. Among her works are "Alaska: its Southern Coast and the Sitkan Archipelago" (1885; republished in 1889 as "Journeyings in Alaska"), "Westward to the Far East" (1890), "From East to West" (1890), "Jinriksha Days in Japan" (1890), "Appleton's Guide-book to Alaska and the Northwest Coast," "Java: the Garden of the East" (1898), "China: the Long-lived Empire" (1900), and "Winter India" (1903).

Scollard (skol'ärd), Clinton. Born at Clinton, N. Y., Sept. 18, 1860. An American author and poet. He was associate professor of rhetoric and elocution at Hamilton College 1889–91, and professor of English literature 1891–96. He has written "With Reed and Lyre" (1886), "Songs of Sunrise Lands" (1892), "Under Summer Skies" (1892), "On Sunny Shores" (1893), "The Hills of Song" (1895), "Skenandoa" (1896), "A Man at Arms" (1898), "The Lutes of Morn" (1901), "The Cloistering of Ursula" (1902), "Lyrics and Legends of Christmastide" (1904), "Odes and Elegies" (1905), "A Southern Flight" (with Frank Dempster Sherman: 1906), "Easter Song" (1907), "Voices and Visions" (1908), "Pro Patria" (1909), "Chords of the Zither" (1910), etc.

Scott (skot), Austin. Born at Maumee, Ohio, Aug. 10, 1848. An American historian and educator, president of Rutgers College 1890–1906. He was graduated at Yale in 1869; studied at the University of Michigan and in Berlin and Leipsic; was private secretary to George Bancroft 1872–73 and 1875–81; was associate in history at Johns Hopkins University 1876–82; and was professor of history in Rutgers College 1883–90, and of history and political science 1906.

Scott (skot), John, first Earl of Eldon. Born at Newcastle-upon-Tyne, June 4, 1751: died at London, Jan. 13, 1838. An English jurist. He was appointed solicitor-general in 1788, attorney-general in 1793, and chief justice of common pleas in 1799, and was lord chancellor of England 1801–06 and 1807–27.

Scott (skot), Robert Falcon. Born at Devonport, England, June 6, 1868. An English naval officer and explorer. He entered the navy in 1882; was promoted captain in 1904, and commanded national antarctic expeditions 1900–04, 1910–. He published an account of his first voyage in "The Voyage of the Discovery" (1905). See Century Atlas, Map 34.

Scott (skot), William Berryman. Born at Cincinnati, Ohio, Feb. 12, 1858. An American paleontologist, professor of geology and paleontology in Princeton University from 1884. He has published "An Introduction to Geology" (1897), and numerous scientific monographs and papers, and is editor and joint author of the "Reports of the Princeton University Expeditions to Patagonia" (8 volumes).

Scottdale (skot'dāl). A borough in Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania, 32 miles southeast of Pittsburgh. It has important coke interests and manufactures of iron, steel, brass, etc. Population, 5,456, (1910).

Scotti (skot'tē), Antonio. Born at Naples in 1869. An Italian barytone singer. He made his first appearance at Malta, Nov. 1, 1889, and afterward sang in many Italian cities. In 1899 he became a member of the Metropolitan Opera Company, New York. His principal rôles include Scarpia (in "La Tosca"), Don Giovanni, Iago (in "Otello"), Sharpless (in "Madama Butterfly"), Tonio (in "Pagliacci"), Amonasro (in "Aïda"), and Falstaff.

Scriabin (skrē-ä-bin'), Alexander Nicholaevitch. Born at Moscow, Jan. 10, 1872 (Dec. 29, 1871, O. S.). A Russian composer and pianist. He studied in the Moscow Conservatory under Safonoff. Since 1892 he has made tours of Europe and has appeared in America (1906–07). He was for five years (1898–1903) teacher of the piano at the Moscow Conservatory, but of late he has devoted himself to composition. His works include two symphonies, a piano concerto, and a number of piano compositions which show the influence of Chopin.

Scripture (skrip'tūr), Edward Wheeler. Born at Mason, N. H., May 21, 1864. An American experimental psychologist and phonetician. He was connected with Yale University as instructor, director of the psychological laboratory, and assistant professor 1892–1903. His publications include "Thinking, Feeling, Doing" (1895), "The New Psychology" (1897), "Elements of Experimental Phonetics" (1902), "Researches in Experimental Phonetics: Study of Speech Curves" (1907), etc.

Scudder (skud'ėr), Vida Dutton. Born in southern India, Dec. 15, 1861. An American educator and author. She was graduated at Smith College in 1884, studied in Europe, and has been associate professor of English literature at Wellesley College since 1892. She has published "The Life of the Spirit in the Modern English Poets" (1895), "The Witness of Denial" (1895), "Social Ideals in English Letters" (1898), "Introduction to the Study of English Literature" (1901), "A Listener in Babel" (1903), and "The Disciple of a Saint" (1907). She has also translated and edited the letters of St. Catherine of Siena.

Seabreeze (sē'brēz). A town in Volusia County, Florida, incorporated in 1901, on the east coast, about 50 miles south of St. Augustine. It has a wireless telegraph station. Population, 308, (1910).

Seabury (sē'bu-ri), Samuel. Born at Groton, Conn., Nov. 30, 1729: died at New London, Conn., Feb. 25, 1796. An American clergyman, the first bishop of the Episcopal Church in America. He was graduated at Yale in 1748; studied at Edinburgh; was ordained deacon and priest in 1753; held pastorates in New Brunswick, New Jersey, Jamaica, Long Island, and Westchester, New York; and in 1783 was elected bishop by fourteen Connecticut clergymen. He went to England to secure consecration, and finally received it in 1784 at the hands of Scotch bishops. The validity of this consecration was contested in America, but the dispute was settled in his favor in 1789.

Seaman (sē'man), Owen. Born 1861. An English humorist and editor. He was educated at the Shrewsbury School and at Clare College, Cambridge; was appointed professor of literature at the Durham College of Science, Newcastle-upon-Tyne, in 1890; joined the staff of "Punch" in 1897; and became its subeditor in 1902 and editor-in-chief in 1906. He has written "Horace at Cambridge" (1894), "The Battle of the Bays" (1896), "In Cap and Bells" (1899), "Borrowed Plumes" (1902), "A Harvest of Chaff" (1904), etc.

Sea of Japan, Battle of the. A great naval battle fought by the Japanese fleet under Admiral Togo and the Russian squadron under Admiral Rozhestvensky in the eastern channel of the Strait of Korea, off the island of Tsu Shima, May 27–28, 1905. Of the thirty-eight vessels of the Russian fleet, twenty-two were sunk and six were captured.

Seawell (sē'wel), Molly Elliot. Born at The Shelter, Gloucester County, Va., Oct. 23, 1860. An American novelist and playwright. She is the author of "Throckmorton" (1890), "Children of Destiny" (1893), "The Sprightly Romance of Marsac" (1895), "The History of The Lady Betty Stair" (1896), "The Loves of the Lady Arabella" (1898), "The House of Egremont" (1900), "Papa Bouchard" (1901), "Francezka" (1902), "The Fortunes of Fifi" (1903), "The Château of Monplaisir" (1905), "The Victory" (1906), "The Secret of Toni" (1907), "Imprisoned Midshipmen" (1908), "Last Duchess of Belgrade" (1908), etc., and of several plays and many juvenile stories.

Seddon (sed'on), Richard John. Born at Eccleston, Lancashire, England, 1845: died near Sydney, N. S. W., June 10, 1906. A British colonial statesman, premier of New Zealand 1893–1906. He emigrated to Melbourne, Australia, in 1863, removed to New Zealand, and was elected a member of the House of Representatives in 1879. For various periods since 1891 he held the positions of postmaster-general; minister of mines, of public works, native affairs, defense, education, immigration, and labor; and colonial treasurer. He was responsible for the Old-Age Pensions Act in 1898, and favored Joseph Chamberlain's fiscal policy in 1903.

Sedgwick (sej'wik), Anne Douglas. Born at Englewood, N. J., March 28, 1873. An American novelist. She left the United States in childhood, and has since resided chiefly in Paris, where she studied painting, and in London. In 1908 she married Basil de Sélincourt. She has published "The Dull Miss Archinard" (1898), "The Confounding of Camelia" (1899), "Paths of Judgement" (1904), "A Fountain Sealed" (1907), "Franklin Winslow Kane" (1910), etc.

Sedgwick (sej'wik), William Thompson. Born at West Hartford, Conn., Dec. 29, 1855. An American biologist and sanitarian, professor in the Massachusetts Institute of Technology from 1891. He was assistant professor there 1883–87, and associate professor 1887–91, and has been curator of the Lowell Institute, Boston, since 1897. He has published "General Biology" (1886: in collaboration with E. B. Wilson), "Principles of Sanitary Science and Public Health" (1892), "The Human Mechanism" (1906: in collaboration with T. Hough), etc.

See (sē), Thomas Jefferson Jackson. Born at Montgomery City, Mo., Feb. 19, 1866. An American astronomer, professor of mathematics in the United States navy from 1899. He was graduated at the University of Missouri in 1889, and at the University of Berlin in 1892; was instructor in charge of the department of astronomy in the University of Chicago 1893–96; and was astronomer of the Lowell Observatory 1896–98. He is best known for his researches on the evolution of stellar systems and on the physical constitution of the heavenly bodies. In 1905 he published an important memoir on the theory of the sun, viewed as a mass of gas reduced to the state of single atoms; and in 1906 generalized Kelvin's and Darwin's work on the rigidity of the earth, and showed how the rigidity of any body may be calculated from the theory of gravity alone. He concluded that the earth's average rigidity approaches that of nickel-steel, while that of the sun is more than 2,000 times greater. Most of his recent researches are published in the "Astronomische Nachrichten."

Seebohm (sē'bōm), Henry. Born July 12, 1832: died Nov. 26, 1895. A noted English ornithologist. He was the author of "Siberia in Europe" (1880), "A History of British Birds and their Eggs" (1883–85), "Classification of Birds" (1890: supplement 1895), "The Birds of the Japanese Empire" (1890), "Geographical Distribution of British Birds" (1893), etc.

Seeley (sē'li), Harry Govier. Born in London, Feb. 18, 1839: died there, Jan. 8, 1909. A noted British paleontologist, professor of geology, geography, and mineralogy in King's College, London. He published many technical works and papers.

Segantini (sā-gän-tē'nē), Giovanni. Born at Arco, Jan. 15, 1858: died near Samaden, Sept. 28, 1899. A Tyrolese painter. He was especially interested in the analysis of color and light according to the methods of the French Impressionists. His pictures, full of refinement and imagination, attracted much attention in the exhibitions, and especially in that of Venice in 1895. He was one of the strongest and most original of modern painters.

Selfridge (self'rij), Thomas Oliver. Born at Charlestown, Mass., Feb. 6, 1836. An American naval officer, promoted rear-admiral in 1896. He was graduated at the United States Naval Academy in 1854; served in the Union navy throughout the Civil War (was on board the Cumberland when she was sunk by the Merrimac, and commanded vessels on the Mississippi and in the attacks on Fort Fisher); was promoted commodore 1894; commanded the European squadron 1895–98; and retired in 1898.

Seligman (sel'ig-man), Edwin Robert Anderson. Born at New York, April 25, 1861. An American economist. He was graduated at Columbia University in 1879, and studied at the universities of Berlin, Heidelberg, Geneva, and Paris. In 1885 he became lecturer on economics at Columbia, in 1888 adjunct professor of political economy, in 1891 professor of political economy and finance, and in 1904 McVickar professor of political economy. He has served on various committees for civic and economic reform. Among his publications are "Railway Tariffs" (1887), "Progressive Taxation in Theory and Practice" (1894), "The Shifting and Incidence of Taxation" (1899), "The Economic Interpretation of History" (1902), "Principles of Economics" (1907), "The Income Tax" (1911), etc.

Sellers (sel'ėrz), Coleman. Born in Philadelphia, Jan. 28, 1827: died there, Dec. 28, 1907. An American engineer and inventor, best known from his work as a member of the International Niagara Commission.

Sembrich, Marcella. See ★Stengel.

Sénégal*. There is a fortified naval station at Dakar, which is also the seat of government for French West Africa. A railway has been constructed connecting Dakar, Rufisque, and St. Louis, and one from Kayes to the Niger. Total area of colony, 74,000 square miles. Population, about 1,130,000.

Senegal-Niger Colony, Upper. A French colony in West Africa, formed in 1904 from the territories of Senegambia and the Niger. It is bounded on the north by French Algeria, on the east by a line running north from Lake Chad, on the south by the Ivory Coast, Gold Coast, Togoland, and Dahomey, and on the west by French Guinea. It includes part of the Sahara, the valley of the Upper Senegal, and the great bend of the Niger, with the territories within it. The Military Territories (which are included in it) have been broken up, the second being under the civil administration, and the first and third being formed into the Military Territory of the Niger, under a colonel. The colony is administered by a lieutenant-governor. Bamako, on the Niger, is the seat of government. Area, about 70,000 square miles. Population, over 5,000,000.

Serao (sā-rä'ō), Matilde (Signora Eduardo Scarfoglio). Born at Patras, Greece, March 7, 1856. A noted Italian novelist and editor. Her father was a political refugee and her mother a Greek. From 1880 to 1886 she lived in Rome, where she founded, with her husband, a daily paper the "Corriere di Roma." It was short-lived, and was later brought out as "Il Corriere di Napoli." During this period she published "Cuore Infermo" (1881), "Piccole anime" (1883), "Fantasia" (1883), "Fior di passione" (1883), "La virtù di Checchina" (1884), "La conquista di Roma" (1885), "Il ventre di Napoli" (1885), and "Riccardo Joanna" (1886). In Naples she founded "Il Mattino" (1902), one of the most important daily papers of southern Italy. Her later works include "Il paese di Cuccagna," "Addio amore," "All' erta sentinella," "Castigo," "La ballerina," "Suor Giovanna della Croce," and "Al paese di Gesù." A number of her stories have been translated.

Serapis (se-rā'pis). A British man-of-war which surrendered to the Bonhomme Richard, Sept. 23, 1779. See Bonhomme Richard.

Servais (ser-vā'), Adrien François. Born at Hal, near Brussels, June 6, 1807: died there, Nov. 26, 1866. A Belgian violoncellist. He was a pupil of his father, and of Platel at the Brussels Conservatory, where, after successful and extensive concert tours, he became a professor in 1848. He was called the Paganini of the violoncello. He wrote fantasias, concertos, caprices, and other compositions for his instrument.

Serviss (sėr'vis), Garrett Putnam. Born at Sharon Springs, New York, March 24, 1851. An American popular writer upon astronomy. He has published "Astronomy with an Opera Glass" (1888), "The Conquest of Mars" (1898), "The Moon Metal" (1900), "Other Worlds" (1902), "The Moon" (1907), "Astronomy with the Naked Eye" (1908), "Curiosities of the Sky" (1909), etc.

Seth (seth), Andrew (Andrew Seth Pringle Pattison). Born at Edinburgh, Dec. 20, 1856. A Scottish philosophical writer, professor of logic and metaphysics in the University of Edinburgh from 1891. He was appointed professor of logic and philosophy in University College, Cardiff, in 1883, and of logic, rhetoric, and metaphysics in St. Andrews in 1887. In 1898 he assumed the name of Pringle Pattison. Among his works are "The Development from Kant to Hegel" (1882), "Scottish Philosophy" (1885), "Hegelianism and Personality" (1887), "Man's Place in the Cosmos" (1897), "Two Lectures on Theism" (1897), "The Philosophical Radicals" (1907), etc.

Seton (sē'ton), Ernest Evan Thompson. Born at South Shields, England, Aug. 14, 1860. A writer and illustrator of animal stories. He was educated at the Toronto Collegiate Institute, and studied art at the Royal Academy, London, 1879–81, and at Paris 1890–96. In 1891 he was appointed official naturalist to the government of Manitoba. He is the leader of the Boy Scouts of America. Among his works are "Mammals of Manitoba" (1886), "Birds of Manitoba" (1891), "Art Anatomy of Animals" (1896), "Wild Animals I Have Known" (1898), "The Trail of the Sandhill Stag" (1899), "The Biography of a Grizzly" (1900), "Wild Animal Play for Children" (1900), "Lobo, Rag, and Vixen" (1900), "Lives of the Hunted" (1901), "Pictures of Wild Animals" (1901), "Krag and Johnny Bear" (1902), "Two Little Savages" (1903), "Monarch, the Big Bear of Tallac" (1904), "Woodmyth and Fable" (1905), "Animal Heroes" (1905), "Biography of a Silver Fox" (1909), "Rolf in the Woods" (1911), etc.

Seven Seas, The. A volume of verse by Rudyard Kipling, published in 1896. It is named for the seven oceans—the North and the South Atlantic, the North and the South Pacific, the Arctic, the Antarctic, and the Indian. The book is the apotheosis of British imperialism. In a poem contained in it, "The Flowers," the author speaks of the British as "Masters of the Seven Seas."

Sever (sē'vėr), George Francis. Born at Cambridge, Mass., July 30, 1866. An American electrical engineer, professor in Columbia University 1905–11. He was instructor in electrical engineering at Columbia 1893–1901, and adjunct professor 1901–05. He has been consulting electrical engineer for the department of water supply, gas, and electricity, New York, since 1902. He has published "Laboratory and Factory Tests in Electrical Engineering" (1905: with Fitzhugh Townsend), and many technical papers.

Sévérac (sā-vā-räk'), Déodat de. Born at St.-Félix, Haute-Garonne, July 20, 1874. A French composer. After studying at the Conservatory of Toulouse he became a pupil of D'Indy at Paris. His compositions include a symphonic poem, an organ suite, a music-drama, "Le cœur du moulin," songs, dances, and piano pieces.

Seymour (sē'mōr). A town in New Haven County, Connecticut, on the Naugatuck River, 10 miles northwest of New Haven. It has manufactories of brass and copper goods, nails, tools, electric wire, paper, etc. Population, 4,786, (1910).

Seymour (sē'mōr), Sir Edward Hobart. Born April 30, 1840. A British naval officer, admiral of the fleet 1905–10. He entered the navy in 1852; served in the Crimean (1854–55), Chinese (1857–60 and 1862), West African (1870), and Egyptian (1882) wars; and was promoted vice-admiral in 1896 and admiral in 1902. In 1900 he commanded the expedition of the allies for the relief of the legations in Peking. He was made a member of the Order of Merit in 1902, and of the Royal Victorian Order in 1906.

Sgambati (sgäm-bä'tē), Giovanni. Born at Rome, May 18, 1843. An Italian composer and pianist. In 1877 he was appointed chief piano-teacher in the music-school of the Saint Cecilia Academy in Rome. His works show traces of the influence of Liszt and Wagner. He is one of the very few modern Italian instrumental composers. Three symphonies, two piano quintets, a string quartet, and many piano pieces and songs are the most important of his compositions.

Sha (shä). A small river of Manchuria which rises southeast of Mukden and flows into the Tai-tze about five miles northwest of Liao-yang. On its banks a battle between the Japanese under Oyama and the Russians under Kuropatkin was fought, October 9–14, 1904. It resulted in the defeat of the latter, who had advanced from their position below Mukden in an attempt to defeat the Japanese and relieve Port Arthur.

Shackleton (shak'l-tọn), Sir Ernest H. Born at Kilkee, County Kildare, 1874. A British explorer. He conducted an expedition to the antarctic which landed on Macmurdo Sound in the winter of 1908; ascended Mount Erebus (13,120 feet) in March; and later pushed on toward the south, reaching lat. 88° 23′ S., within one hundred and eleven miles of the pole (the farthest point then gained), on Jan. 9, 1909. A party led by Professor David determined the position of the south magnetic pole (lat. 72° 25′ S., long. 154° E.), Jan. 16, 1909. He published "The Heart of the Antarctic" (1909). See Century Atlas, Map 3½.

Shaler*, Nathaniel Southgate. His later works include "Sea and Land" (1894), "Domesticated Animals" (1895), "American Highways" (1896), "Outlines of the Earth's History" (1898), "The Individual" (1900), "Elizabeth of England" (1903), "The Neighbor" (1904), "The Citizen" (1904), "Man and the Earth" (1905), and "From Old Fields: Poems of the Civil War" (1906). His "Autobiography" appeared in 1909.

Shamrock III. A sloop yacht, the unsuccessful challenger for the America's cup in 1903. She was designed by William Fife and owned by Sir Thomas Lipton. She lost the race to the Reliance (which see).

Shannon (shan'ọn), Charles Hazelwood. Born at Sleaford, Lincolnshire, in 1865. An English artist. His work consists of paintings, etchings, and lithographs. He is especially noted for portraits and for characteristic figure-studies of nymphs and other idyllic or imaginative creations. Among his paintings are "The Sapphire Bay," "Tibullus in the House of Delia," "The Sleeping Nymph," "Hermes and the Infant Bacchus," and "The Lady with a Cyclamen"; and among his lithographs are "The Modeller" and "A Romantic Landscape." He became an associate of the Royal Academy in 1911.

Shannon (shan'ọn), James Jebusa. Born at Auburn, N. Y., 1862. An American portrait-painter, resident in England since 1878. He became an associate of the Royal Academy in 1897, and a Royal Academician in 1909.

Sharp (shärp), Luke. A pseudonym of Robert Barr.

Sharp (shärp), William. Born at Paisley, Scotland, Sept. 12, 1855: died at Castello di Maniace, Bronte, Sicily, Dec. 12, 1905. A British poet, critic, and novelist. He was brought up in the Highlands; was educated at Glasgow University; settled in London as a literary worker; and became one of the circle of Dante G. Rossetti. Among his many published works are "The Human Inheritance" (1882), biography of Dante Gabriel Rossetti (1883), "Earth's Voices" (1884), "A Fellowe and his Wife" (1892: with Blanche Willis Howard), "Vistas" (1894), and "Flower o' the Vine" (1894). He also wrote monographs on Browning, Shelley, and Heine, and "Literary Geography" (1904). For the work which he published under the name of "Fiona Macleod," see ★Macleod.

Shaw (shâ), Albert. Born at Shandon, Ohio, July 23, 1857. An American editor and writer on economics. He was appointed professor of international law in Cornell University in 1890, resigning in 1891 to take charge of the American "Review of Reviews," of which he has been editor since that date. Among his publications are "Icaria: a Chapter in the History of Communism" (1884), "Coöperation in a Western City" (1886), "History of Coöperation in the United States" (1888: with others), "Municipal Government in Great Britain" (1895), "Municipal Government in Continental Europe" (1895), "The Business Career in its Public Relations" (1904), "Political Problems of American Development" (1908), etc.

Shaw (shâ), Anna Howard. Born at Newcastle-on-Tyne, England, Feb. 14, 1847. A Methodist preacher and advocate of woman's suffrage. She was brought to America by her parents when four years of age; studied at Albion College, Michigan, 1872–75; was graduated in the theological department of Boston University in 1878; and took a degree there as doctor of medicine in 1885. She was pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church at Hingham, Massachusetts, in 1878, and at East Dennis, Massachusetts, 1878–85. She entered actively into work for the Woman's Suffrage Association in 1885, and has been president of the National American Woman Suffrage Association since 1904.

Shaw (shâ), George Bernard. Born at Dublin, Ireland, July 26, 1856. A British dramatist, critic, and novelist. His works include the novels "The Irrational Knot," "Love among the Artists," "Cashel Byron's Profession," and "An Unsocial Socialist"; "Fabianism and the Empire" (1900), "Fabianism and the Fiscal Question" (1904), and various articles on socialistic subjects; essays on "The Quintessence of Ibsenism" (1891) and "The Perfect Wagnerite" (1898); and plays, including "Plays, Pleasant and Unpleasant" (1898), "Three Plays for Puritans" (1900), "The Admirable Bashville" (1901), "Man and Superman" (1903), "Major Barbara" (1905), "Getting Married" (1908), "Press Cuttings" (1909), "The Doctor's Dilemma" (1911), etc.

Shaw (shâ), Leslie Mortier. Born at Morristown, Vt., Nov. 2, 1848. An American lawyer and cabinet officer. He was governor of Iowa 1898–1902, and secretary of the treasury 1902–1907. He is the author of "Current Issues" (1908), etc.

Shaw-Lefevre (shâ'lē-fāvr), Charles, Viscount Eversley. Born Feb. 22, 1794: died at Heckfield, Hants, Dec. 28, 1888. An English Whig politician. He sat in the House of Commons for Downton, Wilts, in 1830, for Hampshire in 1831, and for the northern division of Hampshire 1832–57, and was speaker 1839–57. He was raised to the peerage in 1857. A volume of his decisions was published by Robert Bourke in 1857, and the House is indebted to him for the removal of many unsuitable forms of procedure.

Shawmut (shâ'mut). The Indian name for the peninsula on which Boston now stands. It was used by the early settlers in Massachusetts.

Shawnee (shâ'nē). A city in Pottawatomie County, Oklahoma, 35 miles southeast of Oklahoma city. It has cotton-gins, cotton-seed oil mills, railroad shops, etc. Population, 12,474, (1910).

Shear (shēr), Cornelius Lott. Born at Coeymans Hollow, N. Y., March 26, 1865. An American botanist, pathologist of the United States Bureau of Plant Industry from 1902. He has published various technical papers relating to agrostology, mycology, and pathology.

Sheffield, University of. See ★University of Sheffield.

Sheldon (shel'dọn), Charles Monroe. Born at Wellsville, N. Y., Feb. 26, 1857. An American clergyman and author. He was ordained in 1886; was pastor of the Congregational Church at Waterbury, Vermont, 1886–88; and since 1889 has been pastor of the Central Congregational Church at Topeka, Kansas. In 1900 he undertook to edit the Topeka "Daily Capital" for one week "in accordance with the principles of Christianity," an experiment which attracted wide attention. He is the author of a number of books, of which the best known is "In His Steps" (1896).

Shelton (shel'tọn). A borough in Huntington town, Fairfield County, Connecticut, on the Housatonic River. It has manufacturing interests. Population, 4,807, (1910).

Shepstone (shep'stōn), Sir Theophilus. Born at Westbury, near Bristol, Jan. 8, 1817: died at Pietermaritzburg, June 23, 1893. A British colonial administrator. His parents emigrated to the Cape in 1820. For many years he held official positions in which his knowledge of the native languages and customs was of great value. In January, 1877, with a small personal staff and twenty-five policemen, he rode into the Transvaal, and on April 18 declared it British territory. He administered the Transvaal until 1879, and was appointed administrator of Zululand in 1884.

Sheridan (sher'i-dan). The county-seat of Sheridan County, Wyoming, in a coal-mining region in the northern part of the State. Its chief interests are coal and live stock. Population, 8,408, (1910).

Sherlock Holmes, The Adventures of. A series of stories by (Sir) Arthur Conan Doyle, published in 1891. They were named for the hero, a brilliant amateur detective, and were followed by "The Memoirs of Sherlock Holmes" (1893) and "The Return of Sherlock Holmes" (1904).

Sherman (shèr'man), Frank Dempster. Born at Peekskill, N. Y., May 6, 1860. An American poet and educator. He has been professor of graphics at Columbia University since 1891. Among his works are "Madrigals and Catches" (1887), "Lyrics for a Lute" (1890), "Little-Folk Lyrics" (1892), "Lyrics of Joy" (1904), and "A Southern Fight" (1905: with Clinton Scollard).

Sherman (shèr'man), James Schoolcraft. Born in Utica, N. Y., Oct. 24, 1855. An American politician, Vice-President of the United States 1909–. He was graduated at Hamilton College 1878; studied law; was mayor of Utica 1884; and was a (Republican) member of Congress 1887–89.

Sherman Antitrust Law. An act of Congress, passed July 2, 1890, which declares every contract, combination (in the form of a trust or otherwise), or conspiracy in restraint of trade or commerce among the several States, or with foreign nations, to be illegal, and makes it a misdemeanor punishable by a fine not exceeding $5,000, or by imprisonment for not longer than one year, or by both, for any one individually or as an official of a corporation to engage in such a contract or conspiracy. Any person injured by such restraint of trade may sue in the United States Circuit Court and recover threefold damages. Similar antitrust provisions are found in the tariff acts of 1894, 1897, and 1909. The law was named for Senator John Sherman, its author. Also called Antitrust Law, Sherman Act, and Sherman Law. For important cases which have arisen under this law, see ★Addystone Pipe Case, ★Northern Securities Case, ★Standard Oil Case, and ★Tobacco Case, American.

Sherrill (sher'il), Charles Hitchcock. Born at Washington, April 13, 1867. An American diplomatist. He practised law in New York city 1892–1909. In 1909 he was appointed minister to the Argentine Republic. He is the author of "Stained Glass Tours in France" (1908) and "Stained Glass Tours in England" (1909).

Sherwood (shèr'wụd), Margaret Pollock: pseudonym Elizabeth Hastings. Born at Ballston, N. Y., Nov. 1, 1864. An American educator and author. She was graduated at Vassar College in 1886, and has been associate professor of English literature at Wellesley College since 1898. She has published "An Experiment in Altruism" (1895), "Henry Worthington, Idealist" (1899), "Daphne" (1903), "The Coming of the Tide" (1905), "The Princess Pourquoi" (1907), etc.

Shiras (shī'ras), George. Born at Pittsburgh, Pa., Jan. 26, 1832. An American jurist. He was graduated from Yale in 1853, was admitted to the Pennsylvania bar in 1856, and was associate justice of the United States Supreme Court 1892–1902.

Shirlaw (shèr'lâ), Walter. Born at Paisley, Scotland, Aug. 6, 1838: died Dec. 26, 1909. An American painter. He studied art in Munich under the painters Raab, Wagner, Ramberg, and Lindenschmidt; was one of the founders of the Society of American Artists and its president for two terms; and was elected a member of the National Academy of Design in 1888. Among his works are "Toning of the Bell," "Good Morning," "Sheepshearing," "Harmonics," "A Melody," etc.

Short (shôrt), Francis Job. Born at Stourbridge, Worcestershire, June 19, 1857. An English engraver and etcher. He was educated for civil engineering, but in 1883 entered the National Art Training School at South Kensington, subsequently becoming director of the etching and engraving school of the Royal College of Art. He was elected an associate of the Royal Academy in 1906, and in 1910 became president of the Royal Society of Painter-Etchers and Engravers. He was knighted in 1911. Besides reproductions of paintings of Turner, Watts, and others, his work includes many original etchings, mezzotints, and aquatints.

Shorter (shôr'tèr), Clement King. Born at London, July 19, 1858. An English journalist and critic. He was editor of the "Illustrated London News" 1891–1900, of the "Sketch," which he founded, 1893–1900, and of the "English Illustrated Magazine" 1893–1900. Since 1900 he has been editor of the "Sphere," which he also founded, and of the "Tatler." Among his publications are "Charlotte Brontë and her Circle" (1896), "Victorian Literature" (1897), "Charlotte Brontë and her Sisters" (1905), "George Borrow" (1905), "Immortal Memories" (1908), etc.

Siam*. The Franco-Siamese treaty of March 23, 1907, provides for the cession to France of Battambang, Siem Reap, and Sisophon, the retention by Siam of the port of Krat and the region of Wansai, while 4 ports on the Mekong are to be held by France on perpetual lease. On March 10, 1909, the tributary states of Kelantan, Trengganu, and Keda, on the Malay Peninsula, were ceded to Great Britain. There is a legislative council (created in 1895), composed of the ministers of state and others appointed by the crown.

Siang-tan (siäng-tän'). A city in the province of Hu-nan, China, situated on the Siang River in lat. 27° 52′ N., long. 112° 42′ E. Population, about 100,000.

Siargao (sē-är-gä'ō). One of the Philippine Islands, lying in the Pacific Ocean northeast of Mindanao and belonging to Surigao province. Coal is found in the island. Area, 151 square miles. Population, 9,556.

Sibelius (si-bā'li-ŭs), Jean. Born at Tavastehus, Dec. 8, 1865. A Finnish composer. He studied with Wegelius at Helsingfors, and later with Becker at Berlin and with Goldmark and Fuchs at Vienna. Since 1893 he has taught at the Institute in Helsingfors. He is regarded as the founder of a national Finnish music. Among his works are symphonies, orchestral suites, symphonic poems ("Der Schwan von Tuonela," "Eine Sage," "Finlandia," etc.), violin and chamber music, songs, and a Finnish opera, "The Maiden in the Tower." He makes extensive use of folk-songs, of the 5-4 rhythm, and of the repetition of single notes.

Sibonga (sē-bŏng'gä). A municipality in the eastern part of Cebú Island, Philippines. Civilized population, 25,848.

Sibuguey (sē-bö-gā') Bay. A large bay indenting the southern coast of Mindanao, in the Philippine Islands. Coal found in its vicinity is said to be of good quality.

Sibutu (sē-bö'tö) Islands. A group of islands lying southwest of the Tawi Tawi group in the Sulu (Joló) Archipelago. It consists of 12 islands, of which Sibutu is the largest. They were ceded by Spain to the United States by a treaty signed Nov. 7, 1900. They are a part of the Joló district of Moro province. Area of Sibutu, 34 square miles. Population, 280. Area of the group, 42.2 square miles.

Sibuyán (sē-bö-yän'). A mountainous island in the Philippines, the second in size of the Romblón group, situated southeast of Romblón. Gold is found in the northern part of the island. Mount Guitiguitin, or Sibuyán, rises in the center. Area, 171 square miles. Population, 10,716.

Sicily*. Messina and adjacent regions were visited by a destructive earthquake on Dec. 28, 1908. The city was totally destroyed and upward of 100,000 people were killed.

Sidis (sī'dis), Boris. Born in the province of Kieff, Russia, Oct. 12, 1867. A psychologist and psychopathologist. He came to America in 1887, and was associate in psychology and psychopathology at the Pathological Institute of the New York State Hospitals 1896-1901. He was director of the psychopathological hospital and laboratory of the New York Infirmary for Women and Children 1901–04; has practised in Brookline, Massachusetts, and Boston; and is medical director of the Sidis Psychotherapeutic Institute at Portsmouth, New Hampshire. He has published "The Psychology of Suggestion" (1898), "Psychopathological Researches in Mental Dissociation" (1902), "Multiple Personality" (1904; with S. P. Goodhart), "An Experimental Study of Sleep" (1909), and "Philistine and Genius" (1911).

Sienkiewicz*, Henryk. His later works include "Krzyzacy" (1901) and "Whirlpools" (1910). In 1905 he was awarded the Nobel prize for literature.

Sierra Leone*. In 1896 a protectorate was proclaimed by Great Britain over the territory lying inland between lat. 7° and 10° N., long. 11° and 13° W. It is divided into 6 administrative districts. Area, about 30,000 square miles. Population, over 1,000,000. Area of the colony proper, about 4,000 square miles. Pop., 76,655.

Sieveking (sē've-king), Martinus. Born at Amsterdam, March 24, 1867. A Dutch pianist. He studied first with his father, and later at the Leipsic Conservatory, afterward going to Paris. He toured Europe as a pianist, and visited America during the season of 1896–97.

Sigsbee*, Charles Dwight. He was chief intelligence officer 1900–03; was commandant of the navy-yard at League Island 1903–04; commanded the South Atlantic squadron 1904–05, and the second division of the North Atlantic fleet 1905–06; and retired in 1907.

Silay (sē-lī'). A municipality in the northwestern part of Negros Occidental province, Negros, Philippine Islands. Civilized population, 15,649.

Silver State, The. The State of Nevada: so named from the richness of its silver-mines.

Simon (sī'mon), Charles Edmund. Born at Baltimore, Md., Sept. 23, 1866. An American physician, physiological chemist, and hematologist. He was assistant resident physician at Johns Hopkins Hospital 1890–91; opened the first clinical laboratory in Baltimore in 1897; and has been professor of clinical pathology in the Baltimore Medical College since 1905. He is the author of "Clinical Diagnosis" (1896) and "Physiological Chemistry" (1901).

Simon*, Jules. His later works include "La politique radicale" (1868), "Le libre-échange" (1870), "Souvenirs du 4 septembre" (1874), "La réforme de l'enseignement secondaire" (1874), "Le gouvernement de M. Thiers" (1878), "Dieu, patrie, liberté" (1883), "Une académie sous le Directoire" (1884), "La femme du vingtième siècle" (1891: with Gustave Simon), many biographical studies, and two volumes of memoirs, "Le soir de ma journée" and "Premières années" (1901).

Simon (sē-môn'), Lucien. Born at Paris, July 18, 1861. A French painter. Besides portraits, his work includes many scenes from peasant life, especially in Brittany. "La procession bretonne," "Diseuse de bonne aventure," "Coup de vent," and others of his paintings are in the Luxembourg Museum.

Simons (sī'monz), Algie Martin. Born at North Freedom, Wis., Oct. 9, 1870. An American socialist. He was graduated at the University of Wisconsin in 1895, and was engaged in social settlement and other charitable work 1895–99. He was editor of the "Worker's Call" in 1899, of the "International Socialist Review" 1900–06, of the Chicago "Daily Socialist" 1906–10, and of the "Coming Nation" 1910–. He has published "The American Farmer" (1902), "Class Struggles in America" (1907), and "Social Forces in American History" (1911).

Simon's Bay (sī'monz bā). A bay on the westerly side of False Bay, Cape of Good Hope, Africa. Simon's Town is situated upon it. It is a British naval base.

Sinclair (sin-klār'), May. A contemporary British novelist. She has published "Audrey Craven" (1897), "Mr. and Mrs. Nevill Tyson" (1898), "Two Sides of a Question" (1901), "The Divine Fire" (1904), "The Helpmate" (1907), "Immortal Moment" (1908), "The Judgment of Eve" (1908), "The Creators" (1910), etc.

Sinclair (sin-klār'), Upton Beall. Born at Baltimore, Sept. 20, 1878. An American author and socialist. He was educated at the College of the City of New York and at Columbia University. He has published a number of novels, one of which, "The Jungle" (1906), led to a government investigation of the Chicago stockyards. In 1906 he founded at Englewood, New Jersey, a coöperative colony dwelling together in Helicon Hall, a building which was destroyed by fire in 1907. His publications include also "Springtime and Harvest" (1901), "The Industrial Republic" (1907), "The Metropolis" (1908), "Samuel, the Seeker" (1909), etc.

Sinding (sin'ding), Christian. Born at Kongsberg, Norway, Jan. 11, 1856. A Norwegian composer. His most important works are a symphony in D minor, a violin concerto, and chamber-music. Many of his piano pieces are popular.

Singleton, Mrs. (Mary Montgomerie Lamb). See ★Currie.

Singpo (sing-pō'). [From Chingpau, 'men,' their native name.] A people inhabiting the mountainous region of upper Burma. Also called Kachin or Kakhyen.

Sinna (sin'ä). A city of Persia, capital of the district of Ardelan in Kurdistan, situated about lat. 35° N., long. 47° E. Also Sena, Senna, Sihna.

Sisley (sis'li), Alfred. Born at Paris, Oct. 30, 1840, of English parents: died at Moret-sur-Loing, France, Jan. 29, 1899. An Anglo-French painter. He was a pupil of Gleyre and much influenced by Corot. About 1875 he became one of the most brilliant leaders of the Impressionist movement. His pictures are widely distributed, several being in the Musée du Luxembourg in Paris.

Sister Dora. The name under which Dorothy Wyndlow Pattison was known in her philanthropic work. See ★Pattison.

Sivori (sē-vō'rē), Camille. Born at Genoa, Oct. 25, 1815: died there, Feb. 18, 1894. An Italian violin virtuoso. At the age of six he attracted the attention of Paganini, who taught him and wrote several pieces for him. At ten he began to tour in concert, appearing in the United States 1846–48. He wrote two concertos and other music for the violin.

Sivutch Rock (sē-vöch' rok). A small islet just off the shore of St. Paul Island, Bering Sea, containing a fur-seal rookery.

Skagway (skag'wā). A town in southern Alaska, on the Lynn Canal. It is important as a railway terminus. It has an army post, and is the supply-center for the Yukon mining region.

Skraelings (skrā'lingz). [Nor. skraelling, a feeble or puny person.] The name given by the early Norse discoverers of America to the North American Indians. In Icelandic literature it is the common name of the Eskimos, and is probably a general term meaning simply 'an inferior people.'

Slater Fund. A fund of $1,000,000 established in 1882 by John Fox Slater (1815–84) of Norwich, Connecticut, for the purpose of promoting education among the negroes of the South. The fund has grown through investment, and the trustees have now an annual income of about $80,000 which is mainly used in encouraging industrial training in institutions for the colored race in the South. The office of the trustees is in New York city. The legal title is The Trustees of the John F. Slater Fund.

Slezak (slā'zäk), Leo. Born at Schönberg, Moravia, Aug. 18, 1875. An Austrian tenor singer. He made his début at Brünn, March 17, 1896, as Lohengrin, and has since appeared at Berlin, London, Breslau, and Vienna, and at the Wagner and Mozart festivals in Munich. He made his American début at the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, during the season of 1909–10.

Small (smâl), Albion Woodbury. Born at Buckfield, Maine, May 11, 1854. An American sociologist and educator. He studied at Colby College and at Berlin, Leipsic, and Johns Hopkins universities. He was professor of history and political economy in Colby College 1881–88, and president 1889–92. He has been head of the department of sociology of the University of Chicago since 1892, and dean of the graduate school of arts and literature since 1905. He has been editor of the "American Journal of Sociology" since 1895, and has published "General Sociology" (1905), "Adam Smith and Modern Sociology" (1907), and "The Cameralists" (1909).

Smalley (smâl'i), George Washburn. Born at Franklin, Mass., June 2, 1833. An American journalist. He was graduated at Yale University in 1853 and at the Harvard Law School in 1855; practised law in Boston 1856–61; joined the staff of the New York "Tribune" in 1861, acting as war correspondent in the Civil War 1861–62; organized and directed the European bureau of the "Tribune" in London 1866–67; and had charge of its European correspondence until 1895. He was American correspondent of the London "Times" 1895–1908. His publications include a "Review of Bright's Speeches" (1868), "London Letters" (1890), "Studies of Men" (1895), "Life of Sir Sydney Waterlow" (1909), "Anglo-American Memories" (1910), etc.

Smedley (smed'li), William Thomas. Born in Chester County, Pa., March 26, 1858. An American painter. He was educated at the Philadelphia Academy of Fine Arts and under J. P. Laurens in Paris. In 1905 he was elected a member of the National Academy of Design in New York. He has been much occupied as an illustrator.

Smith (smith), Alexander. Born at Edinburgh, Sept. 11, 1865. A Scottish-American chemist, professor in Columbia University from 1911. He was professor of chemistry and mineralogy in Wabash College 1890–94, and assistant professor, associate professor, and professor of chemistry in the University of Chicago 1894–1911. He has published "Laboratory Outline of General Chemistry" (1899), "Introduction to General Inorganic Chemistry" (1906), "General Chemistry for Colleges" (1908), etc., and a number of original investigations in organic and general chemistry.

Smith (smith), Arthur Henderson. Born at Vernon, Conn., July 18, 1845. An American clergyman, missionary, and author. He has been engaged in missionary work in China almost continuously since 1872, and was in Peking during the siege in 1900. Among his works are "Chinese Characteristics" (1890), "Village Life in China" (1899), "China in Convulsion" (1901), "Rex Christus, an Outline Study of China" (1903), "The Uplift of China" (1907), etc.

Smith (smith), David Eugene. Born at Cortland, N. Y., Jan. 21, 1860. An American mathematician, professor of mathematics in the Teachers College of Columbia University from 1901. His studies relate especially to the history of mathematics.

Smith (smith), Donald Alexander, first Baron Strathcona and Mount Royal. Born at Forres, Scotland, Aug. 6, 1820. A British administrator, high commissioner for Canada from 1896. At an early age he entered the service of the Hudson Bay Company, and was the last resident governor of that organization as a governing body. He sat for many years in the Dominion House of Commons, and has been largely identified with the railroad interests and the general increasing prosperity of British North America. In 1897 he was raised to the peerage.

Smith (smith), Edgar Fahs. Born at York, Pa., May 23, 1856. An American chemist and educator, provost of the University of Pennsylvania from 1911. He studied at Pennsylvania College and at Göttingen, and was professor of chemistry in the University of Pennsylvania 1888–1911. He has published various works and papers on chemical topics, especially electrochemistry.

Smith (smith), George: later George M. (Murray) Smith. Born at London, March 19, 1824: died at Byfleet, near Weybridge, April 6, 1901. An English publisher. He joined the firm of Smith, Elder, and Company, founded by his father with Alexander Elder, and upon the death of his father in 1846 became its head. Among the authors whose works he published were Ruskin, Charlotte Brontë, Thackeray, Trollope, Mrs. Gaskell, Wilkie Collins, Robert Browning and Mrs. Browning, Leigh Hunt, Matthew Arnold, Sir Leslie Stephen, and Mrs. Humphry Ward. In 1859 he started the "Cornhill Magazine," with Thackeray as editor, and in 1865 founded the "Pall Mall Gazette." His most noted publication was the monumental "Dictionary of National Biography" (1885–1901: supplement and index volume, 1901–03).

Smith*, Goldwin. His later works include "Essays on Questions of the Day" (1894), "Guesses at the Riddle of Existence" (1896), "The United Kingdom" (1899), "Shakespeare—the Man" (1900), "Commonwealth or Empire" (1902), "In the Court of History" (1902), "The Founder of Christendom" (1903), "Lines of Religious Inquiry" (1904), "My Memory of Gladstone" (1904), "Irish History and the Irish Question" (1905), "Labour and Capital" (1907), and "Reminiscences" (1910).

Smith (smith), Hoke. Born at Newton, N. C., Sept. 2, 1855. An American politician. He was admitted to the bar in 1873, and subsequently practised law at Atlanta, Georgia. He was secretary of the interior in Cleveland's cabinet 1893–96, and was governor of Georgia 1907–09, and again 1911–.

Smith (smith), Theobald. Born at Albany, N. Y., July 31, 1859. An American pathologist, professor of comparative pathology in Harvard University from 1896. He had charge of the investigations of infectious diseases of animals for the United States Department of Agriculture 1884–95, and was professor of bacteriology in George Washington University 1886–95. He has investigated the causes of Texas cattle-fever and similar infectious diseases, and has made special studies in parasitism and immunity.

Smith's Falls (smiths fâlz'). A town in Lanark County, Ontario, Canada, situated on the Rideau Canal. It has manufactures of woolens, farm implements, stoves, etc. Population, 5,155.

Smithwick (smith'wik), John George Carlton. Born in Ireland, Oct. 6, 1844: died at New York, July 1, 1904. An American wood-engraver, one among the first successfully to engrave photographs on wood. He was represented in all the leading American magazines and illustrated journals, and was for many years manager of the engraving department of "Harper's Magazine."

Smyth (smith), Ethel Mary. Born at London. An English composer. She studied at the Leipsic Conservatory, and later with Heinrich von Herzogenberg. She has written three operas, "Fantasio" (1898), "Der Wald" (1901), which has been sung at the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, and "The Wreckers" (1906). Her other works include a mass; a serenade for orchestra; an overture ("Antony and Cleopatra"); an orchestral tone-poem ("On the Cliffs of Cornwall"); "The Spirits of the Forest," "Sleepless Dreams," and "Hey Nonny No" for chorus and orchestra; "Songs of Sunrise" (a group of suffrage choruses, and others, for mixed chorus and female chorus, including "March of the Women"); songs, etc.

Snow (snō), Lorenzo. Born at Mantua, Ohio, 1814: died at Salt Lake City, Oct. 10, 1901. The president of the Mormon Church 1898–1901. He studied at Oberlin College; became a Mormon in 1836; was a missionary of that church in Great Britain 1840–43, in Italy in 1849, and in the Hawaiian Islands in 1864; and was elected president of the Twelve Apostles in 1889.

Snowden (snō'den), Philip. Born at Cowling, Yorkshire, in 1864. An English socialist. He was in the inland revenue service 1886–93, and subsequently engaged in journalism, taking part in the socialist propaganda. In 1903 he became chairman of the Independent Labor party, and in 1906 was elected a Labor member of Parliament. He is the author of many pamphlets on socialism.

Solomon Islands*. Some of the smaller islands east of Bougainville were transferred to Great Britain in 1899. The islands are administered by the officials of Kaiser Wilhelm Land.

Solvay (sol'vā). A village in Onondaga County, New York, adjoining Syracuse. It has manufactories of soda-ash, pottery, etc. Population, 5,139, (1910).

Somali Coast Protectorate*, or Somaliland. About 15,000 square miles were ceded to Abyssinia in 1897. It is administered by a commissioner. Chief town and seaport, Berbera. Area, 68,000 square miles. Population, over 300,000.

Somali Coast Protectorate, French, or French Somaliland. A French colony in North Africa, on the Gulf of Aden, between the British Somali Coast Protectorate and the Italian colony of Eritrea. It includes the ports of Obok and Jibuti, the latter being the seat of government. The native races are the Danakil and Somali. The colony is administered by a governor and a privy council. Area, about 5,790 square miles. Population, over 200,000.

Somerset (sum'ėr-set), Lady Henry (Isabella Caroline Somers). Born 1851. An English philanthropist and writer, daughter of the third Earl Somers. She has taken a prominent part in temperance reform and the advancement of women's work, and established the first industrial farm colony for inebriate women and various training-schools and missions. She is the founder and editor of the "Woman's Signal," and has written "Studies in Black and White," "A Book for Children," "Our Village Life," "Under the Arch of Life," etc.

Somerville (sum'ėr-vil). The county-seat of Somerset County, New Jersey, on the Raritan River, 10 miles northwest of New Brunswick. It has manufactories of carriages, woolen goods, ranges, etc. Population, 5,060, (1910).

Sommer (sō-mār'), Roger. Born at Pierrepont, Meurthe-et-Moselle, Aug. 4, 1877. A French aviator. He made a world's record in a Farman aëroplane on Aug. 7, 1909, by a flight lasting 2 hrs., 27 min., 15 sec., at Camp de Châlons.

Sonnenthal (zōn'nen-täl), Adolf, Ritter von. Born at Budapest, Dec. 21, 1834: died at Prague, April 4, 1909. An Austrian actor. His first appearance on the stage was at Temesvár, in 1851. In 1856 he was engaged for the Vienna court theater, of which he became manager-in-chief in 1884. In 1882 a patent of nobility was conferred upon him. He played in various European cities, and in 1885, 1899, and 1902 visited the United States. Among his chief parts were Hamlet, King Lear, Wallenstein, Nathan (in Lessing's "Nathan der Weise"), and Mortimer (in Schiller's "Maria Stuart").

Sons of the American Revolution. An association similar to that of the Sons of the Revolution, but limited to lineal descendants of those who rendered actual service in the War of the Revolution. The national society was organized in New York, April 30, 1889. The total membership is about 11,000.

Sons of the Revolution. A patriotic society originated in New York in 1876 by John A. Stevens and others. The aggregate membership of its thirty-one State societies is now about 8,000 and is limited to adult male descendants of those who helped to establish American independence between the dates of April 19, 1775, and April 19, 1783. The object of the society is to perpetuate the memory of the men who achieved American independence, to preserve documents relating to the War of the Revolution, to inspire a patriotic spirit, and to assist in the commemorative celebration of great historic events.

Sorel (sō-rel'), Albert. Born at Honfleur, France, Aug. 13, 1842: died at Paris, June 29, 1906. A noted French historian and author. In 1893 he was elected a member of the French Academy, succeeding Taine, of whom he was a disciple. The most important of his works are "Histoire diplomatique de la guerre franco-allemande" (1875), "La question d'orient au XVIIIe siècle: origine de la triple alliance" (1878), and "L'Europe et la révolution française" (1885–1903), for the last of which the French Academy awarded him the Gobert prize in 1887 and 1888. He is the author also of two novels, "La grande Falaise" (1872) and "Le docteur Egra" (1873); "Essais d'histoire et de critique" (1882, 1888); and biographies of Montesquieu (1887) and Madame de Staël (1891). He was made an officer of the Legion of Honor in 1885, and received the Prix Osiris in 1906.

Sorolla y Bastida (sō-rōl'yä ē bäs-tē'dä), Joaquín. Born at Valencia, Spain, Feb. 27, 1863. A noted Spanish painter. He studied in Valencia and Madrid, and later in Rome, Paris, and again in Italy. In 1909 a large number of his paintings were exhibited in New York and elsewhere in the United States.

Sorsogón (sōr-sō-gōn'). 1. A province of the Philippine Islands, situated in the southeastern extremity of Luzón, and including several small adjacent islands. It is bounded by Albay (partly separated by mountains) on the north; the Pacific Ocean on the east; the Strait of San Bernardino (separating it from Samar) on the southeast; and the Visayan Sea on the south and west. Among its bays are Port Gubat on the eastern and Port Sorsogón on the southwestern coast, the latter a fine harbor safe for large vessels in all weather. Sorsogón is in an active seismic center, and earthquakes are frequent. The volcano Bulusan, 4,053 feet in height, is solfataric, and there are numerous hot springs near its foot. The chief rivers are the Donsol, the Putiao, and the Irocin, which are navigable by native boats for from 10 to 13 miles. Coal is found in several parts of the province. Lead, sulphur, and gypsum are also reported. Almost half of the land (45.5 per cent.) is agricultural. Among the products are sweet potatoes, sugar-cane, and hemp, the last abundant in yield and excellent in quality. The inhabitants are Bicols. Area of province, 755 square miles. Population, 120,495.

2. A town, the capital of Sorsogón province, situated at the northeastern angle of Port Sorsogón in lat. 12° 58′ N., long. 123° 58′ E. Civilized population, 13,511.

Sothern (suᵀᴴ'ėrn), Edward Hugh. Born Dec. 6, 1859. An American actor, son of Edward Askew Sothern. Among the plays in which he has appeared are "One of Our Girls," "The Highest Bidder," "The Maister of Woodbarrow," "The Dancing Girl," "Lord Chumley," "The Prisoner of Zenda," "Under the Red Robe," and "Henry Esmond," and he is well known as an interpreter of Shakspere. In 1896 he married Virginia Harned, the actress. He was divorced from her in 1910, and in 1911 married Julia Marlowe.

Sousa (sō'zä), John Philip. Born at Washington, D. C., Nov. 6, 1854. An American band-master, best known as a composer of marches. In 1880 he was appointed director of the United States Marine Band, and in 1892 organized Sousa's Band. Among his marches are "The Stars and Stripes Forever," "The Washington Post," "The High School Cadets," "King Cotton," "Manhattan Beach," "Hands Across the Sea," and "Liberty Bell." He has also written the comic operas "The Smugglers," "Désirée," "The Queen of Hearts," "El Capitan," "The Bride-Elect," "The Charlatan," and "Chris and the Wonderful Lamp"; orchestral suites; and a large number of miscellaneous compositions.

South Africa, United States of. See ★Union of South Africa.

South African Republic*, now the Transvaal. After its annexation to the British Empire in 1900 its name was changed from South African Republic (adopted in 1884) to Transvaal Colony. This name was changed to the Transvaal when it became a province of the Union of South Africa in 1910. It sends 8 senators and 36 representatives to the Union Parliament at Pretoria. Its internal affairs are conducted by an administrator (appointed by the governor-general for 5 years) and a provincial council of 36 members elected for 3 years. Members of the Provincial Council are elected on the same system as members of Parliament, but the restriction as to European descent does not apply. The first parliamentary and provincial elections for the Transvaal were held (under the South Africa Act of 1909) on Sept. 15, 1910. See ★Union of South Africa.

South Amboy (south am-boi'). A city in Middlesex County, New Jersey, incorporated in 1908, and coextensive with South Amboy township. It is on Raritan Bay, at the mouth of the Raritan River, 20 miles southwest of Jersey City. It is a shipping-point for coal, and has manufactories of pottery, asphaltum, brick, etc. Population, 7,007, (1910).

Southbridge (south'brij). A town in Worcester County, Massachusetts, situated on the Quinebaug River. It has cotton- and woolen-mills, and manufactures of cutlery, optical glasses, etc. Population, 12,592, (1910).

Southern Education Board. An organization for aiding in the advancement of education in the Southern States, by coöperating with State and local authorities in building up the public school system, especially in rural districts.

Southington (suᵀᴴ'ing-ton). A town in Hartford County, Connecticut, on the Quinnipiac River, 10 miles northwest of Waterbury. Manufacturing is its principal industry, the products including cutlery, hardware, etc. Population, 6,516, (1910).

South Kingstown (south kingz'toun). A town in Washington County, Rhode Island, 26 miles southwest of Providence. Its chief interests are agriculture, manufacturing, oyster culture, and fishing. Population, 5,176, (1910).

South Milwaukee (south mil-wâ'kē). A city in Milwaukee County, Wisconsin, 8½ miles south of Milwaukee. It has manufactories of electrical supplies, steam-dredges, mineral wool, etc. Population, 6,092, (1910).

South Omaha (south ō'ma-hâ). A city in Douglas County, Nebraska, situated on the Missouri River adjoining Omaha. It has a large business in slaughtering and meat-packing, and in the manufacture of barrels, tubs, etc. Population, 26,259, (1910).

South Orange (south or'anj). A village in Essex County, New Jersey, 4½ miles west of Newark. It is mainly residential, and is the seat of Seton Hall College (Roman Catholic). Population, 6,014, (1910).

South Orkney Islands*. They form a dependency of the Falkland Islands.

South Portland (south pōrt'land). A city in Cumberland County, Maine, on Casco Bay, opposite Portland, with which it is connected by bridges. It has railroad shops, steel- and iron-works, etc., and is the seat of a State reform school for boys. Population, 7,471, (1910).

South Sharon (south shâr'on). A borough in Mercer County, Pennsylvania, incorporated in 1901. It has steel- and wire-works, etc. Population, 10,190, (1910).

South Shetland*. The group of islands form a dependency of the Falkland Islands.

Spargo (spär'gō), John. Born at Stithians, Cornwall, Jan. 31, 1876. An Anglo-American socialist. He became identified with the socialist movement in England in early life, came to America in 1901, and has since been active in the socialist cause. He is a member of the national executive committee of the Socialist party. Among his publications are "The Bitter Cry of the Children" (1906), "The Socialists" (1906), "Socialism" (1906), "Capitalist and Laborer" (1907), "The Common Sense of the Milk Question" (1908), "The Common Sense of Socialism" (1908), "The Socialism of William Morris" (1908), "The Spiritual Significance of Modern Socialism" (1908), "Karl Marx" (1909), "The Substance of Socialism" (1910), "Sidelights on Contemporary Socialism" (1911), etc.

Sparrows Point (spar'ōz point). A point of land in Baltimore County, Maryland, the seat of a branch post-office of Baltimore and of a wireless telegraph station, 8 miles southeast of Baltimore, near the mouth of the Patapsco River. It is the property of the Maryland Steel Company, and has important steel-works. Population, about 8,500.

Spartanburg (spär'tan-bėrg). A city, the capital of Spartanburg County, South Carolina. It contains Converse College, Wofford College, a public library, and the State Institute for the Deaf, Dumb, and Blind; and has cotton- and lumber-mills, iron-works, and manufactures of rope, brooms, etc. Population, 17,517, (1910).

Spencer*, John Poyntz, fifth Earl Spencer. He was lord lieutenant of Northamptonshire 1872–1908; was keeper of the privy seal of the Duke of Cornwall 1901–1907; and in 1902 was appointed Liberal leader in the House of Lords to succeed the Earl of Kimberley.

Sperry (sper'i), Charles Stillman. Born at Brooklyn, N. Y., Sept. 3, 1847: died at Washington, D. C., Feb. 1, 1911. An American naval officer. He was graduated from the United States Naval Academy in 1866; was promoted captain in 1900 and rear-admiral in 1906; and was in command of the battle-ship fleet in its cruise around the world (1908–1909), from its departure from San Francisco, July 7, 1908. He was president of the Naval War College, and was a delegate to the second Peace Conference in 1907. Retired 1909.

Spitzka (spits'kä), Edward Charles. Born at New York, Nov. 10, 1852. An American neurologist and comparative anatomist. He was professor of nervous and mental diseases and medical jurisprudence in the New York Post-Graduate Medical College 1882–84.

Spooner (spön'ėr), John Coit. Born at Lawrenceburg, Ind., Jan. 6, 1843. An American lawyer and statesman. He was graduated at the University of Wisconsin in 1864; served in the Civil War; was admitted to the bar in 1867; and was (Republican) United States senator from Wisconsin 1885–91 and 1897–1907.

Sprague (sprāg), Frank Julian. Born at Milford, Conn., July 25, 1857. A noted American electrical engineer and inventor. He was graduated at the United States Naval Academy in 1878; resigned from the navy in 1883; and later formed the Sprague Electric Railway and Motor Company, and actively developed electric motors. He is recognized as the pioneer of the modern electric trolley system because of his installation of the road at Richmond, Virginia, 1887–88, the first on a large scale, the features of which became general standards. He then introduced high-speed and automatic electric elevators; formed the Sprague Electric Company; and in 1887 invented the "multiple-unit system" of electric train operation, now generally adopted.

Spring Hill (spring hil). A town in Cumberland County, Nova Scotia, Canada. It is situated a few miles from the Spring Hill coal-mines. Its main interests are in the mining and transportation of coal. Population, 5,178.

Spring Valley (spring val'i). A city in Bureau County, Illinois, on the Illinois River, about 20 miles west of Ottawa. Its principal industries are the mining and shipping of coal. Population, 7,035, (1910).

Squatter State, The. A popular name of the State of Kansas.

Stafford (staf'ōrd). A town in Tolland County, Connecticut, on the Willimantic River, 25 miles northeast of Hartford. It includes Stafford Springs, a summer resort, and has manufactories of woolen goods. Population, 5,233, (1910).

Stamaty (stä-mä-tē'), Camille Marie. Born at Rome, Italy, March 23, 1811: died at Paris, April 19, 1870. A French pianist and composer. He was a pupil of Kalkbrenner and Mendelssohn, and the teacher, at Paris, of Gottschalk and Saint-Saëns. He wrote many études and pieces for the piano.

Standard Oil Case. A suit brought in 1906 by the United States against the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey and seventy other corporations and seven individuals, to dissolve the holding company or combination, known as the Standard Oil Trust, formed by them for the control of the output of petroleum and its products. The decision, rendered May 15, 1911, found the Standard Oil Trust to be a combination in restraint of trade and commerce, and directed its dissolution within six months. The decision is notable for its emphasis of the standard of reason in dealing with cases subject to the Antitrust Law of July 2, 1890.

Standard Oil Company. Originally, the Standard Oil Company of Ohio, organized in 1870, a consolidation of various partnerships engaged in producing, refining, and selling petroleum and its products. By agreements with and control of other concerns engaged in the same business, it gradually worked toward a monopoly of the industry in its many ramifications. In 1882 the Standard Oil Trust, or the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, was formed, and secured the control of nearly all competing companies in the United States. In 1899 its charter was broadened to admit it to all fields of industry and ownership. The total capitalization of the various companies and of the holding company was shown to be above $328,000,000. Suit was brought, Nov. 15, 1906, by the United States against the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey and seventy other corporations and partnerships and seven individuals subsidiary to or allied with it, as parties to a combination or trust in restraint of trade and commerce under the Sherman Antitrust Law. Final decision was rendered by the United States Supreme Court, May 15, 1911, directing the dissolution of the trust into its component parts and allowing six months for such dissolution.

Stanford*, Sir Charles Villiers. He was conductor of the Cambridge University Musical Society 1872–1893, of the Bach Choir 1885–1902, of the Leeds Philharmonic Society, and of the Leeds Festival from 1901.

Stanford (stan'fȯrd), Mrs. (Jane Lathrop). Born at Albany, N. Y., Aug. 25, 1825: died at Honolulu, Feb. 28, 1905. An American philanthropist, wife of Leland Stanford. She joined her husband in founding the Leland Stanford Junior University, and after his death aided it liberally.

Stanford University. See Leland Stanford Junior University.

Stanley Falls (stan'li fâlz). A station, also called Stanleyville, in Belgian Kongo, Africa. It is in lat. 0° 25′ N., and long. 25° 27′ E., at the head of navigation of the Kongo River. The river is navigable from its mouth to Matadi (about 100 miles), unnavigable from there to Stanley Pool (over 200 miles), and navigable from there to Stanley Falls (about 1,200 miles). A railway is being constructed from Stanley Falls to Ponthierville.

Stannard (stan'ärd), Mrs. (Henrietta Eliza Vaughan Palmer): pseudonyms John Strange Winter and Violet Whyte. Born at York, England, Jan. 13, 1856. An English novelist. She has written many tales of army life, some of which attained wide popularity. Among her works are "Houp-la!" (1885), "Bootles' Baby" (1885), "Beautiful Jim" (1888), "A Blameless Woman" (1895), "A Name to Conjure With" (1899), "A Self-made Countess" (1900), "A Blaze of Glory" (1902), "Marty" (1903), and "A Simple Gentleman" (1906).

Stargard (stär'gärt). A town in Pomerania, Germany, 20 miles southeast of Stettin. It is a manufacturing town, and a trade center for cattle and produce. Population, 26,907.

Stark (stärk), Mrs. (Elizabeth Page). Born Feb. 16, 1737 (1738?): died June 29, 1814. The wife of General John Stark (1728–1822). Her name has become historic from the words (variously reported) said to have been spoken by General Stark to his soldiers at the battle of Bennington: "My men, yonder are the Hessians. They were bought for seven pounds and ten pence a man. Are you worth more? Prove it. To-night the American flag floats from yonder hill or Molly [sic] Stark sleeps a widow!"

Stark (stärk), Molly. See ★Stark, Mrs.

Star of the Sea. A title given to the Virgin Mary.

Starr (stär), Frederick. Born at Auburn, N. Y., Sept. 2, 1858. An American anthropologist, assistant professor 1892–95 and associate professor from 1895 in the University of Chicago. He was curator of ethnology in the American Museum of Natural History (New York) 1889–91. His investigations have related chiefly to the ethnology of southern Mexico. He is the author of "American Indians" (1899), "Strange Peoples" (1900), "The Truth About the Congo" (1907), etc.

Staunton (stân'ton). A city in Macoupin County, Illinois, 35 miles northeast of East St. Louis. Population, 5,048, (1910).

Staunton (stan'ton). An independent city in Virginia, formerly the county-seat of Augusta County, 100 miles northwest of Richmond. It has manufactories of farming implements, flour, wagons, etc. It is the seat of the Western State Hospital for the Insane, a State institution for the deaf and blind, and various educational institutions. Population, 10,604, (1910).

Stedman*, Edmund Clarence. His later works include "The Nature and Elements of Poetry" (1892), collected poems (1894), "Mater Coronata" (1900), and "The Inland City" (1906). He edited also "A Victorian Anthology" (1895), "An American Anthology" (1900), "History of the New York Stock Exchange" (1905), "Poems" (1908), etc.

Stedman (sted'man), Thomas Lathrop. Born at Cincinnati, Ohio, Oct. 11, 1853. An American physician, editor, and author. He has written "A Chinese and English Phrase Book in the Canton Dialect" (1888; with K. P. Lee) and "Modern Greek Mastery" (1896), and has edited "The Twentieth Century Practice of Medicine" (1895–1903), Dunglison's "Medical Dictionary" (1903), and "A Practical Medical Dictionary" (1911). Since 1904 he has been editor of the New York "Medical Record."

Steel (stēl), Mrs. (Flora Annie Webster). Born at Harrow, April 2, 1847. An English novelist. In 1867 she went to India, where she was connected with the government schools of the Panjab for a number of years. Many of her stories deal with Anglo-Indian life. Among her publications are "Tales of the Punjab" (1894), "The Potter's Thumb" (1895), "Red Rowans" (1895), "On the Face of the Waters" (1896), "In the Tideway" (1897), "Voices in the Night" (1900), "India" (1906; with Mortimer Menpes), "Sovereign Remedy" (1906), "India Through the Ages" (1908), "The Gift of the Gods" (1911), etc.

Steer (stēr), Philip Wilson. Born at Birkenhead, Dec. 28, 1860. An English figure- and landscape-painter. He studied at the Gloucester School of Art, and under Cabanel at the École des Beaux-Arts, Paris. He has exhibited mainly at the New English Art Club. His work is to be found in the Uffizi Gallery, Florence; the art galleries of Melbourne and Perth in Australia; the National Gallery of British Art (Tate Gallery), London; Metropolitan Museum, New York, etc.

Steffens (stef'ęnz), Joseph Lincoln. Born at San Francisco, April 6, 1866. An American journalist. He has been city editor of the New York "Commercial Advertiser"; was managing editor of "McClure's Magazine" 1901–06; and is associate editor of the "American Magazine." He is the author of "The Shame of the Cities," "The Struggle for Self-government," etc.

Steinmetz (stīn'mets), Charles Proteus. Born at Breslau, Germany, April 9, 1865. A German-American electrician, professor of electrical engineering in Union College (Schenectady, New York) from 1903, and electrician of the General Electric Company (Schenectady) from 1893. He has published "Alternating Current Phenomena" (1897), "Theoretical Elements of Electrical Engineering" (1900–02), "General Lectures on Electrical Engineering" (1908), "Theory and Calculations of Transient Electric Phenomena and Oscillations" (1909), and numerous technical papers.

Steinthal*, Heymann. His later works include "Grammatik, Logik, Psychologie" (1855), "Geschichte der Sprachwissenschaft bei den Griechen und Römern" (1863), "Die Mande-Negersprachen" (1867), "Abriss der Sprachwissenschaft" (1871), "Allgemeine Ethik" (1885), "Zu Bibel und Religionsphilosophie" (1890), etc.

Stejneger (stī'ne-gėr), Leonhard. Born at Bergen, Norway, Oct. 30, 1851. A Norwegian-American biologist, head curator of biology in the U. S. National Museum 1911–. He was assistant curator of birds 1884–89, and curator of reptiles 1889–1911. He has published works on ornithology, "The Asiatic Fur-Seal Islands" (1898), "The Herpetology of Porto Rico" (1904), "The Herpetology of Japan" (1907), etc.

Stelzle (stelts'lē), Charles. Born at New York, June 4, 1869. An American sociologist. He began life as a machinist. In 1900 he was ordained to the Presbyterian ministry, and later had charge of churches in Minneapolis, St. Louis, and New York city. Since 1903 he has been superintendent of the department of church and labor of the Presbyterian Church in the United States, and in 1910 he organized the Labor Temple, in lower New York, serving as its superintendent. He has published "The Workingman and Social Problems" (1903), "Boys of the Street" (1904), "Messages to Workingmen" (1905), "Christianity's Storm Center" (1907), "Letters from a Workingman" (1908), "Principles of Successful Church Advertising" (1909), and "The Church and Labor" (1910).

Stengel (steng'el), Frau (Praxede Marcelline Kochanska): known as Marcella Sembrich. Born at Wisniowczyk, Austria, Feb. 15, 1858. A noted soprano singer. She made her début at Athens in "I Puritani" in 1877; has sung in opera in Dresden, London, Milan, Vienna, Warsaw, St. Petersburg, etc.; and has made a number of tours in America. The name "Sembrich" was that of her maternal grandfather.

Sternberg (stėrn'bėrg), George Miller. Born at Hartwick Seminary, Otsego County, N. Y., June 8, 1838. An American bacteriologist, surgeon-general and brigadier-general in the United States army 1893–1902. He was connected with the army as surgeon from 1861. During the war with Spain in 1898 he had charge of the medical service. His researches have related chiefly to the ætiology of infectious diseases. Among his works are "A Text-book of Bacteriology" (1895), "Immunity" (1897), etc. He retired in 1902.

Stevens (stē'vęnz), Durham White. Born at Washington, D. C., Feb. 1, 1852: died at San Francisco, March 25, 1908. An American diplomatist. He was secretary of the United States legation at Tokio 1873–83, and in the latter year resigned to enter the Japanese diplomatic service as counselor, in which he remained until his death, serving in Japan, at Washington, and in Korea. In 1904 he became diplomatic adviser of the Korean government, under its agreement with Japan. He was shot in San Francisco by a Korean.

Stevens Institute of Technology. A college of mechanical engineering at Hoboken, New Jersey, founded by the will of Edwin A. Stevens in 1870. It has an endowment of $880,000, an annual income of about $120,000, and a student body of about 400. It confers the degree of mechanical engineer (M. E.). An academic department is associated with the institute.

Stevenson*, Robert Louis Balfour. A new edition, rearranged in 4 volumes, of "The Letters of Robert Louis Stevenson" was edited by Sir Sidney Colvin and issued in 1911. It contained 150 new letters.

Stevenson (stē'ven-son), Thomas. Born at Edinburgh, July 22, 1818: died there, May 8, 1887. A noted Scotch engineer and meteorologist, son of Robert Stevenson and father of Robert Louis Stevenson. He was engineer, with his brother David, to the board of northern lighthouses 1853–85; was one of the originators of the Scottish Meteorological Society in 1855; and made improvements in lighthouse illumination. He was the author of "Lighthouse Illumination" (1850; expanded into "Lighthouse Construction and Illumination" in 1881), "Design and Construction of Harbours" (1864), "Proposal for the Illumination of Beacons and Buoys" (1870), etc.

Steyn (stīn), Martinus Theunis. Born at Winburg, Orange Free State, Oct. 2, 1857. A South African statesman, the last president of the Orange Free State. He was called to the bar of the Inner Temple in 1882; practised as an advocate in Bloemfontein 1883–89; was appointed state attorney for the Orange Free State in 1889; was second puisne judge 1889–93 and first puisne judge 1893–96; and was state president 1896–1900. Under his leadership the Orange Free State joined the Transvaal in the war against Great Britain. He took part in the peace conference in 1902.

Stiles (stīlz), Charles Wardell. Born at Spring Valley, N. Y., May 15, 1867. An American medical zoölogist, zoölogist of the United States Public Health and Marine Hospital Service from 1902. He has been special lecturer on medical zoölogy in Johns Hopkins University from 1897, and in the United States Navy Medical School from 1902. Since 1896 he has been secretary of the international commission on zoölogical nomenclature. His works include "Sheep Scab" (1898), "Trichinosis in Germany" (1901), "Hookworm Disease" (1902), etc.

Stillman (stil'man), William James. Born at Schenectady, N. Y., June 1, 1828: died at Frimley Green, Surrey, England, July 6, 1901. An American painter, journalist, and critic. He was graduated at Union College, Schenectady, in 1848, and studied art in England and Paris, being much influenced by the Preraphaelites and by Ruskin. He edited "The Crayon," an art journal, 1855–57; was United States consul at Rome 1861–65, and at Crete 1865–68; and was correspondent of the London "Times" 1876–98. He wrote "The Cretan Insurrection of 1866–68" (1874), "Herzegovina and the late Uprising" (1877), "On the Track of Ulysses" (1888), "Old Italian Masters" (1892), "Francesco Crispi" (1899), "Autobiography of a Journalist" (1901), "Billy and Hans" (1902), etc.

Stock (stok), Frederick (Friedrich Wilhelm August). Born at Jülich, Germany, Nov. 11, 1872. A German-American conductor and composer. He studied under Engelbert Humperdinck, Heinrich Zöllner, Gustav Jensen, and Franz Wüllner. He became a first viola in the Chicago Orchestra under Theodore Thomas in 1895, assistant conductor in 1899, and conductor of the organization in 1905, at Thomas's death. He has written a symphonic waltz, a symphony, a set of symphonic variations, and a quartet, as well as other compositions.

Stock Exchange, New York. The chief financial exchange of the United States, for dealing in stocks, bonds, notes, and other securities. Its dealings are chiefly in American securities, governmental, railroad, industrial, mining, etc., largely those of railroads, though in recent years those of industrial enterprises have also held an important place. Dealing is concerned regularly with such securities as have been "listed" or formally recognized by the exchange after certain investigations. Sellers of stock are required to deliver by 2.15 P. M. of the following day. The volume of business is the largest transacted at any single exchange in the world. The exchange is a voluntary, unincorporated association of persons, managed by a governing board (including a president and treasurer elected from among the members) divided into various committees charged with special duties. Membership is secured by purchase, subject to the consent of the exchange. The building occupied by the exchange, a white marble structure on Broad street, with entrances also on Wall and New streets, in the southern part of New York city, was completed in 1903.

Stoddard*, Charles Warren. His later works include "A Troubled Heart" (1885), "Hawaiian Life: Lazy Letters from Low Latitudes" (1894), "The Wonder Worker from Padua" (1896), "A Cruise under the Crescent from Suez to San Marco" (1898), "Over the Rocky Mountains to Alaska" (1900), "In the Footprints of the Padres" (1902), "Exits and Entrances" (1903), "For the Pleasure of his Company" (1903), "Father Damien—A Sketch" (1903), "The Island of Tranquil Delights" (1904), "The Confessions of a Reformed Poet" (1907), and "The Dream Lady" (1907).

Stokes*, Whitley. He was joint editor of the "Irische Texte," the "Thesaurus Palæohibernicus," etc.

Stolypin (stō-lē'pin), Peter Arkadevitch. Born in 1863: died at Kieff, Sept. 18, 1911. A Russian statesman, president of the council and minister of the interior 1906–11. He served in various official positions from 1884, when he obtained a place in the ministry of the interior. An attempt was made, Aug. 25, 1906, to assassinate him by exploding a bomb in his residence. The explosion killed 28 persons, but he escaped. He was shot by an assassin Sept. 14.

Stone (stōn), William Joel. Born in Madison County, Ky., May 7, 1848. An American lawyer and politician. He was graduated at the University of Missouri; was a member of Congress 1885–91; was governor of Missouri 1893–97; and has been Democratic United States senator from that State since 1903.

Stössel (stĕs'el), Anatoli Mikhailovitch. Born at St. Petersburg, July 10 (N. S.), 1848. A Russian general. He was educated at the Pavlov Military School at St. Petersburg and entered the army in 1864; served with distinction in the Russo-Turkish war 1877–78; and, after holding various positions in the army, became commander of the ninth brigade of the East Siberian Sharpshooters. He was made a lieutenant-general for his services during the Boxer campaign in 1900, and at the outbreak of the Russo-Japanese war in 1904 was appointed commander of Port Arthur, and later of the entire force sent to the defense of that fortress. After a long siege he surrendered Port Arthur to the Japanese, Jan. 1, 1905. For this he was condemned by court martial and imprisoned, but was released in May, 1909.

Stoughton (stō'tŏn). A town in Norfolk County, Massachusetts, 17 miles southwest of Boston. It has manufactories of boots, shoes, rubber goods, wire, etc. Population, 6,316, (1910).

Stout (stout), George Frederick. Born at South Shields, England, Jan. 6, 1859. A British philosophical writer and psychologist, professor of logic and metaphysics at St. Andrews from 1903. He has written "Analytical Psychology" (1896), "Manual of Psychology" (1899), "Groundwork of Psychology" (1903), etc.

Strait of Tañon. See ★Tañon, Strait of.

Straits Settlements*. The colony includes also the Cocos Islands (annexed, 1903), Christmas Island (1900), and the colony of Labuan (1907). Perak, Selangor, Negri Sembilan, and Pahang have been amalgamated as the Federated Malay States.

Strang (strang), William. Born at Dumbarton, Scotland, Feb. 13, 1859. A noted Scotch engraver, etcher, and painter. He has practised many forms of graphic reproduction, especially etching, and has produced a large number of illustrations and independent pieces, among which are illustrations to Bunyan's "Pilgrim's Progress," Milton's "Paradise Lost," and Coleridge's "Rime of the Ancient Mariner" (his masterpiece), and portraits of Robert Louis Stevenson, Thomas Hardy, Rudyard Kipling, Cosmo Monkhouse, and others. He has painted easel-pictures, and for a private library a decoration of fifty pictures from the life of Adam and Eve.

Stransky (strän'ski), Josef. Born at Humpoletz, Bohemia, Sept. 9, 1872. An orchestral conductor. He studied under Jadassohn at Leipsic, and under Fuchs and Bruckner at Vienna. He was conductor at the Royal Opera, Prague, for five years, and at the Hamburg Opera for seven years. In 1909 he became conductor, at Berlin, of the Blüthner Orchestra and the summer series of operas at the Royal Opera House, in 1910 of the Dresden Symphony Society, and in 1911 of the Philharmonic Society of New York.

Stratford (strat'fŏrd). A town in Fairfield County, Connecticut, 4 miles northeast of Bridgeport. It is near the mouth of the Housatonic River. Population, 5,712, (1910).

Strathcona and Mount Royal, Baron. See ★Smith, Donald Alexander.

Straubing (strou'bing). A town in Bavaria, Germany, 25 miles southeast of Ratisbon. It has brick-works, tanneries, breweries, etc. It is an ancient town, on the site of a Roman settlement, and has interesting buildings. Population, 20,856.

Straus (strous), Oscar. Born at Vienna, April 6, 1870. A Viennese composer. He studied music in Vienna and Berlin, and was for many years an orchestral director. His operettas include "Die lustigen Nibelungen," a parody on Wagner's "Ring"; "Jungdieterichs Brautfahrt" (1906); "Ein Walzertraum" (1907), given in London and America as "A Waltz Dream"; and "Der tapfere Soldat" (1908), an operatic version of G. B. Shaw's "Arms and the Man," sung in London and America as "The Chocolate Soldier."

Straus (strous), Oscar Solomon. Born at Otterberg, Germany, Dec. 23, 1850. An American diplomatist. He was brought to Georgia by his parents in 1854, remaining there until 1865, and was graduated at Columbia College in 1871 and at Columbia Law School in 1873. He was United States minister to Turkey 1887–89, 1898–1900, and 1909–11. In 1902 he was appointed by President Roosevelt to fill the vacancy in the permanent court of arbitration at The Hague caused by the death of Benjamin Harrison. He was secretary of commerce and labor 1906–09. He has written "The Origin of the Republican Form of Government in the United States" (1885), "Roger Williams, the Pioneer of Religious Liberty" (1894), "The Development of Religious Liberty in the United States" (1896), "Reform in the Consular Service" (1897), "The United States Doctrine of Citizenship and Expatriation" (1901), "Our Diplomacy: a Survey" (1902), "Industrial Peace" (1903), "The Hague Tribunal, its Scope and Meaning" (1904), and "The United States and Russia, their Historical Relations" (1905).

Strauss (strous), Richard. Born at Munich, June 11, 1864. A noted German composer, conductor of the Royal Opera in Berlin from 1898. In 1885 he became conductor of the Meiningen orchestra, and in August was appointed third conductor of the Royal Opera at Munich. He has developed the demands made upon the numbers and sonority of the orchestra; has wrought out a style of great complexity in orchestral writing, as well as a bold and radical use of harmonic discords; and has carried the delineative and pictorial purpose in music to its extreme. His symphonic poems are "Don Juan" (1888), "Aus Italien" (1889), "Tod und Verklärung" (1890), "Macbeth" (1891), "Till Eulenspiegels lustige Streiche" (1895), "Also Sprach Zarathustra" (1896), "Don Quixote" (1897), "Ein Heldenleben" (1898), and "Sinfonia Domestica" (1904). He has composed the operas "Guntram" (1894), "Feuersnot" (1901), "Salome" (1905), "Elektra" (1908), first performed at Dresden, Jan. 25, 1909, and "Rosenkavalier" (1911), and many songs.

Streator (strē'tor). A city in Lasalle County, Illinois. It is situated in a farming district on the east bank of the Vermilion River, where there are coal- and clay-beds, and has railroad and coal interests, brick- and tile-yards, and manufactures of glass, hardware, vehicles, etc. Population, 14,253, (1910).

Strindberg (strind'berg), August. Born at Stockholm, Jan. 22, 1849. A Swedish dramatist and novelist, a leader of modern Swedish literature. Among his plays are "Mäster Olof" (1872), "Gillets hemlighet" (1880), "Fadren" (1887), "Fröken Julie" (1888), "Gläubiger" (1889), "Till Damaskus" (1898), and a series of historical dramas, including "Gustavus Wasa," "Erik XIV.," "Gustavus Adolphus," and "Carol XII." He has written also "Röda rummet" (1879); "Det nya riket" (1882), which provoked so much criticism that the author left Sweden for a number of years; "Svenska folket i helg och söken" (1882); "Giftas" (1884); "Die Beichte eines Thoren" (1893); "Inferno" (1897), written after one of his periodical attacks of insanity; "Einsam" (1903), an autobiographical novel; "Die Gotischen Zimmer" (1904); and many other volumes. He has been called "the Shakspere of Sweden."

Strong (strông), Charles Augustus. Born at Haverhill, Mass., Nov. 28, 1862. An American psychologist, professor in Columbia University from 1902. He was associate professor in the University of Chicago 1892–95, and lecturer at Columbia 1895–1902. He has published "Why the Mind has a Body" (1903), etc.

Strong (strông), Josiah. Born at Naperville, Ill., Jan. 19, 1847. An American clergyman, social economist, and author. He was graduated at Western Reserve College in 1869; in 1871 was ordained to the Congregational ministry; and was chaplain to Western Reserve College 1873–76 and instructor in natural theology and rhetoric. From 1886 to 1898 he was general secretary of the Evangelical Alliance for the United States, and has been president of the American Institute of Social Service since its organization in 1898. Among his works are "Our Country" (1886), "The New Era" (1893), "The Twentieth Century City" (1898), "Religious Movements for Social Betterment" (1900), "Expansion" (1900), "The Times and Young Men" (1901), "The Next Great Awakening" (1902), "The Challenge of the City" (1908), etc.

Strong-Bows (strông'bōz). An Athapascan tribe located near the Liard River, Canada.

Strutt*, John William, third Baron Rayleigh. He was lord lieutenant of Essex 1892–1901; and in 1908 was appointed lord chancellor of Cambridge University.

Stuart (stū'ärt), Mrs. (Ruth McEnery). Born at Marksville, Avoyelles Parish, La., 1856. An American author, chiefly of stories of Southern life. She has written "A Golden Wedding, and Other Tales" (1893), "Carlotta's Intended, and Other Tales" (1894), "The Story of Babette" (1894), "Sonny" (1894), "Solomon Crow's Christmas Pockets" (1896), "Gobolinks" (1896: with Albert Bigelow Paine), "In Simpkinsville" (1897), "Moriah's Mourning" (1898), "Holly and Pizen" (1898), "The Snowcap Sisters" (1901), "Napoleon Jackson, the Gentleman of the Plush Rocker" (1902), "George Washington Jones" (1903), "The River's Children" (1904), "The Second Wooing of Salina Sue, and Other Stories" (1905), "The Unlived Life of Little Mary Ellen" (1910), "Sonny's Father" (1910), etc.

Stubbs (stubz), Charles William. Born at Liverpool, Sept. 3, 1845. An English clergyman and author, dean of Ely from 1894 to 1906 and bishop of Truro from 1906. He was educated at Cambridge; was vicar of Granboro, Buckinghamshire, 1871–74, and of Stokenham, south Devon, 1884–1888; and was rector of Wavertree, Liverpool, 1888–94. He is the author of "Christ and Democracy" (1884), "The Land and the Labourers" (1884–85), "Christus Imperator" (1894), "Historical Memorials of Ely Cathedral" (1897), "Handbook of Ely Cathedral" (1898), "In a Minster Garden" (1901), "Cambridge and its Story" (1903), "Castles in the Air, and Other Poems" (1904), "The Christ of English Poetry" (Hulsean lectures: 1905), etc.

Stübel (stü'bel), Alphons. Born at Dresden, July 26, 1835: died there, Nov. 10, 1894. A German geologist and traveler. He studied at Leipsic, Heidelberg, and Berlin. In 1866 he made a journey with Wilhelm Reiss to the island of Santorin to study volcanic phenomena, and from 1868 to 1876 traveled with him in South America (see Reiss, Wilhelm). Besides works written in collaboration with Reiss and others, he published "Die Vulkanberge von Ecuador" (1897) and "Über die genetische Verschiedenheit vulkanischer Berge" (1903).

Stuck (stŏk), Franz. Born at Tettenweis, Bavaria, Feb. 23, 1863. A Bavarian painter. He made his first success as a draftsman for the comic paper "Fliegende Blätter," and as a painter made his début at the Munich international exhibition of 1889, where he won a medal. He was early appointed professor in the Royal Academy of Art. His picture of the "Crucifixion" is in the Museum of Stuttgart; the "Allegory of War" in the Munich Pinakothek; the "Sphinx" in the National Museum at Budapest; and a bronze statue of an athlete in the National Gallery in Berlin. He is one of the leaders in the Munich "Secession."

Sturgis (stėr'jis), Russell. Born in Baltimore County, Md., Oct. 16, 1836: died at New York, Feb. 11, 1909. An American architect and writer. He was graduated at the College of the City of New York in 1856, and studied architecture in Europe and practised it in New York until 1880. Among the buildings which he designed are Battell Chapel, Farnam Hall, Durfee Hall, and Lawrance Hall, in Yale University, and the Homeopathic Medical College and Flower Hospital in New York. After 1890 he devoted himself to critical and other writing on art. He edited "A Dictionary of Architecture and Building: Biographical, Historical, and Descriptive" (3 vols., 1901–1902), and wrote "European Architecture: a Historical Study" (1896), "Annotated Bibliography of Fine Art" (1897), "How to Judge Architecture" (1903), "The Appreciation of Sculpture" (1904), "The Interdependence of the Arts of Design" (1905), "The Appreciation of Pictures" (1905), "A Study of the Artist's Way of Working" (1905), "A History of Architecture" (Vol. I., 1906; Vol. II., 1909; Vol. III. to be completed by A. L. Frothingham), "A Short History of Architecture" (1908).

Sturm*, Julius Karl Reinhold. His later works include "Zwei Rosen" (1854), "Neue Gedichte" (1856), "Neue fromme Lieder und Gedichte" (1858), "Für das Haus" (1862), "Israelitische Lieder" (1881), "Von der Pilgerfahrt" (1868), "Lieder und Bilder" (1870), "1870. Kampf- und Siegesgedichte" (1870), "Spiegel der Zeit in Fabeln" (1872), "Gott grüsse dich" (1876), "Das Buch für meine Kinder" (1877), "Immergrün" (1879), "Märchen" (1881), "Aufwärts!" (1881), "Dem Herrn mein Lied" (1884), "Natur, Liebe, Vaterland" (1884), "Bunte Blätter" (1885), "Palme und Krone" (1887), "Neue lyrische Gedichte" (1894), and "In Freud und Leid" (1896).

Subic (sō'bēk), Port. A bay on the southwestern coast of Luzón, Philippine Islands, partly separating Bataán and Zambales provinces: a safe harbor for large vessels in all weather. Also called Subic Bay.

Subic Bay. Same as ★Subic, Port.

Suburban*. The winners from 1904 have been: 1904, Hermis: 1905, Beldame; 1906, Go-Between; 1907, Nealon; 1908, Ballot; 1909, Fitz Herbert; 1910, Olambala.

Sucker State, The. A nickname of the State of Illinois.

Sudbury (sud'bu-ri). A town in Nipissing district, Ontario, Canada. In the vicinity are deposits of nickeliferous ore which yield a large part of the world's supply of nickel. Population, 2,027.

Sudermann*, Hermann. His later dramatic works include "Die Schmetterlingsschlacht" (1894), "Das Glück im Winkel" (1895), three one-act plays ("Teja," "Fritzchen," and "Das ewig Männliche") published under the title of "Morituri" (1896), "Johannes" (1898), "Die drei Reiherfedern" (1899), "Johannisfeuer" (1900), "Es lebe das Leben" (1902), "Sturmgeselle Sokrates" (1903), "Stein unter Steinen" (1905), "Das Blumenboot" (1905), and four one-act plays ("Rosen" (1907), "Strandkinder" (1909), etc.). His prose includes "Frau Sorge" (1888), "Der Katzensteg" (1889), "Im Zwielicht" (1890), "Iolanthes Hochzeit" (1893), "Es war" (1894), "Das hohe Lied" (1908), and "Die indische Lilie" (1911).

Suez Canal*. It is 87 miles long (66 actual canal and 21 miles lakes), 121 feet 5 inches wide at the bottom, and 28 feet deep. The cost of construction, with enlargements, was £24,000,000. The canal was exempted from blockade by a convention signed in 1888, and vessels of all nations, armed or unarmed, are to be allowed to pass through it at all times. In 1909 the number of vessels passing through the canal was 4,239, gross tonnage 21,500,847.

Suffolk (suf'ŏk). The county-seat of Nansemond County, Virginia, 18 miles southwest of Norfolk. It is in an agricultural region, and has iron-works, railroad shops, knitting-mills, etc. Population, 7,008, (1910).

Suk (sŏk), Josef. Born Jan. 4, 1874. A Bohemian violinist and composer. He studied the violin at the Conservatory of Prague, and composition with Dvořák, whose daughter he married. He is a member of the famous Bohemian String Quartet, and ranks high as a composer of the new Bohemian school. His works include an opera (1903), a dramatic overture, an overture to "Antony and Cleopatra," and much chamber music.

Sullivan (sul'i-van), Louis Henry. Born at Boston, Mass., Sept. 3, 1856. An American architect. His most interesting designs have been those for high office buildings, in which he has allowed the extreme height and verticality to dominate the scheme. The best known of these experiments is the Bayard Building in Bleecker street, New York. He also built the Transportation Building at the World's Fair at Chicago in 1893.

Sulu Sea. Same as ★Joló Sea.

Sulzberger (sults'bėr-gėr), Mayer. Born at Heidelsheim, Baden, June 22, 1843. An American jurist and Hebraist. He came to Philadelphia in 1848, attained eminence at the bar, and was elected a judge in 1895 and reëlected in 1904. He collected the finest Hebrew library in America, which he presented to the Jewish Theological Seminary of America in New York city. In 1909 he published "The Am Ha-aretz: the Ancient Hebrew Parliament. A Chapter in the Constitutional History of Ancient Israel."

Summit (sum'it). A city in Union County, New Jersey, 10 miles southwest of Newark. It is a summer resort and place of residence. Population, 7,500, (1910).

Sumter (sum'tėr). The county-seat of Sumter County, South Carolina, 41 miles southeast of Columbia. It is important for its cotton trade, and has lumber-mills and various manufactories. Population, 8,109, (1910).

Sunflower State, The. A popular name for Kansas.

Sungei Ujong*. In 1895 it was amalgamated with Sri Menanti, Johol, Jelebu, Rembau, and Tampin to form the confederation of Negri Sembilan, now a part of the Federated Malay States.

Surigao (sö-rē-gä'ō). 1. A province of the Philippine Islands, consisting of the northeastern part of Mindanao and numerous adjacent islands, of which Dinagat, Siargao, and Bucás are the most important. It is bounded by the Pacific Ocean on the north and east; Davao on the south; and Misamis (separated by mountains), the Surigao Sea, and the Strait of Surigao (separating it from Panaón and Leyte) on the west. Capital, Surigao. Butúan Bay indents the northwestern coast. Its southeastern angle, Port Nasipit, is an excellent harbor, safe for large vessels in all weather. Port Surigao, on the northern coast of Mindanao, Port Gabo, on the southeastern coast of Dinagat, and Port Sibonga, on the eastern coast of Bucás Grande, are also good harbors. The mountain-range of the western boundary is paralleled by a range near the Pacific coast extending to the northern extremity of the main island. The loftiest peaks are Legaspi, Tendido, and Urdaneta, all in the northern part of the ranges. Coal is found in the eastern, southeastern, and southern parts of the province, and gold in many places in the north, among the eastern mountains, and in Dinagat Island. Among the products are cacao, hemp, copra, corn, sugar-cane, sweet potatoes, and mangos. The inhabitants are chiefly Visayans. Area of province, 6,988 square miles. Population, 115,112.

2. A town, the capital of Surigao province, situated in lat. 9° 48′ N., long. 125° 30′ E. Civilized population of municipality, 7,749.

Surigao (sö-rē-gä'ō) Sea. A branch of the Mindanao Sea, in the Philippine Islands, lying east of that sea and west of the eastern peninsula of Mindanao Island. It is connected with the Pacific Ocean on the east by Surigao Strait.

Surigao (sö-rē-gä'ō) Strait. A strait in the Philippines separating Mindanao from Panaón, Dinagat, Bucás, and other islands, and forming the northeastern passage between the Surigao Sea and the Pacific Ocean.

Suttner (söt'ner), Baroness von (Bertha von Kinsky). Born at Prague, Austria, June 9, 1843. An Austrian novelist, wife of Baron Arthur von Suttner (1850–1902). In 1891 she founded the Austrian Society of Peace-lovers and, as its president, took part in the peace congresses at Rome (1891), Bern (1892), Antwerp (1894), and Hamburg (1897). Her works include "Inventarium einer Seele" (1883), "Die Waffen Nieder" (1889: translated as "Lay down your Arms"), for which she was awarded the Nobel peace prize in 1905, "Das Machinenzeitalter" (1891), "Die Haager Friedenskonferenz," a journal (1900), "Marthas Kinder" (1902: a sequel to "Die Waffen Nieder"), "Briefe an einen Toten" (1904), and "Memoirs" (1910). She is the editor of the monthly organ of the peace movement, "Die Waffen Nieder," established in Dresden in 1892.

Svendsen (svend'sen), Johann Severin. Born at Christiania, Sept. 30, 1840: died June 14, 1911. A Norwegian composer, conductor at Copenhagen from 1883. He composed two symphonies and other orchestral works; but the music by which he is best known is his octet for strings and his romance for violin.

Sverdrup (svär'dröp), Otto. Born in the district of Helgeland, Norway, Oct. 31, 1854. A Norwegian arctic explorer. He was a member of Nansen's expedition to Greenland in 1888 and of his polar expedition 1893–96, bringing the Fram back to Norway after Nansen started north over the ice. From 1898 to 1902 he conducted an expedition to the northern extremity of Baffin Bay. He is the author of "Nyt Land" (1903).

Swahili (swä-hē'lē). [Properly, Waswahili, coast people.] 1. An African people who inhabit the island of Zanzibar and the neighboring coasts. They are the descendants of the original Bantu inhabitants of the region, mixed with Arab traders and slaves from all parts of the continent.

2. The language of the Swahilis. It is a Bantu tongue with a very large admixture of foreign, mostly Arabic, words. Properly Kiswahili.

Swan (swon), John Macallan. Born at Old Brentford, Middlesex, in 1847: died Feb. 14, 1910. An English painter and sculptor, especially of animals. He was made an associate of the Royal Academy in 1894, and an academician in 1905.

Swanhild (svän'hild). In German legend, the wife of Hermanric, famous for her beauty. She was guilty of adultery and was torn in pieces by four horses. In the northern legend she is the daughter of Sigurd and Gudrun.

Swarth (svärt), Hélène. See ★Lapidoth.

Swaziland*. The administration is under the control of the High Commissioner for South Africa, but jurisdiction in civil matters between natives is allowed the native chiefs. The capital of the protectorate is Mbabane. Area, 6,536 square miles. Population, about 86,000.

Sweden*. The union of Sweden and Norway was declared by Norway, June 7, 1905, to be dissolved, and an agreement with Sweden repealing it was reached Oct. 26, 1905.

Sweet (swēt), Henry. Born at London, 1845. A noted English philologist and phonetician. He was educated at King's College, London, at Heidelberg, and at Oxford. In 1901 he was appointed reader in phonetics in the last named university. His works include editions of Old and Middle English texts, Old and Middle English readers and primers, "A History of English Sounds from the Earliest Period" (1875), "A Handbook of Phonetics" (1877), "A Primer of Spoken English" (1890), "A Primer of Phonetics" (1890), "A New English Grammar" (1892–98), "A Student's Dictionary of Anglo-Saxon" (1897), "The Practical Study of Languages" (1899), "A History of Language" (1900), etc.

Swenson (swen'sən), Laurits Selmer. Born at New Sweden, Minn., June 12, 1865. An American diplomatist. He was minister to Denmark 1897–1905, and was appointed minister to Switzerland in 1909.

Swinburne*, Algernon Charles. His later works include "Sisters: a Tragedy" (1892), "Studies in Prose and Poetry" (1894), "A Tale of Balen" (1896), "Rosamund, Queen of the Lombards" (1899), collected works (1904–05), "Love's Cross Currents," a novel (1905), and "The Duke of Gardia" (1908).

Swissvale (swis'vāl). A borough in Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, 7½ miles southeast of Pittsburgh. It has iron and steel manufactures. Population, 7,381, (1910).

Swoyersville (swoi'ėrz-vil). A borough in Luzerne County, Pennsylvania. Population, 5,396, (1910).

Symons (sī'mənz), Arthur. Born at Milford Haven, Wales, Feb. 28, 1865. A British poet, author, and critic. His works include "An Introduction to the Study of Browning" (1886), "Days and Nights" (1889), "Silhouettes" (1892), "London Nights" (1895), "Amoris Victima" (1897), "Studies in Two Literatures" (1897), "The Symbolist Movement in Literature" (1900), "Images of Good and Evil" (1900), "Collected Poems" (1901), "Plays, Acting, and Music" (1903), "Cities" (1903), "Studies in Prose and Verse" (1904), "Spiritual Adventures" (1905), "The Fool of the World," a morality play (1906), "Studies in Seven Arts" (1906), "William Blake" (1907), "Cities of Italy" (1907), "The Romantic Movement in English Poetry" (1909), etc.

Synge (sing), John Millington. Born near Dublin, in 1871: died there, March 24, 1909. An Irish dramatist and poet. He was graduated at Trinity College, Dublin, in 1892, and later spent much time in Paris and elsewhere on the Continent and in the west of Ireland. He was associated with William Butler Yeats in the direction of the Abbey Theatre, Dublin. His writings deal with Irish peasant life. Besides two descriptive works, "The Aran Islands" (1907) and "Kerry and Wicklow," his chief writings are his plays, which include "Riders to the Sea" (1905), "In the Shadow of the Glen" (1905), "The Well of the Saints" (1905), "The Playboy of the Western World" (1907), "The Tinker's Wedding" (1907), and "Deirdre of the Sorrows" (1910).

Taal (tä-äl'), Lake. Same as ★Bombón, Lake.

Tabaco (tä-bä'kō). A municipality of Albay province, in the southeastern part of Luzón, Philippine Islands. Civilized population, 21,946.

Tabb (tab), John Banister. Born in Amelia County, Va., March 22, 1845: died at Ellicott City, Md., Nov. 19, 1909. An American poet. He was for many years an instructor in St. Charles College, Ellicott City, Maryland, holding the chair of English literature 1886–1909. He was ordained a Roman Catholic priest in 1884. His published works include "Poems" (1883), "An Octave to Mary" (1893), "Lyrics" (1897), "Poems Grave and Gay" (1899), "The Rosary in Rhyme" (1904), "Quips and Quiddits" (1907), etc.

Tacloban (täk-lō'bän). A port and the capital of Leyte province, in the Philippine Islands. It is situated in Leyte Island, on San Pedro and San Pablo Bay, at the entrance to the Strait of San Juanico, in lat. 11° 15′ N., long. 124° 59′ 30″ E. It has an excellent harbor. Civilized population of municipality, 11,948.

Taft (taft), Lorado. Born at Elmwood, Peoria County, Ill., April 29, 1860. An American sculptor. He was graduated at the State University, Champaign, Illinois, in 1879, and studied at the École des Beaux-Arts in Paris. In 1886 he settled in Chicago and became instructor in sculpture at the Art Institute, giving public lectures at the institute and at the University of Chicago. He has made many portrait busts, statues, and military monuments, and has published a "History of American Sculpture" (1903).

Taft (taft), William Howard. Born at Cincinnati, Ohio, Sept. 15, 1857. An American statesman and jurist, son of Alphonso Taft: President of the United States 1909–. He was graduated at Yale in 1878 and was admitted to the Ohio bar in 1880; was judge of the superior court of Cincinnati 1887–90; was solicitor-general of the United States 1890–1892; and was United States circuit judge, sixth circuit, 1892–1900. From 1896–1900 he was dean and professor in the law department of the University of Cincinnati; was president of the United States Philippine Commission 1900–01; was first civil governor of the Philippine Islands 1901–04; in 1906 was sent to Cuba to adjust the insurrection there and was for a short time provisional governor; and was secretary of war 1904–08.

Tagalogs (tä-gä'lōgz). Same as ★Tagalos.

Tagalos (tä-gä'lōs). A Malay people, numbering about 1,500,000, occupying the central portion of Luzón, the coasts of Mindoro, and some smaller islands in the Philippines. They are now Christians, and their culture is largely Spanish, though before the Spanish conquest they possessed a certain civilization and an art of writing of their own.

Tagals (tä-gälz'). Same as ★Tagalos.

Tagaytay (tä-gī-tī') Mountains. A short mountain-range in the southern part of Luzón, Philippine Islands, partly separating Batangas and Cavite provinces.

Tagbilaran (täg-bē-lä'rän). A town, the capital of Bohol province, Philippine Islands. It is situated on the narrow strait of the same name which separates Bohol and Panglao islands, in lat. 9° 38′ N., long. 123° 50′ 1″ E. Civilized population of municipality, 10,108.

Tairen (tī-ren'). See ★Dalny.

Tai-tse (tī'tze), or Thai-tsu. A river in southern Manchuria. It rises in the mountains north of the Motien Pass, flows westwardly by Liao-yang, which is situated on its southern bank, and empties into the Liao River about fifty miles above its mouth. It played an important part in the battle of Liao-yang in the Russo-Japanese war.

Takahira (tä-kä-hē'rä), Baron Kogoro. Born in Iwate ken, in January, 1854. A Japanese diplomatist. He became a translator in the Foreign Office in 1876; was secretary of legation at Washington 1879–84; was sent to Seul in 1884; was consul at Shanghai 1887–90; was consul-general in New York 1891; was appointed minister at The Hague in 1892 and at Rome in 1894, and shortly afterward at Vienna; and was minister to the United States 1900–05. He was junior Japanese plenipotentiary in the negotiation of the treaty of Portsmouth in 1905; was ambassador to Rome 1907–08; and was ambassador extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to the United States 1908–09.

Takamine (tä-kä-mē'ne), Jokichi. Born at Kaga, 1853. A Japanese chemist, since 1884 a resident of the United States. He is the discoverer of adrenalin.

Taku-shan (tä-kö-shän'). A city of southern Manchuria, situated on Korea Bay about sixty miles west of the mouth of the Yalu. It was used as a military base by the Japanese in the Russo-Japanese war (1904–05). Population, about 40,000.

Ta-lien-wan (tä-lyen-wän') Bay. A bay on the southern side of the Kwang-tung peninsula, southern Manchuria. Dalny is situated at its westerly extremity. It was leased by Russia from China in 1898, and the lease was ceded to Japan by the treaty of Portsmouth in 1905.

Talim (tä-lēm'). An island in Laguna de Bay, southern Luzón, Philippine Islands, belonging to Rizal province.

Tamagno (tä-män'yō), Francesco. Born at Turin, 1851: died at Varese, Aug. 31, 1905. An Italian dramatic tenor. He made his début in 1873, and was best known as the creator of the part of Otello in Verdi's opera.

Tambobong (täm-bō'bōng). A municipality in Rizal province, southern Luzón, Philippine Islands. Civilized population, 20,136.

Tanauan (tä-nä′wän). 1. A municipality in the northeastern part of Batangas province, southwestern Luzón, Philippine Islands. Civilized population, 18,263.—2. A municipality in the eastern part of Leyte Island and province, Philippine Islands, situated near San Pedro and San Pablo Bay. Civilized pop., 18,256.

Taneief (tä-nā′yef), Sergius Ivanovitch. Born in the government of Vladimir, Nov. 25, 1856. A Russian pianist and composer. He studied at the Moscow Conservatory 1866–75, under Nicholas Rubinstein, Hubert, and Tschaikovsky. In 1876 he made a continental concert tour with Leopold Auer. In 1878 he succeeded Tschaikovsky as teacher of composition at the Moscow Conservatory, later becoming teacher of piano, free composition, counterpoint, fugue, and musical form at the same institution, and director 1885–1889, when he was succeeded by Safonof. His compositions include orchestral and chamber music, a cantata, songs, and piano pieces. He has also written and translated works on counterpoint, on which he is an authority.

T'ang (täng). The Chinese dynasty which reigned from 618 to 907 A. D. During this period the arts and literature flourished.

Tañón (tän-yōn′), Strait of. A strait in the Philippine Islands separating Cebú and Negros and connecting the Visayan Sea and the Mindanao Sea.

Taos (tä′os). The county-seat of Taos County, New Mexico, situated about 60 miles northwest of Las Vegas. Population of election precinct (including Taos pueblo), 1,830; of Taos pueblo, 521, (1910).

Tapul (tä-pōl′) Islands. A group of 43 islands in the Sulu (Joló) Archipelago, lying between the Sulu (Joló) and Tawi Tawi groups and belonging to the Joló district of Moro province, in the Philippine Islands. Siasi is the largest of the group. Area, 90.3 square miles.

Taranis (tar′a-nis). [L., < Old Celtic taran*, W. taran, thunder?] A god of evil, called the Celtic Jupiter, said to have been worshiped with human sacrifices by ancient Celts.

Tarbell (tär-bel′), Ida Minerva. Born in Erie County, Pa., Nov. 5, 1857. An American author and editor. She was associate editor of the "Chautauquan" 1883–91, and was on the editorial staff of "McClure's Magazine" 1894–1906, and on that of the "American Magazine" 1906–. Among her publications are a "Short Life of Napoleon Bonaparte" (1895), "Life of Madame Roland" (1896), "Early Life of Abraham Lincoln" (1896: with J. McCan Davis), "Life of Abraham Lincoln" (1900), a "History of the Standard Oil Company" (1904), and "The Tariff in our Times" (1911).

Tarkington (tär′king-tọn), Newton Booth. Born at Indianapolis, Ind., July 29, 1869. An American author. He was graduated at Exeter Academy in 1889 and at Princeton in 1893. He has written "The Gentleman from Indiana" (1899), "Monsieur Beaucaire" (1900), "The Two Vanrevels" (1902), "Cherry" (1903), "In the Arena" (1905), "The Beautiful Lady" (1905), "The Conquest of Canaan" (1905), "The Man from Home" (1908: with H. L. Wilson), etc.

Tarlac (tär′läk). 1. A river in Tarlac province, Luzón, Philippine Islands.—2. An inland province in the western part of Luzón, Philippine Islands. It is bounded by Pangasinán on the north; Nueva Écija on the east; Pampanga on the south; and Zambales (separated by the Zambales Mountains) on the west. Capital, Tarlac. The forests are of great value. Over twenty-five per cent. of the land is agricultural. Rice is raised in large quantities. Among the other products are coffee, pineapples, betel-nuts, corn, sugar-cane, and sweet potatoes. The inhabitants are Ilocanos, Tagalos, Pampangans, and Pangasinanes, with a mixture of other races. Area, 1,205 square miles. Population, 135,107.

3. A town, the capital of Tarlac province, situated on the Tarlac River in lat. 15° 31′ N., long. 120° 36′ E. Civilized population of municipality, 12,340.

Tarr (tär), Ralph Stockman. Born at Gloucester, Mass., Jan. 15, 1864. An American geologist, professor of dynamic geology and physical geography in Cornell University 1897–1906 and of physical geography 1906–. He was assistant professor there 1892–96, and is (1911) special field assistant on the United States Geological Survey. Among his publications are "Economic Geology of the United States" (1893), "Elementary Geology" (1897), geographical text-books (with McMurry), text-books on physical geography, and numerous scientific papers.

Taschereau (tàsh′rō), Sir Henri Elzéar. Born at Ste. Marie de la Beauce, Quebec, Oct. 7, 1836: died at Montreal, Oct. 12, 1909. A Canadian jurist. He was called to the bar in 1857; was created a queen's counsel in 1867; and was knighted in 1902. He sat, as a Conservative, in the Canadian Legislative Assembly for Beauce County, Quebec, 1861–67, and was appointed a judge of the superior court of Quebec in 1871 and a judge of the supreme court of Canada in 1878. He was chief justice of the supreme court 1902–06 and was appointed in 1904 a member of the imperial privy council and of the judicial committee to hear appeals from the colonies. He published several books on Canadian law.

Tasmania*. It sends 6 senators and 5 representatives to the Federal Parliament.

Tate (tāt), Sir Henry. Born at Chorley, England, March 11, 1819: died at Streatham Hill, London, Dec. 5, 1899. An English merchant and philanthropist. He presented his collection of modern paintings, one of the finest in England, to the nation. See ★Tate Gallery.

Tate Gallery. The popular name of the National Gallery of British Art in London. The building, designed in the classic style by Sidney R. J. Smith, and fronting on the river Thames about half a mile above the Houses of Parliament, was presented to the British people, and opened to the public by the Prince of Wales (King Edward VII.), July 21, 1897. Sir Henry Tate gave the building and with it sixty-five pictures and two important bronzes. To these are added, by act of the president and council of the Royal Academy, the works bought with the Chantrey Bequest Fund. George Frederick Watts presented twenty-two of his most important paintings and one piece of sculpture to form the Watts collection. The Vernon collection of fifty-three pictures has been added. From time to time representative works by British artists are acquired. It occupies the site of the old Millbank Penitentiary.

Tatin (tä-taṅ′), Victor. Born at Paris in 1843. A French student of aviation, and the inventor and constructor of many scientific instruments. He has been occupied since 1874 with the problems of mechanical flight. In 1879 he constructed a compressed-air model which flew, and in 1890 and 1896–1897 built a successful steam model. He is the author of a standard work on the elements of aviation, and is a member of the Academy of Sciences. He has built many propellers for flying-machines which have been successful. He was made chevalier of the Legion of Honor, July 25, 1909.

Tatti (tät′tē), Jacopo. See ★Sansovino, Jacopo.

Taubmann (toub′män), Otto. Born at Hamburg, March 8, 1859. A German composer and musical critic. He studied at the Dresden Conservatory. He was director of the Wiesbaden Conservatory 1886–89, orchestral conductor at St. Petersburg 1891–92, and since 1895 has lived in Berlin, where he is well known as a musical critic. His published compositions include a mass and several other works for voices and orchestra.

Tausig (tou′sig), Karl. Born at Warsaw, Nov. 4, 1841: died at Leipsic, July 17, 1871. A noted piano virtuoso, a pupil of Liszt and a player of remarkable technique and strong powers of interpretation.

Taussig (tou′sig), Frank William. Born at St. Louis, Dec. 28, 1859. An American political economist, professor in Harvard University from 1892. He was assistant professor there 1886–92, and since 1901 has held the Henry Lee professorship. He is the editor of the "Quarterly Journal of Economics," and has published a "Tariff History of the United States" (1888), "The Silver Situation in the United States" (1892), "Wages and Capital" (1896), and "Principles of Economics" (1911).

Tawi Tawi (tä′wē tä′wē). The largest island of the Tawi Tawi group in the Sulu (Joló) Archipelago. Area, 232 square miles. Population, 1,179.

Tawi Tawi (tä′wē tä′wē) Islands. A group of 159 islands in the Sulu (Joló) Archipelago, lying between the Tapul and Sibutu groups and belonging to the Joló district of Moro province, Philippine Islands. Tawi Tawi is the largest of the group. Area of the group, 358.7 square miles. Population, about 8,000.

Tayabas (tä-yä′bäs). A province of the Philippine Islands. It embraces a large part of the eastern coast of Luzón (Principe and Infanta), a part of the southeastern peninsula, and numerous islands east and south, including Polillo and Marinduque, with adjacent islands. It is bounded by Isabela, the Pacific Ocean, and Ambos Camarines (separated by mountains) on the north; the Pacific Ocean and Ambos Camarines (partly separated by the Gulf of Ragay) on the east; the Visayan Sea and Batangas on the southwest; and La Laguna, Rizal, Bulacán, Nueva Écija, Nueva Vizcaya, and Isabela on the west. Capital, Lucena. The principal bays on the eastern coast are Dilasac, Dingalan, Baler, and Casiguran, the last a fine harbor for large vessels in all weather. Lamón and Sogod bays indent the northern coast, and inlets from the deep Gulf of Ragay the eastern coast of the peninsula. South of the province is Tayabas Bay. The surface is very mountainous, and the mountains are densely wooded. Rivers are numerous, but short and of little importance. Coal is found in the peninsular part of the province and in Pagbilao, Polillo, and other islands. Among the products are hemp, pineapples, bananas, mangos, sweet potatoes, sugar-cane, rice, and copra. The inhabitants are chiefly Tagalos and Bicols. Area of province, 6,354 square miles. Population, 204,739.

Tayabas (tä-yä′bäs) Bay. A wide bay indenting the southern and southwestern coast of Tayabas and the eastern coast of Batangas provinces, Luzón, Philippine Islands.

Taylor (tā′lọr). A borough in Lackawanna County, Pennsylvania, 3½ miles southwest of Scranton. It has coal-mines and silk-mills. Population, 9,060, (1910).

Taylor (tā′lọr), Graham. Born at Schenectady, N. Y., May 2, 1851. An American sociologist. He was ordained to the Dutch Reformed ministry in 1873, and held pastorates at Hopewell, New York, 1873–80, and Hartford, Connecticut, 1880–92. He was professor of practical theology in Hartford Theological Seminary 1888–92, and has been professor of social economics in Chicago Theological Seminary since 1892, and lecturer in sociology in the University of Chicago since 1903. He is president of the Chicago School of Civics and Philanthropy.

Taylor (tā′lọr), Hannis. Born at New Berne, N. C., Sept. 12, 1851. An American lawyer and legal writer, professor of constitutional and international law in the George Washington University 1904–06. From 1893 to 1897 he was United States minister to Spain; was special counsel for the government before the Spanish Treaty Claims Commission in 1902; and was one of the counsel for the United States in the Alaska Boundary Case in 1903. His works include "Origin and Growth of the English Constitution" (1889), "International Public Law" (1901), "Jurisdiction and Procedure of the Supreme Court of the United States" (1905), and "The Science of Jurisprudence" (1908).

Taylor (tā′lọr), Henry Clay. Born at Washington, D. C., March 4, 1845: died at Sudbury, Ont., July 26, 1904. An American rear-admiral. He was graduated at the United States Naval Academy in 1863; served in the Civil War; and was promoted captain in 1894. During the war with Spain he commanded the battle-ship Indiana, and took part in the battle off Santiago, July 3, 1898. In 1902 he became chief of the bureau of navigation.

Taylor (tā′lọr), James Knox. Born at Knoxville, Ill., Oct. 11, 1857. An American architect. He took the architectural course at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology 1877–79, and practised at St. Paul 1882–92 and at Philadelphia 1892–95. He was appointed United States supervising architect in 1897.

Taylor (tā′lọr), J. Hudson. Born in 1832: died at Chang-sa, Hu-nan, China, June 3, 1905. An English Protestant missionary. He first sailed for China in 1853. In 1865 he published "China's Spiritual Need and Claims," a book which aided him in founding the China Inland Mission.

Telissu (tel-is-sō′). A locality in the Liao-tung peninsula, in southern Manchuria, south of Kai-ping. Here the Japanese defeated the Russians under General Stackelberg, who was attempting to relieve Port Arthur, June 14–15, 1904.

Temple (tem′pl). A city in Bell County, Texas, 36 miles southwest of Waco. It is the trade center of a farming and stock-raising region, and has cotton-compresses, bottling-works, etc. Population, 10,993, (1910).

Temple, Charlotte. See ★Charlotte Temple.

Tenderloin, The. The popular name of a section of New York city, a part of which is notorious for the number of haunts of vice which it contains. It is included in the nineteenth police precinct (now bounded by Fourth and Seventh avenues and by Fourteenth and Forty-second streets), especially in that part of it which lies north of Twenty-third street and west of Broadway and (above Thirty-fourth street) of Sixth Avenue.

Tennessee, University of. See ★University of Tennessee.

Tennyson (ten′i-sọn), Hallam, second Baron Tennyson. Born at Twickenham, Aug. 11, 1852. An English author and colonial governor, son of Alfred, Lord Tennyson. He was private secretary to his father; was governor and commander-in-chief of South Australia 1899–1902; was first acting governor-general of the Commonwealth of Australia 1902; and was governor-general of Australia 1902–03. He has published "Alfred, Lord Tennyson: a Memoir" (1897), etc.

Ternina (tär-nē′nä), Milka. Born in Bezisce, Croatia, Dec. 19, 1863. A distinguished dramatic soprano. She studied at Vienna with Gänzbacher, and made her début at Agram as Amelia in "Un Ballo in Maschera." Thereafter she was heard in Gratz, Bremen, Munich, Russia, and London. In 1896 she visited America for the first time. In 1899 she sang the part of Kundry at Bayreuth, a rôle in which she was afterward heard at the first production of "Parsifal" at the Metropolitan Opera House in New York. In 1901 she sang in the first American performance of "Tosca" at the Metropolitan Opera House, and this became one of her most important rôles. Among her other rôles are Leonore (in "Fidelio"), Aïda, Gwendoline, Selika, Brunhild, Elsa, and Elizabeth. She sang in New York for several seasons. She retired from the stage on account of ill health, and has occupied herself with teaching.

Terrell (ter′el). A city in Kaufman County, Texas, 32 miles southeast of Dallas. It is in a lumbering, farming, and stock-raising region, and has cotton-gins, cotton-compresses, cotton-seed oil mills, etc. It is the seat of the North Texas Hospital for the Insane. Population, 7,050, (1910).

Tess of the D'Urbervilles: a Pure Woman. A novel by Thomas Hardy, published in 1892.

Tetrazzini (tet-rä-zē′nē), Luisa (Signora Bazelli). Born at Florence in 1874. A contemporary Italian opera singer. She made her début in 1895, and has toured in South America, Europe, England, and the United States. She has won great success by her brilliant rendering of such rôles as Elvira in "Puritani," the Queen in "Les Huguenots," Lucia, Violetta, etc.

Texas, University of. See ★University of Texas.

Thaïs (tä-ēs′). An opera by Massenet (words by Louis Gallet), first produced at Paris, March 16, 1894.

Thaulow (tou′lō), Fritz. Born at Christiania, Norway, Oct. 20, 1847: died at Paris, Nov. 5, 1906. A Norwegian painter. He was a pupil of Sörensen at the Academy in Copenhagen and of Gude in Karlsruhe. He was one of the organizers of the Salon du Champ de Mars in Paris in 1890. Until 1892 he painted Norwegian subjects almost exclusively, but after that date worked in France. His subjects were usually landscapes. He was appointed Norwegian commissioner for the fine arts at the Exposition Universelle in Paris in 1900.

Thayer (thār), Alexander Wheelock. Born at South Natick, Mass., Oct. 22, 1817: died at Triest, July 15, 1897. An American author, best known as the biographer of Beethoven. He was graduated from Harvard in 1843, and at the law school there in 1848; was for a number of years assistant librarian at Harvard; and in 1849 went to Germany, where he spent most of the remainder of his life. He was for a time music critic of the New York "Tribune," and from 1862 to 1882 was United States consul at Triest.

Thayer (thār), Eli. Born at Mendon, Mass., June 11, 1819: died at Worcester, April 15, 1899. An American educator, inventor, and antislavery agitator. He was graduated at Brown University in 1845, and in 1848 founded Oread Institute, a collegiate school for young women, in Worcester, Massachusetts. He has been called "the Father of Kansas" on account of his efforts so to influence colonization that it should be admitted as an antislavery State. From 1857 to 1861 he was a Republican member from Massachusetts of the House of Representatives.

Théâtre Antoine. See ★Antoine, André.

Thélème (tā-lām'), Abbey of. In the "Gargantua" of Rabelais, an imaginary abbey of free will situated in Thelema by the river Loire. The customs in force there were to be in direct opposition to those of any convent in existence. The one rule of its order was "do what you wish."

Theotocopuli (tā-ō-tō-kō'pō-lē), Domenico: surnamed El Greco. Died 1614. A Spanish painter, architect, and sculptor. His signature on a picture in the Escorial indicates that he came from the island of Crete. It is probable that he learned to paint in Venice, since his pictures show Venetian influence; but he is not definitely connected with any known master. His arrival in Toledo before 1577 is fixed by the date of the termination of his great retable in the church of San Domingo el Antiquo in that city. His methods were original and modern, making him a true forerunner of Velasquez.

Theuriet*, André. His works include "Mademoiselle Guignon" (1874), "Une Ondine" (1875), "La fortune d'Angèle" (1876), "Raymonde" (1877), "Le filleul d'un marquis" (1878), "Le fils Maugars" (1879), "La maison des deux Barbeaux" (1879), "Sauvageonne" (1880), "Tante Aurélie," "Mariage de Gérard" (1884), "Bigarreau" (1886), "Deux sœurs" (1889), "Reine des bois" (1890), "Jeunes et vieilles barbes" (1892), "La Chanoinesse" (1893), "Flavie" (1895), "Dans les roses" (1899), "Mon oncle Flo" (1906). He was elected to the French Academy in 1896.

Thomas (tom'as), Arthur Goring. Born in Sussex, Nov. 20, 1850: died March 20, 1892. An English composer. His most important works are the operas "Esmeralda" (1883) and "Nadeshda" (1885); the choral ode "The Sun Worshippers" (1881); the cantata "The Swan and the Skylark" (1894); and songs.

Thomas (tom'as), Augustus. Born at St. Louis, Jan. 8, 1859. An American playwright. For a number of years he was engaged in journalism, and was the editor of the Kansas City "Mirror." His plays include "Alabama," "In Mizzoura," "Arizona," "The Earl of Pawtucket," "Mrs. Leffingwell's Boots," "The Witching Hour," "As a Man Thinks," etc.

Thomas (tom'as), Calvin. Born near Lapeer, Mich., Oct. 28, 1854. An American scholar and educator, professor of Germanic languages and literatures in Columbia University from 1896. He was graduated at the University of Michigan in 1874; studied in Germany 1877–78; and was connected with the University of Michigan as, successively, instructor, assistant professor, and professor of German 1878–96. His publications include a German grammar (1895), "The Life and Works of Schiller" (1901), "An Anthology of German Literature" (1907), "History of German Literature" (1909), and editions of Goethe's "Faust" and other German classics.

Thomas (tom'as), Cyrus. Born at Kingsport, Tenn., July 27, 1825: died at Washington, D. C., June 27, 1910. An American entomologist and ethnologist, archæologist of the Bureau of American Ethnology from 1882. He was professor of natural history in the Southern Illinois Normal University 1872–75; was entomologist of the State of Illinois 1874–75; and was a member of the United States entomological commission 1877–79. He published numerous monographs and papers upon economic entomology, and upon North American ethnology and archæology; and also a "History of the Indians of North America."

Thomas (tom'as), M. Carey. Born at Baltimore, Md., Jan. 2, 1857. An American scholar and educator. She was graduated at Cornell University in 1877, and studied at Johns Hopkins University and at the universities of Leipsic, Zurich, and Paris. She was the first woman to obtain the doctorate of arts summa cum laude from a European university. In 1885 she was appointed dean and professor of English at Bryn Mawr College, and has been president since 1894. She is the author of "Sir Gawayne and the Green Knight" (1883), "Education of Women" (1900), "The College" (1905), etc.

Thomé (tō-mā'), Francis (François Lucien Joseph). Born at Port Louis, Mauritius, Oct. 18, 1850: died at Paris, Nov. 16, 1909. A French composer. In 1869 he entered the Paris Conservatory, where his teachers were Marmontel and Duprato. He wrote operas, many pantomimes, ballets, and operettas, including "Endymion et Phœbé," incidental music for plays, and piano pieces, of which "Simple aveu" and "Sous les feuilles" are widely known.

Thompson (tomp'son), Denman. Born at Girard, Pa., Oct. 15, 1833: died at West Swanzey, N. H., April 14, 1911. An American actor. He passed his boyhood in New Hampshire, and made his first appearance on the stage at Lowell, Massachusetts, in 1852. In 1875 he appeared in "Joshua Whitcomb," a sketch by himself of the New England farmer, which was afterward elaborated into a play, "The Old Homestead," first produced in 1886, with which his name is chiefly associated.

Thompson (tomp'son), Sir Edward Maunde. Born in Jamaica, West Indies, May 4, 1840. A British librarian and editor, director and principal librarian of the British Museum 1888–1909. He was educated at Rugby and at University College, Oxford; entered the service of the British Museum in 1861; and was admitted to the bar of the Middle Temple in 1867. He was knighted in 1895.

Thompson (tomp'son), Francis. Born at Preston, Lancashire, in 1859: died at London, Nov. 13, 1907. An English poet and literary critic. He was educated at Ushaw College (Roman Catholic), near Durham, and studied medicine at Owens College, Manchester. He published "Poems," including "The Hound of Heaven" (1893), "Sister Songs" (1895), and "New Poems" (1897).

Thompson (tomp'son), James Maurice (called Maurice). Born at Fairfield, Ind., Sept. 9, 1844: died at Crawfordsville, Ind., Feb. 15, 1901. An American writer. In his youth he lived in Georgia; served in the Confederate army; was a member of the Indiana legislature in 1878, and State geologist of Indiana 1885–89; and for some years was literary editor of the New York "Independent." He wrote "The Witchery of Archery" (1878), "By-ways and Bird Notes" (1885), "A Tallahassee Girl" (1887), "The Story of Louisiana" (1888), "The King of Honey Island" (1893), "Alice of Old Vincennes" (1900), etc.

Thompson (tomp'son), Sir John Sparrow David. Born at Halifax, Nova Scotia, Nov. 10, 1844: died at Windsor Castle, England, Dec. 13, 1894. A Canadian statesman. He entered the Nova Scotia legislature in 1877; was elected to the Canadian Parliament in 1885, 1887, and 1891; was appointed minister of justice in 1885; and became premier of Canada in 1892. In 1887 he was legal adviser to the British plenipotentiaries on the Fisheries Commission at Washington, and in 1888 was knighted for his services. In 1893 he was a British arbitrator on the Bering Sea Commission at Paris.

Thompson (tomp'son), Silvanus Phillips. Born at York, England, June 19, 1851. An English physicist, principal and professor of physics in the City and Guilds Technical College, Finsbury, from 1885. He has published "Elementary Lessons in Electricity and Magnetism" (1881), "Dynamo-electric Machinery" (1885), "Light, Visible and Invisible" (1897), "Michael Faraday" (1898), "Design of Dynamos" (1903), etc.

Thomsen (tōm'sen), Julius. Born in Copenhagen, Feb. 16, 1826: died there, Feb. 13, 1909. An eminent Danish chemist, professor in the University of Copenhagen 1866–91. He was especially noted for his studies in thermochemistry. His works include "Thermochemische Untersuchungen" (4 vols., 1882–86), etc.

Thomson (tôn-sôn'), César. Born at Liège, Belgium, March 18, 1857. A noted Belgian violinist, a pupil of Vieuxtemps, Léonard, Wieniawski, and Massart. He was a teacher in the Liège Conservatory, and in 1898 succeeded Ysaye as professor of the violin in the Brussels Conservatory. He has written a number of studies for the violin.

Thomson (tom'son), Elihu. Born at Manchester, England, March 29, 1853. An American electrical engineer and inventor, electrician of the Thomson-Houston and General Electric companies from 1880. His researches and inventions have covered a wide range in electricity and electrical engineering. He was made officer of the Legion of Honor in 1889, and has received the Rumford medal.

Thomson (tom'son), Sir Joseph John. Born near Manchester, England, Dec. 18, 1856. A noted English physicist and mathematician, professor of experimental physics in the University of Cambridge from 1884, and professor of physics at the Royal Institution, London, 1905–. He has published "The Motion of Vortex-Rings" (1883), "The Applications of Dynamics to Physics and Chemistry" (1888), "Recent Researches in Electricity and Magnetism" (1893), "Elements of the Mathematical Theory of Electricity and Magnetism" (1895), "The Discharge of Electricity through Gases" (1898), "Conduction of Electricity through Gases" (1903), "Electricity and Matter" (1904), etc. He was awarded the Nobel prize for physics in 1906. He was knighted in 1908.

Thomson*, Sir William, Baron Kelvin. His works include "On the Electrodynamic Properties of Metals" (1885), "Navigation" (1876), "Mathematical and Physical Papers" (1882–1890: "Hydrodynamics and General Dynamics," Vol. IV., 1910), and "Lectures and Addresses" (1889–91).

Three Rivers (thrē riv'ėrz). A city in St. Joseph County, Michigan, on the St. Joseph River, 26 miles southwest of Kalamazoo. It has carworks, foundries, and manufactories of leather, paper, tools, pulleys, etc. Population, 5,072, (1910).

Throop (tröp). A borough in Lackawanna County, Pennsylvania, 3 miles northeast of Scranton. Its chief interest is coal. Population, 5,133, (1910).

Thursday Island. A small island in Queensland, Australia, just north of Prince of Wales Island, at the extremity of the Cape York Peninsula. It has pearl-fisheries.

Thurston (thėrs'ton), Mrs. (Katherine Cecil Madden). Born at Cork, Ireland: died there, Sept. 5, 1911. A British novelist. She published "The Circle" (1903), "John Chilcote, M. P." (1904: American title, "The Masquerader"), "The Gambler" (1906), "The Fly on the Wheel" (1908), and "Max" (1910). She married, in 1901, the novelist E. Temple Thurston. He dramatized "John Chilcote, M. P." in 1905.

Thwaites (thwāts), Reuben Gold. Born at Dorchester, Mass., May 15, 1853. An American historian, secretary and superintendent of the Wisconsin Historical Society from 1886. He is the author of "Down Historic Waterways" (1888), "The Story of Wisconsin" (1890), "The Colonies, 1492–1750" (1891), "On the Storied Ohio" (1897), "Stories of the Badger State" (1900), "A History of the University of Wisconsin" (1900), "Father Marquette" (1902), "Daniel Boone" (1902), "How George Rogers Clark Won the Northwest, and Other Essays in Western History" (1903), "A Brief History of Rocky Mountain Exploration" (1904), "France in America" (1905), etc., and has edited "Wisconsin Historical Collections" (volumes 10–17: 1888–1906), "Chronicles of Border Warfare" (1895), "The Jesuit Relations and Allied Documents" (73 volumes: 1896–1901), "Kinzie's Wau-Bun" (1901), "Early Western Travels, 1748–1846" (31 volumes: 1904–06), Hennepin's "A New Discovery" (1903), Lahontan's "New Voyages to North America" (1905), "Documentary History of Dunmore's War" (1905), "Original Journals of the Lewis and Clark Expedition" (8 volumes: 1904–06), "Wisconsin" (1908), etc.

Thwing (twing), Charles Franklin. Born at New Sharon, Maine, Nov. 9, 1853. An American educator, president of Adelbert College and Western Reserve University from 1890. He was graduated at Harvard in 1876, and at Andover Theological Seminary in 1879, and held pastorates in Cambridge, Massachusetts, and Minneapolis, Minnesota. He is also secretary of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching. Among his publications are "American Colleges" (1878), "Within College Walls" (1893), "The American College in American Life" (1897), "College Administration" (1900), "A Liberal Education and a Liberal Faith" (1903), "History of Higher Education in America" (1906), "Education in the Far East" (1909), etc.

Tibet*. In 1904 the British government in India sent an armed "mission" to Lhasa, in order to enforce certain treaty stipulations and other demands, which, after considerable fighting, accomplished its purpose, entering Lhasa and executing a convention with Tibet there (Sept. 7).

Ticao (tē-kä'ō). An island in the Philippines, lying northeast of Masbate and belonging to Masbate province. Port San Miguel on its northern coast is an excellent harbor in all weather. Area, 121 square miles. Population, 10,183.

Tiefland (tēf'länt). An opera by Eugène d'Albert (text adapted by Lothar from Guimera), first produced at Prague in 1903.

Tie-ling (tiä-ling'). A town in Manchuria, situated on the railroad north of Mukden in a strategically important pass. After the defeat of the Russians in the battle of Mukden it was captured by the Japanese, March 16, 1905. It was opened to international trade in 1906.

Tiffany (tif'a-ni), Charles Louis. Born at Killingly, Conn., Feb. 15, 1812: died at Irvington on the Hudson, New York, Feb. 18, 1902. An American merchant. In 1837 he came to New York and, with John B. Young, established a stationery and fancy-goods business. The firm became Tiffany and Company in 1851, established a branch house at Paris, and began the manufacture of sterling silver. In succeeding years it developed an extensive business in gold- and silver-work and precious stones.

Tiffany (tif'a-ni), Louis Comfort. Born at New York, Feb. 18, 1848. An American painter and decorator, son of Charles L. Tiffany. He studied art in New York under George Inness and Samuel Coleman, and in Paris under Léon Bailly. He has painted in both oil- and water-color, making a specialty of Oriental scenes. Among his principal canvases are the "Dock Scene" (1869), "Street Scene in Tangiers" (1876), "Study of Quimper, Brittany" (1877), "Duane Street, New York" (1878), "The Cobblers at Boufarick" (1888), "Feeding the Flamingoes" (1888), and "Market Day at Nuremberg" (1892). His other important art works include the Tiffany Chapel, exhibited at the Columbian Exposition, Chicago, 1893, which is now in the crypt of the New York Cathedral of St. John the Divine; and the electric fountain in the Grand Court of the Manufactures and Fine Arts Building at the Pan-American Exposition, Buffalo, New York, 1901. He discovered the formula for making the decorative glass which is known as Tiffany favrile glass.

Tiguex (tē-gwesh'). A New Mexican group (and a single town of the group) of American Indian adobe villages formerly existing on the Rio Grande. They were 12 or 15 in number, according to the members of the Coronado expedition 1540–42, the first Europeans to visit the place; 16 according to Espejo in 1583; and 15 or 16 according to Benavides 1622–30. The villages were the pivotal point of Coronado's operations. By some authorities the site has been fixed at Bernalillo, but there is a doubt as to the accuracy of this location, and it has been claimed that the correct site is about where Socorro now stands. Espejo is very clear in his description of his itinerary from Tiguex to Acoma, and he relates that he went north and west from Tiguex to reach Acoma. Conversely, then, Tiguex was east and south from Acoma. This would eliminate Bernalillo as the site, for it is east and north from Acoma. To fit Espejo's narrative to Bernalillo, "south" must be substituted where he distinctly says "north." Also Tihuez, Tiguas.

Tillman (til'man), Benjamin Ryan. Born in Edgefield County, S. C., Aug. 11, 1847. An American politician. For many years he was occupied exclusively with farming. In 1890 and again in 1892 he was elected governor of South Carolina, and he has been (Democratic) United States senator from that State since 1895. He was the originator of the State dispensary system of selling liquor. In 1906 he had charge of the Railroad Rate Bill in the Senate.

Timbuktu. 2. The name of one of the two districts into which the Military Territory of the Niger is divided. See ★Senegal-Niger Colony, Upper.

Tinel (tē-nel'), Edgar. Born at Sinay, Belgium, March 27, 1854. A Belgian composer and pianist. In 1882 he became director of the Church Music Institute at Mechlin, in 1889 inspector of the state music-schools, in 1896 professor of counterpoint and fugue at Brussels, and in 1909 director of the Brussels Conservatoire. His most important work is the oratorio "Franciscus" (1888).

Tingle (ting'gl), John Bishop. Born at Sheffield, England, Nov. 12, 1866. A British chemist, professor of chemistry in McMaster University, Toronto, from 1907. He was assistant in charge of organic chemistry in Johns Hopkins University 1904–07.

Tinguianes (tēn-gē-ä'näs), or Tingues. A Malay tribe in the interior of northwestern Luzón, in the provinces of Lepanto-Bontoc and Abra.

Titchener (tich'ē-nėr), Edward Bradford. Born at Chichester, England, Jan. 11, 1867. An English-American psychologist, assistant professor (1892-95) and professor (1895–) of psychology in Cornell University. He was educated at Oxford and Leipsic, and was extension lecturer in biology at Oxford in 1892. Among his works are "An Outline of Psychology" (1896), "A Primer of Psychology" (1898), "Experimental Psychology" (1901–05), "Lectures on the Elementary Psychology of Feeling and Attention" (1908), "Lectures on the Experimental Psychology of the Thought Processes" (1909), "Text-book of Psychology" (part i., 1909; part ii., 1910), etc. He is associate editor of "The American Journal of Psychology" and the American editor of "Mind."

Tobacco Case, American. A suit brought in 1907 by the United States against the American Tobacco Company and others subsidiary to it (in all, twenty-nine individuals and sixty-five American and two English corporations) for violation of the Sherman Antitrust Law of July 2, 1890. The original American Tobacco Company of New Jersey was organized in 1890, by consolidating five competing concerns that made and sold 95 per cent. of the domestic cigarettes and less than 8 per cent. of all other domestic manufactured tobacco. It then bought other competing concerns, or their control, paying therefor in cash and in its own stock and that of combinations subsidiary to itself, organized for manufacture and sale. These were merged in 1904 under the original name and soon virtually controlled the tobacco industries of the United States. The combined assets of the allies forming the combination exceeded $400,000,000. Chief among its methods of restraining and monopolizing trade were selling under cost and forcing on owners who sold out to it restrictive agreements that they should not reënter the field. The decision of the Supreme Court, handed down May 29, 1911, directed a dissolution of the combination and the recreating, out of the elements composing it, of a new condition honestly in harmony with the law. The decision allowed the trust a maximum of eight months to carry out these directions.

Tobler (tōb'ler), Adolf. Born at Hirzel, Switzerland, May 23, 1835: died March 18, 1910. A distinguished Swiss philologist. He was educated at the universities of Zurich and Bonn, and also studied in Italy. In 1861 he became a teacher of French and Italian at Solothurn, Switzerland, and in 1866 at Bern, and in 1867 was appointed professor extraordinary, and in 1870 professor, of Romance philology in the University of Berlin, a post which he held until his death. The results of his work appeared in many monographs and contributed articles on the Old French, Old Italian, Provençal, and other Romance languages. His most important work, a dictionary of Old French, upon which he was engaged for many years, was unpublished at the time of his death.

Todd (tod), David. Born at Lake Ridge, N. Y., March 19, 1855. An American astronomer, professor of astronomy in Amherst College and director of the observatory from 1881. He was chief assistant in the Nautical Almanac office 1878–81; was in charge of the transit of Venus observations at Lick Observatory in 1882; and has conducted eclipse expeditions to Texas (1878), Japan (1887), West Africa (1889–90), Japan (1896), Tripoli (1900), Dutch East Indies (1901), and Tripoli (1905). He has published text-books on astronomy, and numerous technical papers. He was the leader of the Lowell expedition to the Andes in 1907.

Togo (tō'gō), Count Heihachiro. Born in Kagoshima, Dec. 22, 1847. A famous Japanese admiral, commander of the Japanese fleet in the Russo-Japanese war 1904–05. He entered the navy in 1868; studied naval affairs at Greenwich, England, 1871-73; served in the Chinese war as commander of the Naniwa, sinking the transport Kow Shing before the actual rupture with China; attacked Port Arthur on the night of Feb. 8, 1904, in this and subsequent attacks inflicting great damage on the Russian fleet; scattered the Russian Port Arthur squadron in a sea-battle on Aug. 10, 1904; and annihilated the Russian Baltic fleet under Rozhestvensky in the Strait of Korea May 27–28, 1905.

Tolman (tōl'man), William Howe. Born at Pawtucket, R. I., June 2, 1861. An American sociologist. He was educated at Brown and Johns Hopkins universities; was general agent of the New York Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor 1894–98; joint organizer, with Josiah Strong, of the American Institute of Social Service, and director 1898–1908; and has been director of the American Museum of Safety from June, 1908. He has published "Municipal Reform Movements in the United States" (1894), "The Better New York" (1906), "Social Engineering" (1909), etc.

Toluca (tō-lö'kä), Nevado de. A volcano near Toluca, Mexico. It was first ascended by Humboldt in 1803. Altitude, 14,833 feet.

Tomaschek (tō'mä-shek), Johann Wenzel. Born at Skuč, Bohemia, April 17, 1774: died at Prague, April 3, 1850. A Bohemian composer and teacher. After studying law at the University of Prague, he decided to devote himself to music. Among his pupils were Dreyschock, Schulhoff, Kuhe, and others. His compositions include an opera, church music, cantatas, songs, a symphony, a quartet, a concerto, and many other pieces for the pianoforte.

Tomb of Agamemnon. A popular name for the Treasury of Atreus (which see, under Treasury).

Tom Burke of Ours. A story by Lever, published in 1844.

Tondo (ton-dō'). A division of the city of Manila, Luzón, Philippine Islands. Civilized population, 39,043.

Tonga Islands, or Friendly Islands. They are ruled by a native king, who is subject to the control of the British high commissioner. The kingdom consists of three groups of islands, Tonga, Haapai, and Vavau. Capital, Nukualofa. Area, 390 square miles. Population, about 22,000.

Tooker (tůk'ėr), Lewis Frank. Born at Port Jefferson, N. Y., Dec. 18, 1855. An American short-story writer, editor, and poet. He was graduated at Yale University in 1877, and has been on the editorial staff of "The Century Magazine" from 1885. He has written "The Call of the Sea" (1902), "Under Rocking Skies" (1905), etc.

Toole (töl), John Lawrence. Born at London, March 12, 1832: died at Brighton, July 30, 1906. A noted English comedian. His first public appearance was at the Haymarket Theatre in London in 1852, and he appeared at the St. James Theatre in 1854. In 1858 he became leading comedian at the Adelphi, and after five years' engagements followed at the Queen's Theatre, the Gaiety, etc. He made a tour of America in 1874, and of the Australian colonies in 1890. In 1879 he became manager of the Folly Theatre, later (1882) renamed Toole's Theatre, and managed it until his retirement in 1895. Among the best known of his rôles are Paul Pry, Spriggins in "Ici on parle français," Caleb Plummer in "The Cricket on the Hearth," the Artful Dodger, Uncle Dick in "Uncle Dick's Darling," etc.

Topinard (tō-pi-när'), Paul. Born at Isle-Adam, Seine-et-Oise, France, Nov. 4, 1830. A French anthropologist, professor in the School of Anthropology, Paris, since 1876. He lived in the United States in his youth; studied medicine in Paris; entered the anthropological laboratory of Broca in 1871; was conservator of the collections of the Société d'Anthropologie 1872–80; and on the death of Broca, in 1880, succeeded him as secretary general of the "Revue d'Anthropologie." Among his works are "L'Anthropologie" (1879), "Éléments d'anthropologie générale" (1885), "L'Homme dans la nature" (1891), "Science et foi" (1900), numerous contributions to scientific publications, etc.

Toronto, University of. See ★University of Toronto.

Torrey (tor'i), Bradford. Born at Weymouth, Mass., Oct. 9, 1843. An American author, editor, and ornithologist. For some years he was on the editorial staff of the "Youth's Companion." Among his works are "Birds in the Bush" (1885), "A Florida Sketch-book" (1894), "Spring Notes from Tennessee" (1895), "A World of Green Hills" (1898), "Every-day Birds" (1901), "Footing it in Franconia" (1901), "The Clerk of the Woods" (1903), and "Nature's Invitation" (1904).

Torrington (tor'ing-ton). A borough in Litchfield County, Connecticut, situated on the Naugatuck River. Its chief manufactures are woolen goods, hardware, articles of brass and plated ware, needles, tools, bicycles, etc. Population, 15,483, (1910).

Tosca (tōs'kä). An opera by Puccini (text adapted by Illica and Giacosa from Sardou's "La Tosca"), first produced at Rome in 1900.

Toscanini (tōs-kä-nē'nē), Arturo. Born at Parma, March 25, 1867. An Italian musical conductor. He was a pupil 1878–85 at the Parma Conservatory, where he studied the violoncello with Carini and composition with Dacci. He has been musical director of La Scala at Milan, at Buenos Aires, at Turin, at Bologna, and since 1908 at the Metropolitan Opera House, New York. He always conducts without a score, in not only the standard Italian repertoire, but the Wagner music-dramas and many French works.

Tourgée, Albion Winegar. He was United States consul to Bordeaux 1897–1903, and to Halifax, N. S., 1903–05. His later works include "Button's Inn" (1887), "Letters to a King" (1888), "Black Ice" (1888), "With Gauge and Swallow" (1889), "Murvale Eastman, Christian Socialist" (1889), "Pactolus Prime" (1890), "Out of the Sunset Sea" (1893), "An Outing with the Queen of Hearts" (1894), "The Man Who Outlived Himself" (1898), etc.

Touro (tō'rō), Judah. Born at Newport, R. I., June 16, 1775: died at New Orleans, La., Jan. 13, 1854. An American philanthropist. He served as a private in the War of 1812. With Amos Lawrence he supplied the funds for the completion of Bunker Hill Monument, and he also greatly improved his native city, Newport, where a street and a park are named after him. He bequeathed considerable sums of money to a large number of Jewish charitable and educational institutions in all parts of the United States, and also provided for almshouses at Jerusalem.

Tower (tou'ėr), Charlemagne. Born at Philadelphia, April 17, 1848. An American business man and diplomatist. He was graduated at Harvard in 1872 and was admitted to the (Pennsylvania) bar in 1878. He was United States minister to Austria-Hungary 1897–99, ambassador to Russia 1899–1902, and ambassador to Germany 1902–08. He has published "The Marquis de La Fayette in the American Revolution" (1895), etc.

Townsend (toun'zend), Charles Haskins. Born at Parnassus, Pa., Sept. 29, 1859. An American naturalist, director of the New York Aquarium from 1902. He was chief of the division of fisheries of the United States Fish Commission 1897–1902; expert on fishery in the Russian-American arbitration at The Hague in 1902; and acting director of the American Museum of Natural History in 1910.

Toynbee (toin'bē), Arnold. Born at London, Aug. 23, 1852: died at Wimbledon, Surrey, March 9, 1883. An English sociologist and political economist. He studied at Pembroke College, and at Balliol College, Oxford; was graduated in 1878; and was appointed a tutor and later bursar of Balliol. His lectures on economics were collected and published after his death under the title of "The Industrial Revolution" (1884). Toynbee Hall (which see), London, was established in his memory.

Toynbee (toin'bē), Paget. Born at Wimbledon, Jan. 20, 1855. An English philologist, author, and critic, brother of Arnold Toynbee. He was educated at Balliol College, Oxford, and was a private tutor 1878–92. He is best known as a Dante scholar. Among his publications are "Specimens of Old French, with Notes and Glossary" (1892), a "Dictionary of Proper Names and Notable Matters in the Works of Dante" (1898), "Dante Alighieri" (1900), "Dante Studies and Researches" (1902), "Dante in English Literature from Chaucer to Cary" (1909), etc.

Traherne (trā-hėrn'), Thomas. Born at Hereford, about 1636: died in 1674. An English clergyman and writer. He studied at Oxford in 1656 and became rector of Credwell, in Hereford, in 1657. His "Poetical Works" were edited by Bertram Dobell in 1906, his "Centuries of Meditation" in 1908, and his "Poems of Felicity," edited by H. I. Bell, were published in 1910.

Transandine Tunnel. A tunnel of the Transandine Railway, in the Andes Mountains, connecting Chile and Argentina. It is more than 2 miles long and over 10,000 feet above sea-level, and affords direct communication between Valparaiso and Buenos Aires. It was opened for travel April 5, 1910.

Transhimalayan Range. A range of mountains in Tibet, north of the Brahmaputra River: the most massive mountain range in the world. It was explored by Dr. Sven Hedin 1907–08.

Transvaal (tranz-väl'), The. See ★South African Republic and ★Union of South Africa.

Transvaal War. 2. See ★Boer War.

Transylvania University. See ★Kentucky University.

Trask (trask), Mrs. (Kate Nichols): pen-name Katrina Trask. Born at Brooklyn, N.Y., May 30, 1853. An American author and poet. Her works include "Under King Constantine" (1893), "Sonnets and Lyrics" (1895), "John Leighton, Jr." (1898), "Lessons in Love" (1900), "Free, not Bound" (1903), "Christalan" (1903), "In My Lady's Garden" (1907), "King Alfred's Jewel" (1909), etc.

Traverse City (trav'ėrs sit'i). The county-seat of Grand Traverse County, Michigan, on the West Arm of Grand Traverse Bay, an inlet of Lake Michigan. It is a summer resort, and has manufactories of lumber, agricultural implements, chemicals, baskets, flour, etc. It is the seat of the Northern Michigan Insane Asylum. Population, 12,115, (1910).

Travis (trav'is), Walter Jerome. Born at Maldon, Victoria, Australia, Jan. 10, 1862. An American golfer and authority on golf. He has written "Practical Golf" (1901) and "The Art of Putting" (1904; with J. White), and is editor of "The American Golfer."

Tree (trē), Sir Herbert Beerbohm: known as Sir Herbert Tree. Born at London, Dec. 17, 1853. An English actor and theatrical manager. He first appeared on the stage in 1878; managed the Haymarket Theatre, London, 1887-96; and is now (1911) manager of His Majesty's Theatre, London. He has published lectures on topics connected with the drama. He was knighted in 1909.

Trengganu (treng-gä'nö). A native state under British protection, on the eastern side of the Malay Peninsula. It became one of the Federated Malay States Feb. 18, 1910. Area, about 4,500 square miles. Population, 115,000.

Trenton (tren'tŏn). The county-seat of Grundy County, Missouri, 69 miles northeast of St. Joseph. It has coal-mines, railroad shops, flour-mills, etc. Population, 5,656, (1910).

Trepof (trep'of), Dimitrii Feodorovitch. Born 1855: died Sept. 15, 1906. A Russian general, chief of the imperial police, commandant of the palace, and assistant minister of the interior. An unsuccessful attempt to assassinate him was made on March 30, 1905.

Treves (trēvz), Sir Frederick. Born at Dorchester, England, Feb. 15, 1853. An English physician, sergeant-surgeon to the king from 1901. He was professor of anatomy and pathology in the Royal College of Surgeons 1881-86; examiner in surgery in the University of Cambridge 1891-96; and consulting surgeon to the forces in South Africa in 1900. He has published "A System of Surgery," "A German-English Dictionary of Medical Terms," "Tale of a Field Hospital," "The Other Side of the Lantern," "Highways and Byways in Dorset," "The Cradle of the Deep," "Uganda for a Holiday," etc.

Troubetzkoy (trö-bets-koi'), Princess (Amélie Rives). Born at Richmond, Va., Aug. 23, 1863. An American novelist. She is best known as the author of "The Quick or the Dead" (1889). Her other works include "A Brother to Dragons, and Other Old-time Tales" (1888), "Virginia of Virginia" (1888), "Witness of the Sun" (1889), "Herod and Mariamne," a drama in verse (1889), "According to St. John" (1891), "Barbara Dering: a sequel to The Quick or the Dead" (1892), "Athelwold," a play (1893), "Tanis, the Sang-digger" (1893), "Damsel Errant" (1897), "Seléné" (1905), "Augustine the Man," a drama (1906), "Golden Rose" (1908), "Pan's Mountain" (1910), etc.

Troubetzkoy (trö-bets-koi'), Prince Paul. Born at Intra, Italy, Feb. 16, 1866. A Russian sculptor. He is an extreme realist in theory and practice. On his appointment to a professorship in the School of Sculpture at Moscow, his first act was to remove all models and casts of ancient sculpture. His works exhibit power and sometimes refinement, as in certain statuettes of women.

Troy (troi). The county-seat of Miami County, Ohio, on the Great Miami River, 65 miles west of Columbus. It is in an agricultural region, and has manufactories of wagons, foundry products, etc. Population, 6,122, (1910).

Trumbull (trum'bul), Henry Clay. Born at Stonington, Conn., June 8, 1830: died at Philadelphia, Dec. 8, 1903. An American Congregational clergyman and religious writer, editor of the "Sunday-School Times" from 1875: brother of James Hammond Trumbull (1821–1897). He was chaplain of the tenth Connecticut regiment (1862–65), and was made a prisoner by the Confederates. His writings include a large number of works on religious themes.

Tsu-hsi (tsö-shē'). Born Nov. 17, 1834: died at Peking, Nov. 15, 1908. Empress dowager of China. She was the favorite of the emperor Hsien-fêng, and the sister of the mother of Kwang-su, emperor of China (1875–1908). She was regent of China during the minority of the emperor, and again assumed the regency in September, 1898.

Tuaregs (tö-ä'regz). A fierce nomadic people of the Berber stock, in the central Sahara. They usually wear over the face a black or white cloth as a protection against the dust of the desert, and are hence sometimes known as the Masked Tuaregs, or Black or White Tuaregs.

Tubigon (tö-bē'gŏn). A municipality of Bohol province in the Philippines, situated in the western part of Bohol Island near the coast. Civilized population, 15,168.

Tuburan (tö-bö'rän). A town of Cebú province, situated on the western coast of Cebú, Philippine Islands. Population, 6,859. Civilized population of municipality, 19,158.

Tucker (tuk'ėr), William Jewett. Born at Griswold, Conn., July 13, 1839. An American educator and Congregational clergyman, president of Dartmouth College 1893–1909. He was graduated at Dartmouth in 1861, and at Andover Theological Seminary in 1866; has held pastorates in Manchester, New Hampshire, and New York city (Madison Square Church); and was professor of homiletics at Andover 1880–93.

Tugela (tö-gā'lä). A river in Natal, South Africa, rising in the Drakensberg Mountains and flowing southeastwardly into the Indian Ocean. Near Ladysmith, it was the scene of severe fighting in the Boer war (Dec., 1899,–Feb., 1900).

Tuguegarao (tö-gä-gä-rä'ō). A town, the capital of Cagayán province, Luzón, Philippine Islands. It is situated near the Rio Grande de Cagayán, approximately in lat. 17° 37' 30" N., long. 121° 38' 20" E. Civilized population of municipality, 16,105.

Tulane University of Louisiana. A nonsectarian university located in New Orleans, Louisiana, founded by the State in 1845 as the University of Louisiana. In 1884 it was transferred to the administrators of the Tulane Educational Fund and the name was changed in honor of Paul Tulane, who endowed the academic department. In addition to the usual academic instruction, courses are offered in engineering, law, medicine, pharmacy, dentistry, and art. There is a separate department for women. The endowment of the university is over $8,000,000, and its annual income exceeds $350,000. Over 2,700 students are in attendance (including the summer school).

Tullianum. See ★Mamertine Prison.

Tulsa (tul'sä). A city in Tulsa County, Oklahoma, on the Arkansas River. Its chief interests are oil, gas, grain and live stock. Population, 18,182, (1910).

Tupac Catari (tö'päk kä-tä'rē). Born near Ayo Ayo, in what is now Bolivia: died in Nov., 1781. A Peruvian revolutionist, known also by the Spanish name of Julian Apaza. He was the son of a sacristan of the church of Sicasica, near La Paz, and in the unrest that continued among the Aymarás after the suppression of the rising led by Tomás Catari he became conspicuous, early in 1781, as a leader of the Indians in revolting cruelties. By his influence as medicine-man or wizard, and by the aid of a mestizo named Oblitas, he secured the leadership of unorganized hordes that were threatening La Paz. He assumed the title of viceroy, obtained artillery, and with about 15,000 Indians attacked La Paz, which was saved only by the ability and courage of the Spanish commander, Don Sebastian de Segurola, during two sieges extending over seven months and marked by severe suffering and many bloody engagements. Tupac Catari then took to flight, but was captured, condemned to death, and executed by quartering. There was no connection between him and Tupac Amaru and other Aymará chiefs, who refused to recognize his claims to authority; but the outbreak headed by him was the most dangerous of the several Indian uprisings during the years 1780–82, and would, if successful, have cut off the viceroyalty of Peru from that of Buenos Aires.

Turf Club. A London club, at 85 Piccadilly, founded in 1868 for social purposes. It has about 550 members.

Turks, or Turk Islands. A group of small islands in the Bahamas, north of Haiti. The largest is Grand Turk, or Turk Island. They are a dependency of Jamaica.

Turner (tėr'nėr), Sir William. Born at Lancaster, England, 1832. An English anatomist, principal of the University of Edinburgh from 1903. He was demonstrator of anatomy at Edinburgh 1854–67, and professor of anatomy 1867–1903. He has published numerous technical papers and is editor of the "Journal of Anatomy and Physiology." In 1886 he was made a knight bachelor, and was created K. C. B. in 1901.

Tuskegee (tus-kē'gē). A town, the capital of Macon County, Alabama, situated on the Tuskegee River. It is the seat of the Alabama Conference Female College, and of the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute founded by Booker T. Washington. Population, 2,803, (1910).

Tuskegee (tus-kē'gē) Institute. A non-sectarian institution near Tuskegee, Alabama, organized in 1881 by Booker T. Washington for the practical education of the negro race in the United States. It is attended by 1,700 students, who receive domestic, agricultural, and mechanical, in addition to academic, training. It has an endowment fund of over $1,400,000 and an annual income of over $300,000. The special object of the school is to train negroes to educate their own race.

Tutuila* (tö-tö-ē'lä). It was annexed by the United States in 1900. A naval station has been established there, and the commandant of the station is also governor of the islands.

Twachtman (twoćbt'man), John Henry. Born at Cincinnati, Ohio, Aug. 4, 1853: died at Gloucester, Mass., Aug. 8, 1902. An American painter. He studied art in the Academy at Munich under Professor Löfftz, and was also a pupil of Frank Duveneck. His work is based on modern impressionist principles treated with great breadth and fine feeling.

Tweedmouth, Lord. See ★Marjoribanks.

Twin Falls (twin fâlz). A city, incorporated since 1900, in Twin Falls County, Idaho, the county being organized in 1907. It is situated on the Snake River, a few miles east of Shoshone Falls. Population, 5,258, (1910).

Two Thousand Guineas. A race for three-year-old colts and fillies, established in 1809 and run annually at Newmarket, England, on a Wednesday during the spring meeting. The name does not represent the entire value of the stakes, which is usually about five thousand pounds. It is run over the Rowley Mile (which see).

Tyrone (ti-rōn'). A borough in Blair County, Pennsylvania, on the Juniata River. It is important as a shipping-point for coal, and has various manufactures. Population, 7,176, (1910).

Tyrrell (tir'el), George. Born at Dublin, Feb. 6, 1861: died at Storrington, Sussex, July 15, 1909. An Irish theologian. Influenced by the writings of Newman, he entered the Roman Catholic Church in 1879, and in 1880 joined the Society of Jesus. His modernist views, however, especially as shown in his "Letter to a Professor of Anthropology" (afterward republished as "A Much Abused Letter"), brought him into collision with the order, and led to his expulsion in 1906. A little later his criticism of the Pope's encyclical "Pascendi Gregis" caused him to be virtually excommunicated. Later publications in which he maintained his views are "Through Scylla and Charybdis," "Mediævalism," and "Christianity at the Cross Roads."

Ubangi-Shari-Chad Colony. A colony of the French Kongo, formed in 1906. Capital, Fort-de-Possel.

Uchida (ö-chē'dä), Baron Yasuga. Born in Kumamoto ken, Japan, in 1865. A Japanese diplomatist and statesman. He was appointed attaché to the Japanese legation at Washington 1887 and secretary of legation at London 1893; was secretary of legation at Peking 1895–97, vice-minister of foreign affairs 1900, minister to China 1901–06, ambassador to Austria 1907–09, and ambassador to the United States 1909–11; and was appointed minister of foreign affairs in the Saionji cabinet in 1911.

Uganda*. It is divided administratively into 5 provinces: Eastern Province (Karamojo, Busoga, Bukedi, and Lobor), Rudolf Province (Turkwel, Turkana, and Dabossa), Northern Province (Bari, Unyoro, Achole, Latuka, and Lango), Western Province (Toro and Ankole), and the kingdom of Uganda. The seat of government is Entebbe. The capital of Uganda proper is Kampala. A railway has been built between Uganda and Mombasa in the East Africa Protectorate.

Uhde (ö'de), Fritz Karl Hermann von. Born at Wolkenburg, Saxony, May 22, 1848: died Feb. 25, 1911. A German painter. His subjects are chiefly religious, many being biblical incidents to which he has given a modern setting.

Uhler (ö'lėr), Philip Reese. Born at Baltimore, Md., June 3, 1835. An American biologist and geologist, librarian of the Peabody Institute, Baltimore 1872–90 and provost from 1891. His publications relate to entomology, geology, and library administration.

Ukamba (ö-käm'bä). A province of the East Africa Protectorate. It comprises the districts of Kitui, Kikuyu, and Ulu. Capital, Nairobi.

Undercliff (un'dėr-klif). A region in the Isle of Wight, lying long the English Channel from Bonchurch to Blackgang Chine. It is a rocky plateau from one quarter to one and one half miles in width and from six to seven miles in length, due to a series of landslides. It is remarkable for its beauty and mild climate.

Underwood (un'dėr-wûd), Oscar Wilder. Born at Louisville, Ky., May 6, 1862. An American politician. He was educated at the University of Virginia, was admitted to the bar in 1884, and entered into the practice of law at Birmingham, Alabama. He has been a Democratic member of Congress since 1895, and became chairman of the Ways and Means Committee in April, 1911.

Ungava (ung-gä'vä). A province of Canada, comprising the northern part of the Labrador peninsula except the Atlantic sea-coast. Area, 349,109 square miles. Population, 5,113.

Union (ū'nyon). A town in Hudson County, New Jersey. It has manufactures of silk, cotton, cotton-seed oil, etc. The waterworks and the electric-light plant are owned by the town. Population, 21,023, (1910).

Union (ū'nyon). The county-seat of Union County, South Carolina, 60 miles northwest of Columbia. It is in an agricultural region, and has cotton-mills, etc. Population, 5,623, (1910).

Unión, La. See ★La Unión.

Union College. A college at Schenectady, New York, chartered in 1795 with full university powers. In 1873 the Albany Medical College, the Albany Law School, and the Dudley Observatory (at Albany) were incorporated with Union College as Union University. The Albany College of Pharmacy was incorporated as a department in 1881. The number of students in the university is about 800, in the college about 350. The university offers courses leading to the degrees of A.B., Ph.B., B.S., B.E., M.C.E., and M.E.E.

Union of South Africa. A legislative union, established May 31, 1910, under an act of the British Parliament passed in 1909, of the self-governing colonies of Cape Colony, Natal, the Transvaal Colony, and the Orange River Colony. In this union these colonies became provinces, under the names of the Cape of Good Hope, Natal, the Transvaal, and the Orange Free State province respectively. The executive power of the union is exercised by a governor-general appointed by the sovereign and assisted by a council chosen by himself. The legislative power is vested in a Parliament consisting of the sovereign, a Senate of 40 members, of whom 8 are nominated by the governor-general, while 32 are elected from the several provinces, and a House of Assembly of 121 members elected from the provinces. The capital and seat of government of the union is Pretoria, and the seat of the legislature is Cape Town.

Union Theological Seminary. An institution for theological study, founded Jan. 18, 1836, at New York city, for "students of every denomination of Christians." It offers a regular course of three years of study leading to the degree of bachelor of divinity, also special and graduate courses. Its buildings are at Broadway and 120th street.

Union University. See ★Union College.

United Provinces of Agra and Oudh. A lieutenant-governorship, so named in 1902, consisting of the provinces in British India formerly known as the Northwest Provinces and Oudh, which in 1877 were united under one administrative head as lieutenant-governor of the Northwest Provinces and chief commissioner of Oudh. With the change of name in 1902 the title of chief commissioner was dropped.

United States*. Oklahoma and Indian Territory were admitted to the Union as the State of Oklahoma, Nov. 16, 1907. Tutuila and the other Samoan Islands (east of long. 171° W.) were assigned to the United States in 1900. The Panama Canal Zone was ceded to the United States by the Republic of Panama in 1904.

United States Christian Commission. An organization, formed in November, 1861, by members of the Young Men's Christian Association, for the purpose of promoting the physical and spiritual welfare of the Federal soldiers and sailors in the American Civil War. The public responded to the request for contributions, and besides money, etc., nearly $3,000,000 worth of stores were given. About a million and a half Bibles and Testaments were distributed, besides much other reading-matter, and upward of 5,000 delegates carried on the active work of the organization. It received government support.

United States National Museum. The museum of the United States government, at Washington, D. C., under the direction of the Smithsonian Institution (which see). It is the legal depository of all the government collections in zoölogy, botany, geology, ethnology, archæology, the industrial and fine arts, etc. These collections have been secured through exploring expeditions, surveys, and other activities of the government, as in the department of agriculture and the bureaus of fishery and American ethnology, and by gift, exchange, and purchase. The museum includes a national gallery of art. A new building, provided for by Congress in 1903, was first occupied in 1910.

University of Alabama. A State institution of learning, situated near Tuscaloosa, Ala. It was opened in 1831 and now consists of three departments: the department of academic instruction; the department of professional instruction, comprising the departments of education, engineering, law, medicine (at Mobile), and pharmacy (at Mobile); and the summer school for teachers (established in 1904). There are about 600 students in the first two departments and about 300 in the summer school.

University of Birmingham. A university at Birmingham, England, incorporated by royal charter March 24, 1900. It is an outgrowth of Mason University College, Birmingham (founded in 1875), and has, besides the endowment of that university (£200,000), upward of £500,000. The university includes faculties of science, arts, medicine, and commerce, and is attended by about 1,000 students. It grants degrees to women.

University of California. A State university established in 1868 as the outgrowth of the College of California (established in 1860). It comprises the following departments: at Berkeley, California, philosophy, education, jurisprudence, history, political science, economics, anthropology, music, Semitic languages, Oriental languages, Sanskrit, Greek, Latin, English, German, Romanic languages, Slavic languages, mathematics, physics, astronomy, geography, chemistry, botany, zoölogy, physiology, hygiene, geology, mineralogy, mechanical and electrical engineering, civil engineering, irrigation, mining and metallurgy, drawing, architecture, agriculture, horticulture, entomology, military science and tactics, and physical culture; at Mount Hamilton, the Lick Observatory; at Santiago, Chile, the D. O. Mills Observatory; at Davis, Cal., the university farm; at San Diego and Pacific Grove, marine laboratories; and at San Francisco, the San Francisco Institute of Art and the colleges of law, medicine, dentistry, and pharmacy. About 3,500 students are in attendance. The endowment exceeds $5,000,000; the annual income exceeds $1,250,000.

University of Cincinnati. A university at Cincinnati, Ohio, founded by the will of Charles McMicken in 1858 and opened (with aid from the city) in 1873. It comprises a college of liberal arts, a graduate department, a college of engineering, a college of medicine, a college of law, and a department of clinical medicine. It is attended by about 1,300 students and has an endowment of $1,600,000 and an annual income of over $250,000.

University of Georgia. A State institution situated at Athens, Georgia. It consists of the Franklin College (the college of arts: chartered in 1785, and established in 1801), the Georgia State College of Agriculture and the Mechanic Arts (the college of science: established 1872), graduate schools, a law department, and a pharmacy department. The enrolment of students at Athens is 500. The following are branches of the university and under the general control of its trustees: the Georgia Medical College, at Augusta (established in 1829); the North Georgia Agricultural College, at Dahlonega (established in 1871); the Georgia School of Technology, at Atlanta (established in 1885); the Georgia Normal and Industrial College for Girls, at Milledgeville (established in 1889); the Georgia Industrial College for Colored Youths, near Savannah (established in 1890); and the State Normal School, near Athens (established in 1895). The total enrolment of students is about 3,500.

University of Kansas. A State institution of learning at Lawrence, Kansas, organized in 1864 and opened in 1866. Besides the college of liberal arts and sciences, it comprises schools of engineering, law, pharmacy, the fine arts, medicine, a graduate school, and a summer session. About 2,260 students are enrolled.

University of Nebraska. A State university situated at Lincoln, Nebraska, founded in 1869. It comprises a graduate college, a teachers' college, a college of arts and sciences, a college of agriculture, a college of engineering, a college of law, a college of medicine, a school of fine arts, an affiliated school of music, and a summer session. Under the charge of the regents of the university are also the Nebraska agricultural experiment stations, the State museum, the botanical and geological surveys, and the superintendency of the farmers' institutes. The students number over 3,400.

University of North Carolina. A non-sectarian institution of learning situated at Chapel Hill, North Carolina, founded in 1789 and opened in 1795. It offers courses in arts, philosophy, science, law, medicine, and pharmacy. In 1908–09 the teaching staff numbered 92 and the student body 794.

University of Sheffield. A university situated at Sheffield, Yorkshire, England, chartered May 31, 1905. It is the outgrowth of University College, Sheffield (incorporated in 1897), which was formed by the amalgamation of Firth College (founded in 1879), the Sheffield School of Medicine (founded in 1828), and the Sheffield Technical School. The new buildings, situated near Weston Park, Sheffield, were opened in 1905. The university, while offering courses in arts, science, medicine, and law, specializes in applied science (metallurgy and engineering). It is attended by 734 day and 1,436 evening students, and degrees are granted without distinction of sex.

University of Tennessee. A State university situated at Knoxville, Tennessee. Blount College (chartered in 1794) was merged with East Tennessee College (chartered in 1807), which became East Tennessee University in 1840 and the University of Tennessee in 1879. It comprises a graduate department, a college of liberal arts, a college of engineering, a college of agriculture, an industrial department for colored students in Knoxville College, a law department, a medical department, a school of pharmacy, and a dental department. The departments of medicine and dentistry are situated in Nashville. It is attended by more than 700 students.

University of Texas. A State coeducational institution of learning, opened in 1883. It consists of the main university, situated at Austin (made up of the College of Arts and the departments of engineering, law, and education), and the department of medicine, situated at Galveston. The total attendance of students is about 2,500.

University of Toronto. An institution of learning in Toronto, Canada, established in 1827 by royal charter as King's College, the name being changed to that of the University of Toronto in 1849. It has six faculties: arts, medicine, applied science and engineering, household science, education, and forestry. The following universities and colleges are federated or affiliated with it: (federated) the universities of Victoria and Trinity; (federated) the colleges of Knox, Wycliffe, and St. Michael's; and (affiliated) Albert College, Ontario Agricultural College, Royal College of Dental Surgeons, Toronto College of Music, Ontario College of Pharmacy, Toronto Conservatory of Music, Hamilton Conservatory of Music, Western Canada College, Columbian Methodist College, Ontario Veterinary College, Ontario Ladies' College, Alma College, and St. Hilda's College. The number of students is about 3,900.

Upham (up'am), Warren. Born at Amherst, N. H., March 8, 1850. An American geologist, secretary and librarian of the Minnesota Historical Society (St. Paul) from 1895. He was assistant on the Geological Survey of New Hampshire 1875–78; of Minnesota 1879–85 and 1893–94; and of the United States 1885–95. His investigations have been concerned chiefly with glaciology. Among his publications are "The Glacial Lake Agassiz" (1895), "Greenland Icefields" (1896: with G. F. Wright), and many geological reports and papers in scientific magazines. He has edited the Minnesota Historical Society "Collections," vols. 8–10 (1898–1905), contributing papers on Groseilliers and Radisson, the first white men in Minnesota, and the progress of the discovery of the Mississippi River.

Uphues (öp'hūs), Joseph. Born at Sassenberg, Westphalia, May 23, 1850: died at Berlin, Jan. 2, 1910. A German sculptor. He studied at the Berlin Academy of Art and under Begas, whose assistant he afterward became. He executed notable memorial statues for Mannheim, Berlin, Homburg, Wiesbaden, and other German cities. Among his other works, the best known are "The Bowman" and "A Sabine Defending His Sister."

Upjohn (up'jon) Richard. Born at Shaftesbury, England, Jan. 22, 1802: died at Garrison, Putnam County, N. Y., Aug. 16, 1878. An American architect. He came to America in 1829 and in 1839 came to New York to undertake alterations in the old Trinity Church building. This project was soon abandoned, however, and the construction of the present church was intrusted to him. He was one of the founders of the American Institute of Architects and its first president 1857–76.

Upjohn (up'jon), Richard Mitchell. Born at Shaftesbury, England, March 7, 1828: died at Brooklyn, N. Y., March 4, 1903. An American architect, son of Richard Upjohn. Among the buildings which he designed are St. Paul's Church in Brooklyn, the Central Congregational Church in Boston, St. Peter's Church in Albany, the Capitol building in Hartford, Connecticut, and the Cathedral in Fond du Lac, Wisconsin.

Upolu*. Upolu and Savaii were awarded to Germany by the Anglo-German agreement of Nov. 14, 1899.

Upper Nile. One of the provinces of the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan. Capital, Kodok.

Upper Senegal and the Niger. See ★Senegal-Niger Colony, Upper.

Urbana (ėr-ban'ä). The county-seat of Champaign County, Illinois, 43½ miles northeast of Decatur. It is in an agricultural region, and has various manufactures. It is the seat of the University of Illinois. Population, 8,245, (1910).

Urbana (ėr-ban'ä). The county-seat of Champaign County, Ohio, 42 miles northwest of Columbus. It is in an agricultural region, and has manufactories of woolen goods, strawboard, paper, furniture, etc. It is the seat of Urbana University (Swedenborgian). Population, 7,739, (1910).

Urdaneta (ör-dä-nā'tä). A municipality in the eastern part of Pangasinán province, Luzón, Philippine Islands. Civilized population, 20,544.

Uriu, or Uryu (ö'ri-ö), Sotokichi. Born at Kanazawa, 1854. A Japanese vice-admiral. He studied at the United States Naval Academy; was promoted captain in the Japanese navy in 1891, and rear-admiral in 1900; commanded the squadron which attacked the Russian vessels Variag and Korietz in the harbor of Chemulpo, Feb. 9, 1904; took part in the battle of the Sea of Japan May 27–28, 1905; and was promoted vice-admiral in that year.

Urso (ör'sō), Camilla (Mme. Frederic Luère). Born at Nantes, France, June 13, 1842: died at New York, Jan. 20, 1902. An Italian violinist. She studied at the Paris Conservatoire, and was a pupil of Massart. She came to America in 1852, playing with great success in the concerts of Mmes. Albani and Sontag. After her marriage she retired, but reappeared in 1863 and played till her later years.

Vail (vāl), Charles Henry. Born at Tully, N. Y., April 28, 1866. An American Universalist minister. He was ordained to the Universalist ministry in 1893, and held pastorates at Albany, New York, 1893–94; Jersey City, New Jersey, 1894–1901; and Richfield Springs, New York, 1902–1905. Since 1906 he has been minister of Pullman Memorial Church, Albion, New York. He has published "Modern Socialism" (1897), "Scientific Socialism" (1899), "The Trust Question" (1901), "Socialism and the Negro Problem" (1903), "Ancient Mysteries and Modern Masonry" (1909), etc.

Valdosta (val-dos'tă). The county-seat of Lowndes County, Georgia, in the extreme southern part of the State. It is the trade center of a cotton-growing district, and has lumber-mills, etc. Population, 7,656, (1910).

Valley City (val'i sit'i). The county-seat of Barnes County, North Dakota, on the Sheyenne River. It is in a farming region, and has grain-elevators, etc. It is the seat of a State normal school. Population, 4,606, (1910).

Valnay, Raoul. A pseudonym of A. M. É. Hervé.

Valparaiso*. It was visited by a destructive earthquake Aug. 17, 1906.

Valparaiso (val-pa-rā'zō). The county-seat of Porter County, Indiana, 42 miles southeast of Chicago. It has manufactories of paints, mica, electrical goods, etc., and is the seat of Valparaiso University. Population, 6,987, (1910).

Van Brunt (van brunt'), Henry. Born at Boston, Sept. 5, 1832: died in 1903. An American architect. He was graduated at Harvard University in 1854, and studied under George Snell in Boston and Richard M. Hunt in New York. He served in the navy during the Civil War, and in 1863 entered the firm of Ware and Van Brunt. This firm designed Memorial Hall and the library at Harvard University; the Episcopal Theological Seminary, Cambridge; the library of the University of Michigan; Stone Hall at Wellesley College; and the First Church, Boston. In 1881 he formed a new partnership, with F. M. Howe, and they erected the Mercantile Building in Kansas City, a series of stations along the Union Pacific Railroad, and other buildings in the West. He published a translation of Viollet-le-Duc's "Entretiens" (1875), a series of articles in "The Century Magazine" on the architecture of the Columbian Exposition (1892), and "Greek Lines" (1894). He was president of the American Institute of Architects in 1899.

Vancouver (van-kō'vėr). The county-seat of Clarke County, Washington, on the Columbia River, about 9 miles north of Portland, Oregon. It has extensive agricultural, fruit-growing, and lumbering interests, and has lumber-mills, a brewery, etc. It is the seat of St. James' College. The headquarters of the Military Department of the Columbia are located here. The Columbia River is navigable for ocean vessels to this point. Population, 9,300, (1910).

Van der Poorten-Schwartz*, Joost Marius Willem. His later works include "My Lady Nobody" (1895), "Her Memory" (1898), "Some Women I Have Known" (1901), "My Poor Relations" (1903), "Dorothea" (1904), "The Healers" (1906), "The Woman's Victory" (1906), "The New Religion" (1907), "Brothers All" (1909), "Harmen Pols" (1910), etc. His "The Jail-bird," a one-act play, was produced in 1904.

Van der Stucken (van der stök'en), Frank (Valentin). Born at Fredericksburg, Texas, Oct. 15, 1858. An American composer and conductor. He studied at Antwerp with Benoit and later with Reinecke, Grieg, and Liszt. He was conductor at the Stadt Theater of Breslau 1881–82. In 1884 he came to New York, and in 1895 he became director of the Cincinnati College of Music and of the Cincinnati Orchestra. His compositions include choral and orchestral works, but his songs are more widely known.

Van der Waals. See ★Waals.

Van Devanter (van dē-van'tėr), Willis. Born at Marion, Ind., April 17, 1859. An American jurist, appointed associate justice of the United States Supreme Court in 1910. He was graduated at the Cincinnati Law School in 1881, and practised law at Marion, Indiana, 1881–84. In 1884 he removed to Cheyenne, Wyoming, where he held several city and State offices, serving as chief justice of the Supreme Court of Wyoming 1889–90. He was assistant attorney-general of the United States 1897–1903, and United States circuit judge of the 8th judicial circuit 1903–10.

Van Dyck (van dīk'), Cornelius Van Alen. Born 1818: died 1895. An eminent American Orientalist and Congregational missionary. He was stationed at Beirut, Syria, and after the death of Eli Smith in 1857 undertook the completion of the latter's translation of the Bible into Arabic. He was manager of the Mission Press at Beirut 1857–80. He gave instruction in Hebrew in Union Theological Seminary, New York, 1866–67.

Van Dyck (van dīk'), Ernest Marie Hubert. Born at Antwerp, April 2, 1861. A Belgian tenor. He studied law and later became a journalist in Paris, where he studied singing. In 1883 he made his début in concert, and in 1887 in opera, as Lohengrin, at the Eden Theater in Paris. In 1888 he sang Parsifal at Bayreuth and later appeared in Vienna, London, and other cities. He created the title rôle in Massenet's "Werther," at Vienna, in January, 1892. He made his first American appearance in Chicago (1899).

Van Dyke (van dīk'), Henry. Born at Germantown, Pa., Nov. 10, 1852. An American clergyman, educator, and author, professor of English literature in Princeton University from 1900. He was pastor of the United Presbyterian Congregational Church, Newport, R. I., 1878–82, and of the Brick Presbyterian Church, New York, 1883–1900, and in 1902. He is the author of "The Poetry of Tennyson" (1889), "Little Rivers" (1895), "The Story of the Other Wise Man" (1896), "The Gospel for an Age of Doubt" (1896), "The First Christmas Tree" (1897), "The Builders, and Other Poems" (1897), "Ships and Havens" (1897), "The Lost Word" (1898), "The Gospel for a World of Sin" (1899), "Fisherman's Luck" (1899), "The Tolling of Felix, and Other Poems" (1900), "The Ruling Passion" (1901), "The Blue Flower" (1902), "Music and Other Poems" (1904), "The School of Life" (1905), "Essays in Application" (1905), "House of Rimmon" (1908), "Out of Doors in the Holy Land" (1908), "The White Bees" (1909), etc.

Vane-Tempest-Stewart*, Charles Stewart, sixth Marquis of Londonderry. He was president of the board of education 1902–05, and lord president of the council 1903–05.

Van Hise (van hīs'), Charles Richard. Born at Fulton, Wisconsin, May 29, 1857. An American geologist, president of the University of Wisconsin from 1903. He was connected as assistant professor and professor with the university 1883–1903; was non-resident professor of structural geology in the University of Chicago 1892–1903; and has served as assistant geologist and geologist in the United States Geological Survey from 1883. He has published a treatise on metamorphism, and other scientific works and papers.

Van Horne (van hôrn'), Sir William Cornelius. Born near Joliet, Ill., Feb. 3, 1843. An American administrator of railroads. He entered the railroad service in 1857 and held various supervising and executive positions in connection with railroads in the United States 1857–81, but is most closely identified with the Canadian Pacific Railway, of which he was general manager 1881–84, vice-president 1884–88, president 1888–99, and chairman of the board of directors 1899–. He was created knight commander (honorary) of the Order of St. Michael and St. George in 1894.

Van Laun (van lân'), Henri. Born in Holland, 1820: died at London, Jan. 19, 1896. A British author and educator. He was educated in France; in 1848 settled in England; and was French master successively at King William's College (Isle of Man), at Cheltenham College, and at the Edinburgh Academy. Later, in London, he was for twenty years examiner in French for the civil service commission and the War Office. Among his works are a number of text-books, a "History of French Literature" (1876–77), "The French Revolutionary Epoch" (1878), and translations of Taine's "History of English Literature" (1871), Molière's works (1875–76), the "Caractères" of La Bruyère (1885), and "Gil Blas" (1886).

Van Rensselaer (van ren'se-lėr), Mrs. (Mariana Griswold). Born at New York. A contemporary American art critic and author. Among her works are "Henry Hobson Richardson and his Work" (1888), "Six Portraits" (1889), "English Cathedrals" (1893), "Art Out of Doors" (1893), "One Man Who Was Content" (1896), "History of the City of New York in the Seventeenth Century" (1909), "Poems" (1910), etc.

Van Rooy (van roi), Anton (Antonius Maria Josephus). Born at Rotterdam, Jan. 1, 1870. A Dutch barytone. He studied with Stockhausen at Frankfort, and, after singing in concerts, appeared at Bayreuth in 1897 as Wotan. He afterward sang at Berlin and for many seasons at Covent Garden, London, and the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, where he appeared as Amfortas and Jockanaan in the American productions of "Parsifal" and "Salome." Since 1908 he has sung in Europe, usually in concerts.

Van Wert (van wėrt'). The county-seat of Van Wert County, Ohio, 28 miles northwest of Lima. It is in a fertile agricultural region, and has piano-factories, wood-working establishments, etc. Population, 7,157, (1910).

Védrines (vā-drēn'), Jules. Born at St.-Denis, Seine, Dec. 29, 1881. A French aviator, participant in several important cross-country aëroplane races in Europe during 1911. He won (in a Morane monoplane) the Paris-Madrid race, making the 766 miles in 12 hrs. 18 min., actual flying time, or at a rate of about 69 miles an hour. The race extended from May 22 to May 26, 1911, the course crossing the Pyrenees. In the All-British race of 1,010 miles Védrines occupied 35¾ hours, including some stops (22 hrs. 44 min., actual flying time), averaging 42.8 miles an hour.

Veitch (vēch), John. Born at Peebles, Scotland, Oct. 24, 1829: died there, Sept. 3, 1894. A Scotch philosophical writer and historian, professor of logic, rhetoric, and metaphysics at St. Andrews 1860–64 and of logic and rhetoric at Glasgow 1864–94. He wrote "The Tweed, and Other Poems" (1875), "The Feeling for Nature in Scottish Poetry" (1887), "Merlin, and Other Poems" (1889), "The History and Poetry of the Scottish Border" (1893), "Dualism and Monism" (1895), etc.

Veitch (vēch), William. Born at Spittal-on-Rule, Roxburghshire, 1794: died at Edinburgh, July 8, 1885. A Scotch classical scholar. He was educated at Edinburgh, and worked as a private tutor at the university. He is best known for his work on "Greek Verbs, Irregular and Defective" (1848).

Venables (ven'a-blz), George. Born 1821: died Dec. 30, 1906. An English clergyman, canon of Norwich from 1881. He published a number of works on ecclesiastical and religious themes.

Venango (ve-nang'gō), Fort. A French fort built in 1753 on the site of the present city of Franklin, capital of Venango County, Pennsylvania. It stood at the entry of the Venango (now French) Creek into the Allegheny River. The locality is now the center of the chief oil region of Pennsylvania.

Venezuela*. It is now divided into 20 states, Apure, Aragua, Anzoátegui, Bolívar, Carabobo, Cojedes, Falcón, Guárico, Lara, Monagas, Mérida, Miranda, Nueva Esparta, Portuguesa, Sucre, Táchira, Trujillo, Yaracuy, Zamora, Zulia; 2 territories, Amazonas and Delta-Amacuro; and a federal district, the city of Caracas.

Verde (vär'dā) Island Passage. A strait in the Philippine Islands, separating the southern coast of Luzón and the northern coast of Mindoro.

Verhaeren (vär-hä'ren), Émile. Born at Saint-Armand, Belgium, May 21, 1855. A noted Flemish poet and dramatist. His verse includes "Les flamandes" (1880), "Les moines" (1886); a trilogy of life, "Les soirs" (1887), "Les débâcles" (1888), and "Les flambeaux noirs" (1890); "Les apparus dans mes chemins" (1891), "Les campagnes hallucinées" (1893), "Les villages illusoires" (1895), "Les villes tentaculaires" (1895), "Les heures claires" (1899), "Petites légendes" (1900), and "Forces tumultueuses" (1902). He has also written lyrical dramas, "Les aubes" (1898), "Le cloître" (1900), and "Philippe II." (1901).

Vernon-Harcourt. See ★Harcourt.

Verrall (ver'al), Arthur Woollgar. Born at Brighton, England, Feb. 5, 1851. A British classical and English scholar, professor of English literature in Cambridge University from 1911. He has published "Euripides the Rationalist" (1895), also editions and translations of various plays of Æschylus and Euripides, etc.

Veto Bill, The. A British parliamentary measure designed to limit the power of the House of Lords to reject ('veto') bills passed by the House of Commons. It is one of the most revolutionary constitutional reforms in the history of the British Parliament. The House of Lords does not possess the power of initiating legislation affecting supply and taxation, and very rarely has exercised its power to originate any other legislation. The exclusive right of instituting money bills is vested in the Commons, and the Commons have maintained that such bills cannot be amended by the Lords. But, while abstaining from direct interference with grants of supply, the Lords occasionally have rejected, postponed, or amended bills affecting supply and taxation. In 1909 the budget which was adopted by the House of Commons, under the leadership of the Liberal prime minister, Mr. Asquith, was rejected by the House of Lords. An election followed, and the Liberal government was returned, although with a reduced majority. It was then decided to reduce the powers of the House of Lords, and a bill was introduced and passed in the House of Commons which provided that money bills should become laws without the consent of the Lords, and that all other bills should become laws, even though rejected by the Lords, if passed by the Commons in three successive sessions within a minimum period of years. (The bill reads: "Provided . . . two years have elapsed between the date of the second reading in the first of those sessions of the bill in the House of Commons and the date on which it passes the House of Commons in the third of those sessions.") To this measure the assent of the Lords was secured, August 10, 1911. Correctly known as the Parliament Bill. On receiving the royal assent, it became the Parliament Act.

Via Sacra (vī'ä sä'krä). [L., 'Sacred Way.'] A street in Rome leading from the arch of Titus, by the Forum, to the Capitol, along which public processions passed.

Vicomte de Bragelonne (vē-kōnt' dė brăzh-lon'). A novel by Dumas père, published 1848–50: a sequel to "Vingt ans après" (which see).

Victoria*. The state is represented in the federal parliament by 6 senators and 22 representatives.

Victoria and Albert Museum. The name by which, since 1899, the South Kensington Museum has been known. See South Kensington Museum.

Victoria Eugénie Julia Ena (vik-tō'ri-ä ū-zhā'nē jō'lyä ē'nä). Born at Balmoral Castle, Scotland, Oct. 24, 1887. Daughter of Prince Henry of Battenberg (1858–96) and Princess Beatrice of Great Britain (daughter of Queen Victoria), and wife of Alfonso XIII., king of Spain, whom she married May 31, 1906.

Victoria University. An English institution of learning founded in 1880, originally a federal university consisting of Owens College, Manchester, University College, Liverpool, and Yorkshire College, Leeds. In 1903 a separate charter was granted for a University of Liverpool and in 1904 for a University of Leeds. The Victoria University was reconstituted in 1903 under the title of the "Victoria University of Manchester," and Owens College was incorporated with it in 1904.

Vierge (vē-ärzh′), Daniel Urrabieta. Born at Madrid, Spain, March 5, 1851: died at Boulogne-sur-Seine, May 10, 1904. A Spanish painter and illustrator. Shortly before the war of 1870 he went to Paris and found employment on the illustrated papers. In 1876 his illustrations (1,000 drawings) for Michelet's "History of France" were published. By a paralytic stroke he lost the use of his right hand, substituted the left, and thereafter produced several of his most important works—illustrations for "Pablo de Segovia," "On the Trail of Don Quixote" (published in America), "Lazarillo de Tormes," "Bachelier de Salamanque," and a 4-volume edition of "Don Quixote."

Vigan (vē′gän). A town, the capital of Ilocos Sur province, Luzón, Philippine Islands, on the Abra River, not far from the coast, in lat. 17° 35′ N., long. 120° 25′ E. Population, 5,749.

Vignaud (vēn-yō′), Jean Henry. Born at New Orleans, Nov. 27, 1830. An American diplomatist and author. He served in the Confederate army during the Civil War, acting as secretary of the Confederate diplomatic commission at Paris in 1863. From 1875 to 1909 he held secretaryships in the United States legation and embassy at Paris. He has published "La lettre et la carte de Toscanelli sur la route des Indes" (1901), "Toscanelli and Columbus" (1902–03), "La maison d'Albe et les archives colombiennes" (1904), "Études critiques sur la vie de Colomb" (1905), etc.

Villari*, Pasquale. He was elected senator in 1884, was minister of public instruction 1891–92. His later works include "Arte, storia, e filosofia" (1884), "Saggi storici e critici" (1890), "I primi due secoli della storia di Firenze" (1893), "Scritti vari" (1894), "Le invasioni barbariche in Italia" (1900), "Scritti sulla questione sociale in Italia" (1902), "Discussioni critiche e discorsi" (1905), etc.

Villiers (vil′yėrz), Frederic. Born at London, April 23, 1852. An English journalist, artist, and lecturer. He was educated in France and studied also at the South Kensington School of Art and the Royal Academy. Since 1896 he has been war correspondent for various journals in most of the important campaigns of the time. His publications include "Pictures of Many Wars" (1902) and "Port Arthur" (1905).

Vincent (vin′sent), John Heyl. Born at Tuscaloosa, Ala., Feb. 23, 1832. An American clergyman and educator, bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church and one of the founders of the Chautauqua Assembly (1874). He is also the originator and chancellor of the Chautauqua Literary and Scientific Circle (1878). He has published "The Modern Sunday School," "Studies in Young Life," "Our Own Church," "The Church School and Its Officers," "Sunday School Institutes and Normal Classes," "The Chautauqua Movement," etc.

Vincent (vin′sent), Marvin Richardson. Born at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Sept. 11, 1834. An American clergyman, author, and educator, professor of New Testament exegesis and criticism in Union Theological Seminary from 1888. He was graduated at Columbia in 1854, and entered the ministry of the Methodist Episcopal Church in 1859 and that of the Presbyterian Church in 1863. From 1858 to 1860 he was professor of Latin in Troy University, New York. He is the author of "Word-Studies in the New Testament" (1877–1900), "The Age of Hildebrand" (1896), etc.

Viner (vī′nėr), Charles. Born at Salisbury, England, 1678: died at Aldershot, June 5, 1756. An English jurist, founder of the Vinerian common-law professorship, scholarships, and fellowships at Oxford University. He published "A General Abridgment of Law and Equity" in 23 volumes (1742–53).

Vinton (vin′ton), Frederic Porter. Born at Bangor, Maine, Jan. 29, 1846: died at Boston, May 20, 1911. An American painter. He was a pupil of William Morris Hunt and Dr. William Rimmer in Boston, and studied also at the Royal Academy in Munich and under Léon Bonnat and Jean Paul Laurens in Paris. In 1880 he was elected a member of the Society of American Artists and in 1891 of the National Academy of Design, and has painted many important portraits.

Viotti (vē-ot′tē), Giovanni Battista. Born at Fontanetto, Piedmont, May 23, 1753: died at London, March 3, 1824. An Italian violinist and composer for the violin. He exerted a notable influence upon the modern style of violin-playing. His time was spent chiefly in Paris and London, where he was engaged partly in managing operatic enterprises. His concertos for the violin are still valued.

Virginia (vėr-jin′i-ä). A city in St. Louis County, Minnesota, 56 miles northwest of Duluth. Iron-mining is its chief industry. Population, 10,473, (1910).

Visayan (vē-sä′yan) Islands. A group of islands in the Philippines, lying south of Luzón and north of Mindanao. The most important of them are Bohol, Cebú, Leyte, Masbate, Negros, Romblón, and Samar. See Bohol, Cebú, Leyte, ★Masbate, Negros, ★Romblón, and Samar. Also Bisayas.

Visayan (vē-sä′yan) Sea. The northern part of the sea inclosed by the Philippine Islands, the Sulu Archipelago, and Borneo. It is connected on the east by the straits of San Bernardino and San Juanico with the Pacific Ocean, and on the west by Mindoro Strait and Verde Island Passage with the China Sea.

Vittoria (vit-tō′ri-ä). A novel by George Meredith, published in 1866. It is a sequel to "Sandra Belloni." The scene is the Italian insurrection of 1848.

Vittorio Emanuele III. See Victor Emmanuel III.

Voigt (foigt), Frau (Johanna Ambrosius). Born at Lengwethen, East Prussia, Aug. 3, 1854. A German poet. She is the daughter of a mechanic, and her only education was obtained from a village school, which she attended until her eleventh year. In 1905 her collected poems ("Gedichte") reached the 41st edition.

Voisin (vwo-zaṅ′), Gabriel. Born at Lyons, France, Feb. 5, 1889. A French aviator. He made his first aëronautical apparatus—which was tried over the waters of the Seine—under the patronage of M. Archdeacon in 1903–04. With his brother Charles he established the first aëroplane factory and constructed the biplanes used by Farman, Delagrange, and Paulhan. On July 25, 1909, he was made chevalier of the Legion of Honor and divided with M. Blériot the Osiris prize of 100,000 francs which was given that year (1909) for the most notable contribution to aëronautics.

Volcán (vōl-kän′). An island in Lake Bombón, southern Luzón, Philippine Islands. It is the seat of Taal volcano. The name is also applied to the volcano itself.

Volsungs. See Volsunga Saga.

Voynich (voi′nich), Mrs. (Ethel Lilian Boole). Born 1864. An English novelist, daughter of the mathematician George Boole. She has written "The Gadfly" (1897), "Jack Raymond" (1901), "Olive Latham" (1904), etc.

Vries (vrēs), Hugo de. Born at Haarlem, Feb. 16, 1848. An eminent Dutch botanist, professor of plant anatomy and physiology in the University of Würzburg. He is noted for his contributions to the theory of evolution and especially for his researches on mutation in plants. He studied at the universities of Leyden, Heidelberg, and Würzburg, and became professor of botany at the University of Amsterdam in 1878, and at the University of Würzburg in 1897. He has published various works on botanical subjects, among them "Eine Methode zur Analyse der Turgorkraft" (1884), "Plasmolytische Studien über die Wand der Vacuolen" (1885), "Leerboek der Plantenphysiologie" (1885), "Intracellulare Pangenesis" (1889), "Monographie der Zwangsdrehungen" (1892), "Die Mutationstheorie" (1900–03), "Species and Varieties" (1905), "Plant Breeding" (1907), etc.

Waals (wäls), Johannes Diederik van der. Born at Leyden, Holland, Nov. 23, 1837. A Dutch physicist, professor in the University of Amsterdam from 1877. He was the originator of the kinetic theory of fluids, announced in 1873. In 1910 he received the Nobel prize for physics.

Wabash College. An institution of learning in Crawfordsville, Indiana, founded in 1832 by four pioneer missionaries and three elders of the Presbyterian Church, and chartered in 1834. It is attended by about 400 students, and has an endowment of about $600,000.

Wace (wās), Henry. Born at London, Dec. 10, 1836. An English scholar, dean of Canterbury from 1903. He was principal of King's College, London, 1883–97, and rector of St. Michael's, Cornhill, London, 1896–1903. With Sir William Smith he edited the "Dictionary of Christian Biography" (1877–87).

Waganda (wä-gän′dä). The most important of the native Bantu tribes of the former kingdom of Uganda, now included in the Uganda Protectorate.

Wagner (väg′ner), Charles. Born in Alsace, Jan. 3, 1852. A Protestant pastor and author. He was graduated at the Sorbonne in 1869; studied theology in Strasburg and Göttingen; and went to preach in Paris in 1882. In 1904 he made a lecture tour of the United States. Translations of his works have been published as "Youth," "The Soul of Things," "By the Fireside," "The Better Way," "The Simple Life," "On Life's Threshold," "The Gospel of Life," "Wayside Talks," etc.

Wainwright (wān′rit), Richard. Born at Washington, D. C., Dec. 17, 1849. An American naval officer, promoted rear-admiral in 1908. He was graduated at the United States Naval Academy in 1868; was executive officer of the Maine when she was blown up in the harbor of Havana; and commanded the Gloucester in the battle of Santiago, July 3, 1898, being engaged with the Spanish destroyers.

Wake (wāk) Island. An island in the Pacific Ocean, situated in lat. 19° 12′ N., long. 167° 35′ E. It belongs to the United States.

Walcott (wâl′kot), Charles Doolittle. Born at New York Mills, N. Y., March 31, 1850. An American geologist and paleontologist, secretary of the Smithsonian Institution 1907–. He has been connected with the United States Geological Survey since 1879; was director of the Survey 1894–1907; was secretary of the Carnegie Institution 1901–05; and has been honorary curator of the department of paleontology in the United States National Museum since 1892. His researches have related chiefly to the stratigraphy and paleontology of the Lower Paleozoic formations.

Waldeck-Rousseau (väl-dek′rö-sō′), Pierre Marie. Born at Rennes, Dec. 2, 1846: died at Paris, Aug. 10, 1904. A French barrister and statesman. He was counsel for de Lesseps in the Panama case; was member of the Chamber of Deputies for Rennes 1879–89; and in 1891 was elected to the Senate. He was minister of the interior under Gambetta 1881–82 and under Ferry 1883–85, and president of the council (premier) and minister of the interior 1899–1902.

Walfish Bay*. The territory of Walfish Bay is a part of Cape Colony. Area, 430 square miles. Population, 997.

Walford (wâl′fȯrd), Mrs. (Lucy Bethia Colquhoun). Born at Portobello, Scotland, April 17, 1845. A British novelist. Her works include "Mr. Smith" (1874), "Pauline" (1877), "The Baby's Grandmother" (1885), "A Mere Child" (1888), "One of Ourselves" (1900), "Charlotte" (1902), "The Stay-at-Homes" (1903), "Leonore Stubbs" (1908), "Recollections of a Scottish Novelist" (1910), etc.

Walker (wâ′kėr), Charles Howard. Born at Boston, Jan. 9, 1857. An American architect. He studied at Boston, New York, and abroad; was a member of an archæological expedition to Asia Minor in 1881; and since 1884 has practised architecture in Boston. In 1889 he became a partner in the firm of Walker and Kimball, who were architects-in-chief of the Omaha Exposition, 1898, and members of the board of architects of the St. Louis Exposition, 1904. In 1894 he was a lecturer at the Lowell Institute, and he has also given lecture courses at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and at Harvard, Yale, and other universities. Since 1902 he has been director of the department of design of the Boston Museum of Fine Arts. He is a member of the National Art Commission, appointed by President Roosevelt in 1909.

Walker (wâ′kėr), Edyth. Born at Hopewell, N. Y., March 27, 1870. An American dramatic soprano. She studied singing at the Dresden Conservatory and made her début at the Gewandhaus, Leipsic. She first appeared in opera, in Vienna, as a contralto, singing Fidès in "Le Prophète." She was then engaged in Leipsic, Brünn, Berlin, Magdeburg, and Vienna, and in 1900 sang at Covent Garden, London. In 1903 she came to America, making her début as Amneris in "Aïda" and remaining for three seasons. Since 1906 she has become a dramatic soprano, appearing at Hamburg, Berlin, and London. She has added the rôles of Aïda, Valentine (in "Les Huguenots"), and Elektra to her repertoire, which already included Donna Elvira, Selika, Fidelio, Brangäne, Venus, Erda, Fricka, and Brunhild.

Walker (wâ′kėr), Frederick. Born at London, May 26, 1840: died at Saint Fillans, Perthshire, Scotland, June 4, 1875. An English painter and illustrator. In 1863 he exhibited his first oil-painting at the Royal Academy, and in 1871 was elected an associate of that institution. Two of his pictures are in the National Gallery.

Walker (wâ′kėr), Henry Oliver. Born at Boston, Mass., May 14, 1843. An American artist, a pupil of Bonnat. He is best known for his mural paintings.

Walker (wâ′kėr), Horatio. Born at Listowel, Canada, 1858. An American painter, the son of an English army officer. He has found his material in Canada, where he has been attracted by the French inhabitants, who have retained much of the character of the peasantry of France. The formation of his style has been most influenced by Millet and Troyon, especially the latter. He was elected a member of the National Academy of Design in New York in 1891, and is also a member of the Royal Institute of Painters in Water-colours in London, and was a member of the Society of American Artists in New York etc.

Walker (wâ′kėr), John Grimes. Born at Hillsborough, N. H., March 20, 1835: died at York Beach, Maine, Sept. 16, 1907. An American naval officer. He was graduated at the Naval Academy, Annapolis, in 1856, and was instructor in mathematics in the academy 1859–60. He was in active service during the Civil War, becoming lieutenant-commander in 1862, commander in 1866, commodore in 1889, and rear-admiral in 1894, retiring in 1897. He was president of the Nicaragua Canal Commission 1897–99, and was appointed president of the Isthmian Canal Commission in 1899.

Wallace*, Alfred Russel. His later works include "Darwinism" (1889), "The Wonderful Century" (1898), "Studies, Scientific and Social" (1900), "Man's Place in the Universe" (1903), "My Life" (1905), "Is Mars Habitable?" (1908), "The World of Life" (1911), etc.

Wallace*, Sir Donald Mackenzie. He was knighted in 1887. He wrote also "Egypt and the Egyptian Question" (1883) and "The Web of Empire" (1902), and edited the tenth edition of the "Encyclopædia Britannica."

Wallace (wol'ās), William. Born at Greenock, July 3, 1860. A Scottish composer. He completed a course in medicine at Glasgow and Vienna before studying music at the Royal Academy in London in 1889. Little of his work has been published. His most important compositions are six symphonic poems for orchestra: "The Passing of Beatrice," "Sister Helen," "Amboss oder Hammer," "Greeting to the New Century," "Sir William Wallace," and "François Villon," which last has been heard in New York. He has written many other important musical works and a book, "On the Threshold of Music."

Wallace (wol'ās), William Vincent. Born at Waterford, Ireland, July 1, 1813: died at Château de Bagen in the Pyrenees, France, Oct. 12, 1865. A violinist and composer. His English operas, "Maritana" (1845) and "Lurline" (1860), were the most successful of his works, though many of his piano pieces were popular at one time.

Wallace Collection, The. A collection of paintings and other works of art at Hertford House, London, presented to the British nation by the will of Lady Wallace (died 1897). It was formed by Francis Charles, third marquis, and Richard, fourth marquis of Hertford, and was willed to and enlarged by Sir Richard Wallace. It is especially famous for its fine examples of French paintings of the eighteenth century, and contains also good Italian paintings (including important works by Canaletto and Francesco Guardi), and Spanish, Dutch, English, and modern French pictures. The collection is especially strong in its examples of the secondary arts of France (Limoges enamels, Sèvres porcelains, snuff-boxes, etc.). There are many miniatures and fine bronzes by French sculptors of the eighteenth century.

Wallis (wol'is) Archipelago. A group of islands in the South Pacific, northeast of Fiji, forming a dependency of New Caledonia. The islands were placed under French protection in 1887. Area, 40 square miles. Population, about 4,500.

Walrus Island. A small islet of the Pribylof group, lying about seven miles off the shore of St. Paul Island. It is a narrow ridge of rock about half a mile in length by a few hundred yards in width, the home of countless sea-birds and once occupied by the walrus as a breeding-ground.

Walter (wâl'tėr), Eugene. Born at Cleveland, Ohio, Nov. 27, 1874. An American playwright. He was at first a journalist, and subsequently engaged in various theatrical enterprises. His plays include "Paid in Full" (1906), "The Wolf" (1907), "The Easiest Way" (1908), "Just a Wife" (1910), "Who 's to Blame?" (1910), and "The Assassin" (1910).

Walter (wâl'tėr), Thomas Ustick. Born at Philadelphia, Sept. 4, 1804: died there, Oct. 30, 1887. An American architect. He designed Girard College, in Philadelphia, one of the finest monuments in America, in 1833, and, by appointment of President Fillmore, superseded Robert Mills as architect of the United States Capitol in Washington, June 10, 1851. To the old building of Charles Bulfinch he added the two wings for the sessions of the Senate and the House of Representatives. He rebuilt the western front, added the library, and in 1855 began the new dome. Suspension of work on the Capitol was ordered in 1861, but the contractors continued until 1865, when the building was completed and Walter retired.

Wapakoneta (wä-pak'ō-nē-tä). The county-seat of Auglaize County, Ohio, 12 miles southwest of Lima. It is in a region abounding in oil and natural gas, and has manufactories of furniture, wheels, cigars, etc. Population, 5,349, (1910).

Warburton (wâr'bėr-tọn), Peter Egerton. Born at Northwich, Cheshire, Aug. 15, 1813: died at Adelaide, Australia, Dec. 16, 1889. A British military officer and Australian explorer. He went to Australia in 1853 and was appointed commissioner of police for South Australia; was colonel commandant of volunteers 1869–72; and 1872–74 led an expedition to open up overland communication between South and Western Australia. See Century Atlas, Map 115.

Ward*, Adolphus William. In 1898 he was Ford lecturer at Oxford. He is one of the editors of the "Cambridge Modern History" and of the "Cambridge History of English Literature."

Ward*, Elizabeth Stuart Phelps. Her later works include "Austin Phelps, a Memoir" (1891), "Chapters From a Life" (1896), "Within the Gates" (1901), "Successors to Mary the First" (1901), "Avery" (1902), "Trixy" (1904), "The Man in the Case" (1906), "Walled In" (1907), "Though Life Do Us Part" (1908), "Jonathan and David" (1909), "The Empty House" (1910), "A Chariot of Fire" (1910), etc.

Ward*, Genevieve (Lucia Genoveva Teresa Ward, Countess Guerbel). She appeared with Sir Henry Irving in "Becket," "King Arthur," "Richard III.," etc. She appeared as the Blind Queen in "The Virgin Goddess" at the Adelphi in 1906, and as Volumnia in "Coriolanus" at the Shakspere Festival at Stratford-on-Avon in 1907.

Ward*, Mrs. Humphry (Mary Augusta Arnold). Her later works include "William Thomas Arnold, Journalist and Historian" (1907), "The Testing of Diana Mallory" (1908), "Marriage à la Mode" (1909), "Canadian Born" (1910), "The Case of Richard Meynell" (serially, 1910–11), etc.

Ward (wârd), James. Born at Hull, Jan. 27, 1843. An English philosophical writer, professor of mental philosophy in the University of Cambridge from 1897. He has written "Naturalism and Agnosticism" (1899), and numerous articles and papers on philosophical topics. In 1902 he was elected a fellow of the British Academy.

Ward*, Lester Frank. His later works include "Psychic Factors of Civilization" (1893), "Outlines of Sociology" (1898), "Applied Sociology" (1906), etc.

Waring (wâr'ing), Edward. Born in 1734: died Aug. 15, 1798. An English mathematician. He studied at Magdalene College, Cambridge, taking his bachelor's degree in 1757, and became Lucasian professor of mathematics at Cambridge in 1760. He took a medical degree at Cambridge in 1767, but was chiefly esteemed for his attainments in mathematics, especially analytical geometry. Among his published works, mostly in Latin, are "Miscellanea Analytica de Æquationibus Algebraicis et Curvarum Proprietatibus" (1762), "Meditationes Algebraicæ" (1770), and "Meditationes Analyticæ" (1776).

Waring (wâr'ing), George Edwin. Born at Poundridge, N. Y., July 4, 1833: died at New York, Oct. 29, 1898. An American sanitary engineer. In 1861 he joined the army; served with distinction through the Civil War; and was mustered out with the rank of colonel. He installed improved methods of drainage and sewerage in many cities, notably in Memphis, Tennessee, after the outbreak of yellow fever in 1878, and the system adopted there, called the "Waring System," has been widely copied; was for several years a member of the National Board of Health; and in 1894 was appointed commissioner of street-cleaning for New York city. In 1898 he was made a member of the commission for improving the sanitary condition of Havana, and during his stay in that city contracted yellow fever, of which he died. Among his published works are "Sanitary Condition of City and Country Dwelling Houses" (1877), "How to Drain a House" (1885), "Modern Methods of Sewage Disposal for Towns" (1894), etc.

Warman (wâr'man), Cy. Born at Greenup, Ill., June 22, 1855. An American author and journalist, best known as a writer of railroad stories. Among his works are "Tales of an Engineer" (1895), "The Express Messenger" (1897), "The Story of the Railroad" (1898), "The White Mail" (1898), "Snow on the Headlight" (1899), "Short Rails" (1900), "Frontier Stories" (1901), "The Last Spike" (1906).

Warren (wor'en). The county-seat of Trumbull County, Ohio, on the Mahoning River, 13 miles northwest of Youngstown. It has manufactories of electrical supplies, automobiles, machinery, lamps, etc. Population, 11,081, (1910).

Warren (wor'en). The county-seat of Warren County, Pennsylvania, at the junction of the Allegheny River and Conewango Creek. Its principal industries are oil-refining and the manufacturing of furniture, steel and iron products, etc. It is the seat of the State Hospital for the Insane. Population, 11,080, (1910).

Warren (wor'en). A town in Bristol County, Rhode Island, on Narragansett Bay, 9 miles southeast of Providence. It has manufactories of twine, cotton goods, etc. Population, 6,585, (1910).

Warren (wor'en), Sir Charles. Born at Bangor, Wales, Feb. 7, 1840. A British general and engineer, commander of the fifth division in the Boer war 1899–1900. He was engaged as commissioner (Griqualand West) and in military operations in South Africa 1876–79; served in the Egyptian campaign in 1882; commanded the Bechuanaland expedition 1884–85; led the troops in the Suakim expedition 1886; and commanded the metropolitan police force (London) 1886–88. He served under General Buller in the campaign for the relief of Ladysmith.

Warren (wor'en), Samuel Prowse. Born at Montreal, Feb. 18, 1841. An American organist and composer. He studied at Berlin 1861–64, and then came to New York, becoming organist of All Souls Church (1866–68), of Grace Church (1868–74, 1876–94), and of Holy Trinity Church (1874–76). He has appeared in recitals throughout the country. His compositions include church music, part-songs, and piano music.

Warwick (wôr'wik or wor'ik). A town including several villages in Kent County, Rhode Island. It is situated on Narragansett Bay and is divided by the Pawtuxet and Providence rivers. It has large cotton manufactures. Population, 26,629, (1910).

Washington (wosh'ing-tọn), Booker Taliaferro. Born near Hale's Ford, Va., about 1858. An Afro-American educator, author, and lecturer. He was born a slave; worked his way through Hampton Institute; and, after teaching and studying for several years, founded (1881) the Tuskegee Institute for the practical training of negroes, the growth and success of which are largely due to his efforts. He is the author of "The Future of the American Negro" (1899), "Sowing and Reaping" (1900), "Up from Slavery," an autobiography (1900), "Character Building" (1902), "The Story of my Life and Work" (1903), "Working with the Hands; Experiences with Industrial Training at Tuskegee" (1904), "Tuskegee and Its People" (1905), a "Life of Frederick Douglass" (1906), "The Negro in Business" (1907), "The Story of the Negro" (1909), "Chapters from my Experience" (1911), etc.

Washington (wosh'ing-tọn), Henry Stephens. Born at Newark, N. J., Jan. 15, 1867. An American petrologist and mining engineer. He is research assistant of the Carnegie Institution. He has published "Chemical Analyses of Igneous Rocks" (1903), "Manual of the Chemical Analysis of Rocks" (1904), "The Roman Comagmatic Region" (1907); with Pirsson, Iddings, and Cross, "The Quantitative Classification of Igneous Rocks" (1903); and numerous scientific papers.

Washington University. A non-sectarian institution of learning at St. Louis, Missouri, chartered in 1853 as Eliot Seminary. The name was changed to Washington Institute, and this became in 1857 Washington University. In addition to the college, the institution comprises a law school (organized in 1867), a school of engineering and architecture (founded in 1870), a school of fine arts (founded in 1879), and a school of botany (founded in 1885). The St. Louis Medical College (founded in 1842) was admitted in 1891, and in 1899 the Missouri Medical College (founded in 1840) was united with it to form the medical department. The Missouri Dental College was admitted in 1892. About 1,000 students attend the university and nearly 1,000 attend the three secondary schools under university control. The endowment is $7,000,000 and the annual net income about $478,000.

Wasielewski (vä-syä-lef'ski), Wilhelm Joseph von. Born at Gross Lessen, near Dantzic, Germany, June 17, 1822: died at Sondershausen, Dec. 13, 1896. A German violinist and musical biographer and historian. He wrote the first biography of Schumann (1858), "Die Violine und ihre Meister" (1869), "Die Violine im 17. Jahrhundert" (1874), "Geschichte der Instrumentalmusik im 16. Jahrhundert" (1878), "Schumanniana" (1883), a biography of Reinecke (1892), and "Aus 70 Jahren. Lebenserinnerungen" (1897).

Waterloo (wâ'tėr-lō). The county-seat of Blackhawk County, Iowa, on the Red Cedar River, 49 miles northwest of Cedar Rapids. It is the commercial center of a stock-raising and agricultural district, and has canneries, foundries, automobile factories, flour-mills, etc. Population, 26,693, (1910).

Waters (wâ'tėrz), Mrs. (Clara Erskine). Born at St. Louis, Aug. 28, 1834. An American author. She married James Hazen Clement (died 1881) and Edwin Forbes Waters (died 1894), publisher of the Boston "Daily Advertiser." She is the author of "Handbook of Legendary and Mythological Art," "Painters, Sculptors, Architects, Engravers, and their Works," "Artists of the Nineteenth Century" (in collaboration with Laurence Hutton), "Stories of Art and Artists," "Venice, the Queen of the Adriatic," "Naples, the City of Parthenope," "Constantinople," "Rome, the Eternal City," "Eleanor Maitland," a novel, and "Women in the Fine Arts."

Watertown (wâ'tėr-toun). The county-seat of Codington County, South Dakota, on the Big Sioux River. It is the trade center of an agricultural and stock-raising region, and has grain-elevators, flour-mills, and various manufactories. Population, 7,010, (1910).

Watrous (wot'rus), Harry Wilson. Born at San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 17, 1857. An American painter. He studied at the Académie Julian and the Atelier Bonnat in Paris; was elected associate of the National Academy of Design in 1894, and a member in 1895; and since 1898 has been corresponding secretary of that institution. He won the Clarke prize at the academy in 1894, and a gold medal at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition in St. Louis in 1904.

Watson (wot'sọn), Henry Brereton Marriott. Born at Caulfield, Melbourne, Australia, Dec. 20, 1863. A British author. He came to England in 1885 and engaged in journalism, becoming assistant editor of "Black and White" and of the "Pall Mall Gazette." He has published many novels and short stories, among which are "Lady Faintheart" (1890), "The Web of the Spider" (1891), "Diogenes of London" (1893), "Galloping Dick" (1896), "The Heart of Miranda" (1897), "The Adventurers" (1898), "The Princess Xenia" (1899), "Chloris of the Island" (1900), "Hurricane Island" (1904), "The Privateers" (1907), "The Castle by the Sea" (1909), and "Alise of Astra" (1910).

Watson*, John: pseudonym Ian Maclaren. His later works are "The Cure of Souls" (1896: Yale lectures on Practical Theology), "A Doctor of the Old School" (1897), "The Potter's Wheel" (1897), "Afterwards, and Other Stories" (1898), "Young Barbarians" (1901), "The Life of the Master" (1901), "The Homely Virtues" (1902), "Our Neighbors" (1903), "God's Message to the Human Soul" (1907: Cole lectures for 1907), "The Scot of the Eighteenth Century" (1907), etc.

Watson (wot'sọn), John. Born at Glasgow, Scotland, Feb. 25, 1847. A Scotch philosophical writer, professor of moral philosophy in Queen's University, Kingston, Canada. In 1872 he was appointed professor of logic, metaphysics, and ethics, and, upon the division of the chair, to his present position. He has published "Kant and his English Critics" (1881), "Schelling's Transcendental Idealism" (1882), "The Philosophy of Kant" (1888), "Comte, Mill, and Spencer" (1895), "Hedonistic Theories" (1895),

"An Outline of Philosophy" (1898), "The Philosophical Basis of Religion" (1907), "The Philosophy of Kant Explained" (1908), etc.

Watson (wot'son), John Crittenden. Born at Frankfort, Ky., Aug. 24, 1842. An American naval officer, promoted rear-admiral in 1899. He was graduated at the United States Naval Academy in 1860; served through the Civil War, taking part in the fighting below New Orleans, the passage of the Vicksburg batteries, the battle of Mobile Bay, etc.; was promoted commodore in 1897; during the war with Spain (1898) commanded the blockading squadron on the north coast of Cuba, May–June; and on June 27 was placed in command of the Eastern Squadron. From June 15, 1899, to April 19, 1900, he was commander-in-chief on the Eastern Station. He retired in 1904.

Watson (wot'son), Thomas Edward. Born in Columbia County, Ga., Sept. 5, 1856. An American politician and historian. He was admitted to the bar in 1875, and was a Democratic member of the Georgia legislature 1882–83, and Populist member of Congress 1891–93. He was nominated for Vice-President at the St. Louis Populist convention which indorsed W. J. Bryan for President in 1896, and was nominated for President by the People's party in 1904 and polled a popular vote of 117,935. He published at Atlanta "The People's Party Paper," in 1905 began the publication of "Tom Watson's Magazine" in New York, and since 1906 has published "Watson's Jeffersonian Magazine" and "The Weekly Jeffersonian." He has also published "The Story of France" (1899), "Napoleon" (1902), "Life and Times of Thomas Jefferson" (1903), "Bethany, a Study and Story of the Old South" (1904), "Life and Speeches" (1908), "Political and Economic Handbook" (1908), "Waterloo" (1908), etc.

Watts (wots), Mrs. (Mary Stanbery). Born in Delaware County, Ohio, Nov. 4, 1868. An American author. Besides short stories contributed to magazines, she has published several novels depicting phases of American life at particular periods: "The Tenants" (1908), "Nathan Burke" (1910), and "The Legacy" (1911).

Watts-Dunton (wots'dun'ton), Walter Theodore. Born at St. Ives, Huntingdon, 1836. An English poet, critic, and novelist. His family's surname is Watts, to which he added in 1896 his mother's name of Dunton. He studied law, and practised it for many years, and has been connected as critic with the London "Examiner" since 1874, and with the "Athenæum" since 1875. He made a special study of the folk-lore and customs of the East Anglian and Welsh gipsies among whom he has lived. He is the author of "Aylwin," a romance (1883), "The Coming of Love," a collection of poems (1897), "The Christmas Dream," a dramatic idyl (1901), "The Renascence of Wonder," a treatise on the romantic movement (1903), and "Studies of Shakespeare" (1903).

Waverly (wā'vėr-li). A village in Tioga County, New York, 15 miles southeast of Elmira. It is in an agricultural region, and is a shipping-point for coal. Pop., 4,855, (1910).

Waxahachie (wak-sā-hach'i). The county-seat of Ellis County, Texas, about 30 miles southwest of Dallas. It is in an agricultural region, and has cotton and lumber interests. Population, 6,205, (1910).

Waycross (wā'krŏs). The county-seat of Ware County, Georgia, 97 miles southwest of Savannah. It is in a sugar-cane and cotton region, and has also lumber interests. Population, 14,485, (1910).

Waynesboro (wānz'bur-ō). A borough in Franklin County, Pennsylvania, 19 miles southwest of Gettysburg. It has manufactories of machinery, boilers, pottery, etc. Population, 7,199, (1910).

Weatherford (weтн'ėr-fōrd). The county-seat of Parker County, Texas, 27 miles west of Fort Worth. It has flour-mills, cotton-mills, etc., and agricultural, lumbering, and cattle-raising interests. It is the seat of Weatherford College and the Texas Female Seminary. Population, 5,074, (1910).

Weatherford (weтн'ėr-fōrd), William. Born about 1780: died 1826. A chief of the Creek Indians, of mixed blood, leader in the Creek war of 1813–14. He attacked Fort Mims, Aug. 30, 1813, and was defeated in the battle of Horseshoe Bend, Jan. 27, 1814, and surrendered to General Jackson.

Webb (web), Sidney. Born at London, July 13, 1859. An English writer on sociology and economics. He was for a time connected with the War Office and the Colonial Office, and is a member of the economic faculty of London University. His works include "Socialism in England" (1890), "The London Programme" (1892), and "London Education" (1904); with his wife, Beatrice Potter, he wrote "The History of Trade Unionism" (1894, 1911), "Industrial Democracy" (1897), "Problems of Modern Industry" (1898), "History of Liquor Licensing" (1903), "The Parish and the County" (1906), "The Manor and the Borough" (1907), "The Break-up of the Poor Law and the Public Organisation of the Labour Market, being the Minority Report of the Poor Law Commission" (1909), "English Poor Law Policy" (1910), "The State and the Doctor" (1910), "The Prevention of Destitution" (1911), etc.

Webb City (web sit'i). A city in Jasper County, Missouri, 5 miles northwest of Joplin. It is the commercial center of a region rich in lead- and zinc-mines, and has iron-works, etc. Population, 11,817, (1910).

Webber (web'ėr), Herbert John. Born at Lawton, Mich., Dec. 27, 1865. An American plant physiologist, expert in plant-breeding and acting director of the College of Agriculture in Cornell University from 1909. He was professor of plant biology there 1906–08, and was pathologist and physiologist in the United States Department of Agriculture 1892–1906.

Webster (web'stėr). A town in Worcester County, Massachusetts, 16 miles southwest of Worcester. It has various manufactures, the products including woolens, shoes, etc. Population, 11,509, (1910).

Webster (web'stėr), Sir Richard Everard, first Baron Alverstone. Born Dec. 22, 1842. An English jurist. He was educated at the Charterhouse and at Trinity College, Cambridge; was called to the bar in 1868; and was made a queen's counsel in 1878. He was knighted in 1885, and created a baronet in 1899 and a baron in 1900. He was Conservative member of the House of Commons for Launceston in 1885 and for the Isle of Wight 1885–1900; was attorney-general 1885, 1886–92, and 1895–1900; and has been lord chief justice of England since 1900.

Webster City (web'stėr sit'i). The county-seat of Hamilton County, Iowa, 20 miles east of Fort Dodge. It is in an agricultural region, and has railroad shops, brick- and tile-works, etc. Population, 5,208, (1910).

Weelkes (wēlkz), Thomas. Born probably between 1570 and 1580: died before 1641. An English madrigal writer. In 1600 he was organist of Winchester College, and in 1608 organist of Chichester Cathedral.

Weems (wēmz), Mason Locke. Born at Dumfries, Va., about 1760: died at Beaufort, S. C., May 23, 1825. An American clergyman and author. He studied theology in London and took orders in the Protestant Episcopal Church, and was for several years rector of Pohick Church, near Mount Vernon, Virginia, of which Washington was a member. He is best known for his "Life of Washington" (published as a pamphlet in 1800, and enlarged in later editions), which is responsible for many of the popular anecdotes about Washington, including that of the cherry-tree and the hatchet. He published a number of tracts which became very popular, among them "The Drunkard's Looking-Glass," "God's Revenge Against Murder," and "Hymen's Recruiting Sergeant"; and he was the author of lives of General Francis Marion, Benjamin Franklin, William Penn, etc.

Weierstrass (vī'er-strās), Karl. Born at Ostenfelde, in Westphalia, Oct. 31, 1815: died at Berlin, Feb. 19, 1897. A noted German mathematician, professor of mathematics in the University of Berlin from 1864. He is best known from his studies on the theory of functions.

Weingartner (vīn'gärt-ner), Paul Felix. Born at Zara, Dalmatia, June 2, 1863. A noted German conductor and composer. He was conductor at the Royal Opera in Berlin 1891–98; became conductor of the Kaim concerts in Munich in 1898; and in 1907 was appointed director of the Royal Opera in Vienna. He has composed two symphonies, symphonic poems, songs, and the operas "Sakuntala" (1884), "Malawika" (1886), "Genesius" (1893), and "Orestes," a trilogy (1902).

Welch (welch), William Henry. Born at Norfolk, Conn., April 8, 1850. An American pathologist and bacteriologist, professor of pathology in Johns Hopkins University from 1884 and pathologist of Johns Hopkins Hospital (Baltimore) from 1889. Among his publications are "The General Pathology of Fever" (1888) and numerous scientific papers.

Wellesley (welz'li). A town in Norfolk County, Massachusetts, 13 miles southwest of Boston. It is the seat of Wellesley College (which see). Population, 5,413, (1910).

Wellington (wel'ing-ton). The county-seat of Sumner County, Kansas, 30 miles southwest of Wichita. It is the commercial center of an agricultural region, and has grain-elevators, flour-mills, etc. Population, 7,034, (1910).

Wellington Club. A London club, at 1 Grosvenor Place, established in 1885 for social purposes. It has a membership of 1,400.

Wellman (wel'man), Walter. Born at Mentor, Ohio, Nov. 3, 1858. An American journalist and arctic explorer. He led an expedition to Spitzbergen in 1894 and in 1898–99 one to Franz Joseph Land, attaining lat. 82° 45′ N. His voyage to the pole in a dirigible balloon, planned in 1906, but deferred to 1907, had to be abandoned through unfavorable weather conditions. Another attempt was made in August, 1909, but it failed through an accident to the balloon soon after starting. He left Atlantic City, New Jersey, Oct. 16, 1910, in an attempt to cross the Atlantic Ocean in a dirigible balloon with a crew of 5 men, but was rescued in mid-ocean.

Wells (welz), Herbert George. Born at Bromley, Sept. 21, 1866. An English writer of romances dealing chiefly with imaginary future scientific results. Among the best known of his works are "The Time Machine" (1895), "The War of the Worlds" (1898), "Anticipations" (1901), "The Food of the Gods" (1904), "Kipps" (1905), "In the Days of the Comet" (1906), "New Worlds for Old" (1908), "First and Last Things" (1908), "Tono-Bungay" (1909), "The New Machiavelli" (1911), "The Country of the Blind" (1911), etc.

Wellston (wel'stŏn). A city in Jackson County, Ohio, 28 miles southeast of Chillicothe. It has coal-mining interests and cement-works, foundries, etc. Population, 6,875, (1910).

Wellsville (welz'vil). A village in Allegany County, New York, on the Genesee River, 20 miles southwest of Hornell. It has manufactories of steam-engines, lumber, leather, etc. Population, 4,382, (1910).

Wellsville (welz'vil). A city in Columbiana County, Ohio, on the Ohio River. It has iron- and steel-works, railroad shops, boiler-works, etc. Population, 7,769, (1910).

Wendell (wen'dėl), Barrett. Born at Boston, Mass., Aug. 23, 1855. An American man of letters, professor of English in Harvard University from 1898. He was instructor in English at Harvard 1880–88 and assistant professor 1888–98; and was Clark lecturer at Trinity College, Cambridge, England, 1902–03, and lecturer at the Sorbonne and other French universities 1904–05. His works include "The Duchess Emilia" (1885), "Rankell's Remains" (1886), "Cotton Mather, the Puritan Priest" (1891), "English Composition" (1891), "Stelligeri, and Other Essays Concerning America" (1893), "William Shakspere: a Study in Elizabethan Literature" (1894), "A Literary History of America" (1900), "Raleigh in Guiana," "Rosamond," and "A Christmas Masque" (1902), "The Temper of the Seventeenth Century in English Literature" (1904), "History of Literature in America" (1904: with Chester N. Greenough), "The France of To-day" (1907), "The Privileged Classes" (1908), etc.

Werner (ver'ner), E. The pseudonym of Elisabeth Bürstenbinder.

West Allis (west al'is). A city in Milwaukee County, Wisconsin, incorporated in 1906. It has manufactories of machines, chains, etc. Population, 6,645, (1910).

West Berwick (west bėr'wik). A borough in Columbia County, Pennsylvania, incorporated in 1902. Population, 5,512, (1910).

Westboro (west'bur-ō). A town in Worcester County, Massachusetts, 10 miles east of Worcester. It has manufactories of shoes, carpets, leather, etc., and is the seat of a hospital for the insane. Population, 5,446, (1910).

Westbrook (west'brūk). A city in Cumberland County, Maine, 6 miles northwest of Portland. It has silk-mills, paper-mills, etc. Population, 8,281, (1910).

Westcott) west'kot), Edward Noyes. Born at Syracuse, N. Y., Sept. 24, 1847: died there, March 31, 1898. An American author. His only work, "David Harum" (1898), published after his death, achieved wide popularity.

Westermarck (ves'ter-märk), Edward Alexander. Born at Helsingfors, Finland, Nov. 20, 1862. A Finnish anthropologist, professor of sociology in the University of London 1907–. He was connected with the faculty of the University of Finland (Helsingfors) 1890–97. His publications include "The Origin of Human Marriage" (1889), "The History of Human Marriage" (1891), "The Origin and Development of the Moral Ideas" (Vol. I., 1906; Vol. II., 1908), etc.

Western Australia*. It is now a state of the Commonwealth of Australia. It is represented in the Federal Parliament by 6 senators and 5 representatives.

Western Reserve University. A non-sectarian institution of learning situated at Cleveland, Ohio. It consists of Adelbert College (formerly Western Reserve College, founded at Hudson, Ohio, in 1826, and removed to Cleveland in 1882), a college for women (established in 1888), a graduate school (established 1892), a medical department (founded in 1843 and formerly known as Cleveland Medical College), a law school (opened in 1892), a library school (opened in 1904), a dental school, and a school of pharmacy (formerly the Cleveland School of Pharmacy). The total attendance is about 1,300, the faculty and officers 278, and the resources $4,500,000.

Westfield (west'fēld). A town in Union County, New Jersey, incorporated in 1903. It is 7 miles southwest of Elizabeth, and is chiefly residential. Population, 6,420, (1910).

West Hoboken (west hō'bō-ken). A town in Hudson County, New Jersey, adjoining Hoboken and Jersey City. Its chief industry is the manufacture of silk. Other manufactures are artificial flowers, braid, buttons, sashes, doors, etc. Population, 35,403, (1910).

Westinghouse (wes'ting-hous), George. Born at Central Bridge, N. Y., Oct. 6, 1846. A noted American inventor and manufacturer, best known for his inventions (1868) of an air-brake extensively used on railways, and of automatic railway signals. He has also made important improvements and applications of electrical machinery.

West New York (west nū yôrk). A town in Hudson County, New Jersey, on the Hudson River, between Union and Guttenberg. It has powder- and rubber-factories, silk-mills, etc. Population, 13,560, (1910).

West Orange (west or'anj). A town in Essex County, New Jersey, adjacent to Orange. It is a residential place, and contains Llewellyn Park. The Edison Phonograph and Electrical Works are here. Population, 10,980, (1910).

Westralia (wes-trā'liă). A popular abbreviation of Western Australia.

West Springfield (west spring'fēld). A town in Hampden County, Massachusetts, on the Connecticut River, opposite Springfield. It is in an agricultural district, and has railroad shops, paper-mills, cigar-factories, etc. Population, 9,224, (1910).

West Tampa (west tam'pă). A city in Hillsboro County, Florida, adjacent to Tampa. Population, 8,258, (1910).

Weyler y Nicolau*, Valeriano, Marquis of Teneriffe. He was minister of war in the Liberal government under Sagasta and was reappointed in December, 1906. He completed a volume of memoirs in 1909.

Weyman*, Stanley John. His later works include "From the Memoirs of a Minister of France" (1895), "The Red Cockade" (1895), "The Man in Black" (1896), "For the Cause" (1897), "Shrewsbury" (1897), "The Castle Inn" (1898), "Sophia" (1900), "Count Hannibal" (1901), "In Kings' Byways" (1902), "The Long Night" (1903), "The Abbess of Vlaye" (1904), "Starvecrow Farm" (1905), "Chippinge Borough" (1906), "Laid up in Lavender" (1907), and "The Wild Geese" (1908).

Weymann (wī'man), Charles Terres. Born in Haiti, in 1890. An American aviator. He entered and won the Gordon-Bennett International Cup Race of 1911, with a 100-horse-power Nieuport monoplane, covering 93.2 miles in 1 hr. 11 min. 36.2 sec., a rate of 78 miles an hour, and a world's record. The race was flown at Eastchurch, England, July 1, 1911. Weymann made numerous flights in 1910, in one of which he flew, with a passenger, from Paris to Clermont-Ferrand, a distance of 280 miles.

Wharton (hwâr'ton), Mrs. (Edith Newbold Jones). Born at New York, 1862. An American novelist. She is the author of "Decoration of Houses" (1897: with O. Codman), "The Greater Inclination" (1899), "The Touchstone" (1900), "Crucial Instances" (1901), "The Valley of Decision" (1902), "Sanctuary" (1903), "The Descent of Man, and Other Stories" (1904), "The House of Mirth" (1905), "Italian Villas and their Gardens" (1904), "Italian Backgrounds" (1905), "Fruit of the Tree" (1907), "A Motor-flight Through France" (1908), "Artemis to Actæon, and Other Verse" (1909), "Tales of Men and Ghosts" (1910), etc.

Wheeler (hwē'lèr), Benjamin Ide. Born at Randolph, Mass., July 15, 1854. An American classical scholar, president of the University of California from 1899. He was graduated at Brown University in 1875; was instructor there 1879–81, and at Harvard 1885–86; was professor of comparative philology and later of Greek in Cornell University 1886–99; and was professor of Greek in the American School of Classical Studies at Athens 1895–96. Among his works are "Introduction to the History of Language" (1890) and "Life of Alexander the Great" (1900).

Wheeler (hwē'lèr), William Morton. Born at Milwaukee, Wis., March 19, 1865. An American naturalist, professor of economic entomology at Harvard University from 1908. He studied at Clark University, Würzburg, Liège, and the Zoölogical Station at Naples; was successively instructor and assistant professor of embryology in the University of Chicago 1892–99; was professor of zoölogy in the University of Texas 1899–1903; and curator of invertebrate zoology in the American Museum of Natural History (New York) 1903–08. His researches and publications have been concerned chiefly with insects, comparative psychology, and cytology.

Wheelwright (hwēl'rīt), Edmund March. Born at Roxbury, Mass., Sept. 14, 1854. An American architect. He was city architect of Boston 1891–95, and consulting architect of the Cambridge Bridge, the Hartford Bridge, the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, and the Cleveland Art Museum. He has written "School Architecture" (1901).

Whipple (hwip'l), Henry Benjamin. Born at Adams, Jefferson County, N. Y., Feb. 15, 1822: died at Faribault, Minn., Sept. 16, 1901. An American clergyman, first Episcopal bishop of Minnesota 1859–1901. He was rector of Zion Church in Rome, New York, 1850–57, and of the Church of the Holy Communion in Chicago 1857–59. He was interested in educational work, especially among the Indians, and took an active part in the reform and direction of the conduct of Indian affairs by the national government. He published "Lights and Shadows of a Long Episcopate" (1899), etc.

Whipple (hwip'l), William. Born at Kittery, Maine, Jan. 14, 1730: died at Portsmouth, N. H., Nov. 28, 1785. An American statesman, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence. He was a member of the provincial congress of New Hampshire in 1775, and of the Continental Congress 1776–79; was general of one of the brigades of New Hampshire troops in 1777, serving with distinction at the battles of Stillwater and Saratoga; was one of the two representatives of General Gates who arranged the terms of capitulation at the surrender of Burgoyne; and assisted General Sullivan at the siege of Newport in 1778.

White*, Andrew Dickson. His later works include "Democracy and Education" (1891), "A History of the Warfare of Science with Theology in Christendom" (1896), "The Warfare of Humanity with Unreason" (1903–1907), "Autobiography" (1905), and "Seven Great Statesmen" (1910).

White (hwīt), Charles David. Born at Palmyra, N. Y., July 1, 1862. An American paleobotanist. He has been connected, as assistant paleontologist, assistant geologist, and geologist, with the United States Geological Survey from 1886, and is associate curator of paleobotany at the Smithsonian Institution. His researches have been concerned chiefly with Paleozoic fossil plants and geological climate.

White (hwīt), Edward Douglass. Born in the parish of Lafourche, La., Nov. 3, 1845. An American jurist. He served in the Confederate army during a part of the Civil War; was admitted to the (Louisiana) bar in 1868; was State senator 1874–78; was associate justice of the Supreme Court of Louisiana 1878–91; was United States senator (Democratic) from Louisiana 1891–94; and was associate justice of the United States Supreme Court 1894–1910, and chief justice Dec., 1910–.

White (hwīt), Sir George Stuart. Born July 6, 1835. A British field-marshal, noted for the defense of Ladysmith, Natal, against the Boers from Nov. 2, 1899, to Feb. 28, 1900. He served in the Afghan war 1879–80, in the Nile expedition 1884–85, and in Burma 1885–89, and was commander-in-chief in India 1893–97. During the Boer war, 1899–1900, he commanded the troops in Natal. He was governor of Gibraltar 1900–04.

White (hwīt), Henry. Born at Baltimore, Md., March 29, 1850. An American diplomatist. He was secretary of the American legation at Vienna 1883–84; second secretary (1884–86) and secretary (1886–93) of legation at London; secretary of embassy at London 1897–1905; and ambassador to Italy 1905–07 and to France 1907–09.

White (hwīt), Horace. Born at Colebrook, N. H., Aug. 10, 1834. An American journalist and author. He became city editor of the Chicago "Evening Journal" in 1854 and agent of the Associated Press in 1855; joined the editorial staff of the Chicago "Tribune" in 1857; accompanied Abraham Lincoln in his campaign against Stephen A. Douglas in 1858; and was Washington correspondent (1861–65), and editor and one of the proprietors of the Chicago "Tribune" (1865–74). In 1884 he purchased an interest in the New York "Evening Post" and became president of the company and a member of the editorial staff, succeeding E. L. Godkin as its chief editor in 1899 and retiring in 1903. He is the author of "Money and Banking, Illustrated by American History" (1895), and the translator, from the Greek, of Appian's history of Rome (1899).

White (hwīt), Stewart Edward. Born at Grand Rapids, Mich., March 12, 1873. An American novelist. His works include "The Westerners" (1901), "The Claim Jumpers" (1901), "The Blazed Trail" (1902), "Conjuror's House" (1903), "The Forest" (1903), "The Magic Forest" (1903), "Blazed Trail Stories and Stories of the Wild Life" (1904), "The Mountains" (1904), "The Silent Places" (1904), "The Pass" (1906), "The Mystery" (1907: with S. H. Adams), "Arizona Nights" (1907), "Camp and Trail" (1907), "The Riverman" (1908), "The Rules of the Game" (1910), "The Cabin" (1911), etc.

White (hwīt) William Allen. Born at Emporia, Kansas, in 1868. An American editor and author. He is the owner and editor of the Emporia "Gazette" (from 1894). His publications include "The Real Issue, and Other Stories" (1896), "The Court of Boyville" (1899), "Stratagems and Spoils" (1901), "In Our Town" (1906), "The Old Order Changeth" (1910), etc.

Whiteing (hwī'ting), Richard. Born at London, July 27, 1840. An English author and journalist. He has been writer and correspondent for many of the leading English newspapers. Among his publications are "No. 5 John Street" (1899), "Paris of To-day" (1900), "The Yellow Van" (1903), "Ring in the New" (1906), "Little People" (1909), etc.

White Pope, The. The head of the Roman Catholic Church, as distinguished from the Black Pope and the Red Pope.

White Rose. The emblem of the house of York in the Wars of the Roses (which see).

Whiting (hwī'ting). A city in Lake County, Indiana, on Lake Michigan, 15 miles southeast of Chicago. Population, 6,587, (1910).

Whitman (hwit'man). A town in Plymouth County, Massachusetts, 21 miles southeast of Boston. It has boot- and shoe-factories, tack-factories, etc. Population, 7,292, (1910).

Whitman (hwit'man), Charles Otis. Born at Woodstock, Maine, Dec. 14, 1842: died Dec. 6, 1910. An American zoölogist, head of the department of zoölogy of the University of Chicago 1892–1910. He was professor of zoölogy in the University of Tokio 1880–81; director of the marine biological laboratory at Woods Hole 1888–1908; and professor of zoölogy in Clark University 1889–92. In 1887 he founded the "Journal of Morphology." He also published papers upon various biological topics.

Whitney (hwit'ni), Myron William. Born at Ashby, Mass., Sept. 5, 1835: died at Sandwich, Mass., Sept. 20, 1910. An American bass singer. He first appeared in oratorio in Boston in 1858, and sang frequently in concert and oratorio in America and Great Britain. In 1879 he began to sing in light opera, and was also with the American Opera Company in serious opera 1886–87.

Whyte (hwit), Violet. A pseudonym of Mrs. Stannard.

Wichita Falls (wich'i-tâ fâlz). The county-seat of Wichita County, Texas, on the Wichita River, about 100 miles northwest of Fort Worth. Population, 8,200, (1910).

Wicked Bible. An edition of the Bible, printed in 1631, in which the word not is omitted from the seventh commandment. A copy survives in the Bodleian.

Wickersham (wik'ėr-sham), George Woodward. Born at Pittsburg, Pa., Sept. 19, 1858. An American lawyer, attorney-general of the United States from 1909. He was graduated at the University of Pennsylvania in 1880, and practised law in Pittsburg until 1882 and in New York until 1909.

Widor (wē-dōr'), Charles Marie. Born at Lyons, Feb. 22, 1845. A noted French organist and composer, organist at St.-Sulpice, Paris, from 1860. In 1890 he became professor of the organ at the Conservatory and in 1896 professor of counterpoint and fugue. His best known works are ten symphonies for the organ and the ballet "La Korrigane" (1880). He has written operas and chamber-music.

Wiggin, Kate Douglas. See ★ Riggs.

Wiju (wē-jö'). A town of Korea, situated near the mouth of the Yalu River. In the Russo-Japanese war General Kuroki's army effected from this point the passage of the river and defeated the Russians under General Sassulitch, May 1, 1904.

Wildenbruch*, Ernst von. His later writings include the dramatic works "Meister Balzer" (1893), "Jungfer Immergrün" (1896), "Der Junge von Hemmersdorf" (1896), "Heinrich und Heinrichs Geschlecht" (1895), "Willehalm" (1897), "Gewitternacht" (1899), "Die Tochter des Erasmus" (1900), "König Laurin" (1902), "Die Lieder des Euripides" (1905), and "Die Rabensteinerin" (1907). He wrote also many poems and romances, among them "Vionville" (1874), "Sedan" (1875), "Lieder und Gesänge" (1877), "Der Meister von Tanagra" (1880), "Novellen" (1883), "Kindertränen" (1884), "Lieder und Balladen" (1884), "Neue Novellen" (1885), "Humoresken" (1886), "Der Astronom" (1887), "Franceska von Rimini" (1892), "Eifernde Liebe" (1893), "Das edle Blut" (1893), "Schwester-Seele" (1894), "Claudias Garten" (1896), "Tiefe Wasser" (1898), "Unter der Geissel" (1901), "Vize-Mama" (1902), "Semiramis" (1904), "Das schwarze Holz" (1905), and "Lukrezia" (1907).

Wilder (wil'dėr), Burt Green. Born at Boston, Mass., Aug. 11, 1841. An American comparative anatomist, professor of neurology and vertebrate zoölogy in Cornell University from 1867. He has published "What Young People Should Know" (1874), "Anatomical Technology" (1882), "Health Notes for Students" (1890), etc.

Wiles (wilz), Irving Ramsay. Born at Utica, N. Y., 1861. An American painter. He is a son of Lemuel Maynard Wiles (1826–1905), a painter of note, from whom he received his earliest instruction. Later he studied under Carroll Beckwith and William M. Chase in America, and with Carolus Duran in Paris. He has exhibited many genre pictures and portraits, and is a member of the National Academy of Design, etc.

Wiley (wī'li), Harvey Washington. Born near Kent, Ind., Oct. 18, 1844. An American chemist, chief chemist of the United States Department of Agriculture from 1883, and professor of agricultural chemistry in the George Washington University (Washington, D. C.) from 1899. He was State chemist of Indiana 1874–83. His publications include "Principles and Practice of Agricultural Chemistry" (1894–97), "Foods and Their Adulteration" (1907), and numerous papers and government bulletins.

Wilkins*, Mary Eleanor (Mrs. Charles Manning Freeman). Her later works include "Madelon" (1896), "Jerome; a Poor Man" (1897), "Silence, and Other Stories" (1898), "The Jamesons" (1899), "The Love of Parson Lord, and Other Stories" (1900), "The Heart's Highway" (1900), "Understudies" (1901), "Six Trees" (1903), "The Wind in the Rose Bush" (1903), "Doc' Gordon" (1906), "By the Light of the Soul" (1907), "Fair Lavinia and Others" (1907), "The Shoulders of Atlas" (1908), etc.

Wilkinsburg (wil'kinz-bėrg). A borough in Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, a residential suburb of Pittsburgh, seven miles distant from that city. Population, 18,924, (1910).

Willard (wil'ärd), Mrs. (Emma Hart). Born at Berlin, Conn., Feb. 23, 1787: died at Troy, N. Y., April 15, 1870. An American educator. She opened a school for girls in Middlebury, Vermont, in 1814; and one in Waterford, New York, in 1819, which was removed to Troy, New York, in May, 1821, and was carried on under her management until 1838. This school, known as the "Troy Female Seminary," is now carried on under the name of the "Emma Willard School." She wrote the hymn "Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep" (1830), "Journal and Letters from France and Great Britain" (1833), and many educational works. Her fame rests on the fact that she was one of the pioneer educators of women in America.

Willard (wil'ärd), Josiah Flynt: pseudonym Josiah Flynt. Born at Appleton, Wis., Jan. 23, 1869: died at Chicago, Jan. 20, 1907. An American author. He studied at the University of Berlin 1890–95, and afterward traveled through several civilized countries in the disguise of a tramp, studying social conditions. He published "Tramping with Tramps" (1899), "Notes of an Itinerant Policeman" (1900), "The World of Graft" (1901), "The Little Brother" (1902), "The Rise of Ruderick Clowd" (1903), etc.

William Penn Charter School. A school for boys in Philadelphia, founded in 1689 and chartered first by William Penn's lieutenant-governor, Markham, in 1698, and by Penn himself in 1701, on the same day (Oct. 25) on which he chartered Philadelphia. Other charters were issued in 1708 and 1711. The school is attended by about 500 students.

Williams (wil'yamz), Sir George. Born 1821: died at London, Nov. 6, 1905. The founder (1844) and president, in Great Britain, of the Young Men's Christian Association. He was knighted in 1894.

Williams (wil'yamz), George Huntington. Born at Utica, N. Y., Jan. 28, 1856: died there, July 12, 1894. An American petrologist, professor of inorganic geology in Johns Hopkins University 1892–94. He was graduated at Amherst College in 1878; studied at Göttingen and Heidelberg; and became an associate professor in Johns Hopkins University in 1885. He published "Elements of Crystallography" (1890), and various technical papers.

Williams (wil'yamz), John Sharp. Born at Memphis, Tenn., July 30, 1854. An American lawyer and statesman. He studied at the University of Virginia and at that of Heidelberg; removed to Mississippi in 1878; was a (Democratic) member of Congress from that State 1893–1909; and was senator 1911–.

Willis (wil'is), Bailey. Born at Cornwall, N. Y., May 31, 1857. An American scientist, geologist of the United States Geological Survey from 1884. He has been engaged in exploration in Eastern Asia for the Carnegie Institution 1903–, and was lecturer in geology at the University of Chicago 1909.

Williston (wil'is-ton), Samuel Wendell. Born at Boston, Mass., July 10, 1852. An American paleontologist, professor in the University of Chicago from 1902. He was professor of geology and anatomy in the University of Kansas 1890–1902.

Wilmerding (wil'mėr-ding). A borough in Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, 12 miles southeast of Pittsburgh. It has machine-shops and foundries. Population, 6,133, (1910).

Wilson (wil'son), Sir Arthur Knyvet. Born March 4, 1842. A British naval officer, admiral of the fleet from 1907. He served in the Crimean war, the Chinese war of 1865, the Egyptian campaign of 1882, and the Sudan campaign of 1884. He was comptroller of the navy 1897–1901, and commanded the Channel Squadron 1901–03.

Wilson (wil'son), Henry Lane. Born at Crawfordsville, Ind., Nov. 3, 1857. An American diplomatist. He was a lawyer and banker in Spokane, Washington, 1885–96. He was minister to Chile 1897–1905, and to Belgium 1905–09, and was appointed ambassador to Mexico in 1909.

Wilson (wil'son), James. Born in Ayrshire, Scotland, Aug. 16, 1835. An American cabinet officer. He came to the United States in 1852; was a member of the Iowa Assembly 1867–69, and during his last term was speaker; was Republican member of Congress 1873–77 and 1883–85; was director of the Agricultural Experiment Station at Ames, Iowa, 1890–97; was professor of agriculture in the Iowa State College 1891–97, and was secretary of agriculture 1897–.

Wilson*, Woodrow. His later works include "Mere Literature, and Other Essays" (1896), "George Washington" (1897), "History of the American People" (1902); "Constitutional Government in the United States" (1908), "Free Life" (1908), etc.

Winchell (win'chel), Newton Horace. Born at Northeast, Dutchess County, N. Y., Dec. 17, 1839. An American geologist and mineralogist, head of the Geological Survey of the State of Minnesota 1872–1900. He has published numerous papers on Pleistocene and Archæan geology. In 1888 he established the "American Geologist" and edited it for eighteen years.

Winchendon (win'chen-don). A town in Worcester County, Massachusetts, 15 miles northwest of Fitchburg. It has manufactories of machinery, cotton goods, hardware, etc. Population, 5,678, (1910).

Winchester (win'ches-tėr). A town in Litchfield County, Connecticut. It includes Winsted borough. Population, 8,679, (1910).

Winchester (win'ches-tėr). The county-seat of Clark County, Kentucky, 18 miles southeast of Lexington. It is in an agricultural region, and has flour-mills, lumber-mills, etc. It is the seat of the Kentucky Wesleyan College. Population, 7,156, (1910).

Winchester (win'ches-tėr), A town in Middlesex County, Massachusetts, 8 miles northwest of Boston. It is a residential place, but has manufactories of machinery, leather, etc. A State aviary and a home for aged people are located here. Population, 9,309, (1910).

Windber (wind'bėr). A borough in Somerset County, Pennsylvania, incorporated in 1900. Coal-mining is its principal industry. Population, 8,013, (1910).

Windy City, The. A nickname of Chicago.

Winfield (win'fēld). The county-seat of Cowley County, Kansas, 37 miles southeast of Wichita, near the Wichita Game Preserve. It is the trade center of a stock-raising and agricultural district, and has flour-mills, machine-shops, etc. It is the seat of St. John's Lutheran and the Southwest Kansas colleges, and of the State School for Feeble-minded Youth. Population, 6,700, (1910).

Winston (win'ston). A city, the capital of Forsyth County, North Carolina. It is situated in the south-central part of the county, contiguous to Salem, the community being known as Winston Salem. The chief industries of Winston are the manufacture of tobacco, flour, cotton and woolen goods, furniture, vehicles, etc. Population, 17,167, (1910).

Winter*, William. His later works include "Other Days" (1908), "Old Friends" (1909), "Over the Border" (1911), etc.

Winthrop (win'throp). A town in Suffolk County, Massachusetts, occupying a peninsula in Massachusetts Bay, 4 miles northeast of Boston. It is a residential place. Population, 10,132, (1910).

Winton (win'ton). A borough in Lackawanna County, Pennsylvania, 7 miles northeast of Scranton. Coal-mining is its chief industry. Population, 5,280, (1910).

Wise (wiz), Isaac Mayer. Born at Steingrub, Bohemia, March 29, 1819: died at Cincinnati, Ohio, March 26, 1900. A Jewish rabbi and editor. He emigrated to the United States in 1846, and was rabbi at Albany and Cincinnati. He was the leader of the Jewish reform party in the United States, and the leading spirit in founding its three main organizations, the Union of American Hebrew Congregations, the Hebrew Union College, and the Central Conference of American Rabbis. He edited "The American Israelite," and issued numerous publications.

Wister (wis'tėr), Owen. Born at Philadelphia, Pa., July 14, 1860. An American author, best known for his stories of Western life. Among his works are "Red Men and White" (1896), "Lin McLean" (1897), "The Jimmyjohn Boss, and Other Stories" (1900), a biography of Ulysses S. Grant (1901), "The Virginian" (1902), "Philosophy 4" (1903), "Lady Baltimore" (1906), and "Members of the Family" (1911).

Witte (vit'e), Count Sergius (Sergiei Julievitch). Born at Tiflis, June 29, 1849. A Russian statesman. He was graduated at the Imperial New University at Odessa in 1870. As an official of the southwestern railways he rendered great service to Russia in the Russo-Turkish war in 1878, and after holding various administrative offices in connection with the Russian railway systems was appointed in February, 1892, minister of ways of communication, and was minister of finance 1892–1903. To his efforts is largely due the completion of the Trans-Siberian Railway. He was appointed secretary of state in 1896, actual privy councilor in 1899, and president of the committee of ministers in 1903. In 1905 he was sent to the United States to negotiate with Japan the terms of peace which were formulated in the treaty of Portsmouth. In October, 1905, the emperor intrusted him with the forming of the new cabinet. He resigned the premiership, May 2, 1906, and was appointed a member of the Council of the Empire, May 11, 1906. He has published "Principles of Railway Tariffs" (1884).

Wofford (wof'ōrd) College. A college for men, at Spartanburg, South Carolina, founded by a bequest of $100,000 from the Rev. Benjamin Wofford in 1850 and opened in 1854. It is under the direction of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

Wolf (vōlf), Hugo. Born at Windischgratz, Austria, March 13, 1860: died at Vienna, Feb. 22, 1903. A noted Austrian composer, chiefly of songs. He lived mostly in Vienna in poverty and privation, and died insane. Not till after his death were his songs, about 175 in number, generally known. He also composed the opera "Der Corregidor" (1896), and left an unfinished opera, "Manuel Venegas." A symphonic poem, "Penthesilea," an "Italian Serenade" for a small orchestra (also for a string quartet), and a string quartet, as well as several choruses, have attracted attention.

Wolff*, Sir Henry Drummond. He was ambassador extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary at Madrid 1892–1900. His memoirs, "Rambling Recollections," appeared in 1908.

Wolf-Ferrari (vōlf'fer-rä'rē), Ermanno. Born at Venice, Jan. 12, 1876. An Italian composer. He studied composition with Rheinberger in Munich 1893–95. He was director of the Venetian conservatory (Liceo Benedetto Marcello) 1902–09. His works include the operas "La Sulamita" (1889), "Cenerentola" (1900: given later in Germany as "Aschenbrödel"), "Le Donne curiose" (1903: after Goldini's comedy), "Der vier Grobiane" (1906), "Suzannen's Geheimniss," and "Der Schmuck der Madonna" (1908). A choral work, "La Vita Nuova" (1903: after Dante), given in New York by the Oratorio Society, first brought his name before the American public. He has also written chamber music.

Wolverene State. A nickname of the State of Michigan.

Wolverhampton, Viscount. See Fowler, Sir Henry Hartley.*

Woman's Christian Temperance Union, National. A society organized in Cleveland, Ohio, in 1874. It has 40 distinct departments of work in the United States, and the 10,000 local unions which comprise it have a membership and following (including the children's societies) of half a million. The World's Woman's Christian Temperance Union was founded by Frances E. Willard in 1883. It has auxiliaries in more than 50 countries and provinces. The badge is a white ribbon. Abbreviated W. C. T. U.

Won-san. See Yuen-san.*

Wood*, Sir Henry Evelyn. He was adjutant-general of the Second Army Corps District 1901–05. He has written "The Crimea in 1854–94," "Cavalry at Waterloo," "Achievements of Cavalry," "From Midshipman to Field-Marshal" (1906), "The Revolt in Hindustan" (1908).

Wood (wûd), Sir Henry Joseph. Born at London, March 3, 1870. An English conductor. He began in minor English opera companies. In 1895 he instituted the first series of promenade concerts in Queen's Hall, London. He was knighted Jan. 1, 1911.

Wood (wûd), Leonard. Born at Winchester, N. H., Oct. 9, 1860. An American soldier, appointed major-general in the United States army in 1903. He was graduated at the Medical School of Harvard University in 1884; entered the army as lieutenant and assistant surgeon in 1886; and served in the West in the campaign against Geronimo in 1886. At the beginning of the war with Spain (1898) he recruited, and was appointed colonel of, the "Rough Riders" (First United States Volunteer Cavalry); served in the Santiago campaign (Las Guasimas and San Juan Hill); and was promoted brigadier-general and then major-general of volunteers. He was military governor of Santiago, July, 1898,–December, 1899, and of Cuba, December, 1899,–May, 1902; was sent to the Philippines in 1903, where he was placed in command of the department of Mindanao; was governor of Moro province 1903–06; was commander of the Philippines division 1906–08; was commander of the Department of the East 1908–1910; and was chief of staff 1910–.

Woodberry (wûd'be-ri), George Edward. Born at Beverly, Mass., May 12, 1855. An American poet, critic, and educator. He was professor of English in the University of Nebraska 1877–78 and 1880–82, and professor of comparative literature at Columbia University 1891–1904. In 1904 he became lecturer in English literature at Amherst College, and in 1908 professor of English literature in Cornell University. Among his publications are a "History of Wood-engraving" (1883), "Life of Edgar Allan Poe" (1885), "The North Shore Watch, and Other Poems" (1890), "Studies in Letters and Life" (1890), "Heart of Man" (1899), "Wild Eden" (1899), "Makers of Literature" (1900), "Nathaniel Hawthorne" (1902), "Poems" (1903), "America in Literature" (1903), "Swinburne" (1905), "The Torch: Eight Lectures on Race Power in Literature" (1905), "The Life of Poe" (1909), "The Inspiration of Poetry" (1910), etc.

Woodcraft Indian Scouts. An organization founded at Summit, New Jersey, July 1, 1902, by Ernest Thompson Seton, for the development of manly character in connection with nature study and outdoor life. It is the parent of the Boy Scouts, from which it differs chiefly in its uniform and badges and in the fact that there is no age limit, different standards and sections being arranged for all ages. It has about 100,000 members.

Woods (wûdz), Robert Archey. Born at Pittsburgh, Pa., Dec. 9, 1865. An American social worker. He studied at Amherst College and Andover Theological Seminary, and was a resident at Toynbee Hall, London, in 1890. He has been the head of South End House, a social settlement at Boston, since 1891. He has been lecturer on social economics at Andover Theological Seminary 1890–95, and on practical philanthropy at the Episcopal Theological School, Cambridge, Massachusetts, since 1896. He published "English Social Movements" (1891), and edited "The City Wilderness" (1898) and "Americans in Process" (1902).

Woodward (wûd'wärd), Arthur Smith. Born at Macclesfield, England, May 24, 1864. An English geologist and paleontogist, keeper of the geological department of the British Museum. He has published a "Catalogue of Fossil Fishes in the British Museum" (1889–1901), "Outlines of Vertebrate Palæontology" (1898), etc.

Woodward (wûd'wärd), Robert Simpson. Born at Rochester, Mich., July 21, 1849. An American astronomer and mathematical physicist, president of the Carnegie Institution, Washington, from 1905. He was astronomer of the United States Geological Survey 1884–90; was assistant in the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey 1890–93; and was professor of mechanics and mathematical physics in Columbia University 1893–1905. He has published numerous scientific memoirs and papers.

Woodworth (wûd'wėrth), Robert Sessions. Born at Belchertown, Mass., Oct. 17, 1869. An American psychologist, professor in Columbia University from 1909. He was adjunct professor there 1905–09.

Woolsey (wûl'si), Theodore Salisbury. Born at New Haven, Conn., Oct. 22, 1852. An American jurist and educator. He was graduated at Yale University in 1872; was instructor in public law there 1877–78; and has been professor of international law since 1878. A number of his published papers have been collected under the title "America's Foreign Policy" (1898).

Wooster (wûs'tèr). The county-seat of Wayne County, Ohio, 30 miles west of Canton. It has lumber-mills, foundries, etc., and is the seat of the University of Wooster and the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station. Population, 6,136, (1910).

Worcester (wûs'tèr), Dean Conant. Born at Thetford, Vt., Oct. 1, 1866. An American zoölogist, secretary of the interior in the Philippine government from 1901. He was graduated at the University of Michigan in 1889, took part in scientific expeditions to the Philippines 1887–88 and 1890–93, and was a member of the First United States Philippine Commission 1899–1900, and of the Second United States Philippine Commission, April, 1900–. He has written "The Philippine Islands and their People" (1898), etc.

World Peace Foundation. An institution, known until 1911 as the International School of Peace, founded by Edwin Ginn, of Boston, Massachusetts, in 1909. Its object is to bring about, by education through the college, the press, the pulpit, and the platform, the peace and better order of the world. The management is vested in a board of trustees, a board of directors (corresponding to the faculty of a college), and an advisory council, the individual members of of which are of high national and international reputation.

World's Columbian Exposition. An international exposition of arts, industries, manufactures, and the products of the soil, mines, and sea, held at Chicago, Illinois, May 1–Oct. 30, 1893, for the purpose of commemorating the four-hundredth anniversary of the discovery of America by Christopher Columbus. It was participated in by the principal nations of the world, as well as by the different States of the Union, nearly all of which were represented by special buildings. The grounds covered an area of 666 acres, including Jackson Park, in the southeastern part of Chicago, fronting on Lake Michigan. The principal buildings were constructed of a white composition called "staff," giving the appearance of marble, which led to the adoption of the name of the "White City," by which the exposition came to be generally known. The present Field Columbian Museum was formed from the Fine Arts Building. A notable feature of the exposition was a series of international congresses representing the progress of the world in the various branches of science, religion, art, education, etc. The amusement features were collected in a strip of land, extending westward from the main grounds, called the "Midway Plaisance," which contained also representations of native life in various foreign countries. Awards were made by an international jury. The total attendance was 27,539,041.

Wormeley (wèrm'li), Katharine Prescott. Born at Ipswich, England, Jan. 14, 1830: died at Jackson, N. H., Aug. 5, 1908. An American writer, best known for her translations of Balzac, Molière, Daudet, etc.

Worth (wèrth), William Scott. Born at Albany, N. Y., Jan. 6, 1840: died at Clifton, Staten Island, N. Y., Oct. 16, 1904. An American soldier, son of General William Jenkins Worth. He entered the army in 1861; served with the Army of the Potomac from 1862; was engaged in frontier duty 1872–91; and rose to the rank of colonel in 1898. He served in the Santiago campaign, was severely wounded at San Juan Hill, and was promoted brigadier-general in 1898.

Wright (rīt), Arthur Williams. Born at Lebanon, Conn., Sept. 8, 1836. An American physicist, professor in Yale University from 1872. He was graduated at Yale in 1859; studied in Heidelberg and Berlin; and was professor of physics and chemistry in Williams College 1869–72. From 1887–1906 he was in charge of the Sloane physical laboratory at Yale.

Wright*, Carroll Davidson. He was United States commissioner of labor 1885–92; honorary professor of social economics in the Catholic University of America 1895–1904; professor of statistics and social economics in Columbian University 1900; and president of Clark College 1902–09. His later works include "Industrial Evolution of the United States" (1895), "Outline of Practical Sociology" (1899), "Some Ethical Phases of the Labor Question" (1902), "Battles of Labor" (1906), and many monographs on social and economic questions.

Wright (rīt), Elizur. Born at South Canaan, Conn., Feb. 12, 1804: died at Medford, Mass., Nov. 22, 1885. An American abolitionist, journalist, and expert in insurance. He became secretary of the American Anti-Slavery Society in 1833 and edited various abolitionist journals, and was commissioner of insurance for Massachusetts 1858–66. He wrote "Savings Bank Life Insurance with Illustrative Tables" (1872), "The Politics and Mysteries of Life Insurance" (1873), etc.

Wright (rīt), Joseph. Born Oct. 31, 1855. An English scholar, professor of comparative philology in Oxford University from 1901 (deputy professor 1891–1901). He has published "Middle High-German Primer" (1888), "Old High-German Primer" (1888), "Primer of the Gothic Language" (1892), "The English Dialect Grammar" (1905), "Old English Grammar" (1908), etc.; and has edited "The English Dialect Dictionary" (1896–1905).

Wright (rīt), Mrs. (Mabel Osgood). Born at New York, 1859. An American author and writer of nature books. She is one of the editors of "Bird Lore." Among her works are "Birdcraft" (1895), "Tommy-Anne and the Three Hearts" (1896), "Four-footed Americans and Their Kin" (1898), and "The Flowers and Ferns in Their Haunts" (1901). She is the author also of a series of books, the first four of which were published anonymously. These include "The Garden of a Commuter's Wife" (1901), "The People of the Whirlpool" (1903), "The Woman Errant" (1904), "At the Sign of the Fox" (1905), "The Garden, You, and I" (1906), "Gray Lady and the Birds" (1907), "The Open Window" (1908), "Poppea of the Post-office" (1909), etc.

Wright (rīt), Orville. Born at Dayton, Ohio, Aug. 16, 1871. A noted American aviator. See Wright, Wilbur.*

Wright (rīt), Wilbur. Born at Dayton, Ohio, April 16, 1867. A noted American aviator, with his brother Orville the first to attain practical success with the aëroplane. The attention of the Wrights was turned to aëronautics by the experiments of Otto Lilienthal and Octave Chanute with gliding-machines. In 1902 they built a gliding-machine with two surfaces and carried on their experiments among the sand-dunes at Kitty Hawk, near Cape Hatteras, on the Atlantic coast of North Carolina. In 1903 they added a motor to their gliding-machine, and on Dec. 17 of that year made the first successful mechanical flight (260 meters in 59 seconds) that had ever been accomplished. They used a biplane with warpable wings and a motor of their own construction. One hundred flights were made during the season of 1904. In 1905 a new machine was built with improvements, and 49 flights were made near Dayton, Ohio, and in September and October flights of 10, 11, 12, 15, 21, and 24½ miles were made. The 24½-mile flight on Oct. 5th was made in 38 minutes and 3 seconds, the machine making a speed of 38 miles an hour and stopping only on account of exhaustion of fuel. In 1908 Wilbur Wright went to France and made flights at the Camp of Auvours, near Le Mans, and at Pau. On Dec. 31, 1908, he won the Michelin trophy by making the longest flight (2 hours and 20 minutes) of the year, covering 124 kilometers. He then went to Rome. Orville Wright remained in America to fulfil a contract which had been made with the United States government. This called for a flight of one hour with a passenger, and a cross-country speed test of five miles and return. The preparations for these tests were terminated on Sept. 17, 1908, by an accident to the machine (the breaking of one of its propellers), which resulted in the death of the passenger, Lieutenant Thomas E. Selfridge. Wright returned to Washington in 1909 and successfully completed the required government tests. On July 27, 1909, with Lieutenant Frank P. Lahm as a passenger, he made a world's record flight of 1 hour, 12 minutes, and 40 seconds. On July 30, 1909, with Lieutenant Benjamin D. Foulois as a passenger, he flew 10 miles (from Fort Myer to Shuter's Hill, near Alexandria, and return) in 14 minutes and 40 seconds, at an average speed of 42½ miles an hour. On Oct. 4, 1909, Wilbur Wright flew from Governor's Island, New York city, up the Hudson to Grant's Tomb and return, a distance of 20 miles, in 33 minutes and 33 seconds, and in the flights at the Signal Corps School of Instruction at College Park, Maryland, Oct. 9, he attained a speed of 55.82 miles an hour.

Wüllner (vül'ner), Ludwig. Born at Münster, Aug. 19, 1858. A German barytone. He was educated at Munich, Berlin, and Strasburg. While teaching at Münster (1884–87) he studied music, and in 1889 he began, as an actor at Meiningen, his artistic career. In 1895 he toured as a reader, and in 1899 he appeared as a lieder singer, winning wide recognition, especially by his renderings of the songs of Brahms.

Wundt*, Wilhelm. His later works include "System der Philosophie" (1889), "Grundriss der Psychologie" (1896), "Völkerpsychologie" (Vol. I., "Die Sprache," 1900; Vol. II., "Mythus und Religion" 1905–06), and "Einleitung in die Philosophie" (1901). He has edited the series of "Philosophische Studien" 1883–1902 and 1905–.

Wyckoff (wī'kof), Walter Augustus. Born at Mainpuri, India, April 12, 1865: died at Princeton, N. J., May 15, 1908. An American political economist, assistant professor of political economy in Princeton University from 1898. He is best known from his practical studies (as a worker and tramp) of the life of the wage-earners and "tramps." He published "The Workers—The East" (1897), "The Workers—The West" (1898), "A Day with a Tramp and Other Days" (1900), etc.

Wyman (wī'man), Walter. Born at St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 17, 1848. An American physician and sanitarian, surgeon-general of the Public Health and Marine-Hospital Service since 1891 (prior to July 1, 1902, known as Marine-Hospital Service). He administers the quarantine laws and establishments; the national laboratory for the investigation of infectious and contagious diseases and matters pertaining to the public health; the leprosy investigation station at Molokai, Hawaii; and the marine hospitals, including a sanatorium for consumptives at Fort Stanton, New Mexico; and also has charge of the medical examination of immigrants. He was president of the first and second international sanitary conventions of American republics (1902–05); is chairman of the International Sanitary Bureau of American Republics; and is the author of numerous articles on public health and sanitation.

Wyndham (win'dam), George. Born at London, Aug. 29, 1863. A British statesman. He has been Conservative member of Parliament for Dover since 1889. He was educated at Eton and at Sandhurst; served in the Sudan in 1885; was private secretary to A. J. Balfour when the latter was chief secretary for Ireland 1887–92; was under-secretary of state for war 1898–1900; and was chief secretary for Ireland 1900–05. He carried the Irish Land Act through the House of Commons in 1903, and resigned his place in the cabinet in March, 1905.

Yalu (yä-lö'). A river which forms the boundary between Korea and Manchuria from about lat. 42° N. southward. It flows south, then west, and then southwest, and empties into Korea Bay.

Yalu River, Battle of the. A battle fought May 1, 1904, by the Japanese under Kuroki and the Russians under Sassulitch, on the Manchurian bank of the Yalu at and above An-tung. The Japanese concentrated at Wiju, crossed the river and its affluent the Ai, and attacked the Russians in fortified positions, driving them out and inflicting heavy loss upon them.

Yamagata (yä-mä-gä'tä), Prince Aritomo. Born in Choshu, April, 1838. A Japanese soldier and statesman, one of the "elder statesmen." He was promoted lieutenant-general in 1872; became minister of war in 1873; and was later raised to the rank of marshal. He played an important part in the civil war of 1877, being chief of staff of the army of subjugation. In 1888–89 he visited the United States and Europe. On the outbreak of the Chinese war (1894), he took command of the first army, but was obliged to retire on account of ill health. Since 1896 his career has been chiefly that of a diplomat and statesman. He has twice been premier, 1889–91 and 1898–1900. At the beginning of the war with Russia he was appointed chief of the general staff.

Yamamoto (yä-mä-mō'tō), Tatsuo. Born in Oita ken, Japan, in 1856. A Japanese financier and statesman. He entered the Bank of Japan in 1890, was director of its banking bureau, and was governor 1898–1903. He was nominated a member of the upper house in 1903, and was appointed minister of finance in the Saionji ministry, August, 1911.

Yass (yàs). A town in New South Wales, Australia, about 130 miles southwest of Sydney. In its vicinity (the "Yass-Canberra district") the Commonwealth government, in January, 1911, acquired a site for a federal capital. Population, about 7,500.

Yauco (yä-ō'kō). A city in the southwestern part of Ponce department, Porto Rico. Population, 6,589, (1910).

Yazoo City (yä'zō sit'i). The county-seat of Yazoo County, Mississippi, on the Yazoo River, 40 miles northwest of Jackson. It is important for its cotton and lumber interests. Population, 6,796, (1910).

Yeats (yāts), William Butler. Born at Dublin, June 13, 1865. An Irish poet, dramatist, and critic, son of John Butler Yeats, the artist. He was one of the founders of the Irish Literary Theater and of the National Theater Society in Dublin, and is identified with the movement for the revival of Irish national literature. He is a representative exponent of the "literary drama." His works include "The Celtic Twilight" (1893), "Poems" (1895), "The Secret Rose" (1897), "The Wind among the Reeds" (1899), "The Shadowy Waters" (1900), "Ideas of Good and Evil" (1903), "Where There is Nothing" (1903), "In the Seven Woods" (1903), "The Hour Glass, and Other Plays" (1904), "The King's Threshold, and Other Plays" (1904), "Stories of Red Hanrahan" (1904), "Deirdre" (1907), "Synge and the Ireland of His Time" (1911), etc.

Yentai (yen-tī'). A town in Manchuria, about twelve miles northeast of Liao-yang, near the railway. It was an important position in the battle of Liao-yang and subsequent operations in the Russo-Japanese war. There are coal-mines near it.

Yerkes (yèr'kēz), Charles Tyson. Born at Philadelphia, June 25, 1837: died at New York, Dec. 29, 1905. An American business man, prominent in the development of street railways in Chicago and underground railways in London. He founded the Yerkes Observatory of the University of Chicago.

Yerkes (yèr'kēz) Observatory. The astronomical observatory of the University of Chicago, founded by Charles Tyson Yerkes in 1892 and completed about 1896. It is situated at Williams Bay, Wisconsin. It possesses a fine equipment, including a 40-inch telescope. G. E. Hale was its director until 1905, when he was succeeded by E. B. Frost.

Yersin (yer-saṅ'), Alexandre Émile John. Born at Rougemont, Switzerland, Sept. 22, 1863. A Swiss bacteriologist. He studied at Lausanne and Marburg, and afterward went to Paris, where he entered the Pasteur Institute in 1888 and shared in Roux's work on the diphtheria serum. Later he went to the East, and carried on researches in Indo-China and China. At Hong-Kong in 1894 (simultaneously with Kitasato) he discovered the plague bacillus, and in 1895 prepared a serum for the treatment of the disease. He was commissioned by the Chinese government to establish at Canton a branch of the Pasteur Institute, and himself became director of a similar institution founded in 1895 at Nha Trang, in Annam.

Yi Hi (yē hē). Born Sept. 8, 1852. The Emperor of Korea. He ascended the throne Jan. 21, 1864, and assumed the title of emperor in October, 1897. In July, 1907, he abdicated and was succeeded by his son, Yi Syek.

Yildiz Kiosk. A pleasure resort of the sultans of Turkey, adopted as a permanent abode by Abdul-Hamid II. soon after his accession in 1876. It stands on a hill on the northern border of Constantinople, overlooking the Bosporus. Within the park walls are numerous buildings (an observatory, armories, etc.), and within a second wall the kiosk, designed by the Sultan, which he occupied with his four principal wives.

Yokkaichi (yōk'kī-chē). A town in the southern part of the island of Hondu, Japan, 20 miles southwest of Nagoya. It is an active trading port, and its shipments of tea, shirting, cotton yarn, etc., to the United States are of growing importance. Population, 30,704.

York (yôrk). The county-seat of York County, Nebraska, on a branch of the Big Blue River, 47 miles west of Lincoln. It is in an agricultural and stock-raising region, and is the seat of York College. Population, 6,235, (1910).

Yoshiwara (yō-shi-wä'rä). The quarter of Tokio which is occupied by courtezans. The name is sometimes applied by foreigners to similar districts in other Japanese cities, but is not so used by the Japanese themselves.

Youmans (yō'manz), William Jay. Born at Milton, N. Y., Oct. 14, 1838: died at Mount Vernon, N. Y., April 10, 1901. An American scientist, brother of Edward Livingstone Youmans. He became the associate editor of "The Popular Science Monthly" in 1872, and editor in 1887.

Younghusband (yung'huz-band), Sir Francis Edward. Born at Murree, Panjab, India, May 31, 1863. A British soldier, traveler, and writer, head of the British mission to Tibet 1902–04. In 1882 he joined the army, and in 1908 was promoted lieutenant-colonel. He was knighted in 1904. He was resident of Indore, Central India, 1902–03; British commissioner to Tibet 1903–04; Rede lecturer at Cambridge in 1905; and resident of Kashmir 1906–10. He has traveled in Manchuria, China, Turkestan, the Pamirs, and South Africa, and was political officer in Chitral 1893–94. Among his works are "The Relief of Chitral" (1895), "The Heart of a Continent" (1896), "South Africa of To-day" (1898), "India and Tibet" (1910), etc.

Young Men's Christian Association. An organization formed in London in 1844 by (Sir) George Williams. The first associations in North America were organized in 1851, and the first international convention was held at Buffalo, N. Y., June 7, 1854. The object of the organization is to promote the spiritual, intellectual, physical, and social well-being of young men. There are nearly 8,000 associations in the world, of which 2,000 are in North America. The total membership in North America is about 450,000; in the world, over 800,000. Active controlling membership is limited to men in communion with some evangelical church; associate membership is not so limited. Abbreviated Y. M. C. A.

Young Women's Christian Association. A voluntary organization for the physical, social, intellectual, and spiritual development of young women. The first association was formed in London in 1855, the first American city association in Boston in 1866, and the first student association in the Illinois Normal University in 1873. Seventeen national associations are now affiliated in the world's association, formed in 1892. The headquarters are in London. The total world's membership is 460,000. The American headquarters are at 125 East 27th Street, New York city, and there are 187 associations in cities and industrial centers and 601 student associations with a combined membership of 185,501. The official organ of the American associations is the "Association Monthly." The National Board conducts a training school for secretaries in New York city.

Yriarte (ē-ri-är'tā), Charles. Born at Paris, Dec. 5, 1832: died there, April 5, 1898. A French litterateur. He was a prolific writer, and was especially interested in the Italian Renaissance. Among his works are "Venise, histoire, art, industrie; la ville, la vie" (1877), "Florence, l'histoire, les Medicis, les humanistes, les lettres, les arts" (1880), "Un condottiere au XVe siècle; Rimini" (1882), "Françoise de Rimini dans la légende et dans l'histoire" (1882), "Matteo Civitali, sa vie et son œuvre" (1885), "Paul Veronese" (1888), "César Borgia" (1889), "J. F. Millet" (1885), "Fortuny" (1886), etc.

Yuen-san (yö-en'sän'). A treaty-port in eastern Korea, situated on Broughton Bay about lat. 39° N. It has a considerable commerce, which is mostly in the hands of the Japanese. Population, about 15,000. Also Won-san, Gen-san.

Yukaghir (yö-kä'gēr). A tribe of arctic Siberia, inhabiting the region near the Kolyma River. The language of the Yukaghir and of the related Chuvanze forms an independent stock.

Yukon*. It has large mineral deposits. It sends to the Dominion Parliament one representative. It is administered by a commissioner and a council of 10 members. Area, 196,327 square miles. Population, 27,219.

Zambales (thäm-bä'läs). 1. A province in western Luzón, Philippine Islands. It is bounded by Pangasinán on the north; Pangasinán, Tarlac, and Pampanga (separated by the Zambales Mountains) on the east; Bataán and the China Sea on the south; and the China Sea on the west. Capital, Iba. Port Subic indents the southern coast and separates Zambales from Bataán, the boundary-line coming to the northeast angle of the bay. It is an excellent harbor for large vessels in all weather. The Zambales Mountains on the eastern boundary contain several peaks exceeding 3,000 feet in height. The loftiest are Abu, 5,540, Iba, 5,262, and Lingo, 5,530 feet. The rivers flow west to the China Sea or south to Port Subic. Rice, sugar, mangos, and pineapples are among the products. The inhabitants are chiefly Zambalans and Ilocanos. Area, 2,125 square miles. Population, 104,549.

2. A civilized and Christianized Malay people living in the province of the same name in Luzón, Philippine Islands.

Zambales (thäm-bä'läs) Mountains. A mountain-range in western Luzón, Philippine Islands, parallel with the coast. It extends from Lingayén Gulf on the north to the southern extremity of Zambales province, and reappears in Bataán as the Mariveles peaks. Mount Iba, near the middle, and Mount Lingo, in the southern part of the range, exceed 5,000 feet in height. Also called Cabusilan.

Zamboanga (thäm-bō-än'gä). 1. A district of Moro province, Philippine Islands, embracing the southwestern part of Mindanao, the Basilan group, most of the Pilas group, and many small islands on the southwest coast of Mindanao. It is bounded by Dapitan and Misamis (separated from both by mountains) on the north; Lanao (partly separated by Illana Bay) and the Celebes Sea on the east; the Celebes Sea on the south; and the Sulu (Joló) Sea on the west. Capital, Zamboanga. The southern part of the mainland is indented by three large bays, Illana, Dumanquilas, and Sibuguey, in the shores of which are smaller bays affording good harbor. Of the bays on the western coast, Sibuco and Panabutan are safe for large vessels in the northeast monsoon. The mountain-range that forms the northern boundary of Zamboanga extends through the western peninsula and sends spurs of hills into the central and eastern peninsulas. Coal is found at the head of Sibuguey Bay and elsewhere, gold in the western peninsula. The forests contain valuable woods. Considerable sugar-cane is produced. Fruits grow in abundance. The inhabitants are Subanos and Moros. Area of province, 6,085 square miles. Population, 98,078.

2. A town, the capital of Zamboanga district and of Moro province. It is situated on the Strait of Basilan at the southern extremity of the western peninsula of Mindanao, in lat. 6° 53' N., long. 123° 5' E. Civilized population of municipality, 3,281.

Zamzam (zam'zam). A sacred well within the Great Mosque at Mecca, Arabia, from which, according to Mohammedan tradition, Hagar drew water for her son Ishmael. The water is used by pilgrims externally and internally, and is credited with miraculous powers. Also Zemzem.

Zangwill (zang'wil), Israel. Born at London, Feb. 24, 1864. An English novelist, poet, lecturer, and man of letters, of Jewish birth. He is prominently identified with the Zionist movement. He is the author of "The Big Bow Mystery" (1891), "Children of the Ghetto" (1892), "Merely Mary Ann" (1893), "Ghetto Tragedies" (1893), "The King of the Schnorrers" (1894), "Without Prejudice" (1896), "Dreamers of the Ghetto," a series of sketches of great Jewish thinkers (1898), "They that Walk in Darkness" (1899), "The Mantle of Elijah" (1900), "The Grey Wig" (1903), "Blind Children," a book of verse (1903), "The Celibates' Club" (1905), "The Melting Pot" (1908), "Italian Fantasies" (1910), a number of plays, etc.

Zeebrugge (zā'brög-ge). The new seaport of Bruges, Belgium. It is connected with Bruges by a ship-canal which enables sea-going vessels to reach that city.

Zeeman (zā'mān), Pieter. Born at Zonnemaire, Holland, May 25, 1865. A Dutch physicist, professor of physics in the University of Amsterdam from 1900. He has made important researches in optical and electrical science, and in particular noted the change in the spectrum of a source of light when placed in a strong magnetic field ("Zeeman effect"). In 1902 he received the Nobel prize for physics.

Zemzem (zem'zem). See Zamzam.*

Zenatello (zen-ä-tel'lō), Giovanni. Born at Verona. A contemporary Italian tenor. He first appeared in London in 1905 in Puccini's "Manon Lescaut," and has since sung there every season. From 1907 to 1909 he was a member of the Manhattan Opera Company, his most successful rôles being Rhadames in "Aida" and Pinkerton in "Madama Butterfly."

Zenger (zeng'ẽr), John Peter. Born in Germany about 1697: died 1746. An American printer and publisher. He was brought to America in his childhood, and in 1726 engaged in the printing business in New York. In 1734 he was arrested and tried for libel because of the criticisms which appeared in his paper, the New York "Weekly Journal," on the occasion of the removal from office of Chief Justice Lewis Morris by Governor William Cosby. The defense was conducted by Andrew Hamilton and resulted in the acquittal of Zenger, the decision being regarded as momentous in establishing the freedom of the press in America.

Zeppelin (tsep'e-lin), Count Ferdinand von. Born in Constance, July 8, 1838. A German general of cavalry and aëronaut. He came to the United States in 1863, during the Civil War; took part in the Franco-Prussian war of 1870–71; and has been a member of the Bundesrat (1885–90). He is the inventor of a large dirigible balloon which (after many experiments and mishaps) has been shown to be capable of long flights under good control.

Zerrahn (tser-rän'), Carl. Born July 28, 1826: died Dec. 29, 1909. A well-known German-American conductor. He came to America in 1848 as a member of the orchestra of the Germania Musical Society, and later established himself in Boston. In 1854 he became conductor of the Handel and Haydn Society; was conductor of the Harvard Symphony Concerts 1866–1882; and for many years conducted the Worcester music festivals.

Zichy (zit'chi), Géza, Count. Born at Sztara, Hungary, July 23, 1849. A noted pianist and composer. The son of a Hungarian magnate, he lost his right arm in hunting when fourteen years of age, but, nevertheless, he studied the piano, among his teachers being Volkmann and Liszt. While taking high rank in his profession as a lawyer, he has since 1880 been known as a remarkable virtuoso, making his own arrangements for the left hand. He was president of the Musical Academy of Pesth and of the National Conservatory. His compositions include studies and piano pieces for the left hand, songs, operas, etc. He is also known as a writer of lyric, epic, and dramatic verse in the Hungarian language.

Zimbalist (zēm-bal'ist), Efrem. Born at Rostoff, May 7, 1889. A Russian violinist. He first studied under the direction of his father and then under Auer at the St. Petersburg Conservatory. In 1907 he began a series of tours in the European cities and in England, and has been engaged to give recitals in America in 1911–12.

Zimmern (zim'ẽrn), Helen. Born at Hamburg, Germany, March 25, 1846. An English author, translator, and art critic. She was taken to England as a child, and became a British subject at her majority. She has been a correspondent for various English, German, and Italian periodicals. Her works include "Life and Philosophy of Schopenhauer" (1876), "Life and Works of Lessing" (1878), "Sir Laurence Alma-Tadema" (1886), "Hansa Towns" (1889), "Irish Element in Mediæval Culture" (1891), "Italy of the Italians" (1906), and various translations.

Zirkel (tsēr'kel), Ferdinand. Born at Bonn, May 20, 1838. A German mineralogist and geologist, professor in the University of Leipsic from 1870. His works include "Lehrbuch der Petrographie" (1866, 1893–95), "Die mikroskopische Beschaffenheit der Mineralien und Gesteine" (1873), "Microscopical Petrography" (1876), "Über Urausscheidungen in rheinischen Basalten" (1903), etc. He retired from active service in 1909.

Zittel (tsit'tel), Karl Alfred von. Born at Bahlingen, Baden, Sept. 25, 1839: died at Munich, Jan. 5, 1904. A German paleontologist, professor in the University of Munich from 1866. He published "Handbuch der Paläontologie" (1876–93: with Schimper and Schenk), etc.

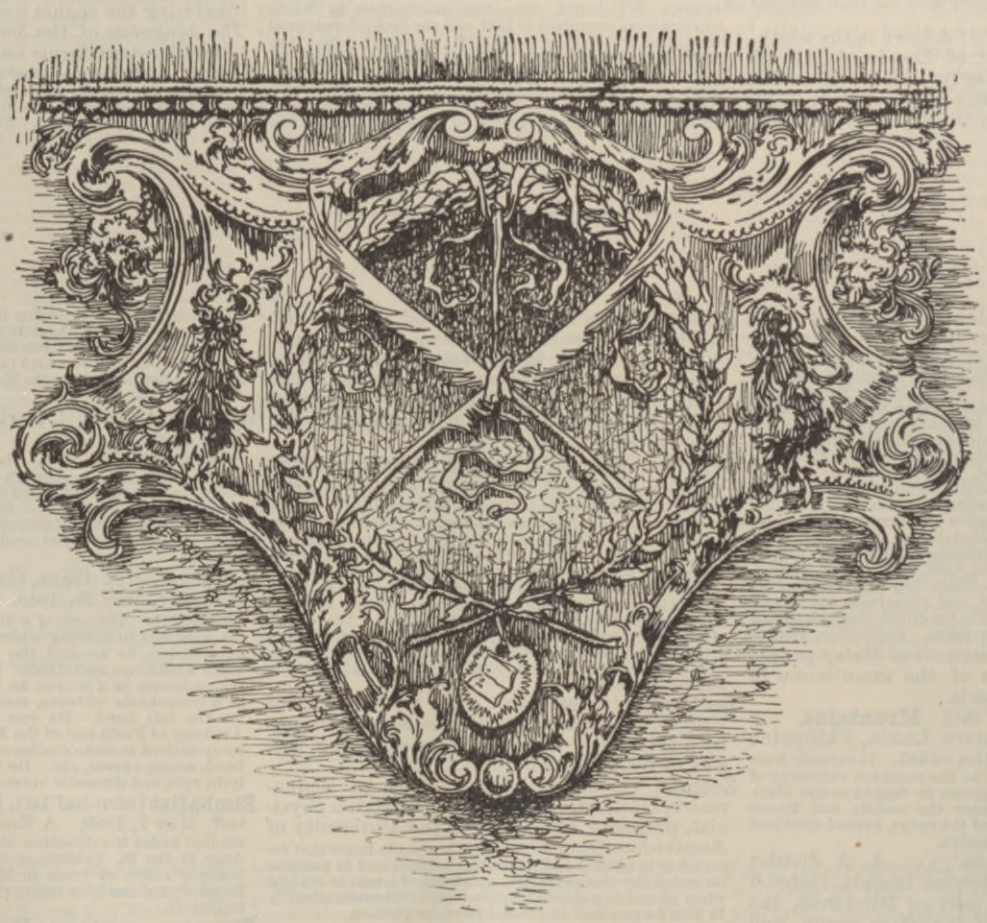
Zogbaum (zōg'boum), Rufus Fairchild. Born at Charleston, S. C., Aug. 28, 1849. An American artist and writer. He studied at the Art Students' League, New York, 1878–79, and under Bonnat at Paris 1880–82. He is best known as a delineator of military and naval subjects. Among his historical pictures are "Manila Bay" and "The First Minnesota Regiment at Gettysburg" (the latter painted by commission of the State of Minnesota for the Capitol at St. Paul). He has written "Horse, Foot, and Dragoons," "All Hands," and "Ships and Sailors."

Zorn (tsôrn), Anders. Born at Mora, Sweden, Feb. 15, 1860. A Swedish painter. At the age of fifteen he entered the Academy in Stockholm to study sculpture, but soon turned his attention to water-color painting, in which he has been especially successful. He has traveled and painted in Spain, England, France, Italy, North Africa, Russia, and Poland. In 1890 he joined the Société Nationale des Beaux-Arts in Paris and assisted in the organization of the first Salon du Champ de Mars. The picture which he contributed to this exhibition now hangs in the Louvre. In 1893, the year of the Columbian Exposition in Chicago, he visited the United States and painted many portraits there. He is a realist of great power.

Zueblin (zū'blin), Charles. Born at Pendleton, Ind., May 4, 1866. An American publicist. He studied at the University of Pennsylvania, Northwestern University, Yale, and Leipsic. He founded the Northwestern University Settlement in 1891, and was connected with the University of Chicago as instructor, assistant professor, and professor of sociology 1892–1908. He has published "American Municipal Progress" (1902), "A Decade of Civic Development" (1905), "The Religion of a Democrat" (1908), and "Democracy and the Overman" (1910).

Zuloaga (thō-lō-ä'gä), Ignacio. Born at Eibar, Spain, July 26, 1870. A noted Spanish painter, son of Placidio Zuloaga, famous as the rediscoverer of the art of damascening. Among his works are "Daniel Zuloaga and his Daughters," "A Spanish Gipsy," "Promenade after the Bull-fight," "Spanish Dancers," "El Coriano," "Segovians Drinking," and "The Penitents."

Zunz (tsönts), Leopold. Born at Detmold, Germany, Aug. 10, 1794: died at Berlin, March 18, 1886. A Jewish scholar. He was a pioneer in the study of the history of Jewish literature, religious poetry, and the ritual of the synagogue, and is usually described as the founder of the modern "science of Judaism."



A CHRONOLOGICAL TABLE OF THE CHIEF EVENTS OF HISTORY

BEFORE 500 B.C.

Egypt.

5000?–2000?(about). Early period.
2000?–1580(about). Middle period, reign of the Hyksos or Shepherd Kings.
1580–1250(about). Empire, period of its splendor.
1400(about) [Petrie]. Amenhotep III., organizer and builder.
1326(about) [Petrie]. Seti I., noted as a builder.
1300(about) [Petrie]. Rameses II., builder and warrior (oppressor of the Hebrews?).
1250–671(about). Empire, period of its decline.
671. Conquered by Esarhaddon at the battle of Memphis.
666–610. Psametik I. frees Egypt from Assyrian rule.
610–595(about). Necho.
609. Battle of Megiddo, defeat of Josiah, king of Judah.
605. Battle of Carchemish, Egyptians defeated by Nebuchadnezzar.
525. Battle of Pelusium; conquered by Cambyses; end of Egyptian independence.

Babylonia.

3800?(about). Sargon, first known king.
2300(about). Conquered by Elamites.
2267–2213(about). Hammurabi, founder of the old Babylonian Empire.
710. Conquered by Assyria.
625–538. The New Empire.
625–604. Nabopolassar, founder of the new Babylonian Empire.
605–562. Nebuchadnezzar.
605. Defeat of the Egyptians and Hittites at Carchemish.
586. Capture of Jerusalem.
585–572. Siege and final capture of Tyre.
572. Invasion of Egypt.
538. Fall of Babylon, conquered by Cyrus.

Assyria.

1900–930(about). Early period.
1120–1100(about). Tiglath-Pileser I.
930–626(about). Brilliant period.

Assyria—continued.

860–824. Shalmaneser II.
745–727. Tiglath-Pileser III.
727–722. Shalmaneser IV.
722–705. Sargon.
722. Conquest of Samaria.
705–681. Sennacherib.
701. Siege of Jerusalem.
690. Sack of Babylon.
680–668. Esarhaddon.
668–626. Asurbanipal, highest period of Assyrian art.
608 or 606. Fall of Nineveh, conquest of Assyria by Nabopolassar.

The Hebrews.

2000(about). Call of Abraham.
1700? Descent into Egypt.
1300? The Exodus.
1250? Conquest of Palestine.
1250?–1055(about). Period of the Judges.
1055(about). Establishment of the kingdom.
1055–1033(about). Saul.
1033–993(about). David.
993–953(about). Solomon.
953(about). Division into two kingdoms.
949(about). Sack of Jerusalem by Shishak.
876–854(about). Ahab, Jezebel, Elijah.
740–701. Isaiah.
727?–698? Hezekiah (king of Judah).
722 or 721. End of the kingdom of Israel.
701. Unsuccessful siege of Jerusalem by Sennacherib, and destruction of the Assyrian army, probably by pestilence.
629–580(about). Jeremiah.
622. Religious reformation and discovery of the book of the law in the Temple.
586. Deportation to Babylon, end of the kingdom of Judah.
537(about). Return to Jerusalem by permission of Cyrus.
516. The Temple rebuilt.

Media and Persia.

647–625(about). Phraortes (Media).
640(about). Revolted from Assyria.

Media and Persia—continued.

625–585(about). Cyaxares.
608 or 606. Cyaxares with Nabopolassar captures Nineveh.
585–549(about). Astyages.
558–529. Cyrus (Persia).
549. Cyrus deposes Astyages and annexes Media.
546. Capture of Sardis, end of the kingdom of Lydia.
538. Capture of Babylon.
529–522. Cambyses III.
525. Conquest of Egypt.
521–(486). Darius Hystaspes.
513? Scythian expedition.

Greece.

1183? Trojan war.
1100(about). Dorian migration into Peloponnesus.
1000–900? Colonization in Asia Minor.
900? Homer.
800? Lycurgus.
776. First Olympiad.
624. Laws of Draco.
594. Solon's work of reform.
560–527. Pisistratus in supreme power at Athens.
510. Expulsion of the sons of Pisistratus.
509. Reforms of Cleisthenes.

Miscellaneous.

1300(about). Sidon at its height.
1100–850(about). Tyre, period of its greatness.
1000? Zoroaster.
850? Carthage founded.
753(about). Rome founded.
660–585(about). Jimmu Tenno first mikado.
Between 562 and 552. Buddha born.
560–546. Crœsus king of Lydia.
551 or 550. Confucius born.
550(about). Buddhism introduced into Japan from Korea.
510(about). Expulsion of the Tarquins from Rome.

FIFTH CENTURY B.C.

Greece and Persia.

500–494. Revolt of the Ionian Greeks against the Persians.
492–479. Attacks of the Persians upon the Greeks.
492. First expedition under Mardonius fails.
491. Murder of the Persian heralds at Sparta and Athens.
490. Second expedition under Artaphernes and Datis; battle of Marathon, Athenians under Miltiades victorious.
489(about). Death of Miltiades.
486. Death of Darius.
486 or 485. Accession of Xerxes I.
483. Banishment of Aristides and ascendancy of Themistocles.
481–480. Third expedition under Xerxes.

Greece and Persia—continued.

480. Battle of Thermopylæ, Spartans under Leonidas defeat the Persians; sea fight at Artemisium indecisive; Athens captured and destroyed; naval battle of Salamis, defeat and retreat of Xerxes.
479. Fourth expedition under Mardonius; battle of Platæa, rout of the Persians and death of Mardonius; battle of Mycale, destruction of the Persian ships.
479–449. Offensive war of the Greeks against the Persians.
477(about). Hellenic confederacy formed under lead of Athens.
468(about). Death of Aristides and ascendancy of Cimon.

Greece and Persia—continued.

465 or 464. Death of Xerxes I., accession of Artaxerxes I.
465. Battle of Eurymedon, Cimon conquered the Chersonese.
461–429. Age of Pericles.
457–451. War of the Spartans and Bœotians against Athens.
457. Battle of Tanagra, a Spartan victory.
454(about). Treasury of the confederacy transferred from Delos to Athens.
451(about). Armistice for five years between Sparta and Athens.
449. New naval expedition against the Persians, battle of Salamis (in Cyprus), decisive defeat of the Persians.

FIFTH CENTURY B.C.—continued.

Athens and Sparta.

445. Thirty years' peace between Athens and Sparta.
444–429. Athens under the administration of Pericles.
440–439. Revolt and subjugation of Samos.
431–425. Five invasions of Attica by the Peloponnesians.
431–404. The Peloponnesian war.
429. Death of Pericles.
428–427. Revolt of Mytilene and its punishment by the Athenians.
422. Battle of Amphipolis, Athenians under Cleon defeated by the Spartans under Brasidas.
421. Peace of Nicias concluded for fifty years.
418. Battle of Mantinea, Spartans defeat the Athenians.
415–413. Expedition of the Athenians against Syracuse.
413. Disastrous defeat of the Athenians.
411. The democratic constitution of Athens overthrown.
410. Battle of Cyzicus, the Athenians under Alcibiades destroy the Peloponnesian fleet.
409. Capture of Byzantium by Alcibiades.
408. Triumph and ascendancy of Alcibiades.
407. Battle of Notium, defeat of the Athenian fleet.
406. Battle of Arginusæ, defeat of the Peloponnesian fleet.
405. Battle of Ægospotami, the Athenian fleet annihilated by the Spartans under Lysander.
404. Surrender of Athens, end of the Peloponnesian war; second hegemony of Sparta began.
404–403. Government of the Thirty Tyrants at Athens.
403. Democracy restored by Thrasybulus.

Rome.

494 (about). Secession of Plebeians to Mons Sacer; creation of the Tribunate.
491. Coriolanus banished from Rome.
471. Publilian Law passed; legislative initiative given to the plebeians.
458. Cincinnatus chosen dictator; defeats the Æqui.
451. Appointment of the decemvirs; code of the Twelve Tables.
445. Marriage between patricians and plebeians allowed.
444. Military tribunes elected.
443. Office of censor created.
405. Siege of Veii commences.

Miscellaneous.

462. Unsuccessful revolt of the Egyptians against Persian rule.
458 (about). The Hebrew Scriptures collected by Ezra.
445 (about). Rebuilding of the walls of Jerusalem by Nehemiah.
414. Successful revolt of the Egyptians.
401. Revolt of the younger Cyrus against his brother Artaxerxes II.; battle of Cunaxa.
401–399. Retreat of the ten thousand under Xenophon—the "Anabasis."

FOURTH CENTURY B.C.

Greece.

399–394. War between Sparta and Persia.
395–387. Corinthian war against Sparta.
394. Battle of Cnidus, the Spartans defeated by the allies; battle of Coronea, the allies defeated by the Spartans under Agesilaus.
387. The peace of Antalcidas between the Grecian states and Persia.
379–362. War between Thebes and Sparta.
371. Battle of Leuctra, the Spartans defeated by the Thebans under Epaminondas; end of the Spartan hegemony.
371–362. Hegemony of Thebes.
362. Battle of Mantinea, defeat of the Spartans, death of Epaminondas, end of Theban hegemony.

Macedonia.

359. Philip II. becomes king of Macedon.
357–355. Social war of the Athenian League against Athens.
355–346. Sacred war against the Phocians.
351. Demosthenes delivers his first Philippic Oration.
347. Capture of Olynthus by Philip.
346. Peace of Philocrates, end of the war.
339–338. Sacred war against Amphissa.
338. Battle of Chæronea won by Philip and Alexander over the Athenians and Thebans; Macedonian hegemony begins.
336. Death of Philip.
336–323. Alexander the Great.
334–330. Invasion and conquest of Persia.
334. Battle of the Granicus, defeat of the Persians.
333. Battle of Issus, defeat and flight of Darius III.
332–331. Capture of Tyre; conquest of Syria, occupation of Egypt, and founding of Alexandria.
331. Battle of Arbela, total defeat of the Persians.
330. Pursuit and murder of Darius.
329. Advance into Bactria.
327–325. Expedition into India.
326. Battle of the Hydaspes, defeat of Porus.
325. Passage down the Indus.
324. Return to Susa.
323. Death of Alexander at Babylon.
323–322. Lamian war, futile attempt of Greek cities to be free from Macedonia.
323–301. Wars of Alexander's successors and partition of his empire.
306. Antigonus king of Asia, Ptolemy king of Egypt, Seleucus king of Syria, Lysimachus king of Thrace, Cassander king of Macedonia.
301. Battle of Ipsus, Lysimachus and Seleucus defeat Antigonus.

Rome.

396. Capture and destruction of Veii.
390. Battle of the Allia, capture and burning of Rome by the Gauls.
367. Licinian laws; political equalization of patricians and plebeians and relief of poor debtors.
366. Lucius Sextus first plebeian consul.
358–351. Conquest of southern Etruria.
350–345. War with the Volscii and their defeat.
343–341. First Samnite war, Rome acquires Capua.
340–338. Latin war, Latin cities become subject to Rome.
338. Publilian laws; division of law-making power between patricians and plebeians.
326–304. Second Samnite war.
321. Battle of the Caudine Forks, Romans humiliated.
312. Construction of the Via Appia commenced.
305. First appearance of a Roman war fleet; capture of Bovianum.

Miscellaneous.

399. Execution of Socrates.
348. Treaty of commerce between Rome and Carthage.

THIRD CENTURY B.C.

Roman Conquests in Italy.

298–290. Third Samnite war, a struggle for the independence of Italy.
295. Battle of Sentinum, Roman victory; dissolution of the coalition against Rome.
290. Submission of the Samnites and Sabines.
286 (about). Hortensian law; decrees of the popular assembly (comitia tributa) made binding on all citizens.
285–282. War with a new Italian coalition; Romans at first defeated, then successful.
282–272. War with Tarentum.
282. Pyrrhus, king of Epirus, lands in Italy to help the Tarentines.
280. Battle of Heraclea, Pyrrhus and allies defeat the Romans.
279. Battle of Ausculum; Pyrrhus wins, but with great loss.
275. Battle of Beneventum, Pyrrhus defeated.
272. Death of Pyrrhus and submission of Tarentum.
265. Conquest of the Italian peninsula completed.

Rome and Carthage.

264–241. First Punic war, contest over Sicily.
264. Roman guard occupies Messana and is besieged by Carthaginian fleet.
262. Agrigentum captured by the Romans.
260. First naval victory of the Romans under Duilius at Mylæ.
256. Naval battle of Ecnomus, complete defeat of the Carthaginians; Roman army under Regulus threatens Carthage.
255. Regulus defeated and captured at Tunes.
251. Battle of Panormus, Romans under Cæcilius Metellus defeat Carthaginians under Hasdrubal.
249. Sea fight at Drepanum, the Romans defeated.
248–242. Campaign on the south side of Sicily indecisive.
241. Naval battle at the Ægatian islands, decisive Roman victory; Carthage gives up all claim to Sicily, the greater part of which becomes the first Roman province.
237–228. Carthaginian conquests in Spain under Hamilcar Barca.

THIRD CENTURY B.C.—continued.

Rome and Carthage—continued.

229–228. War upon the Illyrian pirates successful.
225–222. Subjugation of Cisalpine Gaul.
219. Hannibal captures and destroys Saguntum; Carthage refuses to deliver him up to the Romans.
218–212. The war in Spain; P. C. Scipio and Cn. C. Scipio defeat Hasdrubal.
218–201. Second Punic war.
218. Hannibal crosses the Alps into Italy; battle of the Trebia, the Romans defeated.
217. Battle of Lake Trasimene, complete defeat of the Romans; preparations for defense of the city; Q. Fabius Maximus made dictator.
216. Battle of Cannæ, worst of all Roman defeats.
214–212. The war in Sicily.
214–205. First Macedonian war to prevent aid to Hannibal.
212. Capture of Syracuse by the Romans.

Rome and Carthage—continued.

212 or 211. Both Scipios defeated and killed.
211. Hannibal advances to within one mile of Rome and withdraws; Capua surrendered to the Romans.
207. Hasdrubal marches from Spain to Italy to reinforce Hannibal; battle of the Metaurus, death of Hasdrubal.
206. Carthaginians expelled from Spain, which became a Roman province.
204. P. Cornelius Scipio lands in Africa.
203. Hannibal recalled from Italy.
202. Decisive battle of Zama, Carthaginian army annihilated.
201. Peace on terms dictated by Rome.

Greece.

295. Demetrius Poliorcetes master of Athens.
281. Achæan League renewed.
280. The Gauls ravage Greece.

Greece—continued.

263–260. Last attempt of Athens to be free from Macedonia failed.
245. Aratus first appointed strategus of the Achæan League.
240(about). Achæan League acquires the hegemony in Peloponnesus.
221. War between the Achæan and the Ætolian leagues; battle of Sellasia.
207. Philopœmen becomes strategus of the Achæan League.
207 or 206. Battle of Mantinea, defeat of Sparta.

Miscellaneous.

283(about). Kingdom of Pergamum founded.
280(about). Septuagint translation of the Bible completed.
278(about). Galatia in Asia Minor settled by Gauls who had ravaged Greece; kingdom of Bithynia founded.
250(about). Rise of the Parthian Empire.

SECOND CENTURY B.C.

Rome.

200–197. Second Macedonian war to aid Pergamus, Rhodes, and Athens.
197. Battle of Cynoscephalæ, Macedonia defeated and crippled.
192. Battle of Mutina, defeat of the Boii in northern Italy.
192–189. War with Antiochus III. of Syria, begun by Antiochus with aid of Hannibal.
190. Battle of Magnesia, Syria defeated and crippled.
171–168. Third Macedonian war, attempt of Macedonia to recover what it had lost.
168. Battle of Pydna a Roman victory; end of the kingdom of Macedonia.
149–146. Third Punic war, Roman attack on Carthage.
149–148. Fourth Macedonian war, an unsuccessful revolt against the Romans.
146. Capture and destruction of Carthage, "Africa" made a Roman province; Macedonia made a Roman province; Achæan war to help Sparta against Achæan League; battle of Leucopetra; capture and destruction of Corinth; Greece subject to Rome.

Rome—continued.

143–133. Numantine war in Spain, war of conquest.
134–132. First Servile war, unsuccessful insurrection of slaves in Sicily.
133. Surrender and destruction of Numantia; conquest of Spain completed; Pergamum bequeathed to Rome; murder of Tiberius Gracchus.
133–129. Contests over the division of the public lands.
133–121. Civil disturbances under the Gracchi.
129. Pergamum made a province.
123. The Balearic Islands subjected to Rome; Caius Gracchus elected tribune.
121. Civil strife; Caius Gracchus killed.
113–105. Several Roman armies defeated by the Cimbri.
113–101. War against the Cimbri and Teutones.
111–106. War against Jugurtha.
110. Jugurtha defeats a Roman army.

Rome—continued.

109. Jugurtha himself defeated.
107. Marius consul in command.
106–105. Jugurtha secured by Marius and Sulla.
104. Death of Jugurtha.
104–100. Marius elected consul five times in succession.
102. Battle of Aquæ Sextiæ, the Teutones annihilated by Marius.
102–(99). Second unsuccessful servile insurrection in Sicily.
101. Battle of Vercellæ, the Cimbri annihilated by Marius.

Palestine.

198. Conquest by Antiochus the Great.
170. Jerusalem plundered and the sanctuary profaned by Antiochus Epiphanes.
166. Revolt under Judas Maccabæus.
165. Reconsecration of the Temple.
140. Simon Maccabæus prince of the Jews.
105. Aristobulus king of Judea.

FIRST CENTURY B.C.

Rome.

100. Marius elected consul the sixth time; birth of Julius Cæsar.
91. The reform bills of Drusus; murder of Drusus.
90–88. The Marsian or Social war, a revolt of the Italians.
89. Right of citizenship granted to Latins and to some Italians.
88. Defeat of Romans and massacre of Italians in Asia Minor; Sulla, deprived of command, takes Rome by storm.
88–84. First Mithridatic war to curb the ambition of Mithridates.
88–82. Civil war between Sulla (optimates) and Marius (democrats).
87. Sulla took command in the Mithridatic war; Marius captures Rome; massacre of optimates.
87–86. Sulla in Epirus; capture of Athens.
86. Death of Marius; battle of Chæronea won by Sulla.
86–84. Tyrannical government of Cinna.
85. Battle of Orchomenus won by Sulla.
84. Peace with Mithridates.
83. Sulla lands in Italy.
83–81. Second Mithridatic war to make Mithridates keep the peace.
82. Sulla master of Rome; appointed dictator; reign of terror.

Rome—continued.

80–72. War against Sertorius, who attempts independence in Spain.
79. Sulla abdicates the dictatorship.
78. Death of Sulla.
78–67. War against the pirates.
74. Bithynia bequeathed to Rome.
74–64. Third Mithridatic war, attempt of Mithridates to appropriate Bithynia.
73–71. War of the gladiators under Spartacus.
70. Pompey consul.
69. Battle of Tigranocerta, Lucullus defeats Tigranes, son-in-law of Mithridates.
67. The war rapidly brought to an end by Pompey.
66. Pompey placed in command and defeats Mithridates.
66–62. Conspiracy of Catiline.
64–63. Organization of the Roman possessions in Asia under Pompey.
63. Death of Mithridates; Cicero elected consul; speeches against Catiline.
62. Defeat of Catiline at Pistoria.
61. Return of Pompey to Rome and triumph.
60. The first Triumvirate, Pompey, Cæsar, and Crassus.
58. Cicero banished from Rome.
58–51. Conquest of Gaul by Cæsar.

Rome—continued.

55 and 54. Cæsar's expeditions to Britain.
53. Expedition of Crassus against the Parthians and defeat at Carrhæ.
52. Siege and capture of Alesia in Gaul; surrender of Vercingetorix.
49. Cæsar crosses the Rubicon; flight of Pompey.
49–48. Civil war between Cæsar and Pompey.
48. Battle of Pharsalia, Pompey defeated by Cæsar.
48–47. Alexandrine war an attack upon Cæsar from which he extricates himself.
47. Battle of Zela, Cæsar defeats Pharnaces, son of Mithridates.
47–46. War in Africa, Cæsar against the adherents of Pompey.
46. Battle of Thapsus, Cæsar defeats the partizans of Pompey.
46–45. War against the sons of Pompey.
45. Battle of Munda, Cæsar defeats the adherents of Pompey in Spain.
44. Assassination of Cæsar.
43. Battle of Mutina, Octavian defeats Antony; the second Triumvirate, Antony, Octavian, and Lepidus; Cicero murdered.
42. Battle of Philippi, Antony defeats Cassius and Brutus.

FIRST CENTURY B.C.—continued.

Rome—continued.

40. Administration of the empire divided between Octavian in the West, Antony in the East, and Lepidus in Africa.
38–36. Sicilian war between the triumvirs and Sextus Pompeius.

Rome—continued.

31–30. War between Octavian and Antony.
31. Battle of Actium, defeat of Antony; Octavian sole ruler; Egypt made a province.

Rome—continued.

29. The temple of Janus closed.
27. Octavian receives the title of Augustus; the first Roman emperor.
4(about). Birth of Jesus Christ.

FIRST CENTURY A.D.

Roman Empire.

9. Army under Varus destroyed in the Teutoberg Forest.
(27 B.C.)–14. Augustus.
14–37. Tiberius.
23–31. Rule of Sejanus.
29(about). The crucifixion of Christ.
37–41. Caligula.
40. Invasion of Gaul.
41–54. Claudius.

Roman Empire—continued.

43. Visit of Claudius to Britain and subjugation of the Celtic Britons.
54–68. Nero.
64. Burning of Rome; first persecution of the Christians.
65. Death of Seneca.
68–69. Galba.
69–79. Vespasian.
70. Siege and capture of Jerusalem by Titus.

Roman Empire—continued.

78–84. Agricola's campaign in Britain.
79. Destruction of Herculaneum and Pompeii.
79–81. Titus.
81–96. Domitian.
93. Second persecution of the Christians.
96–98. Nerva.
98. Accession of Trajan.

SECOND CENTURY.

Roman Empire.

(98)–117. Trajan.
106. Conquest of Dacia.
107. Third persecution of the Christians.
114–116. War with Parthia.
116. Roman Empire at its greatest extent.
117–138. Hadrian.

Roman Empire—continued.

118. Fourth persecution of the Christians.
119(about). Visit of Hadrian to Britain.
132–135. Revolt of the Jews.
138–161. Antoninus Pius.
161–180. Marcus Aurelius.
162–165. War with Parthia.

Roman Empire—continued.

166–180. War with the Marcomanni and Quadi.
180–192. Commodus; beginning of Rome's rapid decline.
193. Accession of Septimius Severus.
198. Capture of Ctesiphon, the capital of Parthia.

THIRD CENTURY.

Roman Empire.

(193)–211. Septimius Severus.
211–217. Caracalla.
212. Full citizenship extended to all free inhabitants of the empire.
222–235. Alexander Severus.
249–251. Decius.
250. General persecution of the Christians.
254–260. Valerian.
259. Invasion of Gaul and Italy by the Alamanni.
260. War with Persia, defeat and capture of Valerian.

Roman Empire—continued.

270. Dacia given up to the Goths.
270–275. Aurelian.
273. Fall of Palmyra; defeat and capture of Zenobia.
284–(305). Diocletian.
286. Maximian appointed Augustus, colleague to Diocletian.
292. Constantius Chlorus and Galerius created "Cæsars."
296. Revolt in Egypt subdued.
296–298. War with Persia.

Persia.

226. End of the Parthian Empire and rise of the Sassanian Empire.
226–241. Ardashir.
233. Truce with Alexander Severus.
240–272(about). Sapor I.
260. Capture of Valerian.
292–(301). Narses.
298. Defeated in war with Rome; five provinces west of the Tigris ceded to Rome.

FOURTH CENTURY.

Roman Empire.

303. Persecution of the Christians.
305. Abdication of Diocletian.
308. Constantine one of six Augusti.
312. Constantine adopts Christianity.
323. Constantine becomes sole emperor.
325. First general church council at Nicæa.
330. Capital of the empire moved from Rome to Byzantium, henceforth Constantinople.
337. Death of Constantine and division of the administration among his three sons.
361–363. Julian.
361. Revival of paganism.
363. Expedition to Persia and death of Julian; Christianity reinstated.

Roman Empire—continued.

364. First division of the empire into East (under Valens) and West (under Valentinian I.).
375. Beginning of the migration of the Teutonic tribes into the Roman Empire.
378. Battle with the Goths at Adrianople and death of Valens.
379–394. Theodosius (East).
381. Second general church council at Constantinople.
382. Settlement of the Goths in Mœsia and Thrace.
390. Insurrection and massacre in Thessalonica.
392. Suppression of paganism by law.

Roman Empire—continued.

394. Theodosius sole emperor.
395. Death of Theodosius and final division of the empire into East and West.
400. Alaric's invasion of Italy.

Persia.

310–380. Sapor II.
337–350. First war with Rome.
348. Defeat of Constantius.
359–363. Second war with Rome.
363. The five provinces west of the Tigris restored to Persia.
384–389. Sapor III.; division of Armenia between Persia and Rome.

FIFTH CENTURY.

Western Empire.

(395)–423. Honorius.
402 or 403. Defeat of Alaric by Stilicho.
402(about). Capital removed from Rome to Ravenna.
406. Invasion of Gaul by Vandals, Alans, Suevi, and Burgundians.

Western Empire—continued.

409. Invasion of Spain by Vandals, Suevi, and Alans.
410. Sacking of Rome by Alaric; death of Alaric.
425–455. Valentinian III.

Western Empire—continued.

441–451. Huns under Attila traverse both empires.
451. Defeated at Châlons.
452. Invade Italy.
452(about). Venice founded.
453. Death of Attila.

FIFTH CENTURY—continued.

Western Empire—continued.

455. Pillage of Rome by the Vandals.
456. The Vandals defeated near Corsica.
456–472. Supremacy of Ricimer.
472. Siege and storming of Rome by Ricimer and his death.
475–476. Romulus Augustulus.
476. Dethroned by Odoacer; end of the Western Empire.

The Teutonic Kingdoms.

412. Visigoths enter Gaul.
415. Visigoths enter Spain.
418(about). Visigothic kingdom of Toulouse founded.
428. Vandals in Spain.
429. Vandal kingdom founded in Africa.
430. Siege of Hippo Regius.
439. Capture of Carthage.
449(about). Jutes land in Kent.
477. Saxon conquest of Britain begins.

The Teutonic Kingdoms—continued.

481. Kingdom of the Franks founded by Clovis.
486. Battle of Soissons, Clovis defeats Syagrius, the last representative of Roman authority in the West.
489. Ostrogoths invade Italy, Theodoric defeats Odoacer at Verona and founds Ostrogothic kingdom in Italy.
495. Beginning of kingdom of Wessex.
496. Baptism of Clovis.

Eastern Empire.

(395)–408. Arcadius.
408–450. Theodosius II.
414–453. Pulcheria empress.
442. Invasion by the Huns under Attila.
457–474. Leo I.
466. Anthemius, general of Leo I., defeats the Huns at Sardica.

The Church.

405(about). Vulgate version of the Bible finished.
420. Death of Saint Jerome.
428–431. Nestorius patriarch of Constantinople.
430. Death of Saint Augustine.
431. Council of Ephesus.
440. Leo the Great elected Pope at Rome.
451. Council of Chalcedon.
461. Death of Leo, election of Hilarius.
496. The Franks under Clovis adopt Christianity.

Persia.

(399)–419. Isdegerd I.; persecution of Christians in Persia and Armenia.
419–440. Varahran V.; unsuccessful war with Rome.
438 or 439. Isdegerd II.

SIXTH CENTURY.

Eastern Empire.

527–565. Justinian.
529. Publication of Justinian's Code.
532. Fight between Green and Blue factions in Constantinople, large part of the city destroyed.
533. Publication of the Pandects.
533–534. Belisarius overthrows the Vandal kingdom in Africa.
535. Belisarius recovers Sicily from the Goths.
536. Belisarius captures Rome.
540. Belisarius captures Ravenna.
546. Rome recovered by Goths under Totila.
552. Rome recovered for the empire by Narses.
553. Italy annexed to the empire; end of the Ostrogothic kingdom.
565. Death of Justinian and Belisarius.
568. Institution of the exarchate of Ravenna; beginning of the Lombard kingdom in Italy under Alboin.

Persia.

501–531. Kobad I.
521–532. War with the Eastern Empire.
529. Battle of Dara, Persians defeated by Belisarius.

Persia—continued.

531–579. Chosroes I.
533. "Endless peace" with the Eastern Empire; payment of tribute by Justinian.
538. Capture of Antioch by Chosroes.
540–561. Renewal of war with the empire.
562. Expedition of Chosroes to Arabia.
563. Definite peace between Persia and the empire.
571. War renewed by the empire.

The Merovingian Franks.

507. Overthrow of the Visigothic kingdom of Toulouse by Clovis.
511. Death of Clovis and partition of the Frankish possessions between his sons.
528. Subjugation of the Thuringians.
534. Subjugation of the Burgundians.
540. Formal relinquishment of Gaul to the Franks by Justinian.
558–561. Clotaire I. sole ruler.
561–597(about). Feuds of Brunehilde and Fredegonda.
567. Second division of the kingdom into Austrasia, Neustria, and Burgundy.

Britain.

520. Saxon invasion checked by King Arthur.
547(about). Angles in Deira and Bernicia.
577. Battle of Deorham, decisive victory for the Saxons.
582(about). Beginning of the kingdom of Mercia.
593. Supremacy of Ethelbert, king of Kent.
597. Conversion of Ethelbert to Catholic Christianity.
600(about). Deira and Bernicia united in the kingdom of Northumbria.

The Church.

515. Monastic rule of Saint Benedict published.
529(about). Order of the Benedictines founded.
543. Death of Benedict.
553. Fifth general church council at Constantinople.
565. Monastery of Iona (Scotland) founded by Saint Columba.
590. Gregory the Great elected Pope.
597. Mission of Saint Augustine to England.
600(about). Augustine first archbishop of Canterbury.

SEVENTH CENTURY.

Persia and the Eastern Empire.

(590, 591?)–628. Chosroes II., king of Persia.
603–612. Conquest of Asia Minor and sack of Antioch.
603–620. Persian conquests from the Eastern Empire.
610–641. Heraclius, Eastern emperor.
614. Capture of Damascus and conquest of Syria; capture of Jerusalem and removal of the "true cross."
616. Capture of Alexandria and submission of Egypt.
617. Fall of Chalcedon; the Persian camp one mile from Constantinople.
620. Persia restored to its former limits under Darius I.
622–628. Recovery of the Persian conquests.
622. Advance to Issus and defeat of Shahr-Barz, the Persian commander.
623. Advance into Armenia and retreat of the Persians.
625. Battle of Sarus, defeat of the Persians.
626. Siege of Constantinople by Persians and Avars.
627. Battle of Nineveh, defeat of the Persians and flight of Chosroes.

Persia and the Eastern Empire—continued.

628. Recovery of Jerusalem and the "true cross," and death of Chosroes.

The Saracen Conquests.

610. Mohammed begins his mission as prophet.
622. Flight from Mecca (the hejira).
624–632. Conquest of Arabia.
624. Battle of Bedr, first battle for the faith.
630. Submission of Mecca.
632. Death of Mohammed.
632–651. Conquest of Persia.
634–637. Conquest of Syria.
634. Battle of Aiznadin, defeat of Heraclius.
634–644. Omar calif (successor).
635. Battle of Cadesia, defeat of the Persians; capture of Antioch.
636. Battle of Yermuck, decisive defeat of Heraclius.
637. Capture of Jerusalem; capture of Ctesiphon and defeat of the Persians at the battle of Jalulu.
640–646. Conquest of Egypt.

The Saracen Conquests—continued.

641. Battle of Nehavend, fall of the Sassanian Empire.
641. Capture of Alexandria.
644. Assassination of Omar.
644–656. Othman calif.
646. Second capture and sack of Alexandria.
647. Conquest of northern Africa commenced.
656–661. Civil war for the succession.
661. Murder of Ali; Ommiad dynasty, califs of Damascus, founded.
661–680. Moawiyeh I.
668. Repulsed at Constantinople.
672–677. Siege of Constantinople.
680. Massacre of Hosein and his followers at Kerbela.
697. Capture of Carthage.

Merovingian Franks.

613–629. Clotaire II.
613. Execution of Brunehilde and reunion of the Frankish dominions.
628–638. Dagobert I., widest extent of Merovingian kingdom.

SEVENTH CENTURY—continued.

Merovingian Franks—continued.

638. Death of Dagobert and division of the kingdom.
656. "Rois Fainéants," with mayors of the palace actual rulers.
687. Battle of Testry, Pepin of Heristal becomes virtual ruler of the whole kingdom of the Franks.

England.

603–685. Supremacy of Northumbria.

England—continued.

607. Battle of Chester, defeat of the Welsh.
626–655. Revolt of Mercia under Penda in the interest of paganism.
627. Conversion of Northumbria to Christianity.
655. Death of Penda.
664. Synod of Whitby, adhesion of Northumbria to the Roman church.
668–690. Organization of the church in England by Theodore of Tarsus, archbishop of Canterbury.

Miscellaneous.

604. Death of Pope Gregory the Great.
616. First expulsion of the Jews from Spain.
680–681. Sixth council of Constantinople.
680. A Bulgarian kingdom established in Mœsia.
697. First doge elected in Venice.

EIGHTH CENTURY.

The Carolingian Franks.

714–741. Charles Martel, major domus.
719. Battle of Soissons, Charles Martel becomes ruler of both the Frankish kingdoms.
732. Battle of Tours, great defeat of the Saracens.
741–768. Pepin the Short.
751. Pepin deposes Childeric III. and becomes king of the Franks; end of Merovingian rule; exarchate of Ravenna taken by the Lombards.
751–(987). Carolingian kings of the West Franks.
754. Pepin anointed king by Pope Stephen II.
755. Exarchate of Ravenna taken by Pepin and donated to the pope; beginning of the pope's temporal rule.
768. Accession of Charles the Great with his brother.
771–814. Charles the Great sole ruler.
772. First Saxon war.

The Carolingian Franks—continued.

774. Capture of Pavia and destruction of the Lombard kingdom.
778. Expedition into Spain.
785. Great struggle of the Saxons against Charles, and their submission.
788. Subjugation of Bavaria.
791–796. Conquest of the Avars.
799. Formation of Ostmark, the beginning of Austria.
800. Imperial coronation of Charles at Rome.

Saracen Empire.

709. Conquest of northern Africa completed.
711. Tarik crosses from Africa to Spain; battle of Xeres, end of the Visigothic kingdom.
712. Fall of Toledo.
719. Conquest of Narbonne.

Saracen Empire—continued.

732. Battle of Tours; the Saracen advance checked.
750. Overthrow of the Ommiad dynasty; beginning of Abbasside dynasty, califs of Bagdad.
754–775. Al-Mansur, builder of Bagdad.
756. Califate of Cordova in Spain founded by Abd-er-Rahman.
786–(809). Harun-al-Rashid; eastern califate at the height of its power.

Eastern Empire.

717–720. Siege of Constantinople by the Saracens.
718–741. Leo III., the Isaurian.
726. Iconoclastic edict forbidding worship of images.
780–790. Irene regent.
797–802. Irene empress.

NINTH CENTURY.

Empire of Charlemagne.

804. Complete subjugation of the Saxons and their conversion to Christianity.
808–810. Defeat of the Danes.
814. Death of Charlemagne.
814–840. Louis I., the Pious, emperor.
833. "The Field of Lies"; Louis in the power of his rebellious sons.
834. Louis I. restored to the throne.
840. Death of Louis I.
840–855. Lothaire I. emperor.
843. Partition of the empire between the three sons of Louis I. at Verdun; beginning of France and Germany.
843–876. Louis the German, founder of the German monarchy.
843–877. Charles the Bald.
843–(911). Carolingian kings of Germany.
855–875. Louis II. emperor.
855–886. Defense of Paris against the Northmen by Eudes.
861. Foundation of the duchy of France; origin of the house of Capet.
875. Charles the Bald became emperor.
876–887. Charles the Fat.
881. Charles the Fat became emperor.
885. Charles the Fat elected king of the West Franks, uniting again the dominions of Charlemagne.
887. Charles the Fat deposed.
887–899. Arnulf.

Empire of Charlemagne—continued.

888. Founding of the kingdom of Transjurane Burgundy.
895. Arnulf invades Italy and captures Rome.
896. Arnulf crowned emperor.

The Northmen.

835. Invasion of the Netherlands and sack of Utrecht.
836. Burning of Antwerp and ravaging of Flanders.
837. First expedition up the Rhine.
841. Expedition up the Seine and capture of Rouen.
845. First attack on Paris and destruction of Hamburg.
847. Siege and capture of Bordeaux.
854. Ravages on the Loire.
855. First permanent footing in England.
861. Paris surprised.
866. Beginning of permanent conquest in England.
874. Settlement in Ireland.
876. The Seine entered under Rollo.
878. Ravages in Germany and peace with Alfred in England.
885, 889, 890. Sieges of Paris under Rollo.
891. Defeated at Louvain.

England.

802–839. Egbert king of Wessex.
829. Egbert becomes lord of all England.
847–865. Invasions and ravages of the Northmen.
866–880. Permanent conquests made by the Northmen in Northumbria, Mercia, and East Anglia.
871–(901). Alfred the Great.
878. Retreat before the Danes followed by victory; treaty of Wedmore; England north of Watling street ceded to the Danes.
890(about). Alfred's laws.
894. Danish invasions renewed.
897. Checked by Alfred with a fleet.

Eastern Empire.

862(about). The Varangians under Rurik at Novgorod.
865. First naval expedition of the Varangians against Constantinople.
867–886. Basil I. the Macedonian.
885. He expelled the Saracens from Italy.

The Saracens.

813–833. Al-Mamun, "the Augustus of Bagdad."
838. Invasion of Asia Minor.
843. Capture of Messina.
846. Attack on Rome.
878. Capture of Syracuse in Sicily.

TENTH CENTURY.

Germany and Italy.

900–911. Louis the Child.
908–910. Germany devastated by the Magyars.
911. Death of Louis; end of the Carolingian dynasty in Germany.
911–918. Conrad of Franconia.

Germany and Italy—continued.

916. Bérenger I. crowned emperor in Italy.
919–936. Henry I. the Fowler.
924. Death of Bérenger and lapse of the imperial title; devastation of Germany by the Hungarians.
933. Victory over the Hungarians.

Germany and Italy—continued.

936–973. Otto I.
951. First expedition of Otto I. into Italy against Bérenger II., king of Italy.
955. Hungarians invade Italy and are defeated on the Lechfeld.

TENTH CENTURY—continued.

Germany and Italy—continued.

961. Second expedition of Otto I. to Italy to assist the pope against Bérenger, who was dethroned; the crown of Italy passes from the descendants of Charlemagne to the sovereigns of Germany.
962. The imperial office revived; Otto I. crowned emperor of the "Holy Roman Empire."
966–967. Third expedition of Otto I. to Italy.
973–983. Otto II. emperor.
980–983. Wars in Italy.
980–998. Attempt of Crescentius to restore the ancient republic at Rome.
982. Otto II. totally defeated by the Saracens in southern Italy.
983–(1002). Otto III.
996. Otto III. crowned emperor at Rome.
999. Election of Gerbert as Pope Silvester II.
1000. General expectation throughout Christendom of the end of the world.

France.

(898)–929. Charles III. the Simple.
910. Founding of the monastery of Cluny.
911. Grant of Normandy to Rollo.
912. Baptism of Rollo.
937. Invasion of France by the Hungarians.
987. Death of Louis V., the last of the Carolingian kings; election of Hugh Capet, founder of the Capetian dynasty.
996. Death of Hugh Capet.
997. Insurrection of peasants in Normandy.

England.

901. Death of Alfred the Great.
901–924. Edward the Elder.
924. Edward lord of all Britain.
924–940. Athelstan.
937. Battle of Brunanburh, defeat of the Danes, Scots, and Welsh.

England—continued.

946. Rise of Dunstan.
959. Dunstan archbishop of Canterbury.
980. Invasions of the Northmen renewed.
988. Death of Dunstan.
991. Battle of Maldon, the Danes victorious; first payment of Danegeld.

The Saracens.

909. Fatimite califate in Africa founded.
912–961. Abd-er-Rahman III. calif at Cordova; Arab period in Spain at height of its splendor.
935. Secular authority of the Abbasside califate passes into the hands of the "Emir el Omrah," the calif remaining spiritual head.
969. Authority of the Fatimite calif established in Egypt.

ELEVENTH CENTURY.

Germany and Italy.

1002. Death of Otto III., accession of Henry II.
1004. Henry II. invades Italy, defeats Ardoin, and is crowned king of Italy at Pavia.
1014. Second Italian expedition of Henry II., who is crowned emperor at Rome.
1024. Conrad II., the Salian, chosen king.
1026. Conrad II. crowned king of Italy at Pavia.
1027. Conrad II. crowned emperor at Rome.
1033. Burgundy, the kingdom of Arles, united with the Empire.
1039. Death of Conrad II., accession of Henry III.
1042. The Normans conquer Apulia.
1046. Henry III. comes to Italy, deposes the three rival popes, secures the election of Clement II., and is crowned emperor.
1051. Dispute between Leo IX. and the Patriarch of Constantinople, who refuses to acknowledge the superiority of the pope.
1053. Leo IX. is defeated by the Normans at Civitella.
1056. Death of Henry III. and accession of Henry IV.
1059. Nicholas II. issues a decree which places the election of the popes in the hands of the cardinals.
1073. Hildebrand is elected pope as Gregory VII.
1074. Uprisings of the Saxons against Henry IV.
1075. Quarrel between Henry IV. and Gregory VII. over the question of investiture.
1076. Gregory VII. is deposed at the Council of Worms; he excommunicates the emperor.
1077. Henry IV. humbles himself before Gregory VII. at Canossa; renewal of the strife, elections of an antipope and rival emperor.
1081. Robert Guiscard defeats Alexius Comnenus at Durazzo.

Germany and Italy—continued.

1084. Henry IV. marches against Rome; he is crowned emperor by the antipope Clement III.; Gregory VII. calls on Guiscard to aid him against the emperor; sack of Rome by the Norman troops.
1085. Death of Gregory VII. and of Robert Guiscard.
1088. Election of Pope Urban II.
1090. Final triumph of the Normans over the Mohammedans in Sicily.
1095. Urban II. preaches the first crusade at the Council of Clermont.

France.

1031. Death of Robert the Pious, accession of Henry I.
1041. The "Truce of God" introduced in Guienne.
1047. Henry I. helps William crush the Norman nobles at Val-es-Dunes.
1054. Henry I. defeated by William of Normandy at Mortemer.
1058. Henry I. defeated by William at Varaville.
1060. Death of Henry I. and accession of Philip I.
1076. Philip I. helps the Bretons to repulse the Normans.
1092. Philip I. repudiates his wife Bertha, and marries Betrada, which leads to a quarrel with the church.
1094. Urban II. excommunicates Philip.

England.

1002. Massacre of the Danes on St. Brice's day.
1003–1013. Sweyn harries England.
1016. Death of Edmund Ironside; Canute becomes king of England.
1030(about). Canute issues a new code of laws.
1035. Death of Canute.
1035–1042. Reigns of Harold and Harthacanute.
1042. Edward the Confessor elected king.
1051. Godwine, earl of Wessex, is outlawed.

England—continued.

1052. Return of Godwine and Harold to England.
1053. Death of Godwine.
1065. Danes in Northumbria rise against Tostig.
1066. Death of Edward the Confessor, and election of Harold; Harold Hardrada, king of Norway, and Tostig, invading England from the north, are defeated at Stamford Bridge; William of Normandy invades England, and defeats Harold at Senlac.
1066–1087. William the Conqueror king of England.
1067–1070. Revolts of the English against Norman rule.
1086. Completion of the survey which led to Domesday Book.
1087. Death of William I. and accession of William II. (Rufus).
1093. Anselm appointed archbishop of Canterbury.
1100. Death of William Rufus in the New Forest.

Miscellaneous.

1001. First Mohammedan invasion of India by Mahmud of Ghazni.
1001–1035. Sancho the Great, king of Navarre.
1018. Bulgaria incorporated with the Eastern Empire.
1071. The Eastern emperor is defeated and captured by the Turks at Manzikert.
1084. St. Bruno founds the Carthusian order.
1086. Alfonso VI. defeated by the Almoravides at Zalaca.
1095. Conquest of Valencia by the Cid.
1096–1099. The first crusade.
1097. Capture of Nicæa by the crusaders.
1098. Antioch taken by the Christians; founding of the Cistercian order.
1099. Jerusalem captured by the crusaders; founding of the kingdom of Jerusalem.
1100. Death of Godfrey of Boulogne.

TWELFTH CENTURY.

Germany and Italy.

1106. Death of Henry IV. and accession of Henry V.
1111. Henry V. goes to Rome to be crowned; Paschal II. renounces the temporalities of the church.

Germany and Italy—continued.

1122. The investiture contest is settled by the Concordat of Worms between Calixtus II. and the emperor, a compromise.
1125. Death of Henry V. and accession of Lothair II., duke of Saxony.

Germany and Italy—continued.

1127. Roger unites Sicily and Apulia.
1130. Roger is crowned king of Sicily; schism of Innocent II. and Anacletus.
1133. Lothair II. takes sides with Innocent II., who crowns him emperor at Rome.

TWELFTH CENTURY—continued.

Germany and Italy—continued.

1135. Lothair II. proclaims a general peace for Germany at the Diet of Bamberg.
1138. Death of Lothair II. and accession of Conrad of Hohenstaufen, duke of Swabia.
1139. Innocent II. recognizes the Norman kingdom of Sicily.
1140. Conrad III. secures his throne by defeating the Guelfs at Weinsberg.
1144. Influenced by the preaching of Arnold of Brescia, the Romans revolt against Innocent II.
1147–1149. Conrad III. goes on the second crusade.
1152. Frederick I. (Barbarossa) succeeds Conrad III.
1154–1155. Frederick I. invades Italy, holds a diet at Roncaglia, destroys Tortona, receives the Lombard crown at Pavia, and is crowned emperor by Hadrian IV. at Rome.
1156. The duchy of Austria established.
1157. At the Diet of Besançon the Burgundian nobles do homage to the emperor.
1158. Second invasion of Italy by Frederick I., submission of the Lombard cities, second diet at Roncaglia.
1159. Schism in the papacy between Alexander III. and Victor IV.
1162. Destruction of Milan by Frederick I. and his allies.
1166. Frederick I. invades Italy for the fourth time.
1167. Formation of the Lombard League.
1168. Founding of Alessandria.
1176. The Lombard League defeats Frederick I. at Legnano, May 29.
1177. Alexander III. is reconciled to Frederick by the peace of Venice.
1180. Frederick I. forces Henry the Lion to submit, and takes from him some of his territories.
1183. A permanent treaty between the emperor and the Lombard League signed at Constance.
1186. Marriage of Henry, son of Frederick, to Constance of Sicily.
1189. Frederick I. starts on the third crusade.
1190. Frederick I. is drowned in Cilicia.
1191. Henry VI. crowned emperor at Rome; he fails in his attack on Apulia.
1192. Henry makes war on the Guelfs in Germany.
1193. The barons of the Rhineland revolt against the emperor.
1194. Apulia and Sicily conquered by Henry VI.

Germany and Italy—continued.

1195. Death of Henry the Lion.
1197. Suppression of the Sicilian revolt, death of Henry VI.
1198. Innocent III. is elected pope; double election in Germany, Philip of Hohenstaufen vs. Otto of Brunswick; death of Constance of Sicily; Frederick (II.) becomes the pope's ward.

France.

1108. Accession of Louis VI.
1137. Accession of Louis VII. who has married Eleanor of Aquitaine.
1147–1149. Louis VII. goes on the second crusade, leaving Suger in charge of affairs in France.
1152. Death of Suger; Louis VII. divorces Eleanor.
1162. Louis VII. takes up the cause of Alexander III. against the antipope.
1180. Death of Louis VII. and accession of Philip II. (Augustus).
1185. War between Philip II. and Flanders ended by the peace of Aumâle.
1190–1191. Philip II. away from France on the third crusade.
1193. Marriage of Philip II. with Ingeborg of Denmark.
1196. Philip II. repudiates Ingeborg and marries Agnes of Meran; protest of the church.
1200. Innocent III. pronounces an interdict over France.

England.

1100–1135. Henry I. king of England.
1104. Henry I. invades Normandy.
1106. Henry I. defeats his brother Robert at Tinchebrai, September 28, and takes possession of Normandy.
1107. Settlement of the quarrel between Henry I. and Anselm over investitures.
1120. Sinking of the "White Ship," death of Henry's son William.
1128. Marriage of Matilda of England and Geoffrey of Anjou.
1135. Death of Henry I. and accession of Stephen, count of Blois.
1136. Outbreak of civil war between Stephen and Matilda.
1138. David of Scotland defeated in the battle of the Standard.
1141. Stephen defeated and captured at the battle of Lincoln.
1152. Henry of Anjou (the future Henry II.) married to Eleanor of Aquitaine.

England—continued.

1153. Civil war ended by the treaty of Wallingford.
1154. Death of Stephen, accession of Henry II.
1159. The "Great Scutage."
1162. Thomas a Becket made archbishop of Canterbury.
1164. A period of legislation and reforms—the Constitutions of Clarendon.
1166. The Assize of Clarendon.
1170. Murder of Becket; system of itinerant justices established.
1171. Henry II. invades Ireland.
1176. The Assize of Northampton.
1181. The Assize of Arms.
1183–1189. War between Henry II. and his sons.
1188. Imposition of the Saladin tithe.
1189. Richard I. (Cœur de Lion) becomes king.
1190–1192. Richard I. takes part in the third crusade.
1192. Richard I. is captured by Leopold of Austria and handed over to Henry VI., who exacts from him a heavy ransom.
1194. Richard I. returns to England.
1195. Richard I. defeats Philip Augustus at Gisors.
1199. Death of Richard I. and accession of John.

Miscellaneous.

1115. Foundation of Clairvaux by Bernard.
1120. Establishment of the Premonstrant congregation by Norbert of Xanten.
1128. Honorius II. authorizes the Order of Knights Templar.
1130. The Knights of St. John (Hospitallers) are converted into a military brotherhood.
1142. Death of Abelard; about this time Gratian writes the Decretum.
1144. Zenghi captures Edessa.
1146. St. Bernard preaches the second crusade at Vézelay.
1147. Lisbon saved from the Moors by a crusading fleet.
1148. Unsuccessful siege of Damascus by the crusaders.
1160. Death of Peter Lombard.
1187. Jerusalem captured by Saladin.
1189–1192. The third crusade.
1190. Foundation of the Order of Teutonic Knights.
1191. Capture of Acre by the crusaders.

THIRTEENTH CENTURY.

Germany and Italy.

1208. Murder of Philip of Swabia.
1209. Otto IV. crowned emperor by Innocent III.
1210. Quarrel between Innocent III. and Otto IV.
1212. Frederick II. of Hohenstaufen elected king and crowned at Mainz.
1214. Defeat of Otto IV. at Bouvines.
1216. Death of Innocent III.
1220. At the Diet of Frankfort Frederick II. greatly extends the powers of the ecclesiastical princes; he is crowned emperor at Rome.
1225. Marriage of the emperor with Iolande of Brienne.
1226. At the Diet of Cremona Frederick II. renews the imperial claims on Lombardy; the Lombard cities renew the league.
1227. Excommunication of Frederick II. by Gregory IX.
1228. Frederick II. starts on his crusade.
1229. Frederick II. makes a treaty with the Sultan of Egypt and gets Jerusalem.

Germany and Italy—continued.

1230. Reconciliation of pope and emperor by the peace of San Germano.
1235. Frederick puts down the revolt of his son Henry, marries Isabella of England, declares war on the Lombard League.
1237. Army of the Lombard League defeated at Cortenuova.
1239. Gregory excommunicates Frederick II. and tries to stir up revolt in Germany.
1241. Death of Gregory IX.; victory of Enzio over the Genoese fleet at Elba.
1243. Election of Innocent IV.
1245. Deposition of Frederick II. by the Council of Lyons.
1246–1247. Henry Raspe and William of Holland elected antikings.
1247. Parma revolts against Frederick II.
1249. Enzio, son of Frederick II., captured by the Bolognese at Fossalta.
1250. Death of Frederick II. in Apulia, accession of Conrad IV.
1254. Death of Conrad IV., Manfred becomes regent for the young Conradin.

Germany and Italy—continued.

1255–1256. Conquest of Naples and Sicily by Manfred.
1256. Death of William of Holland, double election of Richard, earl of Cornwall, and Alfonso X., king of Castile.
1256–1273. The "Great Interregnum."
1260. Ghibelline victory over the Florentines at Montaperto.
1266. Charles of Anjou crowned king of Sicily; defeat and death of Manfred at the battle of Benevento, Feb. 26.
1268. Conradin, defeated at Tagliacozzo, is captured and beheaded; end of the Hohenstaufen dynasty.
1273. Rudolph of Hapsburg is elected king of the Romans.
1276. Rudolph of Hapsburg makes war on Ottocar of Bohemia.
1278. Ottocar is killed in the battle of Marchfeld.
1281. Election of Martin IV.
1282. The "Sicilian Vespers," murder of the French in Sicily; transfer of Sicily to

THIRTEENTH CENTURY—continued.

Germany and Italy—continued.

Peter III. of Aragon; foundation of the territorial power of the house of Hapsburg by the acquisition of Austria, Styria, and Carniola.

1284. The Genoese defeat the Pisans at Meloria.

1291. Death of Rudolph of Hapsburg.

1292. Adolph of Nassau is elected king of the Romans.

1294. Election of Boniface VIII.

1297. Government of Venice changed from a democracy to a close oligarchy.

1298. Revolt of Albert of Austria and the archbishop of Mainz against Adolph, who is deposed and killed in battle; Albert, duke of Austria, chosen king.

France.

1202–1205. Philip II. conquers Normandy from John of England.

1208. Beginning of the crusade against the Albigensian heretics in Toulouse.

1213. Defeat and death of Peter of Aragon at the battle of Muret.

1214. Great victory of Philip II. at Bouvines, July 27.

1215. Simon de Montfort reduces to submission the county of Toulouse.

1216. Louis, son of Philip II., makes an unsuccessful expedition to England.

1218. Simon de Montfort is slain while besieging the city of Toulouse.

1223. Death of Philip II., accession of Louis VIII.

1226. Louis VIII. revives the Albigensian crusade; his death.

1226–1270. Louis IX., king of France.

1229. Treaty of Meaux, between Raymond VII., count of Toulouse, and the regent, Blanche of Castile, extends the royal domain in the south.

1235. Blanche of Castile overcomes the feudal reaction against the crown.

1242. Louis IX. defeats the English and Poitevins at the battle of Saintes.

1248–1254. Louis IX. goes on the sixth, an unsuccessful, crusade.

1251. Blanche of Castile suppresses the Pastoureaux.

1258. By the treaty of Corbeil Louis IX. exchanges land claims with James I. of Aragon.

1259. Settlement of English claims on Normandy and Anjou by treaty of Paris.

1263. Reform of the currency and establishment of the royal mints.

1270. Louis IX. goes to Tunis on a crusade and dies in camp; accession of Philip III.

1271. Toulouse falls to the French crown.

1284. Unsuccessful expedition against Aragon.

1285. Death of Philip III., and accession of Philip IV.

1294. Conflicts between Norman and English sailors lead to war between England and France.

1296. Trouble between Philip and Boniface VIII. over the taxation of the French clergy; the pope issues the bull Clericis laicos.

1298. Boniface VIII. brings about peace between France and England.

1299. Marriage of Edward I. and Margaret, sister of Philip IV.

England.

1203. Murder of Arthur, seizure of John's fiefs in France by Philip II.

1205. Disputed election of the archbishop of Canterbury.

1206. Stephen Langton elected archbishop by pope's order.

1208. Quarrel between John and Innocent III.; England under interdict; John excommunicated by the pope.

1212. Innocent deposes John.

1213. John submits and becomes a vassal of the pope; the barons present their demands at the Council of St. Albans.

1214. John's plans are wrecked by the French victory at Bouvines, July 27.

1215. John grants Magna Charta, June 15.

1216. Death of John.

1216–1272. Henry III.

1217. Defeat of Louis VIII. at Lincoln; confirmation of the Charter.

1219–1227. The government in the hands of Hubert de Burgh.

1227. Beginning of the rule of the aliens in England.

1230. Henry III. makes an expedition to France.

1236. Henry III. marries Eleanor, daughter of the Count of Provence.

1237. More aliens settle in England.

1244–1245. Summoning of the "parliaments."

1253. The Sicilian crown is offered to Edmund, Henry's youngest son.

1258. The barons set up a new government; the Provisions of Oxford.

1262. The king and barons agree to settle their dispute by the arbitration of Louis IX.

1264. Louis IX. decides in favor of the king in the Mise of Amiens; rising of the barons under Simon de Montfort; the battle of Lewes, May 14.

1265. Simon brings together the first great parliament; defeat and death of Simon at Evesham, Aug. 4.

1266. Henry III. grants an amnesty and confirms Magna Charta in the Dictum of Kenilworth.

1272. Accession of Edward I.

1275–1290. A period of great statutes.

1275. First Statute of Westminster.

1277–1284. Edward I. carries on war against the Welsh.

1278. Statute of Gloucester.

1279. Statute of Mortmain.

1283. Statute of Merchants (Acton Burnell).

1285. Second Statute of Westminster; Statute of Winchester; Statute of Circumspecte Agatis.

England—continued.

1290. Third Statute of Westminster (Quia Emptores); the Jews are driven from England.

1292. Edward I. decides the question of succession to the Scottish throne in favor of Baliol.

1295. Meeting of the "Model Parliament."

1296. Capture of Berwick; the Scots defeated at Dunbar, April 27; the Stone of Scone carried to London.

1297. Wallace defeats the English at Stirling.

1298. Edward I. invades Scotland and wins the battle of Falkirk, July 22.

Miscellaneous.

1202. Zara captured by the Venetians and crusaders.

1202–1204. The fourth crusade.

1204. Capture and sack of Constantinople.

1206. Jenghiz Khan, founder of the Mongol Empire, begins his rule.

1212. Defeat of the Moors by the Spanish Christians at the battle of Las Navas de Tolosa.

1215. Conquest of northern China and capture of Peking by Jenghiz Khan.

1216. The pope recognizes the Order of St. Dominic.

1218–1221. Conquest of Central Asia by Jenghiz Khan.

1219. Carmelites constituted by the patriarch of Jerusalem.

1223. Honorius establishes a fixed rule for the Order of St. Francis.

1227. Death of Jenghiz Khan.

1230. The Teutonic Knights begin the conquest of Prussia.

1241. Formation of the Hanseatic League; the Mongols invade Russia, Poland, and Hungary; their advance into Europe checked at Wahlstatt in Silesia.

1252–1282. Alfonso X., the Wise, king of Castile.

1253. Founding of the Order of Austin Friars.

1258. Capture of Bagdad, and overthrow of the Abbasside califate by the Mongols.

1259–1294. Reign of the great Mongol emperor Kublai Khan.

1261. The Latin Empire of the East ended by the capture of Constantinople by Michael Palæologus.

1268. Capture of Jaffa and Antioch by the sultan Bibars.

1271–1295. Marco Polo's travels in the far East.

1274. Death of Thomas Aquinas.

1280. Mongol dynasty established in China by Kublai Khan.

1283. Peter III. of Aragon issues the "General Privilege," a Spanish Magna Charta.

1288. Othman, founder of the Ottoman Empire, began his rule.

1291. Origin of the Swiss Confederation in the formation of a league between Uri, Schwyz, and Unterwalden.

1294. Death of Roger Bacon.

FOURTEENTH CENTURY.

France.

1302. Philip IV., quarreling with the pope, creates the Estates General; French feudal army totally defeated by Flemings at Courtrai, July 11.

1303–1304. Philip IV. wins his contest with the papacy.

1309–1376. Popes reside in Avignon.

1312. Abolition of the Order of Knights Templar.

1328. Louis X., Philip V., and Charles IV. having died without male heirs, direct Capetian line comes to an end.

France—continued.

1328–1350. Philip VI. (Valois).

1338. Beginning of Hundred Years' War.

1346. Edward III. lands in Normandy; defeats the French at Crécy, Aug. 26.

1347. Edward III. captures Calais.

1348. Outbreak of the black death.

1349. Annexation of Dauphiné to France—hence "dauphin" became the title of the heir to the French crown.

1355–1357. Estates General meet and demand important reforms which they embody in the "Great Ordinance."

France—continued.

1356. Battle of Poitiers won by the Black Prince, Sept. 19.

1357. Insurrection of the bourgeoisie of Paris, led by Étienne Marcel.

1358. Peasant war, marked by horrible cruelties—the Jacquerie.

1360. Peace of Bretigny (May 8) closes first part of Hundred Years' War, which had thus far gone in favor of the English.

1364. Accession of Charles V., the Wise, who, with the help of his general Bertrand du Guesclin, wins back most of the English possessions in France.

FOURTEENTH CENTURY—continued.

France—continued.

1380. Charles VI. comes to the French throne at the age of eleven.
1382. Rising of the Maillotins in Paris; French defeat the Flemings at Roosebek.
1392. Charles VI. becomes insane; the dukes of Burgundy and Orléans dispute for the government of France.

England.

1307–1327. Edward II.
1310. To check the bad government of the king and his favorite Gaveston, the English barons intrust the government to twenty-one lords ordainers.
1311. New ordinances, looking to reform of abuses, presented by ordainers.
1314. Scotch under Bruce win battle of Bannockburn, June 24.
1321. Edward II.'s new favorites, the Despensers, exiled by Parliament.
1327. Deposition of Edward II.; Edward III. comes to the throne at age of fifteen; council of regency.
1328. Unsuccessful war with Scotland ended by treaty of Northampton.
1330. Edward III. assumes actual control, executes Mortimer, and imprisons the queen mother.
1333. Scots are defeated at battle of Halidon Hill, July 19; Baliol restored to Scottish throne.
1338. Hundred Years' War with France begins (see France).
1341. Completion of the division of Parliament into two houses.
1346. Defeat of the Scots at Neville's Cross, Oct. 17.
1349. Black death having carried off at least one half of the laboring classes, the Statute of Laborers is passed to regulate wages.
1351. First Statute of Provisors denies to the pope the right of appointing foreigners to English benefices.
1353. Statute of Præmunire forbidding suits in foreign courts for matters cognizable in England.
1366. Wyclif issues his De Dominio Divino.
1376. The Good Parliament demands punishment of the favorites and a reformation of the king's government.
1377–1399. Richard II.
1381. Revolt of the peasants under Wat Tyler and John Ball; Wyclif denies the doctrine of transubstantiation.
1382. Wyclif's doctrines condemned at the Council of Blackfriars.
1388. The "Merciless" Parliament condemns and puts to death five of the king's associates; English defeated at battle of Chevy Chase.
1392. Statute (second) of Præmunire designed to check the power of the pope in England.
1397. Parliament, under direct influence of the king, impeaches the earls of Arundel, Warwick, Nottingham, and Derby.
1398. Henry Bolingbroke banished by the king.

England—continued.

1399. Richard seizes lands of John of Gaunt; goes to Ireland on expedition; Bolingbroke, now duke of Lancaster, lands in England and captures, deposes, and imprisons Richard.
1400. Death of Chaucer.

Germany.

1308. Albert I. of Austria, after reducing the princes to obedience, is killed by his nephew John (the Parricide).
1312. Henry VII. of Luxemburg interferes in Italian affairs, and is crowned emperor at Rome.
1315. The Swiss defeat Leopold of Austria at Morgarten, Nov. 15.
1322. Frederick the Fair defeated and taken prisoner at Mühldorf, Sept. 28.
1323. Marsilius of Padua writes his "Defensor Pacis."
1347. Charles IV. chosen emperor in opposition to Lewis the Bavarian.
1348. University of Prague founded.
1355. Charles IV. crowned emperor at Rome.
1356. Charles IV. issues the Golden Bull, fundamental law of the empire.
1365. University of Vienna founded by Duke Rudolph IV.
1368. Second expedition of Charles IV. to Italy to aid the pope against the Visconti.
1370. Partition of Hapsburg territories between Albert III. and Leopold.
1373. Charles IV. acquires Brandenburg.
1376. Election of Wenzel as king of the Romans; founding of the Swabian League of Cities.
1378. Death of Charles IV. and partition of his dominions.
1386. Leopold of Hapsburg is defeated and killed by the Swiss in the battle of Sempach, July 9.
1389. Hapsburgs recognize by treaty the independence of the Swiss Confederation.

Italy.

1302. Settlement of the long Sicilian wars; Frederick, brother of James II. of Aragon, recognized as king of Sicily.
1303. Imprisonment at Anagni, and death at Rome, of Boniface VIII.
1309. The popes remove to Avignon.
1311. Matteo Visconti restored to Milan and appointed imperial vicar by Henry VII.
1328. Death of Galeazzo Visconti.
1332. League of Italian states against John of Bohemia.
1343. The Florentines, defeated by the Pisans, intrust their government to Walter de Brienne as temporary dictator.
1347. Rienzi introduces reforms in the government at Rome.
1348. Rienzi's character deteriorates, and he goes into exile.
1350–1355. War between Genoa and Venice; Genoa successful.
1353. Innocent VI. sends Cardinal Albornoz to Italy to recover the Papal States, almost lost during the residence of the popes at Avignon.
1354. Rienzi returns to Rome, is used by

Italy—continued.

Cardinal Albornoz to further papal interests, and is killed in a popular tumult.
1369. The Eastern emperor John V. visits Rome, and agrees to a union between the Greek and Latin churches.
1370. Urban V. returns to Rome from Avignon.
1378. Galeazzo Visconti dies and is succeeded by Gian Galeazzo; election of antipope Clement VII.; beginning of the Great Schism.
1379. The Genoese seize Chioggia and blockade Venice.
1380. Venice permanently triumphs over Genoa.
1395. Gian Galeazzo made duke of Milan by Wenzel.
1400. Ladislas, son of Charles III., finally secures the crown of Naples against Louis II. of Anjou.

Miscellaneous.

1307. Seljuk Empire broken up by death of Aladdin III.
1309. Teutonic Order transfers its headquarters from Venice to Marienburg.
1326. Death of Osman (Othman).
1326–1359. Orkhan Ottoman ruler and conqueror.
1329. The Ottoman Turks defeat the Greek emperor at Pelekanon.
1332. Luzern admitted to the league of the Swiss cantons.
1336. Rising in Ghent under Jacob van Artevelde to restore supply of English wool to Flemish looms.
1340. Alfonso XI. of Castile defeats the Moors at Río Salado, Oct. 29.
1343. Casimir the Great of Poland concludes the treaty of Kalisch with the Teutonic Order.
1351. Zurich joins the Swiss league.
1352–1353. The eight old cantons of the Swiss Confederation completed by the accession of Glarus, Zug, and Bern.
1354. Suleiman seizes Gallipoli in Thrace, the first possession of the Turks on European soil.
1359–1389. Amurath I. Ottoman ruler and conqueror.
1361. Waldemar IV. captures Wisby; beginning of war between Denmark and the Hanseatic League; Turks seize Adrianople, which becomes their European capital till 1453.
1368. Copenhagen captured by the Hanseatic fleet; Ming dynasty in China begins.
1370. Treaty of Stralsund puts an end to Danish war; Hanseatic League at height of its power.
1370(about). Timur begins his rule at Samarkand.
1389. Turks win battle against the Servians and allies at Kossovo; death of Amurath I. and accession of Bajazet I.
1396. Bajazet I. defeats a combined force of Europeans at Nicopolis.
1397. Denmark, Norway, and Sweden united by the Union of Kalmar.
1398. Conquest of a great part of India by Timur.

FIFTEENTH CENTURY.

France.

1404. Death of Philip the Bold, duke of Burgundy.
1407. Louis, duc d'Orléans, assassinated by the Burgundian party in Paris.
1410. Civil war breaks out between the Burgundians and Armagnacs in France.

France—continued.

1413. The Estates General pass the Cabochian Ordinance.
1414. Defeat of the Burgundians, and treaty of Arras.
1415. Henry V. of England invades France, captures Harfleur, and defeats the French at Agincourt, Oct. 25.

France—continued.

1418. Burgundians overpower the Armagnacs and seize Paris.
1420. Treaty of Troyes gives Henry V. the regency and succession in France.
1422–1461. Charles VII. king of France.
1428. Siege of Orléans by English and Burgundians.

FIFTEENTH CENTURY—continued.

France—continued.

1429. Joan of Arc raises siege of Orléans; Charles VII. crowned at Rheims.
1431. Trial and execution of Joan of Arc.
1435. Treaty of Arras between Charles VII. and Philip of Burgundy.
1436. English lose Paris.
1439. Estates General adopt the "Great Ordinance," which provides for a standing army to be supported by the taille.
1440. Insurrection of the nobles and Dauphin—the Praguerie.
1453. End of Hundred Years' War; English lose all their possessions in France except Calais.
1461–1483. Louis XI.
1465. French nobles and Charles the Bold form the League of Public Weal against Louis XI., who is forced into the treaty of Conflans.
1468. Interview at Péronne between Louis XI. and Charles the Bold; treaty of Péronne.
1469. Charles the Bold obtains Alsace and the Breisgau from Sigismund of Tyrol.
1474–1476. War between the Swiss and Charles the Bold.
1477. Charles the Bold killed at Nancy; Louis XI. seizes most of the Burgundian possessions.
1483. Accession of Charles VIII.; regency of Anne of Beaujeu.
1494. Charles VIII., asserting his claim to Naples, invades Italy.
1498. Louis XII. becomes king of France.
1499. Louis XII. conquers Milan.

England.

1401. Statute of Heresy, persecution of the Lollards.
1403. Defeat of Hotspur and his fellow-conspirators at Shrewsbury.
1413–1422. Henry V. renews the Hundred Years' War (see France).
1422. Henry VI. only nine months old on his father's death; the Duke of Gloucester made protector in England; Duke of Bedford, regent, carries on war in France.
1450. Suffolk, charged with failure of the war in France, is impeached by Commons; Jack Cade's Rebellion.
1453. Henry VI. becomes insane; struggle for power between York and Somerset.
1455. First battle of the War of the Roses fought at St. Albans; Somerset slain.
1459. The Lancastrians again defeated at Blore Heath.
1460. Lancastrians defeated at Northampton; Queen Margaret and Prince Edward win battle of Wakefield, Dec. 31; York killed.
1461. At Mortimer's Cross the Lancastrians are defeated by Edward, earl of March, Feb. 2; the Yorkists, under Warwick, are in turn defeated at the second battle of St. Albans, Feb. 17; Edward of York is proclaimed king at London; Warwick defeats the Lancastrians at Towton, March 29.
1470. Break between Edward IV. and Warwick, who changes sides.
1471. The Lancastrians, under Warwick, beaten at Barnet, April 14; defeat and capture of Margaret at Tewkesbury, May 4; death of Henry VI.
1474? First book printed in English (at Cologne? or Bruges?).
1475. English invasion of France to help the Burgundians.
1477. Caxton establishes a printing-press at Westminster.

England—continued.

1482. War with Scotland; Berwick surrendered to English.
1483. Richard III. becomes king; murder of the princes in the Tower.
1485. Richard III. slain at Bosworth Field; Richmond proclaimed king as Henry VII.
1486. Henry VII. marries Elizabeth of York.
1487. The conspiracy of Lambert Simnel (pretended Earl of Warwick) is suppressed; Court of Star Chamber established.
1492–1499. Perkin Warbeck impersonates Richard, Duke of York, son of Edward IV.; his cause upheld by Margaret of Burgundy and by Scotland; captured and executed.

Germany.

1401. Rupert III. makes war on Milan, and is defeated at Brescia.
1409. Troubles at Prague cause German students and professors to leave and go to Leipsic, where Frederick the Warlike founds a university.
1410. Three rival emperors (Wenceslaus, Sigismund, and Jodocus), and three rival popes (Benedict XIII., Gregory XII., and John XXIII.).
1414. Frederick of Hohenzollern gets Brandenburg from Sigismund.
1414–1418. Council of Constance called to heal the schism and suppress heresy.
1415. John Huss put to death by Council of Constance.
1416. Jerome of Prague put to death by Council of Constance.
1417. Election of Martin V. ends the schism.
1418. Council of Constance, after passing the decree Frequens, is dissolved.
1419–1434. Hussite war; Bohemians, led by John Ziska, are successful against the imperial troops.
1431. Meeting of the Council of Basel.
1437. Council transferred to Ferrara.
1438. Albert II., a Hapsburg, elected emperor.
1439? Invention of printing by John Gutenberg.
1448. Frederick III. and Pope Nicholas V. agree to concordat of Vienna.
1453. Austria becomes an archduchy.
1466. By the (second) treaty of Thorn, West Prussia is ceded to Poland and East Prussia retained by Teutonic Order as a Polish fief.
1477. Maximilian of Austria marries Mary, daughter of Charles the Bold.
1486. Division of the Hohenzollerns into the Brandenburg and the Franconian lines; election of Maximilian as king of the Romans.
1491. By the treaty of Pressburg Maximilian recovers the Austrian territories conquered by Matthias Corvinus.
1493. On the death of Frederick III., Maximilian I. unites all the Hapsburg possessions.
1496. Marriage of Philip, Maximilian's son, with Joanna, daughter of Ferdinand and Isabella.
1499. Maximilian I. makes war on the Swiss cantons.

Italy.

1402. Gian Galeazzo Visconti, after having made Milan the strongest state in northern Italy, dies.
1404. Milan and Venice unite against Francesco Carrara.

Italy—continued.

1405. Venice establishes her dominion in eastern Lombardy by the acquisition of Verona and Padua.
1409. Council of Pisa called to heal the schism; three popes at once.
1411. Ladislas of Naples, having occupied Rome, is driven out and defeated by a combined papal and Angevin army at Roccasecca.
1413. Ladislas drives John XXIII. from Rome.
1414. Ladislas dies.
1423. Francesco Foscari becomes doge of Venice.
1426. Venice and Florence join in open war against Milan.
1427. Venice wrests Brescia and Bergamo from Milan.
1431. Venetian reverses in the war with Milan.
1434. Medicean supremacy established in Florence.
1441. Peace between Venice and Milan; Venice keeps Brescia and Bergamo.
1450. Francesco Sforza makes himself master of Milan.
1454. By the peace of Lodi, with Milan, Venice resigns her recent acquisitions.
1463–1479. Venice in a sixteen years' war with the Turks loses many of her Eastern possessions, but retains her Levant trade and her quarter in Constantinople by payment of yearly tribute.
1482. Venice and Sixtus IV. join in alliance against Ferrara.
1488. Venice acquires Cyprus.
1492. Death of Lorenzo de' Medici.
1494. Expulsion of the Medici from Florence, and the restoration of republican government.
1498. Savonarola, preacher, reformer, real ruler of Florence for two years, is condemned as a heretic and executed.
1500. Cæsar Borgia conquers Romagna.

Miscellaneous.

1402. Constantinople saved by the defeat of the Turks by Timur at Ancyra (Angora).
1410. Poland defeats the Teutonic Knights at Tannenberg.
1411. Peace of Thorn between Poland and the Teutonic Order.
1413. Revival of Ottoman power under Mohammed I.
1453. Constantinople is captured by the Turks.
1456. Mohammed II. repulsed from Belgrad.
1458. Servia conquered by the Turks.
1460. Turkish conquest of the Morea; death of Prince Henry the Navigator.
1468. Death of Scanderbeg, defender of Albania against the Turks.
1469. Union of Castile and Aragon through the marriage of Isabella and Ferdinand.
1486. Bartholomeu Dias rounds the Cape of Good Hope.
1492. Discovery of America by Columbus.
1493. Alexander VI., by a papal bull, divides the new world between Spain and Portugal.
1498. Vasco da Gama reaches India.
1500. A treaty for the partition of Italy arranged at Granada between Ferdinand and Louis XII., Nov. 11.

SIXTEENTH CENTURY.

Germany.

1509. Erasmus writes his "Praise of Folly."
1515. The "Letters of Obscure Men" appears.

Germany—continued.

1517. Luther posts his theses attacking abuses connected with the sale of indulgences, Oct. 31.

Germany—continued.

1519. Disputation at Leipsic between Eck and Luther; imperial election.
1520. Bull of excommunication issued against Luther by Leo X.; Luther writes "Address to the German Nobility" and publicly burns the pope's bull.

SIXTEENTH CENTURY—continued.

Germany—continued.

1521. Diet of Worms condemns Luther's books and doctrines in April.

1521–1525. War with Francis I. hinders Charles V. from carrying out edict of the Diet of Worms.

1524. Peasants revolt and draw up their Twelve Articles.

1526. First Diet of Speyer; renewal of war between Charles and Francis.

1527. Rome captured and sacked by the Constable of Bourbon.

1529. Second Diet of Speyer reaffirms edict of Diet of Worms; minority of nobles protest—hence the name of "Protestants"; Turks besiege Vienna.

1530. Augsburg Confession drawn up by Melanchthon.

1531. Protestant princes and cities unite in the League of Schmalkalden (Smalkald).

1532. Religious toleration secured to the Protestants by peace of Nuremberg.

1545–1563. Reform movement within the Catholic Church finds expression in the Council of Trent, Dec. 13, 1545–Dec. 4, 1663, which Protestants do not attend; the council condemns the principal doctrines of the Reformation.

1546. Death of Luther, Feb. 18.

1546–47. Schmalkaldic War between Charles V. and the Protestant nobles.

1551. Maurice of Saxony turns against Charles V.

1552. Treaty of Passau allows free exercise of religion to the Lutherans, July 16.

1555. Peace of Augsburg, an elaborate though ineffectual attempt to settle dispute between Catholics and Protestants and to prevent future trouble, Sept. 25.

1556. Abdication of Charles V.; Hapsburg possessions divided between Philip II. and Ferdinand I.

1564–1576. Protestants lose ground during reign of Maximilian II.

France.

1501–1504. French and Spaniards conquer Naples, disagree and fight; French defeated.

1508. France, Spain, Germany, and Julius II. form League of Cambray against Venice, Dec. 10.

1511. Julius II., Germany, Spain, and England form the "Holy League" against Louis XII.

1513. French driven from Italy; Le Fèvre publishes his exposition and translation of the Pauline epistles.

1515. Francis I. wins battle of Melegnano, Sept. 13 and 14, and recovers Milan.

1525. At battle of Pavia Francis I. is taken prisoner, Feb. 24.

1526. Treaty of Madrid between Charles V. and Francis I., Jan. 14; Clement VII. and Francis I. form a league against the emperor.

1529. Peace of Cambray (the "Ladies' Peace") between Francis I. and Charles V., Aug. 5.

1535. Violent persecution of French Protestants.

1536. Calvin leaves France.

1552. Henry II. furnishes money to the German Protestant princes, and is allowed to take possession of Metz, Toul, and Verdun.

1559. Treaty of Cateau-Cambrésis establishes peace between France and Spain, April 2–3.

1560. Conspiracy of Amboise, an attempt to overthrow the Guises and put the Bourbons in power.

France—continued.

1562. Massacre of Huguenots at Vassy, March 1, and beginning of religious civil wars.

1570. Peace of St. Germain, Aug. 8, introduces practice of giving to Protestants cities of refuge.

1572. Massacre of St. Bartholomew, Aug. 23–24; death of Coligny, Aug. 24.

1585–1589. War of the three Henrys (Henry III., Henry of Guise, Henry of Navarre).

1589. Assassination of Henry III., Aug. 2, brings Valois line to an end; accession of Henry of Navarre as Henry IV.

1598. Edict of Nantes, April 13, gives toleration to Huguenots throughout all France.

England.

1502. Marriage of Margaret, daughter of Henry VII., with James IV. of Scotland.

1509–1547. Henry VIII.

1512. St. Paul's School is founded by John Colet.

1513. Scots are defeated and James IV. killed at Flodden Field, Sept. 9.

1515. Wolsey cardinal and chancellor.

1516. Sir Thomas More writes "Utopia."

1520. Meeting of Henry VIII. and Francis I. on the "Field of the Cloth of Gold."

1521. Henry VIII. writes a pamphlet against Luther, and receives from Pope Leo X. the title of "Defender of the Faith."

1527–1529. Henry VIII. seeks divorce from Catherine of Aragon.

1530. Disgrace and death (Nov. 29) of Wolsey.

1534. The Act of Supremacy makes the king head of the church in England.

1536–1539. Dissolution of the monasteries and confiscation of their property.

1539. Parliament passes the Six Articles Act defining heresy.

1542. Ireland raised to the rank of a kingdom.

1547. Accession of Edward VI.; Parliament abolishes the Six Articles.

1549. Parliament passes the first Act of Uniformity and introduces the first Book of Common Prayer; Kent's Rebellion, social and economic in character.

1553–1558. Mary I.

1554. Suppression of Wyatt's Rebellion, February; execution of Lady Jane Grey, Feb. 12; marriage of Mary and Philip of Spain, July 25.

1555. Persecution of Protestants.

1558. Loss of Calais.

1558–1603. Elizabeth.

1559. Parliament again passes an Act of Supremacy and an Act of Uniformity; first Court of High Commission established.

1563. Adoption of the Thirty-nine Articles, and completion of the establishment of the Anglican Church.

1568. Mary Queen of Scots, compelled to abdicate (July, 1567), comes to England.

1569–1586. Catholic plots to remove Elizabeth and put Mary on English throne.

1587. Execution of Mary Queen of Scots, Feb. 8.

1589 (about). Puritans make violent attacks on the bishops in the "Martin Marprelate" controversy.

1593. Parliament passes a statute against the Puritans.

1595. Violent persecution of the separatists.

1600. East India Company chartered, Dec. 31.

Spain and the Netherlands.

1504. Ferdinand regent, Nov. 4.

1506. Treaty of Villafáfila gives Philip the regency of Spain.

1516. Accession of Charles I.

1539. Charles V. suppresses the liberties of Castile.

1555. The Netherlands formally resigned by Charles V. to his son Philip.

1556. Philip II. becomes king of Spain on abdication of Charles V.

1559. Margaret of Parma made regent of the Netherlands.

1564. Opposition to Granvella causes his recall; Philip II. orders the decrees of the Council of Trent to be carried out in the Netherlands.

1567. Alva is sent to the Netherlands.

1568. William of Orange proclaimed an outlaw; death of Egmont and Hoorn, June 5.

1571. Don John of Austria defeats the Turks at Lepanto, Oct. 7.

1572. The "Sea Beggars" capture Brielle and Flushing.

1573. Alva recalled from the Netherlands at his own request.

1576. By the pacification of Ghent, Nov. 8, all the provinces unite to drive the Spanish soldiers out of the Netherlands.

1578. Alexander of Parma takes control of the Netherlands.

1579. The seven northern provinces proclaim their independence of Spain in the Union of Utrecht.

1584. Assassination of William of Orange, July 10.

1588. Destruction of the Spanish Armada, August.

1590. Philip II. suppresses the liberties of Aragon.

Switzerland.

1518. Zwingli comes to Zurich.

1525. Monasteries suppressed in Zurich, which becomes Protestant.

1527. Anabaptists persecuted in Zurich.

1531. Death of Zwingli at the battle of Kappel, Oct. 11.

1535. Council of Two Hundred, Aug. 27, forbids the mass in Geneva.

1536. Calvin issues his "Institutes of the Christian Religion."

1538. Calvin and Farel banished from Geneva.

1541. Calvin returns to Geneva and remodels Genevan worship and government.

1553. Execution of Servetus, Oct. 27.

Italy.

(See France and Germany.)

1503. Death of Pope Alexander VI., Aug. 18, and election of Julius II.

1512. The Medici restored to Florence.

1516. Leo X. and Francis I. make a concordat which gives them control of the French church, Aug. 18.

1527. The Medici again expelled from Florence.

1528. Genoa, under its doge Andrea Doria, frees itself from French supremacy.

1537. Cosimo de' Medici becomes duke of Florence.

1540. Society of Jesuits constituted an order by Paul III.

1569. Pius V. creates Cosimo de' Medici grand duke of Tuscany.

1572–1585. Pontificate of Gregory XIII., who revised the calendar.

America.

1502. Last voyage of Columbus.

1513. Ponce de Leon discovers Florida, March 27; discovery of the Pacific Ocean by Balboa, Sept. 25.

1519–1521. Conquest of Mexico by Cortés.

SIXTEENTH CENTURY—continued.

America—continued.

1521. City of Mexico surrenders, Aug. 13 or Aug. 15.
1531–1535. Pizarro conquers Peru.
1534. Cartier explores the Gulf of St. Lawrence.
1539–1542. De Soto makes an expedition through Florida to the Mississippi.
1541–1542. Third expedition of Cartier to Canada.
1557–1564. Attempts of Coligny to found a Huguenot settlement in America.
1576–1578. Voyages of Martin Frobisher in search of a northwest passage.
1585. Colony of 180 persons under Sir Richard Grenville sent to Roanoke Island.

Miscellaneous.

1510. Permanent settlement of the Portuguese at Goa, India.
1520–1566. Reign of Solyman the Magnificent, who raises the Ottoman Empire to its highest point of power.
1523. Gustavus Vasa becomes king of Sweden, June 6.
1526. Turks defeat Hungarians at Mohács, Aug. 29; Baber, founder of the Mogul Empire in India, conquers the Sultan of Delhi at Panipat.

Miscellaneous—continued.

1540. Solyman forces the Venetians to surrender their fortresses in the Morea; Greece subjected to Ottoman rule.
1556. Akbar, Mogul emperor of India, begins his reign.
1565. Knights of Malta repulse a Turkish attack.
1571. Venice surrenders Cyprus to the Turks.
1598. Extinction of the house of Ruric in Russia.
1600. East India Company chartered, Dec. 31.

SEVENTEENTH CENTURY.

France.

1610. Henry IV., on the eve of a war with the Hapsburgs, is assassinated, May 14; accession of Louis XIII.; Maria de' Medici becomes regent, May 14.
1614. Last meeting of the Estates General till the time of the French Revolution.
1617. Murder of Concini, April 14, and rise to power of De Luynes.
1620. Uprising of the Huguenots.
1624. Richelieu takes up the control of public affairs.
1625. Revolt of the Huguenots while Richelieu is in the midst of the difficulties of the Valtelline question.
1627–1628. Siege and capture of La Rochelle, Aug. 10, 1627–Oct. 28, 1628.
1629. Edict of Alais deprives Huguenots of their political privileges.
1630. Failure of Richelieu's enemies to overthrow him; the "Day of Dupes," Nov. 11.
1635. Founding of the French Academy, Jan. 2; French begin to take an active part in Thirty Years' War.
1642. Conspiracy of Cinq-Mars; death of Richelieu, Dec. 4.
1643. Accession of Louis XIV., five years old, May 14; Anne of Austria regent; Mazarin made minister.
1648. By treaty of Westphalia, Oct. 24, France gets control of the upper Rhine valley.
1648–1653. Armed opposition to Anne and Mazarin—the "Fronde."
1659. War with Spain is ended by peace of the Pyrenees, concluded Nov.; France gets territorial concessions.
1661. Louis XIV. takes government into his own hands on death of Mazarin, March 9.
1662. Colbert becomes controller-general of the finances.
1667–1668. War of Devolution over Spanish Netherlands.
1668. Triple Alliance (England, Holland, Sweden) induces Louis to sign the peace of Aix-la-Chapelle, May 2.
1672–1678. War with Holland, ended by peace of Nimwegen, Aug. 10.
1681. Louis seizes Strasburg, Sept. 30.
1685. Edict of Nantes is revoked, Oct. 22, and Huguenots emigrate from France.
1686. League of Augsburg is formed, July 9, to resist the aggressions of Louis XIV.
1688–1697. War of the Palatinate, France against a European coalition, indecisive, and ended by the peace of Ryswick, Sept. 21, 1697 (merely a truce).
1700. Louis XIV. accepts the Spanish crown for his grandson, Philip of Anjou (Philip V.).

Germany.

1607–1609. Religious-political quarrel at Donauwörth; formation of the Protestant Union and the Catholic League.

Germany—continued.

1609. Contest of the Jülich succession; Rudolph II. gives a royal charter to the Bohemians, permitting free exercise of religion.
1618. Prussia falls to Brandenburg by inheritance; outbreak of the Thirty Years' War in Bohemia, May.
1619. Election of Frederick V. of the Palatinate as king of Bohemia; crowned Oct. 25.
1620. Frederick is defeated in battle on the White Hill, Nov. 8.
1623. Frederick loses his electoral vote, which is given to Maximilian of Bavaria.
1625–1629. Danish period of the war.
1626. Wallenstein defeats Mansfeld at the bridge of Dessau, April 25; Christian IV. is overthrown by Tilly at Lutter, Aug. 27.
1628. Wallenstein unsuccessfully besieges Stralsund.
1629. Edict of Restitution, March 6, restores confiscated ecclesiastical estates to the Catholics; peace of Lübeck, May, 1629, brings to an end the war between Christian IV. and the emperor.
1630. Dismissal of Wallenstein; Swedish period of the war begins; Gustavus Adolphus lands in Pomerania, July 4.
1631. Tilly storms Magdeburg, May 20, and is later defeated by Gustavus at Breitenfeld, Sept. 17.
1632. Tilly dies, April 30; Wallenstein is recalled to command; Gustavus, victorious, is killed at battle of Lützen, Nov. 16.
1634. Murder of Wallenstein, Feb. 25; Swedes are defeated at Nördlingen, Aug. 27 (O. S.).
1635. Signing of the peace of Prague, May 30.
1635–1648. French period of the war.
1636. Swedes defeat the imperialists and Saxons at Wittstock, Sept. 24.
1640–1688. Frederick William of Brandenburg, the Great Elector.
1642. Defeat of the imperial army at Leipsic, Oct. 23 (O. S.).
1648. Peace of Westphalia, Oct. 24, ends the war.
1657. Prussia is freed from Polish suzerainty.
1675. The Great Elector defeats the Swedes at Fehrbellin, June 18 (28, N. S.).
1683. Vienna is besieged by the Turks, who are repulsed Sept. 12.

England.

1603. James I. is crowned king, July 25.
1604. Conference between bishops and Puritans at Hampton Court, Jan. 14, 16, and 18.
1605. Gunpowder Plot; arrest of Guy Fawkes, Nov. 4.
1606. Incorporation of Plymouth and London Companies.

England—continued.

1624. Failure of the Spanish marriage scheme.
1625. Accession of Charles I., March 27; his marriage with Henrietta Maria of France.
1626. Buckingham impeached, May.
1628. Parliament passes the Petition of Right, June 7.
1629–1640. Charles governs without a Parliament.
1637–1638. Trial of John Hampden for refusing to pay ship-money.
1640. Long Parliament meets, Nov. 3, and impeaches Strafford, Nov. 11, and Laud, Dec. 18; Court of Star Chamber abolished.
1641. Court of High Commission abolished; the Grand Remonstrance presented to the king, Dec. 1.
1642. Civil war between Charles and Parliament; battle of Edgehill, Oct. 23.
1643. Parliament makes the Solemn League and Covenant with the Scotch Presbyterians, Sept. 25.
1644. Cromwell wins the battle of Marston Moor, July 2.
1645. Fairfax and Cromwell win the battle of Naseby, June 14.
1647. Useless negotiations between Charles and the army.
1648. Cromwell defeats the Scots at Preston, Aug. 17–20; Presbyterian members forcibly excluded from Parliament, "Pride's Purge," Dec. 6; the Rump Parliament, Dec.
1649. Charles is tried, Jan. 20–27, and executed, Jan. 30; a republic proclaimed.
1650. Scots are defeated by Cromwell at Dunbar, Sept. 3.
1651. Royalists defeated by Cromwell at Worcester, Sept. 3. First Navigation Act.
1652–1654. War with the Dutch.
1653. Cromwell becomes Lord Protector.
1660. Restoration of the Stuarts; Charles II. called back to England; proclaimed king, May 8.
1665. Renewal of the war with Holland.
1666. Great Fire of London, Sept. 2–6.
1667. Fall of Clarendon.
1673. Withdrawal of the Act of Indulgence and passage of the Test Act.
1677. Marriage of Princess Mary to William of Orange, Nov. 4.
1678. Scare produced by Titus Oates's tales of a Roman Catholic conspiracy.
1679. Habeas Corpus Act.
1683. Plot to assassinate the king, Rye House Plot.
1685. Accession of James II.; Monmouth defeated at Sedgemoor, July 6; rebels punished by Jeffreys; the "Bloody Assizes."
1688. James's Catholic tendencies and acts favoring the Catholics lead to the invitation to William of Orange to come to SEVENTEENTH CENTURY—continued.

England—continued.

England; landing of William, Nov. 5, and flight of James, Dec. 22.
1689. Accession of William III. and Mary II., Feb. 13; passing of the Bill of Rights.
1690. James II. defeated at the battle of the Boyne, July 1.
1693. Beginning of the National Debt.
1694. Founding of the Bank of England.

America.

1604. Settlement (of the French) at Port Royal in Nova Scotia.
1607. English colony at Jamestown, May 13.
1608. Champlain founds Quebec.
1619. Introduction of negro slavery into Virginia.
1620. Pilgrims land at Plymouth, Dec. 21.
1626. Peter Minuit founds the (Dutch) settlement of New Amsterdam on Manhattan Island.
1630. Settlement at Boston.
1634. First settlement in Maryland.
1636. Roger Williams founds Providence. Harvard College founded.
1638. New Haven colony founded.
1643. Creation of the United Colonies of New England.

America—continued.

1645. Rebellion of Claiborne and Ingle in Maryland.
1652. Massachusetts obtained possession of Maine.
1655. Stuyvesant seizes Swedish forts on the Delaware; New Sweden annexed to New Netherlands.
1664. New Amsterdam, surrendered to the English, Sept. 8, becomes New York.
1669–1687. La Salle explores the West.
1673. Marquette and Joliet descend the Mississippi.
1675–1676. Rising of the Indians against the New England colonists, King Philip's War.
1680. Foundation of Charleston in South Carolina.
1682. William Penn establishes a colony at Philadelphia.
1688. Tyranny of Andros in Massachusetts.
1689–1697. King William's War between the French and English.
1692. Witchcraft persecutions at Salem.

Miscellaneous.

1603. Tokugawa dynasty of shoguns in Japan begins.
1605. Death of Akbar, Oct. 13.

Miscellaneous—continued.

1613. Michael Romanoff becomes Czar of Russia.
1633. Galileo forced to abjure the Copernican system by the Inquisition.
1638. Japan excludes foreigners and period of isolation begins; massacre of native Christians.
1640. Portugal secures its independence.
1644. Manchu dynasty in China begins.
1645. Beginning of a twenty-five years' war between Venice and Turkey.
1657. Rise of the Mahratta power in India under Sivaji.
1657–1658. War between Sweden and Denmark.
1658. Aurung-Zeb begins his reign in India.
1669. Venice cedes Candia to the Turks, Sept. 16.
1672–1676. War between Turkey and Poland.
1682. Accession of Peter the Great to the Russian throne.
1697., Eugene of Savoy annihilates the Turkish army at Zenta, Sept. 11.
1699. Treaty of Carlowitz, Jan. 26, seriously diminishes the Turkish power.
1700. Russian army defeated at Narva by Charles XII. of Sweden, Nov. 30.

EIGHTEENTH CENTURY.

Great Britain.

1701. Act of Settlement settles the crown on Sophia of Hanover and her descendants; beginning of War of the Spanish Succession.
1702–1714. Anne.
1704. Marlborough wins the battle of Blenheim, Aug. 13; capture of Gibraltar by the English.
1707. Union of England and Scotland; adoption of the Union Jack as the national flag.
1713. Peace of Utrecht, April 11, confirms Protestant succession in England, makes permanent the separation of the crowns of France and Spain, and gives to England large territorial additions.
1714–1727. George I.
1716. Act creating septennial instead of triennial parliaments.
1720. Bursting of the "South Sea Bubble," financial panic.
1721. Beginning of Walpole's ministry.
1727–1760. George II.
1729. Gibraltar ceded to England by Spain.
1733. John Kay invents the flying shuttle.
1739–1748. War with Spain, the "War of Jenkins's Ear."
1740–1748. England takes sides with Austria in War of Austrian Succession.
1742. Fall of Walpole.
1745. Saxe defeats Cumberland at Fontenoy, May 11; rising of Charles Edward, the Young Pretender.
1746. Cumberland defeats the Pretender at Culloden, April 27.
1749. Founding of the Ohio Company.
1754–1763. War between England and France in Europe, India, and America.
1757. Pitt becomes leader in the cabinet.
1763. Peace of Paris, Feb. 10, by which Great Britain comes into full control in America and India, and assumes colonial leadership.
1763–1774. Prosecution of John Wilkes shows the power of English public opinion.
1764. Hargreaves invents the spinning-jenny.
1765. Passage of the Stamp Act, March 22; steam-engine invented by Watt.
1767. Townshend Revenue Act, June 29; Lord North becomes chancellor of the exchequer, Oct.

Great Britain—continued.

1775. Outbreak of the war of the American Revolution, battle of Lexington, April 19.
1779. Crompton invents the spinning-"mule."
1780. Armed Neutrality League against Great Britain to resist the right of search; Rodney defeats the Spaniards off Cape St. Vincent, Jan. 16; Lord George Gordon riots, June.
1783. William Pitt the younger becomes prime minister, Dec.
1785. Cartwright invents his weaving-machine.
1787. Impeachment of Warren Hastings.
1788. Trial of Warren Hastings, Feb. 13 (acquitted Apr. 23, 1795).
1793. England at war with France.
1797. Mutiny in the fleet at Spithead; defeat of the Dutch at Camperdown, Oct. 11.
1798. Nelson annihilates the French fleet at the battle of the Nile, Aug. 1–2.

France.

1701–1713. War of the Spanish Succession, in which France loses territory and prestige to England.
1704. French defeated by the English in the battle of Blenheim, Aug. 13.
1706. French defeated at Ramillies, May 23.
1708. French defeated at Oudenarde, July 11.
1709. French defeated at Malplaquet, Sept. 11.
1715. Death of Louis XIV., Sept. 1.
1718. Quadruple alliance, Aug. 2, between England, France, Austria, and Holland for maintenance of peace of Utrecht.
1720. Financial disaster due to collapse of John Law's famous Mississippi scheme.
1723. End of the regency.
1726. Fleury becomes chief minister.
1733. France becomes involved in the War of the Polish Succession.
1738. By the treaty of Vienna, Nov. 18, France guarantees the Pragmatic Sanction.
1740. Outbreak of War of Austrian Succession; France pitted against Austria and England.
1745. Battle of Fontenoy won by the French, May 11; conquest of the Austrian Netherlands begun.

France—continued.

1748. By peace of Aix-la-Chapelle, in Oct., France restores her conquests in Europe to Austria.
1756. Seven Years' War begins with battle of Lobositz, Oct. 1; France allied with Austria against England and Frederick the Great.
1757. French army defeated at Rossbach, Nov. 5.
1758. Duc de Choiseul becomes minister; Ferdinand of Brunswick drives the French back across the Rhine.
1763. Peace of Paris, Feb. 10; France withdraws entirely from North America, gives England Senegal and islands in West Indies, and gets back her settlements in India as trading stations; hope of a great French empire abandoned.
1768. Annexation of Corsica.
1770. Rise of Du Barry and fall of Choiseul.
1774. Death of Louis XV., May 10; succession of Louis XVI.
1774–1776. Turgot is minister of marine and finance.
1777. Necker becomes minister of finance.
1778. Alliance between France and the United States.
1783. Calonne is minister of finance.
1787. Meeting of the Notables at Versailles, Feb. 22 to May 25; fall of Calonne and appointment of Brienne as minister of finance.
1788. Resignation of Brienne and recall of Necker.
1789. Meeting of the States-General, May 5; third estate forms National Assembly, June 17; storming of the Bastille, July 14; declaration of rights of man, Aug. 27; outbreak of mob violence in Paris, Oct. 5, 6; removal of king and Assembly to Paris, Oct. 6.
1790. Assembly draws up a new constitution for France, July; formation of political clubs; Mirabeau in power.
1791. Death of Mirabeau, April 2; flight of the king to Varennes, June 20; Louis XVI. accepts the constitution, Sept.; dissolution of the Constituent Assembly, Sept.; meeting of the Legislative Assembly, Oct. 1.

EIGHTEENTH CENTURY—continued.

France—continued.

1792. Declaration of war against Austria, April; the mob invades the Tuileries, June 20; great riots in Paris, the king puts himself in the power of the Assembly, Aug. 10; massacre in Paris, Sept. 2–6; French success at Valmy, Sept. 20; meeting of National Convention, France declared a republic, Sept. 21; victory of Dumouriez at Jemmapes, Nov. 6.
1793. Execution of Louis XVI., Jan. 21; declaration of war against England, Feb.; appointment of the Committee of Public Safety, April; fall of the Girondists, June; the Reign of Terror; the republican calendar.
1794. Feast of the Supreme Being, June 8; supremacy of Robespierre, June; fall of Robespierre, July 27; closing of the Jacobin Club, Nov. 10–12.
1795. The Batavian Republic founded; adoption of the Constitution of the Year III.; suppression of the rising of October 5 (13th Vendémiaire); the Directory, Oct.–Nov.
1796. Suppression of the revolt in La Vendée; Bonaparte invades Italy; wins battle at Lodi, May 10; enters Milan, and conquers Lombardy.
1797. Mantua surrenders to the French, Feb. 2; Napoleon makes peace of Tolentino with pope, Feb.; war declared upon Venice; victory of republican party in the coup d'état of Sept. 4; France and Austria conclude the peace of Campo Formio, Oct. 17.
1798. Roman Republic established; Switzerland becomes the Helvetic Republic; Bonaparte invades Egypt, and is cut off from returning to France by Nelson's victory at Abukir Bay, Aug. 1–2.
1799. Naples made into the Parthenopean Republic, Jan.; armies of the Directory are defeated in Italy and Germany; Napoleon returns from Egypt, Oct. 9, breaks up the council of five hundred, and becomes first consul, Nov.
1800. French campaigns in Italy and in Germany; Napoleon defeats Melas at Marengo, June 14, and Moreau wins battle of Hohenlinden from Archduke John, Dec. 3.

Germany.

1701. Prussia made a kingdom under Frederick I.
1711–1740. Charles VI. emperor.
1713. Frederick William I. becomes king of Prussia.
1720. Charles VI. publishes the Pragmatic Sanction.
1738. Treaty of Vienna, Nov. 18.
1740. Accession of Frederick the Great, May 31, and of Maria Theresa; beginning of the War of the Austrian Succession, Frederick invades Silesia.
1741. Prussian victory at Mollwitz, April 10.
1742. Conquest of Bavaria by the Austrians; treaty of Berlin between Austria and Prussia, July 28; Charles VII. becomes emperor.
1744. Austrians invade Alsace; Frederick renews the war, invades Bohemia, and captures Prague, Sept.
1745. Austrians and Saxons defeated at Hohenfriedberg by Frederick, June 4; treaties of Dresden, Dec. 25, between Prussia and Austria, Prussia and Saxony.
1748. Treaty of Aix-la-Chapelle, Oct., ends War of Austrian Succession.
1753. Kaunitz made chief minister by Maria Theresa.
1755. Convention of Westminster agreed upon by Prussia and England.
1756–1763. Seven Years' War.

Germany—continued.

1757. Prussians invade Bohemia and win battle of Prague, May 6; Frederick is defeated at Kolin, June 18, but wins the battles of Rossbach, Nov. 5, and Leuthen, Dec. 5.
1758. Russians defeated by Frederick at Zorndorf, Aug. 25.
1759. Austrians and Russians defeat Frederick at Kunersdorf, Aug. 12.
1760. Frederick decisively defeats the Austrians at Liegnitz, Aug. 15, and again at Torgau, Nov. 3; Berlin taken by the Russians.
1762. Peace of St. Petersburg, May 5, between Frederick and Peter III. removes Russian hostility to Prussia.
1763. Treaty of Hubertsburg, Feb. 15, ends the war between Austria and Prussia.
1772. First partition of Poland.
1778–1779. War of the Bavarian Succession.
1781. Kant's "Critique of Pure Reason."
1785. The Fürstenbund formed by Frederick against Joseph II.
1786. Death of Frederick the Great, Aug. 17, and accession of Frederick William II.
1790. Convention of Reichenbach between Austria and Prussia, July 27.
1791. Frederick William and Leopold issue the Declaration of Pillnitz, Aug.
1793. Second partition of Poland.
1794. Treaty of The Hague between Prussia and England.
1795. Third partition of Poland; treaty of Basel between Prussia and France, April 5.
1797. Venice ceded to Austria by the treaty of Campo Formio, Oct. 17.

Russia.

1703. Founding of St. Petersburg.
1709. Charles XII. defeated by the Russians at Pultowa, June 27 (N. S., July 8).
1710. Turks declare war against Russia.
1711. Peter the Great forced to buy the peace of the Pruth, July 23, from the Turks.
1721. Peace of Nystadt, Aug. 30, between Russia and Sweden.
1725. Death of Peter the Great, Feb. 8 (N. S.), and accession of Catherine I.
1736–1739. War against the Turks in alliance with Austria.
1741. Accession of Elizabeth I.
1747. Elizabeth I. allies herself with Austria against Prussia.
1762. Death of Elizabeth I., Jan. 5, and accession of Peter III., the friend of Prussia, who is deposed by his wife, Catherine II.
1764. Catherine II. procures the election of Stanislaus Poniatowski to the throne of Poland.
1769. War breaks out with Turkey.
1772. Russia shares in the first partition of Poland.
1774. Russian power greatly extended by the treaty of Kutchuk Kainardji with Turkey, July 21.
1780. Catherine II. forms the "Armed Neutrality" of the North.
1783. The Crimea ceded to Russia.
1787. Catherine's second war with the Turks.
1792. War ended by the treaty of Jassy, Jan. 9.
1793. Russia takes the larger part of Lithuania in second partition of Poland.
1795. Russia takes more territory by the third partition of Poland.
1796. Death of Catherine II., Nov. 17, and accession of Paul I.

Sweden.

1700–1721. The Northern War.
1700. Charles XII. extorts from the Danes the treaty of Travendal, Aug. 18; Charles XII. defeats the Russians at Narva, Nov. 30.
1701. Charles XII. defeats the Saxons at Riga, July 18.
1702. Charles XII. defeats the Poles and Saxons at Klissow, July 19.
1703. Charles XII. defeats the Poles and Saxons at Pultusk, May 1.
1706. Charles XII. invades Saxony, and forces peace of Altranstädt from Augustus.
1709. Charles XII. is defeated by Peter the Great at Pultowa, July 8.
1709–1714. Charles XII. in Turkey.
1718. Death of Charles XII. at Frederikshald, Dec. 11.
1743. Treaty of Åbo with Russia, Aug. 18.
1772. Gustavus III. crushes the power of the nobles and restores absolutism, Aug. 21.
1788–1790. Gustavus makes war on Russia.

America.

1702–1713. Queen Anne's War between the French and English.
1706. Invasion of Carolina by the French and Spanish.
1707. Expedition from New England against Port Royal.
1710. Port Royal captured by the English fleet, Oct. 2.
1715. Indian war in Carolina.
1718. Suppression of West Indian bucaneers by Governor Rogers.
1720. William Burnet becomes governor of New York.
1729. End of proprietary government in Carolina, division into North and South Carolina.
1733. Settlement of Georgia by James Oglethorpe.
1740. Expedition of Oglethorpe to Florida, siege of St. Augustine, July.
1742. Repulse of a Spanish expedition against Georgia.
1745. Siege and capture of Louisburg by English colonial troops, June 17.
1753. Governor Dinwiddie sends Washington to treat with the French on the Ohio.
1754. Washington advances against Fort Duquesne; conference of the colonial delegates with the Six Nations at Albany, June.
1755. Defeat of Braddock by the French, July 9; attack on Crown Point; battle of Lake George and capture of Ticonderoga, Sept. 8.
1756. Montcalm captures Oswego, Aug. 14.
1757. Montcalm captures Fort William Henry, Aug.
1758. Capture of Louisburg by Amherst and Wolfe, July 27; Bradstreet takes Fort Frontenac, Aug. 27; capture of Fort Duquesne by Forbes, Nov. 25.
1759. English capture Quebec, Sept. 13.
1761. Trouble over writs of assistance in Massachusetts.
1763. By the peace of Paris, Feb. 10, France cedes her possessions in America to England; the conspiracy of Pontiac.
1765. Passage of the Stamp Act, March 22.
1766. Repeal of the Stamp Act, March 18.
1767. Townshend Revenue Act, June 29.
1768. British troops arrive in Boston.
1770. Boston Massacre, March 5.
1772. Destruction of the British revenue cutter Gaspee.
1773. The Virginia Assembly appoints a committee of correspondence, March; "Boston Tea Party," Dec. 16.
1774. Passage of the Boston Port Bill, March 28, and of the Massachusetts Government Act; Continental Congress meets at Philadelphia, Sept. 5–Oct. 26, and agrees on the "American Association."

EIGHTEENTH CENTURY—continued.

America—continued.

1775. Battles of Lexington and Concord, April 19, and of Bunker Hill, June 17; Washington made commander-in-chief of the provincial forces, June 15.
1776. Declaration of American Independence, July 4; English victories at Long Island, Aug. 27, and White Plains, Oct. 28; Washington wins battle of Trenton, Dec. 26.
1777. Washington wins battle of Princeton, Jan. 3; Burgoyne's expedition from Canada; surrender of Burgoyne at Saratoga, Oct. 17; Howe occupies Philadelphia, Sept. 27; Washington goes into winter quarters at Valley Forge, Dec.; Congress agrees upon Articles of Confederation, Nov. 15.
1778. Treaties with France, Feb. 6; recognition of American independence.
1779. Capture of the Serapis by John Paul Jones, Sept. 23.
1780. Rochambeau arrives at Newport, July 10; treason of Benedict Arnold, Sept.
1781. Surrender of Cornwallis at Yorktown, Oct. 19.
1783. Great Britain recognizes independence of the United States, Sept. 3.
1786–1787. Shays's Rebellion in Massachusetts.

America—continued.

1787. Constitutional Convention, May 25–Sept. 17; Northwest Ordinance, July 11; formation of Federalist and Anti-Federalist parties.
1789. First Congress meets at New York; Washington inaugurated president, April 30; first ten amendments to the Constitution proposed.
1792. Formation of the Democratic-Republican party (successor to the Anti-Federalist party); Eli Whitney invents the cotton-gin.
1794. Whisky Rebellion in Pennsylvania; Jay's treaty concluded with England, Nov. 19.
1797. John Adams becomes president; "X. Y. Z." letters; Alien and Sedition Laws.
1798–1799. Kentucky and Virginia Resolutions.
1799. Death of Washington, Dec. 14.

The East.

1707. Death of Aurung-Zeb, beginning of the decline of the Mongol Empire in India.

The East—continued.

1743. Clive goes to India.
1746. Madras captured by the French.
1751. Defense of Arcot by Clive.
1754. Dupleix recalled by the French government.
1756. Capture of Calcutta by the Nabob of Bengal, English prisoners put into the "Black Hole," June 20.
1757. Clive recaptures Calcutta, Jan., and wins the battle of Plassey, June 23.
1758. Clive made governor of Bengal.
1760. Battle of Wandewash, Jan.; end of French power in India.
1761. Afghans defeat the Mahrattas at Panipat, Jan.
1765. East India Company takes over the government of Bengal.
1772–1774. Warren Hastings governor of Bengal.
1774–1785. Warren Hastings governor-general of India.
1775–1782. War of the Mahrattas against England.
1784. Pitt's India Bill, dual system of control over India.
1786–1798. Reform of Indian administration by Lord Cornwallis, governor-general.

NINETEENTH CENTURY.

Great Britain.

1801. Legislative union of Great Britain with Ireland, Jan. 1; Nelson bombards Copenhagen, April 2.
1802. Peace of Amiens with France, March 27.
1803. Napoleon attempts to invade England.
1804. Return of Pitt to office, May 12.
1805. Victory and death of Nelson at Trafalgar, Oct. 21.
1807. Abolition of the slave-trade in British dominions, March 25; the English fleet bombards Copenhagen, Sept. 2–5; Orders in Council issued.
1808. Peninsular War begins, Wellesley lands in Portugal, Aug.
1812–1815. War with the United States.
1814. Stephenson invents the locomotive.
1815. Battle of Waterloo, June 18; England retains Cape of Good Hope and Malta by treaty of Vienna, June 8–9.
1819. Manchester Massacre, Aug. 16; Parliament passes the Six Articles, "Gag Laws."
1820–1830. George IV.
1822. Reform of the criminal code.
1825. Trade-unions allowed.
1828. Duke of Wellington prime minister; repeal of the Corporation and Test Acts, May 9.
1829. Roman Catholic Emancipation Act, April.
1830–1837. William IV.
1830. Opening of the Manchester and Liverpool Railway.
1832. First Reform Act.
1833. Abolition of slavery throughout British Empire; bill for the relief of children in factories.
1834. Revision of the Poor Law.
1835. Municipal Corporations Act, Sept. 9.
1837–1901. Victoria.
1837–1848. Chartist agitation for further electoral reforms.
1840. Opium War with China; penny postage introduced.
1846. Repeal of the Corn Laws.
1846–1847. Famine in Ireland.
1849. Repeal of the Navigation Laws, June 26.
1853. Beginning of the Crimean War.
1855. Capture of Sebastopol, Sept. 11.

Great Britain—continued.

1856. Treaty of Paris, March 30, ends the Crimean War.
1858. Dissolution of the East India Company, Aug. 2; government of India transferred to the crown.
1865. Fenian movement in Ireland.
1866. Telegraphic communication with America established.
1867–1868. Second Electoral Reform Act greatly extends the franchise.
1868–1874. Reform ministry of Gladstone, Dec., 1868–Feb., 1874.
1869. Opening of the Suez Canal; act for disestablishment of the Irish Church, July 26.
1870. First Irish Land Bill, Aug. 1; system of national education established, Elementary Education Act, Aug. 9.
1872. Alabama claims settled by Geneva Tribunal award, Sept. 14.
1873–1874. Ashanti war.
1874–1880. Disraeli prime minister.
1875. Purchase of the khedive's shares in the Suez Canal.
1877. Annexation of Transvaal.
1878. Disraeli and Salisbury win diplomatic victory over Russia at Congress of Berlin, June 13–July 13; England occupies Cyprus.
1878–1880. War in Afghanistan.
1879. Formation of the Irish Land League, Oct.
1880. Gladstone again becomes prime minister, April.
1880–1881. First Boer war.
1881. Irish agitation, Parliament passes the Coercion Act, Oct. 20.
1882. Wolseley defeats Arabi at Tel-el-Kebir, Sept. 13.
1884–1885. Further extension of British franchise by third Electoral Reform Act.
1885. Death of Gordon at Khartum, Jan. 26.
1886. First Home Rule Bill introduced.
1888. Act reorganizing local government.
1890. Anglo-German agreement in regard to Africa.
1891. Death of Parnell, Oct. 6; disruption of the Irish party.
1893. Second Home Rule Bill introduced by Gladstone.

Great Britain—continued.

1895. Dispute with United States over the Venezuela boundary question.
1898. Anglo-French convention in regard to African situation.
1898. Recovery of the Sudan.
1899. Beginning of the second Boer War.
1900. General Cronje and his Boer army capitulated to Lord Roberts, Feb. 27; Ladysmith relieved by Lord Dundonald, Feb. 28; Pretoria surrendered to Lord Roberts, June 5.

France.

1801. Treaty of Lunéville, Feb. 9, between France and Austria; concordat between Napoleon and the pope, July 15.
1802. Bonaparte made consul for life, Aug. 2.
1804. Bonaparte proclaimed emperor, May 18.
1804–1810. Promulgation of the Code Napoléon.
1805. War of the third coalition against France; surrender of Mack at Ulm, Oct. 17; Napoleon defeats the Austrians and Russians at Austerlitz, Dec. 2; treaty of Presburg between France and Austria, Dec. 26.
1806. Joseph Bonaparte made king of Naples, March, and Louis Bonaparte king of Holland, June; Confederation of the Rhine established under French control, July 12; Napoleon issues the Berlin decrees, Nov. 21.
1807. Treaty of Tilsit, between France, Russia, and Prussia, July 7 and 9.
1808. French invasion of Spain, Spanish crown given to Joseph Bonaparte, June 6.
1809. War with Austria; Napoleon, defeated by the Archduke Charles at Aspern, May 21 and 22, is victorious at Wagram, July 5–6; treaty of Schönbrunn (or of Vienna), Oct. 14, between France and Austria; Napoleon confiscates the Papal States.
1810. Marriage of Napoleon with Maria Louisa, March 11 (April 2); Holland is taken from Louis Bonaparte and annexed to France; heavy French losses in Spain and Portugal.

NINETEENTH CENTURY—continued.

France—continued.

1811. Birth of a son to Napoleon, March 20, who is at the height of his power.
1812. French defeated by Wellington in Spain; Napoleon's Russian campaign; battles at Smolensk, Aug. 17, and Borodino, Sept. 7; capture of Moscow, Sept.; winter retreat through Russia, passage of the Beresina, Nov. 26–29; French lose at least 300,000 men.
1813. Russia, Prussia, and Austria unite against France; Napoleon, after winning a great victory at Dresden, Aug. 26–27, is decisively beaten by the allies at Leipsic, Oct. 16–19; Wellington drives the French from Spain.
1814. The allies invade France, and capture Paris, March 31; Napoleon abdicates, April 11, and arrives in Elba, May 4; Bourbons are restored to the French throne in the person of Louis XVIII., May 3, who grants a constitution, June 4; peace of Paris between France and the allies, May 30; opening of the Congress of Vienna, Nov. 3.
1815. Napoleon leaves Elba, Feb. 26, and returns to France, March 1; the "Hundred Days," March 20–June 22; European alliance against Napoleon, March, who is defeated at Waterloo, June 18, and sent to St. Helena, Oct. 16; second treaty of Paris, Nov. 20.
1818. Withdrawal of army of occupation from France.
1820. Assassination of the Duc de Berry, Feb. 13; royalist reaction.
1823. French troops restore the authority of Ferdinand VII. in Spain.
1824. Death of Louis XVIII., Sept. 16; accession of Charles X.
1830. Charles X. attempts a coup d'état, July 26, which fails; uprising in Paris forces him to abdicate, Aug. 2; Louis Philippe placed on the French throne, Aug. 9.
1834. Quadruple alliance between France, Spain, England, and Portugal, April 22.
1836. Attempt of Louis Napoleon to get himself crowned emperor, Oct. 30.
1840. Second attempt of Louis Napoleon to gain power, Aug. 6.
1848. A revolution overthrows Louis Philippe, Feb. 24, and restores the republic, of which Louis Napoleon is elected president, Dec. 10, to serve until May, 1852.
1851. Coup d'état of Louis Napoleon, Dec. 2, who is elected president for ten years, Dec. 21–22.
1852. Louis Napoleon proclaimed emperor of the second empire, Dec. 2, as Napoleon III.
1854. France joins Turkey in the war with Russia.
1856. Treaty of Paris, March 30, ends the Crimean War.
1860. Cession of Savoy and Nice to France.
1862–1867. War with Mexico.
1870. Outbreak of the Franco-Prussian war, July 19; fall of the empire and proclamation of the third republic, Sept. 4. (See Germany.)
1871. Capture of Paris by the Germans, Jan. 28; peace of Frankfort ends the war, May 10.
1873. Thiers forced to resign, May 24; MacMahon elected president of the republic.
1875. Formation of a republican constitution.
1876. Republican victory in elections.
1879. Resignation of MacMahon, Jules Grévy elected president, Jan. 30.
1881. Gambetta's ministry, Nov., 1881–Jan., 1882; failure of his foreign policy.
1885. Foundation of the French Kongo; French reverse at Langson in Indo-China, March; Jules Ferry driven from office.
1887. Boulanger attempts to establish a dictatorship; Carnot succeeds Grévy, Dec. 3.

France—continued.

1891. Franco-Russian alliance.
1898. The Fashoda incident, July–Sept.; clash between France and England in Africa.

Germany (including Austria).

1801. Great loss of German territory by peace of Lunéville, Feb. 9.
1803. Principal decree of the Imperial Deputation does away with 112 German states, Feb. 25; Napoleon occupies Hannover, May.
1804. Francis II. assumes the title of "Hereditary Emperor" of Austria.
1805. Treaty of Schönbrunn concluded between Prussia and Napoleon, Dec. 15; by peace of Presburg, Dec. 26, Austria is divested of 28,000 square miles of territory and 3,500,000 inhabitants.
1806. End of the Holy Roman Empire, Francis II. of the Holy Roman Empire becomes Francis I. of Austria, Aug. 6; Prussia declares war on Napoleon, and is defeated at Jena, Oct. 14.
1807. Prussia loses half its territory and population by the peace of Tilsit, July 9; founding of the kingdom of Westphalia for Jerome Bonaparte, Aug.; emancipation of Prussian serfs.
1808. Reforms in Prussian state and army by Stein and Scharnhorst.
1809. Austria at war with France; uprising of Tyrol under Andreas Hofer; attempted uprisings in Prussia under Dörnberg, Schill, and the Duke of Brunswick.
1809–1848. Metternich Austrian minister.
1810. Founding of the University of Berlin.
1810–1822. Hardenberg Prussian chancellor.
1812. York makes the Convention of Tauroggen with the Russians, Dec. 30.
1813. Prussia and Russia enter into an offensive and defensive alliance, the treaty of Kalisch, Feb. 28; appeal of Frederick William III. to the people and the army; victories of Napoleon at Lützen, May 2, and Bautzen, May 20–21, lead to the truce of Poischwitz, June 4; England concludes a subsidy treaty with Prussia; Austria enters the war against Napoleon; in a series of battles, Grossbeeren, Aug. 23, Katzbach, Aug. 26, Kulm, Aug. 29–30, Dennewitz, Sept. 6, Leipsic, Oct. 16–19, the allies defeat Napoleon and drive him across the Rhine.
1814. Blücher wins the battle of La Rothière from Napoleon, Feb. 1, who then defeats the Germans in four battles; Congress of Vienna, Sept., 1814–June, 1815.
1815. The Congress of Vienna creates a German Confederation.
1817. Festival of the Wartburg, Oct. 18; granting of a constitution in Weimar.
1818. Baden and Bavaria get constitutions.
1819. The Karlsbad decrees establish censorship of the press and supervision of the universities, Sept. 20.
1828. Beginning of the Zollverein.
1834. Important development of the Zollverein.
1835. First railroad in Germany, Nuremberg-Fürth.
1847. Frederick William IV. summons a united Diet of the members of all local assemblies.
1848. Revolution in Vienna and fall of Metternich, March 13; March riots in Berlin; an ante-parliament at Frankfort in March is followed by a German national parliament in May, which is overthrown by a reaction; abdication of Ferdinand I. and accession of Francis Joseph as emperor of Austria, Dec. 2; promulgation of a constitution for Prussia, Dec. 5.
1849. New constitution for Austria, March 4; refusal of the imperial crown by Frederick William IV.; suppression of revolts in Dresden, Baden, and the Palatinate.
1850. Rivalry between Austria and Prussia, humbling of Prussia at Convention of Olmütz, Nov. 28–29.
1852. Revocation of the Austrian constitution.
1859. War between Austria and Sardinia; battles of Magenta, June 4, and Solferino, June 24; peace of Villafranca, July 11.
1861. Accession of William I. in Prussia, Jan. 2.
1862. Bismarck president of the Prussian ministry, Oct. 8.
1864. Schleswig and Holstein ceded to Austria and Prussia for joint occupation.
1866. Seven weeks' war between Prussia and Austria; Prussia incorporates Schleswig-Holstein, Hannover, Hesse-Cassel, Nassau, and Frankfort, and becomes leading state in Germany; formation of the North German Confederation; dual government established in Austria-Hungary.
1870. Acceptance of the Spanish crown by Leopold of Hohenzollern leads to the outbreak of the Franco-Prussian War; Germans win the battles of Wörth, Aug. 6, Spicheren, Aug. 6, Gravelotte, Aug. 18, and Sedan, Sept. 1; lay siege to Paris, Sept. 19, and capture Toul, Sept. 23, Strasburg, Sept. 28, and Metz, Oct. 27.
1871. Proclamation of the German Empire in the palace at Versailles, Jan. 18; capitulation of Paris, Jan. 28; peace of Frankfort-on-Main, May 10; meeting of the first German imperial parliament, March 21.
1876. The Berlin memorandum (Germany, Austria, Russia) promises reforms in Turkish affairs.
1878. Congress at Berlin, June 13–July 13, settles the Turkish question.
1879. Alliance between Germany and Austria.
1883. Triple alliance of Germany, Austria, and Italy. (Renewed in 1887, 1891, 1896.)
1884–1885. Conference of powers at Berlin in regard to occupation of African territory, Nov. 15, 1884–Jan. 30, 1885.
1890. Fall of Bismarck, March.

Russia.

1801. Murder of Paul I., March 23–24; accession of Alexander I.
1805. Russia, fighting against Napoleon, is defeated at Austerlitz, Dec. 2.
1806. Outbreak of war with Turkey.
1807. Russia defeated in battle of Friedland, June 14; by the peace of Tilsit, July 7, Russia recognizes Napoleon's new political and territorial creations.
1808. Interview of Napoleon and Alexander at Erfurt, Oct. 12.
1812. By peace of Bukharest, May 28, the Pruth is made the boundary between Russia and Turkey; invasion of Russia by Napoleon; treaties with Sweden and England; burning of Moscow, Sept.
1813. Russia enters the great War of Liberation against Napoleon.
1815. Alexander forms the Holy Alliance, Sept. 26; Congress of Vienna, Sept., 1814–June, 1815, awards the duchy of Warsaw to Russia.
1825. Death of Alexander I., Dec. 1, and accession of Nicholas I.
1826. Convention of Akerman between Russia and Turkey, Oct. 6.
1827. Russia takes part in the battle of Navarino, Oct. 20.
1828–1829. War with Turkey.
1829. War with Turkey ended by peace of Adrianople, Sept. 14.

NINETEENTH CENTURY—continued.

Russia—continued.

1830–1832. Revolution in Poland.
1833. Treaty of Unkiar-Skelessi, July 8.
1853. Outbreak of war between Russia and Turkey.
1854. France and England join Turkey against Russia; the Crimean War; battles of the Alma, Sept. 20, Balaclava, Oct. 25, and Inkerman, Nov. 5.
1855. Death of Nicholas I., Feb. 18 (O. S.), and accession of Alexander II.
1856. Crimean War ended by the treaty of Paris, March 30.
1861. Emancipation of the Russian serfs.
1864. Suppression of uprisings in Poland and Lithuania.
1877. War declared on Turkey, April 24; Grand Duke Nicholas in command of Russian army; Russians take the Shipka Pass, July 13–14, and capture Plevna, Dec. 10.
1878. Treaty of San Stefano ends the war with Turkey, March 3.
1880. Nihilists' attempts on life of Alexander II.
1881. Death of Alexander II., March 13; accession of Alexander III.
1885. England and Russia on the verge of war over the Pendjdeh incident, March 30.
1895. Reconciliation with Bulgaria.
1896. Russia compels Japan to evacuate Port Arthur, Nov. 30.

Miscellaneous European.

1807. Flight of the Portuguese court to Brazil as a result of the French conquest.
1809. Deposition of Gustavus IV. of Sweden March 13.
1815. Ferdinand IV. restored to Naples by Austrians.
1821. Beginning of the Greek war of independence.
1822. Revolution in Portugal, formal separation of Brazil from Portugal.
1825. Egyptian interference in Greece.
1826. Mahmud II. destroys the Janizaries in Constantinople, June.
1827. Turkish fleet destroyed at Navarino, Oct. 20.
1829. Independence of Greece, Feb. 3.
1830. Revolution in Belgium.
1831. Leopold of Saxe-Coburg elected king of the Belgians, June.
1832. Otho I. of Bavaria becomes king of Greece, Aug. 8.
1833. Beginning of civil war in Spain between the constitutional and absolutist parties.
1846. Pius IX. succeeds Gregory XVI., June 16.
1847. War of the Sonderbund results in the transformation of the Swiss Confederacy into a federal union.
1848. Revolutionary risings in Naples and Sicily; revolt of Venice and Lombardy against Austria; republic proclaimed at Rome; Slavonic Congress at Prague, June 2.
1849. Charles Albert, defeated by the Austrians at Novara, March 23, abdicates in favor of Victor Emmanuel.
1852. Cavour becomes prime minister to Victor Emmanuel.
1860. Garibaldi in Naples and Sicily; Tuscany, Emilia, and Romagna formally annexed to Sardinia, March.
1861. Victor Emmanuel becomes king of Italy.
1862. Otho I. driven from the Greek throne by a revolution.
1863. Prince George of Denmark becomes king of Greece, March 30.
1864. England resigns the Ionian Islands to Greece.
1866. Revolt of Crete against Turkish oppression.
1868. Revolution in Spain deposes the Bourbons, Sept.

Miscellaneous European—continued.

1869. Opening of the Suez canal.
1870. Rome added to the kingdom of Italy; proclamation of papal infallibility, Dec. 8.
1875. Revolt against the Turks in Bosnia and Herzegovina, July–September; palace revolution in Constantinople.
1876. Servia and Montenegro declare war against Turkey, July 2.
1878. Bulgaria north of the Balkans, Montenegro, Servia, and Rumania become independent by the treaty of Berlin, July 13.
1881. Rumania declares herself a kingdom.
1882. Servia becomes a kingdom.
1885. Union of the two Bulgarias.
1894–1895. Horror in Europe over the Armenian massacres.
1896. Rising in Crete.
1897. Turkey victorious in a war with Greece.
1899. Peace Congress at The Hague, May 18.
1900. International Exposition at Paris opened, April 15; King Humbert of Italy assassinated at Monza, July 29; accession of Victor Emmanuel III.

United States.

1801–1809. Thomas Jefferson president.
1803. Louisiana purchased from France.
1804. Twelfth Amendment to the Constitution.
1807. Trial of Aaron Burr, May 22–Sept. 1; trip of Fulton's Clermont from New York to Albany, Aug. 11; Congress closes ports by the Embargo Act, Dec. 22.
1809. The embargo repealed and a non-intercourse law substituted.
1809–1817. James Madison president.
1811. General Harrison defeats the Indians at Tippecanoe, Nov. 7, and breaks up their federation.
1812–1815. War with Great Britain.
1812. Unsuccessful invasion of Canada; many American naval victories.
1813. Perry wins the battle on Lake Erie, Sept. 10.
1814. Public buildings in Washington burned by the British, Aug. 24–25; attack on Baltimore repelled, Sept. 12–13; treaty of peace signed at Ghent, Dec. 24; New England States meet in conference at Hartford, Dec. 15, 1814–Jan. 5, 1815.
1815. Jackson defeats the British at New Orleans, Jan. 8.
1817–1825. James Monroe president.
1817–1818. Seminole war.
1819. Treaty with Spain for the acquisition of Florida, Feb. 22.
1820. Missouri Compromise postpones the conflict over the extension of slavery, March 2.
1823. Promulgation of the Monroe doctrine, Dec.
1824. New tariff increases the duty on protected goods; visit of Lafayette.
1825–1829. John Quincy Adams president.
1825. Erie Canal completed; formal opening at New York, Nov. 4.
1828. The "Tariff of Abominations" puts high duties on raw materials.
1829–1837. Andrew Jackson president.
1830. Hayne-Webster debate in the Senate on States' rights, Jan. 19–26.
1831. Establishment of the "Liberator" and organization of the abolitionists.
1832. Nullification ordinance of South Carolina, Nov. 19, declares the tariffs of 1828 and 1832 "null and void"; Jackson replies with a proclamation and movement of troops.
1833. Compromise Tariff and Force bills signed by the President, March 2.
1836. Slavery petitions in Congress lead to the "gag resolutions."
1837. Financial panic as a result of Jackson's specie circular.
1837–1841. Martin Van Buren president.

United States—continued.

1840. Independent treasury system established.
1841. William Henry Harrison president, March 4–April 4.
1841–1845. John Tyler president.
1842. The Webster-Ashburton treaty, Aug. 9, settles the northeastern boundary dispute with Great Britain.
1845. Annexation of Texas.
1845–1849. James K. Polk president.
1846. Wilmot Proviso defeated; Oregon treaty settles the northeastern boundary question.
1846–1848. Mexican War.
1846–1847. Taylor wins the battles of Palo Alto, May 8, 1846, Resaca de la Palma, May 9, 1846, and Buena Vista, Feb. 22–23, 1847; Scott wins victories at Vera Cruz, March 29, Cerro Gordo, April 17–18, Contreras, Aug. 19–20, Churubusco, Aug. 20, Molino del Rey, Sept. 8, Chapultepec, Sept. 13, and enters the city of Mexico, Sept. 14.
1848. By the treaty of Guadalupe-Hidalgo, Feb. 2, Mexico gives up New Mexico and California to the United States; gold discovered in California, Jan. 24.
1849. California demands admission as a free State.
1849–1850. Zachary Taylor president.
1850–1853. Millard Fillmore president.
1850. Clay's compromise propositions; Fugitive Slave Law.
1852. Publication of "Uncle Tom's Cabin."
1853–1857. Franklin Pierce president.
1853. Gadsden purchase, Dec. 30, settles boundary dispute with Mexico.
1854. Kansas-Nebraska bill passed; reciprocity with Canada by treaty with Great Britain.
1855. Struggle for Kansas, the Topeka Convention.
1857–1861. James Buchanan president.
1857. Helper's "Impending Crisis"; Dred Scott decision declares the Missouri Compromise unconstitutional.
1858. Lincoln and Douglas debates.
1859. John Brown seizes the United States Arsenal at Harper's Ferry, Oct. 16.
1860. Lincoln elected president, Nov. 6; secession of South Carolina, Dec. 20.
1861. Other Southern States secede and then unite under the title of "Confederate States of America," Feb. 8; Fort Sumter fired on, April 12; Lincoln's call for volunteers, April 15; Queen Victoria's proclamation of neutrality, May 13; battle of Bull Run, July 21; McClellan takes command of the Union army, Nov. 1; the Mason and Slidell affair, Nov. 8.
1862. Grant captures Fort Henry, Feb. 6, and Fort Donelson, Feb. 13–16; fight between the Monitor and Merrimac, March 9; Farragut captures New Orleans, April 25; McClellan's Peninsular campaign, March–August; battle of Antietam, Sept. 17; Burnside defeated at Fredericksburg, Dec. 13.
1863. Emancipation proclamation, Jan. 1; Hooker defeated at Chancellorsville, May 2–4; death of Stonewall Jackson, May 10; Meade defeats Lee at Gettysburg, July 1–3; Grant captures Vicksburg, July 4; battles of Chickamauga, Sept. 19–20, Lookout Mountain, Nov. 24, and Missionary Ridge, Nov. 25.
1864. Grant made commander-in-chief, March 12; battles of the Wilderness, May 5–6, and Spotsylvania, May 8–21; Sherman's Atlanta campaign, May–July; Early threatens Washington, July 11; Sheridan defeats Early at Cedar Creek, Oct. 19; Sherman captures Savannah, Dec. 21; sea-fight between the Kearsarge and Alabama, June 19.
1865. Lee surrenders to Grant at Appomattox Court House, April 9; assassination of Lincoln, April 14; thirteenth amendment ratified, Dec. 18.

NINETEENTH CENTURY—continued.

United States—continued.

1865–1869. Andrew Johnson president.
1867. Reconstruction Acts passed, Jan.–March; purchase of Alaska from Russia, by treaty of March 30, ratified by U. S. Senate, June 20.
1868. Impeachment and trial of President Johnson, March–May; fourteenth amendment ratified, July 28.
1869–1877. Ulysses S. Grant president.
1869. "Black Friday" on the New York Stock Exchange, Sept. 24.
1870. Fifteenth amendment ratified, March 30.
1871. Treaty of Washington with Great Britain, May 8.
1877–1881. Rutherford B. Hayes president.
1881. James A. Garfield, president, shot July 2, and dies Sept. 19.
1881–1885. Chester A. Arthur president.
1883. The Pendleton Bill introduces civil service reform, Jan. 16.
1885–1889. Grover Cleveland president.
1885. Death of General Grant, July 23.
1887. Interstate commerce law, Feb. 4.
1889–1893. Benjamin Harrison president.
1890. McKinley tariff, Oct.
1893–1897. Grover Cleveland president.
1893. World's Fair at Chicago.
1894. Riots in Chicago.
1895. President's Venezuela message, Dec. 17; reform of the civil service.
1897. Dingley Tariff Act, July 24; Senate rejects General Arbitration Treaty, May 5.
1897–1901. William McKinley president.
1898. Annexation of Hawaii, July 7; U. S. S. Maine blown up at Havana, Feb. 15; war with Spain, destruction of the Spanish fleet in Manila Bay, May 1, and of the fleet off Santiago de Cuba, July 3; United States acquires Porto Rico and the Philippines by the treaty with Spain signed at Paris, Dec. 10.

Canada and Mexico.

1821. Mexico wins independence from Spain.
1824. Federal constitution adopted in Mexico.
1826. "Canada Company" incorporated.
1832–1834. Cholera in Canada.
1837–1838. Rebellion breaks out in Canada.
1841. Canadian Act of Union.
1844. Seat of Canadian government removed to Montreal.
1846. Destruction by fire of St. John's, Newfoundland.
1859. The Reform Laws (Mexican) of Juarez.
1863. The French capture Puebla, organize a government, and elect Maximilian of Hapsburg emperor of Mexico, July.
1864. Scheme for a Canadian Maritime Union, the Charlottetown and Quebec Conferences, Oct. 16–28.
1865. The Quebec Resolutions become law.
1866. Fenian invasion of Canada.

Canada and Mexico—continued.

1867. Canada, Nova Scotia, and New Brunswick united into the Dominion of Canada, July 1; first Dominion Parliament, Nov. 7–Dec. 21; withdrawal of the French troops from Mexico, Feb.; execution of Maximilian, June 19; Diaz captures Puebla, April 2, and city of Mexico, June 21.
1870. Canada purchases the Northwest from the Hudson Bay Company.
1873. Canada aroused over the "Pacific Scandal."
1877. Diaz elected president of Mexico, May; St. John, New Brunswick, destroyed by fire, June 20; the Halifax fisheries award.
1885. Saskatchewan rebellion put down by the Canadian government, May 9.
1887. Interprovincial Congress meets at Quebec.
1893. Settlement of the Bering Sea dispute with United States.
1894. Colonial conference at Ottawa.

South America.

1810. Beginning of movement of emancipation from Spain.
1811. Paraguay a republic.
1818. Chile freed, O'Higgins dictator, Feb. 12.
1819. Republic of Colombia formed, Bolivar president, Dec. 17.
1822. Dom Pedro crowned emperor of Brazil, Dec. 1.
1824. Peru independent, Dec. 9.
1825. Independence of Argentine Confederation recognized by Great Britain.
1826. Panama Congress.
1828. Uruguay becomes free.
1830. Colombia divided into New Granada (Colombia), Venezuela, and Ecuador.
1833. Chile adopts its constitution.
1879. War between Chile and Peru.
1885. Boundary dispute between Chile and Argentine settled by treaty.
1888. Brazil emancipates the slaves, May 15.
1889. Monarchy in Brazil overthrown, Nov. 15–16.
1890. Separation of church and state in Brazil decreed by the provisional government; revolution in Argentine, July 26.
1891. Manuel Fonseca elected first president of Brazil, Feb. 24.
1893–1894. Revolution in Brazil, aiming at restoration of the empire.

The East.

1816–1818. Last Mahratta war in India.
1830. Abolition of the suttee.
1836–1842. Lord Auckland governor-general of India.
1840–1842. War between China and Great Britain over the opium trade.
1842. First Afghan War, Kabul evacuated by the British, Jan., and retaken, Sept.; Hong-Kong ceded to Great Britain, charter bearing date April 5, 1843.

The East—continued.

1844. China makes treaties with the United States and France.
1845–1846. First Sikh War in India.
1848–1849. Second Sikh War.
1849. Panjab annexed by Great Britain.
1850. Outbreak of the Tai-ping rebellion in China.
1853. Perry's expedition reaches Japan, July 8.
1854. Japan makes treaties with the United States and Great Britain.
1857. Great Britain and France make war on China; capture of Canton, Dec. 28–29; mutiny of the Sepoy troops in India, June–July; massacre at Cawnpore, July 15; relief of Lucknow, Sept. 25; siege, June–Sept., and capture, Sept. 20, of Delhi.
1858. The government of India taken over by the crown, viceroy instead of governor-general; Japan concludes commercial treaties with United States, France, Great Britain, and Russia; China makes the treaties of Tientsin with United States, Great Britain, and France, June 26.
1860. Treaty of Peking, Oct., opens China in a measure to toleration of Christianity, and permits resident ambassadors at Peking.
1864. Bombardment of the Shimonoseki (Japanese) batteries by American and European war-ships; Tai-ping rebellion in China suppressed by Gordon.
1867–1868. Abolition of the shogunate, and restoration of the mikado in Japan.
1869. Opening of the Suez Canal.
1871. Feudalism abolished in Japan.
1876. First railroad in China completed.
1877. Queen Victoria proclaimed Empress of India.
1878–1880. Second war between England and the Afghans, Roberts's march from Kabul to Kandahar, Oct.
1881. Treaty of peace between China and Russia, Aug. 19.
1882–1885. China and France quarrel over Tonquin.
1885. Tonquin ceded to France, April 5.
1889. Constitution promulgated in Japan.
1890. First meeting of Japanese parliament.
1894. War between China and Japan begins, July 25.
1895. By the treaty of Shimonoseki with China, April 17, Japan gets the Liao-tung Peninsula, Island of Formosa, and Pescadores Archipelago.
1896. Defeat of an Italian army by Menelik at Adowa, March 1.
1898. Anti-foreign feeling in China; dowager empress becomes supreme at Peking.
1900. The Boxer disturbances in China, June; Taku forts captured by the foreign allies, June 17; the foreign legations besieged in Peking, June; Baron von Ketteler, German minister to China, murdered by a mob in Peking, June 20; Peking captured by the foreign forces, Aug. 14.

TWENTIETH CENTURY.

United States.

1901. Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research founded in New York; the Carnegie Institute for Research founded; second inauguration of President McKinley, March 4; Andrew Carnegie presents $5,200,000 to the city of New York for libraries, March; Jacob S. Rogers bequeaths $5,000,000 to the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York; President McKinley assassinated at the Pan-American Exposition in Buffalo, Sept. 6; Theodore Roosevelt becomes president, Sept. 14.

United States—continued.

1902. Andrew Carnegie gives $10,000,000 to the Carnegie Institute at Washington; visit of Prince Henry of Prussia; great strike of anthracite-coal miners in Pennsylvania.
1903. The cable to the Philippine Islands completed, July 4, and a message sent around the world in twelve minutes; the Panama Canal treaty rejected by the Senate of Colombia; independence of the Republic of Panama recognized, Nov. 6, by the United States, and later by other nations; first success in mechanical flight obtained by the Wright brothers, Dec. 17; Iroquois Theater fire in Chicago, Dec. 30.

United States—continued.

1904. Great fire in Baltimore, Feb. 8; canal treaty with Panama ratified, Feb. 23; Andrew Carnegie establishes fund of $5,000,000 to provide for those who risk their lives for others, and for the wives and orphans of those who sacrifice their lives for others; the Louisiana Purchase Exposition at St. Louis opened, April 30; burning of the excursion steamer General

TWENTIETH CENTURY—continued.

United States—continued.

Slocum in the East River, New York city, with loss of about one thousand lives, June 15; strike of forty-five thousand employees of meat-packing establishments at Chicago; the New York subway opened, Oct. 27.

1905. Theodore Roosevelt inaugurated president, March 4; the body of John Paul Jones discovered in Paris, March 31, removed, and interred at Annapolis, July; Andrew Carnegie gives $10,000,000 to establish the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching; Lewis and Clark Centennial Exposition at Portland, Oregon, opened, June 1; death of John Hay, secretary of state, July 1.

1906. San Francisco destroyed by an earthquake, April 18; riot of negro troops at Brownsville, Texas; President Palma of Cuba resigns, Sept., and President Roosevelt appoints a provisional governor; President Roosevelt visits Panama and Porto Rico.

1907. John D. Rockefeller gives $32,000,000 to the General Education Board; Mrs. Russell Sage gives $10,000,000 to establish the Sage Foundation for philanthropic work; Andrew Carnegie gives $6,000,000 to the Carnegie Institute at Pittsburgh; the Jamestown Tercentennial Exposition opened, April 26.

1908. Cruise of the battle-ship fleet around the world; tunnel under the East River to Brooklyn opened, Jan. 9; $13,000,000 of Boxer indemnity money returned to China; tunnel under the Hudson to Jersey City opened, Feb. 25; conference of State governors on conservation of national resources held at Washington, May 13–15.

1909. Inauguration of President William Howard Taft, March 4; Ex-President Roosevelt goes on hunting trip to Africa; the United States government withdraws from Cuba; Commander Robert E. Peary reaches the North Pole, April 6; the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition at Seattle opened, June 1; the Hudson-Fulton celebration in New York.

1910. Glenn H. Curtiss flies from Albany to New York, May 29; the Pennsylvania railroad station in New York and the railroad tunnels under the Hudson opened, Sept. 8; Andrew Carnegie establishes a fund of $10,000,000 to promote the abolition of war, Dec. 14.

British Empire.

1901. The Commonwealth of Australia proclaimed, Jan. 1; continuance of the Boer war through the year; death of Queen Victoria, Jan. 22, and accession of Edward VII.; Andrew Carnegie gives $10,000,000 to Scotch universities.

1902. Death of Cecil Rhodes, March 26; foundation of Rhodes Scholarships announced; close of the Boer war, May 31; coronation of King Edward VII., Aug. 9.

British Empire—continued.

1904. Colonel Younghusband enters Lhasa, Tibet, Sept. 7.

1907. Lord Cromer, British agent and consul-general in Egypt, resigned; Kingston, Jamaica, destroyed by earthquake, Jan. 14.

1908. Demonstration of ten thousand women in London for the suffrage, June 13.

1909. The House of Lords rejects the Budget.

1910. Contest in Parliament over the veto power of the House of Lords; death of King Edward VII., May 6, and accession of George V.; the Colonial Federation of United South Africa comes into existence; suffragette disorders in London continue.

Continental Europe.

1901. Queen Wilhelmina of Holland married to Duke Henry of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, Feb. 7; the International Court of Arbitration at The Hague organized, Jan. 30.

1902. Coronation of King Alfonso XIII. at Madrid, May 17; fall of the Campanile in Venice, July 14.

1903. Massacre of Jews at Kishineff, Russia, April 19–20; the King and Queen of Servia assassinated at Belgrad, June 10; accession of Peter I. of Servia; death of Pope Leo XIII., July 20; election of Pope Pius X.; closing of the schools and houses of the religious orders in France, with resistance and riots.

1904. France gives up the French shore of Newfoundland, April 8; war between Russia and Japan opens, Feb. 6.

1905. Black Sunday at St. Petersburg, strikers attempting to present a petition to the Czar are fired on by troops, Jan. 22; assassination of Grand Duke Sergius of Russia, Feb. 17; the Simplon tunnel between Italy and Switzerland completed; visit of Emperor William to Tangier, antagonizing the Anglo-French agreement concerning Morocco; the union of Sweden and Norway dissolved, June 8; Prince Charles of Denmark chosen king of Norway as Haakon VII., Nov. 18; riots in Odessa directed against Jews.

1906. Accession of Frederick VIII. of Denmark, Jan. 30; Armand Fallières elected President of France, Feb. 17; eruption of Mount Vesuvius, April 8; revival of the Olympic games at Athens; the Algeciras conference on Moroccan affairs, Jan. 16–April 7; international exposition at Milan opened, April 29; the Czar opens, and soon after dissolves, the first Russian Duma; Alfred Dreyfus is vindicated by the court of last resort in France and restored to the army, July 12–13.

1907. The separation of church and state in France is promulgated; the second Russian Duma opens, March 5, and is soon dissolved; later the third Duma opens; the Norwegian Parliament grants limited suffrage to women, June; the second international peace conference held at The Hague, June 15–Oct. 18.

Continental Europe—continued.

1908. An agreement between France and Germany on Morocco is reached; Messina, Sicily, destroyed by an earthquake, Dec. 28.

1909. Revolution in Turkey, Abdul Hamid deposed, April 27; accession of Mehmed V.; M. Blériot flew across the English Channel, July 25; execution of Francisco Ferrer in Spain, Oct. 13, causes widespread agitation in Europe.

1910. Paris inundated by an extraordinary overflow of the river Seine; wide-spread exclusion of Jews from Russian towns; revolution in Portugal, the monarchy overthrown and a republic established, Oct. 5; death of Leo Tolstoi, Nov. 20; George Chavez flies over the Alps from Brieg, Switzerland, to Domo d'Ossola, Italy, Sept. 23; M. Legagneaux reaches a height of 10,499 feet in a flying-machine at Pau, France, Dec. 9.

China and Japan.

1901. Death of Li Hung Chang, Nov. 7.

1904. The war in Manchuria between Japan and Russia opens, with rupture of diplomatic relations, Feb. 6; attack by Admiral Togo on the Russian fleet at Port Arthur, Feb. 8; naval fight off Chemulpo, Feb. 9; the great battle of Liao-yang is won by the Japanese, Aug. 25–Sept. 4; the Japanese win the battle of the Shaho, Oct. 9–14; siege of Port Arthur by the Japanese, July, 1904–Jan. 1, 1905.

1905. The Japanese capture Port Arthur, Jan. 1; the great battle of Mukden won by the Japanese, Feb. 19–March 10; the naval battle of the Sea of Japan won by the Japanese under Admiral Togo, the Russian fleet destroyed, May 27–28; the treaty of Portsmouth closes the war, Sept. 5.

1907. Japan assumes control of Korea, July 31.

1908. Death of the Emperor of China, Aug. 14, and of the Dowager Empress, Aug. 15.

1909. Assassination of Prince Ito of Japan at Harbin, Manchuria, Oct. 26.

1910. Korea annexed by Japan, Aug. 29.

Miscellaneous.

1902. First Congress of the Cuban Republic met in Havana, May 5; eruption of Mount Pelée, Martinique, destroys St. Pierre and 30,000 inhabitants, May 8; Tomas Estrada Palma, first President of the Cuban Republic, inaugurated, May 20.

1906. Severe earthquake in Formosa; Pan-American conference of South American republics meets in Rio de Janeiro, August; the Shah of Persia opens the first Persian Parliament, Oct. 7.

1909. The Shah of Persia dethroned, July 16.

1910. The railroad tunnel under the Andes, connecting Chile and Argentina, opened.

LISTS OF RULERS

Kings of Egypt.

(Dates after Flinders Petrie, "History of Egypt.")

	B.C.
Menes	4777–4715
. . . . .
Khufu (Cheops)	3969–3908
. . . . .

Twelfth Dynasty.

Amenemhat I.	2778–2748
Usertesen I.	2758–2714
Amenemhat II.	2716–2681
Usertesen II.	2684–2660
Usertesen III.	2660–2622
Amenemhat III.	2622–2578
Two kings	2578–2565
. . . . .

Eighteenth Dynasty.

Aahmes I.	1587–1562
Amenhotep I.	1562–1541
Thothmes I.	1541–1516
Thothmes II.	1516–1503
Hatasu (queen)	1503–1481
Thothmes III.	1481–1449
Amenhotep II.	1449–1423
Thothmes IV.	1423–1414
Amenhotep III.	1414–1383
Five kings	1383–1328

Nineteenth Dynasty.

Rameses I.	1328–1326
Seti I.	1326–1300
Rameses II.	1300–1234
Mineptah	1234–1214
Five kings	1214–1202
. . . . .
Shishak	952–930
. . . . .

Twenty-sixth Dynasty.

Psammetichus I.	664–610
Necho II.	610–594
Psammetichus II.	594–589
Uahabra	589–570
Aahmes II.	570–526
Psammetichus III.	526–525

The Ptolemies.

Ptolemy I. Soter	306–285
Ptolemy II. Philadelphus	285–247
Ptolemy III. Euergetes I.	247–222
Ptolemy IV. Philopator I.	222–204(205?)
Ptolemy V. Epiphanes	204(205?)–181
Ptolemy VI. Eupator	181
Ptolemy VII. Philometor I.	181–146
Cleopatra I. (regent)	181–173
Ptolemy VIII. Philopator II.	146
Ptolemy IX. Euergetes II.	146–117
Ptolemy X. Soter II.	117–107
Ptolemy XI. Alexander I.	107–88
Soter II. (again)	88–81

Kings of Egypt—continued.

	B.C.
Ptolemy XII. Alexander II.	81
Ptolemy XIII. Auletes	81–58
Berenice IV. (queen)	58–55
Auletes (again)	55–52
Cleopatra VI.	52–49
Ptolemy XIV., Cleopatra's brother	52–48
Cleopatra VI. (again)	48–30
Ptolemy XV., Cleopatra's brother	48–45
Ptolemy XVI., Cleopatra's son	45–30

Kings of Assyria.

Tiglath-Pileser I.	1120–1100
. . . . .
Tiglath-Pileser II.	950–930
Asur-dan II.	930–911
Ramman-Nirari II.	911–890
Tukulti-Nindar	890–884
Asurnazirpal	884–860
Shalmaneser II.	860–824
Shamas-Rimmon IV.	824–811
Ramman-Nirari III.	811–782
Shalmaneser III.	782–772
Asur-dan III.	772–754
Asur-nirari	754–745
Tiglath-Pileser III. (Phul)	745–727
Shalmaneser IV.	727–722
Sargon	722–705
Sennacherib	705–681
Esarhaddon	680–668
Asurbanipal	668–626
Two kings	626–606

Kings of Babylon.

Nabopolassar	625–605
Nebuchadnezzar	605–562

Kings of Israel and Judah.

(Dates after Duncker.)

Kings of the Undivided Kingdom.

Saul	1055–1033
David	1033–993
Solomon	993–953

Kings of Judah.

Rehoboam	953–932
Abijah	932–929
Asa	929–873
Jehoshaphat	873–848
Joram	848–844
Ahaziah	844–843
Athaliah	843–837
Joash	837–797
Amaziah	797–792
Uzziah	792–740
Jotham	740–734
Ahaz	734?–727?
Hezekiah	727–699?
Manasseh	697–642
Amon	642–640
Josiah	640–609
Jehoahaz	609
Jehoiakim	609–597
Jehoiachin	597
Zedekiah	597–586

Kings of Israel and Judah—continued.

Kings of Israel.

	B.C.
Jeroboam I.	953–927
Nadab	927–925
Baasha	925–901
Elah	901–899
Zimri	899
Omri	899–875
Ahab	875–853
Ahaziah	853–851
Joram	851–843
Jehu	843–815
Jehoahaz	815–798
Joash	798–790
Jeroboam II.	790–749
Zachariah	749–748
Shallum	748
Menahem	748–738
Pekahiah	738–736
Pekah	736–734
Hoshea	734–722

Kings of Persia.

Cyrus	558–529
Cambyses	529–522
Darius Hystaspes	521–486
Xerxes I.	486(5)–465(4)
Artaxerxes Longimanus	465(4)–425(4)
Xerxes II.	425(4)
Darius Nothus	425(4)–405(4)
Artaxerxes Mnemon	405–361(59)
Artaxerxes III.	361(59)–338
Arses	338–336
Darius Codomanus	336–330

Kings of Macedonia.

Amyntas II.	394–370
Alexander II.	369–368
Ptolemy I.	368–365
Perdiccas III.	365–359
Amyntas III.	359
Philip II.	359–336
Alexander III. (Macedonian empire)	336–323

Roman Emperors.

Augustus	31 B.C.–14 A.D.
Tiberius	14–37
Caligula	37–41
Claudius I.	41–54
Nero	54–68
Galba	68–69
Otho	69
Vitellius	69
Vespasian	70–79
Titus	79–81
Domitian	81–96
Nerva	96–98
Trajan	98–117
Hadrian	117–138
Antoninus Pius	138–161
Marcus Aurelius	161–180
Commodus	180–192
Pertinax	192–193
Didius Julianus	193
Septimius Severus	193–211
Caracalla }	211–217
Geta }	211–212

Roman Emperors—continued.

	A.D.
Macrinus	217–218
Elagabalus	218–222
Alexander Severus	222–235
Maximinus	235–238
Gordianus I.	238
Gordianus II.	238
Balbinus }	238
Pupienus }	238
Gordianus III.	238–244
Philip	244–249
Decius	249–251
Gallus	251–253 or 254
Æmilianus	253
Valerian }	254–260
Gallienus }	254–268
Claudius II.	268–270
Aurelian	270–275
Tacitus	275–276
Probus	276–282
Carus	282–283
Carinus }	283–285
Numerianus }	283–284
Diocletian }	284–305
Maximian }	286–305
Constantius Chlorus }	305–306
Galerius }	305–311
Constantine I.	306–337
Maxentius	306–312
Maximian (again)	306–308
Severus	306–307
Licinius	307–324
Constantine II. } empire	337–340
Constans } divided	337–350
Constantius II. }	337–361
Julian	361–363
Jovianus	363–364
Valentinian I. (West)	364–375
Valens (East)	364–378
Gratian (West)	367–383
Valentinian II. (West)	375–392
Theodosius I. (East)	379–394
Maximus (West)	383–388
Eugenius (West)	392–394
Theodosius I. (sole emperor)	394–395

Western Roman Emperors.

Honorius	395–423
Joannes	424
Valentinian III.	425–455
Petronius Maximus	455
Avitus	455–456
Majorianus	457–461
Libius Severus	461–465
Anthemius	467–473(472?)
Olybrius	472
Glycerius	473
Julius Nepos	474–475
Romulus Augustulus	475–476

Eastern Emperors.

Arcadius	395–408
Theodosius II.	408–450
Marcianus	450–457
Leo I.	457–474
Leo II.	474
Zeno	474–491
Anastasius I.	491–518
Justin I.	518–527
Justinian I.	527–565

Eastern Emperors—continued.

	A.D.
Justin II.	565–578
Tiberius II.	578–582
Maurice	582–602
Phocas	602–610
Heraclius	610–641
Constantine III.	641
Constans II.	641–668
Constantine IV.	668–685
Justinian II.	685–695
Leontius	695–698
Tiberius III.	698–705
Justinian II. (again)	705–711
Philippus Bardanes	711–713
Anastasius II.	713–716
Theodosius III.	716–717
Leo III. (the Isaurian)	718–741
Constantine V.	741–775
Leo IV.	775–780
Constantine VI.	780–797
Irene	797–802
Nicephorus I.	802–811
Stauracius	811
Michael I.	811–813
Leo V.	813–820
Michael II.	820–829
Theophilus	829–842
Michael III.	842–867
Basil I.	867–886
Leo VI.	886–911
Alexander	911–912
Constantine VII.	911–959
Romanus I. (regent)	919–944
Christopher (regent)	920–931
Stephen (regent)	928–945
Romanus II.	959–963
Nicephorus II.	963–969
John I.	969–976
Basil II.	976–1025
Constantine VIII.	1025–1028
Romanus III.	1028–1034
Michael IV.	1034–1041
Michael V.	1041–1042
Constantine IX. }	1042–1054
Zoe }	1042–1050
Theodora	1054–1056
Michael VI.	1056–1057
Isaac	1057–1059
Constantine X.	1059–1067
Eudocia }	1067–1071
Romanus IV. }	1068–1071
Michael VII. }	1071–1078
Constantine XI. }	1071–1078
Nicephorus III.	1078–1081
Alexius I.	1081–1118
John II. Comnenus	1118–1143
Manuel I.	1143–1180
Alexius II.	1180–1183
Andronicus I.	1183–1185
Isaac II.	1185–1195
Alexius III.	1195–1203
Isaac II. (restored)	1203–1204
Alexius IV.	1203–1204
Alexius V.	1204

(At Nicæa.)

Theodore Lascaris I.	1204–1222
John III. Ducas Vataces	1222–1255
Theodore Lascaris II.	1255–1259
John IV. Lascaris	1259–1261

(Restored to Constantinople.)

Michael VIII.	1261–1282
Andronicus II.	1282–1328
Michael IX. (regent)	1295–1320
Andronicus III.	1328–1341
John Palæologus I.	1341–1376
John Cantacuzenus (regent)	1347–1354
Andronicus IV.	1376–1379
John Palæologus I. (restored)	1379–1391
Manuel II.	1391–1425
John Palæologus II.	1425–1448
Constantine XIII. Palæologus	1448–1453

Latin Emperors at Constantinople.

	A.D.
Baldwin I.	1204–1205
Henry I.	1206–1216
Peter	1216–1221
Robert	1221–1228
Baldwin II.	1228–1261

Carlovingian Roman Emperors.

Charlemagne	800–814
Louis I.	814–840
Lothaire I.	840–855
Louis II.	855–875
Charles II.	875–877
Charles III.	881–887
Arnulf	896–899

Kings of Germany and Emperors of the Holy Roman Empire after 962.

Louis the German	843–876
Charles the Fat	876–887
Arnulf	887–899
Louis the Child	900–911
Conrad I.	911–918
Henry I.	919–936
Otto I. (emperor)	936–973
Otto II. (emperor)	973–983
Otto III. (emperor)	983–1002
Henry II. (emperor)	1002–1024
Conrad II. (emperor)	1024–1039
Henry III. (emperor)	1039–1056
Henry IV. (emperor)	1056–1106
Rudolph	1077–1080
Henry V. (emperor)	1106–1125
Lothaire II. (emperor)	1125–1137
Conrad III. (emperor)	1138–1152
Frederick I. (emperor)	1152–1190
Henry VI. (emperor)	1190–1197
Philip	1198–1208
Otto IV. (emperor)	1198–1215
Frederick II. (emperor)	1215–1250
William	1247–1256
Conrad IV.	1250–1254
Interregnum	1256–1273
Rudolph I.	1273–1291
Adolphus	1292–1298
Albert I.	1298–1308
Henry VII. (emperor)	1308–1313
Louis IV. (emperor)	1314–1347
Frederick III.	1314–1330
Charles IV. (emperor)	1347–1378
Wenceslaus	1378–1400
Rupert	1400–1410
Jossus	1410–1411
Sigismund (emperor)	1411–1437
Albert II.	1438–1439
Frederick IV. (emperor)	1440–1493
Maximilian I. (emperor)	1493–1519
Charles V. (emperor)	1519–1556
Ferdinand I. (emperor)	1558–1564
Maximilian II. (emperor)	1564–1576
Rudolph II. (emperor)	1576–1612
Matthias (emperor)	1612–1619
Ferdinand II. (emperor)	1619–1637
Ferdinand III. (emperor)	1637–1657
Leopold I. (emperor)	1658–1705
Joseph I. (emperor)	1705–1711
Charles VI. (emperor)	1711–1740
Maria Theresa (empress)	1740–1780
Charles VII. (emperor)	1742–1745
Francis I. (emperor)	1745–1765
Joseph II. (emperor)	1765–1790
Leopold II. (emperor)	1790–1792
Francis II. (emperor)	1792–1806

Emperors of Austria.

	A.D.
Francis I. (II. of Holy Roman Empire)	1804–1835
Ferdinand I.	1835–1848
Francis Joseph	1848–

Kings of Prussia and Emperors of Germany after 1871.

Frederick I.	1701–1713
Frederick William I.	1713–1740
Frederick II.	1740–1786
Frederick William II.	1786–1797
Frederick William III.	1797–1840
Frederick William IV.	1840–1861
William I.	1861–1888
Frederick III.	1888
William II.	1888–

Bishops of Rome and Popes.

Peter (?)	42–66?
Linus	66–78
Anacletus I.	78–91?
Clement I.	91–100
Evaristus	100–109
Alexander I.	about 109–119
Sixtus I.	about 119–126
Telesphorus	127–139
Hyginus	139–142
Pius I.	142–156
Anicetus	about 156–166
Soterus	166–174
Eleutherus	174–186
Victor I.	about 187–200
Zephyrinus	about 200–217
Calixtus I.	217–222
Urban I.	222–230
Pontianus	230–235
Anteros	235–236
Fabian	236–250
Cornelius	251–253
Lucius I.	253–254
Stephen I.	254–257
Sixtus II.	257–258
Dionysius	259–269
Felix I.	269–274
Eutychianus	275–283
Caius	283–296
Marcellinus	296–304
Marcellus	307–309
Eusebius	310
Milchiades	311–314
Silvester	314–335
Marcus	336
Julius I.	337–352
Liberius	352–366
Felix II.	355–358
Damasus	366–384
Ursinus (antipope)	366–384
Siricius	384 or 385–398
Anastasius	398–402
Innocent I.	402–417
Zosimus	417–418
Boniface I.	418–422
Celestine I.	422–432
Sixtus III.	432–440
Leo I.	440–461
Hilarius	461–467
Simplicius	468–483
Felix III.	483–492
Gelasius I.	492–496
Anastasius II.	496–498
Symmachus	498–514
Hormisdas	514–523
John I.	523–526
Felix IV.	526–530
Boniface II.	530–532
John II.	532–535
Agapetus	535–536
Silverius	536–537
Vigilius	537–555
Pelagius I.	555–560
John III.	560–573
Benedict I.	574–578
Pelagius II.	578–590
Gregory I.	590–604
Sabinianus	604–606 or 607

Bishops of Rome and Popes—continued.

	A.D.
Boniface III.	606 or 607
Boniface IV.	608–615
Deusdedit	614(615)–617(618)
Boniface V.	619–625
Honorius I.	625–638
Severinus	640
John IV.	640–642
Theodore I.	642–649
Martin I.	649–653
Eugenius I.	654–657
Vitalianus	657–672
Adeodatus	672–676
Domnus I.	676–678
Agatho	678–682
Leo II.	682–683
Benedict II.	684–685
John V.	685–686
Conon	686–687
Sergius I.	687–701
John VI.	701–705
John VII.	705–707
Sisinnius	708
Constantine	708–715
Gregory II.	715–731
Gregory III.	731–741
Zacharius	741–752
Stephen II.	752–757
Paul I.	757–767
Constantine Theophylactus	767–768
Stephen III.	768–772
Adrian I.	772–795
Leo III.	795–816
Stephen IV.	816–817
Paschal I.	817–824
Eugenius II.	824–827
Valentinus	827
Gregory IV.	827–844
Sergius II.	844–847
Leo IV.	847–855
Benedict III.	855–858
Nicholas I.	858–867
Adrian II.	867–872
John VIII.	872–882
Martin II.	882–884
Adrian III.	884–885
Stephen V.	885–891
Formosus	891–896
Boniface VI.	896
Stephen VI.	896–897
Romanus	897
Theodorus II.	898
John IX.	898–900
Benedict IV.	900–903
Leo V.	903
Christopher	903–904
Sergius III.	904–911
Anastasius III.	911–913
Landonius	913–914
John X.	914–928
Leo VI.	928–929
Stephen VII.	929–931
John XI.	931–932
Leo VII.	936–939
Stephen VIII.	939–942
Martin III.	942–946
Agapetus II.	946–955
John XII.	955–963
Leo VIII.	963–965
Benedict V.	964–965
John XIII.	965–972
Benedict VI.	972–974
Domnus II.	974–975
Boniface VII. (antipope)	974–984
Benedict VII.	975–983
John XIV.	983–984
John XV.	985–996
Gregory V.	996–999
John XVI. (antipope)	997–998
Silvester II.	999–1003
John XVII.	1003
John XVIII.	1003–1009
Sergius IV.	1009–1012
Benedict VIII.	1012–1024
John XIX.	1024–1033
Benedict IX.	1033–1044
Silvester III. (antipope)	1044
Gregory VI.	1045–1046
Clement II.	1046–1047

Bishops of Rome and Popes—continued.

	A.D.
Damasus II.	1048
Leo IX.	1049–1054
Victor II.	1055–1057
Stephen IX.	1057–1058
Benedict X. (antipope)	1058
Nicholas II.	1058–1061
Alexander II.	1061–1073
Honorius II. (antipope)	1061–1064
Gregory VII.	1073–1085
Clement III. (antipope)	1080–1085
Victor III.	1086–1087
Urban II.	1088–1099
Paschal II.	1099–1118
Gelasius II.	1118–1119
Gregory VIII. (antipope)	1118–1121
Calixtus II.	1119–1124
Honorius II.	1124–1130
Innocent II.	1130–1143
Anacletus II. (antipope)	1130–1138
Victor IV. (antipope)	1138–1143
Celestine II.	1143–1144
Lucius II.	1144–1145
Eugenius III.	1145–1153
Anastasius IV.	1153–1154
Adrian IV.	1154–1159
Alexander III.	1159–1181
Victor V. (antipope)	1159
Paschal III. (antipope)	1164–1168
Lucius III.	1181–1185
Urban III.	1185–1187
Gregory VIII.	1187
Clement III.	1187–1191
Celestine III.	1191–1198
Innocent III.	1198–1216
Honorius III.	1216–1227
Gregory IX.	1227–1241
Celestine IV.	1241
Innocent IV.	1243–1254
Alexander IV.	1254–1261
Urban IV.	1261–1264
Clement IV.	1265–1268
Gregory X.	1271–1276
Innocent V.	1276
Adrian V.	1276
Vicedominus	1276
John XX. or XXI.	1276–1277
Nicholas III.	1277–1280
Martin IV.	1281–1285
Honorius IV.	1285–1287
Nicholas IV.	1288–1292
Celestine V.	1294
Boniface VIII.	1294–1303
Benedict XI.	1303–1304
Clement V.	1305–1314
John XXII.	1316–1334
Nicholas V. (antipope)	1328–1330
Benedict XII.	1334–1342
Clement VI. (at Avignon)	1342–1352
Innocent VI. (at Avignon)	1352–1362
Urban V. (at Avignon)	1362–1370
Gregory XI. (at Avignon)	1370–1378
Urban VI.	1378–1389
Clement VII. (antipope) (at Avignon)	1378–1394
Boniface IX.	1389–1404
Benedict XIII. (at Avignon)	1394–1417
Innocent VII.	1404–1406
Gregory XII.	1406–1415
Alexander V.	1409–1410
John XXIII.	1410–1415
Martin V.	1417–1431
Clement VIII. (antipope)	1424–1429
Eugenius IV.	1431–1447
Felix V. (antipope)	1440–1449
Nicholas V.	1447–1455
Calixtus III.	1455–1458
Pius II.	1458–1464
Paul II.	1464–1471

Bishops of Rome and Popes—continued.

	A.D.
Sixtus IV.	1471–1484
Innocent VIII.	1484–1492
Alexander VI.	1492–1503
Pius III.	1503
Julius II.	1503–1513
Leo X.	1513–1521
Adrian VI.	1522–1523
Clement VII.	1523–1534
Paul III.	1534–1549
Julius III.	1550–1555
Marcellus II.	1555
Paul IV.	1555–1559
Pius IV.	1559–1565
Pius V.	1566–1572
Gregory XIII.	1572–1585
Sixtus V.	1585–1590
Urban VII.	1590
Gregory XIV.	1590–1591
Innocent IX.	1591
Clement VIII.	1592–1605
Leo XI.	1605
Paul V.	1605–1621
Gregory XV.	1621–1623
Urban VIII.	1623–1644
Innocent X.	1644–1655
Alexander VII.	1655–1667
Clement IX.	1667–1669
Clement X.	1670–1676
Innocent XI.	1676–1689
Alexander VIII.	1689–1691
Innocent XII.	1691–1700
Clement XI.	1700–1721
Innocent XIII.	1721–1724
Benedict XIII.	1724–1730
Clement XII.	1730–1740
Benedict XIV.	1740–1758
Clement XIII.	1758–1769
Clement XIV.	1769–1774
Pius VI.	1775–1799
Pius VII.	1800–1823
Leo XII.	1823–1829
Pius VIII.	1829–1830
Gregory XVI.	1831–1846
Pius IX.	1846–1878
Leo XIII.	1878–1903
Pius X.	1903–

Kings of England.

Egbert	802–839
Æthelwulf	839–858
Æthelbald	858–860
Æthelberht	860–866
Æthelred I.	866–878
Alfred	878–901
Edward the Elder	901–924
Athelstan	924–940
Edmund I.	940–946
Edred	946–955
Edwy	955–959
Edgar	959–975
Edward the Martyr	975–979
Æthelred II.	979–1016
Edmund II.	1016
Canute	1017–1035
Harold I.	1035–1040
Hardicanute	1040–1042
Edward the Confessor	1042–1066
Harold II.	1066
William I.	1066–1087
William II.	1087–1100
Henry I.	1100–1135
Stephen	1135–1154
Henry II.	1154–1189
Richard I.	1189–1199
John	1199–1216
Henry III.	1216–1272
Edward I.	1272–1307
Edward II.	1307–1327
Edward III.	1327–1377
Richard II.	1377–1399
Henry IV.	1399–1413
Henry V.	1413–1422
Henry VI.	1422–1461
Edward IV.	1461–1483
Edward V.	1483
Richard III.	1483–1485
Henry VII.	1485–1509
Henry VIII.	1509–1547

Kings of England—continued.

	A.D.
Edward VI.	1547–1553
Mary	1553–1558
Elizabeth	1558–1603
James I.	1603–1625
Charles I.	1625–1649
The Commonwealth	1649–1660
Oliver Cromwell, Protector	1653–1658
Richard Cromwell, Protector	1658–1659
Charles II.	1660–1685
James II.	1685–1688
William III. and Mary	1689–1702
Anne	1702–1714
George I.	1714–1727
George II.	1727–1760
George III.	1760–1820
George IV.	1820–1830
William IV.	1830–1837
Victoria	1837–1901
Edward VII.	1901–1910
George V.	1910–

Kings and other Rulers of France.

Louis I.	814–840
Charles I.	840–877
Louis II.	877–879
Louis III.	879–882
Carloman	879–884
Charles II.	885–887
Eudes	888–898
Charles III.	893–929
Robert I.	922–923
Rudolf	923–936
Louis IV.	936–954
Lothair	954–986
Louis V.	986–987
Hugh Capet	987–996
Robert II.	996–1031
Henry I.	1031–1060
Philip I.	1060–1108
Louis VI.	1108–1137
Louis VII.	1137–1180
Philip II.	1180–1223
Louis VIII.	1223–1226
Louis IX.	1226–1270
Philip III.	1270–1285
Philip IV.	1285–1314
Louis X.	1314–1316
John I.	1316
Philip V.	1316–1322
Charles IV.	1322–1328
Philip VI.	1328–1350
John II.	1350–1364
Charles V.	1364–1380
Charles VI.	1380–1422
Charles VII.	1422–1461
Louis XI.	1461–1483
Charles VIII.	1483–1498
Louis XII.	1498–1515
Francis I.	1515–1547
Henry II.	1547–1559
Francis II.	1559–1560
Charles IX.	1560–1574
Henry III.	1574–1589
Henry IV.	1589–1610
Louis XIII.	1610–1643
Louis XIV.	1643–1715
Louis XV.	1715–1774
Louis XVI.	1774–1792
(Louis XVII. (titular king)	1793–1795)
First Republic	1792–1795
Directory	1795–1799
Consulate	1799–1804
First Empire (Napoleon I.)	1804–1814
Louis XVIII.	1814–1824
Charles X.	1824–1830
Louis Philippe	1830–1848
Second Republic	1848–1851
Second Empire (Napoleon III.)	1852–1870

Presidents of the Third Republic.

Thiers	1871–1873
MacMahon	1873–1879
Grévy	1879–1887
Carnot	1887–1894
Casimir Périer	1894–1895
Faure	1895–1899
Loubet	1899–1906
Fallières	1906–

Kings and other Rulers of France—continued.

	A.D.
MacMahon	1873–1879
Grévy	1879–1887
Carnot	1887–1894
Casimir Périer	1894–1895
Faure	1895–1899
Loubet	1899–1906
Fallières	1906–

Kings of Spain.

(Of Castile and Leon until 1512.)

Ferdinand I.	1033–1065
Sancho II.	1065–1072
Alfonso VI.	1072–1109
Alfonso VII.	1109–1126
Alfonso VIII.	1126–1157
Sancho III.	1157–1158
Alfonso IX.	1158–1214
Henry I.	1214–1217
Ferdinand III.	1217–1252
Alfonso X.	1252–1282
Sancho IV.	1282–1295
Ferdinand IV.	1295–1312
Alfonso XI.	1312–1350
Pedro	1350–1369
Henry II.	1369–1379
John I.	1379–1390
Henry III.	1390–1406
John II.	1406–1454
Henry IV.	1454–1474
Isabella I.	1474–1504
Philip I.	1504–1506
Ferdinand V.	1506–1516
Charles I.	1516–1556
Philip II.	1556–1598
Philip III.	1598–1621
Philip IV.	1621–1665
Charles II.	1665–1700
Philip V.	1700–1724
Louis	1724
Philip V. (restored)	1724–1746
Ferdinand VI.	1746–1759
Charles III.	1759–1788
Charles IV.	1788–1808
Ferdinand VII.	1808
Joseph Bonaparte	1808–1813
Ferdinand VII. (restored)	1814–1833
Isabella II.	1833–1868
Regency	1868–1870
Amadeus	1870–1873
Republic	1873–1874
Alfonso XII.	1874–1885
Maria-de-las-Mercedes	1885–1886
Alfonso XIII.	1886–

Kings of Italy.

(Of Sardinia until 1861.)

Victor Amadeus I.	1720–1730
Charles Emmanuel I.	1730–1773
Victor Amadeus II.	1773–1796
Charles Emmanuel II.	1796–1802
Victor Emmanuel I.	1802–1805
Napoleon I. (of France)	1805–1814
Victor Emmanuel I. (restored)	1814–1821
Charles Felix	1821–1831
Charles Albert	1831–1849
Victor Emmanuel II.	1849–1878
Humbert	1878–1900
Victor Emmanuel III.	1900–

Czars of Russia.

Ivan IV.	1533–1584
Feodor I.	1584–1598
Boris Godunof	1598–1605
Feodor II.	1605
Demetrius (usurper)	1605–1606
Vasili IV.	1606–1610
Ladislaus	1610–1613
Michael (Romanoff)	1613–1645
Alexis	1645–1676

Czars of Russia—continued.

	A.D.
Feodor III.	1676–1682
Ivan V.	1682–1689
Peter I.	1689–1725
Catherine I.	1725–1727
Peter II.	1727–1730
Anna	1730–1740
Ivan VI.	1740–1741
Elizabeth	1741–1762
Peter III.	1762
Catherine II.	1762–1796
Paul	1796–1801
Alexander I.	1801–1825
Nicholas I.	1825–1855
Alexander II.	1855–1881
Alexander III.	1881–1894
Nicholas II.	1894–

Mogul Emperors of India.

Baber	1526–1530
Humayun	1530–1556
Akbar	1556–1605
Jahangir	1605–1627
Shah Jehan	1628–1658
Aurung-Zeb	1658–1707
Bahadur Shah	1707–1712
Jahandar Shah	1713–1718
Mohammed Shah	1719–1748

Sultans of Turkey.

Osman I. (emir)	1299–1326
Orkhan	1326–1359
Amurath I.	1359–1389
Bajazet I.	1389–1403
Solyman I.	1403–1410
Musa Chelebi	1410–1413
Mohammed I.	1413–1421
Amurath II.	1421–1451
Mohammed II.	1451–1481
Bajazet II.	1481–1512

Sultans of Turkey—continued.

	A.D.
Selim I.	1512–1520
Solyman II.	1520–1566
Selim II.	1566–1574
Amurath III.	1574–1595
Mohammed III.	1595–1603
Ahmed I.	1603–1617
Mustapha I.	1617–1618
Osman II.	1618–1622
Mustapha I. (restored)	1622–1623
Amurath IV.	1623–1640
Ibrahim	1640–1648
Mohammed IV.	1648–1687
Solyman III.	1687–1691
Ahmed II.	1691–1695
Mustapha II.	1695–1703
Ahmed III.	1703–1730
Mahmud I.	1730–1754
Osman III.	1754–1757
Mustapha III.	1757–1773
Abdul Hamid I.	1774–1789
Selim III.	1789–1807
Mustapha IV.	1807–1808
Mahmud II.	1808–1839
Abdul Medjid	1839–1861
Abdul Aziz	1861–1876
Amurath (Murad) V.	1876
Abdul Hamid II.	1876–1909
Mohammed (Mehmed) V.	1909–

Khedives of Egypt.

Mehemet Ali	1805–1848
Ibrahim	1848
Abbas	1848–1854
Saïd	1854–1863
Ismail	1863–1879
Tewfik	1879–1892
Abbas	1892–

Presidents of the United States.

	A.D.
George Washington	1789–1797
John Adams	1797–1801
Thomas Jefferson	1801–1809
James Madison	1809–1817
James Monroe	1817–1825
John Quincy Adams	1825–1829
Andrew Jackson	1829–1837
Martin Van Buren	1837–1841
William Henry Harrison	1841
John Tyler	1841–1845
James Knox Polk	1845–1849
Zachary Taylor	1849–1850
Millard Fillmore	1850–1853
Franklin Pierce	1853–1857
James Buchanan	1857–1861
Abraham Lincoln	1861–1865
Andrew Johnson	1865–1869
Ulysses Simpson Grant	1869–1877
Rutherford Birchard Hayes	1877–1881
James Abram Garfield	1881
Chester Alan Arthur	1881–1885
Grover Cleveland	1885–1889
Benjamin Harrison	1889–1893
Grover Cleveland	1893–1897
William McKinley	1897–1901
Theodore Roosevelt	1901–1909
William Howard Taft	1909–

Vice-Presidents of the United States.

John Adams	1789–1797
Thomas Jefferson	1797–1801
Aaron Burr	1801–1805
George Clinton	1805–1812

Vice-Presidents of the United States—continued.

	A.D.
Elbridge Gerry	1813–1814
Daniel D. Tompkins	1817–1825
John C. Calhoun	1825–1832
Martin Van Buren	1833–1837
Richard M. Johnson	1837–1841
John Tyler	1841
George M. Dallas	1845–1849
Millard Fillmore	1849–1850
William R. King	1853
John C. Breckenridge	1857–1861
Hannibal Hamlin	1861–1865
Andrew Johnson	1865
Schuyler Colfax	1869–1873
Henry Wilson	1873–1875
William A. Wheeler	1877–1881
Chester A. Arthur	1881
Thomas A. Hendricks	1885
Levi P. Morton	1889–1893
Adlai E. Stevenson	1893–1897
Garret A. Hobart	1897–1899
Theodore Roosevelt	1901
Charles W. Fairbanks	1905–1909
James S. Sherman	1909–

Chief Justices of the Supreme Court.

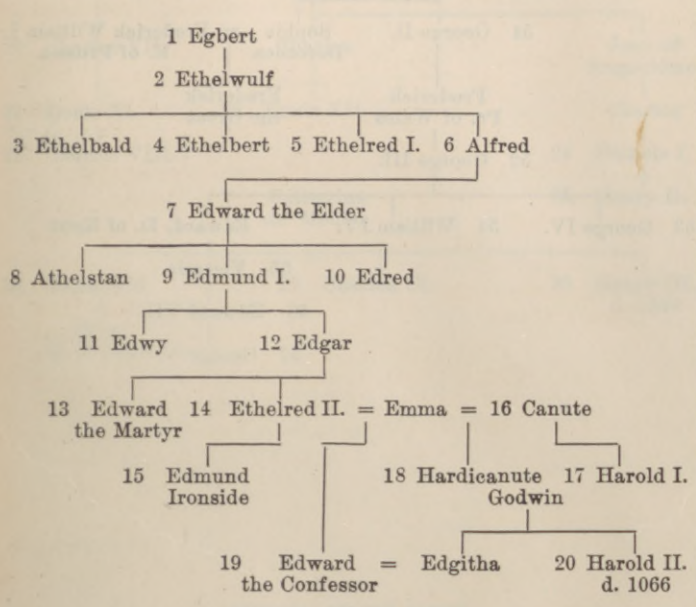
John Jay	1789–1795
John Rutledge	1795
Oliver Ellsworth	1796–1800
John Marshall	1801–1835
Roger B. Taney	1836–1864
Salmon P. Chase	1864–1873
Morrison R. Waite	1874–1888
Melville W. Fuller	1888–1910
Edward D. White	1910–

GENEALOGICAL CHARTS

=Married

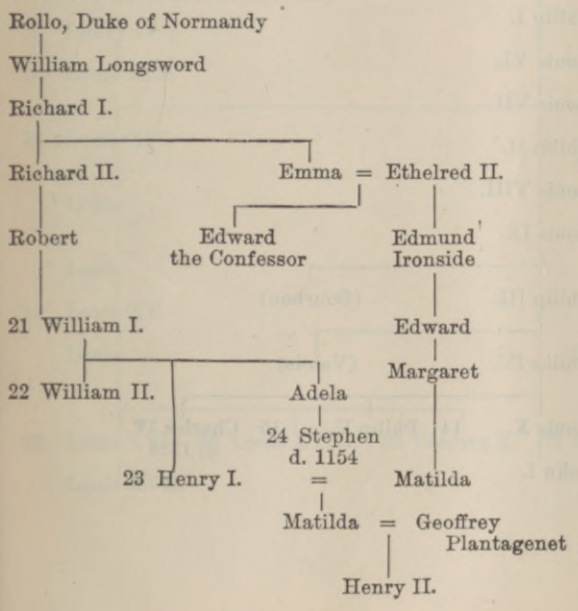
KINGS OF ENGLAND.

Before the Conquest. 827–1066.



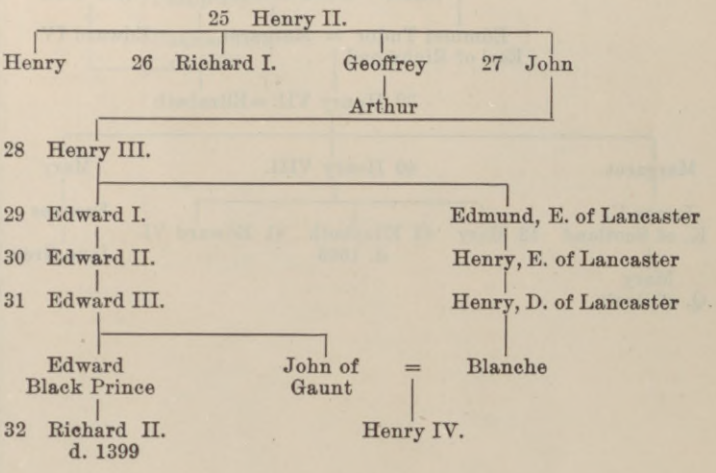
KINGS OF ENGLAND.

Norman Line. 1066–1154.
Union of English and Norman Lines in Henry II.

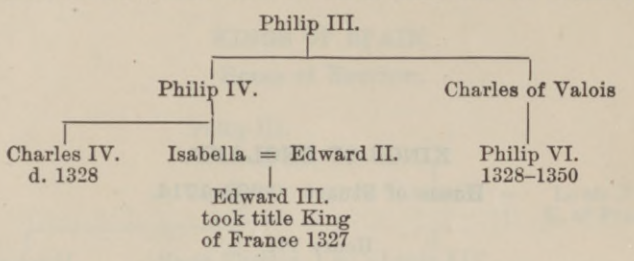


KINGS OF ENGLAND.

Plantagenet Line. 1154–1399.

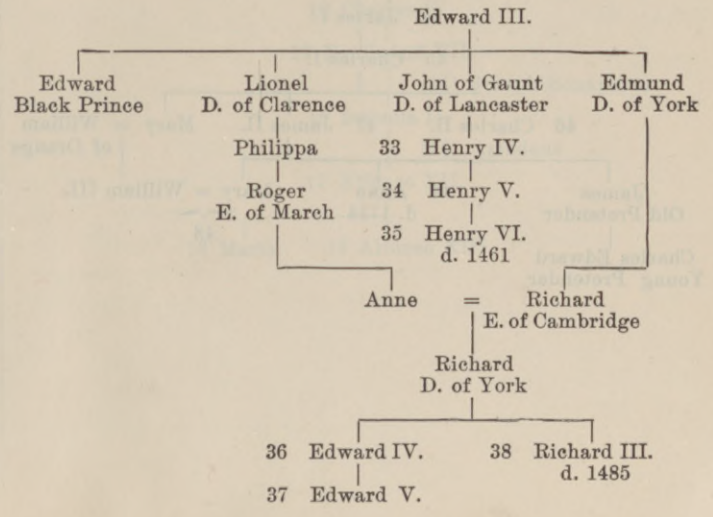


CLAIM OF EDWARD III. TO THE THRONE OF FRANCE.



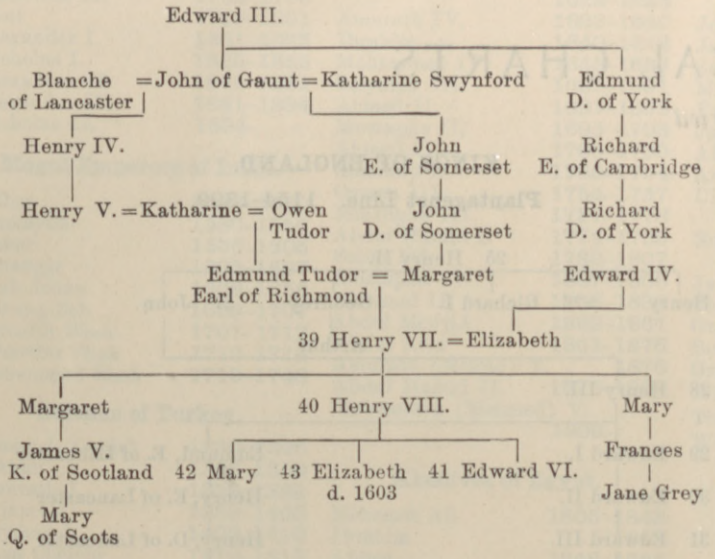
KINGS OF ENGLAND.

House of Lancaster. 1399–1461.
House of York. 1461–1485.



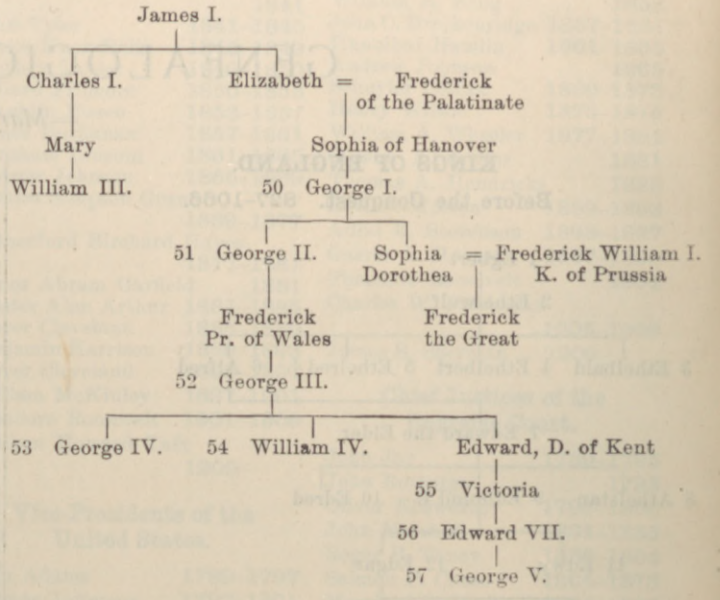
KINGS OF ENGLAND.

House of Tudor. 1485–1603.



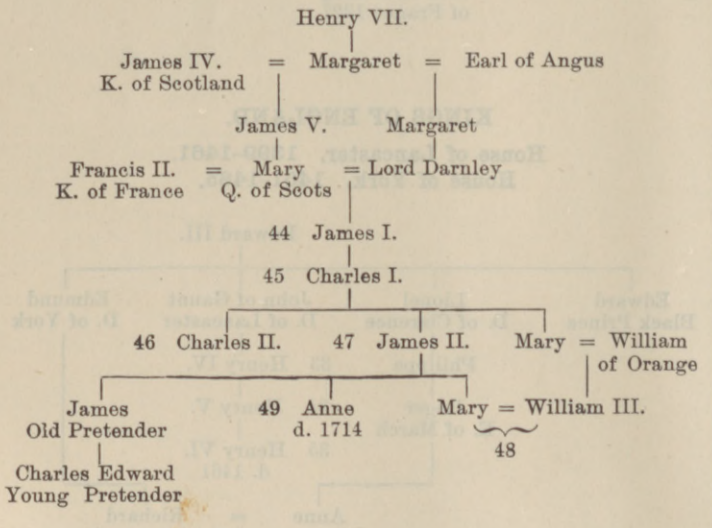
KINGS OF ENGLAND.

House of Hanover. 1714–.



KINGS OF ENGLAND.

House of Stuart. 1603–1714.



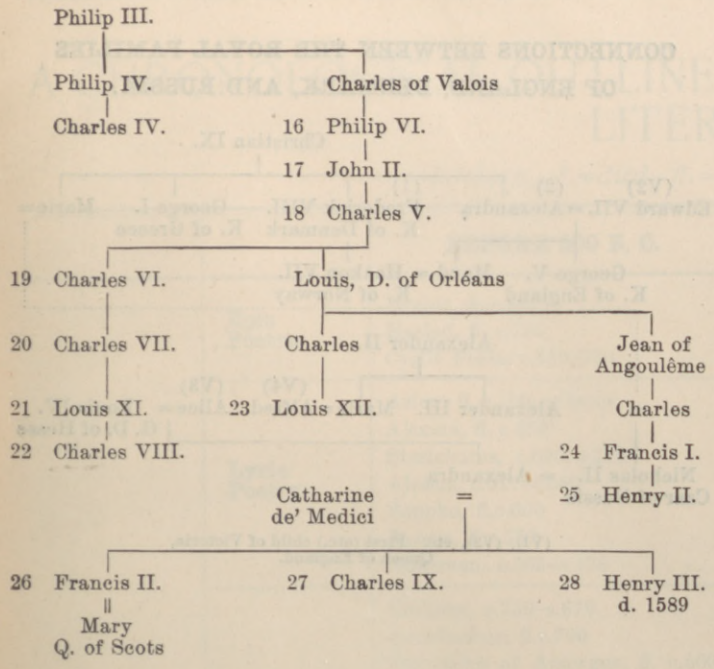
KINGS OF FRANCE.

Capetian Line.

1 Hugh Capet
2 Robert II.
3 Henry I.
4 Philip I.
5 Louis VI.
6 Louis VII.
7 Philip II.
8 Louis VIII.
9 Louis IX.
10 Philip III. (Bourbon)
11 Philip IV. (Valois)
12 Louis X. 14 Philip V. 15 Charles IV d. 1328
13 John I.

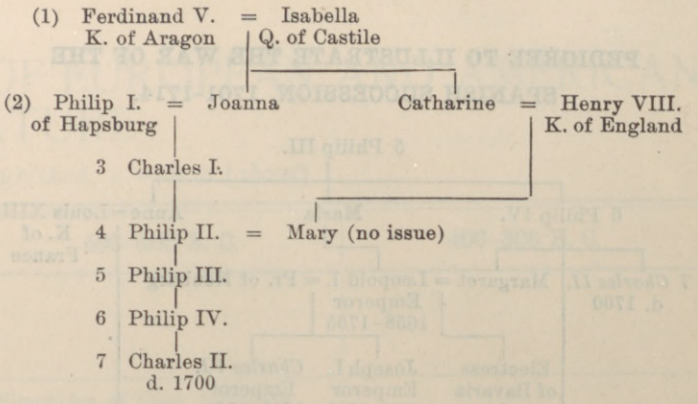
KINGS OF FRANCE.

House of Valois.



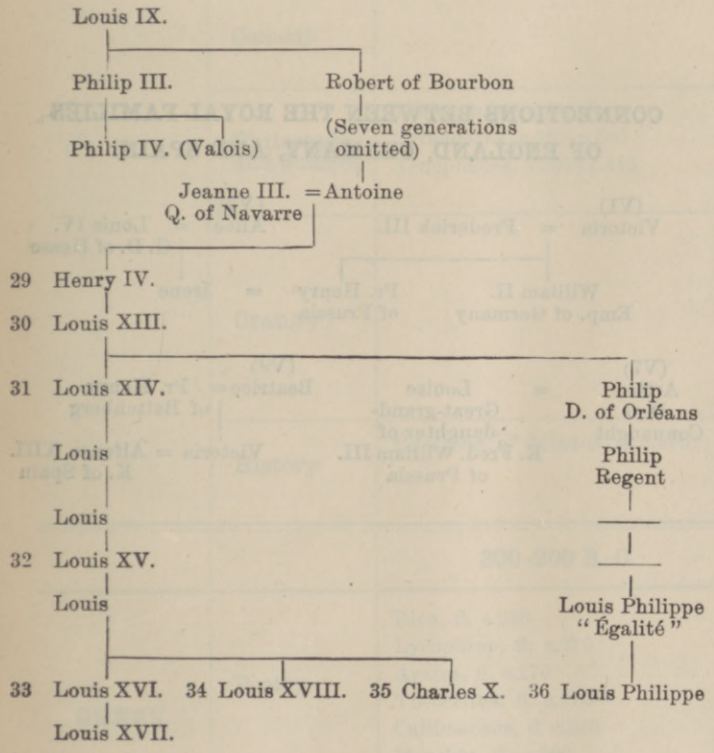
KINGS OF SPAIN.

House of Hapsburg.



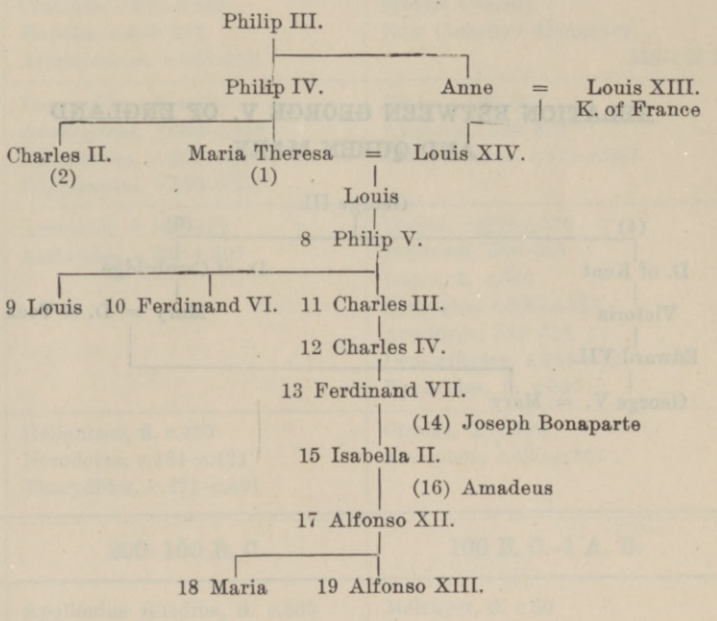
KINGS OF FRANCE.

House of Bourbon.

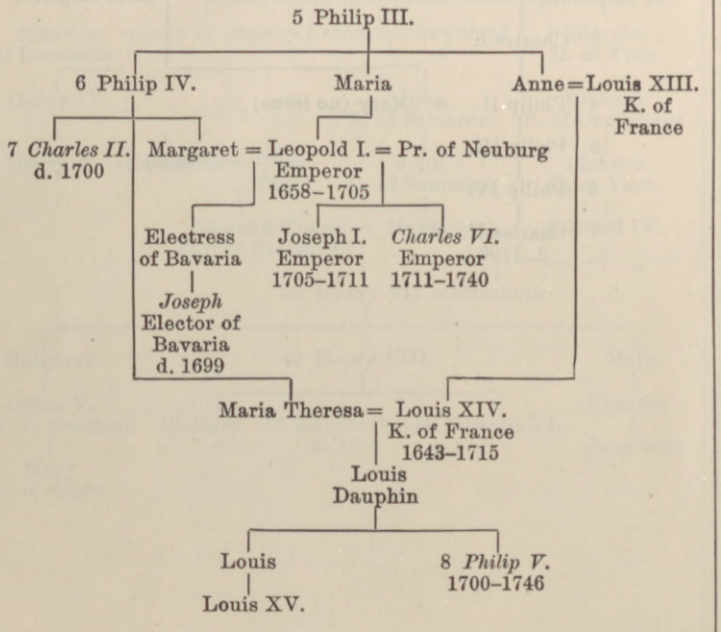


KINGS OF SPAIN.

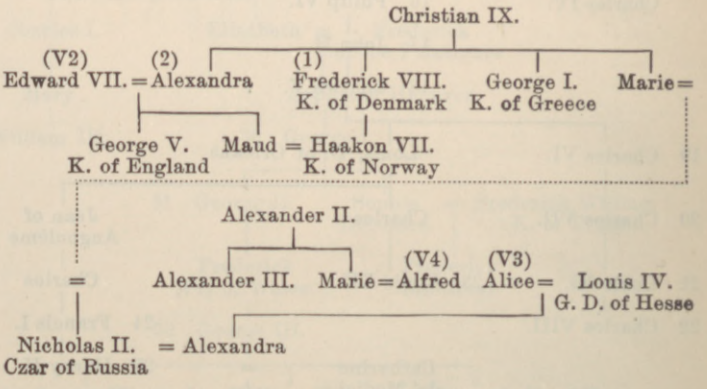
House of Bourbon.



PEDIGREE TO ILLUSTRATE THE WAR OF THE SPANISH SUCCESSION, 1701–1714.

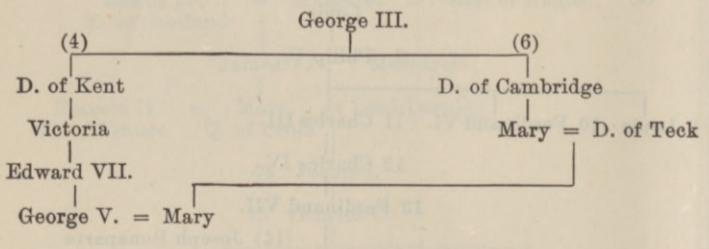


CONNECTIONS BETWEEN THE ROYAL FAMILIES OF ENGLAND, DENMARK, AND RUSSIA.

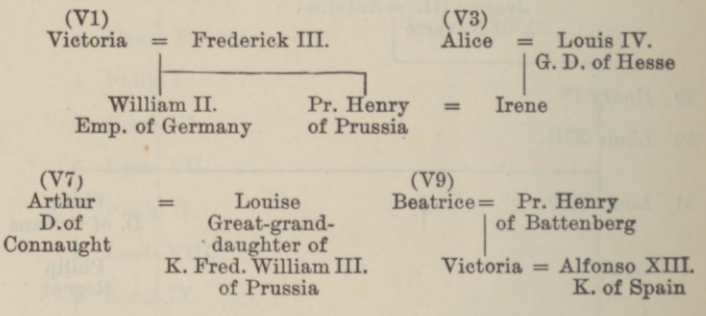


(V1), (V2), etc. First (etc.) child of Victoria, Queen of England.

RELATION BETWEEN GEORGE V. OF ENGLAND AND QUEEN MARY.



CONNECTIONS BETWEEN THE ROYAL FAMILIES OF ENGLAND, GERMANY, AND SPAIN.



A CHRONOLOGICAL OUTLINE OF EUROPEAN AND AMERICAN LITERATURE

b.=born, d.=died, fl.=flourished, c.=circa (about)

		BEFORE 500 B. C.	500–400 B. C.	400–300 B. C.
GREEK	Epic Poetry	Homer, fl. c.900? Hesiod, fl. c.735 Cyclic Poets, c.800–550
	Lyric Poetry	Arion, fl. c.700 or later Alcman, fl. c.650 Stesichorus, c.630–c.550 Alcæus, c.611–c.580 Sappho, fl.c.600 Ibycus, fl.c.550 Anacreon, c.563–c.478	Simonides of Ceos, 556–c.468 Bacchylides, fl. c.470 Pindar, 522–443
	Iambic and Elegiac Poetry	Callinus, c.730–c.670 Archilochus, fl.c.700 Simonides of Amorgus, fl. c.660 Tyrtæus, fl. c.650 Mimnermus, fl. c.630–600 Solon, c.638–c.559 Phocylides, fl. c.540 (also epic) Hipponax, fl.c.540 Theognis, fl.c.540
	Tragedy	Thespis, fl.c.550	Æschylus, 525–456 Phrynichus, c.512–c.476 Sophocles, c.496–406 Euripides, 480–406
	Comedy		Cratinus, c.520–c.423 Eupolis, c.449–411 Aristophanes, c.448–380	Middle Comedy New Comedy—Menander, 342–c.291
	Philosophy and Science	Thales, c.640–c.546 Pythagoras, c.582–c.500 Xenophanes, c.570–c.480	Parmenides, fl. c.450 Anaxagoras, c.500–c.428 Empedocles, c.490–c.430 Hippocrates, c.460–c.377	Plato, c.429–347 Aristotle, 384–322 Theophrastus, c.372–c.287
	Oratory		Antiphon, c.480–411 Andocides, c.467–c.391	Lysias, c.458–c.380 Isocrates, 436–338 Isæus, fl. c.380 Lycurgus, c.396–c.323 Aeschines, 389–314 Demosthenes, c.384–322 Hyperides, fl. c.330
	History	Hecatæus of Miletus, d. c.476	Hellanicus, fl. c.450 Herodotus, c.484–c.424 Thucydides, c.471–c.401	Ctesias, fl. c.400 Xenophon, c.430–c.357

		300–200 B. C.	200–100 B. C.	100 B. C.–1 A. D.
GREEK	Poetry	Bion, fl. c.280 Lycophron, fl. c.270 Aratus, fl. c.270 Theocritus, fl. c.270 Callimachus, d. c.240 Moschus, fl. c.200	Apollonius Rhodius, fl. c.200 Nicander, fl. c.160	Meleager, fl. c.60
	Philosophy	Zeno, 344–c.264 Epicurus, 342–270

		300–200 B. C.—continued.	200–100 B. C.—continued.	100 B. C.–1 A. D.—continued.
GREEK—continued	Science and Grammar	Euclid, fl. c.300 Archimedes, c.287–212 Eratosthenes, c.276–c.196 Zenodotus, fl. c.280 Aristophanes of Byzantium, fl. c.200	Aristarchus, fl. 210–150 Apollodorus, fl. c.140 Hipparchus, c.160–c.125
	History	Berosus, fl. c.275 (a Babylonian) Manetho, fl. c.250 (an Egyptian)	Polybius, 204–c.125	Diodorus Siculus, fl. c.25 Dionysius of Halicarnassus, died c.7
LATIN	Epic Poetry	Nævius, d.204 Ennius, 239–169		Vergil, 70–19
	Tragedy	Livius Andronicus, c.284–c.204 The writers of epic poetry, above	Pacuvius, c.220–c.130 Accius, c.170–c.80
	Comedy	Plautus, c.254–184	Statius Cæcilius, fl. 200–165 Terence, c.185–c.159	Laberius, c.105–43 Publilius Syrus, fl. c.50
	Didactic Poetry			Lucretius, c.96–55 Vergil, 70–19
	Lyric Poetry			Catullus, c.87–c.54 Horace, 65–8
	Satire		Lucilius, c.180–103	Varro, 116–c.27 Horace, 65–8
	Elegiac Poetry			Catullus, c.87–c.54 Tibullus, c.54–18 Propertius, c.50–16 Ovid, 43–c.17 A.D.
	Oratory; Philosophy; Rhetoric	Appius Claudius Cæcus, fl. c.280	M. Porcius Cato, 234–149 Scipio Africanus the Younger, c.185–129 Caius Gracchus, c.154–121	Hortensius, 114–50 Cicero, 106–43 Seneca the Elder, fl. c.55
	History	Q. Fabius Pictor, fl. c.216	M. Porcius Cato, 234–149 L. Calpurnius Piso, fl. c.133	Cæsar, c.102–44 Nepos, c.100–30 Sallust, c.86–c.34 Livy, 59–17 A.D. Pompeius Trogus, fl. c.20
	Jurisprudence and other Prose		Publius Ælius, 174 Q. Mucius Scævola, fl. c.95	Varro, 116–c.27 Vitruvius, 70–16

		1–100 A. D.	100–200 A. D.	200–300 A. D.
GREEK	Poetry	Babrius, fl. c.50	Oppian, fl. c.180
	Philosophy	Philo Judæus, 20 B.C.–40 A.D. Epictetus, fl. c.90	Marcus Aurelius, 121–180	Plotinus, c.204–c.270 Porphyry, c.233–c.305 Iamblichus, fl. c.300
	Rhetoric; Prose	Dion Chrysostom, c.50–c.117	Hermogenes, fl. c.170 Aristides, 117–c.180 Lucian, c.120–c.200 Alciphron, fl. c.200	Longinus, c.210–273
	Science; Erudition		Apollonius Dyscolus, fl. c.138 Ptolemy, fl. c.139 Galen, c.130–c.190 Athenæus, fl. c.200	Ælian, fl. c.220
	History; Geography	Strabo, c.63 B.C.–c.24 A.D. Josephus, 37–c.95 Plutarch, fl. c.80	Arrian, c.100–c.175 Appian, fl. c.140 Pausanias, fl. c.180 Dion Cassius, c.155–c.230	Herodian, c.170–c.240 Diogenes Laertius, c.200 Philostratus, fl. c.237
	Christian Fathers			Clement of Alexandria, c.150–c.220 Origen, c.185–c.253

		1–100 A. D.—continued.	100–200 A. D.—continued.	200–300 A. D.—continued.
LATIN	Poetry	Phædrus, fl. 14–37 Silius Italicus, 25–101 Persius, 34–62 Lucan, 39–65 Calpurnius Siculus, fl. c.55 Petronius, fl. c.60 Valerius Flaccus, fl. c.70 Martial, 43–c.104 Statius, c.45–c.96	Juvenal, c.60–c.190 "Pervigilium Veneris"?	Nemesianus, fl. c.283 "Disticha Catonis"
	History	Valerius Maximus, fl. c.26 Velleius Paterculus, fl. c.30 Q. Curtius, fl. c.50	Tacitus, c.55–c.117 Suetonius, 70–150 Florus, fl. c.140 Justin, fl. c.150	"Historia Augusta"
	Oratory; Rhetoric; Belles-Lettres	C. Asinius Gallus, 40 B.C.–33 A.D. Quintilian, c.35–c.95	Pliny the Younger, 62–113 Fronto, c.90–c.175 Aulus Gellius, c.130–c.175 Apuleius, c.125–200	"The Panegyrists"
	Jurisprudence; Erudition; Philosophy	Seneca, c. 4–65 (also tragedies) Columella, fl. c.40 Pomponius Mela, fl. c.45 Celsus, fl. c.50 Pliny the Elder, 23–79	Gaius, c.110–c.180 Popinianus, d.212	Ulpian, d. c.228 Julius Paulus, c.200–c.250 Solinus, fl. c.260
	Christian Writers		Minucius Felix, fl. c.160	Tertullian, c.150–c.230 Cyprian, c.200–c.258 Commodianus, fl. c.249 Arnobius, fl. c.300 Lactantius, d.325

		300–400	400–500	500–600
GREEK	Poetry		Nonnus, fl. c.420 Quintus Smyrnæus, fl. c.450 Musæus, fl. c.500
	History	Eusebius, c.264–c.349	Socrates, d. c.440 Sozomen, c.400–c.450
	Rhetoric; Romance	Libanius, fl. c.350 Heliodorus, fl. c.390	Longus, fl. c.400 Stobæus, fl. c.480	Achilles Tatius, c.500
	Christian Writers	Gregory Nazianzen, c.325–c.390 Gregory of Nyssa, c.335–c.395
LATIN	Poetry	Ausonius, c.310–c.394 Prudentius, c.348–c.410 Juvencus, fl. c.325 Avienus, fl. c.370	Claudian, fl. c.400 Avianus, fl. c.400 Namatianus, fl. c.416 Sedulius, fl. c.450 Dracontius, fl. c.490 Apollinaris Sidonius, c.430–c.484	Boethius, c.475–524
	Prose; History; Grammar	Donatus, fl. c.350 Eutropius, fl. c.375 Ammianus Marcellinus, c.330–c.395 Symmachus, c.345–405	Martianus Capella, fl. c.400 Macrobius, fl. c.410 Orosius, fl. c.410 Fulgentius, fl. c.500	Priscian, fl. c.500 Cassiodorus, c.468–c.560 Jordanes, fl. c.551 Gildas, c.516–c.570 Gregory of Tours, c.540–594 Isidore of Seville, c.560–636
	Christian Writers	Hilarius, c.310–368 Ambrose, c.340–397 Jerome, c.340–420 Augustine, 354–430	Salvianus, fl. c.440	Ennodius, c.473–521 Pope Gregory I., c.540–604
GOTHIC		Ulfilas, 311–381

		600–700	700–800	800–900
LATIN WRITERS	History and Biography	Fredegarius?	Bede, c.673–735 Paulus Diaconus, c.720–c.800	Einhard, c.770–c.840 Nennius, fl. c.800 Hincmar, c.806–882 Asser, d. c.909

		600–700—continued.	700–800 – continued.	800–900—continued.
LATIN WRITERS—continued	Theology		Alcuin, 735–804	Rabanus, c.776–856 Johannes Scotus Erigena, c.810–c.891
	Poetry	Aldhelm, c.640–709	Angilbert, c.740–814
ENGLAND	Poetry	Cædmon, d. c.680	"Beowulf," c.720 "Lyrics of the Exeter Book" Cynewulf, d.783?
	Prose	"Laws of Æthelberht"	"Chronicle"	Alfred, 849–901
FRANCE				"Strasburg Oaths," 841 "St. Eulalie"
GERMANY	Poetry and Miscellaneous Writings		"Wessobrunner Gebet" "Merseburger Sprüche"	"Hildebrandslied," c.800 "Heliand," c.830 Otfried, fl. c.870 "Ludwigslied," 881 "Muspilli," c.900

		900–1000	1000–1100	1100–1200
ENGLAND	Prose	Ælfric, c.955–c.1020	Wulfstan, d.1023	"Chronicle," c't'd to 1154
	Poetry	"Judith"? "Brunanburh" "Maldon"		"Poema Morale," c.1170
ENGLAND: LATIN WRITERS	Theology		Lanfranc, c.1005–1089 Anselm, 1033–1109
	History		Ingulph, d.1109	Eadmer, d.1124? Simeon of Durham, d. c.1130 Ordericus Vitalis, 1075–c.1143 William of Malmesbury, c.1095–c.1142 Ethelred of Rievaulx, 1109–1166 Geoffrey of Monmouth, c.1100–c.1154 Gervase of Canterbury, fl. c.1188 Giraldus Cambrensis, c.1146–c.1220
	Science; Law			Adelard of Bath, fl. c.1139 Ranulf de Glanville, d.1190 Alexander Neckham, 1157–1217
	Poetry and Miscellaneous Writings			John of Salisbury, c.1115–1180 Walter Map, c.1140–1210 Joseph of Exeter, fl. c.1200
FRANCE	Poetry		"Song of Roland," c.1080 (present form) "Life of St. Alexis"	"Chansons de Geste" (also in 11th century) "Romances" Wace, c.1124–c.1174 Benoît de Ste. More, fl. c.1160 Chrétien de Troyes, c.1140–c.1190 Marie de France, fl. c.1200
	Theology			Abelard, 1079–1142 (Latin) Bernard, 1090–1153 (Latin)
	Latin Poetry			Alain de Lille, 1114–c.1203 Bernard of Cluny, c.1122–c.1156
GERMANY	Poetry			Konrad, surnamed "the Priest," fl. c.1130 Eilhard v. Oberg, fl. 1189–1209 Hartmann v. Aue, c.1170–c.1215
	Prose	Notker ("Labeo"), c.952–c.1022
	Latin Poetry	Roswitha, c.935–c.1000 (plays) "Waltharius"	"Ruodlieb"

		900–1000—continued.	1000–1100—continued.	1100–1200—continued.
SPAIN				"Poema del Cid," c.1200
ARABIC LEARNING			Avicenna, 980–1037	Averroës, c.1126–1198
PROVENCE	Poetry			"Girart de Rossilho," c.1150 Troubadours: Bertrand de Born, c.1140–c.1207 Pierre Vidal, fl. c.1175–c.1215
SCANDINAVIA		Portions of the "Poetic Edda" take present form	Saemund the Wise, c.1055–1133 Are Thorghilsson, 1067–1148	Svend Aageson, 1137–1178 Saxo Grammaticus, d. c.1208

		1200–1300	1300–1400	1400–1500
GREAT BRITAIN	Poetry	Orm, fl. c.1200 Layamon, fl. c.1205 "Metrical Romances" Robert of Gloucester, fl. c.1265	William of Shoreham, fl. 1320 Richard Rolle, c.1290–1349 Laurence Minot, fl. 1333–1352 "The Gawain Poet," c.1370 John Barbour, c.1316–1395 John Gower, c.1325–1408 William Langland, c.1330–c.1400 Geoffrey Chaucer, c.1340–1400 "Ballads of Robin Hood," etc.	Thomas Occleve, c.1370–c.1454 John Lydgate, c.1370–c.1451 Juliana Berners, c.1388–? James I. of Scotland, 1394–1437 Blind Harry, fl. c.1470 Robert Henryson, c.1430–c.1500
	Religious Prose	"Ancren Riwle," 1237	Dan Michel, fl. c.1340 Wyclif, c.1324–1384	Reginald Pecock, c.1395–c.1460
	Philosophy and Theology (Latin)	Alexander of Hales, d.1245 Robert Grosseteste, d.1253 Roger Bacon, c.1214–1294 Duns Scotus, c.1265–c.1308	William of Occam, c.1270–1347 Thomas Bradwardine, c.1290–1349
	History; Travel; Romance		John Trevisa, d. c.1412 "Sir John Mandeville," c.1400 (original in French)	John Hardyng, 1378–c.1465 Sir Thomas Malory, c.1430–c.1470 Sir John Fortescue, d. c.1476
	History (Latin)	Jocelin of Brakelonde, fl. c.1200 Gervase of Tilbury, d. c.1235 Matthew of Paris, c.1200–1259	Ranulf Higden, d. c.1363	Thomas Walsingham, fl. c.1440 John Capgrave, 1393–1464
	Drama		"Miracle Plays"	"Morality Plays"
FRANCE	Poetry	Guillaume de Lorris, d. c.1240 Philippe Mouskès, c.1215–1283 Rutebœuf, c.1230–c.1280 Adam de la Halle, c.1240–c.1287 Jean de Meun, c.1250–c.1305 Adenet "le roi," fl. c.1270 "Reynard the Fox"	Guillaume de Machault, c.1284–c.1370 Jean Froissart, 1337–c.1410 Eustache Deschamps, c.1345–c.1405	Christine de Pisan, c.1363–c.1440 Charles d'Orléans, 1391–1465 Alain Chartier, c.1392–c.1433 François Villon, 1431–c.1484 Guillaume Coquillart, d. c.1490
	History and Travel	Villehardouin, c.1160–c.1212	Joinville, c.1224–1317 Marco Polo, 1254–1324 Froissart, 1337–c.1410	Philippe de Comines, c.1445–1511
	Prose Fiction	"Prose Romances"
GERMANY	Poetry	"Nibelungenlied," c.1200 "Gudrun," c.1210 Gottfried v. Strasburg, d. c.1210 Wolfram v. Eschenbach, fl. 1202–1217 Walther v. der Vogelweide, d. c.1230 Konrad v. Würzburg, d.1287	Meistersingers Heinrich v. Meissen, 1250–1318	Sebastian Brant, 1457–1521
ITALY	Poetry	Sordello, c.1180–c.1255 (wrote in Provençal) St. Francis of Assisi, 1182–1226 Brunetto Latini, 1230–1294 (wrote also in French) Guido Guinicelli, c.1240–1276 Guido Cavalcanti, c.1240–1300	Dante Alighieri, 1265–1321 Francesco Petrarch, 1304–1374 Giovanni Boccaccio, 1313–1375	Luigi Pulci, 1432–c.1487 Matteo Boiardo, c.1434–1494 Lorenzo de' Medici, c.1449–1492 Politian, 1454–1494

		1200–1300—continued.	1300–1400—continued.	1400–1500—continued.
ITALY—continued	Prose Fiction		Giovanni Boccaccio, 1313–1375	Jacopo Sannazaro, 1458–1530 Æneas Silvius (Pius II.), 1405–1464 Masuccio di Salerno, c.1420–c.1476
SPAIN	Poetry	Gonzalo de Berceo, fl. c.1220–1246	Juan Ruiz, fl. c.1350 Pedro Lopez de Ayala, 1322–1407	Marquis of Santillana, 1398–1458 Juan de Mena, c.1411–1456
	Prose	Alfonso the Wise, 1221–1284	Don Juan Manuel, 1282–1347	Fernando de Rojas, d. c.1510
SCANDINAVIA		Snorre Sturleson, 1179–1241
CONTINENTAL LATIN WRITERS	Theology; Science	Albertus Magnus, c.1193–1280 Bonaventura, 1221–1274 Thomas Aquinas, c.1225–1274 Jacopo de Voragine, 1230–1298 Arnold of Villanova, c.1240–1313 Ægidius a Columnis, c.1247–1316

		1500–1600	1600–1700	1700–1800
GREAT BRITAIN	Poetry	William Dunbar, c.1460–c.1525 John Skelton, c.1460–1529 Gawain Douglas, c.1474–1522 Alexander Barclay, c.1475–1552 Stephen Hawes, c.1476–c.1523 Sir David Lindsay, 1490–1555 Sir Thomas Wyatt, 1503–1542 Henry Howard, Earl of Surrey, c.1517–1547 Thomas Churchyard, c.1520–1604 Thomas Tusser, c.1524–c.1580 George Turbervile, c.1530–c.1595 George Gascoigne, c.1535–1577 Thomas Sackville, 1536–1608 Barnabe Googe, 1540–1594 Edmund Spenser, c.1552–1599 Fulke Greville, 1554–1628 Sir Philip Sidney, 1554–1586 Thomas Lodge, c.1556–1625 Thomas Watson, c.1557–1592 William Warner, c.1558–1609 Robert Southwell, c.1561–1595 Henry Constable, 1562–1613 Samuel Daniel, 1562–1619 Joshua Sylvester, 1563–1618 Michael Drayton, 1563–1631 William Shakspere, 1564–1616 Sir Edward Dyer, d.1607 James VI. of Scotland, 1566–1625 Thomas Campion, c.1567–1620 Sir William Alexander, c.1567–1640 Thomas Nashe, 1567–c.1601 Barnabe Barnes, c.1569–1609 Sir John Davies, 1569–1626 John Donne, 1573–1631 Ben Jonson, c.1573–1637 Joseph Hall, 1574–1656 Richard Barnfield, 1574–1627	George Sandys, 1577–1644 John Taylor, 1580–1653 John Barclay, 1582–1621 Phineas Fletcher, 1582–c.1650 Sir John Beaumont, 1583–1627 William Drummond of Hawthornden, 1585–1649 Giles Fletcher, c.1588–1623 George Wither, 1588–1667 Robert Herrick, 1591–1674 William Browne, 1591–c.1643 Francis Quarles, 1592–1644 George Herbert, 1593–1633 Thomas Carew, c.1598–c.1639 John Ogilby, 1600–1676 Thomas Randolph, 1605–1634 William Habington, 1605–1654 Edmund Waller, 1605–1687 John Milton, 1608–1674 Sir John Suckling, 1609–1642 Samuel Butler, 1612–1680 John Cleveland, 1613–1658 Sir John Denham, 1615–1669 Richard Crashaw, c.1616–c.1649 Abraham Cowley, 1618–1667 Richard Lovelace, 1618–1658 Andrew Marvell, 1621–1678 Henry Vaughan, 1622–1695 John Dryden, 1631–1700 Katharine Philips, 1631–1664 Earl of Roscommon, c.1633–1685 Sir Charles Sedley, 1639–1701 John Wilmot, Earl of Rochester, 1647–1680 Elkanah Settle, 1648–1723 Sir Richard Blackmore, c.1650–1729 John Oldham, 1653–1683 John Pomfret, 1657–1702 Sir Samuel Garth, 1661–1719	Matthew Prior, 1664–1721 Joseph Addison, 1672–1719 Isaac Watts, 1674–1748 Ambrose Philips, c.1675–1749 William Somerville, 1675–1742 John Philips, 1676–1708 Thomas Parnell, 1679–1718 Edward Young, 1683–1765 Elijah Fenton, 1683–1730 John Gay, 1685–1732 Allan Ramsay, 1686–1758 Thomas Tickell, 1686–1740 Alexander Pope, 1688–1744 John Byrom, 1692–1763 Richard Savage, c.1698–1743 Robert Blair, 1699–1746 James Thomson, 1700–1748 John Dyer, 1700–1758 Samuel Johnson, 1709–1784 Richard Glover, 1712–1785 William Shenstone, 1714–1763 William Whitehead, 1715–1785 Thomas Gray, 1716–1771 Mark Akenside, 1721–1770 William Collins, 1721–1759 James Grainger, c.1721–1766 Christopher Smart, 1722–1771 Joseph Warton, 1722–1800 William Mason, 1724–1797 Oliver Goldsmith, 1728–1774 Thomas Percy, 1729–1811 Charles Churchill, 1731–1764 William Cowper, 1731–1800 Erasmus Darwin, 1731–1802 William Falconer, 1732–1769 James Beattie, 1735–1803 James Macpherson, 1736–1796 John Wolcott (Peter Pindar), 1738–1819 William Combe, 1741–1823 Anna Barbauld, 1743–1825 Charles Dibdin, 1745–1814 Thomas Chatterton, 1752–1770 George Crabbe, 1754–1832 William Gifford, 1757–1826 William Blake, 1757–1827 Robert Burns, 1759–1796 William Bowles, 1762–1850

		1500–1600—continued.	1600–1700—continued.	1700–1800—continued.
GREAT BRITAIN—continued	Drama	John Bale, 1495–1563 John Heywood, c.1500–c.1580 Nicholas Udall, c.1505–1556 Thomas Norton, 1532–1584 Thomas Sackville, 1536–1608 Anthony Munday, 1553–1633 John Lyly, 1554–1606 George Peele, 1558–1598 Thomas Kyd, 1558–c.1595 George Chapman, c.1559–1634 Robert Greene, 1560–1592 Henry Chettle, c.1564–c.1607 Christopher Marlowe, 1564–1593 William Shakspere, 1564–1616	Thomas Middleton, c.1570–1627 Thomas Dekker, c.1570–c.1637 Ben Jonson, c.1573–1637 Cyril Tourneur, c.1575–c.1626 John Marston, c.1575–1634 John Fletcher, 1579–1625 John Webster, c.1580–c.1625 Philip Massinger, 1583–1640 Francis Beaumont, 1584–1616 William Rowley, c.1585–c.1642 John Ford, 1586–c.1640 Thomas Heywood, c.1587–c.1650 Thomas May, 1595–1650 James Shirley, 1596–1666 Richard Brome, d. c.1652 Thomas Randolph, 1605–1634 Sir William Davenant, 1606–1668 William Cartwright, 1611–1643 Sir Robert Howard, 1626–1698 George Villiers, Duke of Buckingham, 1627–1688 John Dryden, 1631–1700 Sir George Etherege, c.1635–1691 William Wycherley, c.1640–1716 Thomas Shadwell, 1640–1692 Elkanah Settle, 1648–1723 Thomas Otway, 1652–1685 Thomas D'Urfey, 1653–1723 Nathaniel Lee, c.1653–1692 John Crowne, d. c.1703 Sir John Vanbrugh, c.1666–1726 Susannah Centlivre, c.1667–1723	William Congreve, 1670–1729 Colley Cibber, 1671–1757 Sir Richard Steele, 1672–1729 Nicholas Rowe, 1674–1718 George Farquhar, 1678–1707 Aaron Hill, 1685–1750 George Lillo, 1693–1739 Charles Macklin, c.1697–1797 David Garrick, 1717–1779 John Home, 1722–1808 Oliver Goldsmith, 1728–1774 George Colman (the Elder), 1732–1794 Richard Cumberland, 1732–1811 Richard Brinsley Sheridan, 1751–1816 George Colman (the Younger), 1762–1836
	Prose Fiction	William Painter, c.1540–1594 Sir Philip Sidney, 1554–1586 John Lyly, 1554–1606 Robert Greene, 1560–1592 Thomas Nashe, 1567–c.1601	John Barclay, 1582–1621 John Bunyan, 1628–1688 Mrs. Aphra Behn, 1640–1689	Daniel Defoe, c.1661–1731 Jonathan Swift, 1667–1745 Mrs. Manley, c.1672–1724 Samuel Richardson, 1689–1761 Henry Fielding, 1707–1754 Samuel Johnson, 1709–1784 Laurence Sterne, 1713–1768 Horace Walpole, 1717–1797 Mrs. Lennox, 1720–1804 Tobias George Smollett, 1721–1771 Oliver Goldsmith, 1728–1774 Henry Mackenzie, 1745–1831 Frances Burney (Madame d'Arblay), 1752–1840 William Godwin, 1756–1836 William Beckford, 1759–1844 Mrs. Radcliffe, 1764–1823
	History	John Stow, 1525–1604 William Camden, 1551–1623 Sir Walter Raleigh, 1552–1618 Richard Grafton, d. c.1572 Raphael Holinshed, d. c.1580	Edward Hyde, Earl of Clarendon, 1608–1674 Gilbert Burnet, 1643–1715	David Hume, 1711–1776 William Robertson, 1721–1793 Edward Gibbon, 1737–1794
	Religious and Philosophical Writings	Sir Thomas More, 1478–1535 William Tyndale, c.1484–1536 Hugh Latimer, c.1485–1555 Miles Coverdale, 1488–1568 John Foxe, 1516–1587 Richard Hooker, c.1553–1600	Francis Bacon, 1561–1626 James Usher, c.1580–1656 Thomas Hobbes, 1588–1679 William Chillingworth, 1602–1644 Owen Felltham, c.1602–1668 Sir Kenelm Digby, 1603–1665 John Milton, 1608–1674 Jeremy Taylor, 1613–1667 Richard Baxter, 1615–1691 Ralph Cudworth, 1617–1688 Isaac Barrow, 1630–1677 John Locke, 1632–1704 Robert South, 1633–1716 Edward Stillingfleet, 1635–1699 William Penn, 1644–1718	Bernard Mandeville, c.1670–1733 Anthony Ashley Cooper, Earl of Shaftesbury, 1671–1713 Henry St. John, Viscount Bolingbroke, 1678–1751 George Berkeley, 1685–1753 William Law, 1686–1761 Joseph Butler, 1692–1752 John Wesley, 1703–1791 David Hume, 1711–1776 Hannah More, 1745–1833

		1500–1600—continued.	1600–1700—continued.	1700–1800—continued.
GREAT BRITAIN—continued	Prose	John Bourchier, Lord Berners, 1467–1533 Sir Thomas Elyot, c.1490–1546 George Buchanan, 1506–1582 Sir John Cheke, 1514–1557 Roger Ascham, 1515–1568 John Stow, c.1525–1605 George Puttenham, c.1530–c.1600 Sir Thomas Wilson, d.1581 Sir Thomas North, c.1535–c.1601 William Camden, 1551–1623 Richard Hakluyt, c.1552–1616 John Florio, c.1553–1625 Stephen Gosson, 1554–1624 Francis Meres, 1565–1647	Sir Henry Wotton, 1568–1639 Thomas Coryat, 1577–1617 Robert Burton, 1577–1640 Sir Thomas Overbury, 1581–1613 John Selden, 1584–1654 Izaak Walton, 1593–1683 James Howell, c.1595–1666 William Prynne, 1600–1669 John Earle, c.1601–1665 Sir Thomas Browne, 1605–1682 Sir William Dugdale, 1605–1686 Thomas Fuller, 1608–1661 James Harrington, 1611–1677 Sir Roger L'Estrange, 1616–1704 Elias Ashmole, 1617–1692 John Evelyn, 1620–1706 Algernon Sidney, c.1622–1683 Sir William Temple, 1628–1699 Charles Cotton, 1630–1687 John Dryden, 1631–1700 Samuel Pepys, c.1633–1703 Thomas Sprat, 1635–1713 Thomas Rymer, 1641–1713	Jeremy Collier, 1650–1726 John Dennis, 1657–1734 Francis Atterbury, 1662–1732 Richard Bentley, 1662–1742 John Arbuthnot, 1667–1735 Joseph Addison, 1672–1719 Sir Richard Steele, 1672–1729 John Oldmixon, 1673–1742 Charles Boyle, 1676–1731 Lady Mary Wortley Montagu, 1689–1762 Philip Dormer Stanhope, Earl of Chesterfield, 1694–1773 Samuel Johnson, 1709–1784 Gilbert White, 1720–1793 Joseph Warton, 1722–1800 Adam Smith, 1723–1790 Sir Joshua Reynolds, 1723–1792 Thomas Warton, 1728–1790 Edmund Burke, 1729–1797 Horne Tooke (John Horne), 1736–1812 James Boswell, 1740–1795 William Godwin, 1756–1836 "Junius Letters," 1768–1772
AMERICA	Poetry		Anne Bradstreet, 1612–1672 Michael Wigglesworth, 1631–1705	Thomas Godfrey, Jr., 1736–1763 John Trumbull, 1750–1831 Philip Freneau, 1752–1832 Timothy Dwight, 1752–1817 Phillis Wheatley Peters, c.1754–1784 Joel Barlow, 1754–1812
	Prose		John Winthrop, 1587–1649 William Bradford, 1590–1657 John Eliot, 1604–1690 Roger Williams, c.1604–1683 Increase Mather, 1639–1723	Cotton Mather, 1663–1728 Jonathan Edwards, 1703–1758 Benjamin Franklin, 1706–1790 John Woolman, 1720–1772 Hector St.-John de Crèvecœur, 1731–1813 (French) Thomas Paine, 1737–1809 Thomas Jefferson, 1743–1826 Alexander Hamilton, 1757–1804
FRANCE	Poetry	Mellin de Saint-Gelais, 1487–1558 Clément Marot, 1497–1544 Joachim du Bellay, c.1524–1560 Pierre de Ronsard, 1524–1585 Louise Labé, 1526–1566 Rémy Belleau, 1528–1577 Jean Antoine de Baïf, 1532–1589 Guillaume de Salluste du Bartas, 1544–1590 Philippe Desportes, 1545–1606 François de Malherbe, 1555–1628 Mathurin Régnier, 1573–1613	Jean Chapelain, 1595–1674 Vincent Voiture, 1598–1648 Jean de La Fontaine, 1621–1695 Nicolas Boileau-Despréaux, 1636–1711 Mme. Deshoulières, 1638–1694 Guillaume de Chaulieu, 1639–1720 Bernhard de Fontenelle, 1657–1757	Jean Baptiste Rousseau, 1670–1741 Antoine Houdart de La Motte, 1672–1731 Voltaire, 1694–1778 Jean François de Saint-Lambert, 1716–1803 Ponce Denis Ecouchard Lebrun (Lebrun-Pindare), 1729–1807 Jacques Delille, 1738–1813 Nicolas Joseph Laurent Gilbert, 1751–1780 Evariste Désiré de Forges, Vicomte de Parny, 1753–1814 André Marie de Chénier, 1762–1794
	Drama	Étienne Jodelle, 1532–1573 Robert Garnier, 1534–1590 Pierre de Larivey, c.1550–c.1612 Antoine de Montchrestien, d.1621	Jean Mairet, 1604–1686 Pierre Corneille, 1606–1684 Jean de Rotrou, 1609–1650 Paul Scarron, 1610–1660 Savinien Cyrano de Bergerac, c.1620–1655 Molière, 1622–1673 Thomas Corneille, 1625–1709 Philippe Quinault, 1635–1688 Jean Baptiste Racine, 1639–1699	Prosper Jolyot de Crébillon, 1674–1762 Philippe Néricault Destouches, 1680–1754 Pierre de Marivaux, 1688–1763 Pierre Claude Nivelle de La Chaussée, 1692–1754 Voltaire, 1694–1778 Michel Jean Sedaine, 1719–1797 Jean François Marmontel, 1723–1799

		1500–1600—continued.	1600–1700—continued.	1700–1800—continued.
FRANCE—continued	Drama—continued		Antoine Jacob Montfleury, 1640–1685 Jean François Regnard, 1655–1709 Jean Galbert de Campistron, 1656–1723 Dancourt (Florent Carton), 1661–1725	Pierre Augustin Caron de Beaumarchais, 1732–1799
	Prose Fiction	Margaret of Navarre, 1492–1549 François Rabelais, c.1495–1553	Honoré D'Urfé, 1567–1625 Seigneur de Gomberville, 1600–1674 Madeleine de Scudéry, 1607–1701 Gautier de Costes de La Calprenède, 1610–1663 Paul Scarron, 1610–1660 Charles Perrault, 1628–1703 Mme. de La Fayette, 1634–1693	Alain René Le Sage, 1668–1747 Pierre de Marivaux, 1688–1763 Voltaire, 1694–1778 Abbé Prévost d'Exiles, 1697–1763 Jean Jacques Rousseau, 1712–1778 Jacques Henri Bernardin de St. Pierre, 1737–1814
	History	Seigneur de Brantôme, c.1540–1614	Cardinal de Retz, 1614–1679	Duc de Saint-Simon, 1675–1755
	Prose	John Calvin, 1509–1564 Jacques Amyot, 1513–1593 Étienne Pasquier, 1529–1615 Étienne de la Boétie, 1530–1563 Michel de Montaigne, 1533–1592 Pierre Charron, 1541–1603 François de Sales, 1567–1622	René Descartes, 1596–1650 Jean Louis Guez de Balzac, 1597–1654 Duc de La Rochefoucauld, 1613–1680 Antoine Furetière, c.1620–1688 Blaise Pascal, 1623–1662 Madame de Sévigné, 1626–1696 Jacques Bénigne Bossuet, 1627–1704 Louis Bourdaloue, 1632–1704 Nicolas Boileau-Despréaux, 1636–1711 Nicolas Malebranche, 1638–1715 Jean de La Bruyère, 1645–1696 Fénelon, 1651–1715 Bernard de Fontenelle, 1657–1757	Jean Baptiste Massillon, 1663–1742 Montesquieu, 1689–1755 Voltaire, 1694–1778 Comte de Buffon, 1707–1788 Jean Jacques Rousseau, 1712–1778 Denis Diderot, 1713–1784 Étienne Bonnot de Condillac, 1715–1780 Jean Baptiste le Rond d'Alembert, 1717–1783 Jean François Marmontel, 1723–1799 Jean François de Laharpe, 1739–1803 Marquis de Condorcet, 1743–1794
GERMANY	Poetry and Drama	Hans Sachs, 1494–1576 Nikodemus Frischlin (Latin), 1547–1590 Johann Fischart, c.1550–c.1590	Martin Opitz, 1597–1639 Friedrich von Logau, 1604–1655 Paul Gerhardt, 1607–1676 Paul Fleming, 1609–1640 Andreas Gryphius, 1616–1664 Daniel Kaspar von Lohenstein, 1635–1683	Johan Jakob Bodmer, 1698–1783 Johann Christoph Gottsched, 1700–1766 Ewald Christian von Kleist, 1715–1759 Christian Fürchtegott Gellert, 1715–1769 Johann Wilhelm Ludwig Gleim, 1719–1803 Friedrich Gottlieb Klopstock, 1724–1803 Christopher Martin Wieland, 1733–1813 Matthias Claudius, 1740–1815 Johann Gottfried von Herder, 1744–1803 Gottfried A. Bürger, 1748–1794 Johann Wolfgang von Goethe, 1749–1832 Johann Heinrich Voss, 1751–1826 Friedrich Maximilian von Klinger, 1752–1831 Johann Christoph Friedrich von Schiller, 1759–1805
	Prose Fiction	"Faustbuch" "Till Eulenspiegel"	Johann Michael Moscherosch, 1601–1669 Christoffel von Grimmelshausen, 1625–1676 Abraham a Sancta-Clara, 1644–1709	Christopher Martin Wieland, 1733–1813 Johann Wolfgang von Goethe, 1749–1832 Jean Paul Friedrich Richter, 1763–1825

		1500–1600—continued.	1600–1700—continued.	1700–1800—continued.
GERMANY—continued	Religious and Philosophical Writings	Thomas Murner, 1475–1537 Martin Luther, 1483–1546 Ulrich von Hutten, 1488–1523	Jakob Böhme, 1575–1624 Gottfried Wilhelm von Leibnitz, 1646–1716 Christian Thomasius, 1655–1728	Johann J. Winckelmann, 1717–1768 Immanuel Kant, 1724–1804
ITALY	Poetry and Drama	Pietro Bembo, 1470–1547 Ludovico Ariosto, 1474–1533 Michelangelo, 1475–1564 Giovanni Rucellai, 1475–1526 Giovanni Giorgio Trissino, 1478–1550 Vittoria Colonna, 1490–1547 Bernardo Tasso, 1493–1569 Luigi Alamanni, 1495–1556 Francesco Berni, c.1498–1535 Lodovico Dolce, c.1508–1568 Giovanni Battista Guarini, 1537–1612 Torquato Tasso, 1544–1595	Gabriello Chiabrera, 1552–1637 Alessandro Tassoni, 1565–1635 Giovanni Battista Marini, 1569–1625 Vincenzo Filicaja, 1642–1707 Carlo Alessandro Guidi, 1650–1712 Giovanni Mario Crescimbeni, 1663–1728	Francesco Scipione, Marquese di Maffei, 1675–1755 Pietro Antonio Metastasio, 1698–1782 Carlo Goldoni, 1707–1793 Count Carlo Gozzi, 1720–1806 Giuseppe Parini, 1729–1799 Giovanni Meli, 1740–1815 Count Vittorio Alfieri, 1749–1803
	Fiction	Matteo Bandello, 1480–1562 Giovanni Battista Giraldi, surnamed Cintio, 1504–1573
	History	Niccolo Machiavelli, 1469–1527 Francesco Guicciardini, 1483–1540	Pietro Sarpi, 1552–1623 Sforza Pallavicino, 1607–1667
	Prose	Baldassare Castiglione, 1478–1529 Benvenuto Cellini, 1500–1571 Giorgio Vasari, 1511–1574 Giordano Bruno, c.1548–1600		Giovanni Vincenzo Gravina, 1664–1718 Giovanni Battista Vico, 1668–1744
SPAIN	Poetry	Juan Boscán Almogaver, c.1493–c.1542 Fernando de Herrera, 1534–1597 Cristóval de Virues, c.1550–c.1610 Luis de Góngora y Argote, 1561–1627		Nicolas Fernandez de Moratín, 1737–1780 José de Cadalso, 1741–1782 Gaspar Melchor de Jovellanos, 1744–1811 Juan Melendez Valdés, 1754–1817
	Drama		Cristóval de Virues, c.1550–c.1610 Lope de Vega, 1562–1635 Guillen de Castro, 1569–1631 Tirso de Molina (Gabriel Tellez), c.1570–1648 Francis de Quevedo y Villegas, 1580–1645 Juan Ruiz de Alarcón y Mendoza, c.1588–1639 Pedro Calderón de la Barca, 1600–1681 Juan de Montalván, 1602–1638 Francisco de Rojas-Zorilla, 1607–1661 Augustin Moreto, 1618–1669
	Fiction	"Lazarillo de Tormes," c.1553	Miguel de Cervantes, 1547–1616
	Prose	Antonio de Guevara, c.1490–1545 Garcilasso de la Vega, 1539–1616	Baltasar Gracián, c.1584–1658	José Francisco de Isla, 1703–1781
PORTUGAL	Poetry and Drama	Gil Vicente, c.1470–c.1537 Francisco de Sá de Miranda, 1495–1558 Luiz Vaz de Camoens, c.1524–1580
	Fiction	Jorge de Montemayor (wrote in Spanish), c.1520–1561
SCANDINAVIA	Poetry and Drama			Ludvig von Holberg, 1684–1754 Olaf von Dalin, 1708–1763 Karl Mikael Bellman, 1740–1795 Johannes Evald, 1743–1781 Johan Henrik Kellgren, 1751–1795

		1500–1600—continued.	1600–1700—continued.	1700–1800—continued.
SCANDINAVIA—continued.	Prose		Arngrim Jonsson, 1568–1648 Kaspar Bartholin, 1585–1629 Arne Magnusson, 1663–1730	Emanuel Swedenborg, 1688–1772
NETHERLANDS	Poetry and Drama	Johannes Secundus, 1511–1536 (Latin)	Jakob Cats, 1577–1660 Pieter Corneliszoon Hooft, 1581–1647 Gebrand Adriaanzoon Brederoo, 1585–1618 Joost van den Vondel, 1587–1679 Constantijn Huygens, 1596–1687	Pieter Langendijk, 1683–1756 Sybrand Feitama, 1694–1758
	Philosophical and Religious (Latin) Writings	Desiderius Erasmus, 1465–1536	Baruch Spinoza, 1632–1677

NINETEENTH CENTURY

GREAT BRITAIN	Poetry	Samuel Rogers, 1763–1855 Robert Bloomfield, 1766–1823 John Hookham Frere, 1769–1846 William Wordsworth, 1770–1850 James Hogg, 1770–1835 Samuel Taylor Coleridge, 1772–1834 Robert Southey, 1774–1843 Walter Savage Landor, 1775–1864 Thomas Campbell, 1777–1844 Thomas Moore, 1779–1852 Ebenezer Elliott, 1781–1849 Reginald Heber, 1783–1826 Thomas Love Peacock, 1785–1866 Barry Cornwall (Bryan Waller Procter), 1787–1874 Richard Harris Barham, 1788–1845 Lord Byron, 1788–1824 Percy Bysshe Shelley, 1792–1822 John Keble, 1792–1866 Felicia Dorothea Browne Hemans, 1793–1835 John Keats, 1795–1821 Hartley Coleridge, 1796–1849 Thomas Hood, 1799–1845 Winthrop Mackworth Praed, 1802–1839 Robert Stephen Hawker, 1803–1875 Elizabeth Barrett Browning, 1806–1861 Alfred Tennyson, 1809–1892 Edward Fitzgerald, 1809–1883 Martin Farquhar Tupper, 1810–1889 Robert Browning, 1812–1889	Eliza Cook, c.1818–1889 Arthur Hugh Clough, 1819–1861 Jean Ingelow, 1820–1897 Frederick Locker-Lampson, 1821–1895 Matthew Arnold, 1822–1828 Coventry Kersey Dighton Patmore, 1823–1896 Sydney Thompson Dobell, 1824–1874 Adelaide Anne Procter, 1825–1864 Dante Gabriel Rossetti, 1828–1882 Christina Georgina Rossetti, 1830–1894 Charles Stuart Calverley, 1831–1884 Sir Edwin Arnold, 1832–1904 William Morris, 1834–1896 James Thomson, 1834–1882 Alfred Austin, 1835– Algernon Charles Swinburne, 1837–1909 Austin Dobson, 1840– Andrew Lang, 1844– Edmund William Gosse, 1849– William Ernest Henley, 1849–1903 William Sharp (''Fiona Macleod''), 1855–1905 Oscar O'Flahertie Wills Wilde, 1856–1900 John Davidson, 1857–1909 William Watson, 1858– Rudyard Kipling, 1865– William Butler Yeats, 1865– Richard Le Gallienne, 1866– Stephen Phillips, 1868– Laurence Binyon, 1869– Alfred Noyes, 1880–
	Drama	James Sheridan Knowles, 1784–1862 Douglas William Jerrold, 1803–1857 Tom Taylor, 1817–1880 Thomas William Robertson, 1829–1871 William Schwenk Gilbert, 1836–1911 Henry Arthur Jones, 1851–	Sir Arthur Wing Pinero, 1855– George Bernard Shaw, 1856– James Matthew Barrie, 1860– John Galsworthy, 1867– Stephen Phillips, 1868– Charles Rann Kennedy, 1871–
	Prose Fiction	Maria Edgeworth, 1767–1849 Amelia Alderson Opie, 1769–1853 Sir Walter Scott, 1771–1832 Matthew Gregory Lewis, 1775–1818 Jane Austen, 1775–1817 Jane Porter, 1776–1850 John Galt, 1779–1839 Horace Smith, 1779–1849 Susan Edmonstone Ferrier, 1782–1854 Charles Robert Maturin, 1782–1824 Thomas Love Peacock, 1785–1866 Mary Russell Mitford, 1787–1855 Theodore Edward Hook, 1788–1841 Frederick Marryat, 1792–1848	Samuel Lover, 1797–1868 Mary Shelley, 1797–1851 John Banim, 1798–1842 George Payne Rainsford James, 1801–1860 Letitia Elizabeth Landon, 1802–1838 Edward Bulwer Lytton, 1803–1873 George Borrow, 1803–1881 Benjamin Disraeli, 1804–1881 William Harrison Ainsworth, 1805–1882 Charles James Lever, 1806–1872 John Sterling, 1806–1844 Elizabeth Gaskell, 1810–1865 John Brown, 1810–1882 William Makepeace Thackeray, 1811–1863

NINETEENTH CENTURY—continued.

GREAT BRITAIN—continued

Prose Fiction—continued

Charles Dickens, 1812–1870
Charles William Shirley Brooks, 1813–1874
Charles Reade, 1814–1884
Anthony Trollope, 1815–1882
Charlotte Brontë, 1816–1855
Emily Brontë, 1818–1848
Mayne Reid, 1818–1883
George Eliot (Mrs. Cross), 1819–1880
Charles Kingsley, 1819–1875
Anne Brontë, 1820–1849
George John Whyte-Melville, 1821–1878
Thomas Hughes, 1822–1896
Charlotte Mary Yonge, 1823–1901
George MacDonald, 1824–1905
William Wilkie Collins, 1824–1889
Richard Doddridge Blackmore, 1825–1900
Dinah Maria (Mulock) Craik, 1826–1887
George Meredith, 1828–1909
Margaret Oliphant, 1828–1897
Lewis Carroll (C. L. Dodgson), 1832–1898
George Du Maurier, 1834–1896
William Morris, 1834–1896
Sir Walter Besant, 1836–1901
Walter Theodore Watts-Dunton, 1836–
William Frend De Morgan, 1839–
Thomas Hardy, 1840–
Ouida (Louise De La Ramée), 1840–1908
William Black, 1841–1898

Robert Louis Balfour Stevenson, 1850–1894
John Watson (Ian Maclaren), 1850–1907
Robert Barr, 1850–
Mrs. Humphry Ward, 1851–
Thomas Henry Hall Caine, 1853–
George Moore, 1853–
William Sharp, 1855–1905
Henry Rider Haggard, 1856–
George Bernard Shaw, 1856–
George Gissing, 1857–1903
Jerome Klapka Jerome, 1859–
Sir A. Conan Doyle, 1859–
James Matthew Barrie, 1860–
Samuel Rutherford Crockett, 1860–
Maurice Henry Hewlett, 1861–
Sir Horatio Gilbert Parker, 1862–
Eden Phillpotts, 1862–
Anthony Hope Hawkins, 1863–
Sir Arthur Thomas Quiller-Couch, 1863–
William John Locke, 1863–
Robert Smythe Hichens, 1864–
Israel Zangwill, 1864–
Rudyard Kipling, 1865–
Herbert George Wells, 1866–
Edward Frederic Benson, 1867–
John Galsworthy, 1867–
May Sinclair,

History and Biography

George Grote, 1794–1871
Thomas Arnold, 1795–1842
Thomas Carlyle, 1795–1881
Agnes Strickland, 1796–1874
George Finlay, 1799–1875
Thomas Babington Macaulay (Baron Macaulay), 1800–1859
Charles Merivale, 1808–1893
Alexander William Kinglake, 1809–1891
Sir Edward Shepherd Creasy, 1812–1872
John Forster, 1812–1876

James Anthony Froude, 1818–1894
Goldwin Smith, 1823–1910
Edward Augustus Freeman, 1823–1892
William Stubbs, 1825–1901
Samuel Rawson Gardiner, 1829–1902
Justin M'Carthy, 1830–
John Richard Green, 1837–1883
Sir George Otto Trevelyan, 1838–
William Edward Hartpole Lecky, 1838–
James Bryce, 1838–
Charles Harding Frith, 1857–

Prose

William Cobbett, 1766–1835
Isaac D'Israeli, 1766–1848
Basil Montagu, 1770–1851
Sydney Smith, 1771–1845
Samuel Taylor Coleridge, 1772–1834
Francis Jeffrey, 1773–1850
Robert Southey, 1774–1843
Charles Lamb, 1775–1834
Walter Savage Landor, 1775–1864
Henry Hallam, 1777–1859
William Hazlitt, 1778–1830
Thomas De Quincey, 1785–1859
Christopher North (John Wilson), 1785–1854
Anna Jameson, 1794–1860
John Gibson Lockhart, 1794–1854
Thomas Carlyle, 1795–1881
Sir Charles Lyell, 1797–1875
Thomas Babington Macaulay (Baron Macaulay), 1800–1859
John Henry Newman, 1801–1890
Harriet Martineau, 1802–1876
Frederick Denison Maurice, 1805–1872
John Stuart Mill, 1806–1873
William Ewart Gladstone, 1809–1898
Alexander William Kinglake, 1809–1891
Charles Robert Darwin, 1809–1882
John Bright, 1811–1889
Arthur Penrhyn Stanley, 1815–1881
George Henry Lewes, 1817–1878

John Ruskin, 1819–1900
Herbert Spencer, 1820–1903
John Tyndall, 1820–1893
Matthew Arnold, 1822–1888
Francis Galton, 1822–1911
Alfred Russel Wallace, 1822–
Thomas Henry Huxley, 1825–1895
Walter Bagehot, 1826–1877
William Michael Rossetti, 1829–
Frederick William Farrar, 1831–1903
Sir Leslie Stephen, 1832–1904
Thomas Hill Green, 1836–1882
John Morley (Viscount Morley), 1838–
James Bryce, 1838–
Walter Horatio Pater, 1839–1894
John Addington Symonds, 1840–1893
Andrew Lang, 1844–
George Edward Bateman Saintsbury, 1845–
Sir Sidney Colvin, 1845–
John Richard Jefferies, 1848–1887
Arthur James Balfour, 1848–
Edmund William Gosse, 1849–
Augustine Birrell, 1850–
Sir Sidney Lee, 1859–
Arthur Symons, 1865–
Hilaire Joseph Peter Belloc, 1870–
Gilbert Keith Chesterton, 1874–
Sir Walter Raleigh,

NINETEENTH CENTURY—continued.

UNITED STATES

Poetry

Samuel Woodworth, 1785–1842
Richard Henry Dana, 1787–1879
Fitz-Greene Halleck, 1790–1867
Lydia Huntley Sigourney, 1791–1865
William Cullen Bryant, 1794–1878
James Gates Percival, 1795–1856
Maria Gowen Brooks, c.1795–1845
Joseph Rodman Drake, 1795–1820
Ralph Waldo Emerson, 1803–1882
Nathaniel Parker Willis, 1806–1867
Charles Fenno Hoffman, 1806–1884
John Greenleaf Whittier, 1807–1892
Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, 1807–1882
Edgar Allan Poe, 1809–1849
Oliver Wendell Holmes, 1809–1894
Willis Gaylord Clark, 1810–1841
Jones Very, 1813–1880
Christopher Pearse Cranch, 1813–1892
John Godfrey Saxe, 1816–1887
James Russell Lowell, 1819–1891
Walt Whitman, 1819–1892
William Wetmore Story, 1819–1895
Julia Ward Howe, 1819–1910
Alice Cary, 1820–1871
Thomas Buchanan Read, 1822–1872
George Henry Boker, 1823–1890
Phœbe Cary, 1824–1871
Charles Godfrey Leland, 1824–1903
Bayard Taylor, 1825–1878
Richard Henry Stoddard, 1825–1903
Lucy Larcom, 1826–1893
Henry Timrod, 1829–1867
Silas Weir Mitchell, 1829–
Edmund Clarence Stedman, 1833–1908
Celia Thaxter, 1835–1894
Thomas Bailey Aldrich, 1836–1907
John Hay, 1838–1905
Francis Bret Harte, 1839–1902
Joaquin Miller, 1841–
Sidney Lanier, 1842–1881
Richard Watson Gilder, 1844–1909
Eugene Field, 1850–1895
Edwin Markham, 1852–
Robert Underwood Johnson, 1853–
James Whitcomb Riley, 1854–
George Edward Woodberry, 1855–
William Bliss Carman, 1861–
George Santayana, 1863–
Richard Hovey, 1864–1900
William Vaughn Moody, 1869–1910
Paul Laurence Dunbar, 1872–1906

Prose Fiction

Charles Brockden Brown, 1771–1810
James Kirke Paulding, 1779–1860
Washington Irving, 1783–1859
Richard Henry Dana, 1787–1879
James Fenimore Cooper, 1789–1851
John Pendleton Kennedy, 1795–1870
William Ware, 1797–1852
Lydia Maria Child, 1802–1880
Nathaniel Hawthorne, 1804–1864
William Gilmore Simms, 1806–1870
Edgar Allan Poe, 1809–1849
Oliver Wendell Holmes, 1809–1894
Harriet Beecher Stowe, 1811–1896
Richard Henry Dana, Jr., 1815–1882
Henry David Thoreau, 1817–1862
Elizabeth Wetherell (Susan Warner), 1819–1885
Josiah Gilbert Holland, 1819–1881
Herman Melville, 1819–1891
Ik Marvel (Donald G. Mitchell), 1822–1908
Richard Malcolm Johnston, 1822–1898
Lucy Larcom, 1826–1893
John William De Forest, 1826–1906
Lewis (Lew) Wallace, 1827–1905
Theodore Winthrop, 1828–1861
Silas Weir Mitchell, 1829–
Charles Dudley Warner, 1829–1900
John Esten Cooke, 1830–1886
Helen Hunt Jackson, 1831–1885
Louisa May Alcott, 1832–1888
Frank Richard Stockton, 1834–1902
Artemus Ward (C. F. Brown), 1834–1867
Mark Twain (S. L. Clemens), 1835–1910
Thomas Bailey Aldrich, 1836–1907
Edward Eggleston, 1837–1902
William Dean Howells, 1837–
Edward Payson Roe, 1838–1888
Francis Hopkinson Smith, 1838–
Francis Bret Harte, 1839–1902
Henry James, Jr., 1843–
George Washington Cable, 1844–
Charles King, 1844–
Elizabeth Stuart Phelps Ward, 1844–1911
Edward Noyes Westcott, 1847–1898
Mary Hallock Foote, 1847–
Mary Hartwell Catherwood, 1847–1902
Constance Fenimore Woolson, 1848–1894
Joel Chandler Harris, 1848–1908
Hjalmar Hjorth Boyesen, 1848–1895
Frances Hodgson Burnett, 1849–
Sarah Orne Jewett, 1849–1909
James Lane Allen, 1849–
Thomas Allibone Janvier, 1849–
Edward Bellamy, 1850–1898
Octave Thanet (Alice French), c.1850–
Charles Egbert Craddock (M. N. Murfree), 1850–
Lafcadio Hearn, 1850–1904
Robert Grant, 1852–
Thomas Nelson Page, 1853–
F. Marion Crawford, 1854–1909
Ruth McEnery Stuart, 1856–
Margaretta Wade Campbell Deland, 1857–
Kate Douglas Wiggin (Mrs. Riggs), 1859–
Irving Addison Bacheller, 1859–
Owen Wister, 1860–
Hamlin Garland, 1860–
Edith Newbold Jones Wharton, 1862–
Mary Eleanor Wilkins (Mrs. Freeman), 1862–
Amélie Rives (Princess Troubetzkoy), 1863–
Richard Harding Davis, 1864–
Paul Leicester Ford, 1865–1902
John Oliver Hobbes (Mrs. Craigie), 1867–1906
Newton Booth Tarkington, 1869–
Gertrude Franklin Atherton,
Alice Caldwell Hegan Rice, 1870–
Winston Churchill, 1871–
Stewart Edward White, 1873–
Jack London, 1876–

NINETEENTH CENTURY—continued.

UNITED STATES—continued	History	Jared Sparks, 1789–1866 John Gorham Palfrey, 1796–1881 William Hickling Prescott, 1796–1859 George Bancroft, 1800–1891 Charles Étienne Arthur Gayarré, 1805–1895 John Lothrop Motley, 1814–1877 Francis Parkman, 1823–1893	Justin Winsor, 1831–1897 John Fiske, 1842–1901 James Ford Rhodes, 1848– William Milligan Sloane, 1850– John Bach McMaster, 1852– Albert Bushnell Hart, 1854– Woodrow Wilson, 1856–
	Prose	Noah Webster, 1758–1843 Mathew Carey, 1760–1839 James Kent, 1763–1847 Alexander Wilson, 1766–1813 John Quincy Adams, 1767–1848 William Wirt, 1772–1834 Washington Allston, 1779–1843 William Ellery Channing, 1780–1842 John James Audubon, 1780–1851 Daniel Webster, 1782–1852 Washington Irving, 1783–1859 Jared Sparks, 1789–1866 George Ticknor, 1791–1871 Henry Charles Carey, 1793–1879 Edward Everett, 1794–1865 Horace Mann, 1796–1859 Amos Bronson Alcott, 1799–1888 Francis Lieber, 1800–1872 Orestes Augustus Brownson, 1803–1876 Ralph Waldo Emerson, 1803–1882 Richard Hildreth, 1807–1865 Edgar Allan Poe, 1809–1849 Abraham Lincoln, 1809–1865 Robert Charles Winthrop, 1809–1894 Frances Anne Kemble, 1809–1893 James Freeman Clarke, 1810–1888 Sarah Margaret Fuller, 1810–1850 Horace Greeley, 1811–1872 Charles Sumner, 1811–1874 Henry Ward Beecher, 1813–1887 Henry Theodore Tuckerman, 1813–1871 Rufus Wilmot Griswold, 1815–1857 Parke Godwin, 1816–1904 James Thomas Fields, 1817–1881 Henry David Thoreau, 1817–1862	William Ellery Channing, 1818–1901 James Russell Lowell, 1819–1891 Edwin Percy Whipple, 1819–1886 William Wetmore Story, 1819–1895 Edward Everett Hale, 1822–1909 Octavius Brooks Frothingham, 1822–1895 James Parton, 1822–1891 Thomas Wentworth Higginson, 1823–1911 George William Curtis, 1824–1892 Francis James Child, 1825–1896 Henry Charles Lea, 1825–1909 Bayard Taylor, 1825–1878 Charles Eliot Norton, 1827–1908 Gail Hamilton (Mary Abigail Dodge), 1830–1896 Moncure Daniel Conway, 1832–1907 Andrew Dickson White, 1832– Edmund Clarence Stedman, 1833–1908 Phillips Brooks, 1835–1893 Moses Coit Tyler, 1835–1900 Henry Mills Alden, 1836– William Winter, 1836– John Burroughs, 1837– John Hay, 1838–1905 Thomas Raynesford Lounsbury, 1838– John Muir, 1838– Henry George, 1839–1897 William James, 1842–1910 George Kennan, 1845– Henry Cabot Lodge, 1850– William Crary Brownell, 1851– Henry Van Dyke, 1852– James Brander Matthews, 1852– Josiah Royce, 1855– George Edward Woodberry, 1855– Theodore Roosevelt, 1858–
	Drama	John Howard Payne, 1791–1852 Bronson Howard, 1842–1908	Augustus Thomas, 1859– William Clyde Fitch, 1865–1909
FRANCE	Poetry	Louis Jean Lemercier, 1771–1840 Pierre Jean de Béranger, 1780–1857 Alphonse Marie Louis de Lamartine, 1790–1869 Jean François Casimir Delavigne, 1793–1843 Alfred Victor, Comte de Vigny, 1799–1863 Victor Hugo, 1802–1885 Alfred de Musset, 1810–1857 Théophile Gautier, 1811–1872 Leconte de Lisle, 1818–1894	Pierre Charles Baudelaire, 1821–1867 Théodore de Banville, 1823–1891 Frédéric Mistral (Provençal), 1830– René François Armand Sully-Prudhomme, 1839–1907 Catulle Mendès, 1841–1909 François Coppée, 1842–1908 Paul Verlaine, 1844–1896 Joris Karl Huysmans, 1848–1907
	Drama	Augustin Eugène Scribe, 1791–1861 Victor Hugo, 1802–1885 Eugène Marie Labiche, 1815–1888 Émile Augier, 1820–1889 Octave Feuillet, 1821–1890 Alexandre Dumas (fils), 1824–1895 Edmond About, 1828–1885	Victorien Sardou, 1831–1908 Henri Meilhac, 1832–1897 Ludovic Halévy, 1834–1908 Édouard Jules Henri Pailleron, 1834–1899 Henri Becque, 1837–1899 Jean Richepin, 1849– Edmond Rostand, 1864–
	Prose Fiction	Madame de Staël, 1766–1817 François René, Vicomte de Châteaubriand, 1768–1848 Charles Emmanuel Nodier, 1780–1844 Marie Henri Beyle (De Stendhal), 1783–1842 Honoré de Balzac, 1799–1850 Alexandre Dumas (père), 1802–1870 Victor Hugo, 1802–1885	Prosper Mérimée, 1803–1870 George Sand (Baroness Dudevant), 1804–1876 Théophile Gautier, 1811–1872 Léonard Sylvain Jules Sandeau, 1811–1883 Octave Feuillet, 1821–1890 Gustave Flaubert, 1821–1880 Edmond de Goncourt, 1822–1896 Jules de Goncourt, 1830–1870

NINETEENTH CENTURY—continued.

FRANCE—continued	Prose Fiction—continued	Alphonse Daudet, 1840–1897 Émile Zola, 1840–1902 Jules (Arsène Arnaud) Claretie, 1840– Anatole France, 1844– Guy de Maupassant, 1850–1893	Pierre Loti (L. M. J. Viaud), 1850– Paul Bourget, 1852– Jules Lemaître, 1853– Eugène Marcel Prévost, 1862– René François Marie Bazin, 1863–
	History	François Pierre Guillaume Guizot, 1787–1874 Augustin Thierry, 1795–1856 Louis Adolphe Thiers, 1797–1877 Jules Michelet, 1798–1874	Ernest Renan, 1823–1892 Gaston Boissier, 1823–1908 Hippolyte Adolphe Taine, 1828–1893 Frédéric Masson, 1847–
	Prose	Joseph de Maistre, 1753–1821 François Fourier, 1772–1837 Robert de Lamennais, 1782–1854 Victor Cousin, 1792–1867 Auguste Comte, 1798–1857 Prosper Mérimée, 1803–1870 Charles Augustin Sainte-Beuve, 1804–1869 Alexis de Tocqueville, 1805–1859 Désiré Nisard, 1806–1888 Pierre Joseph Proudhon, 1809–1865	Ernest Renan, 1823–1892 Francisque Sarcey, 1828–1899 Hippolyte Adolphe Taine, 1828–1893 Anatole France, 1844– Émile Faguet, 1847– Ferdinand Brunetière, 1849–1906 Paul Bourget, 1852– Jules Lemaître, 1853– Paul Ernest Hervieu, 1857– René Doumic, 1860–
GERMANY	Poetry	Adelbert von Chamisso, 1781–1838 Andreas Justinius Kerner, 1786–1862 Ludwig Uhland, 1787–1862 Friedrich Rückert, 1788–1866 Karl Theodor Körner, 1791–1813 Gustav Schwab, 1792–1850 Wilhelm Müller, 1794–1827 Annette Elisabeth von Droste-Hülshoff, 1797–1848 Heinrich Heine, 1797–1856 Hoffmann von Fallersleben, 1798–1874 Nikolaus Lenau (Niembsch von Strehlenau), 1802–1850 Anastasius Grün (Count A. A. von Auersperg), 1806–1876	Fritz Reuter, 1810–1874 Ferdinand Freiligrath, 1810–1876 Friedrich Wilhelm Weber, 1813–1894 Emanuel von Geibel, 1815–1884 Johann Gottfried Kinkel, 1815–1882 Wilhelm Jordan, 1819–1904 Theodor Fontane, 1819–1898 Oskar von Redwitz, 1823–1891 Otto Roquette, 1824–1896 Joseph Victor von Scheffel, 1826–1886 Julius Wolff, 1834– Felix Dahn, 1834– Rudolf Baumbach, 1840–1905
	Drama	August Wilhelm Iffland, 1759–1814 August Friedrich von Kotzebue, 1761–1819 Friedrich Ludwig Zacharias Werner, 1768–1823 Heinrich von Kleist, 1777–1811 Franz Grillparzer, 1791–1872 Karl Lebrecht Immermann, 1796–1840 Friedrich Halm, 1806–1871	Heinrich Laube, 1806–1884 Otto Ludwig, 1813–1865 Friedrich Hebbel, 1813–1863 Ernst von Wildenbruch, 1845–1909 Hermann Sudermann, 1857– Gerhart Hauptmann, 1862– Ludwig Fulda, 1862–
	Prose Fiction	Ernst Moritz Arndt, 1769–1860 Johann Heinrich Zschokke, 1771–1848 Karl Wilhelm Friedrich von Schlegel, 1772–1829 Novalis, 1772–1801 Ludwig Tieck, 1773–1853 Ernst Hoffmann, 1776–1822 Friedrich de la Motte Fouqué, 1777–1843 Clemens Brentano, 1778–1842 Achim (Ludwig Joachim) von Arnim, 1781–1831 Adelbert von Chamisso, 1781–1838 Joseph von Eichendorff, 1788–1857 Wilibald Alexis (W. Häring), 1798–1871 Wilhelm Hauff, 1802–1827 Eduard Mörike, 1804–1875 Theodor Mundt, 1808–1861	Fritz Reuter, 1810–1874 Karl Gutzkow, 1811–1878 Berthold Auerbach, 1812–1882 Gustav Freytag, 1816–1895 Theodor Storm, 1817–1888 Gottfried Keller, 1819–1890 Wilhelm Heinrich Riehl, 1823–1897 Oskar von Redwitz, 1823–1891 Conrad Ferdinand Meyer, 1825–1898 Friedrich Spielhagen, 1829–1911 Johann Ludwig Paul Heyse, 1830– Felix Dahn, 1834– Georg Ebers, 1837–1898 Peter Rosegger, 1843– Gustav Frenssen, 1863–
	History	Barthold Georg Niebuhr, 1776–1831 Leopold von Ranke, 1795–1886	Theodor Mommsen, 1817–1903 Felix Dahn, 1834–
	Prose	Johann Heinrich Pestalozzi, 1746–1827 Johann Gottlieb Fichte, 1762–1814 August Wilhelm von Schlegel, 1767–1845 Wilhelm von Humboldt, 1767–1835 Friedrich Ernst Daniel Schleiermacher, 1768–1834 Alexander von Humboldt, 1769–1859 Georg Wilhelm Friedrich Hegel, 1770–1831 Karl Wilhelm Friedrich von Schlegel, 1772–1829	Friedrich Wilhelm Joseph von Schelling, 1775–1854 Johann Friedrich Herbart, 1776–1841 Jakob Grimm, 1785–1863 Wilhelm Grimm, 1786–1859 Arthur Schopenhauer, 1788–1860 Heinrich Heine, 1797–1856 David Friedrich Strauss, 1808–1874 Friedrich Wilhelm Nietzsche, 1844–1900

NINETEENTH CENTURY—continued.

ITALY	Poetry	Vincenzo Monti, 1754–1828 Niccolo Ugo Foscolo, 1778–1827 Giacomo Leopardi, 1798–1837 Giuseppe Giusti, 1809–1850	Aleardo Aleardi, 1812–1878 Giacomo Zanella, 1820–1888 Giosuè Carducci, 1836–1907
	Prose Fiction	Alessandro Manzoni, 1785–1873 Silvio Pellico, 1788–1854 Antonio Fogazzaro, 1842–1911 Edmondo De Amicis, 1846–1908	Salvatore Farina, 1846– Matilda Serao, 1856– Gabriele D'Annunzio, 1864–
	Prose	Pietro Giordani, 1774–1848 Pietro Colletta, 1775–1833 Carlo Troya, 1784–1858 Terenzio Mamiani della Rorcre, 1800–1885 Vincenzo Gioberti, 1801–1852	Niccolò Tommaseo, 1802–1874 Cesare Cantù, 1804–1895 Giuseppe Mazzini, c.1805–1872 Giuseppe Ferrari, 1812–1876 Pasquale Villari, 1827–
SPAIN	Poetry	Alberto Lista y Aragon, 1775–1848 Francisco Martinez de la Rosa, 1789–1862 Angel de Saavedra (Duke of Rivas), 1791–1865	José de Espronceda, 1810–1842 José Zorrilla y Moral, 1818–1893
	Drama	José Zorrilla y Moral, 1818–1893 Adelardo Lopez de Ayala, 1829–1879	Manuel Tamayo, 1829–1898 José Echegaray, 1832–
	Fiction and other Prose	Serafin Estébanez Calderón, 1801–1867 Mariano José de Larra, 1809–1837 Jaime Luciano Balmez, 1810–1848	Juan Valera, 1827– Pedro Antonio de Alarcón, 1833–1891 Marcelino Menendez y Palayo, 1856–
SCANDINAVIA	Poetry	Jens Baggesen, 1764–1826 Johan Olof Wallin, 1779–1839 Adam Gottlob Öhlenschläger, 1779–1850 Esaias Tegner, 1782–1846 Nikolai Frederick Severin Grundtvig, 1783–1872 Bernhard Severin Ingemann, 1789–1862 Peter Daniel Amadeus Atterbom, 1790–1855 Johannes Carsten Hauch, 1790–1872 Ludwig Bödtcher, 1793–1874	Henrik Hertz, 1798–1870 Karl Ludwig Emil Aarestrup, 1800–1856 Johan Sebastian Cammermeyer Welhaven, 1807–1873 Henrik Wergeland, 1808–1845 Frederik Paludan-Müller, 1809–1876 Andreas Munch, 1811–1884 Björnstjerne Björnson, 1832–1910
	Drama	Johann Ludvig Heiberg, 1791–1860 Henrik Hertz, 1798–1870 Henrik Ibsen, 1828–1906	Björnstjerne Björnson, 1832–1910 August Strindberg, 1849–
	Fiction and other Prose	Carl Bernhard, 1798–1865 Frederika Bremer, 1801–1865 Hans Christian Andersen, 1805–1875 Sören Aaby Kjerkegaard, 1813–1855 Björnstjerne Björnson, 1832–1910	Jonas Lauritz Edemil Lie, 1833–1908 Jörgen Wilhelm Bergsöe, 1835– Georg Morris Cohen Brandes, 1842– Holger Henrik Herholdt Drachmann, 1846–1908 Selma Lagerlöf, 1858–
RUSSIA	Poetry	Ivan Andreyevitch Kryloff, 1768–1844 Alexander Pushkin, 1799–1837	Alexei V. Koltzoff, 1809–1842 Mikhail Lermontof, 1814–1841
	Fiction	Nikolai Karamzin, 1765–1826 Nikolai Vassilievich Gogol, 1809–1852 Alexander Hertzen, 1812–1870 Ivan Sergeyevich Turgenieff, 1818–1883	Feodor Mikhailovitch Dostoyevsky, 1821–1881 Leo Nikolaievich Tolstoy, 1828–1910 Maxim Gorky (A. M. Pyeshkof), 1868–
POLAND	Poetry and Fiction	Sigmund Krasinski, 1812–1859 Józef Ignacy Kraszewski, 1812–1887	Henryk Sienkiewicz, 1845–
HUNGARY	Fiction	Mór Jókai, 1825–1904
NETHERLANDS AND BELGIUM	Poetry	Willem Bilderdijk, 1756–1831 Hendrik Tollens, 1780–1856 Izaak Da Costa, 1798–1860	Nikolaas Beets ("Hildebrand"), 1814–1903 Maurice Maeterlinck, 1862– (in French)
	Fiction and other Prose	Jacob van Lennep, 1802–1868 Eduard Douwes Dekker, 1820–1887	Maarten Maartens (J. M. H. Van der Poorten-Schwarz), 1858– (in English) Maurice Maeterlinck, 1862– (in French)

A B C D E F G
H I J K L M
N O P Q R S
T U V W X Y Z

A B C D E F G

H I J K L M

N O P Q R S

T U V W X Y Z

NATIONAL LIBRARY OF MEDICINE
NLM 00050496 6